During the final months of 1987 and the early weeks of this year, the coal industry witnessed an all-out assault on the European anthracite market by Chinese coal exporters. The Chinese Government are allowing their coal agents to undercut prices wherever and whenever they recognise the opportunity to capture a permanent niche in an important market such as the one in this country. They are systematically dumping their coal, and their prices, which do not in any way reflect the costs of production and transportation, to wipe out bulk anthracite production in areas such as south Wales. They wish to create for themselves a captive market within which to generate future profits.

In 1987, Abernant colliery was selling its coal at an average price of £66 a tonne, a price that compares favourably with £84 a tonne of imported anthracite. Its best quality coals are generating revenues of up to £100 a tonne; far higher, for example, than those of any pit on the British mainland outside south Wales.

There is no doubt about Abernant having immediate access to huge reserves of high-quality anthracite. Its reserves are not in question. The immediate problems arise from the fact that the pit is going through a period of upheaval and transition. It is shifting the focus of its production to a new seam and a new underground district, and as a result is forced to carry unusually high development costs at a time when output has necessarily been low. All collieries go through these phases. That is the nature of coalmining, and it will never change. What has changed, however, is the determination of British Coal to secure the permission of, and adequate resources from, the Government to enable it to pass through difficult times in order to secure a good future for collieries such as Abernant.

British Coal is abandoning its sane long-term strategy for the regeneration of the anthracite area, and appears to be going for a crash programme of profit generation by closing its deep mines and proliferating its opencast sites. This policy only brings more hardship to south Wales in the form of unemployment, along with resentment, in the mining communities, which see the landscape ravaged, with very little employment resulting. There is no logic in this. It is a policy that is rejected throughout south Wales, and there is growing evidence of public resistance to it.

The Minister should understand the depth of this resentment. He should recognise the anger, frustration and despondency that these policies are causing in the hearts of men and women as they see mine jobs replaced by a scarred landscape and foreign imports. We shall reap a bitter harvest if the Government do not look again at the need to transform collieries such as Abernant rather than close them. The harvest will be higher fuel prices, anthracite shortages and the generation of resentment at the unnecessary tragedy of unemployment.

I urge the Minister to look again at the decision over Abernant and to put aside short-term financial considerations, which must not be allowed to determine this country's energy future. If he does that, he will help unleash the potential of our coalfields, not destroy them.

10.30 pm

Mr. Alan W. Williams (Carmarthen): I thank my hon. Friend the Member for Neath (Mr. Coleman) for giving me a few minutes of the time available in this Adjournment debate.

The closure of Abernant colliery affects my constituency too, because about one third of the work force in Abernant live in the upper Amman valley in my constituency. Also, British Coal announced that in closing Abernant colliery, it is going to close Wernos washery. It was a bolt out of the blue for the work force there, because for the last 15 years it has been involved in washing the coal from Betws colliery, a new mine in south Wales since the war, so it thought that its future was secure. But British Coal has decided that it will close Wernos washery and use the redundant washery at Abernant. So the knock-on effect for me is about 100 jobs lost in Wernos and the loss of the jobs of about 200 of the Abernant work force who live in my constituency.

The effects in terms of unemployment in the upper Amman valley are quite devastating. Her Majesty's inspector of schools and colleges, a quite neutral source, produced a report on the further education college in Cwmaman, stating that the upper Amman valley has lost virtually all its industrial base, and that unemployment at present is around 50 per cent. overall, with some 36 per cent. of the young people out of work. Those are not my figures; as I say, they are from a neutral source. If the closures go ahead, that 36 per cent. will climb rapidly towards 40 per cent., with the knock-on effect of taking the miners' income out of my constituency.

Over the weekend, I learnt that the average age of the work force in Abernant is, unbelievably, just 32. That is because there have been so many colliery closures in south Wales during the past few years that all the older men have left the industry. When the Government came into office, there were 50 mines there; now there are only 12, and if these closures proceed we shall be down to 10 in a few months. These are young men with families and mortgages, who are anxious to carry on in a working life for the next 20 or 30 years.

When it was first announced, the Abernant miners decided to contest the closure. That was a courageous decision. Unfortunately, when redundancies are involved, the buying of jobs is all too common, and the fight has largely been lost, even in the coal industry. During this week, people have had second thoughts and decided to accept the closure, but the decision has been made under very unfair circumstances. They were told that if they decided quickly — before the end of March — each employee would receive an extra £5,000 in redundancy pay. That is bribery and blackmail.

However, there is a more sinister threat. Young members of the work force have been told that if they go quietly now it will be classed as voluntary redundancy, and there will be a possibility of jobs in other mines. If, however, they delay beyond March, the redundancy may become compulsory. With that kind of threat hanging over them, it is no surprise that the young work force decided to accept the closure.

Even at this late stage, I ask British Coal, through the Minister, to reconsider the decision to close Abernant. The pit is modern; it is only 30 years old. It is not an 18th or 19th century pit. Moreover, as my hon. Friend the Member for Neath said, it has massive reserves of coal. It has become known in south Wales as "the sleeping giant" because of its enormous reserves of high-quality anthracite. During the past few months, the pit has been producing about 90 per cent. of its target output, and its losses are marginal—about £10 a tonne.

Earlier this week, we heard that in 1992 we would be moving towards a single European market. For better or worse, we shall have an industrial common market with France and Germany. Why cannot that apply to coal? The coal mined in Britain is the cheapest in Europe. If Abernant were anywhere in France, Germany or Belgium, there would be no question of its closure.

I appeal to the Minister to think again.

10.34 pm

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Energy (Mr. Michael Spicer): I listened carefully to the hon. Member for Neath (Mr. Coleman) and I pay a sincere tribute to him for raising so forcefully the Abernant colliery closure. In particular, I listened to his well-informed remarks on anthracite. I also listened to what the hon. Member for Carmarthen (Mr. Williams) had to say about the Wernos washery in his constituency.

As hon. Members will know, decisions about the closure of individual units are the management responsibility of British Coal. The colliery review procedure, agreed between British Coal and the mining unions, provides for the detailed scrutiny of proposals for closure through three possible levels—local discussions, national appeals and, finally, the independent review body.

The consultation procedure for considering closure proposals is the most comprehensive consultation process available to any industry. It allows all those with a direct interest in the proposals to bring evidence throughout the three stages of the proceedings, including the independent review body.

The Government are not a party to closure decisions taken by British Coal or to the closure procedure, but I suspect that it would be helpful to the House if I were to fill in a few details of the background of this particular closure.

Abernant colliery, as has been said, has been worked for only 30 years, producing anthracite from the red vein seam. It was completed in 1958 at a cost of £10 million and is one of four anthracite mines in the locality. Output has been sold mainly to the domestic market, to the Aberthaw power station and to the furnacite plant at Aberconwy. A little goes for export.

The pit has consistently made a loss for over 15 years.

Mr. Dennis Skinner (Bolsover): Like farmers.

Mr. Spicer: We are not debating farmers tonight, we are talking about the coal industry. The hon. Gentleman seems to forget that the coal industry is currently receiving subsidies to the tune of well over £1 billion a year. He conveniently tends to forget that whenever we sit here together. He tends to forget the tremendous support that the industry that he purports to support receives from the Government.

[Mr. Spicer]

Since 1975, the accumulated losses have totalled over £47 million, with annual losses of £7·6 million and £4·4 million in 1982-83 and 1983-84 respectively. So far this year there has been a loss of £3·7 million

In an attempt to bring the pit into profitability. new heavy duty face equipment was installed in the W20 face in September 1986 at a cost of £3·5 million. The expectation was that with that new investment output could be increased on that face to 1,300 tonnes per day. But — this is the crucial point — because of the pit's difficult geology, production has never achieved half that target.

In April 1987, local management advised the men that new shift patterns were necessary to improve productivity and to enable the pit to continue working. After a one-day strike, subsequent co-operation between the men and management resulted in some improvement in performance, but unfortunately not enough to make the pit viable.

In August 1987, at a further reconvened colliery review meeting, the area director expressed his concern over the continuing losses and a new plan of action was agreed with the aim of making the pit viable. I fully recognise the tremendous efforts that were made over the succeeding four months by men and management, which resulted in a small profit of £22,000 being achieved in November. If that sort of result had been sustained, it could have ensured the future of the pit. Regrettably, there was a considerable decline in output in December and January due to geological disturbances in S14 and W20 faces and an ingress of water into W9.

At a further review meeting on 3 February, the area director said that he could see no justification for keeping the colliery open and would be recommending its closure. In addition, he proposed to close the Wernos washery, because coal washing at Betws colliery could be transferred to the Abernant washery, which had sufficient capacity.

British Coal explained that the severe geological difficulties that had been encountered at Abernant in the current faces and in the future development area would result in continuing losses, which would be unacceptable. The options for slimming down production faces or carrying on development alone had also been examined, but offered no solution. For example, continuing development on its own, using 300 men, would have meant an annual loss of £10 million. It would have taken 12 months for the F1 development face to be ready for production, assuming no geological problems. Even then, the likelihood is that production would have been at a loss.

The area director made it clear that the decision to close the colliery had not been taken lightly and that it had been based entirely on the physical conditions of the pit. In the management's view, there was no prospect of an improvement. I note—this has already been noted in the debate—that the men, too, have recognised the reality of the situation and voted overwhelmingly on 16 February to accept that decision.

I recognise the concern of the hon. Members for Neath and for Carmarthen about the effects of the closure on employment in the Pontardawe area. Therefore, in the remaining few moments, I should like to draw attention to the measures that British Coal is taking to mitigate the effects of the closure. British Coal has stressed that voluntary redundancy would be offered, or there would be opportunities for those wishing to stay in the industry to transfer to the nearby Betws, Cynheidre or Tower collieries.

The hon. Member for Neath mentioned redundancy terms and the £5,000 lump sum. That sort of offer is not available in any other industry that I can think of. British Coal's redundancy terms are a matter for the corporation itself and reflect its assessment of the needs of the industry. Even without the current £5,000 supplement, the terms are exceptionally generous, providing up to about £35,000 including the statutory lump sum and cash in lieu of concessionary fuel — depending, of course, on age and length of service.

The supplementary £5,000 was introduced by British Coal as a temporary measure to help the industry to adjust to adverse market conditions. It has always been made clear that the supplement would end on the last day of British Coal's financial year — 26 March this year. I understand that the corporation does not intend to extend it beyond that date. However, I assure hon. Members that any mine worker who leaves the industry on redundancy before 26 March will be entitled to the £5,000 supplement.

Finally, we recognise that coal that can be mined commercially is one of our country's great national assets. I suspect that that is something which Opposition Members and the Government have in common. What is more, we believe that coal will be the fuel of choice for the great bulk of our electricity supply industry for many years to come. So long as it is competitive, which we are confident it can be, the coal that the electricity industry will buy will be British. However, it is no secret that British Coal is having to face extremely tough market conditions —much tougher, indeed, than had been expected even a year ago. It is against that background that the corporation has had to decide to close pits such as Abernant. It is also why a total of 16 pits have had to close or merge during this financial year.

I remind the House that Sir Robert Haslam has made it clear that the number of closures needed next year will be quite small, unless there is sustained industrial action. Perhaps I could say direct to the hon. Member for Bolsover (Mr. Skinner), who has influence in such matters, that he has it within his grasp to assist the industry in that respect. The chairman is absolutely clear that, unless there is sustained industrial action, which will damage the prospects of those pits which are marginal, the industry has a sustainable and bright future.

The Government are backing British Coal with £2 million every working day, including investment in new pits and new seams, which quite often is forgotten. We would not be doing so if we did not believe that the industry has a bright future. It will have a bright future as long as it faces up squarely to the competitive pressures that are growing daily.

The problem with the Abernant pit is its geology, but the industry as a whole has a bright future and will be able to service our electricity industry as long as those working in it accept that it must be fully modernised and competitive.

Question put and agreed to.

Adjourned accordingly at fifteen minutes to Eleven o'clock.

House of Commons

Friday 19 February 1988

The House met at half-past Nine o'clock

PRAYERS

[MR. SPEAKER in the Chair]

Parliamentary Debates

9.34 am

Mr. Frank Dobson (Holborn and St Pancras): On a point of order, Mr. Speaker. I did not want to raise this matter last night because to do so would have eaten into the Adjournment debate that had already commenced. Will you, Mr. Speaker, look into the events in the House of yesterday and the day before on the basis that the maintenance of good order in the House is dependent on you and also on hon. Members trying not simply to stick slavishly to the Standing Orders, but to stick to them in spirit as well?

Yesterday, my hon. Friend the Member for Leyton (Mr. Cohen) was one of the hon. Members whose local authority areas were directly affected by the order before the House. During the debate, which was fairly short, more than half an hour—more than one sixth of the time available for the debate — was taken up by Conservative Members who had no direct involvement in the areas covered by the order.

Throughout the debate on Wednesday, which was devoted to the proposed dismemberment of the Inner London education authority, only four Conservative Members who represented ILEA areas spoke. Other Conservative Members rose to catch your eye, Mr. Speaker, and they are entitled to do that. However, several Opposition Members who represent ILEA areas were not called as there was not enough time because those Conservative Members took part.

Yesterday, Mr. Speaker, you ruled, quite rightly, that any hon. Member had a right to take part in any debate. On Wednesday, when two of my hon. Friends from Scotland wished to raise legitimate points of order during the debate on ILEA, you told them that it was an ILEA debate. Therefore, my hon. Friends sat down and did not take up time in the debate.

It lies within the power of the Chair not to alternate from one side of the House to the other, but to choose speakers who are affected directly by a subject under debate. My right hon. and hon. Friends believe that it is extremely important that you should not be trapped, as you were yesterday, by the circumstances that were forced upon you by the actions of Conservative Members.

Opposition Members are moving to the view that either there is a deliberate organised effort on the Conservative Benches to crowd out hon. Members who have a legitimate right to speak, which was characterised during Scottish Question Time not long ago, as you may recall, Mr. Speaker, or there is a case for some increased discipline on the Government Benches — [HON. MEMBERS: "What is the point of order?"] My point of order—[HON. MEMBERS: "There is no point of order."] We now have a voluntary Chair—[Interruption.]

Mr. Speaker: Order. A point of order has been put to me and I should be grateful if the hon. Gentleman would be brief.

Mr. Dobson: My point of order, which I thought I had made clear at the beginning of my comments, is that order in this House is dependent not simply on slavishly following the letter of the Standing Orders of the House or on accepting your rulings—which should be accepted —but on general behaviour and attitudes. It would have been possible for us today to have arranged for the Labour Benches to be full of Labour Members representing constituencies—[Interruption.]

Mr. Speaker: Order. I believe that I understand the drift of the hon. Gentleman's point of order. Will he bring it to a conclusion?

Mr. Dobson: In those circumstances, Mr. Speaker, can you confirm that it lies within your power to choose speakers other than by alternating from one side of the Chamber to the other if you believe that, in fairness to those present, and to the people they are attempting to represent, it would be better for you not to follow that practice? From time to time you vary that practice, particularly during debates on Fridays.

Mr. Speaker: The hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras (Mr. Dobson) has raised an important point. He should know—it would be right for the House to know —the cause of the trouble last night. The motion passed last Friday, restricting the debate to an hour and a half curtailed the proceedings. Had that time been allowed, I suspect that every hon. Member who wished to be called would have had that opportunity. That is not a matter for me. The hon. Gentleman talks about being trapped. I am afraid that the Chair was trapped in having to put that motion at 10 o'clock.

As to the general proposition, of course what the hon. Gentleman suggests would be possible. However, it might be to the detriment of the right hon. and hon. Friends of the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras if I adopted that practice as a regular method of proceeding. I will bear in mind what the hon. Gentleman has said.

May I say, apropos of last night, that up to the time when I returned to the Chair, every hon. Member who had been called from the Government Benches represented a rate-capped authority. Subsequently, I called two other Government Members who made brief speeches. One of them represents a Nottingham seat and was not from a rate-capped authority but he was in order, and the other lives in a constituency that has been rate-capped and I believe that he had as much right as any other hon. Member to express his point of view.

However, I shall certainly bear in mind what has been said by the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras. I appreciate that the life of Back-Bench Members is one of great frustration. It is my constant desire to ensure that as many of them as possible are called. It would be of great help to the Chair if I had the authority under the Standing Orders to limit the length of speeches. I regret what occurred last night, but I hope that in future the Chair will be supported.

Rural Development

9.41 am

Mr. Malcolm Moss (Cambridgeshire, North-East): I beg to move,

That this House calls upon Her Majesty's Government to pursue policies and procedures to ensure an ordered phasing of development in those rural areas which will need to accommodate a growth in population, to encourage agricultural diversification and promote enterprise in the rural economy, to facilitate the provision of the necessary rural services, infrastructure, employment and housing, and to co-ordinate the work of those various agencies and departments which have a direct interest in rural affairs and rural land use.

I should like to begin by declaring an interest in this subject since I have lived and worked in a rural area for some 25 years and I am mindful of the quality of life that I and many millions of other Britons enjoy. I want to see that quality of life maintained for future generations. I am also privileged to have been on one of the first enterprise agencies ever established in rural areas. I am referring to the Fens business enterprise trust, which has been established for five or six years. I know from first hand experience what great work can be done by such agencies in rural as well as urban areas.

What is rural development? When is a case rural as opposed to urban? For areas outside the metropolitan areas and the conurbations there is little difference between the two. In economic terms, one cannot divorce a market town from its rural hinterland or have meaningful rural policy for jobs and settlement and the rural economy as a whole without taking into consideration the influence and impact of the market towns. Therefore, I take as my canvas for the debate a definition of rural areas to include those parts of the country outside the borders of large cities and conurbations.

Within that definition there is a tremendous variety. There are the remote, sparsely populated highland areas of Wales, the Lake District and many parts of Scotland and the flat, lush, agricultural fen area of my constituency. Those great variations of topography, soil and climate yield distinct geographical sub-regions with a variety of land uses. Therefore, no one single solution is applicable in terms of rural affairs. The emphasis should lie with flexibility. In the last resort, decisions will depend very much on local information, local input and local decision-making.

Within the definition of rural areas there are two fundamental and distinct problems. First, there are the immediate problems, which tend to be on a wider or more macro scale, and, secondly, there are the future problems which tend to be on a smaller scale and more localised. The immediate issues are well known to all who represent rural constituencies. They pertain particularly to those more remote areas characterised by depopulation, inadequate housing, high unemployment rates, decline in rural services, poor transport and communications and a host of other problems.

Very often, those problems are with us in areas that are not so remote. Cambridgeshire has a highly prosperous south and a relatively — I emphasise the word "relatively" — deprived north in the fenland area. We have problems in certain villages in the affluent south in accommodating our young people in housing at low cost. We have problems with housing our elderly. Therefore, even within the prosperous areas there are problems that need a solution. The Government have identified and acknowledged the existence of those problems and, through the Development Commission, have identified and established the rural development areas throughout England. Wales and Scotland are treated slightly differently.

The future problems are not so far into the future that they are not already exerting a strong influence on events. I wish to refer to a recent publication which talks in terms of a population increase in England and Wales of 2 million people by the year 2001. I do not wish to be alarmist, but that figure is startling. Of that projected increase in population, 88 per cent. is deemed to be going to three regions. East Anglia will take 14 per cent., the south-west will take 22 per cent. and the south-east region will take a staggering 52 per cent. Therefore, within the next 13 years an extra 1 million people will have to be accommodated in the south-east.

The conclusions from that evidence are obvious. The pressure on the green belt, particularly the metropolitan green belt, will be enormous. The regions of East Anglia and the south-west will also have major problems in accommodating substantial population increases. There will be pressure on the infrastructure of roads, transport, rural sewerage and housing. There will be pressure on agricultural land such as we have never seen before, and there will be a need for thousands of new jobs in rural areas if we are to avoid commuting on a truly vast scale.

Of the balance of that increase, 45 per cent.—almost 1 million people—will be in the shire counties, outside the south-east region. Most of those shire counties already have well identified rural development areas. In other words, the Government have already established the fact that many of the shire counties have problem areas within them, and here we are seeking to relocate and accommodate within the next 12 or 13 years almost 800,000 new people within those same areas.

The largest increase of any county is that of Cambridgeshire. If the figures I have given are accurate, Cambridgeshire is likely to experience a population increase of 25 per cent.—156,000 people—by the year 2001. It is like trying to locate the population of a city the size of Peterborough within the county boundary. We face an enormous problem.

I see present hon. Members who represent other counties and I shall run down the list of the population increases with which they may have to cope. Second to Cambridgeshire is Cornwall, with a projected increase of 17·4 per cent. Seventy five per cent. or more of Cornwall is identified as a rural development area. Shropshire is close behind, with a 17·1 per cent. projected increase; and more than 40 per cent. of Shropshire is a rural development area. For Lincolnshire, 50 per cent. of which is a rural development area, the projected increase is 15·4 per cent. For Somerset, 20 per cent. of which has been identified as a rural development area, the figure is 16·4 per cent. If those population projections are accurate, we shall face tremendous problems in housing large numbers of people in those shire areas in which serious problems have already been identified.

Running parallel to those problems and across all rural areas — remote and less remote — are the current difficulties being experienced in farming and agriculture. Those difficulties — the CAP reform, the strong environmental lobby, the new process of stabilisers, the set-aside schemes that are being discussed, and quotas—are putting an increasingly downward pressure on farming incomes. That is leading to a loss of jobs in agriculture and allied industries and to changes in land use and practice. There are 8,000 job losses a year from agriculture and farming in England and Wales alone, and that trend will go up, not down.

The problem concerns not only the loss of jobs in farming today. In normal circumstances, farmers' children could look forward to taking over the farm in the future. If the farm goes bankrupt, we must compensate not only for the jobs lost today but for those of the children of farmers and farm workers in the future. We must plan to create more jobs for that reason alone.

This Government have done more than any other to flag the problems of the rural economy. They should be commended on having brought forward proposals to help to solve the difficulties. They have done so in a very responsible way, by seeking to achieve a healthy and acceptable balance between economic measures and development and a concern for the environment. These proposals are apparent in the new powers given to the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, in the content of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, in the Farm Land and Rural Development Bill, which will shortly be debated in Committee, in the strengthening of the Development Commission and in the Department of the Environment's publications on new planning guidelines for agricultural land. All those measures seek to offer alternatives to farmers to enable them to diversify into new businesses. At the same time, they protect and conserve all that is best in our natural environment.

All those factors need detailed and thorough consideration. The problems will not be solved by planners alone. Planners tend to react to circumstances; they are not strategists or pro-active decision-makers.

The scale of the issue is so large that even local government politicians will not be able to cope. The Government need to bite the bullet on this problem, and hon. Members need to address themselves fairly and squarely to the problems that I have outlined. It is up to hon. Members to make decisions for the future and for the benefit of our nation.

I shall take hon. Members through the key components affecting rural development. They are, in no particular order of importance, the problems of jobs, housing, rural infrastructure, rural services, land use and planning.

With regard to jobs, there are a number of important trends currently working in favour of rural areas. There is an increasing demand for businesses to be located in pleasant rural surroundings. The new high-tech industries can be small scale and can be located in rural areas without harming the environment. Expanding activities such as tourism and recreation can work alongside measures to conserve the natural environment.

Among those promoting the rural economy and rural enterprise in England is the Development Commission, which has a budget of about £30 million per year. Half that budget goes to small factory building through English Estates. The rest goes to advisory services such as COSIRA and into projects in rural areas submitted by the rural development programmes groups within RDAs.

In many rural areas, however, there is a shortage of suitably sized factories. In many areas, rents are so low that they rule out altogether any speculative building by the private sector. English Estates builds only within the rural development area boundaries. Those boundaries do not include towns with a population of over 10,000, and thus exclude the market towns, which feature strongly in the economy of rural areas. No building by English Estates takes place in market towns, which is a major oversight.

In some areas, the vetting of potential leaseholders and potential businesses to occupy English Estates factories is very stringent and extremely inflexible. When we challenge the Development Commission and English Estates about that, they tell us they are only following the rules set by the Treasury. What happens in many circumstances is that the entrepreneurs, whom we seek to encourage in market towns and rural areas, are not given freedom to set up established businesses. The Development Commission, together with its counterparts in Wales and Scotland, does a wonderful job, but its budget is limited and the scope of its activities is restricted. More is being done to broaden its base, which I welcome. The Development Commission is being expanded to give advice on marketing and is placing consultants in rural firms to help with marketing, finance and other key factors involved in running a business.

That is a significant step and it should be commended. However, there are glaring faults in the present policy. Factory building is way behind local needs and is a major constraint on the establishment and growth of rural businesses. I do not know why we had to lose the small workshop scheme. We must press the Minister for the reintroduction of a similar scheme for the future.

There has been positive advance in rural development areas, but they have failed to encompass the needs and contributions of our market towns. A survey by the DTI, entitled "Small Workshop Scheme", concluded that the private sector supply of factories was three times what it would have been without the scheme. It concluded that there was a shortage of units below 1,000 sq ft in the majority of locations.

Rural development programmes drawn up for the rural development areas by the local committees have shown what can be achieved by bringing together the various agencies—COSIRA, local authorities, rural community councils, English Estates, enterprise trusts and other relevant bodies. That has been a success story and we must build on it.

New housing has been curtailed in many rural areas because of the spending controls exerted by the Government. Although I subscribe to the view that we need to press forward with home ownership and the development of private housing, there are problems in the rural areas for those who cannot make the first step on the ladder of home ownership. Often, public and private housing has been restricted by county planning policies. I welcome the Minister's decision to do away with county structure plans.

There is a shortage of housing for young married couples and for the elderly. The poor employment prospects in some rural areas have encouraged a drift to the towns, leading to the well-known problems of homelessness, crime and other related matters. In many rural areas there has been an increase in retirement and second homes. In many instances, that strengthens the local economy and its social fabric, but it tends to force up the price of land and houses beyond the reach of local people, particularly in rural areas characterised by low wages.

Mr. Nicholas Baker (Dorset, North): I am interested in my hon. Friend's point. Does he agree that it would be a good idea to say to people contemplating moving on retirement that, because of the social, planning and housing difficulties, which my hon. Friend has rightly mentioned, they should think carefully before moving from the areas where they have worked, and where their friends and relations live, into the new rural areas?

Mr. Moss: My hon. Friend makes a sound point with which I agree. Many elderly people move on retirement to coastal regions where they have problems in finding a social life which they can enjoy in retirement. Many towns come alive only in the summer months.

Housing associations make a negligible contribution to solving housing problems in rural areas, and this needs to be redressed. About 20 per cent. of our population live in rural areas, yet the areas receive only 2 per cent. of Housing Corporation money. I understand the priority of urban housing problems, but housing problems exist in rural areas, too. We need to improve much of our private housing stock in rural areas because there are serious problems with substandard private housing. I hope that my hon. Friend the Minister, in setting the minimum sizes for the home improvement areas, will carefully look at not setting too high a limit which would prevent small-scale rural improvements being made.

The Development Commission's support for agencies such as the National Agricultural Centre Rural Trust—something of a mouthful, and I hesitate to pronounce the abbreviation NACRT because of what it sounds like—is to be commended, but it needs building on. I draw attention to an excellent scheme, about which I am sure my hon. Friend the Minister is well aware, at Chipping Campden in Gloucestershire, where a new 50 per cent. shared equity scheme was developed and run by a housing association. The key was the denial of "right to staircase"—the right to sell on the full freehold was not allowed in the agreement. This means that 50 per cent. shared equity house can be sold to another couple who will benefit from the same 50:50 deal. All too often in the past, these first-step homes for young people have been taken out of the housing scenario because the "right to staircase" has been exercised and the full freehold has been passed on, so the first rung on the ladder of home ownership has been lost. We must encourage similar schemes.

The amount of agricultural land in use has changed little over the past 20 years. It remains at about 15 million hectares, of which 75 per cent. is used for farming and the rest for forestry and other activities. The amount of land transferred each year from agriculture to urban use has been falling and, contrary to the belief of most of our people, we are not losing massive amounts of agricultural land to concrete. The average has fallen from 10,000 hectares in the period 1975-80 to 5,000 hectares in the period 1980-85.

The loss of land to building has been partly offset by more land being brought into cultivation, but that has been to the detriment of many of our wild habitats. Far too much land has been brought into cultivation and the countryside and habitat have suffered. The loss of land has been offset also by derelict land being brought back into use. The Government's derelict land grant of up to 100 per cent. has helped to reclaim some 7,000 hectares in the past five years alone. There are other influences such as the land register, whereby a register is kept of publicly owned unused land. There are the urban development grant, the urban regeneration grant and the urban development corporations. Once again, the Government are to be commended for these imaginative and effective schemes.

Under the Government, the green belts have increased dramatically. In England they have increased from 1·8 million acres to 4·5 million acres—an increase of 150 per cent. — since 1979. The metropolitan green belt around Greater London has grown from 750,000 acres to 1·2 million acres—a 58 per cent. increase. The green belt around London is equivalent to the size of the Principality of Wales. Cambridge's green belt has increased by 500 per cent. in the same period—and constituents ask me why house prices are so high in Cambridgeshire. The answer is staring them in the face. The Government have pledged that green belts will not have houses built on them, and I suspect that the majority of Conservative Members concur.

There has been a steady decline of public services and local facilities in many rural areas because of depopulation and the economies of scale available in larger settlements, but, as facilities disappear, further depopulation is encouraged, thus contributing to a vicious circle of decline. We all know what is declining in rural areas. Village shops and sub-post offices—often one and the same thing—and village schools are closing. I came across the staggering information that the closure of a village school for about 25 children saves the LEA £12,500.

An interesting article in The Economist contrasted the costs of saving village schools with the amounts paid through the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food to hill farmers in hill farm subsidy. For the same money paid in hill farm subsidy for 6,000 farms we could keep 1,000 village schools open. I am not against the hill farm subsidy—I say that quickly before I am challenged. I fully support it, but the point of the article was that the costs of the two actions have not been compared because no one has taken an overview of the relative costs.

Medical services have declined as well. The facilities of a hospital in my constituency—Doddington hospital will be severely curtailed. Constituents in parts of north Cambridgeshire, where there is a poor rural bus service and few railway lines, have to travel to see relatives in Peterborough hospital and have to make six or seven changes of bus, none of which connects at the right time. A journey to see a relative in hospital can take a whole day.

The rate bases of rural local authorities have tended to be weak and therefore placed greater reliance on rate support grant. Unfortunately, the old formula seemed to discriminate against rural areas. District councils in rural development areas had a 29 per cent. reduction in real terms in RSG between 1981-82 and 1986-87 compared with a 4 per cent. growth in real terms for English local authorities as a whole. At the same time, those rural district authorities had a 45 per cent. reduction in capital allocation.

Much is said of the role of planners in solving today's problems. We cannot blame planners for all our ills. In the main, they do the best job that they can, given the circumstances. Decisions about where things should go are made by politicians. I hope that local government politicians will take that fact on board. It is not up to officers of local councils to make decisions; it is up to the politicians who run councils. Planners have not yet embraced the new thinking, particularly about the use or change of use of agricultural land.

We do not now need the same quantity of land. I have a copious postbag containing letters from constituents who are trying to develop agricultural land in north Cambridgeshire. Their applications have been totally rejected by planning authorities. Of all the assets that are now held by farmers, the only one that is worth anything is their land—land for development. A more relaxed view of what agricultural land could be redeveloped would help many farmers' liquidity—they could pay off some of their borrowings—and it would assist their incomes. That is a positive help when they are under severe pressure.

For the past 40 years, the principal objective of our planning system has been to control the amount of agricultural land that is taken for development. That policy has been supremely successful. We now need a planning system that will enable us to accommodate new and expanding development. Of course, we do not want uncontrolled suburbanisation. We do not want ribbon development. But, within the context of the new planning guidelines that have been put out by the Department of the Environment, there is a way forward.

What can we do to solve the problems and prepare for the inevitable growth of development? The most critical problem is how to accommodate the projected increase in population by the turn of the century. It must be accommodated by a relatively small part of our total land area. I remind hon. Members that the census of population predicts that, by the year 2001, over 1 million more people will want to settle in the south-east region. If the metropolitan green belt is to be sacrosanct—so far, that has been the Government's stated policy—that growth can take place only within the metropolitan area, that is, within Greater London, or it must be forced to the periphery of the south-east region. That means that it must go to the counties of Hampshire, Oxfordshire, Buckinghamshire, Bedfordshire, Hertfordshire, Essex, Kent and east and west Sussex. Those areas will have to take those 1 million people. No doubt the Minister is kept awake at night by the howls of protest of those counties already bombarding his ears.

Much has been said of the use of derelict and reclaimed land in inner cities. I have already said that substantial work has been done in that regard. More can be done. At the end of the day, within Greater London there is a limit to the amount of land that can be used for housing. In the past 10 years, London has lost 250,000 people. At the same time, the east has gained 500,000 people. That trend is well established. Neither controls, direct or indirect, nor the planning system will change that well-established trend.

At the risk of being accused of committing a sacrilege and bringing the wrath of many of my colleagues upon my head, I question the inviolate nature of the green belt. I fail to understand the logic of a policy that has evolved over the past eight or nine years, before the full import of population trends and patterns was established, which bans development of any kind from an area the size of Wales. In so doing, it guarantees more high density development and commensurate dramatic effects on the rural environment immediately outside the green belt outer periphery.

Such conflicts of interest are not confined to the south-east. They are beginning to manifest themselves in East Anglia and the south-west. The twin processes of population growth and declining agriculture will inexorably lead to massive changes in land use patterns. We need to be aware of such changes and co-ordinate our planning to ensure fair, balanced and sensible development.

It is no good Hertfordshire cutting by half the anticipated number of houses because it knows that it will have to trade up at a later date. Cambridgeshire says, "We are not having them if Hertfordshire says that they are not having them." So it goes on. Each county is protecting its own green belt—its own rural area—at the expense of others. Somebody must come up with a fair and balanced view of where development must go.

It is not just an agricultural problem. I hope that I have said enough to demonstrate that it is a major problem that the country will face over the next 12 or 13 years. The Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food is responding to farming problems, and is doing a good job in a positive way, but I question its expertise across the range of issues that we face. I question whether it should be the leading Ministry. My right hon. and learned Friend the Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Mr. Jopling) led many developments when he was Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food. No doubt he will shoot down in flames some of the things that I have said. MAFF should not be the leading Ministry in this regard.

We have a land use problem. More naturally, it falls within the responsibility of the Department of the Environment. It is not a small land use problem; it is a major land use problem. It will involve massive changes in England, particularly in a line drawn from the Severn to the Humber, which is about one third, if not more, of our total land area. Because the problem is so large, it almost merits a department within the Ministry all to itself—a department of rural affairs or countryside development. It is not a new idea, but it needs consideration. The job of such a department would be to co-ordinate MAFF's proposed measures for agriculture, planning regulations, housing needs, development, the green belt, other land use policies, the work of local authorities in rural areas, the provision of infrastructure in rural areas, and the work of the many agencies involved, primarily the Development Commission.

Because substantial population growth is predicted for those shire counties that already have rural development areas, it seems sensible and logical to promote the Development Commission as the leading agency to develop policies. It would continue its work in RDAs but expand to other rural areas and, I hope, expand to include the market towns that are vital to rural communities. Obviously that needs to be financed. But, now that we are at last embarking seriously on CAP reform, funds can be diverted from agricultural price support and other subsidies to the funding of a rural aid programme, which is just as important and necessary as the urban aid programme.

The key to progress is a radical change in how we perceive current land usage, particularly the usage of agricultural land. The Government have already accepted that we do not need as much land in agricultural production, but they still say that the best and most versatile land has a special importance and should not be built on unless there is no other site suitable for the particular purpose.

Whoever thought up that strategy did not consider the dilemma that now faces Cambridgeshire, which is largely made up of grade 1 and grade 2 agricultural land. We do not have any grade 3 land. We have the best quality land in the country, and we face a 25 per cent. increase in population. We will have to house 156,000 people by the turn of the century. Where shall we put them if the Government's policy is that grade 1 and grade 2 land is sacrosanct? Will someone tell me? I should like to know. It should be possible to accommodate small-scale new housing in rural areas and to ensure better standards of layout for the landscape. It is no longer necessary to pack new houses at 20 to 30 an acre. The more land that is made available, the more acceptable will be the development and the cheaper will be the land and the houses that are built on it. People in rural areas object to the forcing of high-density housing into villages and market towns.

[Mr. Moss]

I am told that there is a great demand for large country houses with between five and 20 acres of land. Estate agents say that they cannot find enough houses to meet the demand. In the past such houses were built without planning permission. They are now an unobtrusive feature of our landscape. Indeed, much the best environmental husbandry has emanated from the large houses and estates.

I commend to the Minister for his consideration the release of farmland to allow the building of big houses with between five and 20 acres. I realise that we must do whatever we can to protect land from being further developed for housing in future. However, I see merit in allowing houses with large acreages of land to be built because there is a great demand for them and because the people who invest in those establishments will ensure that the landscape is protected.

We also need more land for public open space. If the projected growth in population occurs, we shall need more recreational areas, and they need to be planned. We need more footpaths and more bridleways. An interesting idea was put to me only yesterday by some farmers. If there is to be set-aside, why not have set-aside so that a group of farmers together can have land taken out and reconstructed into bridleways and footpaths and each have the responsibility of maintaining his own section, planting hedgerows and increasing environmental habitat and providing access to the countryside that is vital for the future?

As for employment, we desperately need more factories. The Development Commission needs to have a higher budget to build more in the RDAs because it is not keeping up with demand. We should allow the Development Commission to use its capital receipts obtained from selling some of its factories to build new factories. At the moment, if it sells factories to a new entrepreneur, it cannot spend that money. That needs to be examined. After all, we are reinvesting in the building infrastructure of our communities. We need to bring back the small workshop scheme or something similar. There is a case for allowing 100 per cent. first year allowance on factories up to 2,500 sq ft, and thereafter on a sliding scale to 60 per cent. for factories up to 10,000 sq ft. We need a hierarchy of factories of varying sizes so that as new companies grow and develop they can move as they expand.

We need housing associations to develop in rural areas in the way that they have developed in urban areas. We need to allow district councils to use housing revenue accounts, only when they are in surplus, to build for rent, which I realise is a contentious point—or to use capital within the housing revenue to invest in joint ventures with housing associations. I anticipate eagerly the Government's new Housing Bill and its effects on freeing the private rented sector, but there is a real and immediate problem of the lack of housing for young people on low incomes.

The Minister is aware of the excellent shared equity scheme at Chipping Camden. I commend that to him and hope that more such schemes will come forward. If we are to cope with the growth in rural areas, we need to address the real inadequacies of much of the rural infrastructure. We need more investment in roads, water supplies, flood protection and first time rural sewage. If we are to have settlement policies outside the new townships where many services are provided within the cost of the total development, we need to develop the infrastructure and services and face up to how we can cost them and provide the expenditure for them.

In my region, there is concern that after water privatisation and the setting up of the National Rivers Authority adequate funding should be made available for flood protection schemes—not only coastal protection, but the fenland area drainage system which is vital to our agriculture. I seek an assurance from the Minister that proper funding will be made available to the NRA.

We need an overall review of rural services and policies. Are we being realistic in expecting the conventional perception of village life to exist in the future? Has it not already died? There are already commuting villages. The trend has gone so far that we may not be able to redress the balance. There are those who believe that such trends can be reversed and that the future can be built on the stable, fruitful and productive character of the cohesive social groupings that we call villages. Free from the constraints of economic and market forces determining the location of businesses and industry, villages and market towns have a unique and challenging opportunity.

I believe that there is a future for the rural environment, through new housing schemes and employment. We need to move very carefully in the way that such development takes place, and more than ever before we need co-ordination of the various agencies. I commend the motion to the House.

10.26 am

Mr. Michael Jopling (Westmorland and Lonsdale): I am delighted to follow my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss). I congratulate him enormously on choosing such a vitally important subject and on the lucidity of his speech. Far be it from me to tear to pieces what he said. I cannot think of anything in his speech that I wish to criticise.

I wish to speak only briefly and to emphasise one of the points my hon. Friend touched upon. I do not want to discuss the economics of rural areas. We have heard a good deal about that over the years and it is still very relevant today. I wish to concentrate on a new danger to our rural infrastructure, which I am glad to say was a major and integral part of the motion tabled by my hon. Friend. My hon. Friend referred to the alteration in village life over the years. We have had many debates about that in the past.

I believe that the threat to rural structure and rural life is now moving away from the villages towards the market towns. I was particularly interested in my hon. Friend's reference to the importance of maintaining the social structure of market towns. I wish to stress that point. We have often had debates on the matter and I remember that Sir Peter Mills, who, sadly, is no longer a Member of the House, used to talk about the loss to villages of the various Ps — the demise of the primary schools, the petrol pumps, the parson, the post office, the passenger bus and the pub. I think that he had some more examples but I cannot remember them. Those are sad changes. Many of them happened because of the march of history and the march of time. My great concern is that we must not allow that trend to spread to the small market towns. In particular, I am thinking of what I believe is a new threat which has hit me in the face in the past few months—that is the new threat to secondary schools in some of the smaller market towns.

We all know that throughout the country there is a great surplus of school places. That is one of the great problems facing the Department of Education and Science. Our local education authorities have been told, in my view quite rightly, that they must do something to reduce a large number of those empty school places. However, there is a danger to the rural communities if certain local education authorities concentrate their solutions to the problems of empty school places on closing smaller rural secondary schools. That seems the easy option for them to take, but I believe passionately that it is the wrong one.

In my constituency in the county of Cumbria we have over 6,000 empty school places. The local education authority has taken the easy option by proposing to close several of the smaller rural schools. Many hon. Members who know the Lake District will know the size and nature of the towns I am talking about which face proposals to close their secondary schools. The schools in the four small towns of Sedbergh, Coniston, Kirby Stephen and Cartmel are threatened with closure. Each one is a much-loved, successful school with fine achievements both in their academic records—I monitor those each year—and in what I regard as the admirable behaviour of their children. I quote those schools as examples, but I am sure that all hon. Members could find comparable examples.

I visited all those schools recently to discuss the appalling prospect confronting the people who care for those schools and who work in them. I was greeted at all of them with strong expressions of view that the policy is wrong. Indeed, at one school at Cartmel I was greeted by over 250 of my constituents who had turned out with placards to demonstrate firmly that their school should not be closed. That view was typical of all the areas affected.

The supporters of those schools are especially concerned that, having seen so many village primary schools closed already, the next step now seems to be to close the secondary schools in their local towns. They see that step as a hammer blow for rural life in their areas, and I agree. The contribution that smaller schools make to rural life is enormous. Quite apart from the education provided, the facilities for sport, adult education and community amenities are irreplaceable in most cases. The contribution of those schools to local employment, and the intellectual and social contributions made to rural life by the individuals who work in the schools is, again, immense.

People very much resent the fact that in tackling what is, in fact, the county and countrywide problem of empty school places which, let us face it, exists in urban and rural areas, the solution seems to be to make the biggest chops of all in rural areas. That has to be wrong. At the same time, local education authorities often ignore the fact that, in closing a school in a small town and moving the children to another school, the second school is already nearly full. The education authority must then provide millions of pounds worth of new facilities to accommodate the children in the new school.

The problems of empty school places must be met by getting all schools to make sacrifices. I have told the House about four schools in my constituency. I have told those schools that they should all be prepared to dispose of surplus facilities and that they must find ways to help meet the problem. I believe that all the schools in my constituency that are threatened with closure are prepared to do that. I have also told them that if they are determined to seek to keep open a small rural school, they must be prepared to accept that there may well, in future, be a loss of the wide range of subjects that are offered in that school when compared with the bigger schools in the more urban areas. I told them that they may also have to accept in the future the possibility of a less generous staffing level than at present. All those things are unpalatable, but those schools accept that if they are to continue to exist they may well have to accept such conditions.

As I have said, I guess that Cumbria, which I have given as an example because I know it best, is only one part of the country where this new threat exists. I predict that it marks the beginning of a new trend which may well threaten the facilities in the smaller towns, where such threats have not previously existed. I believe that we have gone far enough in cutting the facilities of rural life, and that the time has now come to call a halt. I hope that the Government will respond to this debate in a way which covers my point about rural secondary schools. However, I perfectly understand that my hon. Friend who will reply to the debate may find it difficult to get deeply involved in education matters because that is not his departmental responsibility. However, I hope that we shall get a favourable response from the Government as soon as possible.

As I have said, people resent the fact that local education authorities may be tackling such problems in ways that hit at the heart of the rural infrastructure. We should not allow that to happen. I am glad to have had this opportunity of bringing the problem to the attention of the House.

10.37 am

Mrs. Ray Michie (Argyll and Bute): I congratulate the hon. Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) on bringing this matter before the House today. It is an excellent subject and requires much discussion and thought. It is wide ranging and important, but I shall find it impossible to cover everything as well as the hon. Gentleman did.

I should like to make a few general remarks and then to concentrate on two or three issues that the hon. Gentleman raised which are of particular interest in terms of the problems of planning in rural areas. I am concerned, as I believe we all are, to reverse the decline that we have seen in some rural communities, with a loss of jobs and of housing, young people leaving, schools closing—as we have just heard—and a loss of shops, local services and public transport.

The Department of the Environment and the Minister have stated their wish to relax planning controls on development in the countryside. We must be careful about that. Clearly, the issue of the green belt is important and controversial. I believe that in the south of England the concept of the green belt must be maintained. I do not believe that people want an excessive relaxation of planning control in that area. It is important that we maintain the countryside as a place in which to live and work. That means adopting planning policies to keep alive small and remote rural areas which, if left to their fate, would become, at best, dormitory areas for commuters and weekenders and, at worst, isolated ghettos of the old and the jobless.

[Mrs. Ray Michie]

In England and Wales there is a wish to see county structure plans adhered to, so that there should not be a free-for-all. However, those plans could do with revision, although they do not need to be overturned. On the one hand, it is important for viable communities to live and work in the countryside, and too rigid a planning procedure will prevent that happening. On the other hand, we must not destroy our environment and our environmental heritage in the countryside.

Planning involves commitment to regeneration as well as to procedures. The hon. Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) spoke about housing. It is often ignored that in rural areas there are a great many sub-tolerable, sub-standard houses and poverty that is not easily seen. Many people still have the idea that those people in rural areas live in nice little cottages with roses round the door. However, the inside of many such houses is as bad as anything in the worst city-area high-rise flats.

Too often, plans are made for urban areas by people who live in urban areas who then try to apply them, most unsuccessfully, to country areas. As the hon. Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East said, there is urban aid, but no rural aid, for which there is a desperate need. Too often, urban planners see the countryside as a place to drive to and move through and not as a place in which the economy must be strong in order to sustain the people who live there. I shall give further examples.

Planning policies often work crazily against each other. One small example is the tenant's right to buy, with which I agree. When a teacher in a remote rural area with the right to buy his house does so and then retires and a new teacher is needed, there is no house for that teacher. That is an example of how plans can work against each other. I come from the lovely tourist area of Argyll and Bute where there are many second homes. That causes tremendous problems for local people and a great deal of resentment. Those people cannot afford to buy the homes when they come on the market. However, they can be bought by people from the south or from some other part of the country.

During election campaigns, I found it tragic to knock on door after door on islands such as Tiree and to have to ask, "Do you live here or are you on holiday?" If the person was on holiday, I wished him a good holiday. However if local people and youngsters have to move out, we lose not only the indigenous people but a whole culture and way of life, and traditions and worthwhile values disappear. Those people have been brought up in the area and have an empathy and understanding for it.

Secondly, school closures were mentioned. Recently in my constituency and in that vast region of Strathclyde, we fought a long campaign to keep our rural schools. On the whole, we were successful. In Argyll for example, the closure of a rural school tears the heart out of a community and many dreadful things follow. The sub-post office closes, the shop and the petrol station close, and young families do not move into the area. Then we see the death of another little village community.

Then there is the problem of land use and competing claims. At the heart of life in any area, and especially in Scotland, are the farmers and crofters. They are the foundation on which the economy exists. Of course, tourism plays a large part, but the tourist industry would not flourish without the people who form the infrastructure of the area. Farmers and crofters are the true conservationists.

I become worried when I hear Ministers from the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food talk about reducing agricultural surpluses and reforming the common agricultural policy. I agree that we have to do that, but I become worried when I hear Ministers say that we must have set-aside schemes, take land out of agriculture and diversify. I am not sure that they realise that, especially in less-favoured areas, we do not contribute to the surpluses. I do not want to see a blanket policy for the whole United Kingdom to take land out of agriculture. Nothing is more ludicrous than ending up with not enough milk in the west of Scotland to make Scottish cheddar cheese for which there is a large market. It would be ludicrous if we started to import French cheese.

My argument, in turning back to planning and land use, is that the family farm is now more than ever the backbone of the industry in less-favoured areas. It follows that its health and vitality are essential for all the rural areas.

Mr. Charles Wardle (Bexhill and Battle): I am listening with care to the hon. Lady's speech. I am curious to know where she proposes that set-aside should be increased if not in the west of Scotland. If it is not to be on her doorstep, where does she suggest that my right hon. Friend the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food should concentrate his attention? I hope that she does not mean that it should be concentrated in Sussex.

Mrs. Michie: The farmers in my area are not cereal farmers. They raise sheep and beef cattle. On the whole, they are not arable farmers and I accept that one of the great surpluses is cereals. The area in which the Minister chooses to cut these surpluses is a matter for him and for the people concerned. I am trying to point out that people in less-favoured areas have to live and work there. We cannot take everybody out of farming, and I do not suggest that.

There is talk of diversification, but trees cannot be grown on the isle of Tiree because they would blow down in no time. Golf courses cannot stretch from one end of Argyll to the other. If that happens, we will lose the people. The Minister should look at the crofting community because it is a prime example of a farm community that has been able to diversify. Crofters have taken other jobs and are now moving into fish farming and so on. That is a good example of how farming communities can diversify.

The Minister of State, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (Mr. John Selwyn Gummer): The comments of the hon. Member for Argyll and Bute (Mrs Michie)

precisely reflect Government policy — to provide the widest possible series of chances for farmers to choose for themselves whether they wish to diversify. If farmers in the hon. Lady's constituency find that that is a valuable thing to do, they will have the opportunity to diversify, We want a voluntary system, so that farmers can choose for themselves, and not a Government system which forces people to do what we think best.

Other Opposition Members have said that the Government should do more to encourage diversification, more set-aside and more trees in the very area about which the hon. Lady is speaking. It is difficult to get that right because hon. Members say, "Give everything that we want to our people, but also make sure that they have everything that they have now and that the disadvantages of overproduction go somewhere else." There is a great NIMBY policy—in other words, not in my back yard—although I prefer to call it the NODAM policy — in other words, no development after mine. I beg the hon. Lady not to make the issue too difficult for the Government who must make the decisions.

Mrs. Michie: I understand the Minister's comments, although I am not sure whether he has understood mine. I am not saying, "Not in my back yard". Our less-favoured areas are not contributing to the surpluses in the common agricultural policy.

There are so many competing agencies operating in the countryside that their complexity is bewildering. Many of them do not appear to be subject to planning control and, apparently, are often unaccountable. For example, the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, the Forestry Commission, the Countryside Commission, the Nature Conservancy Council and the Crown Estate Commissioners, often generate conflict where there should be none. In Scotland, we badly need a land-water use strategy.

The Minister of State, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has in the past strongly defended the Crown Estate Commissioners. I am not attacking the people in that body. I have met a number of them. My constituents ask me, "Who are the Crown Estate Commissioners?" I have a dim recollection that their origins go back to Edward the Confessor, but I am not sure about their history.

Mr. Nicholas Baker: They go back to Robert the Bruce.

Mrs. Michie: No, I believe they are to do with the south. The Crown Estate Commissioners came along, for example, to a widow who has a private slipway down to the water. That slipway has been there for 22 years, has been well maintained and is not used for commercial purposes. Suddenly the commissioners started to charge rent for it. My constituents ask me, "Why are they doing this?" Only within the last week the commissioners have raised the charges for mooring boats in my constituency and part of the Clyde. My constituents ask me, "Who allows them to do this?" The members of one club, many of whom are pensioners, suddenly find that they have to pay rent to moor their boats. Perhaps the Minister can explain that.

The Crown Estate Commissioners are involved in fish farming which has been an excellent thing for the economy of the Highlands and Islands, but it now appears to be developing in a haphazard manner. Where is the control and accountability? My constituents tell me that the commissioners are to put a fish farm in the middle of the beautiful and world-renowned Tobermory bay on the island of Mull. Again, my constituents ask me, "How can they do this?"

There is conflict between the Nature Conservancy Council and agricultural development programmes, nowhere more so than on the island of Islay. There is conflict between farmers and the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds because the geese are eating the grass. Four geese eat as much grass as one sheep and the number of geese is increasing while the number of sheep is declining.

We require plans for development and conservation. I was glad to hear from Lord Sanderson, Under-Secretary of State at the Scottish Office, that the Highlands regional council is preparing a land-use strategy for Islay. I am sorry that no Scottish Office Minister is present today, but, no doubt, the Ministers who are here will pass on any points which relate particularly to Scotland.

We want flexibility, planning and consultation, but above all, we must involve the local people in land use. Community councils in Scotland and parish councils in England must be involved, and local authorities must be the final arbiters. We must consult all those bodies, but the local people have the understanding and knowledge of what is required.

10.56 am

Sir John Farr (Harborough): I should like to congratulate my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss), on his good luck in coming first in the ballot. I congratulate him particularly on his choice of subject, which is both important and interesting. It is strange that he should refer so much to the Farm Land and Rural Development Bill, which is about to go through this House and which deals so much with farm diversification.

I also congratulate my hon. Friend on his helpful remarks on the green belt system. He stressed the importance that his constituents attach to the preservation of that system. I did not intervene at the time because he was making such an impact on the House. It is all very well to have an extended green belt system and for the Government to appear to be actively promoting its extension, which I support, but the quality and the rigidity of the rules surrounding that system must not be relaxed. There are many extra hectares of green belt land in Britain, but what use do they serve when there are frequent examples of unwanted planning applications being granted for large sites in green belt areas? I am thinking particularly of the green belt around the city of Leicester, where the local council has recently given permission for a large development. Green belts are fine, providing they are strictly preserved and their character is maintained.

My hon. Friend also referred to the need to preserve sub-post offices, as did Sir Peter Mills when he was in the House. He used to emphasize how necessary the three Ps were to village life and to describe a sub-post office as one of the cornerstones of villages and small rural community life. Without it, and certainly without the village school, village life, which has much to be admired, starts to crumble and the country is the worse for it.

My hon. Friend referred to the problems facing sub-post offices in his constituency and we have exactly the same problems in Leicestershire. Many of my sub-post masters and mistresses are uneasy about the plans which the Government occasionally revive to introduce credit cards to enable pensioners to draw their pensions automatically from a machine, without having to use a post office. I hope that that plan of the DHSS will not come to fruition because the loss of regular visits from many pensioners could lead to the early closure of many post offices.

[Sir John Farr]

What my right hon. Friend the Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Mr. Jopling) said about village schools is worth emphasising. A small community or large village depends on its school which holds together, if not the village, then family life. It is what living in Britain is all about. Everything that is good stems from village schools. I am sure that all hon. Members would do whatever they could for such schools.

I have been through this problem, and have lost village schools. I even took a delegation to see the Minister then responsible for village school policy. We were fortunate enough to visit her on her birthday and to know that it was her birthday so we took her a large box of chocolates, but we still lost our village school. One can only hope that, by continuing to stress how valuable village schools are to small communities, even if they are a little more costly to operate, we can succeed in retaining them for the general good of the community.

The motion refers to planning for the development of jobs. It is absolutely right to do that. It is right, too, that the House should know that, despite the Department of the Environment issuing several helpful circulars guiding local authorities on how to provide new jobs through farm diversification and projects in rural areas, there is growing evidence that local authorities continue to go their own way. I shall not weary the House with a debate which we had on this subject on 1 February, but what I stressed then has since come even more to my attention.

The Minister's letter of 21 January states:

"Since 1980 we have consistently urged planning authorities to treat applications for the re-use of redundant farm buildings sympathetically . . . Permission for the re-use of redundant farm buildings should therefore be granted, unless there are specific or convincing planning objections."

As I said on 1 February and as other hon. Members have said since, local authorities are objecting to these applications. The Minister gave the clearest indication of the Government's wishes in his letter and the excellent circulars which he has already sent to local authorities have been directly worded. Again I urge him to consider whether the time has now come at least to issue a forceful reminder to local authorities, which still seem to believe that redundant farm buildings permanently out of use are an attractive sight. They simply do not seem to be prepared to cope with the problems of the late 1980s and the 1990s.

My hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East dwelt on housing in rural areas. It is essential to have good housing available, not for holiday homes, but for those who will work and live there, whether on the west coast of Scotland or elsewhere. We want people to have a good job and a decent house. On the other hand, land continues to be used for non-agricultural purposes at a great rate. As my hon. Friend said, that is not happening as quickly as in 1985, but of a total area of 24·4 million hectares of United Kingdom land, 80 per cent. is used for agriculture and 10 per cent. for forestry. Land is being lost at the rate of 5,000 hectares a year.

We are disturbed that it is often the choicest land of the highest quality that is used for housing estates around some of our big cities. A housing estate of 100 or 200 houses is what I would call a blister on many rural villages. Unfortunately, it is a feature of many parts of the east midlands, particularly Leicestershire and Northamptonshire. When those blisters of modern housing estates are attached to ancient villages, obviously, they provide an injection of children for the school and even help to keep the pub going and possibly the village policeman, as Peter Mills used to say. Nevertheless, it has a detrimental effect on village life.

Can my hon. Friend the Minister find time to persuade — if not to direct — the developers and major house building companies that are so active in the home counties and certainly in the east midlands, increasingly to concentrate their developments on derelict land in inner-city areas? That is easy to say. Indeed, there was a document called "This Pleasant Land", which I am sure my hon. Friend knows, produced last autumn by several Members of Parliament who are worried about these developments. It is no use ignoring the fact that some of the current types of development are intolerable. In my constituency in southern Leicestershire, over 1,000 acres are likely to go for housing before 1995. That will mean about 15,000 houses. The land chosen for such development is the choicest green field land, agricultural grassland with a high agricultural value.

While we may no longer need every acre of land for food, it is still essential to promote what I would call farm and village industry. The ceaseless appetite of developers in Leicestershire, encouraged to a certain extent by officials from the Department of the Environment, to submit more and more plans to gobble up green field sites with huge housing estates, is deplorable and to be resisted.

It is much easier for a developer to build on a green field site. He will not want to mess around in some derelict inner-city area, where there may be worked-out services, pipes, old drains and cables to be removed first. Moreover, his houses will sell better in a green field area. There is money in it for him. People prefer to be able to see the village church, even from some distance away, and there are at present no hedgerows in derelict inner-city areas.

"This Pleasant Land" contains 19 recommendations. I urge my hon. Friend, who may have seen the document, to tell the House that he has taken it on board. It highlights some key points. For example, it recommends exemption for five years from the national business rate for newly constructed commercial or industrial premises in inner-city areas. Another recommendation is tax allowances for the repair and conversion of inner-city dwellings and industrial premises. It also recommends the establishment of what are defined as protected green belts beyond the strategic development boundaries in which no significant development would be possible, and it suggests that agricultural land, open space or woodland separating adjacent rural communities should be given permanent green belt status. This excellent little leaflet also calls for the establishment of a national land use survey to determine what land is available for housing and other purposes, and the introduction of a public auction notice system to bring publicly owned land on to the market and to secure its development.

The document makes a number of other points with which I shall not weary the House. I can easily provide my hon. Friend with the leaflet and the report, if he has not already received them.

I know from conditions in the east midlands and Leicestershire that within a very short time many hundreds of additional houses will be built on green field land, which could just as well be built in the city of Leicester or one of the big neighbouring cities. They would then be far nearer to the station, and just as close to the motorway.

My hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East hs done an excellent job. He has produced a cogent and lucid proposal which is full of common sense, and I know that we shall all look forward to his coming first in the ballot again, when we may enjoy a similarly stimulating debate initiated by him.

In his motion, my hon. Friend refers to the need to discuss

"farming diversification and infrastructure in rural areas".

Farming diversification and, to some extent, infrastructure are, of course, dealt with in detail in the Farm Land and Rural Development Bill. I hope that my hon. Friend will be on the Standing Committee, because I am lucky enough to be a member of it. I understand that consideration of the Bill is due to start shortly. No doubt we shall then have some useful discussions, and my hon. Friend will be able to give the Committee the help that he has given the House today. I suppose that his reference to infrastructure in rural areas relates to a series of sites of special scientific interest, environmentally sensitive areas and areas of outstanding natural beauty. No doubt we shall discuss those in Committee. Clause 2 covers in detail farm diversification, particularly woodland diversification. When that legislation is on the statute book—as soon as possible, I hope — the powers will be effective from October this year.

It would not be right to consider the future of the countryside — housing, farming diversification and infrastructure—without saying a word about what could loosely be described as country sports. It is not possible to plan the countryside. Our countryside of today was never planned; it happened, and it will continue to be a beautiful place for years to come. But many sports are possible in the countryside—on horseback or on foot, or, indeed, sedentary occupations such as fishing beside a river or canal. Such occupations are all part of a country structure, and they will not go away. Whether hon. Members like it or not, we must learn when we plan—as far as we are able—the future of this beautiful countryside of ours that we must do so hand in hand with all who are lucky enough to take part in the many useful country sports.

11.17 am

Mr. David Nicholson (Taunton): First, it is my pleasure to congratulate my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) on his success in the ballot, his choice of motion and his skilful and comprehensive presentation. Despite the distance between our constituencies, I believe that, some 20 years ago, he had the opportunity to teach my brother in law in Tiverton, 10 or so miles from where we now live, but this morning I have sat at his feet and learnt much.

My hon. Friend made some interesting points about possible departmental changes involving the Minister of Agriculture and the Department of the Environment. I do not think that my farmers would forgive me for biting the hand that feeds them, but my hon. Friend had a point to make. No other sector of industry has a whole Department to itself, and, as the debate has shown, the countryside involves factors relating to a number of Departments—not simply productive industry, agricultural or otherwise. I feel, that my hon. Friend's remarks should be considered seriously.

My hon. Friend pointed out that the countryside faces both problems and opportunities, and referred to the problems facing the children of today's farmers. I must start on a sombre note and make some constituency points.

I hope that the House, and my hon. Friend the Minister, will excuse me for having to leave shortly after midday to attend a meeting of local councillors in my constituency, along with the management of Dairy Crest. As some hon. Members will know, as a result of cuts in milk production, following the introduction of quotas, Dairy Crest is closing five creameries, two in Wales, one in Carlisle, one in Cornwall and one in Wellington, in my constituency. The other four areas all suffer from higher unemployment than my constituency. None the less, 99 redundancies, including those of people who have committed their working lives to the company, is a tragedy for the town, which is now recovering so well from closures at the start of this decade.

The meeting this afternoon is not to shout at the gods, or, more particularly, at the EEC, because dairy quotas are here to stay, and the farming community seems to welcome that. The meeting is to consider how the various agencies, including the company and the Taunton Deane borough council, can provide job opportunities or training for those to be made redundant. In this respect, it is relevant to this debate that the industrial estate at Chelston, close to the M5, seems to be proceeding towards obtaining planning permission without objection, and I welcome that.

While on the subject of employment and in particular of the interdependency of certain types of manufacturing industry and agriculture, I shall refer to a typical product of my constituency. Although my hon. Friend the Minister is not responsible for the Budget, he will at once appreciate the relevance of that event. In my maiden speech, on the Housing Bill, I spared him reference to cider, but today he will not be so fortunate. The cider industry does not contribute massively to the gross national product or the balance of payments, but on its prosperity depends the direct employment of some hundreds of my constituents and those of other hon. Members, and the success of aspects of farm diversification.

The motion refers to the encouragement of farm diversification and the promotion of enterprise. Those who have understanding of the cider industry, and I confess that my knowledge is in its infancy, know that the development of cider apple orchards requires years of planning and preparation.

Mr. Nicholas Baker: And tasting.

Mr. Nicholson: Yes, and tasting. I will simply reinforce what my hon. Friend the Member for Hereford (Mr. Shepherd) said in an oral question to my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer on 11 February. It is that a discriminatory rise in the tax on cider would, as happened in 1984-85, have serious consequences for employment and for the forward planning of diversification in that industry.

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Mr. William Waldegrave): My hon. Friend mentioned a subject that did not come up in his maiden speech on the Second Reading of the Housing Bill. Something else which did not come up, owing to the incompetence of the Minister concerned, who happened to be myself, was a proper tribute to that maiden speech in the winding-up speech. I take this opportunity to say that that was an excellent speech, and we regret that my hon. Friend is not on the Standing Committee considering the Housing Bill, because we would greatly have profited by his advice.

Mr. Nicholson: I am grateful to my hon. Friend, particularly as I may not be here to hear his speech. While I may have been deprived of the pleasure of sitting on the Committee considering the Housing Bill, I am happy to say that I shall be on the Committee considering the Farm Land and Rural Development Bill.

It is a sad but not wholly inaccurate reflection on our political system that those who are chiefly concerned with the prosperity of agriculture are sometimes least concerned with that of manufacturing industry, and vice versa. I hope that the two examples that I have given help to bridge this division, because recession in both costs jobs, and production cuts in the United Kingdom, when accompanied by foreign import penetration, weaken the balance of payments.

Another consequence of recession is far more severe in agriculture and the countryside. When an industry declines, it leaves behind it the debris of industrial sites and buildings, but those sites can be, and are, developed for new uses in the way that redundant mills in my native north-west have been. If agriculture were to face a depression like that of the 1930s, we would very swiftly see a dramatic deterioration in our countryside.

In the 1930s, there were relatively few inhabitants of suburbs or inner cities with the mobility to notice or care, but we should soon hear today from the 15 million people a week who visit the countryside if such a deterioration were to take place. That is why I hope that my hon. Friends will encourage Ministers at the Department of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food to defend our farming interests robustly. That is why we welcome the, albeit modest, measure of the Farm Land and Rural Development Bill. This Parliament sees the Department of the Environment, and other Departments, leading the revival of our inner cities, but if we can at the same time revive our rural communities, we can start to check the inevitable spread of suburbia which, as my hon. Friend the Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) pointed out in a timely Adjournment debate the other night, threatens to run together such towns as Reading, Wokingham and Bracknell into one suburban megalopolis.

My hon. Friend the Member for Cambridge, North-East referred to the latest Office of Population Censuses and Surveys population projections, published in January 1988. These suggest an increase in population in the south-west of 486,000 between 1985 and 2001, the second largest rate of increase of any standard region in England—10·8 per cent. compared with East Anglia's 14·9 per cent. The increase for the current decade, 1985-6, is also the second largest at 7·4 to 10·4 per cent. Within the south-west, Somerset has the third largest increase, after Cornwall and Wiltshire, of 16·4 per cent. up to 2001, and 11 per cent. up to 1996. That is an extra 73,000 people up to 2001.

Are these new souls to be housed in the larger towns or are they to help to expand and revitalise the smaller towns and villages? That is the key question for planning over the next decade. Until recently, in my area, and no doubt in those represented by many hon. Members, the tendency has been for large towns such as Taunton to grow further and further out, enveloping or linking up with one-time villages such as Bishop's Hull or Staplegrove. This constant tacking of bits on to the town is becoming politically unacceptable to many of my electors, irrespective of their party support. Many of my hon. Friends will have experienced the same factor.

The challenge before us is whether we can ensure that after the present round of planned suburban extensions, which are not without controversy and may not see the light of day, we can contain the spread of the larger towns and concentrate more development in the smaller towns and villages. In this context, like the Taunton Deane council, I was bitterly disappointed last year when the Department of the Environment inspector rejected an application to develop a housing estate in the village of Oake. In the view of the council, if ever there was a village that, in respect of its environment and facilities should take the pressure, it was Oake. The inspector admitted that Oake was not perpetually reprieved, and developments may have to come in future years.

If villages are to see development, it must often be on a more modest scale than some of the planners and the national building firms prefer. My hon. Friend the Member for Harborough (Sir J. Farr) made the point about blisters of 100 houses being tacked on to villages. Are we giving small-scale builders enough encouragement to build on more modest plots?

Mr. Mark Wolfson (Sevenoaks): No.

Mr. Nicholson: I believe that my hon. Friend is right. Smaller scale builders need such encouragement.

The experience of the farming community with planning authorities which are slow to recognise the wind of change which is now blowing in the countryside should be mentioned. The Somerset and South Avon county branch of the NFU is worried at the number of barn conversions which are refused, and at the trouble with applications, often made for good social and economic reasons, to establish a mobile home on a farm. Often only a temporary provision is required. In one or two cases, refusal was clearly justified, such as a proposal for a barn conversion into a holiday let only 10 yds from another family's home. I understand that Taunton Deane and West Somerset have a better record with regard to granting such applications than certain other districts in Somerset and Avon.

The Somerset and South Avon NFU has given me some fine examples of potentially successful diversification. A young couple have turned their farm into an open education centre for children. A south Somerset farmer has started a motor cycle race track across his farm and a ride for horse riders. My two children, aged three and one and a half are now starting to learn to ride horses. I am sorry to say that the only occasion on which their father sat across such a four-legged beast was in Jordan some 15 years ago. I am convinced that the beast had been left over from the first Crusade. The same farmer grows willows for cricket bats.

Another farmer wanted to convert old veal buildings into an indoor bowling arena, but ran into difficulties with planners. Many successful businesses farming worms are springing up. They use slurry from dairy cows, which is fairly common in the west country. We are beginning to beat the French at snail farming. It is being pioneered by a French emigré—M. Jacques Aubree—at Rode near Bath. He ran into considerable difficulties with planners about a one acre plot and a 6 ft weavo fence to keep the dogs out. Planners originally refused to recognise snail farming as a proper agricultural pursuit. I am happy to say that the NFU persuaded them to change their minds. I hope that those examples are encouraging to my hon. Friends and the Minister.

My hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East dealt with housing in some depth. I shall not repeat what I said in my maiden speech about the plight of rural communities, particularly regarding young families and the elderly. My hon. Friend put the argument well. I am not sure whether calling on the retired to think again before moving to the countryside would work. I am not sure that we would want to pursue that line. It is more a case of supply than demand, and there might be a case for providing that council houses which are to be sold should be aimed at certain families and should not be bought for second homes.

We need more money for rural housing associations. We need mixed funding and enough grant to provide housing at attractive rent levels. The problem in the countryside is that, on the whole, people have lower incomes and cannot afford rents that the private sector might require without some form of help.

There is a policy, which I believe was started in the London boroughs of Brent and Bromley—so it must commend itself to both sides of the House—which has been practised in Taunton Deane and elsewhere. Discounts are offered to help council home occupiers to buy into the private sector, thus vacating their council homes, which are usually the larger ones such as are in short supply. I understand that there have been 30 or 40 such transfers in Taunton Deane during the past year.

Several of my hon. Friends, but especially my right hon. Friend the Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Mr. Jopling) spoke about rural schools. There is a dilemma. My hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East might be less critical of the hill farm subsidy if he had the odd hill in his constituency. There may be hope on the way for rural schools which achieve a high standard through the Education Reform Bill and its proposals about admissions. I believe that it would be possible for rural schools such as Nynehead and Langford Budville in my constituency, which are fairly close to Wellington, and which are of a high standard but are well below capacity, to attract children from a wider area because of their excellence. Legislation may help rural schools in that respect.

I pay tribute to my namesake, my hon. Friend the Member for Torridge and Devon, West (Miss Nicholson) who has taken up cudgels about sub-post offices and so-called community post offices far more vigorously than I. She has an extensive rural constituency. I have corresponded with the Post Office, and I am not entirely happy with the present state of play. I proposed that it might make its offer of limited hours of work, and therefore limited income, voluntary so that if there was difficulty finding somebody, somebody could run a sub-post office full-time or part-time according to their needs.

I am afraid that I had the usual and understandable reply about the cost of keeping rural sub-post offices open. It was admitted that the limited hours option would operate as sub-post offices became vacant. The Post Office has, however, confirmed that its policy is to keep more sub-post offices open. My hon. Friend the Member for Torridge and Devon, West told me last night that that policy has been successful and that some 40 offices which might have closed have been kept open. I hope that my right hon. and hon. Friends will watch that matter closely. I hope that we shall resist strongly the closure of rural sub-post offices by the back door, as was attempted a few years ago.

I have tried to draw attention to several of the factors which affect the development of the countryside. None of us wants a dying countryside through the decline of agriculture or the departure of population, but nor do we want a summer holiday weekend cottage countryside, with a part-time population. With new technology, more people will find it possible to work at least part-time from many parts of the country. They do not have to be stuck from 9 am on Monday to 5 pm on Friday in an office a few milies to the east of here.

That offers great hope to the countryside and its schools, post offices, shops and all the enterprises that I hope will be developed there. Of course, it will create social changes and difficulties with people from far away coming into a settled traditional community. But those who complain about that in my constituency and elsewhere should consider the traumatic changes in the inner cities during the past 30 years. Our compatriots who live there have seen vast tracts of the cities demolished and often rebuilt in an unsatisfactory style and large areas of them settled by people from the Commonwealth, which has caused great tensions.

I commend my hon. Friend on his choice of subject. This has been an excellent debate so far, and I am sure that it will so continue.

11.40 am

Mr. Mark Wolfson (Sevenoaks): I welcome the debate initiated by my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss), who had the good fortune to win the ballot and the good sense to choose this subject. It is a special pleasure to take part in the debate because about a year ago I visited my hon. Friend's constituency to speak to the Conservative association and he was kind enough to come to Wisbech on an extremely cold winter day when the wind, as is usual up there, was coming straight from the Urals. A year later, we have a sunnier day, which is perhaps due to his benevolent influence on his new constituency.

I am delighted that my hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning is here to reply to the debate. He has shown his interest in and concern for rural housing, and I shall concentrate on its problems during my speech. My hon. Friend will appreciate the problem of rural housing even in — or perhaps because it is in — a constituency so close to London. He has said that the Housing Bill may not solve rural housing problems and that they should be tackled in their own right at some stage. I hope that this debate will push the matter further up the agenda.

We have heard today, and it is clear to people inside and outside the House, how much Britain's countryside has changed during the past few years. Only this week, we had the latest stage in negotiations on the common agricultural policy. The British farming industry so effectively fulfilled its post-war brief that the result is farm surpluses in Britain and in Europe as a whole. The need to cut the subsidies which create those surpluses means that change in the rural economy is bound to proceed faster in the future.

[Mr. Mark Wolfson]

The economic prosperity of the countryside, which hon. Members who have spoken in the debate want and which those who live there wish to enjoy, depends on social well-being. New businesses and jobs cannot be sustained in the countryside without schools, shops, transport, libraries and, critically, affordable housing. The lack of such affordable housing is a great problem. More and more people, in addition to the young, the elderly and the less well-off, find it increasingly difficult to live and work in rural areas. I shall discuss the problem in more detail and give the House some hard information.

The rented sector, public and private, has all but disappeared and owner-occupation has been pushed beyond the reach of many people who live in rural areas. New housing that is built in villages is usually detached, more expensive, executive-style houses or retirement bungalows. To be profitable for the developer, small starter homes must be built on a large scale. But to fit in with village life and not to create blisters on the edge of villages we need small-scale development of houses that people can purchase from incomes derived from rural jobs, and those incomes will not be high.

Housing associations have not ventured far into our villages. They are largely urban-based and have not yet met all the needs of the towns and cities. But in about eight counties rural housing associations have been established to build for rent in small villages. They have harnessed the efforts of parish councils and some appear to be working well. I commend further similar developments to the Government. Those schemes have demonstrated the extent of the hidden need that is revealed when the people living in rural areas realise that there is a chance that their housing needs will be met. More of them are saying, "This is where I want to live, but until now I have seen no hope of doing so." Their need has not been fully perceived.

Shared ownership housing, where someone purchases 50 per cent. of the equity and pays a subsidised rent for the remainder, could be developed much more in villages. That form of tenure accepts the values which are dictated by the market. It enables people on lower incomes to become part-owners. But the Department of the Environment sets unrealistic values for those houses, and it has not yet been possible to design houses which the district valuer could place within the lower Department of the Environment limits. I hope that the Minister will answer that point. Another problem with shared ownership is that the subsidy required to keep rents low carries with it a Department requirement that the occupier must be given the right to staircase — the chance to progress to full ownership. If that happens, the house ultimately becomes part of the privately owned sector and can no longer be used as low-cost housing reserved for local people.

I want to consider important statistics that will back up my point. In October 1987, the Association of District Councils published a research paper from the Bristol School of Advanced Urban Studies, which showed that only one third of working people—and I mean people in work, the real sense of working people, not the pejorative sense used by others — in the south of England could not afford to buy their own homes. There was a great need for rented housing in the non-metropolitan areas.

In the three northern counties, very few households in work appeared to be unable to finance house purchase in 1986. The survey showed that the position had been much the same in 1982-83. The picture in the midlands, according to the survey, was less clear. Slightly more households were unable to purchase and the position had deteriorated between 1982 and 1986. In the south, and in particular in Essex and Hampshire, substantial proportions—up to one third—of households in work could not be expected to purchase at prevailing prices. That proportion had doubled between 1982 and 1986. That does not surprise anyone. We are all aware of the pressures and my figures back up what is happening.

In spite of the more favourable incomes and general prosperity in the south and because of the particular expression of the north-south divide in house prices, there is a substantial problem of access to the mainstream housing tenure of owner-occupation in southern rural areas.

I want to suggest several ways in which greater impetus can be given to solve some of the difficulties. Obviously far more must be done to help people on lower incomes who need housing in the areas to which I have referred. I have already referred to the need to discover the extent of the real need. District council lists do not always provide an accurate indicator of the housing needs in rural areas. The councils are not looking ahead at ways in which to deal with the problem. As local housing planning authorities, councils should undertake systematic surveys of local housing need to reveal the true picture. They should then produce clear strategies for meeting those needs within their own development plans or their housing investment programmes.

I also suggest that district councils should be allowed to expand their housing programmes in rural areas and in particular to provide small numbers of dwellings suitable for the elderly. It is enormously important to elderly people that they should be able to continue to live, so long as they are physically able, in their home village. It is very traumatic for them to be moved away. They are more likely to receive neighbourliness and family support if they can remain in their own village.

Local authorities should work more closely with private developers, self-build groups and others to increase the housing stock. It is crucial that discussions should take place within the villages between the local authority, the housing developer or the self-build group to address the reasons for wanting to develop a small group of houses and so produce a scheme to assist villagers on low incomes to obtain housing. The anti-argument to developments in so many villages — I hear this all the time from constituents in my rather comfortable area — is that when the houses are built they will be bought by well-off people from outside. The people who live in the villages have proper consciences about the local people they know and like and they want their children to continue to live in those villages in which their parents have been fortunate enough to live. If we could show that the building and financing arrangements would ensure that houses are available for local people, most of the anti-argument to development would disappear. If it does not disappear, we can give people a very bad conscience and that could be no end of a help to achieving a positive decision to allow development.

Although I am a strong supporter of the Government's aim to sell council houses to tenants—and that has been exceedingly successful in towns and cities—that aim has produced a real problem in some villages—a problem which, clearly, came out of the woodwork during the election. I called on satisfied parents who were delighted at the opportunities that had been provided for them but who were worried about their children being able to stay in the village as they had done.

We need a programme that takes us beyond the present stage of merely selling council houses. I suggest that local housing authorities should be permitted and encouraged by the Government to spend a proportion of the proceeds from the sale of council houses—certainly more than the present 20 per cent.—on meeting current housing needs in their area. The Treasury must be pressed to take a new view of the problem and to give the social priorities about which we are talking a higher profile in its considerations.

Those are the main points that I wished to make. I could have covered many more. At this stage the rigour of key settlement policies needs to be examined with a view to allowing more organic growth of settlements and, hence, the survival of some of the key services and of the social balance within communities. Planning policy needs to be flexible enough to ensure that local needs for housing or jobs can be met. Where substantial growth is contemplated, the scale of development must not be such as to swamp the services or the social structure of a settlement or to damage significantly the visual amenity of the countryside.

The development in rural France is interesting. There are so many more small builders who build individual houses on village plots that have had the infrastructure provided by the local authority. As a result, there often seems to be a better fit of small-scale development with the existing environment. In this country, all too often the big boys are interested only in large-scale developments.

We have all heard—I am sure that it will continue—the way in which hon. Members attach importance to the maintenance of rural services. There has been some success in halting the decline of shops, post offices, surgeries cottage hospitals and bus services. To a large extent, rural post offices are now protected. Proposals to charge for school transport have been withdrawn. There has been an encouraging growth in community-based services such as community shops, parish minibuses, community newsletters, village halls being used for a multitude of purposes and there is more parental involvement in the running of primary schools.

However, there is still a continuing decline in many rural services that are run by public agencies and commercial firms. We all agree that the retention and strengthening of services in villages remains a fundamental objective. That includes the encouragement of self-help and co-operation. Rural communities must not expect to sit back and let things be done for them. They are entitled to the same level of statutory provision as everyone else in the country, but they will have to be ready to put forward their own views and to supplement the publicly provided services such as those that volunteers and community enterprises can provide. There is no lack of willingness to do that among people in villages. It is one of the attractive sides of village living.

My right hon. Friend the Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Mr. Jopling)—how nice it is that he retains the old name of Westmorland in the description of his constituency—spoke about the problem of secondary schools possibly being closed. I give him my full support in the points he made because I know his area of the country intimately. Because of my link with Cumbria, may I give an unrepentant puff to a project in my right hon. Friend's constituency which is known and supported by him. It is run by Brathay Hall Trust at Ambleside. It is a development training centre with which I have been involved for many years and of which I am a trustee. It is accredited to the Manpower Services Commission. Part of the wide-ranging work that it has done over the past 18 months has been to provide for 40 people—next year it is planned that it will provide for 80 people—a training programme to enable them to get back into work and, in many cases, to be self-employed. Its approach is to emphasise the ability of the individual, to encourage his or her self-confidence and ability to seek out the skills and skilled training necessary to obtain work in their area.

It has often found that unemployed people in rural areas do not necessarily know where to start. The Government have provided many of the opportunities and agencies at which they can obtain the necessary skilled training, but those people do not always receive personal support to give them the encouragement and self-confidence to seek that training. In its first year of operation the course has found work for 90 per cent. of the people attending or has encouraged them to make work of a profitable nature for themselves.

I hope that hon. Members will not feel it inappropriate for me to conclude my remarks by talking about how support is needed for individuals living in rural areas and how the Government are providing, through the Manpower Services Commission, specific tutorial support training for people to enable them to develop an effective and fulfilling life at work in their areas.

12.2 pm

Dr. John Marek (Wrexham): I am pleased to be able to catch your eye, Mr. Deputy Speaker, at this point of the debate and to follow the hon. Member for Sevenoaks (Mr. Wolfson). I agree with almost everything that the hon. Gentleman said. It is always a source of surprise to me—given the hon. Gentleman's remarks—that we do not see him in the Opposition lobby more often than we do.

This is an important debate about rural areas and the lack of services in them. It is a debate to which the central thrust of Government policy cannot be applied because rural areas will always be at a disadvantage. Rural areas will always need extra help because the market cannot be left to look after them.

I shall go through some of the services that need to be considered. With regard to housing, the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Nicholson) said that the provision of council housing should be aimed at particular families. The hon. Member for Sevenoaks mentioned how difficult it is to keep local people and families in rural areas because of the difficulties that they face obtaining a house. The logic of these problems leads one to say that every local authority should have a minimum amount of council housing that it can rent to local people.

Mr. Bill Walker (Tayside, North): So that the hon. Gentleman is not under any misunderstanding, I should tell him that I represent a 2,000 sq mile rural constituency. The sale of council housing has not changed anything because the people who bought their houses would not have moved out of them anyway. The argument is how we provide houses for those who wish to stay. The fact that council houses were let by the council or bought by the people living in them has changed nothing.

Dr. Marek: The hon. Gentleman is fortunate, but in many other places, especially small villages and rural areas, council houses have been sold, only to be put on the market as soon as possible. The statistics show this, although I do not have them with me. The hon. Member for Tayside, North (Mr. Walker) represents an area that is very far from London, but those of us who live nearer to the rich parts of the United Kingdom know of the constant complaint of local councils, whether Labour or Conservative, that they wish they had some council houses to allocate to local families who cannot afford to buy. Those families have no chance of staying in the area and have to move out into bed-and-breakfast accommodation. Young married couples have to live in the front television rooms of their parents' houses.

This is a serious problem, and there should not be any dogma about it. I do not object to people owning their own house. I would encourage it every time. The hon. Member for Sevenoaks said that there should be incentives to encourage people in rural areas to buy their own houses, and he went through the matter in detail. I am not against that, but there should be a stock of council housing at the disposal of local authorities so that they can properly look after their areas.

It is a pity that the Conservative party considers this as a matter of dogma. Conservative Members say that they are concerned about housing, yet they troop through the Division Lobby—I do not know whether they are just in awe of their mistress or whether they do not realise the illogicality of their case—to exacerbate the problem. I have seen this repeatedly since I was elected to the House in 1983.

The previous Secretary of State for Wales, who has now gone to the other place, issued a circular on executive housing in the Principality—not for the people who cannot afford to buy their own houses. He thought that there was a demand for executives and executive housing in the Principality. Of course executives want their houses on green field sites. The matter was referred for consultation. Every local authority and almost every body in Wales, with the exception of the Land Authority for Wales and perhaps two other groups, said that there was no extra demand for, or perceived shortage of, executive housing in Wales, whether in the rural areas or elsewhere. That circular is still in existence.

Mr. Donald Anderson (Swansea, East): It may well be that the Welsh Office is seeking to modify that circular. Does my hon. Friend agree that, apart from being a major intrusion into normal planning law, the concept appeared to be half-baked, as though it arose from, say, a weekend conversation at a golf club or in a chamber of commerce? There was no evidence seriously to suggest that executives had difficulty in finding appropriate homes. It is especially puzzling that the Welsh Office was going ahead with the executive homes idea while selling off council houses and reducing the flexibility in the countryside that a supply of council houses provided.

Dr. Marek: My hon. Friend makes the point well, and I agree with him. There need to be second thoughts about that circular.

An adequate stock of housing should be available to local authorities——

Mr. Anderson: And to housing associations.

Dr. Marek: —and to housing associations—to look after their people in the rural areas. Planning authorities are usually conscious of this need. I know a number of members of various local authority planning committees who are constantly concerned about being able to look after their communities. They are worried. They know that if they can get money to build council houses in rural areas for families who need them, after about four years huge capital gains will be made. Such houses will probably be sold as second homes and be used for purposes other than the one for which they were originally built.

The hon. Member for Tayside, North (Mr. Walker) is shaking his head.

Mr. Bill Walker: I represent north Tayside, Pitlochry, Aberfeldy, Dunkeld, and all the beautiful highland glens. If anyone is looking for a beautiful highland home, one would have thought that there would have been substantial evidence of it. There is no evidence.

Dr. Marek: I accept what the hon. Gentleman says. He must visit my constituency and other parts of rural Wales. He will find a different story.

Mr. Anderson: Because it is close to Birmingham.

Dr. Marek: It is close to Birmingham, but it is much closer to London. My hon. Friend and I speak from experience within our own areas.

I am not trying to pull the wool over hon. Member's eyes. It is a serious problem throughout almost all of Wales.

To put it bluntly, the Government's policy is to give local education authorities as little money as possible. If local education authorities were to paint schools and provide decent pupil-teacher ratios, there would be such a great grant holdback that they would probably cease to have any grant at all, or at least they would be severely penalised for trying to provide a proper service. It is probably accepted throughout the country, if not by hon. Members, that local education authorities have a great deal of difficulty in doing their work properly, with the result that there is a move to try to close small rural schools. That is sad. In many cases, small rural schools are the lifeblood of communities. I accept that it is difficult to justify keeping open a school that has perhaps seven, eight or nine children. As a society, we should be able to say that a primary school with 15 or 16 pupils deserves to be kept open. Such a school would have a good pupil-teacher ratio.

In urban parts of my constituency, pupil-teacher ratios are high. Certainly, the county of Clwyd has one of the worst pupil-teacher ratios in the country. It is probably the worst in Wales. I do not blame it for that; it has many difficulties. Small schools should be taken into account. A low pupil-teacher ratio in one town should not result in an adverse pupil-teacher ratio in a neighbouring town. It is a problem, and the Government have not faced up to it. I hope that the Minister will say something about it.

The closure of some secondary schools causes problems with regard to children travelling to school. It is a good idea to have sixth form colleges or centres of tertiary education. However, it involves travel. Tertiary education centres should be sited so that travel is not excessive. Of course, it depends on how one defines efficiency. Some Ministers will say that they want as few as possible, because it will save costs and teachers, never mind that pupils have to travel 20 or 30 miles each day. That is wrong. We must examine the matter carefully, with a view to providing a service to all parts of the rural community, so that children travel the minimum necessary distance.

I have heard Conservative Members talk about post offices. It is a good social service. There is a post office in almost every village. No matter where one lives, letters are delivered to one's house. What is more, a first class letter costs only 18p. It will be interesting to see what the Government will do when they reconsider the Post Office's monopoly. If they lift the monopoly from the Post Office, will they tie one hand behind its back and allow cowboys to cream off the easy meat and the rich pickings in the City yet starve the Post Office of funds to provide a proper, comprehensive system for the rest of the United Kingdom?

Mr. Anderson: The comprehensive service is not the only concern. There is also concern about a difference in postal rates between inner cities and remote rural areas, which necessarily will reduce the quality and attractiveness of life in rural areas.

Dr. Marek: My hon. Friend anticipates exactly what I am about to say. If the Government do not tie one hand behind the Post Office's back and allow it to compete, it is absolutely certain that the letter rate to rural areas such as Pitlochry will increase to £1 a letter. I shall be very surprised if the rate will not be £1 a letter in my constituency of Wrexham. The hon. Member for Tayside, North shakes his head. I hope that I am not being rude when I suggest that he thinks carefully and makes appropriate representations to the Prime Minister before anything is done to break the Post Office monopoly.

There would be no payments by the Post Office to sub-post offices to keep them open. The Post Office will say that anyone who wishes to provide a service will have to pay the Post Office for a franchise. If that happens, how many local village post offices in rural areas will be lost?

Many Conservative Members are concerned about postal services and about the ability of local post offices to carry letters to and from any address in the United Kingdom. They should think it through carefully before they troop through the Lobby and vote for yet another privatisation measure that will be put before the House in the next Session or the one after.

I should like to say a few words about transport, which is a difficult and serious problem in many rural areas. It is a problem that has to be faced by ordinary working people who do not have a lot of money, and by the unemployed, who suffer most. It does not affect people who have houses in rural areas as second homes or who live in rural areas because their salaries are large enough to pay for two cars or a chauffeur, and can work in a city but live in convenient rural areas. The problem affects people who are not rich and do not have big salaries, and, after housing, it is one of the most serious problems in rural areas.

More money needs to be spent on rural roads. Not much has been said about the roads, but many of them are neglected. There is an inadequate programme for the upkeep of roads. I do not blame the county councils and the transport authorities because they have limited money and have to make political decisions about where it is spent.

It is easy for them to decide not to upgrade or resurface a particular country road this year, and to say that it will have to last for another year, hoping that the winter is not too bad. It is a great pity when that happens, and that we do not have more improvements in some of the black spots on the A roads in the United Kingdom.

I speak with first-hand knowledge of the road system throughout Wales and of quite a few of the roads in rural areas in other parts of the United Kingdom. A great deal of money easily could be spent on improving sections of the roads which must have caused many thousands of deaths during the preceding years.

As for the railways, there are not many railways in rural areas after Beeching. We need many more rural railway stations. We need to get away from the insane idea that money spent on carriages and engines is capital and therefore must be used. Capital spent on engines and rolling stock is used if it is waiting in any particular place just to take account of any mishap that might occur. An engine could, for example, break down or something might go wrong with another train. British Rail should be able to say, "We have a spare engine 15 minutes' away. We can get there and get passengers on their way to their destinations." If something goes wrong on the line from Shrewsbury to Aberystwyth the chances are, especially if it is a local train, that the nearest spare engine is in Bescot which, as we all know, is near Birmingham. It will probably take anything from one and a half to four hours for another engine to reach Aberystwyth. British Rail is aware of such problems, but the facts show that when such things happen, passengers are inconvenienced, not just in a minor way and not even in a moderately major way. They may have to wait two or three hours or the whole train may be cancelled in which case they have to wait four or five hours for the next train. I am sure that my hon. Friend the Member for Swansea, East (Mr. Anderson) will confirm that on the central Wales line there are only four services a day each way between Llanelli and Shrewsbury——

Mr. Anderson indicated assent.

Dr. Marek: Yes, it is something like that. That service is not of great use to the local population and there should be much more frequent services. I know that that would cost money and that it would not be considered efficient by the Government, but it is important in rural areas.

As I have already said, we cannot let the market dominate the rural areas because those areas would die if that happened. We must provide for those areas and, as a society, recognise that we have a duty to ensure that a minimum level of proper services is available to all our citizens, wherever they live.

I know that time is getting on so I shall pass quickly to my next subject. The price of petrol is another problem. When will the Government insist to the petrol companies that the price of petrol should, if anything, be cheaper in rural areas than in urban areas? For far too long those who have to travel to work by car, or who share cars, have had to pay a premium for travelling longer distances to work. [Interruption.] I know that the problem is not as bad as all that and that different figures have been produced by different organisations, but there is no argument whatsoever for having higher-priced petrol in rural areas.

[Dr. Marek]

Mr. Gummer: The hon. Gentleman has just said that there is no argument whatsoever for having higher-priced petrol in rural areas. The argument is that it costs more to get that petrol to those areas. I have now listened to a whole catalogue of various things that the hon. Gentleman wants done—all of them costing money—but the House has not yet been given a single example of where the hon. Gentleman will get the money. Those things will only mean higher taxation for my rural constituents who do not want higher taxation.

Dr. Marek: There we have the naked voice of Thatcherism. Of course we want more money for rural areas; there is no question about it. As the Minister knows, farming could not survive if money was not provided for the farmers and the rural areas to enable them to undertake their very necessary functions.

Mr. Anderson: I know that my hon. Friend is about to give this response: It comes ill from those who are constantly saying that all is now well economically and that the Chancellor has £x billion to give away, to say that necessarily there must be increased taxation if the quality of rural life is to be improved by additional public expenditure as my hon. Friend has outlined.

Dr. Marek: My hon. Friend is quite right. In a few days' time, on the Ides of March, we shall have the Budget. Figures have shown that the Chancellor will give away anything up to £11 billion — [Interruption.] Yes, he could have about £11 billion. That is the top estimate that I have seen. However, he will probably be cautious and give way perhaps £4 billion or £5 billion. Although this is off the subject of the motion, I hope that he will give £2 billion to the National Health Service. By all means let him lower the rate of taxation from 27p to 25p, provided that he does those other things. The Chancellor has the money this year to give extra money to the rural areas to provide decent housing, education and transport. I am surprised that the Minister laid himself open to such an obvious reply to his initial criticism, and I hope that he thinks about it. The rural areas cannot survive on their own. They need our help and it is our duty in this House to make sure that they get that help.

In terms of the common agricultural policy, I hope that the Government will not sell out British farmers. I hope that, if stabilisers are placed on sheepmeat, it will be done on a Community-wide basis. It is vital for our rural areas that sheep farmers are able to compete throughout the Community. For that reason stabilisers must not be placed on the United Kingdom alone. I hope that I have Conservative support on that point even if I do not have such support for some of my other points.

Local planning authorities look after the general interests of the rural community. I suspect that the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Nicholson) was annoyed about my local authority turning down a plan for a motorcycle race track. I can understand why that race track was not allowed. The factors to be considered are where it was to be located and whether it would annoy people. I am quite confident that planning matters should be left to representatives elected by local people. There is far too much interference by central Government who tell local authorities what they should and should not do.

This is an important debate. Far too often rural areas are left out of deliberations in the House and I am pleased to have an opportunity to speak in this debate. Even if Conservative Members do not agree with some of the points that I have made, I hope that they will think about what I have said. Perhaps they will admit that there is at least a case to be argued even if at the end of the day we agree to disagree.

Several Hon. Members rose——

Mr. Deputy Speaker (Mr. Harold Walker): Speeches have been rather long and may prejudice some hon. Members who have been here from the beginning of the debate and wish to take part.

12.26 pm

Mr. Charles Wardle (Bexhill and Battle): I listened attentively to the speech of the hon. Member for Wrexham (Dr. Marek) and could not help thinking that it would be a bad thing for Britain if he were ever to run a business and took into it his ideas of confusing capital and current accounts. I was left with the impression that the hon. Gentleman could not have been in the Chamber when the Chancellor of the Exchequer made his autumn statement, because in some of the sectors that the hon. Gentleman talked about there have been increases in funding.

I congratulate my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) on raising this subject for debate, having come first in the ballot. He made many interesting observations. In particular, I recall his warning that if the green belt is leapfrogged up to 1 million people in inner London might have to look for new accommodation in the home counties. That is a grave statistic to conjure with.

There was only one occasion on which I was tempted to intervene and it was when my hon. Friend said that many coastal resort towns came alive only when the tourists arrived in the tourist season. That is not the case in many southern coastal towns in which there are active communities caring for the elderly in the most lively fashion.

First and foremost, the debate is about change. For the last eight or nine years the main task of the Government has been to persuade the nation to face inevitable changes in technology, markets, working practices, education and in many other aspects of our daily lives. The debate is entirely consistent with that theme because it is the changing structure of British agriculture, which in turn is related to changes in agricultural production worldwide, that has focused attention on the increasingly urgent need to make other uses of the rural environment. At the same time, changes in technology that in many cases enable commerce and manufacturing to revert to a cottage industry basis have had an impact.

We have come full circle from the 19th century concentrations of raw material and labour in the great conurbations to the possibility of isolated workplaces which are nowadays linked by on-line computer facilities and which, in some cases, specialise in small-batch production. Moreover, the change in our transportation network of improved trunk roads and modernised railways has enabled city dwellers to spread into rural areas. They have taken up the houses vacated by people who have left farm work and have built more houses around them, so that the distinction between town and country has progressively become blurred.

The relationship between where people live and the sort of work that they do no longer conforms to the old geographical patterns that remained relatively stable for generations. The fabric of rural society is altering, as is the face of the landscape, and it will continue to do so on an accelerating basis.

In the face of that change, the Government have given a clear sense of direction. They have encouraged a healthy rural economy and a protected rural environment for those who live in it and for those who visit it. They have also encouraged a sense of realism. The Development Commission for Rural England has said that rural unemployment will, in the main, be solved off the farm, not on it. The consultation document about the farm woodland scheme, produced a year ago, referred to incentives for alternative uses of agricultural land and more diversity in the rural economy. That has resulted in the Bill now going through Parliament. The concept of set-aside is at last being taken seriously and, similarly, the Department of the Environment guidelines about rural enterprise point to the shifting demographic patterns and the changing character of the rural economy.

In spite of the measures being taken, it is far from clear whether people have grasped the extent of the changes that are beginning to take place in rural parts of Britain or whether they understand the pace at which the changes are likely to be brought about over the next few years. Above all, it seems that few people understand or sympathise with the pressure on British farmers today, yet there will be far-reaching consequences of that pressure which could create lasting damage to the rural environment unless careful controls and support are maintained.

This week, agreement has been reached in the European Community for more stringent controls over CAP spending in each of the 10 major farm sectors so that, by 1992, the CAP should reflect only 56 per cent. of the Community budget, rather than the figure of almost two thirds for which it accounts at present. That agreement will rightly be applauded because the notion of huge sums of money being squandered on surplus food mountains continues to be offensive. In the past few days, the media have shown relatively little awareness of the direct effect those farm spending controls are likely to have on the countryside as set-aside grows and some farmers already living on a marginal profit and loss account decide to give up and go out of business.

The lack of understanding between town and country about those impending changes in the rural economy is common everywhere, but it is well illustrated in my constituency. Many residents in Bexhill express the belief that farmers are sheltered from the harsh reality of competition and live a perpetually subsidised existence, yet those same people would be appalled at the thought that the rapid demise of unprofitable wealden farms might lead to the disappearance of any of the beautiful Sussex countryside nearby which they like to visit regularly.

For years, change has been taking place in the Sussex weald and elsewhere in the country. Most of the farms are still there today, but the three dozen or so farming villages around Battle have gradually seen many of the farm workers leave and their places in the community taken by commuters, retired couples and weekend visitors. So far, the changes have not had a major visual impact, apart from a gradual infilling of housing development within some of the villages. What is likely to happen over the next decade, in spite of sensible county structure plans, will depend largely on what happens to agriculture. If the occasional loss of a farm becomes a stampede and there is an exit from agriculture, in an almighty hurry major property developers in London will cast increasingly covetous eyes at the home counties and most definitely at nearby east Sussex.

That point concerns me. Developers' interests will have been further fortified by the excellent improvements to local communications and a succession of much-needed bypasses on the A21, for example, and by the electrification of the Hastings or Tonbridge railway line. Those developers will no doubt hope to fill in the gaps between the roadside villages. If they succeed, my own gloomy prediction, which I call the Orpington factor, is likely to come to pass. Orpington is a wonderful place. I have known it for most of my life, but neither I nor the vast majority of people in Kent and Sussex want to see Orpington creep yard by yard down to the Kent and Sussex coastline.

What, then, can be done to ensure that rural development proceeds as the carefully calculated adjustment which the Government rightly intend it to be? There are four principal initiatives which must be maintained, all of which have been touched on already in this debate and which the Government have repeatedly acknowledged previously. Nevertheless, they deserve to be headlined again: the concern about farmers; the potential that exists for tourism; the scope to be found in computerised outwork in private homes; and the role of local authorities.

It is important for the House to recognise that farmers are not crying "Wolf". They understand the need to curb production and to reorganise output throughout the EC. They can recognise the good sense in the Government's emphasis on set-aside and the need for stabilisers in each regime. But the position of many farmers remains precarious, particularly those who are highly geared with bank borrowings. The storm damage in Kent and Sussex last October was devastating. Uninsurable outbuildings, glasshouses and growing frames were damaged and much woodland was so damaged that the clearance costs alone are prohibitive so that replanting remains an academic proposition.

Milk production has stabilised successfully since the last quota reduction, but further painful changes must inevitably be on the way. Pigmeat prices are at their lowest for five years. The system of MCAs works against British pig producers, as does the import from outside the European Community of cheap manioc as feedstuff. Therefore, while fully supporting the Government's commitment to the restructuring of the CAP and the policies outlined in last Monday's debate on agriculture, I hope that the Government will have every sympathy for farmers when they consider a devaluation of the green pound. Pitched right, it will enable rural development to proceed at a manageable pace, but, pitched wrong, it could mean that some farms — for example, in the Sussex weald—will no longer be viable, with all that that would imply.

[Mr. Charles Wardle]

Tourism is a huge industry with the great merit of being spread throughout the country. It has a larger GDP than the automotive industry. It offers scope for initiative and enterprise, and can absorb many young people who can learn the necessary skills as they work. One great advantage of the Channel tunnel and the development of the Dover to Honiton south coast trunk road is that they should bring a further influx of tourists into southern England. That is an opportunity not to be missed in rural areas.

I hope that in the not too distant future all manner of employers in London and the other major centres will carry out feasibility studies of their administration departments to establish whether they can run their offices more cheaply and just as efficiently by putting personal computers, word processors and fax machines into employees' homes, thereby creating more jobs in the suburbs and rural areas and reducing the pressure on commuting.

In east Sussex the Rother and Wealden district councils are doing an excellent job with housing. As well as looking after their housing stock, they are mindful of the need for more private rented accommodation and for housing that is suitable for first-time buyers. They are aware of the importance of community services in villages and they have welcomed the Government's initiative of the past few years on bus transportation. In east Sussex, that has led to an improvement in rural bus services.

One area of anxiety is planning. It is a question not of the decisions taken by the local authority, but of the increasing number of appeals against refusals for planning consent which are finding their way through the planning inspectorate to the Secretary of State's office. As that number increases, one is bound to look back at the idea of property developers from London and at the Orpington factor. I am not talking simply about district council planning decisions; the same tendency applies to county council decisions. Recently in a neighbouring constituency there was clearly a disagreement between the county council's planning office and county engineer's office, and the Department over the choice of a preferred route for a bypass. There may have been good reasons for that, but it is a sign that we must be prepared to heed what local people have to say about planning decisions.

Those are the four headlines that will keep the all-important rural initiative on the right track. The House will, I think, accept that change in the rural environment is inevitable, but the pace and nature of that change is ours to influence. If we get it right, we shall earn the gratitude of future generations; but if we get it wrong and disfigure the landscape, we shall rightly be condemned.

12.40 pm

Mr. Nicholas Baker (Dorset, North): I am grateful for the opportunity to contribute to the debate, and for the opportunity to follow my hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle (Mr. Wardle). He spoke a good deal of sense, like most hon. Members on both sides of the House —which, in this debate, means on our side. I hope that the "composite hon. Gentleman" who, for most of the debate, has been wholly sustaining the Labour party, the hon. Member for "Jarrow, Holborn and St. Pancras"— sometimes he has a beard and sometimes he does not— will have a role to play in the debate. Perhaps he will say something about how inner cities can help inner problems.

It will come as no surprise to my hon. Friends if I stick to the subject of the planning system. I am glad that my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) introduced the motion, and I congratulate him on the way in which he did so. He did an important service in portraying the trend—especially the population trend, of which too little notice has been taken recently. If his conclusions are rather different from mine, it is because he was extrapolating from the present trend, whereas I, like some of my hon. Friends — in particular, my hon. Friend the Member for Harborough (Sir J. Farr) — believe that we can influence and change that trend if we can develop the political will to do so.

I start by referring to the problem of overdevelopment in rural areas, which is a major issue in the south and other parts of rural England. An invading tide of concrete is reaching parts of our precious environment which no one has hitherto thought that it could penetrate. Sussex, Surrey, Hampshire, Berkshire, Wiltshire and Dorset now contain very little of the remote countryside that they contained only 20 years ago.

At the same time, there is a flow of people, economic activity and infrastructure away from the old manufacturing areas—primarily, but not exclusively, in the north and the inner cities—into the green fields of what are seen, for the moment at any rate, as the more desirable pastures of England. Those two trends are working together to change the face of Britain's environment, fuelled by the accelerating success of the British economy. Perhaps, indeed, we are fortunate to have the problem. It is nevertheless a serious problem, because our country is, by international standards, crowded and, as my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East pointed out, may become even more so. But our countryside is a major, if diminishing, national asset: as Mark Twain observed some time ago, they have stopped making land.

I have two propositions, with which I shall begin and end my speech. First, one of the essential answers is the re-creation of our inner cities—perhaps this is the subject on which the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras (Mr. Dobson) will make his contribution—so that they become, as they once were, places where people in every income bracket want to live and work. In that sense, our inner cities and our countryside are directly connected, and the Government's raft of inner city policies are a major step in the right direction.

My second proposition is that at the heart of organising and maintaining our environment is our planning system, which has become strained in recent years as overdevelopment has continued. No longer is it a capable instrument for the task in hand. It is out of date, developer-driven and in urgent need of radical reform. It should enable us to protect the countryside, limit, if not halt, large-scale moves of population for no economic reason and, at the same time, encourage developments — some of which hon. Members have referred to — in rural as well as urban areas, where they are wanted. However, unless people, through their local representatives, feel that they have a say in deciding the shape of their environment, they will abandon their belief in their community and their support for it, ultimately with serious social as well as environmental results.

We must maintain the action that we have started for the re-creation of our inner cities. If Liverpool fails to be a place in which people wish to live and work, other parts of the country will pick up the social pieces. There is no more mournful fact about the increasingly less pleasant area of Bournemouth, Poole and surrounding areas than the number of displaced, unhappy Liverpudlians who now live there, far from where, in many cases, they would prefer to be. There is also the problem of people retiring to such areas, which has already been discussed adequately.

Regrettably, local planning decisions are being overturned in far too many cases, and this strikes at the heart of local government. It is no longer an issue that the Department of the Environment can avoid. We want responsible local government, but in planning, too often, local government is losing heart and losing the will to make its own planning decisions. We should devise a greater say for parish and town councils.

I can give one example, which is a national if a small example, of the way in which decisions are being overturned, to the detriment of local communities. When amusement arcades are created in a small town, they have a great effect on the behaviour and make-up of community life. I know of a number of cases where local authorities have refused permission for amusement arcades, and those decisions have been overturned on appeal by the Department. I hope that my hon. Friend the Minister will look at that matter.

I hope that my hon. Friend will continue, on a much more fundamental basis, the review of circulars that his colleagues have diffidently started. In many respects, circulars are unclear and out of date, and they are particularly out of date in their definition of demand. The demand for housing should not be that set out by the National Housebuilders Federation or consortium developers. That is just one of the ways in which our planning circulars, which are an important bible for local planners, are leading them astray and diminishing the control that local authorities have over the shape that their community should take.

Some excellent points have been made on what can be summed up by the slogan, "Village homes for village people". Local councils are no longer the best authorities, and council housing is no longer the best way, to provide for those who need housing, and will continue to need housing in rural areas. I should like to see the speeding up of the improvement of the private rented sector, for which many of us have pressed for so long, and my hon. Friend the Member for Sevenoaks (Mr. Wolfson) put the point well.

The way forward lies through the greater encouragement of housing associations and shared ownership schemes. If it is necessary, because of the land prices, for the taxpayers' contribution to housing association schemes to be raised, we shall have to face it. That is the best way forward, because such bodies retain the ability to select the tenants to whom the housing will be made available.

My hon. Friend the Minister knows that I believe that we will have to have a much tighter planning framework, whatever form it might take. My hon. Friend the Member for Harborough kindly referred to the pamphlet entitled, "This Pleasant Land" which I wrote. I do not intend to dilate on it now. Indeed, I hope to have an opportunity soon to discuss the detailed proposals in it with the other authorities and my hon. Friend the Minister. We cannot get away from the need for a much greater and more effective overview of the need for development and for a land use strategy which was outlined in that document.

There is a major job to be done in reforming the planning system to protect our countryside and to encourage development of our inner cities and other areas where land development is required and wanted. If we do nothing, much more of our countryside will continue to be lost while the life-blood drains from our cities until the countryside has gone and the tide turns back. If we want our children to enjoy a pleasant land, rural and urban, we must take action now.

12.51 pm

Mr. John Greenway (Ryedale): I congratulate my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) on his success in the ballot and on choosing this important topic for debate.

Last year, my hon. Friend had a spectacular electoral success. He has shown this morning that it was no fluke, but due entirely to his ability, which he has demonstrated today. I found his speech extremely interesting. It covered all of the issues about which hon. Members have expressed anxiety.

My hon. Friend said that there has been a population explosion in some areas. The same is true of part of my constituency. In the south of Ryedale, in the north York suburbs, what were a collection of sleepy villages 25 or 30 years ago now have a population approaching 50,000. There are enormous pressures on the infrastructure, especially leisure.

Housing has been mentioned. I entirely agree with my hon. Friend. One of the problems which loom is the proliferation of property which is bought for holiday lets. In some villages in my constituency, there is anxiety, especially at parish council level, that too many houses are left unoccupied through the winter because they are bought for letting during the summer. I wonder whether the planning system should consider that problem.

If there is to be a reduction in the agricultural work force, we must remember that many of those concerned live in tied accommodation. I should be interested if my hon. Friend the Minister could tell us what measures in the Housing Bill tackle that issue.

Many hon. Members have spoken about land use. I add my support to the suggestion of set-aside so that land might be used for leisure. Green belt land might be used for leisure activities. A landowner in my constituency has written to me in this regard. Perhaps some committee or review will consider that matter under the aegis of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food.

But we should not kid ourselves that the set-aside scheme will solve all the problems of land use. In the debate of agriculture on Monday, my hon. Friend the Member for Wealden (Sir G. Johnson Smith) quoted the Country Landowners Association, drawing attention to the fact that some of the suggested leisure uses for land tackle only a tiny part of the great set-aside difficulty. It said:

> "Even if 300 new golf courses are built and 10,000 tennis courts and 1,000 camping and caravan sites, they will account for no more than 30,000 hectares, leaving 5,970 hectares facing a fate which the French call desertification."—[Official Report, 15 February 1988; Vol. 127, c. 782.]

I shall concentrate on six words on the Order Paper—

[Mr. John Greenway]

"promote enterprise in the rural economy."

If I have one criticism of my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East, it is that he chose the title "Rural Development" for the debate instead of "Rural Enterprise'. The Government are committed to a major initiative on urban renewal in the inner cities, and it is right that they should be. All hon. Members from rural constituencies wish their initiative every success. But the rural economy also causes concern, and the debate gives us an opportunity to remind the House that people face hard times in rural areas as well as in the inner cities.

For many years, the prosperity of the countryside depended largely on agriculture, but it was recognised some time ago that agriculture could not provide all the employment needed to sustain rural communities. Initiatives in tourism and leisure activities generally have already brought considerable benefits. A recent English Tourist Board survey showed that tourism in Ryedale supports about 8,000 jobs and involves about 40 per cent. of the district's work force. Much of the success of tourism in Ryedale is due not only to its natural heritage of countryside and history but to the initiative of Ryedale district council and its tourism and leisure department, which last year distributed more than 250,000 brochures. It is impossible to say whether all the tourism potential of Ryedale and the country at large has been fully explored. But it is clear that there are dangers in becoming too dependent on tourism, just as there are in becoming too dependent on agriculture.

Mr. Alan Meale (Mansfield): Bearing in mind what the hon. Gentleman said about tourism and the number of caravanners who visit his constituency, does he believe that it is a good idea for the Government to levy the poll tax on those for whom caravanning is their only leisure enjoyment during the year?

Mr. Greenway: I am grateful to the hon. Gentleman for making that point. I have already written to the Minister responsible because the matter causes great concern. But it is not the subject of this debate.

Not all rural areas lend themselves to tourism as naturally as Ryedale does, and even in my constituency in some communities the tourism potential is limited. Not all communities are natural tourist attractions, and not everyone wants to be involved in the industry. To those who have been involved in working the land we must offer an alternative beyond bed-and-breakfast accommodation, caravan sites and gift shops, important though those things are. We need a rural enterprise initiative to build on the work that is already being done by several agencies, some of which have been mentioned in the debate, to help to establish new businesses and to provide employment and prosperity in rural communities.

One reason why I question my hon. Friend's use of the words "rural development" is, that, unfortunately, the word "development" is associated in many people's minds with the concept of substantial construction projects. When the Government launched their farming and rural enterprise initiative last year, in which the need for exclusive use of land for agriculture was questioned, alarm bells rang throughout the countryside because it was thought that it might be the prelude to unwanted and unwarranted major building projects. I am sure that the Government did not have that in mind, as the document "Rural Enterprise and Development" clearly states.

Establishing workshops, craft industries, small manufacturing units and homes for small businesses does not mean that we have to change the face of the countryside with swathes of concrete and brick. It means making use of derelict farm buildings and other accommodation which can be renovated and restored to preserve, not destroy, the character of our rural communities. It may mean some new build, but that can be designed to blend in with the setting or with existing structures. Either way, it will bring employment, activity, people and prosperity to declining rural areas. It will also bring training and job opportunities for the young who might otherwise move away to find work.

During the debate several hon. Members have referred to the problem of retaining local services including shops, post offices and petrol stations in rural areas. Those services can be sustained only by people working in the community.

The term development also has connotations of large-scale handouts of public funds. Financial assistance must be selective, not automatic. The advice and help of consultants and experts are a much more appropriate use of resources as they help to ensure that projects will succeed and, in the longer term, ensure that that success is sustained and built upon.

Hon. Members may claim that COSIRA, the Agricultural Development and Advisory Service, the small firms service and the regional tourist boards are doing that work already. Indeed, they are doing that very successfully in many ways. However, is not the fact that we are discussing the issue today proof that more work is needed?

I question the use of the word development. Laudable though the Government's previous initiatives have been, have they had the impact that was needed? The Development Commission which has responsibility for rural England prepared another excellent document called "Action for Rural Enterprise". However, I wonder whether the message has got through. My impression is that the real problem stems from confusion over who has departmental responsibility for rural enterprise.

The foreword to "Farming and Rural Enterprise", which was published last year, contains the signatures of no fewer than five Ministers. However, the signatures of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Employment and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, who is responsible for enterprise, do not appear. We have heard reference to the interest of my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer in this matter. I am sure his interest extends beyond the fact that he represents a large rural area. My right hon. Friend the Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Mr. Jopling) referred to the problem of schools. Therefore, including my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Science, nine Ministers should have an interest in this matter. All those Cabinet Minsters should be involved in any initiative to develop the rural economy. Clearly my hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning bears a heavy load on his shoulders as he has to answer for so many distinguished colleagues.

I am not suggesting that the initiatives have lacked effort or imagination. Indeed, my right hon. Friend the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food and his colleagues deserve much praise for their work in introducing diversification schemes and obtaining finance for grants for farmers to look for other enterprises beyond agriculture.

I question whether all the good work has had the necessary impact. I believe that the message from the debate should be that the Government should consider appointing a Minister with direct responsibility for developing the rural economy. That would beg the question which Department should have the responsibility for such an initiative. Those primarily concerned with conservation might suggest that the Department of the Environment should take that responsibility. I question that because any enterprise initiative will create conflicts over planning matters—and that has been referred to during the debate—in which my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment has a quasi-judicial role. As already suggested, the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has made great efforts to stimulate diversification. However, it is concerned primarily with farming interests.

Mr. Anderson rose——

Mr. Greenway: I will not give way, because I am coming to the end of my speech.

The Department of Employment has responsibility for the tourism that has been developed to such great effect in my constituency and elsewhere. However, what is needed goes beyond tourism, state benefits, employment and training schemes. Having taken on the huge task of reviving our inner cities, I suggest that my right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry should next turn his attention to the development of the rural economy. His recent White Paper redefined the Department's primary objective, which I believe goes to the heart of the debate. It says that the needs and demands of society can be met only by increasing prosperity.

That objective is just as relevant and important to the rural economy as it is to industry and commerce. We now need one Minister to bring together, harness and co-ordinate the work being done by all the agencies and organisations. The Minister should champion the cause of a broad-based rural economy in which workshops and small manufacturing units can flourish alongside agriculture, tourism, recreation and conservation interests. Only in that way will we truly establish a rural enterprise culture.

1.6 pm

Mr. Donald Anderson (Swansea, East): I shall not do battle with the hon. Members for Bexhill and Battle (Mr. Wardle), for Ryedale (Mr. Greenway) and for Dorset, North (Mr. Baker) because they have all made constructive speeches and I agree with much of what they said. However, the hon. Member for Ryedale appeared to suggest, along the lines stressed by those who say that the Conservative party is really the English Nationalist party, that the Department of the Environment should be the sole Department responsible for agriculture, excluding, as it were, Wales and Scotland.

All the hon. Members made important points about the EEC. Some of us are sceptical about whether the agricultural portion of the Community's budget will really fall, as anticipated, from two thirds to about 50 per cent. of the total budget. However, if the agricultural portion of the budget were to fall significantly, it would be bound to have important implications for the countryside, whether in terms of set-aside or rural incomes. Given the timescale of four years and the financial forecasts that are available, the Government might consider producing a White Paper, perhaps a think piece, on the implications for rural development of the package that was agreed recently at Brussels. It will certainly have implications. I would be interested to know whether that idea commends itself to the Minister.

The hon. Member for Ryedale mentioned planning and rural enterprise. In addition to the bodies that he mentioned, one that I would suggest is worthy of study is the Mid Wales Development Board. It is a non-controversial organisation in party terms and it has had substantial success in bringing together the various components of the economy within mid Wales. That precedent is well worth studying.

The hon. Member for Ryedale said that we should encourage rural enterprise. One of my hobby horses is the encouragement of craft industries in the countryside. Local authorities should try to bring together in one building opportunities for a number of individuals who might be involved in craft in the countryside. I have seen one such example in Cirencester. I believe that it is extremely helpful to individuals who otherwise would not be able to market their products within the countryside. Such marketing is carried out extremely well in the French countryside. Tourist centres are located in one area so that local crafts people can market their wares. Often one-person enterprises assist rural enterprise and development.

Another theme that has emerged from the debate is the decline in the rural economy. Clearly this happened, not in 1979 but, for a series of objective reasons, over decades. We tend to forget the changes in the electoral configuration as a result of that decline. One has only to consider what has happened in East Anglia and parts of rural Scotland and Wales to see that that is so. In that regard, I think particularly of the Forest of Dean where much of the underpinning of the area—the railways, local shops and schools has gone and the traditional rural communities have been replaced by commuter groups, who bring their different ideals and purposes to rural areas.

We tend to idealise rural communities and forget the substantial social problems in them. Post Offices with general stores attached to them simply cannot compete with large supermarkets in nearby towns. Therefore, a rural facility disappears from what in the past has been a vibrant village community.

Those problems cannot be solved by market mechanisms. I recall attending, when I represented the rural constituency of Monmouth, a meeting in a village and discussing the local bus service. Some articulate individuals were saying, "We have our cars—perhaps two or three cars—so we do not need a bus service." A number of individuals whom I knew were retired or poor and had no cars. After the meeting, I said, "You did not speak. Why did you not raise your problems?" They were afraid to voice their problems.

There is a danger—we have seen this among some Conservative Members—to think of a countryside that is fit only for executives. One hon. Member talked rather idealistically of on-line computers and the ability of people who live in rural areas to have easy communication with their head office in London or wherever. There are some people who, because of their formation and education, are not able to handle on-line computers. There are some who in the past would have done the simple jobs of the countryside. We should ensure, so far as possible, if there is to be a balanced and mixed community in the countryside, that we do not forget the ordinary folk.

[Mr. Donald Anderson]

That point is particularly true with regard to two matters. The first concerns housing. There has already been an exchange with the hon. Member for Tayside, North (Mr. Walker) about the effect of the right-to-buy provisions on housing. I concede that there may be different regional repercussions of the right-to-buy legislation. It may not be a factor in the hon. Gentleman's constituency, but I can assure him that it is in parts of rural and west Wales, where all the planning authorities are concerned about the availability of reasonably priced housing for local people. They are concerned that once council houses become marketable at the end of the requisite period they will be snapped up by people from outside the area. They are also concerned about the collapse of council house building in many parts of the rural countryside as a direct result of Government policy. I shall not be ideological about that.

Mr. Bill Walker: I trust that the hon. Gentleman will consider carefully what he is saying. I understand those fears, but the fact is that people do not easily give up council houses in country areas. Their jobs are normally in those areas and they want to remain there. They do not want to sell their houses and make themselves homeless. Many tenants live in their houses for a long time so that they rarely become available for letting.

Mr. Anderson: I accept that the majority of people will continue to live in the same houses whether they are owned by the local authority or not, but a proportion of those houses that formerly would have been available to local councils will no longer be available. Coupled with other objective demographic factors, such as the aging population and smaller households, and non-objective factors, such as the collapse of council house building as a direct result of Government policy, this scheme will put a squeeze on individuals in rural communities who, in the past, had a reasonable prospect of acquiring a house from a local authority.

I ask only for some flexibility. It may well be that the appropriate provision will come from housing associations and that the local authority will have its normal right to nominate members. The right-to-buy policy may not be a problem in Tayside, but it is in a number of areas. I suggest that the Government consider whether it is a problem—just as most people on the spot do—and, if they think that it is, take steps to remedy it.

I fear that, because of the twin pressures on our railway and bus services, some people in rural communities are more isolated now than people have been for a century. I am talking not about the commuter families, who are mobile and may have several cars, but about the "wee folk"—If I may use that phrase—the ordinary folk in the countryside. The statistics show that income levels in the countryside are normally lower than in towns, yet a number of goods are more expensive in the countryside—for example, groceries are more expensive and a car may be needed, with all the associated costs of petrol, and so on.

There are twin pressures on people living in the countryside. There are considerable problems of isolation for those who do not have ready access to a car—not only for the elderly and the disabled but for the wife whose husband uses the car for work some distance away. Such problems have been exacerbated by Government policy towards the railways. There has been a substantial reduction in subsidies and the board of British Rail has shown alacrity in going further than the Government wanted. There are exciting experiments with Sprinter trains, but the general pattern in rural railway services has been one of decline in recent years.

The same picture is painted for bus services. I ask the Government to monitor the effects of deregulation in rural areas. I have no doubt that deregulation will benefit areas such as mine, an inner-city area, resulting in a large number of buses going through, at least at certain times of the day. It is lucrative for the various bus operators to undertake those services, but the Government need carefully to consider the availability of buses.

County councils are able to make grants in appropriate cases, but the Government must carefully monitor the effects of deregulation on available rural bus services, particularly at weekends and, say, after 5 or 6 o'clock in the evening. The Government must ask whether, by appropriate intervention in respect of rail or bus services, they can solve what for many people is a real problem — rural isolation. I am convinced that market mechanisms will not solve the problem. There is a need for appropriate and selective Government intervention.

1.20 pm

Mr. Roger Knapman (Stroud): I congratulate my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) on initiating the debate and on his splendid contribution to it. I endorse and, possibly, reinforce his call for housing association activities to be extended to rural areas. I take on board his points about the green belt. The green belt is fine enough, but it tends to put extra pressure on areas just outside it, including areas such as Stroud, which I represent. In calling attention to development problems in rural areas, I advise my hon. Friend that the problem is singular. There is rather too much development.

My constituency is justifiably regarded as rural—indeed, it is beautiful. It includes some level reaches along the river Severn, a steep escarpment covered in beech trees, and the Cotswolds. I ask hon. Members to imagine the pressure for development, bearing in mind that Bristol is just to the west of my constituency. I am sorry that my hon. Friend the Minister is in the Chamber; I am about to describe Bristol as something of a problem. To the north of my constituency are Gloucester and Cheltenham, and just outside it is Swindon, another town vying for the title of fastest-growing town in Europe. Although the area that I represent comprises about 180 sq miles, it contains 85,000 constituents. It increased by 3,500 between the 1983 and 1987 elections. Therefore, scope for a further increase in population must be limited if the area is to retain its rural character. Demand for a rural environment is insatiable. The demand cannot be met, at least in certain parts of southern England.

Of course, in a debate such as this, it is difficult to generalise on many matters. Often, towns in the same area may have completely different problems. I acknowledge that Stroud, the main town in my constituency, could do with some more jobs. However, anybody with a particular skill or training is unlikely to be without a job for long. By comparison, Tetbury has more available jobs than people to fill them. A few months ago, there was an application to build a chemical factory that would have provided about 200 jobs. I was pleased when the application was turned down. Surely something such as a chemical factory would be better suited to an area that already has heavy industry. No doubt, had the application been granted, there would soon have been yet another application to build 200 houses. I doubt whether a factory and 200 more houses would have been for the overall benefit of the town.

Unfortunately, several ancient market towns, with their fine old centres, corn halls, market crosses, and lovely gabled merchants' houses tend to be lost in a sea of modern developments. I am not making a particular complaint. People have a right to live in a pleasant environment and problems arise only when the scale of development is such that the beauty of the area is threatened.

As has already been pointed out, we must recognise that the local planning authorities have overall responsibility, and we must not interfere with their activities except in general terms. The Department was entirely right to encourage the conversion of barns and farm buildings for residential use. In my area that has resulted in many splendid and individual homes that are much appreciated by the purchasing public, judging by the prices that they are prepared to pay for them. It must be right that development is preferable to dereliction.

We are less clear in our thinking about woodlands. In certain rural areas there is tremendous potential. Well-managed woodland needs about one person for every 100 acres of woods. Unfortunately, the extremely well-organised conservation pressure groups — which often have widely differing views about what constitutes conservation—have advised us that fir trees are bad and deciduous trees are good. Perhaps we should call fir trees pine trees. Perhaps pine forests would be generally acceptable. If we throw vast amounts of public money into hardwoods, in 30 or 40 years' time we shall end up with vast areas of hardwood scrub, when we need timber suitable for paper, as currently we produce only 9 per cent. of our requirements. We must not repeat the mistakes of the past where square miles of hillside were blanketed with conifers. We must use a certain amount of style and precision.

In future, it is likely that more people will work from home. That possibility is inescapable. I believe that in 20 years' time, it will be quite normal for people to work at home and transmit their copy by a fax or whatever, to a head office in London or elsewhere. We must take that important point into consideration when planning for the future. It must be recognised that people cannot always expect to have a house built on a green field site and then to work nearby in a factory that is also built on a green field site. Such an arrangement cannot be the norm.

The best way to protect the countryside must be to develop and improve the existing urban areas. There are many depressing areas in Gloucester — I have not mentioned Bristol this time—that may be developed. It may be more expensive to develop areas with complicated ownership patterns than simply to dig into a green field site, but the policy of developing and improving city areas quickly must be pursued or we shall all be losers.

1.28 pm

Mr. Bill Walker (Tayside, North): I welcome the opportunity to speak on this important subject, and I congratulate my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) on selecting it.

It is clear from the debate that there are different problems in different rural areas, yet there are areas which have a number of common problems. Those common problems present us with common challenges and opportunities. A problem is often a challenge and an opportunity for change. We are in the midst of such a challenge.

I remind the House that the part of Scotland that I represent—2,000 sq. miles of beautiful Highland areas—is where the Highland clearances began. I remind hon. Members who do not remember the Highland clearances, or have not read about them, that that was when the glens in my constituency were cleared of people, and sheep were put on the hills to replace them. Sheep became a fundamental factor in the local economy. However, today we have a threat to the sheep. If we cannot find an answer in the negoitations on the sheepmeat regime, or if the negotiations go badly, there will be a second Highland clearance, which would leave our glens without people, and without sheep.

When my hon. Friends are involved in negotiations about the green pound, it is important that it is acknowledged and accepted that Scotland's farmers are not asking for anything special. All they want is equal opportunities. The green pound anomalies must be removed. If the green pound is pitched wrongly, it will create massive problems for Scotland's farmers and drive many of them out of business.

I remind the House that there are large areas of grouse moor in my constituency. We hear a lot about grouse moors from the Opposition Benches, but it is not often acknowledged that those moors provide many valuable jobs in my part of the world, and in other parts of Scotland. We wish to protect those valuable jobs, which can continue for ever if we husband the resources that provide them.

That is also true of the rod fishing that takes place in many parts of my constituency, and it applies not least to the salmon fishing on the river Tay. I welcome the changes that have been made recently to ensure that more salmon come up the river so that they can be caught. I congratulate my hon. Friend Lord Sanderson of Bowden, who is in charge of that issue at the Scottish Office, on the measures that he has taken recently. I hope that he will continue to take such bold measures to ensure that the fish actually get up the river so that the rod fishermen can catch them, because that will mean that those fishermen will return—and they provide more jobs in my constituency than people realise.

Indeed, tourism — in that I include all leisure and recreational activities — is the largest employer in my constituency. When one realises that tourism covers areas of activity such as skiing, canoeing, sailing, climbing, walking, riding, hang gliding, camping and caravanning, one realises that the list is almost endless, but all those activities have in common the fact that they provide job opportunities.

In our debates on rural areas, it is important that we recognise that not all rural areas have similar problems. I should welcome some of the problems that I have heard about. I should welcome people wanting to come to live in my constituency, especially if they wanted to live in some of the more remote parts. One problem that we have faced in the Scottish Highlands has been trying to ensure that people stay in our glens. It is important that we get a balance in the glens, and tourism has a role to play in that.

[Mr. Bill Walker]

We have heard a lot recently about forestry. I advise the House that forestry has provided work and lifeblood for many of my constituents in terms of income and opportunities. Again, forestry must be seen for what it is. It provides an essential part of the economic balance. We should recognise that in Scotland, which constitutes about 40 per cent. of the land mass of the United Kingdom, there are opportunities for forestry planting. We should look after the nation's long-term need for forestry and wood pulp, and that provides opportunities.

However, we should also recognise that planting too many conifers could present problems for the rural balance, which will be distorted. One aspect that we have taken note of recently is the impact on the whisky industry of conifers that have been planted too close to water courses. The whisky industry is probably Scotland's most important single industry. It employs 16,000 people and exports £1 billion worth of whisky every year. In addition, it gives the Chancellor of the Exchequer a £1 billion contribution towards his coffers every year. Because of that, we must ensure that conifers are not planted too close to the water courses. They have an effect on the water which, of course. is an essential ingredient in the manufacture of whisky.

It is of concern to my constituents that the European Community fondly imagines that the Highlands of Scotland begin at the Drumochter pass. Nothing is more nonsensical. Every school child in Scotland and, I hope, throughout the United Kingdom knows that the Highlands begin at Perth, which has always been known as the gateway to the Highlands. That creates problems because if EC recognition does not embrace the whole of the Scottish Highlands, we should not be surprised if we find farmers in Rannoch, Glen Lyon, Drumochter, Glenshee and Strathardle farming in conditions that make it more difficult for them to make a living. That applies in many areas apart from what the European Community fondly imagines are the Highlands of Scotland. It is not surprising that farmers in those areas feel that they are not getting an even-handed deal.

Much has been said about housing problems. There has been much scaremongering. My constituency is the only area about which I can speak with authority. Every time the problem that would be created by the sale of council houses has been brought to my attention I have investigated it. As I told the House, I found that the people in the council houses felt the same, whether or not they had bought their house. They have no intention of moving because they have nowhere else to go. Anyone who suggests that people living in my remote glens will sell their houses and leave themselves homeless miles away from their jobs and from everything else is not living in the real world. People in the remote parts of Scotland generally do not want to move. That is why they want to retain the sheep and the balance that I have been talking about.

There are needs. Aberfeldy has no employment problems. It has full employment, but there is a need for housing. That does not necessarily mean council housing. There is a desperate need in the rural parts of Scotland for more private letting. Housing associations and the measures contained in the Housing (Scotland) Bill will encourage private letting. There is much empty property in rural Scotland and it would be helpful if we could get it on the market. That is what I meant when I said that problems can create challenges and opportunities.

We must continue to husband our resources, including rural amenities such as schools, hospitals and post offices. They are the lifeblood of a community. I would add to that the kirk, because although in some parts of the United Kingdom it may not be so, we still think that our kirk is important, and the Minister is still held in some respect. That may surprise some of my hon. Friends, but as a majority of my constituents voted for me and support me, the House will realise what sensible people they are. Some of them do not support me, but not many.

Hospitals, schools, post offices and kirks are essential to maintain our communities. Therefore, when we talk about opportunities we are talking not only about jobs and Government initiatives, but about creating the right economic environment in which people can take the risk of setting up businesses and creating opportunities. The Government have created that environment, and my constituency has benefited substantially. I should be happy to take any hon. Member to remote glens in which he could see people working with computers or to areas where craft industries are flourishing. I should be happy to show anyone all the benefits in my constituency.

1.38 pm

Mr. Frank Dobson (Holborn and St. Pancras): Thanks to the speech of the hon. Member for Tayside, North (Mr. Walker), I have discovered that Aberfeldy is in his constituency and I now know what Burns meant in the poem entitled "The Birks of Aberfeldy."

I am happy to contribute to the debate, although there have been some doubts about my interests in the matter, as I represent Holborn and St. Pancras. However, I can at least lay claim to representing Chalk Farm, Oak Village and Lincoln's Inn Fields. I also represent a wildlife site. It is one of the curiosities of this country that there is a high proportion of wildlife sites in the inner cities, indeed, a larger proportion than in most rural areas.

I wish to address the problems, not of my constituency, but of rural areas in which about 25 per cent. of the population live. The population of those areas has grown substantially in recent years. In one 10-year period, 1 million more people moved into rural areas. The balance of the population between urban and rural areas is now what it was in 1901, so it is shifting back in the other direction. There is now a drift away from urban areas into rural areas, when we have been used to a shift in the opposite direction.

Many people in rural areas are prosperous, but there are also substantial numbers who are not. Most people living in rural areas, whether prosperous or not, remain dependent on the provision of public services, either by central Government, local authorities or the National Health Service. There are many problems in rural areas, as Conservative Members have been willing to point out. There are nodules of high unemployment in a number of rural areas. In some small towns and villages, the proportion of unemployed people compares unfavourably with virtually any part of the country.

Because of the long distances involved in travel, access to retraining and reskilling for unemployed people in rural areas is not as easy as it is for people living in urban or suburban areas. There are also quite a number of people living in poverty or on the edge of poverty in rural areas. Many people living in those areas pay considerably over the odds for the goods and services that they buy, compared with people living in the suburbs.

There are problems with the National Health Service, social services and transport. Recently, there was a considerable threat to free school transport, which was eventually fought off in the other place. It is worth remembering that that proposition was initiated not by the Government, but by some of the Tory education authorities, as a way of saving money. There are problems with maintaining an adequate comprehensive education service in rural areas, as the right hon. Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Mr. Jopling) said. He is not present at the moment, as he has had a serious operation and did not want to stay throughout the debate. I am sure that all hon. Members wish him a speedy recovery.

Some services in rural areas, as in other parts of the country, are held back by lack of resources and low levels of spending. However, some basic problems about provisions of services for people in rural areas will remain, whatever the level of spending. The wide dispersal of the population means that the provision of services is not such a paying proposition as it is in the cities or the suburbs. The long distances to be covered in providing those services make them sporadic and more expensive. That applies to the private sector and to the public sector with the provision of schools and hospitals.

Many Conservative Members have said, although the hon. Member for Tayside, North did not seem to agree with them, that the lack of cheap housing in rural areas has always been a problem and is growing. They referred to a lack of housing for young people on low incomes, particularly those who have grown up in rural areas and want to stay there. They find it increasingly difficult to stay.

When I served on the Environment Select Committee in 1980-81 we took evidence from some local authorities about the likely effects of the sale of council houses and their non-replacement. The most telling evidence was not, as one might have expected, from some inner-city authorities, but from the Allerdale and South Lakeland councils, which foresaw problems if they were forced to sell houses in villages in the Lakeland national park. They feared that if a proportion of houses were sold, outsiders would come in and low-cost housing would no longer be available. They foresaw prices gradually rising higher and higher and that as the process continued it would be difficult to find anyone to deliver the milk or post, to teach in the local school, to nurse at the local hospital or to work for a local firm on lower than average industrial wages, as is usually the case in the countryside.

The Lake District special planning board, in an effort to counter this threat to locally born and bred people being able to stay in their area, tried to get local occupancy conditions written into the structure plan for Lakeland, but the Secretary of State for the Environment, presumably knowing better than the board about the problems of Lakeland, deleted that part from the plan. That has certainly been damaging to the provision of houses for ordinary people in the Lake District.

Last year the university of Lancaster produced a report entitled "Housing Dilemmas in the Lake District" which points to the difficulties that have occurred as a result of the forced sale of council housing and its non-replacement by any other form of low-cost housing in the villages and small towns that needed it in the first place. I suspect that that process has gone on further and faster in the Lake District than in many other rural areas, but they may well be catching up. As practically every Conservative Member said, we need to consider seriously what we can do to ensure a renewed and continuing supply of cheap housing for people who cannot afford expensive housing.

Unless we replace the houses that have been sold the position will worsen. I am not sure how this applies to rural areas, but on average a local authority needs to sell 15 council houses to raise the money to build one new one, because of the curious ways in which the money is shifted about. We need more building by housing associations, although the right to buy also applies to housing associations other than charitable ones which provide housing for specific groups.

Many of the proposals in the Housing Bill are likely to worsen rather than to improve the position in rural areas. It is crystal clear that unless one is well off in a rural area, the free market will not deliver many goods or services. It certainly will not provide housing, particularly in areas which are becoming increasingly attractive to commuters.

The provision of health services illustrates many of the problems of providing a good quality service in rural areas. This week, my hon. Friend the Member for Livingston (Mr. Cook) published a list of 300 hospitals that have been closed since 1979. It is clear that a substantial majority of the hospitals on the list are either in rural areas, or in small or medium-sized market towns which have traditionally provided health care for rural areas, as well as for the community in which they were located.

The problem is not entirely to do with the level of resources. We need to consider how we deliver a health service to those areas. Those people need treatment, even if they do not have enough sick relatives and friends living nearby to attract doctors to move into their areas. They need hospitals, even if they or their families will not use them as intensively as would people living in a densely populated town or suburb.

There are two ways in which sick people receive professional treatment. Either they go to the treatment, or the treatment comes to them. Neither process is easy for someone who is badly off, such as a rural pensioner, woman or child. We need to improve the position in two ways: by providing more resources, and by adopting a more flexible approach.

I shall not go on about the level of resources, because it is a general matter. However, the decline in the provision of hospital and clinic services has been dominated by the policy of concentrating resources in district general hospitals and health centres, which, while it is wholly appropriate for the inner cities and suburbs, is by no means always appropriate for rural areas. For a rural area to contain a population large enough to sustain a major health centre or a district hospital would require an enormous catchment area, and people would have to travel vast distances to get there.

In theory, that process of concentration has been slowed down. In practice, however, it has been speeded up, because many health authorities have had to economise on small hospitals to keep the big ones going—although, theoretically, their plans involve the existence of satellite hospitals for a long time to come.

[Mr. Frank Dobson]

We must ensure that we do not try to impose on rural areas solutions for health provision—or, indeed, for the provision of other services — which, while they are appropriate for suburbs and inner cities, are not appropriate for rural areas. Even in my area, for instance, where Underwoods the chemist has adopted the policy that no branch of Underwoods should open unless it is in sight of the next branch, it can prove quite difficult to go to the doctor, obtain a prescription, get it made up, go home and take the medicine, particularly if one is very ill. In rural areas, the same process can involve hours of travel and waiting around. Although there have been some improvements in rural dispensing—partly as a result of the rural dispensing committee that was started on its way by the last Labour Government—people in rural areas still suffer considerable inconvenience, and we should do more to help them. Few of the Government's responses to the points made to them about the development, or lack of development, of the Health Service make any reference to the particular health needs of rural areas.

The right hon. Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale referred to the problems of rural schools. It is the case in any community, but more particularly in rural communities, that the school is the centre of the community, and the community as a whole suffers substantially by the closure of the school, be it a small primary school or a bigger secondary school. Although some Conservative Members have welcomed the provisions of the Education Reform Bill, I ask them, not in a party political way, to have another look at some of the possible consequences of that Bill on rural areas.

Let us take the idea of open-entry schools. In theory, anybody who fancies going to a particular school will be able to go to it, and that school will be allowed to expand while others will, consequently, be run down. The right hon. Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale has already referred to the problems of maintaining a wide curriculum in small rural secondary schools, and that problem will be made worse under this system, as will the planning of a proper delivery of an education service over a widespread rural area. Conservative Members representing rural areas should look carefully at that.

Mr. John Greenway: I can only assume that the hon. Gentleman was not in the House during education questions on Tuesday, when this matter was addressed fully by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State. In answer to a question from my hon. Friend the Member for Saffron Walden (Mr. Haselhurst), my right hon. Friend said positively that there would be no problem and that children in catchment areas for rural schools would still be entitled to go to them.

Mr. Dobson: They certainly are entitled to go to those schools, but some of those schools will be going into decline. If some of them decline very far, and some have scarcely viable rolls at the moment and need to decline only a little further, they will be closed by the education authorities because they will be too expensive. Therefore, even parents who opt to go to the smaller schools will find it impossible, because some of the smaller schools will automatically be blotted out as the result of the open-ended open-entry system. Opting out will also pose significant difficulties. Say there is a popular school in Ryedale, and the parents decide to opt it out. Supposing that it is a Roman Catholic school, of which there are not many in rural areas.

Mr. Greenway: There are none in my area, as far as I am aware.

Mr. Dobson: I know that, but the hon. Gentleman should remember that he has a large number of Roman Catholics in his constituency, who might wish to exercise their right, under the law, to send their children to Catholic schools. If one of those Catholic schools opts out, the distances that Catholic children will then have to travel if they cannot get into the opted-out school could reduce parental choice. I do not say that it is bound to happen, but it could, and Conservative Members representing rural areas should look at this carefully.

People living in rural areas face the problems that all of us face in our lives. They get sick, they grow old, they suffer from disabling accidents or illness. Generally speaking, they suffer from low pay because those working in rural areas are usually worse paid than people working in urban areas. Family poverty goes along with all these conditions.

Being poor is bad enough, but being poor when quite a number of other people are poor and services are provided to make things easier is far better than being poor in a relatively prosperous area where such services are not provided. In many rural areas, the services which are provided for the badly off are not very extensive. I shall take school meals as an example.

The law, although it will change in April, provides that education authorities can exercise a discretion to offer free school meals more widely than to children whose families are statutorily entitled to supplementary benefit or family income supplement. Dorset, for example, offers discretionary free meals to no one, as does Lincolnshire. Kent offers meals to a grand total of 45 children, Norfolk offers 16 and Suffolk offers 26. The contrast with some Labour-controlled counties is startling. In Gwent, for example, 3,500 children are offered free school meals. No fewer than 6,000 are offered such meals in Cleveland and the figure is 4,833 in Derbyshire. That is an indication of the extent to which living in certain rural areas is a considerable disadvantage if one is not well off.

The same applies with regard to other services such as home helps. By the Government's own calculations, we find that most Labour rural counties provide at least twice as many home helps per 1,000 people aged over 65 as do Tory counties. I am not comparing urban areas with rural areas but Labour rural areas with Tory rural areas.

Mr. Bill Walker: Does the hon. Gentleman realise that people in Highland Scotland do not look to the local authority to provide what they have traditionally helped each other with and that, because they are still a caring society, they do not need people? They look after themselves.

Mr. Dobson: The pattern of voluntary and non-voluntary care varies in different parts of the country. I accept that, but I have not referred to what prevails in Scotland.

We have heard this morning about the difficulty of people who are getting on and find it difficult to look after themselves. They are sometimes driven out of the village in which they have spent their life because of that. The provision of day care can be a relief to people in those circumstances. It can help them to remain in the area in which they were brought up.

We should consider the record of some Tory county councils on the provision of day care. Hereford and Worcester provides none. Shropshire provides none. Kent provides practically none. Surrey provides none. West Sussex provides none. Suffolk provides none. I cannot believe that there are no people in those counties who need day care and who can be assisted to remain in the villages in which they were brought up.

Mr. Wolfson: In Kent, day care is provided—and very effectively too—by voluntary associations and the NHS.

Mr. Dobson: The NHS is also providing a service in all other areas—at least I hope it is. If not, people living in other areas are subsidising a service provided in Kent that is not provided elsewhere. I cannot believe that that is the case.

I do not claim that the patterns of need are indentical throughout the country, but the services that are provided for many not very well-off people—some of whom may have been comfortably off until they reached old age—are indefensibly poor. They are likely to beome worse as a result of further pressure from the Government to cut local government spending.

I used to have a greater interest in rural affairs than I do now, and I used to receive the minutes of parish council and Women's Institute meetings which discussed the provision of better services in rural areas. It was clear—this was not the view of a Socialist Member, but the view of people who were interested in the problems of their areas — that people did not want market-place competition answers to their problems. They wanted public services with, in some cases—perhaps this deals with the point made by the hon. Member for Sevenoaks (Mr. Wolfson) in relation to Kent—the local authority or health authority providing a base from which more effective voluntary efforts could be made. But all that is in decline.

The substantial changes in the role and general physical fabric of rural areas will cause many changes in their social fabric. Besides talking about development, we should consider the poor services being provided in some areas. It is no good talking about the far blue yonder of development when many people living in rural areas, some of whom may be reasonably well-off, are being denied important public services.

I hope that the Minister will reply to some of the points that I have made as well as tackle the pressing problems which were brought to our attention by Conservative Members. Above all, he must ensure that people who grew up in rural areas can continue to live there in housing that they can afford.

2.7 pm

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Mr. William Waldegrave): The hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras (Mr. Dobson) made a long speech and repeated several of the points that were made by my hon. Friends. I have a constitutional difficulty today, because the wide open green spaces opposite me make it difficult for me to address those who have participated in the debate. The hon. Gentleman made a thoughtful speech, but the truth is that in rural areas the Labour party hardly exists and is no longer even the principal opposition to the Conservative party, although that opposition is less than it was thanks to the efforts of my hon. Friends the Members for Cambridgeshire, North-East (Mr. Moss) and for Ryedale (Mr. Greenway).

My hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East introduced the debate with a thoughtful speech. Indeed, it is a thoughtful motion. He said some challenging things, and when people read Hansard they will find them rather more challenging than they may have thought at the time. He uttered the unthinkable thought: is every inch of green belt inviolate? The Government have made it clear that their policy will continue as it is, but it is welcome to have people willing even to think those dangerous thoughts. My hon. Friend also drew our attention to population figures. The Government are not responsible for that, except in so far as people are living much longer, which is a tribute to the success of the Health Service. My hon. Friend was right to say that inviolable green belts place additional pressures on other areas.

Although hon. Members are right to draw attention to the problems of rural areas, let us not start from the position that the English, Scottish and Welsh countryside is in a state of collapse and decay. That is rather like the way many Opposition Members say that the country is a complete disgrace and no one could possibly want to live here, yet they also press us to weaken immigration controls so that many tens of thousands more people can come and live here. As the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras rightly said, the truth is that more people have been moving into the countryside. The 1981 census shows that the population of the countryside is rising again. Things cannot be all that bad.

We must start from the background that we have some of the most attractive living conditions in the world in the countryside of the United Kingdom. My right hon. Friend the Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale (Mr. Jopling) was right to refer to the smaller market towns. They are the particular and almost unique contribution of the British tradition to a style of living that is very attractive indeed.

My hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle (Mr. Wardle) made a point that I welcome. He said that this is a debate about change. We must begin by saying that things are not too bad. The prediction of writers about 50 years ago that there would be megalopolises all over the country have not come true. Those predictions were made by H. G. Wells and by Richard Jefferies who wrote a novel of gloom and doom about the south of England at about this stage of the century. None of the predictions has come true. Those writers lived through a period of real and dramatic change. Cities like Birmingham, Manchester and Glasgow exploded out of virtually nothing. Indeed, "exploded" is the right word for it. Those writers did not imagine that things could not continue in that way.

We should pay tribute to the planning system, despite our criticisms about it. I cite my county of Avon as an example of the success of the British planning system. Avon contains the fine, large city of Bristol and a small suburb of Bristol, Bath, and many smaller towns. It has beautiful countryside. A similar number of people live in Avon as live in the city of Cleveland, Ohio in the United States. However, we think of Avon as having identifiable cities and a pleasant rural environment. It is a triumph that we should consider Avon in that way rather than as a concrete mass. We must consider the criticisms against a background of success and then decide on the improvements.

[Mr. William Waldegrave]

My hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle said that this was a debate about change. My hon. Friends the Members for Cambridgeshire, North-East and for Taunton (Mr. Nicholson) said that we should consider the changing shape of industries and the opportunities that modern technological communications systems provide for spreading industry. That will surely save many rural areas in which the old staple industry of farming is declining to some extent as the source of income. We must develop our institutions and planning system to meet that change.

I am glad that my hon. Friend the Member for Taunton has shown that my Department is sensitive enough to modern developments to allow Britain to lead in the great snail race. Several other rather more high-tech industries are being welcomed into the countryside.

Many of my hon. Friends have said that they welcome the steps that we have tried to take, for example, to promote the conversion of redundant farm buildings to make space for industries and, in some cases, homes. Many local authorities have not got the message yet. I confirm what several of my hon. Friends said on that point. In those cases, my Department will often give permission on appeal. If my hon. Friends claim that too many cases are allowed on appeal, they should consider the statistics which reveal that a relatively large proportion of such cases are granted on appeal, whereas the number of housing appeals, at the smaller end, is much lower. We need to consider the statistics carefully before we say that in every case it is wrong for cases to be overturned on appeal.

I find myself in some difficulty in responding to Scottish Members. Although I know the constituency of the hon. Member for Argyll and Bute (Mrs. Michie) very well, it would be brave of me to mention any policy matter to do with it except to state that she rather alarmed me by saying that a great deal of Cheddar cheese is produced there. It seems to me that Cheddar cheese should, if possible, be made near Cheddar, preferably by my brother. However, that is a different matter.

The main theme of the debate has been housing. I welcome the wording of the motion. It has raised the question how we make the planning system sensitive enough to accommodate the increase in households and population. I know that my hon. Friend the Member for Dorset, North feels strongly about that, and he is right to do so. However, the developers do not invent the demand. They can sell the houses only because people want to buy them. We must recognise that the more we clamp down on developments in the places where the market takes them, the more the prices will go up for the houses that already exist. There are increasing pressures for intervention and to place increasing constraints on people's freedom to move so that houses become cheaper. Down that interventionist line, which to some extent we have to follow, lies the diminution of the freedoms for which our party stands. Therefore, we have to be careful.

My hon. Friend the Member for Harborough (Sir J. Farr) talked about the subject with feeling and knowledge. He agreed with one of the controversial but correct points made by my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East—that it is the quality of the housing that often contributes to the level of opposition. My hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire North-East said, rightly, that perhaps we should consider the release of a little more land so that the quality of the housing is better and so that there is an opportunity to build housing that fits in with the traditional styles of building. Often it is the urban density of a village that gives such offence. I sympathise with that. However, as I have said it may sometimes mean that a little more land is released.

My hon. Friends mentioned an admirable pamphlet on this subject which I have studied. That makes it seem as if all problems can be solved by urban development. About half our housing is developed on re-used urban land and that is welcome. That is happening much more than it did in the 1960s or 1970s. However, it has its limits. Building on urban land often means creating higher density housing in the constituencies of hon. Members in outer London areas, who see gardens or green space disappearing, and of hon. Members in inner London constituencies. In such areas people may defend vigorously the last bit of what may to an outsider appear to be derelict land but which may seem an opportunity for green space to someone living close by. Let us not believe that that is a complete answer.

There is a scandal of unused and derelict land. At long last it is being dealt with as a result of the initiatives of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and his predecessors. The urban development corporations are putting pressure on local authorities to sell land, and other things are afoot as a result of the Audit Commission's report on the mishandling of land by many local authorities. That is right, but it will not solve all the problems.

The extra hundreds of thousands of households in the south-east which have been predicted by the OPCS cannot all be housed in constituencies such as that of the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras or of mine in the centre of Bristol. Land will have to be taken. The challenge is to do it sensitively and carefully.

Perhaps we should be looking again at the idea of planning new settlements a little more carefully. There comes a time when the expansion of existing villages must end if they are not to turn into towns and have their nature changed. There are villages in England that have not yet returned to their pre-black death population. We should provide the proper services and do things carefully with quality development such as that discussed by my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East. That may be a better way forward.

There is no easy answer to any of this. This year we have asked the Housing Corporation to consider the problems. We must provide more money for rural housing associations because that is the way to provide the often small amounts of additional accommodation needed in villages. It might be charitable housing association accommodation, an example of which I opened at Timberscombe, which is in the constituency of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland. It was for the benefit of elderly and young people of the village. Stock can be provided by local community housing associations to meet people's needs for rented accommodation, which is a good way forward. The Development Commission is giving money to assist the growth of rural housing associations, which is welcome.

Many proposals in the Housing Bill will help to provide more rented stock and will encourage the private and public sectors to put funds alongside Government funds to expand the role of housing associations. Recently, in the constituency of the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Ashdown), I opened a development that had received a 30 per cent. subsidy. It provided low rents relevant to the needs of the people of that market town. Measures such as these can be taken, and we must expand this line of proceeding.

So many other subjects were raised that it is difficult for me to deal with all of them. I believe that calls for a single Department are a red herring, which derives—if this metaphor is not too mixed—from the perception that we must co-ordinate policy properly.

If we tried to invent a Department to deal with rural affairs—as my hon. Friend the Member for Ryedale said—the Treasury would have to be involved, as would the Department of Trade and Industry. One would end up with large bits of other Departments and a rather small, cosmetic Department, such as the old Department of Economic Affairs, which we had under the Labour Government. Power would rest with the Departments where the planning system policy, the industry policy or, the agricultural policy lay. One might find that the rural clout had diminished rather than increased, because it would be a rather small animal in the Whitehall jungle. I doubt whether a new Department is the answer.

The request for better co-ordination is legitimate and we are increasingly trying to meet it. I assure hon. Members that when the farm woodlands scheme, farm diversification grants or policies for the environmentally sensitive areas—all of which are policies deriving from and led by my right hon. Friend the Minister of Agriculture—are brought forward, there will be close and detailed consultation between my Department and the other relevant Departments about the effects of those policies and how to take them forward.

The range of problems—this was mentioned by the hon. Member for Holborn and St. Pancras—is no less because they are scattered. It may be easier to see the concentrated problems of individual areas. The full range of skills of all the Whitehall Departments must be directed to those who live in country areas, rather than say, "There is a separate animal called a rural person who has his own Department and he is not of interest to the Department of Health and Social Security or the Department of Trade and Industry." I believe that it would be a mistake to go down that route.

My hon. Friend the Member for Harborough and my right hon. Friend the Member for Westmorland and Lonsdale mentioned schools. The Education Reform Bill, as my hon. Friend the Member for Ryedale said, will help with regard to opting out and particularly open enrolment.

In our armoury we have a full range of policies aimed at dealing with potential rural problems. The Development Commission is spending about £14 million per year on the factory programme—this was first raised by my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, North-East—which is a major increase over the £4 million that it was spending five or six years ago.

There must be advance building of small factories and workshops, and we are now increasing the output of those. As my hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle rightly said, we need to encourage tourism. My hon. Friend the Member for Ryedale reminded my hon. Friend the Member for Bexhill and Battle that holiday lets, which are necessary for tourism, can sometimes be a problem. However, tourism is one of the industries of the future.

One of the most traditional of all employers in the countryside, alongside agriculture and high-tech industry, which we need and are getting, is country sports. I agree with my hon. Friends the Members for Tayside, North (Mr. Walker) and for Harborough that country sports can provide jobs in the most remote areas. When I was doing a conservation job, I found out what an important ally the grouse moor owners are to those who want to maintain the traditional ecology of the moorlands and to fight back the bracken. It was right to mention that and to remind the many urban experts on the countryside that it is wise, when lecturing country people on how to behave, to go carefully on some aspects which are a little different.

We have had a useful debate. I have given only the briefest of surveys on the many excellent points which were brought up. Hon. Members have recognised that the principal problem which is causing anxiety is housing, followed by planning. Planning is difficult because one man's enterprise is another's development. As my hon. Friend the Member for Ryedale said, enterprise is good but development is bad. I welcome the notion because it recognises that careful use of the planning system is the way through that dilemma, although there will never be total agreement about it. I welcome even more the debate because the Government are considering bringing forward ideas on rural housing as a package. This debate has given a welcome stimulus to that process and reminds us how important it is.

2.26 pm

Mr. Moss: I am grateful to Conservative Members for their support of my motion and to Opposition Members for their contributions. I congratulate my hon. Friend the Minister on the splendid and robust way in which he answered most of the points. I was especially pleased to hear him talk in terms of initiatives and policies to arrive at some solutions to the housing problems in rural areas, about which so many Conservative Members spoke.

Question put and agreed to.

Resolved,

That this House calls upon Her Majesty's Government to pursue policies and procedures to ensure an ordered phasing of development in those rural areas which will need to accommodate a growth in population, to encourage agricultural diversification and promote enterprise in the rural economy, to facilitate the provision of the necessary rural services, infrastructure, employment and housing, and to co-ordinate the work of those various agencies and departments which have a direct interest in rural affairs and rural land use.

High Technology Industry

2.27 pm

Mr. Timothy Wood (Stevenage): I beg to move,

That this House recognises the major benefits obtained by the country through scientific and technological innovation welcomes the recent initiatives of the Department of Trade and Industry which will further stimulate technological innovation and co-operative ventures to that end, but regrets the uncertainties which still exist in relation to the British development of space technology; and calls upon Her Majesty's Government to clarify its policy regarding space research and development so that industry and research institutions can formulate their programmes with some confidence as to their future prospects.

Clearly, in the time available, it is impossible to develop arguments on the motion. Over the past 150 years new developments and innovation in a variety of ventures have helped us to create our present prosperity. For a country such as ours it is essential that, by increasing the value added to the various activities in which we are involved, we continue to give ourselves a high standard of living, whether in the towns, the cities or the country, about which we talked earlier.

We continue to have a number of problems, some of which the Government have tackled. There is no doubt that, in the past, there has been a poor relationship between universities and industry. There has been a lack of regard for technologies. I welcome the proposals for a national curriculum and the pressures that have been placed on universities to collaborate with industry. I welcome the various initiatives which have been taken, including the technical and vocational education initiative and the recent Department of Trade and Industry initiative for enterprise, but there are significant problems.

The future in space technology is uncertain. I have a particular interest in that subject because British Aerospace employs 1,500 people in the space and communications division in my constituency. It is fair to say that, for two or three decades, this country has been in two minds about the value of pursuing space activities.

Again, over the past year, we have seen question marks placed on whether industry and commerce in this country should pursue such activities. Indeed, British Aerospace sent me a comment today to the effect that, immediately following a Government statement, there was an advertisement in the local paper in Stevenage stating that jobs were available in Europe for high quality space technologists at three times the salaries that are offered in this country. Should I advise my constituents to join a move to Europe to pursue the activities in which they are so well qualified? I should like to be able to say that this country will provide a future in that industry in the coming years——

It being half-past Two o'clock, the debate stood adjourned.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

Ordered,

That, at the sitting on Wednesday 24th February, notwithstanding the provisions of Standing Orders No. 14 (Exempted business) and No. 15 (Prayers against statutory instruments, &c. (negative procedure)), Motions in the name of Mr. Secretary Rifkind or of Mr. Neil Kinnock relating to Housing (Scotland) may be proceeded with, though opposed, for one and a half hours after the first of them has been entered upon, and, if proceedings thereon have not been previously disposed of, Mr. Speaker shall put successively the Question already proposed from the Chair and the Questions on such of the remaining Motions as may then be made.—[Mr. Alan Howarth.]

Council House Sales (Lambeth)

Motion made, and Question proposed, That this House do now adjourn.—[Mr. Alan Howarth.]

2.30 pm

Mr. William Shelton (Streatham): I shall make a clarification at the beginning of the debate. The House will hear certain criticisms of Lambeth council's services. They spring from the frustration that is suffered by my constituents and, indeed, by me. They spring from Lambeth's apparent inability to answer letters, answer telephones, make decisions, and maintain its services, especially housing services, which seem to be near collapse. I hold the political leadership of Lambeth council at fault. Typical hard Left leadership is involved in internal feuding and doctrinaire policies. There is a lack of management skills. However, the vast majority of officers of Lambeth council are hard-working and responsible, and they do their best in difficult conditions.

I applied for the Adjournment debate to bring before my hon. Friend Lambeth's failure to meet the legal wishes of council tenants to buy their own homes. About 2,500 tenants are waiting to have their applications processed. Some of them have been waiting since 1986. I am talking about those who have written to me. At least one has been waiting since 1984. Delays in processing the right-to-buy applications spring more from Left wing bias among the leadership of Lambeth council against home ownership than from inefficiency. In support of that, I adduce the fact that, since the right-to-buy was started in 1980, Lambeth council has sold fewer than 2,000 council homes to tenants. Since a year or two before 1980, neighbouring Wandsworth council, which is approximately the same size, on its own initiative, has sold about 10,000 homes —five times as many. That cannot be due to chance or a matter of efficiency or inefficiency. It must be a matter of political will-power.

Most of those who suffer aggravation and delay write to their local councillors, but a number write to me. I shall briefly refer to some of my recent letters. A family in Streatham Hill applied in September 1986. It had telephoned once a week, written to the Department of the Environment and to Lambeth council, but it has had no reply. Applicants in Kings avenue applied in May 1987. A surveyor arrived in August. There have been countless telephone calls. They were told that it will be at least another six months. Applicants in Kings avenue applied in January 1987, but they have heard nothing. An applicant in Dray gardens applied in June 1987, but has heard nothing. Another applicant applied in January 1987. The house was valued in July, but he has heard nothing.

Clearly, there is a great deal of delay, aggravation and frustration. I shall tell the House of my own experience with Lambeth council, which was rather unusual—in certain quarters, anyway. In August last year, I wrote to the director of administration listing a number of constituents who had approached me with difficulties over delay. He answered courteously a few days later saying that he had forwarded the letter to the chief solicitor, Mr. Robert Bloomfield who would contact me. Mr. Bloomfield did not contact me. At the end of September I wrote to him and received no reply. In the middle of October I wrote again to Mr. Bloomfield and received no reply.

In the middle of October I wrote to Mr. John George, chief executive of Lambeth council saying, "For heaven's sake, what is going on?" I received no reply. So I retreated and invited Mr. George to lunch. He was a charming man and was very apologetic. He promised to send me answers to the cases that I had raised. Again, I received nothing. In December, I received three paragraphs saying that I would receive a report by the end of the week. I did not receive it. On 22 December I wrote again to Mr George and received no reply. On 29 December I wrote to him again and received no reply. Eventually, on 27 January, six months after my first letter he wrote to me in response to one of the very many cases that I had sent to the chief executive. I wrote on 4 February about yet another case and, of course, I received no reply.

The House will understand why I am raising an Adjournment debate on the matter. I advised Mr. George some months ago that I would do so unless I received a reply. If a Member of Parliament, acting in the interests of his constituents, receives such discourteous, inefficient treatment, heaven help the residents of Lambeth.

The second matter that I wish to draw to the attention of my hon. Friend the Minister of Housing and Planning relates to service charges. Lambeth is using service charges in an improper and unjust way to penalise those who have bought their council houses and to deter those who might be thinking of buying them. I gave as an example a block of flats in Bushell close, Palace road where a number of tenants bought their flats in 1982 and 1983. The residents were told that they would have to pay a service charge of some £500 a year for which they were invoiced and which they paid. Three years later, in 1987, they received a letter from Lambeth council saying that the matter had been looked into, a mistake had been made and that the service charge would be not £500 a year but £1,000 a year, and that that service charge of £1,000 a year would be back-dated to 1984. Therefore, the residents had to pay an additional £500 for 1984, for 1985 and for 1986. That service charge included costs for window cleaners and gardeners. The residents had seen no window cleaners or gardeners during that time.

I add that a number of those cases have been drawn to the attention of the local government ombudsman who, no doubt, is considering them and making a report in due course.

I ask my hon. Friend the Minister whether councils have the right to raise such service charges against residents who have bought, are buying or are proposing to buy their council houses? Is there any way in which councils can be deterred from exercising that right? If there is no way of controlling them, a way must be found, otherwise councils can make service charges of £2,000, £3,000, £4,000 or £5,000 a year to frustrate the right-to-buy legislation, if they are doctrinaire and ill-tempered enough to do so.

It has been put to me, and I put it to my hon. Friend the Minister, that the increased complexity introduced by the 1986 legislation may, to some extent, slow down the progress of sales. I am told that the neighbouring borough of Wandsworth used to give a 10-year guarantee on every flat that was sold and, consequently, increase the valuation of that flat. That worked admirably and without any trouble for many years but the council can no longer do that because of the 1986 legislation. I am told that for flats the council must give an estimate of what may need to be done during the five years following the sale. We all know how extraordinarily difficult that would be for private owners, let alone for a council. Furthermore, the law could be interpreted as saying that a full structural survey must be made. Even well-inclined councils are finding that it takes much longer to organise the sale of flats than it did before the 1986 Act, with its increased stipulations against which, I am advised, Wandsworth protested most vigorously during the consultation period before the legislation was promulgated. Its protestations were ignored.

[Mr. William Shelton]

I should be grateful if my hon. Friend would consider that fact to see whether it has caused, in part, some of the log jams in the processing of right-to-buy applications. It certainly gives a field day to the councils that are less well-inclined towards home ownership, such as Lambeth. It seems that the Act, which I supported strongly, encouraged demand, but also created new delays. Perhaps something could be done about that—indeed something certainly should be done in that area.

If Lambeth cannot respond to the perfectly legitimate interests of its tenants—who want to buy their homes and who are supported in that by two Acts of Parliament—either through inefficiency, which I doubt, or through lack of will—I believe that that is the cause of the delays—I urge my hon. Friend to consider Government intervention. As the House knows, the Government have such powers. They have powers to take over the management, to get sales moving and to sort out this situation, which is causing many problems for my constituents.

I suggest that we should consider whether we could privatise—I leave to my hon. Friend the question of whether it is possible to legislate to persuade councils to privatise—because it seems sensible to privatise the valuation of properties and the legal services used. I know that Wandsworth has tried that. I shall not conceal from the House the fact that Wandsworth found difficulty because of the complexity of the 1986 legislation which I have mentioned. However, that apart, it seems sensible to consider whether those valuations, which are at least straightforward, could not be performed by private companies, which are just as expert as the borough valuer. Of course, the borough valuer could then check them to make sure that they were not completely out of line.

The legal services involving the transfer of property and the land registry could also be performed by the private sector. I should add that the delays in Lambeth's land registry services are appalling. I believe that they are running at about 16 weeks whereas Wandsworth takes one week. In 1986, if my memory serves me correctly, Wandsworth carried out about 16,000 checks whereas Lambeth carried out about 13,000, although it has twice the number of staff in its land registry office as Wandsworth. Presumably, Wandsworth is computerised and Lambeth is not, but I do not know.

In conclusion, it is deeply wrong that Parliament's intention to grant home ownership, which coincides with the wishes of many of my constituents, should be frustrated in this way. I have used this Adjournment debate to bring that issue to my hon. Friend's attention and to urge him to consider what can be done to resolve it.

2.44 pm

Mr. Stuart Holland (Vauxhall): I am grateful both to the hon. Member for Streatham (Mr. Shelton) and to the Minister for agreeing to my saying a few words on this subject. Firstly, please let me stress to the hon. Member for Streatham how much I sympathise with the very unequal exchange that he appears to have had with the chief executive for the borough, trading him a lunch for no reply to his letters.

It is very irritating, of course, in either central Government or local government when one does not get a response. I had, for example, exactly the same problem with the Home Secretary on a matter concerning the overcrowding of Brixton prison. I first wrote to him on 23 December. I reminded him again. I have had no reply and it has now been more than two months. I have had to put down a written parliamentary question on the matter, so, of course, it is not simply a matter of local government. None the less the hon. Gentleman has a substantive point in that he is entitled to replies.

I submit that one problem is that of staffing. Lambeth is a rate-capped borough and now has to undertake cuts in anticipated or actual expenditure by £60 million in this coming financial year. That will mean a reduction in the staff involved in housing from around 1,000 to just under 850 persons. Unfortunately, rather than being able to allocate the staff, it may get worse.

I think that the hon. Gentleman has a point on the valuer's staffing. If, indeed, there is twice the staff in Wandsworth, it is well worth looking at. On the other hand I submit to him that private valuation would be very two-edged. After all, there are always two or three firms in the local property market, and as Adam Smith once said, nothing is more certain when two or three producers or entrepreneurs are gathered together, even for merriment of diversion, than that they will seek to conspire against the public interest by a contrivance to raise prices. Perhaps in this case we might retain the safeguard of public valuation.

I have nearly finished these points but the other factors are simply these. Certainly, Lambeth was off to a slow start. There is no doubt that this reflected a certain lack of enthusiasm for sales, partly because—and I think that the hon. Gentleman would admit this—there is a difference here between the north end of the borough and Streatham, although there are big estates in Streatham. In my part of the borough of Lambeth we overwhelmingly have flats rather than houses and there are real problems on sales there. On the service charges, for example, I understand it to be the case in Wandsworth that flats are being sold and that sums of £1,000 are being charged for service charges. However, the hon. Gentleman has a good point when he says that these charges should not be retrospective.

The homelessness problem is really chronic in Lambeth. Naturally, there is a case for a plural housing sector—I finish on this point—of council, private, co-operative, housing association and others. But Lambeth's record is such that in 1986 there were 1,121 applications approved, as I understand it. In 1987 there were 2,575. It has gone up from an average of 93 a month to over 200 a month and I think that, even on the hon. Gentleman's own criteria, the situation is not quite so dire as he suggests.

2.48 pm

The Minister for Housing and Planning (Mr. William Waldegrave): I am grateful to my hon. Friend the Member for Streatham (Mr. Shelton) and to the hon. Member for Vauxhall (Mr. Holland) for the way in which this important little debate has been introduced, because the situation in Lambeth is worrying. From the experience that we have had in the Department I can confirm a good deal of what my hon. Friend says.

First, I shall say why the right-to-buy policy can be of benefit to the borough. I was glad to hear the hon. Member for Vauxhall taking a pragmatic view of this. Certainly, the aim of a mixture of tenures in his and in my hon. Friend's area is a sensible social objective. What is more, in those areas where there is serious dilapidation and problems that often arise from badly designed 1960s estates and other estates, resources are needed. The right to buy and the receipts that arise from it, provide one additional source of such money. It is noticeable that the London boroughs with the most acute problems have been, for perhaps understandable political reasons, slowest to tap that source of money and that must be regretted.

I suspect that there is some political bias against the policy, which has meant that there is a little slackness in the administrative procedures. If there is no leadership, there will not be good organisation. There is another depressing statistic. If Lambeth council brought down the gap in relets to the average level, another 500 lets would be available each year. That would make a big impact, particularly on the bed and breakfast problem.

Something is going wrong in the housing department. The right-to-buy situation has deteriorated. Initially, there was not a great demand in Lambeth. The Department had no reason to believe there was any undue delay. At least, if the system was not very good, it was not very bad. The Department did not receive many complaints, which is a barometer of the situation. The number of complaints to local Members of Parliament is another, and perhaps better, barometer. When we set up the monitoring list, Lambeth was not included among the boroughs. In the initial stages of the right-to-buy process, Lambeth did not handle many cases and, therefore, there were few complaints.

The situation has deteriorated. Although there are now many more applications, there has been an increase in complaints. In the past few months, there has been a 100 per cent. increase in the number of complaints to the Department, in respect of Lambeth. Lambeth is now in the sad position of being in the top five, behind Camden, Tower Hamlets, Hackney and Southwark. That is not a competition that anyone wishes to win. That situation has developed as a result of weakness in administration and organisation and of a lack of political will.

It is difficult to obtain answers from Lambeth. The Department wrote to the chief executive on 23 November. We have not thought of offering him lunch. Perhaps that would be another ploy. After hearing the experiences of my hon. Friend the Member for Streatham, we might send him the bill. The Department requested that measures should be taken to improve matters. We chased things a good deal and eventually received a reply on 27 January. We have continued to take up cases with Lambeth, but without much response.

Like that of my hon. Friend the Member for Streatham, the patience of the Department is not inexhaustible. We shall have to decide whether Lambeth should go back on the list of monitored authorities. Ultimately, we have the doomsday weapon of intervention by the Secretary of State. My right hon. Friend watches these matters closely. Like my hon. Friend, we do not write letters just for fun. We try to ensure that the legal rights of our citizens, about which they feel passionately, are properly protected.

I should like to comment on two points raised by my hon. Friend. First, he suggested contracting out or privatising the process. It is open to local authorities to do that, if that is sensible. Compulsion to do so, when an authority is determined to be obstructive, might not work because there is bound to be a major role for the local authority in that process. It may find ways of making the life of an outside valuer or solicitor extremely difficult. We must try to get the council to do the job properly, one way or another, using our fallback powers if necessary. As many other Labour authorities throughout the country have shown, if they put their backs behind this policy, they can soon get sales going, even for flats.

My hon. Friend made an important point about service charges. I have had the same problem in my constituency in Bristol. We have not necessarily got the legislation right, but it is worth remembering why we took the step and disagreed with Wandsworth over this. We were finding that people were being given estimates for service charges which were instantly shown to be ill-considered, to put it mildly, and perhaps misleading. Bills predicted to be £200 or £300 turned out to be thousands of pounds. We said that the estimates must be binding, so that local authorities would take the matter seriously. As my hon. Friend said, that imposes a legal obligation on a local authority, which involves it in a great deal of work to ensure that the estimates are correct.

As a result of this debate we shall consider the matter again. There is a danger that local authorities could err so far on the side of safety or expense that they could frighten off buyers. The matter must be considered carefully and seriously because, as anyone in the private sector will know, service charges on flats can be high. People buy flats and find themselves landed with higher service charges than they had expected and then get into difficulties.

The intention of the Housing and Planning Act 1986 was to give people security and to stop an authority simply changing estimates radically as soon as a sale had been made. As usual, we had to legislate to deal with an abuse in a few authorities and by doing so we have probably made it more difficult for authorities which were behaving perfectly honourably and sensibly on the previous voluntary system. That is the frustration of this. One takes legislative powers to deal with abuses only to find that one has made life more difficult for those with no intention of abusing the previous system. We shall reconsider the position, but as it is not long since we legislated, perhaps we should let things settle down a little.

There is immense opportunity for Lambeth both to gain more resources for its housing needs, which are acute, and to establish local communities by increasing the level of owner-occupation. If the council followed that policy and put a little more enthusiasm behind the provision of the rights which exist in law, it could not only do good for tenants who seek to exercise their right to buy, but for the borough as a whole. Whether before or after lunch, I hope that the council will take note of this debate and remember that the Government do not legislate for fun or provide themselves with back-up powers for no reason, and that if there is no sign of improvement it will be impossible for my right hon. and hon. Friends in the Department not to consider taking further steps of a type most unwelcome to Lambeth, in order to assist my hon. Friend's constituents in achieving their legal rights.

[Mr. William Waldegrave]

Question put and agreed to.

Adjourned accordingly at two minutes to Three o'clock.

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 8 February 1988

TRANSPORT

Buses (Revenue Support)

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list information available to him on the savings that have accrued from the changes in revenue support for bus transport since the Transport Act 1985 in (a) Shropshire county council and (b) Berkshire county council.

Mr. David Mitchell: The two councils have reported spending on passenger transport revenue support as follows:

£ million

	Shropshire	Berkshire
1985-86	0·787	1·613
1986-87	0·837	1·340
1987-88 (Budget)	0·880	1·083

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Guidance was issued to all managers last July asking them to ensure that potentially offensive material is not displayed in the work place.

Aircraft (Passenger Seats)

Mr. Amos: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will raise at his next meeting with the chairman of the Civil Aviation Authority the provision by commercial airlines of seats for passengers obliged to occupy smoking seats against their wishes.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: There are no plans to do so. Generally this is a matter which is best left to the commercial judgment of individual airlines. The authority is able to take the views of users into account in all transport licensing cases where standards of services are at issue.

Road Costs

Mr. Mudd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list all the motorway and trunk road contracts in England with a works cost of £1 million or more which his Department intends to award in 1988-89 showing, in each case, the total value of the contract and the expenditure likely to be incurred in that year.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The table lists schemes which we plan to start in 1988-89. The list is provisional and currently under review. Actual starts 1988-89 may differ from this list as progress is dependent on outstanding statutory procedures and other factors. Other schemes not on the list may start in 1988-89 if progress with statutory procedures is faster than currently expected.

£ million

Route	Title	Works cost estimate	Forecast expenditure in 1988-89
(A) Schemes for which statutory procedures have been completed
M5	Widening—Catshill to Lydiate Ash	22	9
M20	Maidstone to Ashford (two contracts)	62	17
M40	Gaydon Bypass	28	11
M62	Eastbound Climbing Lane J21-22	3	3
M62	Westbound Climbing Lane J24-25	2	2
A1	Dishforth Interchange	5	2
A6	Barton Bypass	6	2
A11	Thetford Bypass	7	4
A16	Boston to Algakirk	7	3
A21	Robertsbridge Bypass	3	1
A27	Pevensey Bypass	6	2
A35	Charmouth Bypass	6	2
A36	Steeple Langford Bypass	2	1
A40	Swakeleys Road Junction Improvement	8	6
A41	Bicester Bypass Stage 1	3	1
A46	Newark Relief Road	27	12
A47	Guyhirn Diversion	3	1
A52	Nottingham Outer Ring Road, Abbey Street Grade Separated Junction	4	2
A282	Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Approach Roads	20	4
A303	Sparkford Bypass	6	3
A406	Chingford Road to Hale End Road	38	18
A435/A422	Alcester Bypass	7	4
A565	Derby Road Improvement	2	1
	Sub total (A) 23 Schemes	278	111

Route	Title	Works cost estimate	Forecast expenditure in 1988-89
(B) Schemes for which some statutory procedures have not been completed
M3	Compton to Bassett widening	27	10
A30	Launceston to Plusha	6	3
A35	Axminster Bypass	6	0
A36	Beckington Bypass	4	1
A36	Codford Bypass	2	1
A43	Blisworth Bypass	11	0
A303	Ilchester to South Petherton	9	2
A435	Sedgeberrow Bypass	1	1
A604	M1 to A1 Link	60	15
A650	Drighlington Bypass	5	1
A696	Woolsington Bypass	9	2
	Sub total (B) 11 Schemes	140	36

(c) In addition, further contracts are expected to be let on schemes which will be under construction at 31 March 1988 as follows:

Route	Title	Contract cost estimate (£ million)
M40	Banbury Bypass Contract 2	23
M40	Banbury Bypass Contract 4	45
A2	London Boundary to M2 Improvement Contract 4	2
A19	Peterlee Grade Separated Junction Stage 2	3
	Sub total (C) 4 Contracts	73

Mr. Mudd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list in the form of his answer of 2 April 1987, Official Report, column 571-72, all the motorway and trunk road contracts with a works cost of £1 millon or more which his Department had intended to award in 1987-88 but no longer anticipated doing, with, in each case, an indication of when the contract might be let.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Construction has started or is expected to start as planned on 29 of the schemes listed in my answer of 2 April 1987. Current estimates of dates for start of works on the remainder are as follows:

£ million

Route	Title	Works cost estimate	Estimated date for start of works
(A) Schemes which had completed all their statutory procedures:
M62	Eastbound climbing lane (Junctions 21-22)	3	Spring 1988
M62	Westbound climbing lane (Junctions 24-25)	2	Spring 1988
A2	London boundary to M2 Improvement Contract 4	1	Autumn 1988
	Sub total (A)	6
(B) Schemes for which statutory procedures has still to be completed:
M3	Compton to Bassett widening	27	Early 1989
A6	Barton bypass	6	Mid 1988
A27	Penvensey bypass	6	Mid 1988
A41	Bicester bypass	3	Autumn 1988
A52	Nottingham outer ring road Abbey Street grade separated junction	4	Spring 1988
A140	Dickleburgh bypass	2	Spring 1989
A435/A422	Alcester bypass	7	Autumn 1988
A696	Woolsington bypass	9	Late 1988
	Sub total (B)	64

London Underground Ltd.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans London Underground Limited has for franchising or contracting the managements of stations to commercial or voluntary bodies.

Mr. David Mitchell: I understand there are no such plans.

Herald of Free Enterprise

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the items of cargo carried on board the Herald of Free Enterprise at the time of her sinking whose carriage on board a passenger vessel breached regulations; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: My Department has been informed by the authorities in Belgium that although one lorry on board was carrying a cargo declared to be cyanide solutions, they found it to consist of several drums and plastic pails containing substances that are banned from carriage in a passenger ship.

The Belgian authorities have asked for assistance in following up certain lines of inquiry in the United Kingdom. Since a prosecution is being considered in Belgium, it would not be proper to disclose further details.

Toxic Waste (Transportation)

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he is satisfied that adequate checks exist over the manifests of cross-Channel ferries in order to detect the carrying of toxic chemical wastes; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: The onus to ensure that dangerous goods manifests are correct is placed upon the shipper and the ship operator in the Merchant Shipping (Dangerous Goods) Regulations 1981, as amended.

My marine surveyors do carry out spot checks on the dangerous goods manifests, but this can ensure only that the goods can be carried on the vessel inspected and that they are correctly located. It is not possible to detect from the dangerous goods manifest undeclared or wrongly declared dangerous goods.

ENVIRONMENT

South West Housing Society

Mr. Sayeed: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what public funds have been made available to the South West Housing Society Ltd., Bull Wharf, Redcliff street, Bristol BS1, for each year that funds were provided.

Mrs. Roe: In recent years the Department of the Environment has paid the society the following amounts in housing association grant, revenue deficit grant and grant in relief of tax:

Financial Year	Grant Paid In Year (£)
1972-73	77
1973-74	4
1974-75	Nil
1975-76	812
1976-77	479
1977-78	1,432
1978-79	Nil
1979-80	1,178
1980-81	50,000
1981-82	443,812
1982-83	2,005
1983-84	27,563
1984-85	86,842
1985-86	329,289
1986-87	200,886
1987-88	332,553

Local Government Employees (Greater Manchester)

Mr. Tom Arnold: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what information he has on the number of employees of each of the 10 metropolitan borough councils in Greater Manchester broken down by function, subject and area.

Mr. Chope: The tables show the results of the September 1987 survey of the joint manpower watch for the metropolitan borough councils in Greater Manchester. Information collected under section 56 of the Local Government Act 1985 for these authorities is available in the Library of the House.

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Bolton

Population—261,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	3,010	52·5	450	43·1					3,460	27·6
2 Other	687	12·0	323	30·9	484	22·5	1,946	53·9	3,440	27·4
3 Construction	58	1·0	2	0·2	470	21·9	6	0·2	536	4·3
4 Transport
5 Social Services	620	10·8	121	11·6	353	16·4	1,003	27·8	2,097	16·7
6 Total (1-5)	4,375	76·3	596	85·7	1,307	60·8	2,955	81·9	9,533	76·1
7 Libraries	125	2·2	58	5·6	23	1·1	96	2·7	302	2·4
8 Recreation	88	1·5	5	0·5	400	18·6	293	8·1	786	6·3
9 Environmental Health	65	1·1	5	0·5	25	1·2			95	0·8
10 Refuse	11	0·2			107	5·0			118	0·9
11 Housing	240	4·2	15	1·4	76	3·5	36	1·0	367	2·9
12 Planning	100	1·7	9	0·9					109	0·9
13 Chief Executive	31	0·5	2	0·2					33	0·3
14 Finance	171	3·0	13	1·2					184	1·5
15 Secretarial	112	2·0	31	3·0	51	2·4	94	2·6	288	2·3
16 Legal	13	0·2							13	0·1
17 Engineering	162	2·8	1	0·1	144	6·7			307	2·4
18 Architecture	76	1·3							76	0·6
19 Estates	27	0·5							27	0·2
20 Personnel	22	0·4	1	0·1					23	0·2
21 Management Service
22 Computing	67	1·2	2	0·2					69	0·6
23 Consumer Protection	13	0·2							13	0·1
24 Other Administration	9	0·2	4	0·4					13	0·1

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
27 Technical Services
28 Central Service (13-27)	703	12·3	54	5·2	195	9·1	94	2·6	1,046	8·3
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	27	0·5	3	0·3	15	0·7	134	3·7	179	1·4
32 Total (7-12, 28-31)	1,359	23·7	149	14·3	841	39·2	653	18·1	3,002	23·9
33 General Service (1-32)	5,734	100·0	1,045	100·0	2,148	100·0	3,608	100·0	12,535	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	37	0·0							37	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Bury

Population—174,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	1,723	51·7	194	25·7					1,917	26·4
2 Other	378	11·3	375	49·7	151	18·9	1,374	57·5	2,278	31·3
3 Construction	9	0·3			219	27·4	2	0·1	230	3·2
4 Transport
5 Social Services	333	10·0	49	6·5	92	11·5	818	34·3	1,292	17·8
6 Total (1-5)	2,443	73·3	618	82·0	462	57·9	2,194	91·9	5,717	76·6
7 Libraries	73	2·2	40	5·3	2	0·3	12	0·5	127	1·7
8 Recreation	65	2·0	20	2·7	185	23·2	32	1·3	302	4·2
9 Environmental Health	41	1·2			4	0·5			45	0·6
10 Refuse	23	0·7	2	0·3	77	9·6			102	1·4
11 Housing	92	2·8	29	3·8	4	0·5	11	0·5	136	1·9
12 Planning	60	1·8	3	0·4					63	0·9
13 Chief Executive	46	1·4	4	0·5					50	0·7
14 Finance	136	4·1	3	0·4					139	1·9
15 Secretarial	30	0·9	8	1·1			48	2·0	86	1·2
16 Legal	23	0·7							23	0·3
17 Engineering	108	3·2	4	0·5	52	6·5			164	2·3
18 Architecture	58	1·7	4	0·5					62	0·9
19 Estates	25	0·8	1	0·1	1	0·1	4	0·2	31	0·4
20 Personnel	14	0·4	1	0·1					15	0·2
21 Management Service	13	0·4	[redacted]	0·7					18	0·2
22 Computing	14	0·4							14	0·2
23 Consumer Protection	9	0·3							9	0·1
24 Other Administration	6	0·2	1	0·1			1	0·0	8	0·1
27 Technical Services	49	1·5	8	1·1					57	0·8
28 Central Service (13-27)	531	15·9	39	5·2	53	6·6	53	2·2	676	9·3
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	5	0·2	3	0·4	11	1·4	86	3·6	105	1·4
32 Total (7-12, 28-31)	890	26·7	136	18·0	336	42·1	194	8·1	1,556	21·4
33 General Service (1-32)	3,333	100·0	754	100·0	798	100·0	2,388	100·0	7,273	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	22	0·0	8	0·0					30	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Manchester

Population—455,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	6,995	38·5	3,965	76·0					10,960	26·0
2 Other	3,057	16·8	715	13·7	1,108	11·4	5,948	65·7	10,828	25·7
3 Construction	769	4·2	8	0·2	4,379	44·9	21	0·2	5,177	12·3
4 Transport
5 Social Services	2,037	11·2	293	5·6	1,159	11·9	2,498	27·6	5,987	14·2
6 Total (1-5)	12,858	70·9	4,981	95·5	6,646	68·1	8,467	93·5	32,952	78·1
7 Libraries	471	2·6	80	1·5	162	1·7	22	0·2	735	1·7
8 Recreation	537	3·0	53	1·0	1,277	13·1	157	1·7	2,024	4·8
9 Environmental Health	384	2·1	8	0·2	56	0·6	10	0·1	458	1·1
10 Refuse	110	0·6	5	0·1	944	9·7	5	0·1	1,064	2·5
11 Housing	843	4·6	23	0·4	243	2·5	34	0·4	1,143	2·7
12 Planning	163	0·9	2	0·0					165	0·4
13 Chief Executive	15	0·1	1	0·0					16	0·0
14 Finance	548	3·0	9	0·2					557	1·3
15 Secretarial	337	1·9	22	0·4	92	0·9	125	1·4	576	1·4
16 Legal	120	0·7	1	0·0					121	0·3
17 Engineering	631	3·5	1	0·0	136	1·4	4	0·0	772	1·8
18 Architecture	500	2·8	2	0·0					502	1·2
19 Estates	101	0·6	2	0·0	10	0·1	4	0·0	117	0·3
20 Personnel	32	0·2	5	0·1					37	0·1
21 Management Service	55	0·3	2	0·0					57	0·1
22 Computing	128	0·7	8	0·2					136	0·3
23 Consumer Protection	81	0·4			13	0·1	4	0·0	98	0·2
24 Other Administration	51	0·3	3	0·1					54	0·1
27 Technical Services
28 Central Service (13-27)	2,599	14·3	56	1·1	251	2·6	137	1·5	3,043	7·2
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	181	1·0	6	0·1	183	1·9	219	2·4	589	1·4
32 Total (7-12, 28-31)	5,288	29·1	233	4·5	3,116	31·9	584	6·5	9,221	21·9
33 General Service (1-32)	18,146	100·0	5,214	100·0	9,762	100·0	9,051	100·0	42,173	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	164	0·0	8	0·0					172	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Oldham

Population—220,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	2,523	52·1	433	47·1					2,956	28·0
2 Other	510	10·5	289	31·4	370	18·2	1,650	60·1	2,819	26·7
3 Construction	114	2·4			518	25·5			632	6·0
4 Transport
5 Social Services	508	10·5	70	7·6	337	16·6	772	28·1	1,687	16·0
6 Total (1-5)	3,655	75·5	792	86·1	1,225	60·8	2,422	88·2	8,094	76·8
7 Libraries	68	1·4	69	7·5	7	0·3	27	1·0	171	1·6
8 Recreation	110	2·3	7	0·8	327	16·1	123	4·5	567	5·4
9 Environmental Health	63	1·3	3	0·3	17	0·8	2	0·1	85	0·8
10 Refuse	11	0·2			167	8·2	2	0·1	180	1·7
11 Housing	148	3·1	8	0·9	101	5·0	44	1·6	301	2·9
12 Planning	100	2·1	4	0·4					104	1·0
13 Chief Executive	34	0·7	1	0·1					35	0·3
14 Finance	231	4·8	15	1·6	4	0·2			250	2·4
15 Secretarial	68	1·4	9	1·0	9	0·4	20	0·7	106	1·0
16 Legal	30	0·6							30	0·3

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
17 Engineering	137	2·8	4	0·4	131	6·4	5	0·2	277	2·6
18 Architecture	31	0·6							31	0·3
19 Estates	31	0·6							31	0·3
20 Personnel	20	0·4	1	0·1					21	0·2
21 Management Service	22	0·5							22	0·2
22 Computing	33	0·7							33	0·3
23 Consumer Protection	15	0·3							15	0·1
24 Other Administration	9	0·2	3	0·3					12	0·1
27 Technical Services
28 Central Service (13-27)	661	13·6	33	3·6	144	7·1	25	0·9	863	8·2
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	27	0·6	4	0·4	46	2·3	100	3·6	177	1·7
32 Total (7-12+28-31)	1,188	24·5	128	13·9	809	39·8	323	11·8	2,448	23·2
33 General Service (1-32)	4,843	100·0	920	100·0	2,034	100·0	2,745	100·0	10,542	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	40	0·0	2	0·0	2	0·0	16	0·0	60	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Rochdale

Population—206,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	2,437	50·3	373	38·3					2,810	26·7
2 Other	512	10·6	368	37·8	404	26·1	1,671	52·6	2,955	28·0
3 Construction	74	1·5			215	13·9			289	2·7
4 Transport
5 Social Services	546	11·3	67	6·9	224	14·5	1,172	36·9	2,009	19·1
6 Total (1-5)	3,569	73·7	808	83·0	843	54·5	2,843	89·5	8,063	76·5
7 Libraries	78	1·6	66	6·8	10	0·6	22	0·7	176	1·7
8 Recreation	108	2·2	12	1·2	286	18·5	56	1·8	462	4·4
9 Environmental Health	59	1·2	2	0·2	40	2·6	62	2·0	163	1·5
10 Refuse	22	0·5	1	0·1	146	9·4			169	1·6
11 Housing	245	5·1	32	3·3			9	0·3	286	2·7
12 Planning	80	1·7	6	0·6					86	0·8
13 Chief Executive	4	0·1							4	0·0
14 Finance	156	3·2	12	1·2					168	1·6
15 Secretarial	86	1·8	16	1·6	24	1·6	83	2·6	211	2·0
16 Legal	29	0·6							29	0·3
17 Engineering	133	2·7	10	1·0	162	10·5	2	0·1	307	2·9
18 Architecture	105	2·2			1	0·1			106	1·0
19 Estates	28	0·6	3	0·3			3	0·1	34	0·3
20 Personnel	29	0·6							29	0·3
21 Management Service	22	0·5	3	0·3					25	0·2
22 Computing	47	1·0	1	0·1					48	0·5
23 Consumer Protection	9	0·2							9	0·1
24 Other Administration	16	0·3	1	0·1					17	0·2
27 Technical Services
28 Central Service (13-27)	666	13·8	46	4·7	187	12·1	88	2·8	987	9·4
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	14	0·3	1	0·1	35	2·3	97	3·1	147	1·4
32 Total (7-12, 28-31)	1,272	26·3	166	17·0	704	45·5	334	10·5	2,476	23·5
33 General Service (1-32)	4,841	100·0	974	100·0	1,547	100·0	3,177	100.0	10,539	100.0
34 Agency Staff

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
35 Magistrates Courts	40	0·0	6	0·0			1	0·0	47	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Salford

Population—243,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	2,846	47·2	746	61·2					3,592	27·5
2 Other	751	12·5	223	18·3	354	18·3	2,345	60·4	3,673	28·1
3 Construction	218	3·6			433	22·4			651	5·0
4 Transport
5 Social Services	656	10·9	75	6·2	386	20·0	1,176	30·3	2,293	17·6
6 Total (1-5)	4,471	74·2	1,044	85·6	1,173	60·7	3,521	90·7	10,209	78·2
7 Libraries	112	1·9	74	6·1	10	0·5	29	0·7	225	1·7
8 Recreation	150	2·5	72	5·9	360	18·6	99	2·6	681	5·2
9 Environmental Health	92	1·5	3	0·2	1	0·1			96	0·7
10 Refuse	38	0·6			290	15·0			328	2·5
11 Housing	331	5·5	8	0·7	59	3·1	26	0·7	424	3·2
12 Planning	116	1·9	2	0·2					118	0·9
13 Chief Executive	12	0·2							12	0·1
14 Finance	177	2·9	1	0·1					178	1·4
15 Secretarial	90	1·5	3	0·2	3	0·2	35	0·9	131	1·0
16 Legal	36	0·6							36	0·3
17 Engineering	112	1·9	1	0·1	17	0·9	58	1·5	188	1·4
18 Architecture	56	0·9							56	0·4
19 Estates	43	0·7							45	0·3
20 Personnel	63	1·0	6	0·5					69	0·5
21 Management Service	17	0·3							17	0·1
22 Computing	74	1·2	1	0·1					75	0·6
23 Consumer Protection	14	0·2	2	0·2	1	0·1	3	0·1	20	0·2
24 Other Administration	8	0·1	2	0·2					10	0·1
27 Technical Services
28 Central Service (13-27)	704	11·7	16	1·3	21	1·1	96	2·5	837	6·4
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	14	0·2			20	1·0	110	2·8	144	1·1
32 Total (7-12, 28-31)	1,557	25·8	175	14·4	761	39·3	360	9·3	2,853	21·8
33 General Service (1-32)	6,028	100·0	1,219	100·0	1,934	100·0	3,881	100·0	13,062	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	43	0·0	14	0·0					57	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Stockport

Population—289,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	2,245	48·1	874	53·0					3,119	27·8
2 Other	613	13·1	358	21·7	314	18·0	1,835	58·0	3,120	27·8
3 Construction	104	2·2			317	18·2			421	3·7
4 Transport
5 Social Services	503	10·8	184	11·2	302	17·3	818	25·9	1,807	16·1
6 Total (1-5)	3,465	74·2	1,416	85·9	933	53·4	2,653	83·9	8,467	75·4
7 Libraries	113	2·4	81	4·9	18	1·0	61	1·9	273	2·4

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
8 Recreation	156	3·3	64	3·9	342	19·6	246	7·8	808	7·2
9 Environmental Health	65	1·4	3	0·2	36	2·1	4	0·1	108	1·0
10 Refuse	25	0·5	3	0·2	126	7·2			154	1·4
11 Housing	125	2·7	5	0·3	89	5·1	28	0·9	247	2·2
12 Planning	87	1·9	5	0·3					92	0·8
13 Chief Executive	27	0·6	2	0·1					29	0·3
14 Finance	133	2·8	9	0·5					142	1·3
15 Secretarial	172	3·7	48	2·9	22	1·3	34	1·1	276	2·5
16 Legal	31	0·7	2	0·1					33	0·3
17 Engineering	113	2·4			141	8·1			254	2·3
18 Architecture	60	1·3							60	0·5
19 Estates	21	0·4							21	0·2
20 Personnel	12	0·3	2	0·1					14	0·1
21 Management Service	14	0·3							14	0·1
22 Computing	27	0·6	9	0·5					36	0·3
23 Consumer Protection	11	0·2							11	0·1
24 Other Administration	9	0·2			12	0·7	6	0·2	27	0·2
27 Technical Services
28 Central Service (13-27)	630	13·5	72	4·4	175	10·0	40	1·3	917	8·2
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	3	0·1			27	1·5	131	4·1	161	1·4
32 Total (7-12, 28-31)	1,204	25·8	233	14·1	813	46·6	510	16·1	2,760	24·6
33 General Service (1-32)	4,669	100·0	1,649	100·0	1,746	100·0	3,163	100·0	11,227	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	50	0·0	7	0·0	2	0·0	1	0·0	60	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Tameside

Population—215,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	2,352	40·1	547	54·4					2,899	26·6
2 Other	495	10·3	193	19·2	344	17·2	1,815	58·7	2,847	26·2
3 Construction	128	2·7			673	33·7	3	0·1	804	7·4
4 Transport
5 Social Services	437	9·1	119	11·8	162	8·1	882	28·5	1,600	14·7
6 Total (1-5)	3,412	71·2	859	85·5	1,179	59·0	2,700	87·4	8,150	74·9
7 Libraries	92	1·9	48	4·8	3	0·2	25	0·8	168	1·5
8 Recreation	142	3·0	29	2·9	248	12·4	138	4·5	557	5·1
9 Environmental Health	61	1·3	1	0·1	73	3·7	4	0·1	139	1·3
10 Refuse					163	8·2			163	1·5
11 Housing	160	3·3	8	0·8	50	2·5	60	1·9	278	2·6
12 Planning	78	1·6							78	0·7
13 Chief Executive	2	0·0							2	0·0
14 Finance	168	3·5	39	3·9					207	1·9
15 Secretarial	79	1·6	9	0·9	17	0·9	61	2·0	166	1·5
16 Legal	34	0·7	2	0·2					36	0·3
17 Engineering	155	3·2	3	0·3	212	10·6	1	0·0	371	3·4
18 Architecture	55	1·1							55	0·5
19 Estates	42	0·9	2	0·2					44	0·4
20 Personnel	215	4·5			38	1·9	2	0·1	255	2·3
21 Management Service	25	0·5							25	0·2
22 Computing	50	1·0	4	0·4					54	0·5
23 Consumer Protection	10	0·2							10	0·1
24 Other Administration	8	0·2							8	0·1
27 Technical Services
28 Central Service (13-27)	843	17·6	59	5·9	267	13·4	64	2·1	1,233	11·3
29 Fire Service—Regular

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
30 Others
31 Other Services	2	0·0	1	0·1	14	0·7	99	3·2	116	1·1
32 Total (7-12+28-31)	1,378	28·8	146	14·5	818	41·0	390	12·6	2,732	25·1
33 General Service (1-32)	4,790	100·0	1,005	100·0	1,997	100·0	3,090	100·0	10,882	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	41	0·0	10	0·0					51	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Trafford

Population—218,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	1,857	50·0	146	22·7					2,003	23·9
2 Other	369	9·9	304	47·3	172	16·0	1,466	49·7	2,311	27·6
3 Construction					177	16·5			177	2·1
4 Transport
5 Social Services	377	10·2	86	13·4	67	6·2	1,106	37·5	1,636	19·5
6 Total (1-5)	2,603	70·1	536	83·4	416	38·7	2,572	87·3	6,127	73·2
7 Libraries	75	2·0	43	6·7	3	0·3	26	0·9	147	1·8
8 Recreation	111	3·0	29	4·5	265	24·7	139	4·7	544	6·5
9 Environmental Health	83	2·2	4	0·6	13	1·2	4	0·1	104	1·2
10 Refuse	9	0·2			154	14·3			161	1·9
11 Housing	113	3·0			43	4·0	44	1·5	200	2·4
12 Planning	83	2·2	2	0·3					85	1·0
13 Chief Executive	24	0·6	1	0·2					25	0·3
14 Finance	162	4·4	3	0·5					165	2·0
15 Secretarial	56	1·5	18	2·8	9	0·8	68	2·3	151	1·8
16 Legal	29	0·8							29	0·3
17 Engineering	118	3·2			134	12·5			252	3·0
18 Architecture	98	2·6							98	1·2
19 Estates	15	0·4							15	0·2
20 Personnel	21	0·6	4	0·6					25	0·3
21 Management Service	29	0·8							29	0·3
22 Computing	23	0·6	1	0·2					24	0·3
23 Consumer Protection	10	0·3							10	0·1
24 Other Administration	5	0·1	1	0·2					6	0·1
27 Technical Services	43	1·2			6	0·6	2	0·1	51	0·6
28 Central Service (13-27)	633	17·1	28	4·4	149	13·9	70	2·4	880	10·5
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	3	0·1	1	0·2	31	2·9	92	3·1	127	1·5
32 Total (7-12+28-31)	1,108	29·9	107	16·6	658	61·3	375	12·7	2,248	26·8
33 General Service (1-32)	3,711	100·0	643	100·0	1,074	100·0	2,947	100·0	8,375	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	29	0·0	2	0·0	1	0·0	9	0·0	41	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Joint Manpower Watch—Quarter 51
Numbers of staff by function: Wigan

Population—307,000 12th September 1987

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
1 Education—Teaching	3,701	56·8	190	17·9					3,891	27·1
2 Other	628	9·6	700	65·8	442	18·6	2,480	56·5	4,250	29·6

Service	Non manual				Manual				Total
	Full time		Part time		Full time		Part time
	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.	Number	Per cent.
3 Construction	130	2·0			729	30·6	6	0·1	865	6·0
4 Transport
5 Social Services	556	8·5	40	3·8	299	12·6	1,469	33·5	2,364	16·5
6 Total (1-5)	5,015	76·9	930	87·4	1,470	61·8	3,955	90·1	11,370	79·2
7 Libraries	133	2·0	52	4·9	7	0·3	27	0·6	219	1·5
8 Recreation	135	2·1	23	2·2	366	15·4	36	0·8	560	3·9
9 Environmental Health	70	1·1	1	0·1					71	0·5
10 Refuse	24	0·4			372	15·6	6	0·1	402	2·8
11 Housing	231	3·5	2	0·2	49	2·1	83	1·9	365	2·5
12 Planning	87	1·3							87	0·6
13 Chief Executive	3	0·0							3	0·0
14 Finance	208	3·2	27	2·5					235	1·6
15 Secretarial	134	2·1	11	1·0			76	1·7	221	1·5
16 Legal	31	0·5							31	0·2
17 Engineering	162	2·5	2	0·2	64	2·7			228	1·6
18 Architecture	52	0·8	1	0·1					53	0·4
19 Estates	61	0·9	4	0·4					65	0·5
20 Personnel	44	0·7	1	0·1					45	0·3
21 Management Service	4	0·1							4	0·0
22 Computing	33	0·5	1	0·1					34	0·2
23 Consumer Protection	12	0·2							12	0·1
24 Other Administration	18	0·3	6	0·6					24	0·2
27 Technical Services	26	0·4	1	0·1					27	0·2
28 Central Service (13-27)	788	12·1	54	5·1	64	2·7	76	1·7	982	6·8
29 Fire Service—Regular
30 Others
31 Other Services	38	0·6	2	0·2	51	2·1	208	4·7	299	2·1
32 Total (7-12, 28-31)	1,506	23·1	134	12·6	909	38·2	436	9·9	2,985	20·8
33 General Service (1-32)	6,521	100·0	1,064	100·0	2,379	100·0	4,391	100·0	14,355	100·0
34 Agency Staff
35 Magistrates Courts	46	0·0	2	0·0			12	0·0	60	0·0
36 Probation—Officers
37 Others

Rights of Way

Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will introduce legislation to make it compulsory upon owners of passages or places over which there are public rights of way to erect a notice stating the name and address of the owner.

Mr. Moynihan: No. It would appear both unnecessary and inappropriate to impose such a burden on landowners. In cases where applicants to modify the definitive map and statement of public rights of way have been unable to identify owners and occupiers, they may apply to the certifying authority for a dispensation.

Planning Appeals (Worthing)

Mr. Higgins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many appeals against refusal of planning permission by the Worthing borough council have been made to him in each of the last five years; and on how many occasions he has reversed the council's decision.

Mr. Waldegrave: The table shows the number of planning appeals received against decisions of the Worthing borough council between 1 January 1984, the earliest date from which this information is available, and 30 September 1987, the number decided in each period and the number allowed.

Year	Appeals Received	Appeals Decided	Appeals Allowed
1984	26	23	6
1985	40	26	10
1986	38	39	15
January to September 1987	32	25	10

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Ridley: Guidance was issued to all managers last July asking them to ensure that potentially offensive material is not displayed in the work place.

Swimming Instructors

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many local authorities provide training for swimming instructors.

Mr. Moynihan: This information is not held centrally. I am advised, however, that during the year ending 30 September 1987, the Amateur Swimming Association issued approximately 11,300 certificates of competence for the teaching and coaching of swimming.

Green Belt (Hertfordshire)

Mr. Robert B. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was the area of designated green belt land in the Hertfordshire, West constituency (a) in 1979 and (b) at the present time.

Mr. Waldegrave: Approximately 4,770 hectares of land in the Hertfordshire, West constituency were designated green belt when the Hertfordshire county structure plan was approved in 1979. This position has not changed since.

Crown Suppliers

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will put in the Library a full copy of the Coopers and Lybrand report and the Dewi Jones report on the Crown Suppliers.

Mr. Chope: Summaries fo the Dewi Jones and Coopers and Lybrand reports have been prepared and copies have been placed in the Library. We do not propose to publish them in full because they contain commercially confidential information.

Illuminated Signs

Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received about his proposals to withdraw the need to seek planning approval to put up illuminated signs; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Waldegrave: A total of 28 of the 46 organisations consulted last October have so far responded to the proposals, which were confined to certain specified types of illuminated signs. Some representations have also been received from individuals, amenity groups, and local authorities. My right hon. Friend will now be considering, in consultation with the Secretary of State for Wales, whether, and to what extent, to implement the proposals. If my hon. Friend wishes to submit any representations, he is welcome to do so.

Thamesmead

Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how he exercised nomination rights to Thamesmead following the abolition of the Greater London council and prior to the transfer of Thamesmead from the London residuary body to Thamesmead Town Ltd.

Mrs. Roe: The joint committee of the London area mobility scheme acted as agents for my right hon. Friend.

Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many properties are being registered by Thamesmead Town Ltd. in the London borough of Greenwich.

Mrs. Roe: Thamesmead Town has applied to the Greenwich rent officers for rent registrations of 2,401 tenancies.

Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what additional resources are being made available to the rent officer service in Greenwich and Bexley, now that Thamesmead Town Ltd. has applied to the rent officer for registration of all the tenancies for which they are responsible.

Mrs. Roe: No increase in the number of rent officers or support staff were required for the Greenwich rent officer service due to agreed spare capacity, but additional machines and other equipment have been provided at a cost of approximately £4,000. For the Bexley rent officer service, approval has been given to two additional rent officer posts and to two additional support staff posts, one on a temporary basis. Additional machines have been provided for the Bexley service at a cost of approximately £1,700.

Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many tenants of Thamesmead Town Ltd. have received his Department's leaflet giving advice to tenants about their rights in the rent registration procedure.

Mrs. Roe: The Bexley rent officer service have issued copies of the Department's booklet "Regulated Tenancies" to all tenants concerned in the 2,983 applications submitted to them by Thamesmead Town. The Greenwich rent officer service have issued 1,800 tenants with copies of the booklet in respect of the total of 2,401 applications which Thamesmead Town submitted to them. Now that further stocks of the booklet are available the Greenwich rent officer service are issuing copies to the remaining 601 tenants.

Homelessness

Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what progress his Department has made in finalising the text of a leaflet on homelessness, the initial draft of which was circulated for consultation to interested voluntary agencies on 8 April 1987; and when his Department plans to publish and distribute this leaflet.

Mrs. Roe: We expect to publish a leaflet later this year. It will need to take account of further evidence now becoming available on local authorities' operation of the homelessness legislation.

Housing Waiting Lists

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many households were housed by each London borough from its waiting lists through allocation procedures (a) during 1983-84; (b) during 1984-85; (c) during 1985-86, and (d) during 1986-87.

Mrs. Roe: Local authorities' annual housing investment programme returns include the numbers of dwellings let on secure tenancies, in the years ending 31 March, to households under normal waiting list allocation procedures. Figures for individual authorities appear in column D9C of the "HIP1 all items print" for 1984 and 1985 and in column E9C for 1986 and 1987; copies of all these documents are in the Library.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish a table showing those housing authorities where the council housing waiting list is of six months duration or less; if he will publish separately a list of those housing authorities who have had 100 or more council dwellings vacant for periods of three months or more; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Roe: The information requested is not available centrally. However, English local authorities' housing investment programme returns include the number of their dwellings that have been vacant for more than six months and those authorities reporting 100 or more such dwellings vacant at April 1987 are listed in the table. Most of these dwellings were not available for letting, as they were undergoing or awaiting works, or awaiting sale or demolition.

Authorities with 100 or more dwellings vacant for more than 6 months at April 1987

	Number vacant over 6 months	Percentage of stock
Newham	2,626	8·1
Hackney	2,214	4·8
Manchester	2,034	2·1
Tower Hamlets	1,965	4·6
Sheffield	1,857	2·1
Sandwell	1,297	2·4
Salford	1,177	2·9
Southwark	1,154	1·9
North Tyneside	990	3·5
Sunderland	962	1·9
Islington	954	2·3
Lambeth	910	1·9
Bradford	777	2·1
Leeds	647	0·7
Wolverhampton	639	1·6
Nottingham	620	1·4
Camden	594	1·7
Newcastle upon Tyne	580	1·3
Lewisham	568	1·4
Wandsworth	544	1·4
Calderdale	471	3·1
Coventry	411	1·7
Brent	404	2·0
Kingston upon Hull	398	0·9
Hammersmith and Fulham	389	2·1
Oldham	388	1·6
Portsmouth	382	1·7
Haringey	367	1·5
Leicester	355	1·1
Greenwich	346	1·0
Birmingham	334	0·3
Westminster	327	1·5
Walsall	310	0·8
Derby	306	1·5
Burnley	305	4·3
Gateshead	304	0·9
Langbaurgh	298	1·8
Knowsley	283	1·1
Doncaster	273	0·8
Southampton	260	1·2
Preston	224	2·1
Test Valley	216	3·0
Wirral	209	0·9
Kirklees	202	0·6
Barnsley	192	0·6
Rochdale	186	0·9
Waltham Forest	175	0·8
Middlesbrough	155	0·9
North Bedfordshire	137	1·7
Kensington and Chelsea	135	1·5
Easington	133	0·7
Dudley	133	0·4
Merton	133	1·1
Ealing	132	0·7
Redbridge	129	1·2
Bristol	122	0·3
Carlisle	119	1·0
Rochester upon Medway	111	1·1
Hartlepool	110	1·0
Trafford	104	0·8
Redditch	103	1·0
Sedgefield	102	0·7
Norwich	102	0·4
Stockton-on-Tees	101	0·5

Note:

Liverpool did not provide this information, but reported 4,164 dwellings (6·5 per cent. of stock) vacant for more than a year.

Toxic Waste

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the firms licensed to import toxic chemical waste materials into the United Kingdom.

Mr. Moynihan: Imports of special waste are subject to the same controls as indigenous waste and must be disposed of at a licensed facility. No import licence is necessary.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what were the quantities of toxic chemical waste imported to Britain in each of the past 10 years; and what were their countries of origin?

Mr. Moynihan: No records are held centrally of imports of waste imported into the United Kingdom. The amounts of special waste imported each year between 1983 and 1986 are as follows:

Year	Amount
1983	14,824
1984	5,000
1985	24,548
1986	53,000

Full details of countries or origin are not available, but major sources are Netherlands, Irish Republic and Belgium.

Nature Reserves

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish in the Official Report a list of each national nature reserve in (a) Wales, (b) England and (c) Scotland, indicating for each reserve its total area and the proportion (i) owned by private landowners, (ii) owned by the Nature Conservancy Council and (iii) owned by other public bodies.

Mr. Moynihan [pursuant to his reply, 19 January 1988, c. 602]: The information is as follows:

Ownership of National Nature Reserves (NNRs), January 1988

Name of NNR	Declared Areas (HA)	Per cent owned by: Private Landowners	Nature Conservancy Council	Other Public Bodies
ENGLAND
Ainsdale Sand Dunes	492	—	100	—
Arne	9	—	100	—
Asby Scar	166	—	100	—
Ashford Hill	20	—	100	—
Aston Rowant	111	64	36	—
Avon Gorge	63	100	—	—
Axmouth-Lyme Regis	—	—	—	—
Undercliffs	321	83	17	—
Barnack Hills and Holes	23	100	—	—
Barton Hills	44	100	—	—
Beacon Hill	40	—	100	—
Blackwater Estuary	1,031	100	—	—
Blean Woods	90	—	100	—
Bielham Bog	2	100	—	—
Bovey Valley Woodlands	73	—	96	4
Braunton Burrows	604	100	—	—
Bredon Hill	36	—	100	—
Brettenham Heath	234	100	—	—
Bridgwater Bay	2,564	4	2	94
Bure Marshes	451	100	—	—
Castle Eden Dene	221	—	100	—
Castle Hill, Lewes	47	—	—	100
Castor Hanglands	90	50	—	50
Cavenham Heath	204	15	85	—
Chaddesley Woods	102	—	100	—
Chartley Moss	42	100	—	—
Chippenham Fen	104	100	—	—
Clawthorpe Fell	14	100	—	—
Colne Estuary	576	46	—	54
Colt Park Wood	8	—	100	—
Coom Rigg Moss	36	—	—	100
Cothill	2	100	—	—
Cotswold Commons and Beechwoods	295	100	—	—
Dendles Wood	30	—	100	—
Dengie	2,011	—	—	100
Derbyshire Dales	320	35	50	15
Downton Gorge	48	100	—	—
Ebbor Gorge	41	100	—	—
Forge Valley Woods	63	—	—	100
Fyfield Down	230	100	—	—
Gait Barrows	69	—	100	—
Gibraltar Point	414	—	—	100
Glasson Moss	58	—	100	—
Grain Heads Moss	18	—	—	100
Hales Wood	8	—	—	100
Hamford Water	688	100	—	—
Ham Street Woods	97	—	100	—
Hartland Moor	243	100	—	—
Hickling Broad	487	100	—	—
Highbury Wood	47	—	100	—
High Halstow	52	100	—	—
Holkham	3,925	100	—	—
Holme Fen	259	—	100	—
Holt Heath	488	100	—	—
Holton Heath	117	100	—	—
Kingley Vale	146	32	68	—
Knocking Hoe	9	100	—	—
Lady Park Wood	45	—	—	100
Leigh	257	—	—	100
Lewes Down	49	100	—	—
Lindisfarne	3,278	100	—	—
Ling Gill	5	—	100	—
The Lizard	712	21	79	—
Lullington Heath	63	—	—	100
Martin Down	301	11	46	43
Moccas Park	139	100	—	—
Monks Wood	157	—	100	—
Moor House	3,894	—	100	—
Morden Bog	149	42	—	58
Mottey Meadows	32	9	91	—
Muston Meadows	9	100	—	—

Name of NNR	Declared Areas (HA)	Per cent owned by: Private Landowners	Nature Conservancy Council	Other Public Bodies
Newham Bog	13	100	—	—
North Fen	2	100	—	—
North Meadow, Cricklade	40	—	100	—
North Solent	763	100	—	—
Old Winchester Hill	61	—	100	—
Orfordness-Havergate	225	48	52	—
Park Wood	15	—	100	—
Parsonage Down	276	—	100	—
Pevensey Levels	52	—	100	—
Pewsey Downs	166	46	54	—
Prescombe Down	47	100	—	—
Ribble Marshes	2,302	—	100	—
Rodney Stoke	35	—	100	—
Rostherne Mere	152	48	52	—
Roudsea Woods and Mosses	276	100	—	—
Rusland Moss	24	80	20	—
Saltfleetby-Theddlethorpe Dunes	440	73	27	—
Scar Close	93	100	—	—
Scolt Head Island	737	100	—	—
Shapwick Heath	304	100	—	—
Stiperstones	436	—	100	—
Stoborough Heath	110	—	100	—
Stodmarsh	163	—	52	48
Studland Heath	631	100	—	—
Swanscombe Skull Site	2	—	100	—
Swanton Novers Woods	60	100	—	—
The Flits	21	100	—	—
The Swale	216	24	76	—
The Wash	97	100	—	—
Thetford Heath	100	100	—	—
Thursley	325	—	100	—
Tring Reservoirs	20	100	—	—
Upper Teesdale	3,497	99	—	1
Upwood Meadows	6	100	—	—
Walberswick	514	92	8	—
Weeting Heath	137	100	—	—
Westleton Heath	47	—	100	—
Winterton Dunes	105	100	—	—
Woodwalton Fen	208	100	—	—
Wren's Nest	30	—	—	100
Wynbunbury Moss	15	—	100	—
Wychwood	262	100	—	—
Wye	132	—	100	—
Wylye Down	34	—	100	—
Wyre Forest	357	52	16	32
Yarner Wood	150	—	100	—
NNRs Declared since April 1987.
Barrington Hill	18	—	100	—
Banacre	231	100	—	—
Chippenham Fen	7	100	—	—
Gordano Valley	66	100	—	—
Hog Cliff	88	—	100	—
Ludham Marshes	73	—	100	—
Swanton Novers	18	100	—	—
Winterton Dunes	4	100	—	—
SCOTLAND
Abernethy Forest	1,921	100	—	—
Achanarras Quarry	44	—	100	—
Allt Nan Carnan	7	100	—	—
Beinn Eighe	4,758	11	89	—
Ben Lawers	3,974	100	—	—
Ben Lui	798	47	53	—
Ben Wyvis	5,673	59	41	—
Blar Nam Faoileag	2,126	100	—	—
Blawhorn Moss	69	—	100	—
Braehead Moss	87	—	100	—
Caenlocham	3,639	92	—	8
Caerlaverock	5,501	100	—	—
Cairngorms	25,949	92	8	—
Cairnamore of Fleet	1,922	32	68	—
Claish Moss	563	—	100	—
Clyde Valley Woodlands	51	47	53	—

Name of NNR	Declared Areas (HA)	Per cent owned by: Private Landowners	Nature Conservancy Council	Other Public Bodies
Coille Thocabhaig	81	100	—	—
Corrieschalloch	5	40	20	40
Cragbank Wood	9	—	100	—
Craigellachie	260	100	—	—
Greag Meagaidh	3,948	—	100	—
Dinnet Oakwood	13	100	—	—
Dunnet Links	433	76	24	—
Flanders Moss	210	100	—	—
Forvie	973	100	—	—
Glasdrum	169	—	100	—
Glen Diomham	10	100	—	—
Glen Nant	59	100	—	—
Glen Roy	1,168	—	100	—
Glen Tanar	4,185	96	4	—
Gualinn	2,522	100	—	—
Harmaness	964	100	—	—
Inchnadamph	1,295	100	—	—
Invernaver	552	100	—	—
Inverpolly	10,857	99·9	0·1	—
Isle of May	57	100	—	—
Keen of Hamar	30	100	—	—
Kirkconnell flow	142	100	—	—
Loch a'Mhuilinn	67	100	—	—
Loch Druidibeg	1,677	38	62	—
Loch Leven	1,597	100	—	—
Loch Lomond	428	83	17	—
Loch Maree Islands	200	80	—	20
Loch Sunart Woodlands	163	—	43	57
Mealdarrock	205	—	100	—
Milton Wood	24	100	—	—
Moine Mhor	493	—	100	—
Monach Isles	577	100	—	—
Morrane Birkwood	225	100	—	—
Morton Lochs	24	—	100	—
Mound Alderwoods	267	100	—	—
Muir of Dinnet	1,415	100	—	—
Nigg and Udale Bays	640	100	—	—
North Rona and Sula Sgeir	130	100	—	—
Noss	313	100	—	—
Rannoch Moor	1,499	—	100	—
Rassal Ashwood	85	100	—	—
Rhum	10,684	—	100	—
St. Abbs Head	77	100	—	—
St. Cyrus	92	100	—	—
St. Kilda	853	100	—	—
Silver Flowe	191	—	—	100
Strathfarrar	2,189	100	—	—
Strathy Bog	281	100	—	—
Taynish	370	2	98	—
Tentsmuir	505	76	24	—
Tynron Juniper Wood	5	100	—	—
Whitlaw Mosses	19	100	—	—
WALES
Allt Rhyd y Groes	70	38	62	—
Cadair Idris	403	9	91	—
Caunant Llennyran	9	—	100	—
Coed Camlyn	64	—	100	—
Coed Cymerau	26	—	—	100
Coed Dolgarrog	69	—	—	100
Coed Ganllwyd	27	100	—	—
Coed Corawen	13	38	62	—
Coed Rheidol	—	—	100	—
Coed y Rhygen	28	—	76	24
Coed Tremadoc	20	84	16	—
Coedydd Aber	169	17	81	52
Coedydd Maentwrog	68	100	—	—
Cors Bodeilio	6	—	100	—
Cors Caron	792	5	95	—
Cors Erddreiniog	67	47	53	—
Cors Geirch	16	—	100	—
Cors y Llyn	25	67	33	—
Craig Cerrig Gleisiad	282	18	82	—
Craig y Cilau	64	100	—	—

Name of NNR	Declared Areas (HA)	Per cent owned by: Private Landowners	Nature Conservancy Council	Other Public Bodies
Crymlyn Bog	63	11	—	89
Cwm Clydach	24	—	100	—
Cwm glas Crafnant	15	100	—	—
Cwm Idwal	398	100	—	—
Dyfi	2,098	74	26	—
Gower Coast	47	100	—	—
Haffod Garregog	87	100	—	—
Morfa Dyffryn	202	100	—	—
Morfa Harlech	884	100	—	—
Nant Irfon	142	—	100	—
Newborough Warren/Ynys	—	—	—	—
Llanddwyn	1,297	23	8	69
Ogof Ffynnon Ddu	413	—	100	—
Oxwich	288	12	88	—
Penhow Woodlands	24	—	—	100
Rhinog	598	—	100	—
Rhos Goch	45	—	100	—
Rhos Llawr Cwrt	35	—	100	—
Skomer	308	5	95	—
Stackpole	199	100	—	—
Stanner Rocks	5	—	—	100
Ty Canol	69	—	—	100
Whiteford	782	100	—	—
Ynys Enlli—Bardsey	180	100	—	—
Y Wyddfa—Snowdon	1,678	100	—	—
Total	163,765	—	—	—

Local Authority Services

Mr. Andrew F. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if, pursuant to his answer of 21 January, Official Report, column 828, on enabling powers on charging for local authority services, he proposes to introduce the necessary enabling power in the form of a separate Bill.

Mr. Chope [holding answer 28 January 1988]: We shall use the most suitable legislative available vehicle. I shall write to the hon. Member on the subject.

Monument (Millbank Gardens)

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans for the restoration and maintenance of the monument in Millbank gardens in commemoration of the emancipation of slaves.

Mr. Moynihan [holding answer 5 February 1988]: Repairs to the stonework inside the Buxton memorial and to the gargoyles will shortly be carried out. Of the eight statues around the top of the memorial only three remain at present. One has been removed for repair and four were stolen. Remodelled and recast replacements will be positioned on the memorial.

Leeds-Bradford Airport

Mrs. Peacock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he expects to announce the findings of the Leeds-Bradford airport public inqurity into extended flying hours; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Trippier: The inspector has completed his report of the inquiry and his findings are now being carefully considered. When this has been concluded, a decision will be issued jointly by the Secretaries of State for the Environment and for Transport.

Whilst every effort will be made to reach the decision with the minimum of delay, I cannot predict at this stage when that will be.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

Overseas Aid (Warship Purchases)

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish in the Official Report, details of any projects which have been agreed or are presently being considered which would use any part of the United Kingdom or European Community aid budgets or ATP provisions for the purchase of frigates or any other warships by an overseas Government.

Mr. Chris Patten: There is none. Neither the overseas aid budget nor the European Community aid programmes are used for military or para-military purposes.

Research

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list all the research agreements and contracts which his Department has with the university of York; and into what subjects the research is being carried out.

Mr. Chris Patten: We have no such research agreements or contracts.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list all the research agreements and contracts which his Department has with the university of Loughborough; and into what subjects the research is being carried out.

Mr. Chris Patten: The Overseas Development Administration has the following current research projects contracted to Loughborough university:

Development of Simple Pump Technology for Irrigation—Phase II (Costing £116,708)
Reduced Cost Sewerage System—Phase I (£12,410)
Use of Floating Macrophytes to Remove Plant Nutrients from Treated Refluents (£36,776)
Simple Pump Technology for Irrigation—Phase I (£12,678)
Design and Operation of Septic Tank Systems (£27,067)

Boithuthong Community Centre, Bophuthatswana

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what has been the total cost to the small projects scheme of contributions made to the Boithuthong community centre, Garankuwa, Bophuthatswana.

Mr. Chris Patten: An allocation of £2,000 has been approved towards the cost of a building and equipment for this centre, which is a non-governmental institution. No funds have so far been spent.

CHANCELLOR OF THE DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Empty Houses

29. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many empty houses there are on the Duchy of Lancaster estates.

Mr. Butcher: There are currently six houses or cottages vacant on the Duchy of Lancaster's estates.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Butcher: This Department is to issue shortly a further notice to its staff on the subject of sexual harassment at work, which will include a reminder to managers that they must take prompt action against unacceptable behaviour such as the display of sexually offensive photographs or posters.

Balance of Trade

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will give for standard industrial classification orders 3302 and 3341 (a) annual output, (b) United Kingdom market size and (c) balance of trade for each year since 1983 and for as much of 1987 as is possible; and if he will give the figures on a similar basis for standard industrial classifications 3302 and 3341, together with standard industrial classifications 3301, 3443, 3453 and 3454.

Mr. Alan Clark: The information that is available is shown in the tables:

Activity Headings 3302+3441[5]

£ million

	Annual Output[1]	UK Market Size[2]	Trade Balance[3]
1983	2,953	3,868	−915
1984	3,994	5,007	−1,013
1985	5,127	5,808	−681
1986	4,728	5,698	−970
1987[4]	2,752	3,333	−581

Activity Headings 3301+3302+3441+3443+3453+3454[5]

£ million

	Annual Output[1]	UK Market Size[2]	Trade Balance[3]
1983	6,987	9,002	−2,015
1984	8,731	10,767	−2,036
1985	10,171	11,785	−1,614
1986	10,051	11,921	−1,870
1987[4]	5,565	6,538	−973

[1] Annual Output = Total Sales of Principal Products by UK manufacturers.
[2] UK Market Size = Annual Output — Exports (fob) + Imports (cif).
[3] Trade Balance = Exports (fob)—Imports (cif).
[4] First six months only, not seasonally adjusted.
[5] Activity Heading:
3301—Office machinery.
3302 Electronic data-processing equipment.
3441—Telegraph and telephone equipment.
3443—Radio and electronic capital goods.
3453—Electronic sub-assemblies and active components.
3454—Electronic consumer goods and miscellaneous equipment.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the United Kingdom's deficit in manufactured trade with Japan, Korea, Taiwan, West Germany and the whole of the EEC including Germany, respectively, in the most recent 12-month period for which figures are available.

Mr. Alan Clark: The information is in the table.

United Kingdom crude balance of trade in manufactures[1] 1987

	£ billion
Trade with:
Japan	−4·2
South Korea	−0·6
Taiwan	−0·7
F R Germany	−7·5
European Community	−11·1

[1] Standard international trade classification Sections 5 to 8.

Figures are on the overseas trade statistics basis: imports, but not exports, are valued inclusive of insurance and freight charges.

Britoil

Mr. Millan: To ask the Chancellor to the Duchy of Lancaster what advice he has received from the Director General of Fair Trading on the proposed takeover of Britoil by BP; and if he will refer the bid to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission.

Mr. Maude: My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State announced on 4 February his decision not to refer the proposed acquisition by the British Petroleum plc. of Britoil plc. to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission. This decision was in accordance with the advice of the Director General of Fair Trading.

Decentralisation of Trade

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on his Department's plans for the decentralisation of trade policy.

Mr. Alan Clark: My Department has no plans to decentralise trade policy.

Confidential Letters (Leaks)

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will direct his Permanent Under-Secretary, Sir Brian Hayes, to prepare a report on leaks of confidential letters from his Department; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Butcher: Any such direction would be superfluous. It is already Sir Brian Hayes's practice to institute an inquiry when there appears to have been an unauthorised disclosure of confidential information and it seems possible that investigation might identify its source. The reports of such investigations are submitted to Ministers.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Police National Computer

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much he plans to spend over each of the next three years on interim arrangements in connection with the police computer; when the new permanent system (a) was and (b) is now scheduled to be operative; what has caused the delay in its introduction; why the current system is no longer suitable; if a new tender has been put out for the mainframe and terminals for the interim system; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The capital cost of the interim equipment is about £3·75 million, but this is offset by savings of about £950,000 a year in terms of maintenance, power and other costs. Taking account of the residual value of new hardware, the interim arrangements are likely to cost about £65,000 a year.

The interim equipment was necessary to replace processors which could no longer be economically maintained. It was procured by single tender action from the supplier of the present PNC equipment as no other firm could supply processors which would run the existing PNC software. No new terminals have been procured.

The next generation PNC is expected to be operational in 1990, as originally planned.

Metropolitan Police (Sickness and Injury)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Belfast, South on 22 January, Official Report, column 869, how many of the total days off sick or injured by members of the Metropolitan police were attributable to (a) injury and (b) sickness; and if he will give this information for the last five years, stating average days off per capita.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I understand from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that information in the form requested is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, the numbers of officers injured on duty, who were placed on the sick list, are as follows:

	Numbers
1983	1,911
1984	1,926
1985	2,593
1986	2,234
1987	2,164

Remand Prisoners

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men (b) women were held on remand in magistrates' court cells in England and Wales on the 25 January 1988; and if he will list the magistrates' courts.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I am informed by the Metropolitan police that the police cells at Highbury Corner, Camberwell Green and Marylebone magistrates' courts held 32, 29 and nine prisoners respectively on 25 January 1988. Records do not distinguish between numbers of men and women held.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the longest period of time a person had been held on remand in a magistrates' court cell as of 25 January.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The information required is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who has the responsibility for visiting and checking the conditions in which people being held in magistrates' court cells are kept; and to whom are reports sent as to such conditions.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: It has been decided that lay visitor panels should have this responsibility. Arrangements for such visits in London will be introduced as soon as consultations with the Metropolitan police and the clerks to the courts concerned are satisfactorily completed. It is intended that reports on visits should go to a responsible senior police officer and to the Secretary of the Lay Visitors' Panel. It will be open to the latter to send a copy of a report also to my right hon. Friend as the police authority.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the weekly cost of keeping a person in a magistrates' court cell; and who pays this cost.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The average weekly cost of keeping a prisoner in police or magistrates' court cells, based on the latest accounts submitted by police forces, is £1,008. The cost is borne on the prison department Vote.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with panels of lay visitors as to the position of people being held in remand in magistrates' court cells.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The Department is discussing with the Metropolitan police guidelines for lay visitors who visit remand prisoners held in police cells and magistrates' courts cells. We have also approached the clerks of the five magistrates' courts in London in which remand prisoners are held about access by lay visitors. When consultations are complete, the guidelines will be circulated to lay visitor panels.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the conditions under which people being held in magistrates' court cells are allowed visits; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: There are no general rules applying to visitors to persons held in magistrates' courts cells. I understand from the commissioner that in the Metropolitan police district prisoners detained in cells at magistrates' courts are allowed to receive visits from their legal representatives, probation officers and social workers preparing social inquiry reports. Such visits would be refused only if there was good reason. The police also do what they can to facilitate visits by friends and relatives, but arrangements vary and depend on such factors as the facilities available and other calls on police resources.

Metropolitan Police (Heathrow)

Sir Peter Hordern: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officers of the Metropolitan police were stationed at Heathrow airport in each of the last five years; and what percentage this represented of the total strength of the Metropolitan police in the same period and at the latest available date.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I understand from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that the information requested is as follows:

Date	Officers on policing duties at Heathrow	Strength of the force	Per cent.
31 December 1983	394	26,729	1·47
31 December 1984	407	26,766	1·52
31 December 1985	401	26,705	1·50
31 December 1986	401	26,920	1·49
31 December 1987	411	27,355	1·50

Alcohol Sales (Under-age Persons)

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to how many convictions there have been of (a) public house licensees or managers or (b) managers of off-licences or shops for offences involving the sale of alcohol to under-age persons in (i) Somerset and Avon and (ii) England and Wales, in each of the last five years.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The available information, which may be incomplete, is given in the table. The other information requested is not held centrally.

Persons convicted of offences under section 169(1) of the Licensing Act 1964

Year	England and Wales	Avon and Somerset
1982	187	19
1983	188	22
1984	164	9
1985	170	12
1986	165	7

Police Sub-stations

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has issued any guidelines to chief constables concerning (a) the opening hours of police sub-stations and (b) levels of staffing at police sub-stations.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: No. These are operational matters which chief officers of police must decide.

Members' Representations

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many representations were made by hon. Members to his Department in each year from 1983 to 1987.

Mr. Hurd: The available information relates to the number of cases of ministerial correspondence recorded in my Department as the result of representations made to Home Office Ministers, and is as follows:

	Number
1983	25,642
[1]1984	26,200
1985	31,853
1986	33,015
1987	27,561

[1] The figures for 1984 is an estimate since precise figures are not available for November and December of that year.

Although the great majority of the cases relate to representations made by right hon. and hon. Members, these figures include ministerial correspondence with noble Lords and others.

Television Licences (Students)

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will bring forward legislation to relieve students living in university accommodation from the requirement to have a full television licence if they operate a television in their own room.

Mr. Renton: There are no plans to do so. The full television licence already permits members of the licence holder's family who are living away from home as full-time students at an educational establishment to use portable television sets powered only by internal batteries.

Knives

Mr. Shersby: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons have been convicted of carrying knives in the Metropolitan police area for the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available.

Mr. John Patten: The readily available information relates to possession of offensive weapons without lawful authority or reasonable excuse. A total of 1,840 persons were found guilty of such offences in the Metropolitan police district in 1986.

Shotgun Cartridges

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will make a statement on his intentions as to whether to classify further shotgun cartridges under section 1 control.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Our intentions are set out in the Firearms (Amendment) Bill, which lowers the diameter of shot above which a cartridge is subject to control under section 1 of the Firearms Act 1968 from 0·36 inch to 0·23 inch.

Immigration

Mr. Bernie Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners are being held awaiting removal or deportation for overstaying under the immigration rules; and what is the breakdown of ethnic origin of these prisoners.

Mr. Renton: The information requested is not maintained centraly and could be provided only at disproportionat cost. Statistics relating to immigration control do not include the ethnic origin of the persons concerned.

Entry Clearance

Mrs. Peacock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list in the Official Report the number of refusals for entry clearance from all countries for each year from 1977 to 1987, broken down by country; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Renton: The information requested is available centrally only for certain countries, and is given in the table.

Persons refused initially[1] an entry clearance[2] to the United Kingdom

Number of persons

Year	Bangladesh	India	Pakistan	Sri Lanka	Ghana	Nigeria	Hong Kong
1977	5,660	2,400	3,970	..	..	..	..
1978	3,230	2,300	4,540	..	..	..	..
1979	2,660	2,120	4,760	..	..	..	..
1980	3,240	1,980	3,290	..	..	..	..
1981	3,200	1,280	3,010	..	..	..	..
1982	4,670	1,410	2,900	..	..	..	..
1983	5,820	1,670	2,320	..	..	..	..
1984	4,270	1,250	1,860	..	..	..	[3]80
1985	4,900	1,160	1,680	[4]570	..	..	160
1986	3,680	1,760	2,150	660	[5]480	..	110
1987[6]	2,300	4,810	6,600	680	2,050	[5]2,640	110

.. Not available.
[1] Including those subsequently successful on appeal.
[2] Excluding persons refused a certificate of entitlement to, or a confirmation of, the right of abode.
[3] October to December only.
[4] 30 May to December only.
[5] January to September, unless otherwise stated. The increase in refusals in 1987 in India and Pakistan reflected the introduction of the Visa requirement on 15 October 1986.
[6] February to September only.

Royal Prerogative

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will issue a directive to the Director General of the security services clarifying the extent to which security operations which would otherwise be criminal offences can be made lawful under the terms of the royal prerogative.

Mr. Hurd: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Hertfordshire, West (Mr. Jones) on 29 January at column 397.

Radio

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what powers the Radio Authority will have to arrange cross-subsidies to assist with the cost of transmission in remote rural areas;

(2) what are his intentions on facilitating transitional arrangements for the transfer of responsibilities for radio broadcasting from the Independent Broadcasting Authority to the new Radio Authority.

Mr. Renton: We shall be discussing the transitional arrangements with the Independent Broadcasting Authority and other organisations with an interest. The position of stations in remote rural areas will be one of the matters for discussion.

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether radio stations will be able to make their own transmission arrangements on both VHF and MF under the new arrangements proposed.

Mr. Renton: Stations will become responsible for their own transmission arrangements irrespective of whether they broadcast on VHF, MF or both.

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Radio Authority will be required to ensure that national and local radio stations provide an adequate service of national and international news.

Mr. Renton: We do not envisage a general requirement on stations licensed by the Radio Authority to provide any given amount of news although any news given will have to satisfy the criteria set out in paragraph 7.7 of our Green Paper "Radio: Choices and Opportunities" (Cm. 92).

Prison Education

Mr. Eastham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if Her Majesty's Government have any plans to alter the way in which prison education is currently delivered through local education authorities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Under current arrangements the great majority of education for people in custody is provided by teachers who are employed by and professionally responsible to the local education authority. The Government have no plans to change this means of providing education. As part of the ongoing work of the prison education branch, agreement has been reached with the local authority associations to set up a working party on the role of local education authorities in providing education in prison. The aims of the working party are set out in the Government reply to the second report from the Education, Science and Arts Committee (Cm 298), copies of which are in the Library.

London City Airport

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 28 January, Official Report, column 307, why it is not possible to identify police costs associated with London City airport; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The costs of the attendance of police officers in response to particular incidents as required and in order to direct traffic in the vicinity cannot be separately identified from the costs of policing the surrounding area.

Prevention of Terrorism

Mr. Thorne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will seek the renewal of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Hurd: A draft order was laid on 25 January under section 14(10) of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984. If the draft order is approved by Parliament, the Act will continue in force for a further 12 months. I have received the report from Viscount Colville of Culross on the operation of the Act in 1987 and copies have been placed in the Library. The report is supplementary to his review of the Act as a whole, publication of which was announced to the House on 9 December at column 167.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

File (Disappearance)

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Attorney-General if a report was made to the Director of Public Prosecutions following the disappearance of a file belonging to Mr. Colin Wallace from the office of the hon. Member for Southend, East (Mr. Taylor) in March 1986.

The Attorney-General: I understand that no report has been received by the Director of Public Prosecutions relating to any such event.

Mr. Holroyd and Mr. Wallace

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Attorney-General what was the outcome of the active consideration given to certain reports that appeared about Mr. Holroyd and Mr. Wallace, referred to in the Official Report, 23 February 1987, column 16.

The Attorney-General: I refer the hon. Member to the Answer given on 3 March 1987 to my hon. Friend the Member for Southend, East (Mr. Taylor) by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Armed Services in which he said that the various allegations made by Captain (Retd.) Holroyd and Mr. Colin Wallace over many years about the conduct of the security forces in Northern Ireland had been fully and carefully investigated since they left the Province in 1975; no evidence had been discovered as a result of these investigations to substantiate any of their allegations.

Unification Church

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Attorney-General which religious organisations were approached for assistance when preparing the now abandoned appeal against the decision not to remove charity status from the Unification Church.

The Attorney-General: Such an approach was made to the Church of England. I also received representations from the following organisations:

The Churches Main Committee
The Council of Christians and Jews
The General Assembly of Unitarian and Free Christian Churches
The Ayra Samaj in London
the Ethiopian Orthodox Church

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Attorney-General which of the Christian religious organisations, approached for assistance when preparing the appeal against the decision not to remove charity from the Unification Church, were prepared to state that the Unification Church was not a bona fide Christian organisation.

The Attorney-General: The Church of England expressed no view on whether or not the Unification Church is a bona fide Christian organisation. It did, however, declare doubts about the wisdom of attempting to prove in secular court proceedings that the Unification Church is not an organisation of Christian character. It expressed the view that the issues were very far from simple, requiring as they did the making of theological distinctions between orthodoxy, heresy and Christian deviations. Similar views have also been expressed by other Christian Churches and Church organisations.

Herald of Free Enterprise

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Attorney-General if any proceedings are to be initiated against Townsend Thoreson Ltd. in respect of alleged illegal carriage of toxic chemical wastes aboard the Herald of Free Enterprise.

The Attorney-General: The capsize of the Herald of Free Enterprise and matters relating to it are under investigation by the police. When that investigation is complete, the Director of Public Prosecutions will consider the question of any criminal proceedings.

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Bermingham: To ask the Attorney-General how many persons are employed in the Crown court sections of the Crown prosecution service, area by area; and how many in each area are legally qualified as either solicitor or barrister-at-law.

The Attorney-General: Crown court sections within the Crown prosecution service are staffed by law clerks supported by administrative staff. The function of law clerks is to prepare papers for counsel, liaise with the police, and to represent the Crown prosecution service in court. It is not a requirement that they should hold legal qualifications. The numbers of law clerks employed in the Crown court sections are detailed on the attached schedule.

CPS Area	Numbers of Staff Employed in the Crown Court Section
	Law Clerks	Administration Staff
Avon/Somerset	15	3
Beds/Herts	13	5
Cambs/Lincs	12	3
Cheshire	9	2
Cleveland/North Yorks	17	0
Cumbria/Lancs	16	11
Derbyshire	9	4
Devon/Cornwall	14	0
Dorset/Hants	18	4
Durham/Northumbria	26	9
Essex	12	2·5
Glos/Wilts	7	6
Greater Manchester	36	3
Humberside	8	6
Kent	16	6
Leics/Northants	14	0
London—Inner	113·5	32
London—North	52·5	15
London—South	41·5	10·5
Merseyside	30	9
Norfolk/Suffolk	9	1
North Wales/Dyfed	9	3·5
Nottinghamshire	12	7
South Wales/Gwent	22	3
South Yorkshire	15	5
Staffs/Warwicks	15	0
Sussex	11	4
Thames Valley	19	10
West Mercia	8	4
West Midlands	35	9
West Yorkshire	32	8

Figures taken from Staff in Post details at 31 December 1987.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

Costs

32. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission what was the cost of the Public Accounts Commission's work during 1987.

Sir Peter Hordern: These costs, which relate primarily to the time of the nine Members of the House who serve as Members of the Commission, are not quantifiable.

PRIME MINISTER

Engagements

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Prime Minister if, further to her reply to the hon. Member for Houghton and Washington of 26 January, Official Report column 133, she will give the time, nature and duration of her meetings on Monday 18 January between 12 pm and 6 pm.

The Prime Minister: No.

Minister for Social Security and the Disabled

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list the interdepartmental responsibilities of the Minister for Social Security and the Disabled.

The Prime Minister: The Minister for Social Security and the Disabled has particular responsibility for co-ordinating policy on disablement and for benefits, aids and services for disabled people. These functions are discharged in conjunction with other departmental Ministers as necessary.

Security and Intelligence Services

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Prime Minister (1) whether she will amend the terms of reference of the staff counsellor for the security and intelligence services, so as to allow him to counsel military intelligence officers as well;

(2) whether she will amend the terms of reference of the staff counsellor for the security and intelligence services to counsel any individuals who have anxieties about the service;

(3) whether she will amend the terms of reference of the staff counsellor for the security and intelligence services, so as to allow him to counsel military information officers as well.

The Prime Minister: No.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to her written answer of 11 December 1987, Official Report, column 278, in what circumstances she is prepared to give information on correspondence received from third parties.

The Prime Minister: I have nothing to add to the reply already given to the hon. Gentleman on 11 December, at column 278.

National Health Service

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Prime Minister if she will give the date and place of any official statement by any Minister of the Crown prior to 11 June 1987 concerning the proposed review of the finances of the National Health Service.

The Prime Minister: There was no such statement.

South Africa and Namibia

Mr. Bernie Grant: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list the names of all the South African citizens and Namibian citizens she has met in an official capacity over the past two years.

The Prime Minister: My normal practice will continue to be not to provide detailed information about my meetings with private individuals. Meetings in recent years with Chief Buthelezi, Bishop Tutu, Chief Mabuza, and Mrs. Helen Suzman were made public at the time.

Trade Unions

Mr. Eadie: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list in the Official Report the trade unions she personally, or officials acting on her behalf, met during the past five weeks; and where these meetings were held.

The Prime Minister: As I have told the House before, my normal practice is neither to confirm nor to deny whether meetings with private individuals have taken place, even in those cases where no such meeting has occurred.

Stalker Report

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Prime Minister what representations she has received from the Irish Government concerning the Stalker report and the Royal Ulster Constabulary's alleged shoot-to-kill policy; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the statement issued following the Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference on 2 February, a copy of which is available in the Library.

Secret Services (Papers)

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Prime Minister if she will arrange for the early release of papers relating to the activities of the secret services at the time of the fall of the Gough Whitlam Government in Australia; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: The release of records will continue to be dealt with in the normal way in accordance with the provisions of the Public Records Acts.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Young People (Full-time Education)

Mr. Andrew F. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he will take steps to put beyond doubt the right of every young person, including those with special educational needs, aged between 16 and 19 years who seeks it to receive appropriate full-time education; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: Clause 81 of the Education Reform Bill, which clarifies the existing law on this point, puts beyond doubt the duty of local education authorities to provide full-time education for all who seek it up to the age of 19, including those with special educational needs.

School Crossing Patrols

Mr. John Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many unmanned school crossing patrols there are (a) in the United Kingdom as a whole and (b) in north Yorkshire; and what proportions these numbers represent of the total number of school crossing patrols in each case.

Mr. Dunn: My Department does not collect information about school crossings and patrols.

Higher Education (Research)

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has had in support of the recommendation from the Advisory Board for the Research Councils to differentiate between three levels of higher education institutions in the level and scope of their research activity; and what reply he has given to the board.

Mr. Jackson: A substantial majority of the 250 submissions which my right hon. Friend has received about the ABRC's discussion document "A Strategy for the Science Base", accept the need for greater differentiation of research roles in higher education; but most do not support the board's recommendation that this should be at the institutional level. My right hon. Friend will be making a statement on policy for the science base later this year.

Inner London Education Authority

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what recent representations he has received about the future of the Inner London education authority; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: Since the introduction of the Education Reform Bill, the Department of Education and Science has received some 1,200 letters about education in inner London. My right hon. Friend announced on 4 February at columns 1178-9 that the Government had decided to introduce amendments to the Education Reform Bill, with the aim of transferring responsibility for education to the inner London boroughs and the City of London from 1 April 1990.

Swimming Pools

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has on the number of swimming pools under the control of local education authorities in England and Wales; and what proportion are open-air.

Mr. Dunn: Information about the number of such swimming pools is not available.

Secondary Schools

Mr. Robert B. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will set out in a table for each local education authority (a) the number of children starting secondary schools at the start of the 1987-88 academic year, (b) the number of complaints he has received or been notified of where parents are not satisfied with their child's allocated school for 1987-88 and (c) the number of children who, following complaints, were subsequently reallocated to the school of their choice in 1987-88.

Mr. Dunn: Information on the number of children admitted to secondary schools at the beginning of the academic year 1987-88 has not been collected centrally. Information on complaints in respect of individual local authorities cannot be provided except at disproportionate cost.

Where parents do not get the school they want for their child, it is open to them to appeal to an independent local appeal committee, whose decision is binding on the local education authority or school governors concerned. From informal inquiries made in 1985, it appeared that some 9,000 such appeals were made in that year, of which around 40 per cent. were decided in the parents' favour.

The Secretary of State does not consider an admissions complaint unless the case has first been referred to the independent local appeal committee, and his powers of intervention in such local matters are extremely limited. In calendar year 1987, the Secretary of State received over 380 complaints about school admissions decisions in England but did not consider that there were grounds to intervene under sections 68 or 99 of the Education Act 1944 in any of these cases. It is not known how many of the pupils concerned were subsequently allocated a place at their preferred school or at another school acceptable to their parents.

Business and Technician Education Council

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement on the future of the Business Technician Education Advisory Council and its services.

Mr. Jackson: I understand that my hon. Friend is referring to the Business and Technician Education Council. This is a non-departmental public body established in 1983 as a successor to the former Business Education Council and Technician Education Council, themselves established in the mid-1970s to validate a wide range of vocational courses and examinations at technician level and equivalent. It is one of many bodies, operating in the vocational qualifications field, albeit the only one with NDPB status under my Department. It has an important part to play in the much wider rationalisation of vocational qualifications now being undertaken under the aegis of the National Council for Vocational Qualifications. The council is currently taking steps to improve the marketing of its qualifications and its links with other bodies, and is reforming its structures and services to those ends. My right hon. Friend welcomes these steps, and looks to the council to continue its efforts to improve its own efficiency and responsiveness to the changing context in education and training.

Schools (Opting Out)

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many bodies representing schools in the Easington area have expressed an interest to his Department in opting out of local government control.

Mr. Dunn: All individual schools which have approached the Department about this proposal have done so on the basis that their interest will be treated in confidence.

Education Reform

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will publish in the Official Report his recent correspondence with the court of the University of Edinburgh on the Education Reform Bill, initiated on 22 January; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: The exchange of correspondence is as follows.

22 January 1988

The Rt. Hon. Kenneth Baker, M.P.,
Secretary of State for Education and Science,
Elizabeth House,
York Road,
LONDON SE1 7PH.

Dear Secretary of State,

EDUCATION REFORM BILL

The University Court of the University of Edinburgh, which is the University's supreme governing body established under the Universities (Scotland) Acts, has discussed those sections of the Education Reform Bill which are of direct relevance to universities. The Court instructed us to write to you to convey its dismay and anxiety over a number of proposals in the Bill as it is now before Parliament.

The Court was particularly concerned at two aspects—the powers to be vested in the Secretary of State, and the powers to be given to the Commissioners to be established under the Bill. Under section 94(1), the Secretary of State may by order confer or impose on either of the Funding Councils such additional functions as he thinks fit, and under section 94(3) "the Secretary of State may make grants to each of the Funding Councils . . . subject to such conditions as he may determine;" the Court regards these powers as unnecessarily wide and as an unnecessary accretion of authority to the executive arm of government. Similarly, section 132(1) of the Bill provides that "for the purposes of performing the duty imposed on them by section 131 . . . the Commissioners may make such modifications to the statutes of any qualifying institution as they consider necessary or expedient," subject to the approval of Her Majesty in Council, while under section 135(2), an Order in Council may amend, repeal, or revoke, any provisions of an Act of Parliament—such as, presumably, one of the Universities (Scotland) Acts; the Court has grave reservations about the constitutional propriety of thus over-riding the statutory provisions of Parliament. Finally with regard to the proposed Commissioners, the Court takes strong exception to the sweeping powers conferred under Schedule 9, Section 4, under which the Commissioners may, apparently without any constraint, "do anything which appears to them necessary or expedient for the purpose of . . . their functions," including requiring any University Officer "to furnish any information or to produe any documents relating to the institution . . .".

The Court's attention has also been drawn to the lack of any reference in the Bill to the maintenance of academic freedom; the Court hopes that this omission will be rectified.

Copies of this letter are being made available to the Press, and the text will be published in the University of Edinburgh Bulletin. A copy is also being sent to the Secretary of State for Scotland.

Yours sincerely,

Archie MacPherson — Rector
A. M. Currie — Secretary to the University

A MacPherson Esq BA
Rector
University of Edinburgh
Old College
South Bridge
EDINBURGH EH8 9YL

Dear Rector

Thank you for you letter, also signed by Mr Currie, of 22 January to the Secretary of State about the provisions in the Education Reform Bill relating to the universities. I am replying as these are matters for which I have responsibility within the Department.

We have received many letters on similar lines about the proper balance between necessary central powers and institutional autonomy. Detailed discussions of the Bill's higher education provisions will begin shortly in the Commons Standing Committee and a large number of relevant amendments have already been tabled which will allow these matters to be properly explored. I obviously cannot prejudge the outcome of this or the debate that will continue through the Bill's Parliamentary passage.

Yours sincerely
Robert Jackson

Education Expenditure

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will publish in the Official Report a table based on table 12.1 of the public expenditure White Paper Cmnd. 288-II, with all figures converted to 1987-88 prices and in the manner of his reply, Official Report, 29 January 1987 columns 509-14.

Mr. Kenneth Baker: The information requested is set out in the table. The figures have been revalued using the GDP (market prices) deflator, which is assumed to rise by 4·25 per cent. in 1987-88, 4·5 per cent. in 1988-89, 3·5 per cent. in 1989-90 and 3 per cent. in 1990-91. All figures in the table have been rounded to the nearest £1 million, so that the totals shown may not equal the sum of their rounded components.

£ million at 1987-88 prices

	1982-83 outturn	1983-84 outturn	1984-85 outturn	1985-86 outturn	[1]1986-87 outturn	[2]1987-88 estimated outturn	1988-89 plans	1989-90 plans	1990-91 plans
Schools	9,531	9,646	9,441	9,244	10,005	10,633	10,630	10,635	10,654
Higher and further education	4,930	4,960	4,946	4,751	4,789	4,904	4,866	4,851	4,806
Miscellaneous educational services research and administration	826	878	888	888	930	975	1,032	1,071	1,090
Research Councils and related bodies	589	604	612	618	635	657	669	675	655
Total Department of Education and Science	15,876	15,980	15,888	15,502	16,358	17,169	17,197	17,232	17,205

	1982-83 outturn	1983-84 outturn	1984-85 outturn	1985-86 outturn	[1]1986-87 outturn	[2]1987-88 estimated outturn	1988-89 plans	1989-90 plans	1990-91 plans
Central government
Voted in Estimates
Schools
Building grants to voluntary and special schools	48	45	52	58	50	55	68	70	74
Music and ballet schools	4	3	3	3	3	3	4	4	4
Assisted places scheme	11	18	25	32	40	49	53	55	54
City technology colleges	—	—	—	—	—	4	18	30	30
Higher and further education (including teacher training)
Universities
Capital	151	141	137	144	154	154	147	141	142
Current	1,568	1,555	1,527	1,478	1,474	1,562	1,614	1,620	1,609
Voluntary and direct grant institutions
Capital	5	5	6	5	5	7	6	5	5
Current	107	105	97	92	91	95	93	90	90
Adult education	14	15	15	16	16	16	17	16	16
Postgraduate awards to humanities students and other student awards	8	5	5	4	5	6	5	5	5
Miscellaneous services, research and administration
Youth service	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	4
Research programme and other education services	19	23	24	25	24	27	45	69	75
Administration and inspection costs	40	53	55	55	57	58	65	63	63
Compensation payments	5	5	6	6	6	7	7	7	7
Research Councils etc.
Capital	96	90	88	97	96	93	85	99	77
Current (including postgraduate science awards)	494	513	523	521	538	564	584	576	578
Total voted expenditure	2,573	2,581	2,568	2,541	2,564	2,703	2,812	2,855	2,833
Other central government Schools	−5	−4	−4	−4	0	0	0	0	0
Total central government	2,569	2,576	2,563	2,537	2,564	2,703	2,812	2,855	2,833
Of which: Total central government capital expenditure	296	277	282	302	307	310	309	318	300
Local authorities
Relevant current spending
Schools
Under fives	342	352	377	377	411	441	443	456	463
Primary schools	2,926	2,876	2,832	2,809	3,118	3,370	3,403	3,486	3,539
Secondary schools	4,416	4,447	4,397	4,248	4,645	4,957	4,895	4,819	4,797
Special schools	476	491	492	497	523	544	546	541	538
Meals and milk	512	507	488	468	471	469	431	416	404
Transport	230	233	227	224	219	213	205	204	205
Non-maintained school fees	143	140	138	126	125	125	123	118	114
Teachers' centres	29	28	31	34	37	39	42	42	41
Child guidance	35	34	35	38	41	45	45	45	45
Pupil support	32	32	37	37	38	38	38	38	38
Higher and further education
Advanced further education	759	757	763	776	782	780	774	782	789
Non-advanced further education	1,094	1,108	1,137	1,053	1,100	1,098	1,104	1,084	1,045
Adult education	95	102	106	109	116	123	125	127	127
Discretionary students awards and support	151	157	162	163	176	189	200	200	200
Miscellaneous services, research and administration
Youth service	121	130	133	135	143	150	160	163	162
Recreational services and research	57	65	66	62	67	68	75	76	75
Administration and inspection costs	543	568	573	578	610	642	664	677	691
Total relevant current spending	11,960	12,026	11,994	11,735	12,622	13,291	13,273	13,273	13,273
Non-relevant current spending
Mandatory student awards[3]	833	874	848	764	733	742	733	732	728

	1982-83 outturn	1983-84 outturn	1984-85 outturn	1985-86 outturn	[1]1986-87 outturn	[2]1987-88 estimated outturn	1988-89 plans	1989-90 plans	1990-91 plans
Local authority capital[4]
Schools	332	338	311	297	284	281	316	311	309
Higher and further education	145	137	142	146	137	134	50	50	49
Miscellaneous education services
Youth service	15	12	13	12	12	12	8	7	7
Other education services	22	17	15	10	7	7	6	6	5
Total local authority capital	514	505	482	466	441	434	379	374	371
Total local authorities	13,308	13,404	13,324	12,965	13,795	14,467	14,385	14,378	14,372
Total Department of Education and Science	15,876	15,980	15,888	15,502	16,358	17,169	17,197	17,232	17,205

[1] The 1986-87 figures incorporate a distribution by sector of total current spending by local authorities based on ther provisional outturn expenditure on education.
[2] The 1987-88 figures incorporate a provisional distribution by sector of total current spending by local authorities based on their budgets.
[3] Includes payments to public sector higher education institutions as reimbursements of fees for EC students.
[4] Local authority capital expenditure figures are net of receipts attributable to education. They include provision for the Urban Programme.

Teachers (Pay)

Mr. Rowe: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many responses he has received to the Green Paper on teachers' pay and conditions; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: Thirty-seven responses to the Green Paper, "Teachers' Pay and Conditions: a Consultative Document" (Cm 238), have so far been received in the Department from organisations and two from individuals.

Pupil Statistics

Mr. Bowis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will now publish in the Official Report for each of Waltham Forest, Merton, Enfield, Haringey, Barnet, Brent, Ealing, Hillingdon, Kingston, Sutton, Harrow, Newham and Richmond, and for the area covered by the Inner London education authority (a) the number of secondary pupils (b) the number of pupils studying in another local education authority area (c) the number of pupils educated who come from the Inner London education authority area, (d) the number of pupils educated from other local education authority areas and (e) the net inflow-outflow of pupils for the last date for which figures are available and in each of the past four years.

Mr. Dunn (holding answer 4 February 1988): The following information relates to pupils aged 11 to 15 in all maintained schools and is taken from authorities' regular returns to the Department for rate support grant purposes. The figures for January 1987 and the previous three years are as follows:

Pupils aged 11 to 15 in all maintained schools

	Number of pupils studying in the authority (a)	Pupils from authority studying in other LEAs (b)	ILEA pupils studying in the authority (c)	Pupils fron other [1]LEAs studying in the authority (d)	Net inflow(−) or outflow(+) (e)
At January 1987
Barnet	15,448	948	342	2,530	−1,582
Brent	10,798	2,801	133	654	2,147
Ealing	13,091	1,839	94	699	1,140
Enfield	15,645	938	61	1,045	−107
Haringey	8,740	1,786	455	827	959
Harrow	9,625	1,367	*7	540	827
Hillingdon	12,876	618	2	668	−50
Kingston	7,025	662	58	885	−223
Merton	8,466	728	384	1,116	−388
Newham	13,334	468	46	399	69
Richmond	6,925	857	741	1,758	−901
Sutton	10,017	1,033	43	1,432	−399
Waltham Forest	12,203	839	32	300	539
ILEA	104,574	4,647		5,817	−1,170
At January 1986
Barnet	15,860	931	323	2,405	−1,474
Brent	11,660	2,735	129	718	2,017
Ealing	13,909	1,874	87	637	1,237
Enfield	16,332	876	59	1,087	−211
Haringey	9,369	1,966	369	694	1,272
Harrow	9,964	1,397	7	464	933
Hillingdon	13,632	553	1	752	−199

	Number of pupils studying in the authority (a)	Pupils from authority studying in other LEAs (b)	ILEA pupils studying in the authority (c)	Pupils from other [1]LEAs studying in the authority (d)	Net inflow(−) or outflow(+) (e)
Kingston	7,251	588	51	818	−230
Merton	8,958	683	394	1,153	−470
Newham	13,898	524	39	371	153
Richmond	6,971	922	657	1,535	−613
Sutton	10,260	1,002	38	1,301	−299
Waltham Forest	13,034	843	34	318	525
ILEA	109,739	4,572		6,202	−1,630
At January 1985
Barnet	16,182	912	285	2,248	−1,336
Brent	12,533	2,576	124	723	1,853
Ealing	14,678	2,018	76	561	1,457
Enfield	17,092	846	78	1,160	−314
Haringey	10,069	2,014	309	625	1,389
Harrow	10,349	1,354	10	478	876
Hillingdon	14,047	517	6	508	9
Kingston	7,386	527	61	685	−158
Merton	9,415	585	365	1,079	−494
Newham	14,499	463	48	363	100
Richmond	6,981	1,015	567	1,330	−315
Sutton	10,521	932	35	1,225	−293
Waltham Forest	13,668	742	27	286	456
ILEA	116,146	4,475		6,166	−1,691
At January 1984
Barnet	16,388	882	260	2,087	−1,205
Brent	13,419	2,460	98	692	1,768
Ealing	15,449	1,991	98	581	1,410
Enfield	17,850	766	76	1,189	−423
Haringey	10,982	1,907	285	600	1,307
Harrow	10,716	1,304	14	414	890
Hillingdon	14,731	439	5	529	−90
Kingston	7,713	444	77	635	−191
Merton	9,835	538	318	1,157	−619
Newham	15,164	397	47	333	64
Richmond	6,879	1,076	480	1,028	48
Sutton	10,906	948	50	1,141	−193
Waltham Forest	14,370	690	19	270	420
ILEA	123,436	4,366		5,898	−1,532

[1] Including pupils from ILEA (c).

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Mellor: In accordance with item 69 of the programme of action for equal opportunities for women in the civil service, published by the Cabinet Office (Management and Personnel Office) in 1984, all staff in the diplomatic and aid wings have been notified that the display of sexually offensive material in the workplace will be regarded as a serious matter and may be dealt with as a disciplinary offence.

Diplomatic Personnel

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the number of diplomatic personnel who are resident in the constituency of Kensington; and what is the number of members of their families resident in Kensington.

Mr. Mellor: I regret that the information requested is not available.

Bophuthatswana

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what interpretation of the relationship between the territory of modern Bophuthatswana and the native reserves established for the Southern Botswana by British Governments is Her Majesty's Government's policy towards Bophuthatswana based.

Mrs. Chalker: Our policy is based on the fact that Bophuthatswana was created out of the Republic of South Africa, as a key element in the policy of separate development, to which we are wholly opposed.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries have applied for licences for fishing in the Falkland Islands control zone next season; what fees are being levied; and what limits are to be placed on times of fishing, location, species and catch size.

Mr. Mellor: For the 1988 fishing season, the Falkland Islands Government received licence applications to fish in the Falkland Islands interim conservation and management zone for fishing vessels from the United Kingdom, Spain, Portugal, France, Netherlands, Greece, Italy, Poland, Chile, Taiwan, Republic of Korea and Japan. The season for finfish began on 1 January and for Loligo squid, on 1 February. The Illex squid season begins on 1 March. The seasons end on 30 June. Copies of the fees schedule, and information on the mesh regulations and fishing areas have been placed in the Library of the House, as have details of licence allocations for 1988.

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many licenses issued for fishing in 1987 in the Falkland Islands protection zone were not taken up and reallocated and how many were awarded to undertakings, individuals or companies whose primary business was not fishing.

Mr. Mellor: I will reply as soon as possible.

EC Legislation (Plain Language)

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he supports the campaign launched by the consumers in the European Community Group and European Research into Consumer Affairs for plain language in European Community proposals and legislation; and if he will encourage Ministers to promote this issue within the Community at every opportunity.

Mrs. Chalker: Yes.

Herald of Free Enterprise

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Belgian authorities about the carriage of toxic chemicals on board the Herald of Free Enterprise and on the discovery, subsequent to the vessel foundering of toxic items which are now being held in Belgium; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: My right hon. and learned Friend has had no contact with the Belgian authorities on this matter. I understand, however, that there have been contacts between other Departments and the Belgian authorities on this subject.

Nuclear Exports (Japan)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when Her Majesty's Government expect to communicate to the European Commision full details of any draft nuclear export agreements with Japan for technology and nuclear materials transfer, in compliance with article 103 of the Euratom Treaty.

Mr. Mellor [holding answer 25 January]: We have no agreement with Japan for technology and nuclear materials transfer. The hon. Member may have in mind the contract between British Nuclear Fuels Plc and Japanese Nuclear Fuel Services. I am advised that this contract does not fall within the scope of article 103 of the Euratom treaty.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Energy Conservation

34. Mr. Janner: To ask the Lord President of the Council whether there have been any consultations on the introduction of new energy conservation measures in the House.

Mr. Wakeham: Energy conservation measures are included in the Parliamentary Works Office programme of work. I understand that the proposals for 1988 will be coming forward for consideration by the Accommodation and Administration Sub-Committee shortly.

Official Report

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Lord President of the Council what action he will take to prevent the number of mistakes now appearing in the Official Report.

Mr. Wakeham: I assume the hon. Gentleman is referring to some minor typographical errors. The attention of Hansard is automatically drawn to any lapses. The quality of the printing of Hansard is under regular review by a liaison committee consisting of senior Official Report and HMSO personnel, and remains higher than that of any comparable daily publication.

Privy Council Office (Periodicals)

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will list all the periodicals subscribed to by the Privy Council since 1970.

Mr. Wakeham: The information requested is not available for the period before 1980. The periodicals subscribed to by the Privy Council Office since 1980 are as follows:

Campaign*
Economist
Farmers Weekly*
Financial Weekly*
Listener
New Scientist
New Society
New Statesman
Now*
Private Eye
Spectator
Times Literary Supplement
Tribune
UK Press Gazette*

* No longer obtained.

Other periodicals are borrowed from other sources, as and when required.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Breeding Sows

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list in the Official Report the numbers of breeding sows in each English and Welsh region and county pig herd for each year from 1979 to date of the most recently available figures.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The information is contained in the table.

County by Standard Statistical Region	Total breeding pig herd 1979-86
	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
England and Wales	717,672	701,116	713,883	736,195	727,395	690,098	715,167	714,539
Cleveland	4,229	4,015	3,877	4,323	4,246	4,004	3,869	4,351
Cumbria	6,064	6,514	6,386	6,164	6,345	6,415	6,373	6,223
Durham	4,820	4,911	5,245	4,841	4,976	5,000	5,158	5,184
Northumberland	2,913	2,863	2,668	2,672	2,476	2,449	2,302	2,289
Tyne and Wear	802	607	567	612	561	376	474	385
North Region	18,828	18,910	18,743	18,612	18,604	18,244	18,176	18,432
Humberside	73,568	73,919	76,144	78,954	78,696	78,774	81,363	83,142
North Yorks (North Allerton)	35,051	35,243	48,952	54,890	54,357	56,429	59,935	61,363
North Yorks (Beverley)	—	—	8,814	9,458	9,808	9,151	9,653	11,078
North Yorks (Harrogate)	20,120	21,276	—	—	—	—	—	—
South Yorkshire	6,124	6,074	6,069	5,857	6,381	5,959	5,895	6,609
West Yorkshire	12,247	11,946	11,873	13,149	12,490	12,201	15,181	15,319
Yorks and Humberside	147,110	148,458	151,852	162,308	161,732	162,514	172,009	177,511
Derbyshire	5,342	4,813	4,982	6,096	5,680	5,505	5,381	5,537
Leicestershire	8,050	7,327	7,408	7,552	6,476	6,476	6,558	6,769
Lincolnshire	31,799	33,359	32,592	32,839	31,150	31,150	31,069	31,661
Northamptonshire	8,184	8,270	8,356	8,576	7,945	7,945	7,778	7,683
Nottinghamshire	14,517	14,373	14,928	14,474	15,114	15,114	14,790	14,707
East Midlands Region	67,892	68,142	68,266	69,537	70,244	66,190	65,576	66,357
Cambridgeshire	25,072	22,258	22,387	22,825	21,902	19,271	18,133	17,453
Norfolk	57,901	56,451	58,056	59,547	58,360	54,493	56,992	57,231
Suffolk	61,187	60,811	60,832	63,491	60,155	56,050	57,223	55,914
East Anglia Region	144,160	139,520	141,275	145,863	140,417	129,814	132,348	130,598
Bedfordshire	8,468	7,973	7,811	8,005	8,123	7,616	8,864	8,564
Berkshire	9,196	8,718	9,063	9,562	9,462	8,585	8,985	8,631
Buckinghamshire	7,963	7,260	7,526	7,136	6,901	6,522	6,190	6,038
East Sussex	5,774	5,226	5,298	5,351	4,996	4,030	4,381	4,321
Essex	25,561	23,504	23,069	21,668	20,267	19,161	19,351	18,692
Greater London (East)	306	258	285	311	249	236	373	487
Greater London (South East)	1,697	1,661	1,518	1,609	1,308	1,155	1,257	1,113
Hampshire	15,993	15,224	16,180	16,745	17,566	14,994	16,838	17,557
Hertfordshire	6,163	6,134	5,918	5,946	5,393	4,372	4,161	3,794
Isle of Wight	1,396	1,344	1,164	1,120	1,205	1,195	1,235	1,058
Kent	13,519	12,923	12,218	12,269	11,495	10,350	9,704	9,715
Oxfordshire	22,060	22,524	22,051	23,683	24,824	24,523	27,490	26,194
Surrey	6,426	6,210	6,204	6,025	5,870	4,934	4,775	4,216
West Sussex	7,081	8,104	8,891	9,075	8,969	7,974	7,748	8,057
South East Region	131,608	127,063	127,196	128,505	126,628	115,647	121,352	118,437
Avon	5,160	5,010	5,138	4,933	4,943	4,576	4,592	4,647
Cornwall	13,084	11,373	11,770	12,133	11,461	10,172	10,393	9,965
Devon	23,208	22,663	22,332	22,717	22,379	21,412	23,104	23,820
Dorset	11,432	13,401	13,774	14,306	13,753	14,327	15,066	13,110
Gloucestershire	8,280	7,615	8,062	8,585	8,476	7,953	8,004	7,952
Isles of Scilly	2	2	1	3	2	2	2	2
Somerset	18,670	17,084	18,565	19,135	19,058	17,149	19,015	19,953
Wiltshire	15,716	15,477	16,839	17,155	16,844	17,130	17,145	18,118
South West Region	95,552	92,625	96,481	98,967	96,916	92,721	97,321	97,567
Hereford and Worcester	15,209	15,252	15,188	15,359	15,364	14,266	14,451	14,492
Shropshire	16,657	16,406	17,428	17,800	17,673	16,474	16,155	15,616
Staffordshire	12,013	11,450	11,650	11,779	12,842	12,619	13,357	13,569
Warwickshire	6,721	6,114	6,095	6,128	6,178	5,871	5,807	5,295
West Midlands	2,462	2,167	2,421	2,658	2,552	2,297	2,573	2,672
West Midlands Region	53,062	51,389	52,782	53,724	54,609	51,527	52,343	51,644
Cheshire	11,678	11,419	11,586	11,728	12,508	11,450	12,148	11,457
Greater Manchester	4,649	4,083	4,172	4,354	4,453	3,641	4,063	3,846
Lancashire	24,906	22,743	24,557	24,394	23,681	22,881	23,346	22,010
Merseyside	1,379	1,369	1,488	1,479	1,228	1,141	978	1,130
North West Region	42,612	39,614	41,803	41,955	41,870	39,113	40,535	38,443

County by Standard Statistical Region	Total breeding pig herd 1979-86
	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
England	700,824	685,721	698,398	719,471	711,020	675,770	699,660	698,989
Clwyd	3,402	3,366	3,387	3,327	3,371	2,788	3,221	3,252
Dyfed	4,797	4,321	4,498	4,646	4,680	3,974	4,098	3,878
Gwent	1,993	2,048	1,844	2,722	2,766	2,830	2,902	3,315
Gwynedd	1,977	1,677	1,525	1,689	1,359	1,040	1,123	1,116
Mid Glamorgan	544	481	563	542	546	395	448	409
Powys	3,119	2,562	2,578	2,480	2,345	1,935	2,260	2,137
South Glamorgan	837	797	944	1,141	1,109	1,137	1,208	1,189
West Glamorgan	182	143	143	177	199	229	247	254
Wales	16,848	15,395	15,485	16,724	16,375	14,328	15,507	15,550

Pins-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Guidance has already been issued in my Department which makes clear that sexual harassment at work is not tolerated and in particular requires managers to ensure that potentially offensive material is not displayed in the workplace.

Affatoxin

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) if he will make a statement about the recent import of peanuts containing five times the safe amount of affatoxin and their subsequent sale as wild bird seed;

(2) if he will introduce a statutory limit on the proportion of affatoxin contained in imported foods destined for wild animals.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Controls which exist for levels of contaminants in feeding stuffs for domesticated animals and birds do not cover materials fed to wild birds; these controls are harmonised throughout the European Community and I am not aware of any plans to extend them to wild species.

Milk

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the total volume of milk production in the United Kingdom for each of the last 10 years.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The information is as follows:

Year	'000 tonnes
1978	17,905
1979	17,830
1980	17,819
1981	17,610
1982	18,457
1983	18,923
1984	17,873
1985	17,680
1986	17,856
1987	[1] 16,976

[1] Provisional.
Sources: EEC Dairy Facts and Figures/Milk Marketing Board.

Radioactivity (Cumbria)

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what experimental work he is undertaking or sponsoring, within the restricted area of Cumbria, into the effects of radioactivity following the Chernobyl nuclear accident.

Mr. Donald Thompson: I am arranging for a copy of my Department's post-Chernobyl agricultural research programme to be placed in the Library of the House.

ENERGY

Anglo-French Electricity Supply Link

Mr. Jack Thompson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) what is the ratio of United Kingdom imports to exports of electricity supply via the electricity supply link between the United Kingdom and France for the years 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987;

(2) if he will make a statement on the performances of the United Kingdom and France electricity supply link; and what are the export figures via the link from the United Kingdom to France for the years 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987, expressed in gigajoules.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The existing cross-channel electricity supply link between England and France was not fully commissioned until October 1986.

In 1985-86 France supplied the CEGB's system with 103 GWh (370,799 GJ) of electricity. There were no exports from England and France.

In 1986-87 electricity exports from England to France were 188 GWh (676,798 GJ), while imports from France amounted to 6590 GWh (23,723,934 GJ). This represents a ratio of exports to imports of 1:35.

Electricity System (Emergencies)

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement on his recent visit to the headquarters of the Central Electricity Board's national grid control system of Southwark; what arguments were put to him about the technical value of the coherence of the electricity system in times of emergency; and what his response was.

Mr. Parkinson: I visited the Central Electricity Generating Board's national control centre twice last autumn, and had wide-ranging discussions.

L. A. W. Mining Company Ltd.

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what information he has as to licences granted by British Coal to L. A. W. Mining Company Ltd. and the dates when such licences were granted.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a matter for the British Coal corporation, and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Nuclear Safety

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what representations he has received concerning the future of the mobile maintenance unit based at Llandegai Owynedd and Fiddler's Ferry and the scientific services department based at Llandegai and Manchester; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I have received no representations.

Coal Imports

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will issue a direction to the Central Electricity Generating Board not to purchase foreign coal, and in particular coal exported from South Africa, for use in its power stations; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a matter for the Central Electricity Generating Board. However, I understand that the CEGB does not import any coal from South Africa.

SCOTLAND

Rating Reform

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what additional regulations or advice his Department will produce to ensure that the collection of personal data for use in the community charge register complies with the terms of the first data protection principle; and if he will make a statement;

(2) what additional regulations or advice his Department will produce to ensure that the disclosure of personal data from the community charge register complies with the terms of the third data protection principle; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lang: My right hon. and learned Friend is considering this matter. Compliance with the Data Protection Act 1984 and the data protection principles is a matter for individual community charge registration officers and local authorities.

Community Charge Register (Access)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he intends to allow police, district health and social security specialist units or immigration officers routine access to the community charge register.

Mr. Lang: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 28 January 1988 at column 324.

Schools (Clydesdale)

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) how many pupils are at each primary and secondary school in Clydesdale constituency; and what is the teacher-pupil ratio at each school;

(2) if he will give, in respect of present primary and secondary schools in Clydesdale (a) the number of pupils in each school, (b) the number of teachers in each school and (c) the expected numbers resulting from falling rolls anticipated in 1991.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Information on individual schools in Clydesdale can be obtained from Strathclyde regional council.

Strathclyde Structure Plan

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the effect that his draft decision letter on the Strathclyde structure plan 1986 update will have on development of the green belt in Strathclyde.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The Strathclyde structure plan update (1986) proposes no substantial changes to the structure plan policies concerning the Clyde Valley green belt. In his draft modifications to the update my right hon. and learned Friend equally proposes no important changes to these policies. The draft modifications to the proposals in the update concerning residential development require additional land to be made available for housing in certain areas. The identification of sites would be a matter for district councils, in consultation with local housebuilders. The effect on the existing green belt is unlikely to be significant.

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make it his policy to take account of evidence that 700 houses are now being built and 1,700 others are planned to be built on land previously rejected by house builders before issuing his final decision letter on the Strathclyde structure plan 1986 update.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Yes.

Pre-Court Diversion Schemes

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he expects to publish the findings of his Office's research into pre-court diversion schemes.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: A decision on the publication of two relevant reports on the subject will be taken when the second has been received.

AIDS

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what information he has about the decision of the United States national institutes of health to instruct all biological laboratories to review their safety guidelines following the reported infection of two laboratory workers with the AIDS virus after working with concentrated samples; and whether he will carry out such a review of procedures in medical and biological laboratories in Scotland.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: We are aware of the decision of the United States national institutes of health. Following a review of procedures relevant to potential occupational HIV infection which was carried out by the advisory committee on dangerous pathogens, in July 1986 the Scottish Home and Health Department drew the attention of all health boards to revised guidelines drawn up by the committee. These guidelines have been endorsed by the Health and Safety Commission and the Health and Safety Executive.

Domestic Violence

Mrs. Mararet Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what stage his Department has reached in its consideration of guidelines on police response to domestic violence.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Draft guidelines on the investigation of complaints of domestic violence are in course of preparation and will be the subject of consultation with relevant interests shortly.

Road Contracts

Mr. Mudd: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list all the motorway and trunk road contracts in Scotland with a works cost of £1 million or more which his Department intends to award in 1988-89 showing, in each case, the total value of the contract and the expenditure likely to be incurred in that year.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Consideration of the major trunk road contracts to be awarded in 1988-89 is not yet complete. My right hon. and learned Friend's normal practice is to announce in March of each year those major schemes which he expects to start in the following year.

Residential Care and Nursing Homes

Mr. Millan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what response he has sent to age Concern Scotland regarding its document "The Case for Change" relating to residential care and nursing homes in Scotland; and what discussions he proposes having on the document.

Mr. Rifkind: I received the letter from Age Concern Scotland on 21 January. I am studying the proposals it contains and expect to reply shortly.

School Meals and Milk

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many children in (a) Tayside region and (b) Dundee district authority aea will lose entitlement to free school meals and free welfare milk after the Social Security Act 1986 is fully implemented in April; and how many of these children attend schools for those with special educational needs.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: This information is not held centrally.

Labour Statistics

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list, for each local authority ward, in the Dundee district council area, the percentage of the working population who are unemployed at the latest available date; and what are the corresponding figures for each year since 1983.

Mr. Lang: The information requested is not available, as unemployment percentage rates are calculated only on a travel-to-work area, regional authority and Scotland basis.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will publish figures for unemployment in the Dundee, East constituency for each year since 1979; and what percentage of the total working population this represents in each year.

Mr. Lang: Unemployment statistics on a parliamentary constituency basis are available only from June 1983. The table shows the number of unemployed claimants in the Dundee, East parliamentary constituency for December 1987 (the latest date for which information is available) and the corresponding figures for previous years. Unemployment percentage rates for parliamentary constituencies are not available.

Dundee, East Parliamentary Constituency December	Number of Unemployed Claimants
1983	8,015
1984	8,192
1985	8,245
1986	7,748
1987	7,004

These figures are not directly comparable due to a change in the compilation of the statistics in March 1986. This information is available in the Library.

Schools (Assaults)

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what statistics are kept on the number of assaults taking place in schools in (a) Scotland as a whole, (b) Tayside region and (c) Dundee district authority area; and if he will give the number of assaults on (i) teachers and (ii) pupils per year since 1979 in each of these geographical areas.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Information on the number of assaults taking place in schools is not collected centrally.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give details of the numbers of prosecutions taking place in each year since 1979 for assaults on teachers and pupils in Scottish schools.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: I regret that the information requested is not available.

Homelessness

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what sums have been allocated to each Scottish local authority for the relief of homelessness in each year since 1979.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: In determining housing revenue account capital allocations, my right hon. and learned Friend takes account of housing authorities' planned programmes for tackling the needs of their areas, including the needs of the homeless. The allocations issued are not, however, hypothecated for specific purposes and it is for each authority to determine its own policies and priorities and to programme expenditure accordingly, within the resources available to it.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what proportion of homeless households in Scotland became homeless through mortgage arrears in each year since 1979; and if he will give this information for (a) Scotland as a whole and (b) each district council.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: For Scotland as a whole, the proportions of households categorised as homeless who quoted a court order for mortgage default as a reason for the loss of their last or present accommodation are as follows:

	per cent.
1984-85	2·7
1985-86	3·3
1986-87	3·0

This category was not separately identified prior to March 1984.

Information at district council level is being prepared and I shall write to the hon. Member about this as soon as possible.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the number of homeless households in priority need in Scotland in each year since 1979; and if he will give this information for Scotland as a whole and for each district council area.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The table sets out the information requested, on a financial year basis:

Number of applications from homeless households in priority need

Areas	Financial Years
	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
SCOTLAND	6,419	6,029	7,326	7,492	6,984	8,338	8,815	9,318
Borders
Berwickshire	6	0	6	3	6	6	2	4
Ettrick and Lauderdale	22	13	21	21	14	9	10	6
Roxburgh	25	12	14	25	13	26	17	24
Tweeddale	11	11	19	0	0	—	—	—
Central
Clackmannan	259	200	230	230	193	196	183	184
Falkirk	101	64	116	147	174	1,473	1,156	351
Stirling	119	115	105	153	223	152	0	1
Dumfries and Galloway
Annandale and Eskdale	29	22	26	27	28	14	14	6
Nithsdale	115	83	116	130	138	135	127	149
Stewartry	21	15	11	16	20	20	24	20
Wigtown	63	61	36	18	30	28	39	63
Fife
Dunfermline	181	212	245	245	214	263	367	337
Kirkcaldy	157	97	116	129	143	99	126	132
North East Fife	23	41	25	31	29	36	42	34
Grampian
Aberdeen	210	143	191	149	163	200	565	373
Banff and Buchan	23	19	27	13	5	18	28	46
Gordon	16	24	19	16	25	31	49	52
Kincardine and Deeside	12	3	9	8	9	1	0	2
Moray	73	94	80	101	86	60	68	56
Highland
Badenoch and Strathspey	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Caithness	6	3	12	5	2	1	0	0
Inverness	78	59	83	74	115	67	48	46
Lochaber	19	20	58	41	32	32	20	34
Nairn	11	11	10	29	32	13	16	23
Ross and Cromarty	21	33	11	0	0	20	14	19
Skye and Lochalsh	20	20	10	15	16	21	24	26
Sutherland	0	1	0	0	0
Lothian
East Lothian	24	31	103	115	106	164	127	58
Edinburgh	267	206	203	192	164	253	445	575
Midlothian	30	27	145	56	61	41	70	99
West Lothian	104	75	176	98	62	67	83	72
Strathclyde
Argyll and Bute	113	80	83	70	55	52	64	86
Bearsden and Milngavie	3	0	0	0	13	25	26	23
Clydebank	21	61	119	87	130	291	252	103
Clydesdale	26	15	24	14	11	21	31	45
Cumbernauld and Kilsyth	23	72	62	169	16	118	61	0
Cumnock and Doon Valley	26	28	26	27	28	38	37	34
Cunninghame	224	183	222	255	227	234	272	245
Dumbarton	82	94	138	80	72	120	245	334
East Kilbride	74	76	109	102	95	109	134	147
Eastwood	7	3	9	8	9	10	7	6
Glasgow	1,822	1,879	1,714	2,339	1,949	1,543	1,267	1,198
Hamilton	150	117	221	86	137	86	96	76
Inverclyde	188	210	208	154	132	170	209	214
Kilmarnock and Loudoun	61	94	117	54	28	51	190	66
Kyle and Carrick	156	121	260	218	244	234	221	238
Monklands	99	72	139	75	86	88	134	111
Motherwell	428	364	397	522	541	292	162	109
Renfrew	366	379	464	579	495	560	927	485
Strathkelvin	140	136	133	73	63	58	182	173

Area	Financial Years 1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
Tayside
Angus	84	49	35	78	67	55	90	121
Dundee	198	155	165	171	185	399	602	549
Perth and Kinross	55	67	166	200	223	244	150	190
Orkney Islands	10	4	9	2	10	8	2	2
Shetland Islands	15	18	23	19	23	26	49	28
Western Isles	24	13	20	23	28	12	18	23

Notes:
1986-87—Returns are still outstanding for a few districts.
Blanks indicate no returns received to date.

Schools (Expenditure)

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the capital allocation for expenditure on schools in 1987-88 made by his Department to each education authority in Scotland.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Local authorities in Scotland receive an allocation of consent to incur liability to meet capital expenditure on schools, further education colleges and community education buildings. Within this overall level of consent they are free to determine which education building projects will proceed. They are also free to transfer consent between certain other capital programmes. Information on the level of the total capital allocations for education, and on the assumed schools element included in that total, for 1987-88 is given in the table.

£000 at cash prices

Region/Island Authority	Total allocation for education 1987-88	Assumed schools element
Borders	1,134	932
Central	3,065	2,854
Dumfries and Galloway	1,306	929
Fife	4,180	3,553
Grampian	3,965	2,845
Highland	3,020	2,181
Lothian	6,647	4,842
Strathclyde	20,378	18,239
Tayside	3,440	2,715
Orkney	975	923
Shetland	840	679
Western Isles	4,360	3,533

Notes:
1. Total allocation figures include where appropriate, assumed levels of capital financed from current revenue.
2. Both sets of figures include the enhancement of consent issued in August 1987 for the purchase of equipment for science, technological and computing studies courses in secondary schools.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the bid by each Scottish local education authority to his Department for a capital allocation for expenditure on schools for 1987-88.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The bids made by local authorities in Scotland for consent to incur liability to meet capital expenditure on their education programmes in 1987-88 and the amounts included in such bids for school building, are given in the table.

£000 at cash prices

Regional Islands Authority	Total bid for education building	Bid for school building
Borders	1,348	1,122
Central	3,808	3,118
Dumfries and Galloway	3,387	1,345
Fife	6,573	5,034
Grampian	3,312	2,657
Highland	4,130	3,446
Lothian	8,555	5,836
Strathclyde	24,888	22,161
Tayside	3,701	2,862
Orkney	967	910
Shetland	983	643
Western Isles	5,158	3,783

Rates Relief

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what percentage of those who are eligible to vote in local government elections in (a) Tayside region and (b) Dundee district authority are (i) domestic ratepayers, (ii) spouses of domestic ratepayers and (iii) people who receive any relief from domestic rates because of special needs.

Mr. Lang: This information is not held centrally.

Epilepsy

Mr. Ingram: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he intends to issue further guidance to health boards in Scotland on the provision of health services for patients with epilepsy to that issued in 1968 in the Hutchinson report "The Medical Care of Epilepsy in Scotland;" and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I have no plans to issue such guidance.

Doctors and Consultants (Telephones)

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement about arrangements for funding emergency repair cover for the house telephones of doctors and consultants working in the National Health Service in Scotland.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: British Telecom is in the process of changing the arrangements for the operation and funding of emergency repairs to telephones at National Health Service premises and at the homes of key personnel. The Scottish Home and Health Department is consulting interested parties about ways of ensuring that key personnel (including general practitioners and hospital consultants) can be contacted quickly in cases of urgency, even when there is a fault on their home telephone line. The Department aims to identify arrangements which represent good value for public money, do not conflict with the terms of service of the key personnel concerned and, above all, are effective.

Fine Defaulters

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the percentage of inmates in Scottish prisons sent there due to fines defaults for each year since 1974.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The available information is set out in the table:

Fine Defaulters as percentage of Total Average Daily Population in Penal Establishments in Scotland

	Percentage
1974	5·7
1975	6·6
1976	6·6
1977	5·9
1978	6·1
1979	6·4
1980	7·9
1981	5·1
1982	4·8
1983	4·5
1984	5·4
1985	5·8
1986	5·9
1987	5·2

Prison Statistics

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total number of inmates in Scottish prisons in each year since 1974.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The average daily penal population in 1987 is provisionally estimated as 5,446. For earlier years, corresponding figures are given in appendix 2 of the annual reports "Prisons in Scotland" for 1985 and 1986.

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the number of inmates in Scottish prisons aged (a) between 16 to 18 years (b) between 18 to 21 years and (c) between 21 to 25 years.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Detailed information is not available on the age distribution of the penal population in Scotland. The average daily penal population in 1987 is provisionally estimated as 5,446—of these 987 were young offenders under sentence, aged under 21.

An analysis by age of remand, direct sentenced and fine default receptions in 1986 was published in tables 8, 10 and 19 of Scottish Home and Health Department statistical bulletin No. 6/1987, "Prison Statistics Scotland 1986" (copies of which are available in the Library).

Education (Under-sixes)

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he will publish a report on the Scottish Education Department's review of provisions for the under-sixes.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The review has been discontinued and I do not intend to publish a report.

Islay (Wild Birds)

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will describe the measures taken to prevent disturbance to wild birds in the proposed special protection area known as the Rinns, by the licensed shooting of white-fronted geese on Islay.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The special interest of the Rinns of Islay, including the habitats of wild birds, is protected by the area having been notified as a site of special scientific interest by the Nature Conservancy Council. None of the licences issued for the shooting of white-fronted geese on Islay permit shooting on land contained within the Rinns SSSI.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the impact of the killing of white-fronted geese on Islay on the conservation efforts and the distribution of the Greenland race of the species; and if he will make his policy to refuse any further applications for licences.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: As the primary objective is to scare the geese away from land being cropped, we would expect only a relatively small number to be shot.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will be measuring the effectiveness of the licences recently issued for the killing of white-fronted geese; and if a report will be made.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The issue of licences to shoot white-fronted geese is part of an overall package of measures to contain the geese within protected areas and other land providing their natural habitats. The effects of the measures are being monitored and a report will be compiled at the end of the over-wintering period.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will consider giving financial compensation to the farmers on Islay for damage caused by white-fronted geese and withdrawing the licences issued for shooting; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The Nature Conservancy Council has agreements with farmers within the sites of special scientific interest to compensate for goose damage. The protection of crops and improved grassland outwith these areas is essential to the continued viability of agricultural production on Islay and a more widely based compensation policy would not offer an appropriate solution.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the number of white-fronted geese killed to date; and if he anticipates issuing any further licences for killing them.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Shooting is primarily intended to scare the geese and inquiries made by officials of my Department have indicated that in the period to 31 January 1988 none had been killed. The position is being kept under review and consideration will be given to the case for issuing further licences if it can be demonstrated that serious damage to crops or improved grassland is being caused by the geese.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if, pursuant to the reply of 20 January, Official

Report, column 720, he received any advice from the Nature Conservancy Council in respect of the licences to shoot white-fronted geese.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The Nature Conservancy Council was given advance notice of the proposal to issue licences to shoot white-fronted geese. It indicated that it could not support the proposal.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if, pursuant to the reply of 20 January, Official Report, column 720, he will detail the terms of the respective licences to shoot white-fronted geese, including the number of birds permitted to be killed under each licence.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Since the licence is a lengthy document I am sending a copy to the hon. Member.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if, pursuant to the reply of 20 January, Official Report, column 720, he will indicate the evidence he considered in assessing the serious damage to crops for the purposes of issuing licences to kill white-fronted geese; and if he will indicate the extent to which alternative solutions were considered and tested.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: On receipt of an application for a licence to protect a farm from serious damage by white-fronted geese, experienced members of my Department's agricultural staff report on the numbers of geese feeding and the extent of the damage being caused to crops and grassland. A licence would not normally be issued unless significant numbers of geese were feeding on the land. White-fronted geese are difficult to keep away from crops for any length of time, and shooting is needed to complement other methods of scaring.

EMPLOYMENT

London Docklands

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment whether the Manpower Services Commission has any projects targeted on London docklands apart from the general programmes.

Mr. Cope: In addition to the Manpower Services Commission's mainstream programmes which are designed to respond to local needs in London docklands, as elsewhere, the MSC has a number of other initiatives. For the London docklands these include a local collaborative project, which aims to establish a long-term partnership between employers and training providers and a local employer network to encourage the involvement of employers in local vocational education and training issues.

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment whether he will issue instructions for the removal of offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Nicholls: The programme of action to achieve equality for women which the Cabinet Office (Management and Personnel Office) issued in 1984 recommended that Departments should advise their staff that sexual harassment at work was not tolerated and would be treated as a disciplinary offence. The guidance issued to my staff gives examples of what might constitute sexual harassment. These include

"displays and circulation of sexually offensive material, for example pin-ups".

I do not therefore consider that any further instructions are needed.

Wages (Underpayment)

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many cases of underpayment the wages inspectorate investigated in each of the past five years in (a) the Northunnel travel-to-work area, (b) the Chester travel-to-work area and (c) the Runcorn travel-to-work area; how many checks were the results of complaints by staff; how many the result of routine spot checks; and what were the outcomes.

Mr. Nicholls: Statistics are not compiled for areas smaller than the nine wages inspectorate divisions.

Accidents at Work

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will give the number of (a) accidents, (b) serious injuries and (c) deaths arising at the workplace for each year since 1975.

Mr. Nicholls: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Oldham, West (Mr. Meacher) Official Report 16 December 1987, at column 578.

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he has any information on the breakdown of accidents at work in small companies since 1975.

Mr. Nicholls: I regret that the information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, some details on this can be found in the publication "Health and Safety Statistics 1984-85", copies of which were placed in the Library.

Major Accident Hazards

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will publish in the Official Report a list of those industrial installations in west Glamorgan which are covered by the Control of Industrial Major Accident Hazards Regulations 1984 (S.I. 1984, No. 1902); and whether the amending European Community directive 87/216 has yet been applied to any of them.

Mr. Nicholls: The industrial installations in west Glamorgan notified to the Health and Safety Executive under the Control of Industrial Major Accident Hazards Regulations 1984 are;

1. BP Chemicals Limited, Port Talbot;
2. British Gas Corporation, E M Edwards Works, Jersey Marine, Neath;
3. BP Oil (Llandarcy) Refinery Limited, Llandarcy, Neath;
4. BP Oil (Llandarcy) Refinery Limited, Queens Dock, Swansea;
5. Calor Gas Limited, Aberdulais;
6. Inco (Europe) Limited, Clydach.

Compliance with the EC directive 87/216 is required by 24 September 1988. Regulations to implement the directive in Great Britain are currently being prepared.

Labour Statistics

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many constituencies in (a) Scotland and (b) the United Kingdom as a whole have had a higher percentage rate of unemployment than Dundee East for each year since 1979.

Mr. Lee: The information requested is not available. Unemployment rates are not calculated for areas smaller that travel-to-work areas.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) how many people have been employed in the agricultural industry in each of the last 10 years;

(2) how many people were employed in the coal mining industry in each of the last 10 years;

(3) how many people were employed in the shipbuilding and ship-repairing industries in each of the last 10 years;

(4) how many people were employed in the steel industry in each of the last 10 years.

Mr. Lee: The available information is as follows:

Employees in Employment in Great Britain

June of each year	Agriculture and Horticulture 1	Coal Extraction and Solid Fuels (111)	Shipbuilding and Repairs (3610)	Iron and Steel (2210)
1977	358,000	312,000	142,000	222,000
1978	354,000	308,000	141,000	199,000
1979	339,000	299,000	135,000	191,000
1980	332,000	298,000	122,000	168,000
1981	324,000	285,000	113,000	130,000
1982	320,000	271,000	114,000	114,000
1983	312,000	257,000	109,000	95,000
1984	302,000	234,000	89,000	85,000
1985	304,000	219,000	82,000	83,000
1986	292,000	183,000	79,000	75,000
1987	283,000	154,000	72,000	72,000

[1] Figures in brackets denote Groups and Activity Headings of the Standard Industrial Classification 1980.

The figures are unadjusted for the effects of seasonal variations.

The estimates for shipbuilding and repairs and iron and steel are subject to considerable potential estimation error due to the relatively small number of employees in these industries.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the current estimate for unclaimed benefit in (a) Scotland as a whole, (b) Tayside region and (c) Dundee.

Mr. Portillo: I have been asked to reply.

For statistical reasons it is possible to provide take-up estimates only for Great Britain as a whole. A convenient summary of the national position is shown on pages 272 and 273 of the 1988 public expenditure White Paper (Cm. 288).

WALES

Cancer Screening

8. Mr. Geraint Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he has any proposals to increase the level of provision of mammography units and cervical cancer screening units in Wales.

Mr. Grist: The number of mammography units in Wales is to be increased as part of the centrally funded breast screening programme. The provision of cervical screening is the responsibility of district health authorities. Some £800,000 a year of central funding has been allocated over the last two years to help authorities develop and extend the service they provide.

Regional Development Fund

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his most up-to-date estimate of the planned provision for payment of regional development grant, separately for old scheme and new scheme (a) gross and (b) net of European regional development fund receipts, for 1987-88, 1988-89, 1989-90 and 1990-91.

Mr. Peter Walker: Planned regional development grant provision in Wales is as follows:

£ million

	Old scheme	New scheme
1987-88	22·0	34·0
1988-89	17·0	46·5
1989-90	2·0	40·0
1990-91	0·6	27·0

These figures are gross of receipts from the European regional development fund. The provision for ERDF receipts towards RDG expenditure is £3·8 million in 1987-88 and £1·5 million in 1988-89. Information is not available at this stage on the likely level of ERDF receipts beyond 1988-89. The United Kingdom will, however, continue to claim reimbursement from the European Commission in respect of both regional development grant schemes.

14. Mr. Knox: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the total value of grants which Wales has received from the European regional development fund in each of the last three years.

Mr. Peter Walker: Net commitment to Wales from the European regional development fund was £54·9 million in 1985, £59·5 million in 1986 and £53·8 million in 1987.

Regional Aid

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether regional selective assistance will be available for United Kingdom firms moving from one region of the United Kingdom to Wales, or opening new branches in Wales following the change in policy announced on 12 January.

Mr. Peter Walker: Regional selective assistance will continue to be available for all qualifying projects which improve employment opportunities in the assisted areas. Projects which move from elsewhere in Great Britain will be eligible for assistance on the additional employment which they create. Since 1984 relocation projects involving no net increase in jobs have not normally been assisted and that policy has not changed as a consequence of the announcements made on 12 January.

Bus Deregulation

Sir Raymond Gower: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the results to date of the deregulation of buses in Wales; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Wyn Roberts: Initial research by the Department of Transport's Transport and Road Research Laboratory indicates that overall bus deregulation in Wales has been successful. Monitoring of the position is continuing.

Bypasses

Sir Raymond Gower: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many road bypass schemes have been completed in Wales since January 1987.

Mr. Wyn Roberts: Two; the A48 Crosshands-Llanddarog bypass and A483 Ruabon bypass and Wynnstay link.

Measles, Whooping Cough and Polio

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) if he plans any new schemes to increase parental compliance with the need for increased vaccination against measles, whooping cough and polio;

(2) by what percentage the uptake of (a) measles, (b) triple vaccine, including whooping cough, and (c) poliomyelitis vaccination falls short of the target level of 90 per cent. in each of the health authorities in Wales for each of the last six years.

Mr. Grist: Considerable efforts, including notably the designation of an appropriate individual in each district health authority to co-ordinate immunisation activity, have been made in recent years to achieve a significant improvement in the uptake rates for vaccination against a range of childhood infectious diseases. A public education campaign aimed both at raising awareness of the need for children to be protected against these illnesses and at motivating parents and health professionals alike has been promoted by Health Departments. There has been a marked improvement in the rates of vaccination against each of these diseases in all Welsh district health authorities, though some remain disappointingly low. Our officials will be considering with the Welsh Health Promotion Authority and district health authorities what further measures might be appropriate to achieve further improvement. In particular, consideration will be given to sensitive and appropriate methods of overcoming the resistance which continues to be evident in relation to the take-up of vaccination against both measles and whooping cough. The introduction of the new combined vaccine against measles, mumps and rubella later this year is expected to play a major part in this process.

Health authorities in Wales were advised of the target uptake rate of 90 per cent. by 1990 for measles immunisation only in August 1985. At the same time they were invited to establish their own individual targets for diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus and poliomyelitis. The tables set out the percentage uptake rates for immunisation against each of these diseases, by health authority, for the years 1981 to 1986 inclusive.

Children vaccinated as percentage of the total born in the second previous year

Health Authority and year	Measles	Diphtheria	Whooping Cough	Tetanus	Polio
Clwyd
1981	50·1	81·2	39·8	81·3	81·5
1982	53·6	82·8	45·6	82·8	83·3
1983	54·9	84·9	52·8	84·9	85·3
1984	57·1	83·9	59·7	84·0	84·1
1985	64·4	86·0	59·7	86·0	86·1
1986	71·4	87·1	62·7	87·2	87·3
East Dyfed
1981	27·9	86·1	27·3	87·9	81·2
1982	30·8	86·4	31·1	86·6	82·3
1983	45·1	83·7	33·6	83·7	83·8
1984	53·5	86·5	44·9	86·5	86·5
1985	63·3	87·7	47·8	87·7	87·9
1986	65·0	88·6	50·0	88·7	88·2
Gwent
1981	48·4	84·2	30·5	84·2	85·0
1982	51·7	85·3	38·0	85·5	86·2
1983	54·4	86·2	46·7	86·3	87·1
1984	57·4	85·9	53·9	85·9	86·2
1985	62·5	87·4	52·2	87·4	87·8
1986	64·6	87·2	54·1	87·2	87·7
Gwynedd
1981	33·9	80·6	27·6	80·8	80·5

Health Authority and year	Measles	Diphtheria	Whooping Cough	Tetanus	Polio
1982	37·5	82·2	35·8	82·3	81·9
1983	37·1	79·8	44·5	80·0	80·0
1984	46·0	81·5	52·9	81·6	81·1
1985	58·4	86·2	55·8	86·2	85·6
1986	68·0	89·9	60·1	89·9	90·1
Mid Glamorgan
1981	28·6	76·1	18·6	76·2	76·8
1982	34·7	79·7	24·1	79·6	80·9
1983	36·6	80·1	31·7	80·1	80·7
1984	40·8	79·1	42·1	79·0	79·6
1985	48·5	81·2	42·3	81·2	81·5
1986	50·2	81·0	43·7	81·1	81·5
Pembrokeshire
1981	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1982	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1983	61·8	88·9	60·6	88·8	89·1
1984	64·0	85·8	64·0	85·8	85·7
1985	71·3	87·8	64·1	87·9	88·1
1986	76·7	87·4	64·8	87·5	87·5
Powys
1981	53·2	74·6	32·4	74·5	74·3
1982	56·4	91·8	46·9	92·1	93·2
1983	60·7	91·0	40·4	91·0	91·6
1984	64·9	91·1	63·3	91·3	91·4
1985	70·8	94·5	61·9	94·6	94·5
1986	76·9	95·9	65·1	95·5	96·5
South Glamorgan
1981	27·2	69·0	22·4	69·0	69·1
1982	34·7	77·8	31·6	77·8	78·4
1983	37·6	77·0	40·4	77·1	77·2
1984	42·2	75·2	47·6	75·2	74·9
1985	53·8	78·4	49·5	78·4	77·1
1986	55·6	79·0	52·0	79·0	79·1
West Glamorgan
1981	22·7	70·3	19·1	70·3	70·8
1982	25·9	75·2	24·4	75·2	75·4
1983	31·4	76·7	33·7	76·9	77·2
1984	35·9	76·3	43·0	76·3	76·3
1985	49·9	79·7	43·9	79·7	80·1
1986	56·5	84·0	51·3	84·0	85·0
Wales
1981	35·0	77·8	26·2	78·0	77·6
1982	[illegible]	81·4	32·7	81·5	81·7
1983	43·9	81·8	41·6	81·9	82·3
1984	48·3	81·3	49·9	81·3	81·1
1985	57·3	83·7	50·4	83·8	83·7
1986	61·3	84·9	53·3	84·9	85·2

n/a—Not available.

Obstetric Units

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many of the obstetric units run by general practitioners for each area health authority in Wales have no provision of anaesthetic services.

Mr. Grist: This is a matter of operational policy for the health authorities concerned and I suggest that the hon. Gentleman writes to the district general managers.

AIDS

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what information he has about the decision of the United States national institutes of health to instruct all biological laboratories to review their safety guidelines following the reported infection of two laboratory workers with the AIDS virus after working with concentrated samples; and whether he will carry out such a review of procedures in medical and biological laboratories in Wales.

Mr. Grist: The Department receives advice on such matters from the Government's Advisory Committee on Dangerous Pathogens and the expert advisory group on AIDS.

In July 1986 comprehensive advice was issued to all concerned in the ACDP document "LAV/HTLVIII—the causative agent of AIDS and related conditions—revised guidelines". Guidance is constantly under review to ensure that it reflects the latest expert opinion both in the United Kingdom and abroad. We have no plans to initiate a special review to supplement these arrangements.

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what information he has as to the median waiting time for operations in each Welsh health district for the 10 most common types of operation; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Grist: I shall write to my hon. Friend and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Labour Statistics

12. Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many men and how many women were in full-time employment in June 1979 and December 1987 in (a) Bridgend, (b) Mid Glamorgan and (c) Wales.

Mr. Peter Walker: In Wales, total male employment was 618,000 in June 1979 and 486,000 in September 1987 (the latest available date); equivalents for full-time female employment are 250,000 and 210,000 (these figures exclude self employed). Figures for Bridgend and Mid Glamorgan are not available, nor are separate figures for full-time male employees.

Gwynedd Health Authority

19. Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he last met the chairman of Gwynedd health authority; and what matters were discussed.

Mr. Grist: My right hon. Friend and I, together with the Minister of State, met the chairman of Gwynedd health authority on 15 December 1987, when the authority's financial position and plans for financial recovery were discussed.

Rating Reform

28. Mr. Raffan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on his policy with regard to the charge which will be payable for static caravans used as second or holiday homes under the community charge in Wales; and whether he will make it his policy that the charge will be the same as in England and Scotland.

Mr. Grist: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave today to my hon. Friend the Member for Pembroke (Mr. Bennett).

DEFENCE

Army Vehicles

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received about army vehicles driving on public highways after dark without lights; and what steps are taken to warn other road users when this occurs.

Mr. Freeman: No representations have been received about army vehicles driving on public highways after dark without lights. It is against regulations for army vehicles to use the public highway after dark unless in exceptional circumstances a special exemption has been secured; no such exemptions have been sought in recent years.

Black Officers

Mr. Bernie Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the name and rank of the highest ranking black officer in the armed forces; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Freeman: The armed forces are fully integrated, non-discriminating organisations and no records are kept of the ethnic origins of personnel. Therefore, no information can be provided on the origins, number or rank of those from the ethnic minorities.

Defence Procurement

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he will give the value of procurement business given to Moores Wallisdown Ltd in each of the years from 1980 to 1985 separately.

Mr. Sainsbury: The overall value of HQ contracts placed with Moores Wallisdown Ltd. is as follows:

	£ '000
1982-83	30
1983-84	161
1984-85	nil
1985-86	238

Information for earlier years could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he will state the value of procurement business given to Altonjet in the years 1985, 1986 and 1987 separately.

Mr. Sainsbury: We have no record of any HQ contracts having been placed with this company. No central record is maintained of orders placed locally and an investigation could only be carried out at disproportionate cost.

Research Contracts

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many research agreements or contracts his Department has currently placed with the University of Southampton; and what are the subjects into which the research is being carried out;

(2) how many research agreements or contracts his Department has currently placed with the University of Birmingham; and what are the subjects into which the research is being carried out;

(3) how many research agreements or contracts his Department has currently placed with the University of Aston in Birmingham; and what are the subjects into which the research is being carried out.

Mr. Sainsbury: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Bow and Poplar (Mrs. Gordon) on 14 January at column 775.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many research agreements or contracts the Atomic Weapons Research Establishment has currently placed with universities and other establishments of higher education; and what is the total cost of these agreements and contracts.

Mr. Sainsbury: The Atomic Weapons Establishment has currently 41 research contracts or agreements placed with universities and other establishments of higher education. The total value of these agreements and contracts is £2 million.

Service Engagements (Termination)

Mr. Sean Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many soldiers from each regiment of the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers left the Army without completing three years service; in each year since 1979;

(2) how many soldiers from the Parachute Regiment left the Army before completing three years service in each year since 1979;

(3) how many soldiers from the Royal Welsh Fusiliers left the Army before completing three years service, in each year since 1979;

(4) how many soldiers from the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders left the Army before completing three years service, in each year since 1979;

(5) how many soldiers from each regiment of the Royal Engineers left the Army before completing three years service, in each year since 1979;

(6) how many soldiers from each regiment of the Royal Signals left the Army before completing three years service, in each year since 1979.

Mr. Freeman: I will write to the hon. Member.

Captain Fred Holroyd

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if any assistance was given by his Department to the Royal Ulster Constabulary inquiry in 1982 into the allegations of Captain Fred Holroyd, retired.

Mr. Freeman: Yes.

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what full and careful investigations were carried out into the allegations made by Captain Holroyd, retired, and Mr. Colin Wallace, referred to in the Official Report, 3 March 1987, column 577, and when.

Mr. Freeman: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Linlithgow (Mr. Dalyell) on 20 July 1987, at column 93.

Nuclear Tests (Radiation Victims)

Mr. Churchill: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence up to which date the recent National Radiological Protection Board report studied mortality in relation to Britain's nuclear test veterans; by how many since that date the number of deaths from multiple myeloma among nuclear veterans has increased; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: In planning the conduct of the study, before any mortality data had been obtained, NRPB decided that it would attempt to take account of all deaths prior to 1 January 1984. The main results of the study refer to that date, although the authors refer in passing to some notifications received later than the above cut-off date. The Government, in the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Salisbury (Mr. Key) on 28 January at column 309, have already said they would co-operate in implementing the recommendations by NRPB to continue the study for a further period of 10 years. The further data to which the hon. Member refers will be included in that extension to the study.

European Fighter Aircraft

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to receive notification from his West German counterpart of his Government's agreement to the further development phase of the European fighter aircraft.

Mr. Sainsbury: The co-ordination of four separate national approvals is necessarily complex, and allowance must be made for the different timings involved. We are encouraging our partners to reach their decisions as quickly as possible.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the F18 fighter aircraft or any of its derivatives meets the agreed operational requirements of the proposed European fighter aircraft.

Mr. Sainsbury: No.

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a further statement on the future progress of the European fighter aircraft project.

Mr. Sainsbury: Further to the reply I gave to the hon. Members for Caerphilly (Mr. Davies) and for Motherwell, North (Dr. Reid) on 10 November 1987 at column 157, the processing of national development submissions in each of the four partner nations is continuing. The development phase will be formally launched as soon as these activities have been brought to a successful conclusion. We expect this to be in the next few months.

Service Personnel (Electors)

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will detail the process by which members of each branch of the armed services may register as electors.

Mr. Freeman: Service personnel are encouraged to register as voters and may then vote in local, parliamentary and European elections. They register by service declaration form F/Vote/33 available in all ships, units or stations. Service declarations do not have to be completed annually. They are valid for the whole of the individual's service but may, of course, be amended.

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps are taken to encourage service personnel in each branch of the armed forces to register as electors.

Mr. Freeman: It is our aim to achieve the highest possible level of service registration and we use a variety of means to encourage service men to register, including annual Defence Council instructions to commanding officers, compulsory displays of noticeboard information material, articles and advertisements in service magazines and newspapers, and radio broadcasts on British forces broadcasting services. All recruit training includes a period on voting rights and registration procedures. Families posted overseas are issued with further advice. Registration performance is monitored by each of the three services.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to the written answer of 11 December 1987, Official Report, column 312, to what inquiries about correspondence between third parties and his Department he is willing to respond.

Mr. Freeman: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave on that occasion.

Army Chaplains

Mr. Sean Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many chaplains are currently attached to the Army; and how many are of each rank.

Mr. Freeman (holding answer 4 February 1988): There are currently 160 chaplains in the Regular Army. The numbers in each rank are:

1 Major General (Chaplain General)
1 Brigadier (Deputy Chaplain General)
9 Colonels (1 Principal Roman Catholic Chaplain, 8 Chaplains Class I)
35 Lieutenant Colonels (Chaplains Class II)
64 Majors (Chaplains Class III)
50 Captains (Chaplains Class IV)

In addition, there are 108 chaplains commissioned into the Territorial Army and 140 Army Cadet Force chaplains. All TA and ACF chaplains join as chaplains class IV (Captains) and can attain the acting rank of chaplain class III (Acting Major) after six years service.

NORTHERN IRELAND

RUC (Injury and Sickness)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Belfast, South of 27 January, Official Report, column 292, how many of the total days off sick or injured by members of the Royal Ulster Constabulary were attributable to (a) injury and (b) sickness; and if he will give this information for the last five years, stating average days off per capita.

Mr. Stanley: The information in respect of the regular RUC is as follows:

	Injury on duty	Average per member	Sickness	Average per member
1983	14,233	1·78	77,155	9·64
1984	17,444	2·15	92,604	11·39
1985	21,351	1·58	111,318	13·48
1986	23,527	2·86	124,780	15·15
1987	Figures not yet available

Positive Vetting

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many civil servants in the Northern Ireland Office between 1965 and 1985 failed positive vetting.

Mr. Stanley: As the Government have made clear previously, it would be inconsistent with the confidentiality of the positive vetting procedure to give information of this kind.

Criminal Injury Claims

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what figures are available to indicate the numbers of criminal injuries claims for each year since 1975 arising from so-called punishment attacks, the total amounts of compensation paid and the number of cases contested in court.

Mr. Stanley [holding answer 29 January 1988]: The information that is readily available relates only to criminal injury claims for punishment shootings in the form of "kneecapping" and is as follows:

Kneecapping cases

Year	Claims received	Claims withdrawn	Compensation refused		Compensation awarded		Claims outstanding	Compensation paid (£)
			By Secretary of State	By courts	By Secretary of State	By courts
1977	15	1	3	3	7	1	—	16,841
1978	19	3	5	2	8	1	—	29,797
1979	14	2	3	2	6	1	—	16,200
1980	18	2	6	1	6	3	—	36,100
1981	37	2	1	9	17	7	1	170,600
1982	28	3	—	2	13	8	2	168,150
1983	6	—	3	2	1	—	—	1,750
1984	5	—	—	—	3	—	2	85,500
1985	3	—	—	—	—	—	3	—
1986	2	—	—	—	—	—	2	—
1987	5	—	—	—	—	—	5	—
Totals	152	13	21	21	61	21	15	524,938

United States Politicians (Visits)

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many locally and nationally elected United States politicians have been invited during each of the last 10 years to visit Northern Ireland at public expense; what positions they held; what was the full cost in each case; how many were involved in each party; how many brought their spouses or other relatives; and, in those cases, who paid.

Mr. Stanley [holding answer 3 February 1988]: Invitations to United States politicians to visit Northern Ireland at public expense are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Mortgage Tax Relief

Sir Peter Hordern: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many individuals received mortgage tax relief in shared accommodation, not counting married couples; and what was the value of such relief in the last year for which figures are available.

Mr. Norman Lamont: It is tentatively estimated that about 500,000 individuals (excluding married couples) are involved in multiple borrower mortgages. The direct revenue cost in 1987-88 of the additional mortgage interest relief which is available to sharers is estimated to be about £25 million.

Capital Gains Tax

Sir Peter Hordern: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the revenue derived in the last year for which figures are available from capital gains tax on assets held for more than (a) 10 years, (b) 15 years and (c) 20 years.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The liability to capital gains tax, expressed as a proportion of the total net liability accruing on the disposal of assets during 1985-86, is estimated to be about (a) 50 per cent., (b) 30 per cent. and (c) 20 per cent. respectively. These figures exclude tax on the capital gains of companies chargeable to corporation tax.

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received regarding the effects of capital gains tax upon the deployment of investment in British business.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My right hon. Friend has received a number of representations.

Income Tax

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he has any estimate of what a 1p, 2p, 3p, 4p, 5p, 6p and 7p cut in the standard rate of income tax would represent as a percentage pay increase for a man on national average earnings.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The information is in the table:

Reduction in basic rate of income tax
Increase in income after tax as a percentage of gross earnings for a married man on average earnings, 1988-89

Pence	Per cent.
1	0·7
2	1·4
3	2·1
4	2·8
5	3·4
6	4·1
7	4·8

It is assumed that the man's earnings are his only source of income. Average earnings are those for men in all occupations paid at adult rates who work a full week and whose pay is unaffected by absence. This figure is projected to 1988-89 in accordance with the assumptions given to the Government Actuary for reviewing national insurance contributions in paragraph 3.02 of the Autumn Statement 1987. The married man's allowance for 1988-89 is calculated by reference to the statutory formula for indexation.

Income Tax

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what additional annual income net of tax and national insurance would result from (a) a 2p cut in the basic rate of income tax and (b) the reduction of all high rate income tax bands to 40 per cent. for (i) a person, (ii) an income tax payer, (iii) a household and (iv) average family of four.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 29 January 1988]: The effects of the proposed changes depend on the level of income. Estimates are given in the tables, for selected specimen incomes. The income tax changes are compared with the 1987-88 tax regime indexed to 1988-89 according to the statutory provisions and disregard any changes in the social security income related benefits to which the family may be entitled. The number of children in a family would not affect the tax liability.

Increase in income after tax and national insurance (£ per annum) compared with indexation in 1988-89

	Multiple of average male earnings[1]
	½	¾	1	1¼	2	3
Increased derived from:
(a) 2 pence cut in basic rate
(i) single	77	141	204	331	459	1,222
(ii) married couple wife not earning	48	112	176	303	430	1,194
(iii) married couple wife earning[2]	82	188	294	505	716	1,985
(b) reduction of all higher rates of income tax to 40 per cent.
(i) single	—	—	—	—	87	5,971
(ii) married couple wife not earning	—	—	—	—	15	5,685
(iii) married couple wife earning[2]	—	—	—	—	87	7,794

[1] Average male earnings assumed to be £244·70 per week; an increase of 6·5 per cent. on 1987-88 in line with the assumptions used by the Government Actuary for reviewing National Insurance contributions (paragraph 3.02 of the Autumn Statement 1987).
[2] Assuming that the wife's earnings are the same multiple of average earnings as her husband's.

Mr. Darling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what was the estimated income tax forgone in 1986-87 by the Treasury from taxpayers earning (a) between £20,000 and £50,000 and (b) more than £50,000 as a result of beneficial loans from employers;

(2) what was the estimated income tax forgone in 1986-87 by the Treasury from taxpayers earning (a) between £20,000 and £50,000 and (b) more than £50,000 as a result of loans from an employer to purchase a residence;

(3) what was the estimated income tax forgone in 1986-87 by the Treasury from taxpayers earning (a) between £20,000 and £50,000 and (b) more than £50,000 as a result of loans from an employer to purchase a car.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answers 4 February 1988]: Employees earning at a rate of £8,500 or more per year and all directors who receive an interest-free or cheap loan from their employer are liable to income tax on the difference between interest calculated at the official rate and the actual interest paid. When the benefit of the cheap loan is less than £200 in the year, no tax is charged. Estimates of the cost of this tax exemption are not available.

Tax is not charged if the loan is such that any interest paid on it would be eligible for tax relief—for example, qualifying loans up to £30,000 to purchase a main residence. It is estimated that the total income tax forgone as a result of this exemption is around £100 million, but I regret that it is not possible to estimate the cost attributable to those earning over £20,000 per year.

Mr. Darling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the estimated income tax forgone in 1986-87 by the Treasury from taxpayers earning (a) between £20,000 and £50,000 and (b) more than £50,000 as a result of personal equity plans.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 4 February 1988]: The income tax relief on personal equity plans is in respect of dividend and interest payments on investments. Since personal equity plans were not available until January 1987, the income tax forgone in 1986-87 was negligible.

Mr. Darling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what was the estimated income tax forgone in 1986-87 by the Treasury from taxpayers earnings (a) between £20,000 and £50,000 and (b) more than £50,000 as a result of savings-related share option schemes.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 4 February 1988]: The total cost of income tax forgone in 1986-87 as a result of approved savings-related share option schemes is estimated at £50 million. I regret that it is not possible to subdivide this between different income groups.

Mr. Darling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, what was the estimated income tax forgone in 1986-87 by the Treasury from taxpayers earnings (a) between £20,000 and £50,000 and (b) more than £50,000 as a result of the 1984 share option scheme.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 4 February 1988]: The cost of income tax forgone in 1986-87 as a result of approved Finance Act 1984 share option schemes is negligible since options must generally be held for at least three years in order to qualify for relief.

Income Tax

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many earners did not directly benefit from the cut in the standard rate of income tax in 1987-88; and how many earners would not benefit from a further cut in the standard rate to 25 per cent. in 1988-89, assuming indexation of personal allowances.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 26 January 1988]: It is estimated that in 1987-88 and 1988-89 between 3 and 3·5 million earners (including part-time workers) would have insufficient income to benefit from reductions in the basic rate.

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what would be the cost of reintroducing a reduced rate band of income tax, worth the same as that band in 1978-79 in real terms, in 1988-89.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 26 January 1988]: The full-year direct revenue cost of reintroducing a reduced rate band of income tax in 1988-89, charging the first £1,650 of taxable income at 19 per cent. and worth the same to taxpayers in real terms as the band in 1978-89, would be about £3 billion. The cost assumes indexation of the current income tax bands and allowances according to the statutory formula.

Budget Statement

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received about his forthcoming Budget Statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My right hon. Friend has received a large number of representations covering a variety of proposals.

Luncheon Vouchers

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking a review of the 15p tax-free allowance on luncheon vouchers; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My right hon. Friend has received a number of representations. Decisions on changes in taxation are a matter for the Chancellor of the Exchequer and will be announced in his Budget Statement.

Pension Funds

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will detail the type of information requested on pension funds by the Inland Revenue (technical division) special office, Sheffield.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Tax-approved pension funds are exempt from tax only on their income and gains derived from holding investments. In each case, inquiries have been made to establish whether the tax exemption applies to all the fund's activities.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if, pursuant to his answer of 25 January, Official Report, column 85, he will list the 12 pension funds from whom information has been requested.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 4 February 1988]: No. Information about particular taxpayers is confidential to the Inland Revenue.

Private Health Insurance

Mr. Chris Butler: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking relief from the taxation of employees' contributions to private health care insurance.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My right hon. Friend has received a number of representations.

Deputy Secretaries

Mr. Tom Arnold: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the responsibilities of each of the deputy secretaries in his Department and the number and ranks of staff reporting to each.

Mr. Brooke: The information as at 1 January 1988 is as follows:

Deputy Secretary (Grade 2) Overseas Finance
Responsibilities:
European Community Group
Aid and Export Finance Group
Senior UK Director of the European Investment Bank
United Kingdom representation at international financial and economic meetings
Two Grade 3, four Grade 5 and 38½ other staff

Deputy Secretary (Grade 2) Public Finance
Responsibilities:
Fiscal Policy Group
Financial Institutions and Markets Group
Monetary Group
Public Sector Finances Group
North Sea Development and Policy
Three Grade 3, eight Grade 5 and 99 other staff

Deputy Secretary (Grade 2) Industry
Responsibilities:
Public Enterprises Group
Industry, Agriculture and Employment Group
Two Grade 3, five Grade 5 and 64 other staff

Deputy Secretary (Grade 2) Public Services
Responsibilities:
Social Services and Territorial Group
Local Government Group
Home, Transport and Education Group
Treasury Officer of Accounts and Purchasing
Financial Management Group
Running Costs Group
Central Computer and Telecommunications Agency
Chairman of the Public Expenditure Survey Committee
Chairman of the Procurement Policy Committee
Seven Grade 3, 18 Grade 5 and 635 other staff

Deputy Secretary (Grade 2) Deputy Chief Economic Adviser
Responsibilities:
Public Enterprises Analytic Unit
Manpower Statistics
Economics of Taxation
Public Expenditure Economics and Operational Research
Micro Economic Analysis of Trade Issues
One Grade 3, seven Grade 5, 56½ other staff

Establishments and organisation group, econonic briefing division, the information division and the rating of Government property department (1,046 staff) report direct to the permanent secretary; the defence policy and material group, the general expenditue policy group and the central unit on purchasing (87½ staff) to the second permanent secretary (public expenditure); the forecast and analysis group and the medium-term and policy analysis group (36 staff) to the chief economic adviser; the international finance group (24 staff) to the second permanent secretary finance; the pay and personnel management group, the Civil Service catering organisation and superannuation division (982½ staff including 598½ industrial civil servants at CISCO) to the second permanent secretary (Civil Service management and pay); and the accountancy advice group (43 staff) reports to the accountancy adviser to the Treasury and the head of the Government accountancy service.

Inland Revenue (Sheffield)

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who is the head of the Inland Revenue (technical division) special office, Sheffield.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Mr. M. G. Longden.

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Brooke: Sexual harassment at work, of which the display of sexually offensive material is a form, is not tolerated and is dealt with, if appropriate, as a disciplinary matter through the usual Civil Service complaints procedures. Against the background of the general instructions and guidance which already exist, there is no evidence to suggest that any further instructions to deal with this particular form of sexual harassment are warranted in the Treasury.

London Weighting

Mr. Cran: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the cost to the Exchequer of paying London weighting to those civil servants in receipt of such weighting over the last five years for which figures are available.

Mr. Brooke: The estimated cost to the Exchequer of paying London weighting to civil servants in the last five financial years has been:

	£ million
1983-84	126·4
1984-85	126·8
1985-86	133·2
1986-87	141·3
1987-88	147·8

These figures exclude additions to ERNIC, superannuation and pensions as a consequence of London weighting.

Flotations

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how long before flotation stockbroking firms were invited to make proposals for the tender and how long before flotation the firm eventually used was actually chosen, in the cases of (a) British Telecom, (b) British Gas and (c) Britoil.

Mr. Norman Lamont: In the case of British Telecom, stockbroking firms were invited to tender in a press notice issued in October 1983. The broker was appointed in December 1983, and flotation took place in November 1984.

In the case of the 1985 Britoil sale, brokers were invited to tender and were appointed in May 1985. The sale of the Government's residual shareholding was in July 1985.

In the case of British Gas, brokers were invited to tender in June 1985 and the broker was appointed in July 1985. The flotation took place in November 1986.

Income Distribution

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will update his reply of 8 April 1987, Official Report, columns 263-4, to give the income distribution table for 1987-88, and his estimate for 1988-89.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 26 January 1988]: The latest available estimates are given in the tables. They are based on projections from the 1984-85 survey of personal incomes and are therefore provisional.

Distribution total income[1] 1987-88

Numbers

Range of total income Lower limit £ per annum	Tax units aged under 65			Tax units aged over 65
	Single people '000s	Married couples without wife's earned income '000s	Married couples with wife's earned income '000s	Single people '000s	Married couples without wife's earned income '000s	Married couples with wife's earned income '000s
1,000[2]	1,160	200	20	30	10	5
2,000[2]	1,090	230	70	340	30	10
3,000	980	160	70	410	90	30
4,000	910	190	100	250	180	90
5,000	1,020	210	100	140	180	90
6,000	920	270	150	100	160	70
7,000	850	350	180	70	110	70
8,000	650	370	240	100	70	60
9,000	600	410	270	50	50	60
10,000	760	800	740	80	50	80
12,000	460	830	1,260	70	60	70
15,000	310	520	1,530	50	40	80
20,000	100	180	660	30	20	50
25,000	40	90	310	10	10	20
30,000	50	110	340	20	20	20
50,000	20	40	70	5	10	10

[1] Total income for income tax purposes.
[2] Excluding those who have no Inland Revenue tax record because their earnings are below the PAYE reporting limit.

Distribution total income[1] 1988-89

Numbers

Range of total income Lower limit £ per annum	Tax units aged under 65			Tax units aged over 65
	Single people '000s	Married couples without wife's earned income '000s	Married couples with wife's earned income '000s	Single people '000s	Married couples without wife's earned income '000s	Married couples with wife's earned income '000s
1,000[2]	1,090	200	20	30	10	5
2,000[2]	1,000	220	60	280	20	10
3,000	890	140	60	390	50	20
4,000	840	190	90	260	180	90
5,000	960	190	100	160	160	80
6,000	870	190	110	110	170	80
7,000	830	280	150	60	130	60
8,000	710	330	190	80	90	60
9,000	560	380	240	70	50	50
10,000	980	820	620	90	70	90
12,000	590	890	1,110	80	60	80
15,000	360	700	1,650	50	40	80
20,000	150	220	820	30	20	50
25,000	50	100	410	20	20	30
30,000	60	130	450	20	20	30
50,000	30	60	100	10	10	10

[1] Total income for income tax purposes.
[2] Excluding those who have no Inland Revenue tax record because their earnings are below the PAYE reporting limit.

Tax Allowances

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will update his reply of 1 May 1986, Official Report, column to show what extra revenue would result from allowing all tax allowances, both personal and non-structural, at the standard rate of tax only.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 26 January 1988]: The direct revenue cost at 1987-88 levels of income of allowing personal tax allowances at rates in excess of the basic rate of income tax is estimated to be about £810 million. Information on the similar cost of other income tax reliefs is available only in respect of mortgage interest, retirement annuity premiums, employees' superannuation contributions, the business expansion scheme, and donations to charities; in total it is about £750 million. It is not possible to estimate precisely the combined yield from restricting these reliefs and personal allowances to the basis rate, but it is thought to be about £1,750 million.

These estimates make no allowance for any possible behavioural effects if allowances and reliefs were to be restricted to the basic rate.

Forestry

Ms. Quin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implication of Her Majesty's Government policy on the fiscal regime for forests of the report by the economic consultancy PIEDA, commissioned by the Council for the Protection of Rural England on tax relief for forestry, a copy of which has been forwarded to him; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 1 February 1988]: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer will give careful consideration to this report along with the many other representations he receives at this time of year.

Toxic Waste

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what physical checks are made by Customs and Excise officers at all ports registered to receive toxic waste containers, to assess if the inventory carriage notes are commensurate with the materials carried.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 5 February 1988]: Customs and Excise officers do not normally make physical checks to assess whether inventory carriage notes are commensurate with the materials carried in toxic waste containers.

Privatisation

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he has anything to add to his answer to the hon. Member for Bridgend of 14 January, Official Report, at column 388, concerning privatisation.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 4 February 1988]: I have nothing to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Bridgend (Mr. Griffiths) on 14 January.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Sheffield

Mr. Patnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the figures for Sheffield health authority's in-patient waiting lists for each of the years from 1979 to the latest year for which figures are availble.

Mr. Newton: The information requested is given in the table.

Total number of patients on the in-patient waiting list for Sheffield District Health Authority from 31 March 1979 to 31 March 1987.

Year	Position at	Total number of in-patients
1979	31 March	12,111
	31 September	11,277
1980	31 March	10,919
	31 September	10,673
1981	31 March	10,932
	31 September	11,280
1982	31 March	11,924
	31 September	14,678
1983	31 March	14,216
	31 September	13,489
1984	31 March	12,488
	31 September	12,549
1985	31 March	11,659
	31 September	11,307
1986	31 March	11,903
	31 September	11,002
1987	31 March	11,051

Macclesfield Health Authority

Mr. Neil Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will tabulate by specialty the waiting list figures in the Macclesfield health authority as at 31 March in each year since 1981.

Mr. Newton: The information requested is given in the table.

Number of patients by specialty on in-patient waiting list as at 31 March 1981 to 1987 for Macclesfield District Health Authority

Specialty	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987
General medicine	0	1	0	0	18	0	0
Geriatrics	51	27	13	14	11	0	8
General surgery	1,144	1,024	1,047	1,127	550	364	261
Ear, nose and throat	179	153	149	127	85	101	37
Traumatic and orthopaedic	590	658	555	463	326	310	270
Ophthalmology	0	0	0	0	0	0	71
Urology	0	0	0	0	0	0	100
Oral surgery	135	118	75	65	40	53	43
Orthodontics	0	0	0	0	3	2	2
Gynaecology	372	334	337	231	201	249	139
Mental handicap	0	8	10	3	3	0	0
Mental illness	53	48	34	17	0	0	0
Total	2,524	2,371	2,220	2,047	1,237	1,159	931

Mentally Ill People

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the cost per annum of caring for mentally ill patients at the lowest and highest dependency level.

Mr. Newton: The Department does not collect information on costs of caring for the mentally ill by dependency level. Health Service costing returns indicate that the cost per in-patient week in a mental illness hospital is £296 at 1987-88 prices.

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what action he proposes to take in response to the criticisms of deficiencies in regional hospital authority plans identified by the Comptroller and Auditor General in the report on community care, HC 108; and what assessment he has made of the impact of such deficiencies of the ability of his Department to formulate an accurate national overview on community care for the mentally ill;

(2) if it would assist his Department, in overseeing and guiding the development of community care policies, if some aspects of regional health authority plans could be produced to a standard format; what assessment he has made of the areas which could be standardised; and if he will make a statement;

(3) what action he proposes to take to ensure that information about the planned level of local authority services for the mentally ill is included in future National Health Service plans, in the light of the Comptroller and Auditor General's identification of the need for a balanced consideration of the service changes proposed.

Mr. Newton: We are considering how we can specify clearly in future planning guidance the key quantitative information we expect plans to contain. This consideration includes services for mentally ill people in the community, whether provided by health authorities themselves or by other agencies.

Hospitals (Funding)

Mr. Ashton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he will revise his policy of 1982 of not giving extra resources allocated to run newer bigger hospitals in areas where they have been built.

Mr. Newton: Special protection within regional health authority allocations for the revenue consequences of capital schemes ceased in 1977-78, when the recommendations of the resource allocation working party were implemented. Regional health authorities are responsible both for planning their capital investment with regard to the likely availability of revenue, and for ensuring that their annual revenue allocations to districts are sensitive to service plans, including new capital developments.

Hospital Hostels (Places)

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many places in hospital hostels or their equivalent are available in each district health authority.

Mrs. Currie: "Hospital hostel" is the name that has been given to a form of accommodation commended in the 1975 White Paper "Better Services for the Mentally Ill" (Cmnd. 6233) in which a small group of long stay patients requiring 24-hour medical and nursing supervision are provided with in-patient care in an informal domestic environment. We intend such units to form a permanent part of district psychiatric services; a number of evaluations have reported encouragingly on the quality of life obtained. I regret that present statistics do not distinguish places in this type of accommodation from other accommodation for psychiatric in-patients.

Motor Oil

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has any proposals for the compulsory labelling of motor oil, warning of the possible link between used motor oil and skin cancer; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: The evidence from animal tests suggests that repeated exposure to used engine oil could lead to the development of skin cancers. However, there is no evidence of an increase in skin cancers among motor mechanics. Any risk will be reduced if those exposed follow good hygiene practice, including using clean protective overalls and washing their hands.

Labelling is not a matter for the Department. I understand that my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Employment and for the Environment are considering the need for warnings, including labelling. Some manufacturers already label their oils and others are considering doing so. The trade associations recommend that vehicle and workshop manuals include a warning to follow good hygiene practice when changing the oil in vehicles.

Residential Care Homes

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if he will list the residential care homes for the elderly run by local authorities in which cases of neglect and cruelty towards residents have resulted in disciplinary action or criminal prosecution against members of staff; and if he will make a statement;

(2) if he will list those members of staff of municipal residential care homes for the elderly and handicapped who have been disciplined or prosecuted for neglect or cruelty towards residents.

Mrs. Currie: Disciplinary proceedings against local authority staff are a matter for the local authority concerned, while prosecutions are for the police and the Director of Public Prosecutions and the information requested is not recorded centrally.

Resettlement Unit, Bishopbriggs

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has reviewed the guarantee given in 1986 that the resettlement unit at Bishopbriggs would not be closed until he is satisfied that there are suitable alternative facilities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: Since the Government's policy on resettlement units was announced on 5 February 1985, it has been our aim to ensure that suitable alternative schemes are in operation before the units close. That is still our objective and review teams and officials are working towards it, making useful progress in respect of most of the units.

In the case of Bishopbriggs resettlement unit progress has been slow. Although we cannot guarantee that, regardless of eventualities, the unit will remain open indefinitely, we do believe that it should be possible to provide suitable alternative facilities before closure.

Retirement Pensioners

Mr. Andrew Bowden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has any plans to uprate the 25p additional amount paid to retirement pensioners aged 80 years and over; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Scott: We have no plans at present to increase the 25p addition. Basic pension is however increasing by £1·65 for a single person and £2·65 for a couple in April.

Special Payments

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many women in the Seaham and Peterlee area will not receive the recently announced £8 special payment because their pension is paid from their husband's pension book; and if he will take steps to rectify this anomaly.

Mr. Scott: There are no married women whose retirement pensions are paid from their husbands' order books; all have their own order books and are therefore eligible for an £8 special payment.

Basingstoke and North Hampshire Health Authority

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what has been the approved financial programme of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority for each year since 1974-75, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms (based on 1987-88) and (c) as a real term percentage increase or decrease on each preceding year and on the 1974-75 approved financial programme;

(2) what has been the cost of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority's development schemes for each year since 1974-75, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms (based on 1987-88) and (c) as a real term percentage increase or decrease on each preceding year and as a real term percentage increase or decrease on the 1974-75 development scheme;

(3) what directly allocated growth and capital funding the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority has received each year since 1974-75, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms (based on 1987-88) and (c) as a real term percentage increase or decrease on each preceding year and on the 1974-75 allocations;

(4) by how much in each year since 1974-75 funds budgeted by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority for annual National Health Service pay settlements have exceeded, or been exceeded by, the cost of such settlements expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms (based on 1987-88) and (c) as a percentage excess-deficit.

Mrs. Currie: Allocations to the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority and the other information my hon. Friend requests are matters for the Wessex regional health authority. He may like to contact the regional chairman for the information he requires.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what funds the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority has raised in each year since 1974-75 through cost improvement programmes-savings against previous years or self-generated additional income, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms (based on 1987-88) and (c) as a real term percentage increase or decrease on each preceding year and on the 1974-75 cost improvement programme.

Mrs. Currie: In 1986-87, the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority reported cash savings of £419,000 from its cost improvement programme. Information is not available centrally for earlier years, but the hon. Member may wish to approach Wessex regional health authority for this information.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what has been the percentage cost in each year since 1974-75 to the approved financial programme of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority of wages and salaries of National Health Service employees, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms (based on 1987-88) and (c) as a percentage increase or decrease for each year.

Mrs. Currie: Following is information derived from the annual accounts of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority since its establishment on 1 April 1982.

	Per annual accounts	At 1987-88 prices	As a percentage of total revenue expenditure		Annual increase/(decrease) in real terms at 1987-88 prices
	£'000s	£'000s	Annual figure	Increase/ (decrease) in annual figure	£'000s	Per cent.
1982-83	23,581	29,384	74·95	—	—	—
1983-84	23,038	29,807	74·55	(0·40)	423	1·44
1984-85	26,375	30,058	74·43	(0·12)	251	0·84
1985-86	27,477	29,550	73·69	(0·74)	(508)	(1·69)
1986-87	29,666	30,927	74·27	0·58	1,377	4·66

1. The figures have been expressed at 1987-88 prices by the use of the Gross Domestic Product deflator.
2. Prior to 1 April 1982 the authority's predecessor health district formed part of the Hampshire area health authority and district based figures were not collected centrally.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what have been the costs incurred in each year since 1974-75 by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority for (i) cleaning, (ii) catering and (iii) laundry services, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms (based on 1987-88) and (c) as a percentage increase on the cost of the previous year and on the 1974-75 costs.

Mrs. Currie: Following is the information requested derived from the annual accounts of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority since its establishment on 1 April 1982:

	Domestic/cleaning services				Catering services				Laundry services
	Expenditure per annual accounts £000	Expenditure at 1987-88 prices £000	Per cent. increase/ (decrease) at 1987-88 prices over previous year	Per cent. increase/ (decrease) at 1987-88 prices over 1982-83	Expenditure per annual accounts £000	Expenditure at 1987-88 prices £000	Per cent. increase/ (decrease) at 1987-88 prices over previous year	Per cent. increase/ (decrease) at 1987-88 prices over 1982-83	Expenditure per annual accounts £000	Expenditure at 1987-88 prices £000	Per cent. increase/ (decrease) at 1987-88 prices over previous year	Per cent. increase/ (decrease) at 1987-88 prices over 1982-83
1982-83	2,129	2,642	—	—	1,588	1,979	—	—	211	263	—	—
1983-84	2,171	2,585	(2·16)	(2·16)	1,663	1,980	0·05	0·05	223	265	0·76	0·76
1984-85	2,147	2,447	(5·34)	(7·38)	1,739	1,982	0·10	0·15	227	259	(2·26)	(1·52)
1985-86	2,046	2,200	(10·01)	(16·73)	1,829	1,967	(0·76)	(0·61)	210	226	(12·74)	(14·07)
1986-87	1,931	2,013	(8·50)	(23·81)	1,810	1,949	(0·92)	(1·52)	196	205	(9·25)	(22·05)

Notes:

1. The figures have been expressed at 1987-88 prices by the use of the Gross Domestic Product deflator.
2. Prior to 1 April 1982 the authority's predecessor health district formed part of the Hampshire Area Health Authority and district based figures were not collected centrally.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many in-patient cases have been treated by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75 and what has been the percentage increase or decrease on the preceding year and on the 1974-75 number of in-patient cases;

(2) how many day-patient cases have been treated by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75; and what has been the percentage increase or decrease on the preceding year and on the 1974-75 number of day-patient cases;

(3) how many out-patient cases have been treated by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75; and what has been the percentage increase or decrease on the preceding year and on the 1974-75 out-patient cases;

(4) how many patients have been treated for chronic renal failure in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district since 1974-75, or the year in which such treatment became significantly available, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the first year of significant statistics;

(5) how many hip replacement operations have been performed in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district since 1974-75, or the year in which such treatment became significantly available, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the first year of significant statistics;

(6) how many coronary artery by-pass grafts have been performed in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district since 1974-75, or the year in which such treatment became significantly available, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the first year of significant statistics;

(7) how many surgical beds have been available in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority each year since 1974-75, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the 1974-75 number of surgical beds;

(8) how many patients have been treated in surgical beds in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the 1974-75 number of patients;

(9) how many general medical beds have been available in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the 1974-75 number of general medical beds;

(10) how many patients have been treated in general medical beds in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the 1974-75, number of patients;

(11) how many geriatric patients attended day units in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district in each year since 1974-75 expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on each preceding year and on the 1974-75 number of geriatric patients.

Mrs. Currie: I regret that I cannot give my hon. Friend all the information he seeks. The available information is given in the tables. My hon. Friend may like to approach the chairman of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority for the further information he requires.

NHS hospitals, Basingstoke and North Hampshire District Health Authority
All specialties

Year	In-patients Number	In-patients Per cent. change over previous year	In-patients Per cent. change over 1974	Day cases Number	Day cases Per cent. change over previous year	Day cases Per cent. change over 1974	Out-patients Number	Out-patients Per cent. change over previous year	Out-patients Per cent. change over 1974
1974	16,713	0	0	3,341	0	0	78,724	0	0
1975	15,540	−7·0	−7·0	3,548	6·2	6·2	60,647	−23·0	−23·0
1976	17,140	10·3	2·6	5,000	40·9	49·7	71,796	18·4	−8·8
1977	17,871	4·2	6·9	3,551	−29·0	6·3	76,533	6·6	−2·8

Year	Number	In-patients Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1974	Number	Day cases Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1974	Number	Out-patients Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1974
1978	19,395	8·5	16·0	2,996	−15·6	−10·3	84,445	10·3	7·3
1979	17,864	−7·9	6·9	3,065	2·3	−8·3	89,592	6·1	13·8
1980	19,704	10·3	17·9	4,188	36·6	25·4	92,490	3·2	17·5
1981	19,563	−0·7	17·1	4,188	0·0	25·4	98·338	6·3	24·9
1982	20,148	3·0	20·6	4·053	−3·2	21·3	99,882	1·6	26·9
1983	20,701	2·7	23·9	3,533	−12·8	5·7	105,677	5·8	34·2
1984	22,171	7·1	32·7	3,291	−6·8	−1·5	104,603	−1·0	32·9
1985	22,128	−0·2	32·4	4,117	25·1	23·2	103,510	−1·0	31·5
1986	23·201	4·8	38·8	4,431	7·6	32·6	107,532	3·9	36·6

Surgical specialties

Year	Daily average of available beds Number	Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1974	In-patients Number	Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1974
1974	304·5	0	0	7,114	0	0
1975	300·2	−1·4	−1·4	6,206	−12·8	−12·8
1976	278·2	−7·3	−8·6	7,336	18·2	3·1
1977	287·7	3·4	−5·5	7,563	3·1	6·3
1978	299·3	4·0	−1·7	8,104	7·2	13·9
1979	299·7	0·1	−1·6	7,809	−3·6	9·8
1980	308·5	2·9	1·3	8,503	8·9	19·5
1981	314·4	1·9	3·3	8,866	4·3	24·6
1982	313·2	−0·4	2·9	8,970	1·2	26·1
1983	296·9	−5·2	−2·5	9,374	4·5	31·8
1984	315·6	6·3	3·6	9,805	4·6	37·8
1985	308·5	−2·2	1·3	9,170	−6·5	28·9
1986	288·7	−6·4	5·2	9,090	−0·9	27·8

Medical specialties

Year	Daily average of available beds Number	Percentage change over previous year	Percentage change over 1974	In-patients Number	Percentage change over previous year	Percentage change over 1974
1974	82·0	0	0	2,772	0	0
1975	85·0	3·7	3·7	2,669	−3·7	−3·7
1976	91·9	8·1	12·1	2,845	6·6	2·6
1977	89·9	−2·2	9·6	3,111	9·3	12·2
1978	104·3	16·0	27·2	3,500	12·5	26·3
1979	98·4	−5·7	20·0	3,089	−11·7	11·4
1980	101·9	3·6	24·3	3,356	8·6	21·1
1981	103·1	1·2	25·7	3,375	0·6	21·8
1982	106·2	3·0	29·5	3,763	11·5	35·8
1983	110·5	4·0	34·8	3,631	−3·5	31·0
1984	113·4	2·6	38·3	4,083	12·4	47·3
1985	115·8	2·1	41·2	4,051	−0·8	46·1
1986	115·0	−0·7	40·2	4,163	2·8	50·2

Geriatric regular day cases: Total attendances

Year	Number	Percentage change over previous year	Percentage change over 1982
1974	n.a.	—	—
1975	n.a.	—	—
1976	n.a.	—	—
1977	n.a.	—	—
1978	n.a.	—	—
1979	n.a.	—	—
1980	n.a.	—	—
1981	n.a.	—	—
1982	1,131	—	—
1983	2,608	130·6	130·6
1984	2,913	11·7	157·6
1985	2,893	−0·7	155·8
1986	2,455	−15·1	117·1

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many visits by health visitors have been made in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district in each year since 1974-75; and what has been the percentage increase or decrease on the preceding year and on the 1974-75 number of visits;

(2) how many people have been visited by health visitors in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district in each year sinc 1974-75; and what has been the percentage increase or decrease on the preceding year and on the 1974-75 number of people visited.

Mrs. Currie: Basingstoke and North Hampshire District Health Authority was formed in 1982. Comparable figures are not available before that date when these data were collected by area health authority only. The available information is given in the table.

Persons visited by health visitors (first visit)
Basingstoke and North Hampshire District Health Authority

	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Number of persons visited by Health Visitors	13,883	13,696	13,986	14,102	14,239
Per cent. change year by year	—	−1·3	2·1	0·8	1·0
Per cent. change from 1982	—	−1·3	0·7	1·6	2·6

Notes:
1. A visit includes each occasion when professional help or advice is given by health visiting staff.
2. The "first visit" refers to the first visit received by a person from any member of the health visiting staff during the calendar year for any problem.
3. Visits to households where there is tuberculosis or other infectious diseases are not included in this table.

Total visits made by health visitors
Basingstoke and North Hampshire District Health Authority

	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Total visits	46,484	44,569	46,958	49,135	49,430
Per cent. change year by year	—	−4·1	5·4	4·6	0·6
Per cent. change from 1982	—	−4·1	1·0	5·7	6·3

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what has been the cost of capital projects undertaken by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms based on 1987-88 figures and (c) as a real term percentage increase or decrease on each preceding year and on the 1974-75, capital project cost.

Mrs. Currie: Following is the information derived from the annual accounts of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority since its establishment on 1 April 1982:

Total capital expenditure

	Per annual accounts £000	At 1987-88 prices £000	Percentage increase/(decrease) at 1987-88 prices
			On preceding year	On 1982-83
1982-83	2,427	3,024	—	—
1983-84	2,356	2,805	(7·24)	(7·24)
1984-85	3,081	3,511	27·17	16·10
1985-86	3,314	3,564	1·51	17·86
1986-87	3,682	3,838	7·69	26·92

Notes:
1. The figures have been expressed at 1987-88 prices by the use of the Gross Domestic Product deflator.
2. The figures include sums in respect of capital schemes within the district recorded in the annual accounts of the Wessex Regional Health Authority. Expenditure incurred by the latter authority for the region as a whole is excluded.
3. Prior to 1 April 1982 the authority's predecessor health district formed part of the Hampshire Area Health Authority and district based figures were not collected centrally.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many places there have been in adult training centres for the mentally handicapped in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75, or the first year of the significant availability of such places, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the 1974-75 figure, or the first significant year;

(2) how many adults attended training centres for the mentally handicapped in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75, or the first year of the significant availability of places at such centres, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on the 1974-75 figure, or for the first significant year.

Mrs. Currie: Information on the number of places for mentally handicapped people in adult training centres is given in the table. It is based on the number of places reported by Hampshire social services department. The information my hon. Friend seeks on the number of people attending adult training centres is not available centrally. He may wish to approach the Hampshire social services department for the further information he requires.

Number of places for mentally handicapped people in adult training centres in the area covered by Basingstoke and North Hampshire DHA, and percentage changes, 1982-87.

	Number of places (at 31 March)	Percentage Change On 1982	Percentage Change On previous year
1982	232	—	—
1983	232	0·0	0·0
1984	246	6·0	6·0
1985	246	6·0	0·0
1986	252	8·6	2·4
1987	252	8·6	0·0

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what funds have been devoted by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority to the care and treatment of the mentally ill in each year since 1974-75, expressed (a) in cash terms, (b) in real terms based on 1974-75 and (c) as a real term percentage increase or decrease on each preceding year and on the 1974-75 allocation.

Mrs. Currie: Information on health authority expenditure by type of patient is not collected centrally: hospital costing returns submitted to the Department show expenditure on hospitals of different types and costing returns in respect of community health services show expenditure relating to the major areas of activity only.

Following is information derived from the hospital costing returns submitted by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority since its establishment on 1 April 1982:

Revenue expenditure on hospitals categorised "mental illness"

	Per costing returns	At 1987-88 prices	Percentage increase/(decrease) at 1987-88 prices
	£000	£000	On preceding year	On 1982-83
1982-83	8,285	10,324	—	—
1983-84	8,645	10,291	(0·32)	(0·32)
1984-85	8,800	10,029	(2·55)	(2·86)
1985-86	9,104	9,791	(2·37)	(5·16)
1986-87	9,429	9,830	0·40	(4·78)

Notes:

1. The figures have been expressed at 1987-88 prices by the use of the Gross Domestic Product deflator.
2. The figures exclude expenditure on hospitals categorised "mental handicap" and expenditure incurred for the mentally ill within community health services. The latter costs are not separately identifiable centrally.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many mentally ill patients have been treated by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on each previous year and on the 1974-75 number of patients.

Mrs. Currie: The number of admissions of in-patients into mental illness hospitals and units, managed by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority, for each year since 1974, are shown in the table.

The figures do not relate to individuals, and will include patients who have been discharged and readmitted during each year.

Year of admission	Number of admissions of mentally ill patients	Percentage change in admissions on previous year	Percentage change in admissions on 1974
1974	1,001	[1]	[1]
1975	982	−1·9	−1·9
1976	1,103	+12·3	+10·2
1977	1,060	−3·9	+5·9
1978	1,138	+7·4	+13·7
1979	1,129	−0·8	+12·8
1980	1,278	+13·2	+27·7
1981	1,252	−2·0	+25·1
1982	1,034	−17·4	+3·3
1983	1,133	+9·6	+13·2
1984	1,102	−2·7	+10·1
1985	1,305	+18·4	+30·4
1986	1,518	+16·3	+51·6

[1] Not available.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district have received help to pay for residential and nursing care in each year since 1974-75, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on each previous year and on the 1974-75 number of patients.

Mrs. Currie: People in independent residential care or nursing homes can claim supplementary benefit to help with their fees. Information on the numbers claiming supplementary benefit in homes in the area of the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority could be obtained for this period only at disproportionate cost.

Health authorities may enter into contractual arrangements with private health care providers, but must meet the costs incurred. Health authorities have no power to pay part of the costs of a patient's care in private establishments.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people, divided into convenient categories of employment, particularly specifying nursing staff, have been employed by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority in each year since 1974-75.

Mrs. Currie: Because of the 1982 NHS reorganisation, figures on a consistent basis are not held centrally for years prior to 1982.

The available information from 1982 is shown in the table.

NHS Staff by Main Staff Groups: in Post Basingstoke and North Hampshire District Health Authority 30 September

Whole-time Equivalents[1]

	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Medical and Dental[2]	100	90	100	90	90
Nursing and Midwifery[3]	1,710	1,730	1,710	1,660	1,680

	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Professional and Technical (Excluding Works)	200	220	220	230	250
Works	20	20	20	20	20
Maintenance	90	90	80	80	70
Administrative and Clerical	360	390	370	380	380
Ancillary	740	730	710	660	600
Total NHS Staff	3,230	3,270	3,220	3,110	3,080

Source: DHSS Annual Censuses of NHS Medical and Non-medical Manpower.

[1] Figures are independently rounded to the nearest ten (10) whole-time equivalents.

[2] Includes permanent paid, honorary and locum staff. Excludes all Consultants and Senior Registrars whose contracts are held by the regional health authority.

[3] Includes agency staff.

Drugs

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what measures he proposes to take to control the rising cost of the drugs bill to National Health Service hospitals.

Mr. Newton: The Department is taking a wide range of measures to control the drugs bill in National Health Service hospitals. In the last year each region has reviewed pharmaceutical buying and has drawn up an action plan to ensure maximum value for money, particularly in high-spend, high-volume medicines.

The Department has also encouraged the formulation of local multi-disciplinary drug and therapeutic committees to promote the rational and economic use of drug therapy. These are now commonplace within health authorities, and an effective means they are adopting to achieve their objective is the use of hospital drug formularies. Following the Nuffield report, the Department is also reviewing clinical pharmacy which could further assist in improving the cost-effectiveness of expenditure on drugs in hospitals.

Agency Staff

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what measures he proposes to take to control charges imposed on the National Health Service by agencies which provide locum staff replacements for hospitals;

(2) what approaches he has made to the Wessex region with regard to the control of charges imposed on the National Health Service by agencies providing locum staff replacements for hospitals within the Wessex region;

(3) what approaches or responses he has received from the Wessex region with regard to the control of charges imposed on the National Health Service by agencies providing locum staff replacements for hospitals within the Wessex region.

Mr. Newton: The Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority has expressed concern, in correspondence with officials, about the costs of locum medical staff engaged through agencies. A number of regional health authorities are currently collaboratng with the aim of containing such costs. We intend to consider the need and scope for central action in the light of their progress.

Basingstoke District Hospital (Appointments)

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people in each year since 1974-75 have been taken to and from Basingstoke district hospital for day appointments by the ambulance service.

Mrs. Currie: I am sorry that the information my hon. Friend seeks is not available centrally. He may like to contact the chairman of the Winchester health authority, which is responsible for the Hampshire ambulance service, for the information he requires.

Thamesmead Town Limited

Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many applications for housing benefit by tenants of Thamesmead Town Ltd. include service charges; and what advice has been provided by his Department to Thamesmead Town Ltd., Greenwich council and Bexley council about the eligibility of service charges for housing benefit.

Mr. Portillo: Information on the number of applications for housing benefit by tenants of Thamesmead Town Ltd. which include service charges is not held centrally. Advice on both the existing regulations and the regulations which take effect in April has been issued to all authorities with responsibility for the administration of housing benefit, including the London boroughs of Greenwich and Bexley. The most recent guidance makes it clear that our policy remains that charges for services which the tenant has no option but to pay and which are connected with the provision of adequate accommodation should be eligible for housing benefit.

Minister for the Disabled

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the responsibilities of the Minister for Social Security and the Disabled.

Mr. Scott: The Minister for Social Security and the Disabled has particular responsibility for co-ordinating policy on disablement and for benefits, aids and services for disabled people. These functions are discharged in conjunction with other departmental Ministers as necessary.

AIDS

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has about the decision of the United States national institutes of health to instruct all biological laboratories to review their safety guidelines following the reported infection of two laboratory workers with the AIDS virus after working with concentrated samples; and whether he will carry out such a review of procedures in medical and biological laboratories in England.

Mr. Newton: We are aware of the recent decision of the United States national institutes of health to instruct all biological laboratories to review safety guidelines. Such a review was carried out in the United Kingdom by the advisory committee on dangerous pathogens which, in 1986, issued revised guidelines on the safe handling of laboratory specimens containing the AIDS virus — including working with concentrated samples. These guidelines apply to all medical and biological laboratories in the United Kingdom and have been endorsed by the health departments, the Health and Safety Commission and the Health and Safety Executive.

Abortions

Mr. Amos: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make it his policy to (a) gather and (b) publish the names of individual doctors concerned in abortions after 18 weeks' gestation carried out in the private sector; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: Information about doctors carrying out abortions in all private sector places approved under the Abortion Act is provided to the Department on a confidential basis.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give the figure for the number of abortion notifications mentioning rape in cases where abortions were performed at or after 18 weeks' gestation in the latest period for which figures were collected.

Mr. Newton: Statistics on the number of abortion notification forms which mention rape may be provided reliably only for the period from 1 January 1987. The provisional number of abortion notification forms with any mention of rape for gestation at 18 completed weeks and over for the period 1 January to 31 October 1987 inclusive is one.

London Ambulance Service

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the number of fully equipped emergency ambulances in the London ambulance service on 31 December 1987; what are the changes planned in that number for future years; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: There were 363 emergency ambulances on 31 December 1987. Of these, the 263 "front-line" ambulances were all equipped with "motivus resuscitation packs"; the rest were day ambulances which are otherwise fully equipped but do not carry resuscitation packs.

Following a detailed examination of day ambulances, the London ambulance service found that the work allocated to them could be more effectively dealt with by transferring the patient workload to non-emergency vehicles and front-line ambulances. On average, 450 walking and chair case patients per day will be transferred to non-emergency vehicles and 97 stretcher case patients per day will be transferred to front-line ambulances. Front-line and non-emergency staff complements are to be amended to take up the transferred work.

As a result of removing the patient demand from 100 day ambulances, the total emergency fleet size of ambulances will be reduced as follows:

During Year	Fleet Size
Ended 31 December 1987	363
1987-88	351
1988-89	314
1989-90	273

This planned reduction of 90 ambulances will be closely monitored by the London ambulance service and pursued only if there proves to be sufficient flexibility in the fleet to deal with peaks in demand and large-scale incidents.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the number of crews of emergency ambulances rostered, or planned for, by the London ambulance service during each 24-hour cycle of normal weekdays in 1987; whether any changes are planned in that number for the future; and what are the reasons for any change of policy.

Mrs. Currie: The number of crews of emergency ambulances rostered by the London ambulance service during each 24 hours of normal weekdays in 1987 and planned for the future are:

Shift period	Number of rostered crews in 1987	Number of rostered crews planned
Early shifts	170	188
Late shifts	154	151
Night shifts	94	90

The London ambulance service's aim is to achieve a better balance of resources throughout London in line with patterns of demand and a more effective relief system for covering absences. This will bring about a further improvement in the response time of ambulances to emergency incidents. Relief staff will be increased from 164 to 270, thereby increasing the actual number of manned front-line ambulances.

The effect on the staffing levels of the service, including additional ambulance persons to convey non-emergency patients transferred from day ambulances is as follows:

	Proposed	Change
Staff rostered on front-line ambulances (including extra staff for day ambulance stretcher cases)	1,161	+17
Relief staff	270	+106
Emergency service staffing		+123
Day ambulance staff	0	−200
Non-emergency ambulance personnel	853	+93
Whole service	2,284	+16

Sight Test

Mr. Shersby: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many sight tests were carried out under the National Health Service during the most recent 12-month period for which figures are available; and if he will make an estimate of the number of such tests for which payment will be demanded, allowing for the proposed exemptions, if the charges proposed in the Health and Medicines Bill are enacted.

Mr. Newton: Some 10·75 million sight tests were conducted in England under the NHS in the 12-month period to 30 June 1987. We estimate that around 70 per cent. of sight tests would in future be paid for privately.

Claimants (Wales)

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give the total number of claimants (a) claiming for board and lodging from his Department and (b) with dependent children in the latest year for which figures are available (i) in Wales and (ii) in each of the Department of Employment travel-to-work areas in Wales.

Mr. Portillo: In May 1987 an estimated 8,000 people were claiming for board and lodging accommodation charges in Wales. Less than 500 had dependent children. I regret that the information requested on the numbers in each of the Department of Employment travel-to-work areas in Wales is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. These estimates have been obtained from the Department's May 1987 quarterly statistical inquiry. The sample size for this exercise is too small to obtain a precise figure of the number of claimants with dependent children.

Supplementary Benefit (North-East)

Mr. Blair: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people were receiving supplementary benefit for 1983-84, 1984-85, 1985-86, 1986-87 and the latest figures for 1987-88, for (a) Cleveland, (b) Durham, (c) Northumbria and (d) Tyne and Wear.

Mr. Portillo: Information is not available in the precise form requested. The Department's local offices serving each district are listed although the boundaries are not conterminous.

The number of people in receipt of supplementary benefit is as follows:

	2 August 1983	31 July 1984	31 July 1985	13 August 1986	29 July 1987
Cleveland (Eston, Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Redcar, Stockton)	67,458	75,340	79,214	78,781	74,048
Northumberland (Ashington, Berwick, Blyth, Hexham)	19,543	20,218	21,298	21,229	21,235
Durham (Bishop Auckland, Chester-le-Street, Darlington, Durham, Peterlee, Seaham, Stanley)	59,262	62,557	65,603	65,263	63,247
Tyne and Wear (Gateshead, Houghton-le-Spring, Jarrow, Newcastle St. James, Newcastle East, Newcastle West, North Shields, South Shields, Sunderland North, Sunderland South, Wallsend)	144,005	153,122	160,354	158,940	157,404

Source: 100 per cent. count of cases in action at the dates specified.

Mr. Blair: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people were receiving supplementary benefit for 1983-84, 1984-85, 1985-86, 1986-87 and the latest figures for 1987-88, for his Department's local offices at (a) Darlington, (b) Bishop Auckland and (c) Peterlee.

Mr. Portillo: The number of people in receipt of supplementary benefit for the years requested is as follows:

	2 August 1983	31 July 1984	31 July 1985	13 August 1986	29 July 1987
Darlington	12,779	13,406	14,467	15,005	14,481
Bishop Auckland	13,587	14,510	14,937	15,212	14,290
Peterlee	6,411	7,046	7,392	7,316	7,304

Source: 100 per cent. count of cases in action at the dates specified

Social Security Reform

Mr. Sean Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the basis and the sources from which he compiled the estimated number of claimants in Great Britain who will be eligible for transitional payments under the income support scheme.

Mr. Scott: The source used for estimating the number of transitional additions under income support is the 1986 annual statistical inquiry, the latest information available, uprated to take account of subsequent increases in benefit rates. The rules governing the award and calculation of transitional additions have been applied to this information to provide the estimates.

RPI Error

Mr. Allen McKay: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps are being taken to rectify the anomaly as between persons with multiple benefits payable from one payment book receiving one payment and those with separate books for different benefits receiving one payment for each benefit, under the scheme intended to correct the effect of the error in the retail price index.

Mr. Scott: We do not propose to alter the arrangements for the special payments exercise, which is designed to combine as far as possible fairness with speed of payment. Having benefits combined on one order book does not automatically mean that the claimant has suffered more than once from the error in the RPI. The ex-gratia special payments fully compensate the great majority of people who have combined books: less than 10 per cent. of them will be under-compensated for the RPI error because of the method of payment.

Mr. Rooker: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many representations he has received regarding the offer of only one special payment to cover more than one social security benefit, following the error in the retail price index.

Mr. Scott: About 40.

Social Security (Young Claimants)

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will estimate how many 16 and 17-year-olds who are not still in education deliberately choose to remain on social security rather than take a job or accept a training place.

Mr. Scott: I refer the hon. Member to the information contained in my hon. Friend's reply to the hon. Member for Barnsley, West and Penistone (Mr. McKay) on 7 December 1987, at column 57, and also to the reply which my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Employment gave to the hon. Member for Coventry, South-East (Mr. Nellist), on 17 November 1987, at column 509.

NHS Pay Deal

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) whether Her Majesty's Government will fully fund the 1988-89 Health Service workers' pay deal;

(2) whether Her Majesty's Government will pay the 1988-89 Health Service workers' pay rise from 1 April.

Mr. Newton: The additional funds which health authorities have been given for 1988-89 are intended to cover all pay and price rises. The Government will await the recommendations of the review bodies before taking any decisions on implementation and funding.

General Practitioner Consultations

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the estimated cost of each general practitioner consultation in England in 1986-87.

Mr. Newton: I regret that the information requested is not available.

Oldchurch Hospital, Romford

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has as to the results of the experimental reception system in the accident and emergency department Oldchurch hospital, Romford; and if he will make a statement on its possible adoption throughout the National Health Service.

Mrs. Currie: I understand that the nurse practitioner scheme, introduced in the accident and emergency department at Oldchurch hospital in 1986, has enabled patient care to be improved by reducing waiting times and inappropriate attendances.

We welcome the scheme and the recognition given to it by the award of the RIPA-Hay first prize for managerial innovation in the public sector in 1987 to Barking, Havering and Brentwood health authority. I understand that the health authority will shortly be publishing information about the scheme to other health authorities.

Nurses (Shifts)

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received concerning the present pattern of nurses shifts; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: I am not aware of any representations, although I am aware of some local difficulties over proposed changes in the pattern of nurses shifts.

Detailed rostering arrangements are for local decision. Following reports by our auditors in 1983 of apparently wasteful use of nursing time due to log shift overlaps in some places, health authorities were asked to review this matter generally. Several health authorities have managed to re-order their nursing rosters to achieve more efficient working patterns without detriment to the service. It is important that others do the same and all should keep shift patterns under constant review.

Health authorities are asked to report any changes in the deployment of nursing staff in their short-term programmes and the matter will also feature in the normal review process as necessary.

Single Payments

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish a table showing the expenditure on single payments by each local office of his Department as a sum per head of the claimants registered with each office.

Mr. Portillo [holding answer 14 January 1988]: The information the hon. Member seeks has now been placed in the Library.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish a table showing the relevant figures in table 14.1 of Cm. 288-II adjusted by the hospital and community health services pay and price deflator.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 26 January 1988]: The figures requested are given in the table for the years from 1982-83 to 1986-87. No forecasts of pay and price movements have been made for subsequent years. In addition health authorities had the benefit of recurrent savings of the order of £400 million over this period at 1986-87 prices from cash-releasing cost-improvement programmes.

Hospital community health and related services

£ million

	1982-83 outturn	1983-84 outturn	1984-85 outturn	1985-86 outturn	1986-87 outturn
Current expenditure
Gross	10,355	10,364	10,356	10,368	10,421
Charges	90	96	96	99	101
Net	10,264	10,267	10,260	10,270	10,320
Capital expenditure
Gross	835	846	915	940	961
Receipts	23	39	57	90	149
Net	812	808	859	850	812

Note: The above figures are at 1986-87 price levels, after adjusting for HCHS current and capital pay and price inflation.

Mentally Handicapped Patients

Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the amount of his Department's allocation specifically for the care of mentally handicapped patients.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 5 February 1988]: In the main the Department does not allocate funds for specific purposes. Within a national framework of health care priorities it is for each health authority to determine how its resources, including allocations, should be used.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 9 February 1988

WALES

Road Costs

Mr. Mudd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list all the motorway and trunk road contracts in Wales with a works cost of £1 million or more which his Department intends to award in 1988-89 showing, in each case, the total value of the contract and the expenditure likely to be incurred in that year.

Mr. Wyn Roberts [holding answer 8 February 1988]: Subject to the satisfactory completion of statutory procedures, the completion of engineering design and the availability of resources, we hope to let contracts for the following major schemes in 1988-89:

A48 Nantycaws-Coed Hirion Bypass
A55 Travellers Inn
A483 Chirk Bypass
A55 Pen-y-Clip Tunnels

It is not possible to give the cost of the contracts or the expenditure to be incurred in 1988-89, since this will depend on the value of the accepted tenders and the contractors' programmes of work.

Homelessness

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) how many households have been made homeless by the actions of private landlords for the periods (a) January to March 1987, (b) April to June 1987 and (c) July to September 1987, in each district authority area in Wales;

(2) how many households were accepted as homeless in Wales; and how many households were accommodated in temporary accommodation for the periods (a) January to March 1987, (b) April to June 1987 and (c) July to September 1987, in each district authority are (a) in Wales;

(3) how many households were placed in bed and breakfast as temporary accommodation in Wales for the periods (a) January to March 1987, (b) April to June 1987 and (c) July to September 1987, in each district authority area in Wales.

Mr. Grist [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The information requested is given in the following tables:

January to March 1987

Welsh districts	Cases accepted	All cases
		Of which homeless due to action by landlord	Placed in temporary accommodation	Placed in bed and breakfast
Aberconwy	17	6	2	1
Alyn and Deeside	45	10	3	1
Arfon	9	5	6	0
Blaenau Gwent	86	6	9	2
Brecknock	13	5	0	0
Cardiff	184	44	117	76
Carmarthen	19	8	5	2
Ceredigion	19	6	3	0
Colwyn	9	3	4	4
Cynon Valley	63	4	2	0
Delyn	63	2	34	0
Dinefwr	20	3	6	6
Dwyfor	10	3	1	1
Glyndwr	6	1	0	0
Islwyn	17	1	3	1
Llanelli	55	16	4	4
Lliw Valley	18	1	0	0
Meirionnydd	14	6	2	0
Merthyr Tydfil	17	0	12	0
Monmouth	73	16	15	1
Montgomeryshire	6	1	0	0
Neath	70	19	25	12
Newport	74	18	35	0
Ogwr	75	7	15	3
Port Talbot/Afan	42	19	18	1
Preseli	17	7	10	8
Radnor	4	0	0	0
Rhondda	41	0	1	1
Rhuddlan	20	3	3	1
Rhymney Valley	39	2	0	0
South Pembrokeshire	22	6	6	0
Swansea	63	11	25	0
Taff-Ely	26	2	1	0
Torfaen	77	6	11	0
Vale of Glamorgan	32	8	8	0
Wrexham Maelor	83	14	4	0
Ynys Môn	8	2	1	1
Wales Total (LA)	1,456	271	391	126

April-June 1987

Welsh districts	Cases accepted	Of which homeless due to action by landlord	All cases: Placed in temporary accommodation	All cases: Placed in bed and breakfast
Aberconwy	7	0	1	1
Alyn and Deeside	43	6	1	0
Arfon	6	1	6	0
Blaenau Gwent	76	6	5	3
Brecknock	24	9	2	0
Cardiff	134	32	97	88
Carmarthen	27	5	7	4
Ceredigion	13	6	1	1
Colwyn	6	2	1	1
Cynon Valley	34	0	2	0
Delyn	68	15	26	1
Dinefwr	15	4	2	2
Dwyfor	15	8	3	3
Glyndwr	4	0	3	0
Islwyn	10	3	1	0
Llanelli	43	5	9	9
Llŷn Valley	17	4	1	0
Meirionnydd	12	4	1	0
Merthyr Tydfil	15	1	10	1
Monmouth	30	11	11	1
Montgomeryshire	10	0	1	0
Neath	77	15	12	6
Newport	47	16	33	0
Ogwr	147	23	15	3
Port Talbot/Afan	14	2	0	0
Preseli	15	2	6	6
Radnor	3	0	0	0
Rhondda	22	0	1	1
Rhuddlan	27	1	0	0
Rhymney Valley	34	4	2	2
South Pembrokeshire	17	4	7	0
Swansea	73	11	20	0
Taff-Ely	30	6	1	0
Torfaen	58	7	9	0
Vale of Glamorgan	25	5	14	0
Wrexham Maelor	79	8	4	0
Ynys Mon	5	2	0	0
Wales Total (LA)	1,304	228	313	113

July to September 1987

Welsh districts	Cases accepted	Of which homeless due to action by landlord	All cases: Placed temporary accommodation	All cases: Placed in bed and breakfast
Aberconwy	14	1	2	1
Alyn and Deeside	19	5	0	0
Arfon	7	0	3	0
Blaenau Gwent	50	6	10	4
Brecknock	19	11	1	0
Cardiff	142	31	120	96
Carmarthen	27	5	4	1
Ceredigion	15	7	2	1
Colwyn	12	3	4	1
Cynon Valley	53	1	4	0
Delyn	73	7	28	0
Dinefwr	8	0	3	3
Dwyfor	20	7	0	0
Glyndwr	4	1	0	0
Islwyn	14	2	3	1
Llanelli	32	6	5	5
Llŷn Valley	30	2	0	0
Meirionnydd	13	5	1	0
Merthyr Tydfil	17	2	7	0
Monmouth	36	14	9	0
Montgomeryshire	13	3	1	1
Neath	61	12	15	11
Newport	62	14	36	6

All cases

Welsh districts	Cases accepted	Of which homeless due to action by landlord	Placed in temporary accommodation	Placed in bed and breakfast
Ogwr	76	12	16	3
Port Talbot/Afan	35	6	7	2
Preseli	18	1	9	4
Radnor	2	0	0	0
Rhondda	23	2	9	0
Rhuddlan	18	3	4	0
Rhymney Valley	41	3	9	0
South Pembrokeshire	20	2	3	0
Swansea	67	10	24	0
Taff-Ely	23	2	1	0
Torfaen	111	12	18	0
Vale of Glamorgan	20	7	8	0
Wrexham Maelor	77	10	4	0
Ynys Môn	1	0	0	0
Wales Total (LA)	1,295	217	352	140

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what percentage of patients currently awaiting operations in each Welsh health district have been waiting for (a) under one month, (b) under two months, (c) under three months, (d) under six months, (e) under nine months, (f) under 12 months and (g) between 12 months and two years; and if he will make a statement as to the distribution of different operations outstanding according to length of time.

Mr. Grist [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The information requested is not available centrally for current patients. The table relates to patients discharged from hospital in 1986, the latest year for which complete information is available.

Percentage of cases admitted from waiting list who spent less than the specified time on the waiting list.

District health authority	1 month	2 months	3 months	6 months	12 months	2 years
Clwyd	33·6	58·3	69·9	86·1	93·6	99·1
East Dyfed	47·2	67·6	76·6	88·0	96·8	99·9
Gwent	34·8	52·8	63·4	80·3	92·2	98·0
Gwynedd	48·9	70·8	80·3	94·4	98·2	99·9
Mid Glamorgan	35·1	56·7	65·4	81·1	92·7	97·9
Powys	46·4	90·4	93·9	98·7	99·4	99·8
South Glamorgan	40·6	63·6	74·7	87·5	95·1	98·0
West Glamorgan	34·3	54·2	66·8	86·0	95·6	99·1
Pembrokeshire	39·6	56·0	64·9	75·8	90·4	96·8
Wales	38·8	59·6	70·4	83·2	94·6	98·7

Accident and Emergency Treatment

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the estimated average cost of each treatment by a hospital accident and emergency unit in Wales.

Mr. Grist [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The available information is published in "Welsh Costing Returns: Year ending 31 March 1987", copies of which will be placed in the Library of the House.

General Practitioners

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the estimated cost of each general practitioner consultation in Wales in 1986-87.

Mr. Grist [holding answer 8 February 1988]: This information is not available.

Hospitals (Accommodation and Food Costs)

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the estimated daily cost of (a) accommodation and (b) food in each district health authority in Wales.

Mr. Grist [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The information requested is set out in the table:

District Health Authority	Accommodation (£ per day)	Food (£ per day)
Clwyd	47,110	4,217
East Dyfed	29,378	2,619
Gwent	65,194	5,529
Gwynedd	30,583	2,414
Mid Glamorgan	76,885	6,409
Pembrokshire	7,401	565
Powys	14,448	1,342
South Glamorgan	75,964	5,971
West Glamorgan	49,614	4,182
WHCSA	2,198	—
Wales	398,785	33,248

1. Accommodation costs include: Catering, Domestic/Cleaning, Portering, Laundry, Linen Services, Transport, Estate Management, Rent and Miscellaneous expenses.

2. These figures relate to all accommodation and food costs and are therefore not related exclusively to patient services' costs.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

Training and Scholarships

Mr. Faulds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) how much money given by Her Majesty's Government was applied for training and scholarships for (a) Greek Cypriots and (b) Turkish Cypriots in the last three financial years;

(2) how many (a) Greek Cypriots and (b) Turkish Cypriots received training or scholarships funded wholly or partly by Her Majesty's Government in each of the last three financial years.

Mr. Chris Patten: Information for the period in question could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Cyprus

Mr. Faulds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, in view of the finding of the Select Committee on Foreign Affairs that by most criteria the southern sector of Cyprus is no longer eligible for economic aid, how much money will be applied in future in aid to or for the benefit of Greek Cypriots.

Mr. Chris Patten: Bilateral aid is provided on a Government-to-Government basis. Our bilateral aid to Cyprus in 1986-87 was £222,000. We expect to spend about the same in 1987-88.

Mr. Faulds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he will take to increase aid to the Turkish Cypriots, in the light of their lower per capita income than Greek Cypriots.

Mr. Chris Patten: I refer the hon. Member to paragraphs 7-9 of the Government's observations on the third report of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Session 1986-87, on Cyprus (Cm. 232).

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Unification Church

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Attorney-General if he will specify the sources and nature of the evidence obtained while preparing for the now abandoned appeal against the decision not to remove charity status from the Unification Church.

The Attorney-General: The Treasury Solicitor, on my behalf, obtained and considered evidence from some 70 persons, and from additional groups, who have in the past been associated with the Unification Church or who have had experience of its activities. They fell within the following categories:

Those who gave evidence in the libel action against Associated Newspapers Group Ltd.

Those identified by Members of Parliament and others as potential witnesses;

Those identified from television programmes and from other media sources as potential witnesses;

Those who came forward as potential witnesses.

Inquiries were also made of persons and groups who were believed to have special knowledge of the Unification Church. Evidence was additionally obtained from a professor of the history and philosophy of religion and from a reader in sociology.

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Attorney-General pursuant to his statement of 3 February Official Report, column 978, if he will specify in what ways the evidence gathered for the now abandoned appeal against the decision not to remove charity status from the Unification Church was found to be insufficiently reliable.

The Attorney-General: In most cases the evidence obtained on my behalf was directed to specific matters or events from which the court would have been asked, in support of my appeal, to draw inferences as to the general character of the practices and teachings of the Unification Church. The process of considering and testing the evidence adduced in these proceedings by the defendant trustees, together with further material which since the institution of the proceedings has become available to me, has now satisfied me that I can no longer properly invite the court, on the basis of the evidence originally available, to draw those inferences to which I have referred.

In so concluding, I have had in mind that the court would require strong evidence before inferring that the practices and teachings of the Unification Church are open to such objection as to deny it the strong legal presumption of charitable status which the law accords to all religions without distinction, and to which I refeired in my oral answer of 3 February.

ENVIRONMENT

Crown Suppliers (Employees)

Mr. Neil Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether clerical grades in the Crown Suppliers will be given the option of transferring back into the Civil Service, were the Crown Suppliers to be sold.

Mr. Chope: Yes, but only if there are vacant posts for which Crown Suppliers clerical employees are suitable at the appropriate time.

Mr. Neil Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what provisions will be made in respect of Civil Service pension rights for clerical grades in the event of the sale of the Crown Suppliers; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: In the event of a sale, clerical and other grades would have the benefit of pension rights under their new employer comparable to those which they now possess.

London Docklands

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what estimates the London Docklands development corporation has made of construction industry labour requirements for each of the years of the next decade in London docklands.

Mr. Trippier: Detailed information is not available at present, but the LDDC proposes to commission a survey to enable detailed estimates to be made.

Swimming Facilities (Disabled People)

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the provision of swimming facilities for the disabled in England and Wales.

Mr. Moynihan: The British Association for Disabled People regularly inspects the 1,000 or so public sector pools in England and Wales and maintains a register of their suitability for those with various handicaps. Of this total, organised swimming sessions for disabled people are held in about 2,490 swimming pools.

London Docklands Development Corporation

Mr. Beyes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what are the implications of the resignation of the chief executive of the London Docklands development corporation, Major-General Jeremy Rougier; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Trippier: None. Major-General Rougier resigned for private family reasons.

Water Supplies

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what action he proposes to take to ensure that nitrate levels in water do not increase to a level that exceeds EEC directives and endangers public health in Stoke-on-Trent and north Staffordshire; what is the cost of such action; who will bear these costs; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Moynihan: These are matters for the Severn-Trent water authority to consider in the first instance. I understand that no public water supplies in the areas contain nitrate concentrations which exceed the limit laid down in the EC drinking water directive.

Mr. Beyes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish a table in the Official Report showing the price of water from each water authority from 1978-79 until the latest date available, taking the 1978-79 price as a base of 100.

Mr. Moynihan: Information on average household bills for water supply is shown in the table, in the form requested by the hon. Member.

Water Authority	1978-79	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88
Water Supply
North West	100·0	109·5	139·9	155·1	164·5	164·5	167·4	190·5	210·1	224·4
Northumbrian	100·0	105·3	127·5	158·6	185·5	209·7	225·2	241·0	251·6	260·8
Severn Trent	100·0	114·7	138·4	164·1	182·9	187·2	194·2	209·3	225·5	241·9
Yorkshire	100·0	110·2	136·3	151·3	167·1	174·2	184·5	206·3	227·5	245·4
Anglian	100·0	117·2	153·9	176·8	190·4	192·6	201·8	223·0	250·3	266·0
Thames	100·0	113·8	142·0	156·0	171·3	189·3	204·3	224·8	231·5	244·2
Southern	100·0	105·3	136·0	153·2	171·6	178·8	187·4	207·9	226·1	238·2
Wessex	100·0	119·2	141·7	155·6	163·3	167·4	169·7	184·8	202·6	213·3
South West	100·0	114·1	131·4	149·2	162·0	171·2	177·1	184·7	196·6	204·4
English Averages	100·0	112·4	140·1	158·2	172·4	181·3	189·0	208·6	225·8	239·3
Welsh	100·0	112·8	135·6	163·4	200·9	209·8	209·8	231·6	242·6	267·8
National Average	100·0	112·4	139·8	158·6	175·4	163·3	169·5	187·0	202·3	214·6

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the quality of water supplies in the metropolitan district of Bradford in relation to EEC standards; how many complaints he has received in each of the last five years on this matter; and what action is being taken to improve the quality of water supplies in the district.

Mr. Moynihan: The major water supply serving the metropolitan district of Bradford complies with the EC drinking water directive. Seven smaller supplies, serving parts of the district, do not comply with the directive, mainly because of naturally occurring aluminium and manganese, which are not considered to be a risk to health. I have not received any complaints about these supplies. In order to improve the water quality, Yorkshire water authority proposes to modify or replace the treatment works for these supplies. A programme of action is under way and in all but one case should be completed by April 1989.

Nature Reserves

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the responses he has received following the suggestion that nature reserves should be privatised.

Mr. Moynihan: My Department has received a number of letters on this subject following press publicity last month which overlooked the fact that the majority of national nature reserves are already in private ownership. I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to the hon. Member for Copeland (Dr. Cunningham) on 13 January 1988, at columns 281-82.

Nature Conservancy Council

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he last met the chairman of the Nature Conservancy Council; and what matters were discussed.

Mr. Moynihan: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment met the chairman of the Nature Conservancy Council on 14 December 1987. A wide range of topics related to NCC operations were discussed.

Cash Limits

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he has any changes to announce to his Department's cash limits.

Mr. Ridley: The cash limit for class X, vote 2 (Central Environmental Services, etc.) has been reduced by £0·15 million from £199·318 million to £199·168 million. The cash limit for class X, vote 4 (Royal Palaces, Royal Parks, Historic Buildings, Ancient Monuments and National Heritage) has been reduced by £0·5 million from £106·697 million to £106·197 million. The cash limit for class X, vote 9 (Sale of shares in the water services public limited companies) has been reduced from £2 million to £1 million. These changes all reflect reduced forecast expenditure this financial year. The savings of £1·65 million have been surrendered to the reserve.

Receipts to the Housing Corporation's approved development programme are now forecast to exceed provision by some £30 million-£35 million. I have given my approval for the corporation to increase gross expenditure equal to the major part of the excess. The corporation's net cash limit (DOE/HC1) has, however, been reduced by £2·9 million from £638·33 million to £635·43 million. £2·39 million of the reduction will be used to offset increased expenditure of that amount on class IX, vote 1, resulting from higher claims by local authorities for main housing subsidy in the current year. The remaining £0·51 million has been surrendered to the reserve.

Ordnance Survey

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he expects to publish the Ordnance Survey plan for 1988 to 1991.

Mr. Moynihan: I have today approved the Ordnance Survey plan for 1988-91 and I shall arrange for copies to be placed in the Library of the House.

Urban Programme

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what resources will be available for local authorities in the urban programme in 1988-89; and whether he will make a statement.

Mr. Trippier: I am today announcing initial urban programme resource allocations for 1988-89, totalling £259 million. This will support projects in 57 urban programme partnership and programme authorities. It will help further the Government's commitment to revitalising inner cities by, amongst other things, regenerating local economies and creating jobs, encouraging training and supporting environmental improvements.

The urban programme is just one of the Government's tools in the drive to improve conditions in inner cities. More than £200 million will be spent by the urban development corporations in England in 1988-89. Private investment projects in the 57 urban programme areas will receive additional support though the Department's urban development grant, urban regeneration grant and derelict land grant. In addition, other Government Departments provide a wide range of support for investment, training and business development, all designed to foster enterprise and promote new opportunities and economic growth in rundown urban areas.

The urban programme allocations made today are provisional: formal allocations are made — after inner area programmes (IAPs) have been assessed and approved. In the case of authorities with partnership or programme status in 1986-87, allocations are also conditional on their providing a satisfactory annual report on achievements through the UP in 1986-87. Additional resources sometimes become available for redistribution in the course of the year which may lead to outturn being different from these initial allocations.

I attach considerable importance to the improvement in the management of the urban programme and am grateful to authorities for their continuing commitment to and achievements in the urban programme management initiative (UPM).

The allocations to individual authorities are as follows.

Region and Authority	Initial Allocation 1988-89 £ million
Northern
Newcastle/Gateshead	16·84
Hartlepool	1·75
Langbaurgh	1·75
Middlesbrough	5·50
North Tyneside	3·42
South Tyneside	4·40
Stockton	1·37
Sunderland	4·40
North West
Manchester/Salford	22·20
Blackburn	4·00
Bolton	3·75
Burnley	1·60
Oldham	3·70
Preston	2·00
Rochdale	3·40
Wigan	2·20
Merseyside
Liverpool	20·50
Halton	1·43
Knowsley	3·91
St. Helens	1·70
Sefton	1·50
Wirral	3·42
West Midlands
Birmingham	24·68
Coventry	4·79
Dudley	1·25
Sandwell	4·67
Walsall	1·50
Wolverhampton	5·39
The Wrekin	0·57
East Midlands
Derby	1·41
Leicester	5·43
Nottingham	5·50
Yorkshire and Humberside
Barnsley	1·50
Bradford	4·50
Doncaster	1·75
Hull	4·89
Kirklees	0·82
Leeds	4·40
Rotherham	1·75
Sheffield	5·50
London
Hackney	9·66
Islington	9·65
Lambeth	11·75
Brent	3·91
Greenwich	1·90
Hammersmith and Fulham	4·31
Haringey	2·25
Kensington and Chelsea	1·85
Lewisham	1·95
Newham	2·25
Southwark	2·25
Tower Hamlets	4·50

Region and Authority	Initial Allocation 1988-89 £ million
Wandsworth	4·50
South West
Bristol	1·50
Plymouth	1·0

Secure Car Service

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what has been the annual cost of the secure car service in each of the past five years.

Mr. Chope [holding answer 8 February 1988]: All Ministers are entitled to a secure chauffer driven official vehicle when on Government business. The cost of providing this service for the years 1982-83 to 1985-86 were provided on 23 February 1987, at column 95. The costs for 1986-87 were provided on 23 July 1987, at column 180.

Women's Indoor Abseiling

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what information he has as to the facilities which are made available for women's indoor abseiling; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Moynihan [holding answer 5 February 1988]: I think I know what may have prompted my hon. Friend to ask this interesting question. So far as I am aware, there is no such provision in the Palace of Westminster. However, there are about 145 special climbing wall facilities in England and Wales as well as over 1,000 sports halls which provide abseiling facilities. Women, as well as men, have access to these facilities. Details of their location can be obtained from either the Sports Council or the Sports Council for Wales—Cyngor Chwaraeon Cymru.

Leeds-Bradford Airport

Mrs. Peacock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he expects to announce the findings of the Leeds-Bradford airport public inquiry into extended flying hours; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Trippier: The inspector has completed his report of the inquiry and his findings are now being carefully considered. When this has been concluded, a decision will be issued jointly by the Secretaries of State for the Environment and for Transport.

Whilst every effort will be made to reach the decision with the minimum of delay, I cannot predict at this stage when that will be.

Peak Park

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many members of the Peak Park planning board, as a percentage of the total, lived outside the area of the park, in the year the board first met, and at subsequent three-year intervals until the present day.

Mr. Moynihan [pursuant to his reply 20 November 1987, c. 682]: Sixty five per cent. at present. Records of the addresses of local authority members in previous years are not held centrally.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) if he will list the present members of the Peak Park planning board, together with the body that appointed them, their qualifications, and place of residence;

(2) how many of the members of the Peak Park planning board live within the area of the Peak Park; and, of those, which were appointed by local authorities and which by himself.

Mr. Moynihan [pursuant to his reply, 20 November 1987, c. 682]: Four out of 23 appointed by local authorities and eight out of 11 appointed by my right hon. Friend. Current membership and places of residence are:

Name	Appointing authority	Place of residence
Mrs. E. Andrews	Secretary of State	Flash
Mr. J. Beadle	Derbyshire CC	Derby
Councillor R. J. Beaver	North-East Derbyshire DC	Stretton
Mr. K. Campbell	Secretary of State	Dore
Mr. J. Cant	Secretary of State	Youlgreave
Major-General P. B. Cavendish	Secretary of State	Youlgreave
Councillor Mrs. C. M. N. Gowthat	Derbyshire Dales DC	Bakewell
Councillor G. M. Doughty	Derbyshire CC	New Mills
Councillor G. W. Driver	Macclesfield BC	Higher Poynton
Councillor J. H. Edwards	Staffordshire CC	Stoke-on-Trent
Mr. J. S. Elliott	Secretary of State	Hope
Miss C. H. Harlow	Derbyshire CC	Whaley Bridge
Councillor K. C. Hinchcliffe	Cheshire CC	Rainow
Councillor of C. B. Hoole	Derbyshire Dales CC	Bonsall
Councillor D. J. Hunter	Barnsley MBC	Barnsley
Councillor L. Kershaw	Kirklees MBC	Bradford
Mr. C. Langford-Myoock	Secretary of State	Waterhouses
Mrs. P. Mason	Secretary of State	Hope
Mr. L. G. Meadowcroft	Secretary of State	Stockport
Councillor J. M. Murphy	Derbyshire CC	Staveley
Councillor M. J. Pye	Sheffield CC	Sheffield
Mr. J. C. Ratcliffe	Derbyshire CC	Church Gresley
Miss E. J. Robinson	Secretary of State	Sheffield
Councillor R. Semple	Oldham MBC	Oldham
Councillor D. A. Skinner	Sheffield CC	Sheffield
Councillor G. Speight	Kirklees MBC	Batley
Councillor M. Tappin	Staffordshire CC	Stoke-on-Trent

Name	Appointing authority	Place of residence
Mrs. J. Thornton	Secretary of State	Matlock
Councillor Mrs. E. M. Tomlinson	High Peak BC	Buxton
Mr. M. Vallance	Secretary of State	Ilyam
Councillor Mrs. Watkins	Derbyshire CC	Derby
Councillor L. A. Watson	Cheshire CC	Congleton
Councillor G. N. Wilson	Derbyshire CC	Youlgreave
Vacancy	Derbyshire CC

Biographical details of the entire membership are not held centrally.

National Parks

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list how many members of each national park planning board live within the area of that park as a percentage of the total numbers on each board.

Mr. Moynihan [pursuant to his reply, 20 November 1987, c. 683]: The information for the seven English national parks has been reassessed as follows:

Park	Members	Number living within park	Percentage of total number
Dartmoor	21	7	33
Exmoor	21	6	29
Lake District	30	12	40
Northumberland	27	1	4
North York Moors	27	6	22
Peak District	34	12	35
Yorkshire Dales	24	6	25

The three Welsh national parks are the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Waste Disposal (Dawdon)

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what is the amount of waste being tipped annually off Dawdon as (a) slurry, (b) solid waste and (c) toxic waste; and if he will indicate for each category the points of origin;

(2) if he will make a statement on the environmental implications of recent proposals by British Coal to dispose of increased amounts of slurry and coal waste off Dawdon.

Mr. Gummer: I have been asked to reply.

The discharge of waste, including slurry, by pipeline at Dawdon is a matter for the Northumbrian water authority which regulates such disposal under the Control of Pollution Act 1974.

Beach tipping is regulated by my Department under the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985; 2·5 million tonnes of solid colliery waste is licensed annually for disposal in the Dawdon area in this way. The material originates from Easington, Dawdon, Vane Tempest, Seaham and Hawthorn collieries. No proposal has been made by British Coal for an increase in this licensed quantity. No dumping of other wastes at Dawdon is currently licensed under the 1985 Act.

TRANSPORT

Low-Alcohol Beers

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the impact of the sale of low-alcohol and alcohol-free beers at prices higher than alcoholic beers on the Government's campaign to discourage drinking and driving; and if he will make representations to the Brewers' Society on the situation.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Prices should be determined by supply, demand and competition. Sales of low alcohol and non-alcohol beers have been increasing rapidly. The choice of brands is increasing.

There are encouraging efforts by the brewers to promote low and non-alcoholic beers. The wide availability of attractive alternatives to alcoholic drinks is an important contribution to the campaign against drinking and driving.

PRIME MINISTER

European Fighter Aircraft

Q23. Mr. Cran: To ask the Prime Minister when she next intends to meet other Heads of Government to discuss the future of the European fighter aircraft.

The Prime Minister: I have no plans to do so at present.

South-East Wales (Visit)

Q100. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Prime Minister if she has any plans to visit south-east Wales in the near future.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

Lychett Minster (Visit)

Q114. Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if she plans to visit Lychett Minster.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

Pay Scales

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister what is the pay scale of (a) a personal secretary employed in her office and (b) a trained nurse, including London weighting, and so on.

The Prime Minister: The information requested is as follows:

Personal Secretary £ per annum	Staff Nurse £ per annum
8,134	8,230
8,399	8,490
8,664	8,750
8,986	9,010
9,373	9,270
	9,530

The scales include inner London weighting of £1,527 per annum for personal secretaries, and London weighting of £930 per annum for nurses. Both groups are eligible for various other payments including overtime, which are excluded from the scales quoted above. Personal secretaries can receive proficiency allowances depending on skill and a special pay addition of £400 based on recruitment and retention needs. Nurses are eligible for various leads and allowances, including special duty payments of up to 60 per cent. of basic pay for working unsocial hours on top of any overtime payments.

Surplus Industrial Capacity

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Prime Minister whether the Government will provide funds for surplus industrial capacity to be set aside for use in times of war; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: We have no plans to do so.

Doctors and Dentists (Pay)

Mr. Leigh: To ask the Prime Minister if she will make a statement on the latest report by the Review Body on Doctors' and Dentists' Remuneration.

The Prime Minister: I have received the review body's report on the proposed new hospital staff grade, which is being published this afternoon. Copies will be available in the Vote Office. The Government are grateful to the chairman and members for the speed and thoroughness of their deliberations. The salary scale they have recommended is from £13,720, progressing by six equal increments to £20,470. The Government propose to accept the review body's recommendation. There will be further discussions with the profession's representatives to finalise detailed arrangements with the aim of introducing the new grade in the spring.

Engagements

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 9 February.

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 9 February.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 9 February.

Mr. Pike: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 9 February.

Mr. Stern: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 9 February.

Mr. Janner: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 9 February.

The Prime Minister: This morning I had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. I attended the memorial service for Lord Duncan Sandys at St. Margaret's, Westminster. In addition to my duties in the House, I shall be having further meetings later today. This evening I hope to have an audience of Her Majesty the Queen.

DEFENCE

AIDS

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his reply of 14 December 1987, Official Report, column 415, if he will give his reasons for not testing all Army recruits for HIV status.

Mr. Freeman: The scale of the AIDS problem is such that we see no need at present for general compulsory screening. The MOD policy not to test all Army recruits for HIV status is in accordance with Government policy on employment. Within the service, those who consider themselves to have been at risk are encouraged to undergo voluntary screening and to seek immediate confidential advice from their unit medical officers.

Service Personnel (Electors)

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the total number of service personnel in each branch of the armed forces who are registered as electors for the latest year for which statistics are available; and what is the percentage these figures represent of the total manpower in each service.

Mr. Freeman: The statistics requested are as follows:

As at 31 December 1987

	RN-RM	Army	RAF
Numbers registered as electors	51,684	103,480	50,855
As percentage of strength	79	65	54

All figures exclude service spouses also registered under the service voters provisions.

Nuclear Weapons (Transportation)

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many nuclear weapons have been transported within or through the Clydesdale constituency since 1979.

Mr. Ian Stewart: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to give details of the movement of nuclear weapons.

HOME DEPARTMENT

South African Embassy (Incident)

Mr. John Carlisle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has received reports from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis of an incident that took place outside the South African embassy on Tuesday 19 January which resulted in injury to a superintendent of police.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: My hon. Friend may be referring to an incident which took place at the Strand entrance to Charing Cross underground station on 19 January. I understand fronm the commissioner that a police superintendent was pushed down the underground stairs and assaulted. The assailant ran off before help could be summoned and to date has not been identified. Police inquiries into the incident are continuing.

Lunar House (Unopened Mail)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many unopened items of mail were held at Lunar house, Croydon, as at 21 January.

Mr. Renton: The number of unopened items of mail, and those opened for the extraction of fees but not yet acknowledged, on 21 January 1988 was approximately 200,000. Vigorous steps are being taken to deal with this backlog, the prime reason for which is the very large number of applications for registration as British citizens received before the deadline of 31 December 1987.

Lunar House (Staff)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff were employed in the various departments at Lunar House, Croydon, on 1 January for each of the years 1985 to 1988.

Mr. Renton: The figures for staff in post in the immigration and nationality department based at Lunar house in January for each of the years 1985 to 1988 are as follows:

	1985	1986	1987	1988
B1 Division	434	472	468	484
B2 Division	33	55	54	58
B3 Division	167	176	168	161
B4 Division	258	217	225	230
B5 Division[1]	404	382	472	492
Immigration Service Headquarters	96	98	98	101

[1] B5 figures include staff providing common services (eg messengers) for non-IND Home Office Departments at Lunar House. From 1987 the B5 figures also include staff working on IND computer projects who were previously working in the central Home Office computer division.

Variations of Leave

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the average length of time it takes for his Department to process applications for (a) variation of leave for a visitor and (b) variation of leave for a person who arrives as a visitor and wishes to remain on the basis of marriage.

Mr. Renton: Excluding cases decided on the same day by the public inquiry office, the average length of time between the receipt of an application and the decision for cases decided in 1987 was about three months for those who applied to extend their leave as a visitor and between eight and nine months for visitors who applied to remain on the basis of marriage.

Police (Personal Records)

Sir Eldon Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to which police forces keep records of complaints against police officers that are unsubstantiated; and why some of these forces are proposing to transfer to police officers' personal records such unsubstantiated material.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Regulation 12 of the Police (Complaints) (General) Regulations 1985 requires all chief officers of police to keep a register of complaints against members of his force and this records the outcome of all such complaints.

The contents of a police officer's personal record are determined by regulation 19 of the Police Regulations 1987; they do not include records of unsubstantiated complaints against the officer concerned. We have no information to suggest that forces are failing to comply with this regulation or are proposing to ignore it. But personnel management considerations suggest that a chief officer should make arrangements to be aware of the complaints attracted by individual members of his force. Such arrangements are a matter for the chief officer concerned.

Sir Eldon Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why he is proposing that police officers personal records shall be expanded to include material at present included only in divisional discipline books.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We have made no such proposal.

Prisoners (Lock-up Charges)

Mr. Page: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list for the metropolitan and county police forces the lock-up charges for prisoners, as invoiced to the prison service; and what is the annual total amount spent under this heading.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: In the current financial year up to 31 January 1988, a total of £13,431,673 had been paid to police authorities for accommodating prisoners in police cells. This compares with expenditure of £6,152,858 in the financial year 1986-87. Charges raised by police forces are for actual additional costs incurred, but it is possible to calculate an implied per capital rate per night from the invoices submitted. The table shows the implied per capita rate per night for each police force which accommodated prisoners in the current financial year.

Police Force	Implied per capita rate per night £
Avon and Somerset	73
Bedfordshire	66
Cambridgeshire	176
Cheshire	[1]63
Cheshire	[2]113
Devon and Cornwall	144
Essex	44
Greater Manchester	45
Gwent	123
Hampshire	105
Kent	138
Merseyside	72
Metropolitan	201
Norfolk	55
Northamptonshire	102
Sussex	65
Surrey	149
West Midlands	21
Wiltshire	45

[1] For prisoners held on behalf of North Region.
[2] For prisoners held on behalf of South East Region.

Mr. Orkechurkwu Emmanuel Ejoh

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will release from detention Orkechurkwu Emmanuel Ejoh, pending his consideration of written representations made by the hon. Member for Bradford, West; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Renton: No. Mr. Ejoh claimed on arrival to have been born in the United Kingdom but the immigration officer was not satisfied that this was so and refused him leave to enter. An independent adjudicator dismissed his appeal on 14 December and leave to appeal to the immigration appeals tribunal was refused on 12 January.

Unification Church

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if, in the light of the Attorney-General's withdrawal of his appeal against the decision not to remove charity status from the Unification Church, he will indicate what plans he has to review charity legislation; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: The Government have already announced their intention to bring forward legislation to improve the supervision of charities by implementing the recommendations of Sir Philip Woodfield's efficiency scrutiny. The implications of the Attorney-General's recent decision to discontinue his action against the Unification Church are being studied closely.

Offenders (Electronic Tagging)

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to evaluate electronic tagging for offenders; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: Several systems are in use in North America and others are being developed here. We are considering whether electronic monitoring would be useful to enforce curfews or track an offender's whereabouts. This could be part of new arrangements for punishment in the community, as an alternative to custody. We hope to announce proposals later this year.

Immigration

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons in (a) Bangladesh, (b) India, (c) Pakistan, (d) Ghana and (e) Nigeria applied for a visa to visit the United Kingdom in the 12 month period November 1986 to October 1987; and what was the outcome of those applications.

Mr. Renton: The information is given in the table. The visa requirement for citizens of Nigeria was not introduced until 1 February 1987.

Applications for a visit visa, November 1986 to October 1987

Number of persons

	Received	Granted	Refused initially	Withdrawn or lapsed[1]	Increase in applications awaiting decision[2]
Bangladesh	9,380	6,740	1,920	300	420
India	98,020	90,630	4,670	1,490	1,240
Pakistan	58,440	47,900	6,650	1,860	2,020
Ghana	12,100	9,440	2,330	270	50
Nigeria[3]	43,530	38,120	2,920	[4]2,490
	221,470	192,830	18,500	10,130

[1] Net of applications revived.
[2] Most of which had been deferred for further inquiries or referred to the Home Office for decision.
[3] Data relate to the period February to October 1987.
[4] Based on incomplete information it is estimated that all these applications had been withdrawn or lapsed, and that there had been no increase in applications awaiting decision.

SCOTLAND

Health and Personal Social Services

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will publish a table setting out for 1987-88 and 1988-89 the estimated number of (a) families and (b) persons in each health region or equivalent, and in Scotland as a whole, showing net average expenditure on health and personal social services per family and per person in each year, and distinguishing between expenditure on the National Health Service and on the personal social services

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information is not available in the form requested.

The following table gives population projections for each health board area at June 1987 and June 1988. These figures are assumptions derived from actual population figures in June 1985.

	1987	1988
Argyll and Clyde	444,742	443,648
Ayrshire and Arran	375,571	375,780
Borders	102,323	102,667
Dumfries and Galloway	147,419	147,909
Fife	345,109	346,029
Forth Valley	272,400	272,550
Grampian	504,939	506,556
Greater Glasgow	954,913	949,070
Highland	202,331	203,593
Lanarkshire	563,786	562,003
Lothian	743,141	743,672
Orkney	19,298	19,302
Shetland	23,713	23,823
Tayside	393,041	393,180
Western Isles	31,453	31,401
SCOTLAND TOTAL	5,124,179	5,121,183

No data are available on the number of families in Scotland.

Expenditure on the National Health Service cannot be broken down by health board area since a significant part of Health Service expenditure is incurred centrally. Most expenditure on social work is incurred by local authorities and figures by health board area are not held centrally.

Estimates of net total expenditure on health and social work per head of population in Scotland are as follows:

	1987-88 £	1988-89 £
Health	444	467
Social Work[1]	81	85

[1] The local authority current expenditure element of the 1987-88 figure is based on actual social work budgets, while the 1988-89 figure is based on the service provision within the rate support grant settlement.

Coatbridge Ambulance Depot

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what facilities are available for personnel at the Coatbridge ambulance depot.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Staff facilities at the ambulance station comprises a mess room, kitchen, separate male and female toilets and locker rooms.

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many persons are employed at the Coatbridge ambulance depot; and what are their designations.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: There are 52 staff based at the ambulance station, as follows:

1 station officer
28 qualified ambulancemen
15 ambulancemen
6 relief ambulancemen
1 mechanic
1 semi-skilled mechanic.

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many vehicles are in use at the Coatbridge ambulance depot; and what arrangements are made for their repair and maintenance.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: There are 22 ambulances and one van based at Coatbridge ambulance station. Most maintenance and repair work is carried out at the station itself where there is a fully-equipped one-bay workshop. Back-up is provided by the Motherwell ambulance station, which has a six-bay workshop.

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what geographical areas are serviced by the Coatbridge ambulance depot.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The areas normally served by Coatbridge ambulance station include Airdrie, Bellshill, Coatbridge, Uddingston and Bothwell, Viewpark and parts of the local motorway network. Ambulances from the station may also be called upon to assist throughout Lanarkshire and Forth valley as necessary.

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what hospitals are serviced by the Coatbridge ambulance depot.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The station serves Monklands district general hospital, Bellshill maternity hospital, Law hospital, Stonehouse hospital and Hairmyres hospital. Patients are also conveyed to and from hospitals in Glasgow.

Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he has any plans for extending and improving facilities at the Coatbridge ambulance depot; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I understand that a proposal to build a replacement for the present station is, together with other competing priorities, under consideration by the Common Services Agency, of which the Scottish ambulance service is a division.

NHS (Administrative Staff)

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give (a) the number of administrative staff employed by the Health Service in Scotland since 1979; and (b) the total sums each year since 1979, spent on administrative salaries.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The numbers of administrative and clerical staff, including medical secretaries, employed by health boards and the Common Services Agency, together with their salary costs, are set out in the table:

	Number of administrative and clerical staff[1]	Expenditure on salaries £'thousand
1979-80	13,121·6	54,091
1980-81	13,225·7	70,603
1981-82	13,628·8	77,078
1982-83	13,880·4	83,398
1983-84	14,088·0	88,280
1984-85	14,052·8	93,089
1985-86	14,315·1	98,649
1986-87	14,455·5	106,305

[1] Whole-time equivalents as at 30 September each year.

Clydesdale (Population)

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give the population of each of the towns and villages in the Clydesdale constituency.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information available at the required level of detail is derived from the 1981 census. The continuously built-up areas in Clydesdale constituency with usually resident populations of 500 or more at that time were as follows:

Area	Population
Ashgill	958
Biggar	1,921
Carluke (including Castlehill)	11,708
Carnwath	1,363
Carstairs	763
Carstairs Junction	908
Coalburn	1,222
Douglas	1,718
Forth	2,891
Kirkmuirhill	3,619
Lanark (including Bellefield Hospital & Kirkfieldbank)	9,672
Law	2,738
Lesmahagow	3,396
Netherburn	757
Rigside	1,059
Stonehouse	5,093
West End (including Carstairs State Hospital)	661

School Nurses

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list in the Official Report, for each year over the last five up to the latest year for which figures are available (a) the number of school nurses employed, given as total, whole-time, part-time, and whole-time equivalent, (b) the establishment figure for school nurses and (c) the number of vacant posts.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The number of school nurses employed by health boards in Scotland and in post at 30 September in each of the last five years is as follows. Information about funded establishments and vacant posts is not held centrally.

	1983	1984	1985	1986	[1]1987
Whole time	129·0	118·0	117·0	120·0	116·0
Part time	162·0	167·0	179·0	189·0	189·0
Whole time equivalent	234·9	227·4	234·5	245·9	240·7

[1] Provisional figure.

Private Health Insurance

Mr. Batiste: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimate he has of the proportion of the population of Scotland which is not covered, in whole or in part, by private health insurance.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: None.

Children's Hearings System

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he intends to introduce any proposals to significantly alter the children's hearing system; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: No. In setting up a review of child care law in Scotland we made it clear that children's hearings will continue their central role in the Scottish system for dealing with children in need of compulsory measures of care.

Child Law Reform Group

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he intends to announce the membership of the child law reform group.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Within the next few days.

District Councils (Capital Allocations)

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how the amount of capital receipts received by a district council affects its capital allocations; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: District councils receive two allocations covering housing and general services respectively. Gross housing capital allocations are determined, within the total gross resources available, on the basis of individual authorities' relative needs. The net allocation for each authority is calculated by deducting estimated receipts from its gross allocation. The estimate of receipts is discussed fully with each authority and can be updated until March, when final allocations are issued.

After final allocations are issued, each authority has consent to incur during that year's capital expenditure up to its net figure, plus actual receipts generated. It is therefore in an authority's interest to generate as great a volume of receipts as possible; for example, by encouraging the sale of council houses under tenants' right to buy.

Authorities' estimates of the capital receipts they expect to raise are one of the factors taken into account in determining their general services allocations, which are issued, on a net basis, in February. A district council may augment its capital allocation by an amount equivalent to the actual capital receipts it raises in the year. Receipts raised on general services may not be applied to housing expenditure and vice versa.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how he deals with the covenant proposals of district councils in deciding capital allocations; and how covenant proposals are allocated for accounting purposes between different financial years.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: In deciding the level of an individual authority's capital allocation, full account is taken of the expenditure projections contained in the authority's financial plan submitted each year to my Department. The public accounting treatment of covenant schemes depends on the sums involved and the date on which they are entered into. Precise guidance on the treatment of covenant schemes is included in the explanatory memorandum enclosed with the letter issued each year by my Department notifying authorities of their capital allocations.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the principles used to decide upon capital allocations to district councils.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The allocation of resources for capital expenditure by district councils are determined, within the resources available, on the basis of their relative needs. In the light of the financial plans they submit each year, authorities' relative needs are assessed taking account of a number of factors, including the capital costs of individual projects, the current expenditure consequences, their previous spending patterns and performance; authorities' forecast of capital receipts and the desirability of aiding continuity in financial planning by adhering to the provisional allocations already issued and the need to adjust these to reflect changes in circumstances or of emphasis in their financial plans.

For housing allocations, also taken into account are authorities' capital programmes as set out in their housing plans and checklists.

Housing Budget

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the total amount allocated for housing in his Department's budget for 1988-89; and how it is disaggregated.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Gross expenditure is planned to be £882 million, disaggregated as follows:

	£ million
Gross capital expenditure
Local authorities	517
Scottish Special Housing Association	55
Housing Corporation	133
Urban Regeneration	12
New Towns	31
Total	748
Current expenditure
Local authorities	76
Scottish Special Housing Association	22
Housing Corporation	4
New Towns	27
Administration	4
Total	133
Total programme (gross)	[1]882
Capital receipts	243
Total programme (net)	639

[1] Total does not add due to rounding.

"Secret Society"

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, pursuant to his reply of 27 January, Official Report, columns 244-95, what representations he made to the BBC when it consulted the Government concerning the inclusion in the programme entitled "Cabinet" of the series "Secret Society" of classified information.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 1 February 1988]: My right hon. and learned Friend made no such representations.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Trans-Atlantic Fibre Optic Cable

Mr. Carrington: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the implications for United Kingdom participation in the private trans-Atlantic fibre optic cable project of the Republic of Ireland's decision to participate therein.

Mr. Butcher: Through the decision to land a spur in the Republic of Ireland, Telecom Eireann has become the first European telecommunications administration to demonstrate a financial commitment to the private trans-Atlantic cable project. Telecom Eireann's decision is an important landmark in the success of this project and has been welcomed, in a message from my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to the Taoiseach, as an excellent example of combined American and Anglo-Irish industrial development.

Copyright

Mr. Rost: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether it is his intention, under the Copyright, Designs and Patents Bill [Lords], that copying done for private study of research using a reprographic process in a university library should be an infringement of copyright; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Butcher: It is our intention that copying for private study and research purposes should be permitted, subject to certain conditions. The circumstances in which copyright material may be copied without infringement are set out in chapter III of part I of the Bill.

Patent Office

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) if he will publish as percentages the work of the Patent Office that is undertaken (a) by telephone, (b) as correspondence and (c) by applicants in person;

(2) if he will publish a report on the work of the Patent Office including full details of the regions of the United Kingdom from which the work originated.

Mr. Butcher: Information about the work of the Patent Office is provided in the annual report to Parliament of the Comptroller-General of Patents, Designs and Trade Marks. However, the details which the hon. Member seeks are not available centrally and could not be compiled other than at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what consultations took place with users of Patent Office services, and its staff, before the decision was announced to move the office out of central London;

(2) which owners of patents, trade marks or registered designs were consulted concerning the likely total cost to them in Government fees, professional fees and ancillary costs arising from implementation of the proposal to move the Patent Office to south Wales;

(3) what steps he is taking to ensure that the Patent Office retains the existing corps of technical examiners so as to maintain the continuity of experience required for the competent examination of patent applications across the full technical spectrum;

(4) when the current independent financial basis for the functioning of the Patent Office will continue in such a way that its operations will neither be supported from, nor contribute to, Government revenues; and if he will make a statement;

(5) whether the whole of the proportion of fees received for the renewal of European Patents (UK), currently retained by the Patent Office, will continue to accrue solely to the benefit of its operations; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Butcher: The final decision on the future location of the Patent Office has not yet been announced, but, as my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster stated in his reply to the hon. Member for Bradford, West (Mr. Madden) and for Harrogate (Mr. Banks) on 10 December 1987, column 239, we have been examining the possibility of relocating the Patent Office to Cardiff or Newport.

With this in mind our officials have had discussions with representatives of the relevant professional organisations and the Federation of Trade Mark, Patent and Design Owners on the services needed to be retained in central London in order to ensure that the Patent Office continues to provide the range of services needed by industry and commerce for the efficient conduct of their business at the point where they are needed. The provision of a public office in London should ensure that no additional professional costs fall on customers, while the relocation of the main operations of the office away from London will reduce running costs to the ultimate benefit of users.

A review of the financial basis of the Patent Office, including the level of European patent (UK) renewal fees to be retained by the office, is in progress.

Patent examiners are mobile grades liable to serve anywhere in the country. I do not anticipate any problem in finding sufficient staff willing to work in south Wales.

Further statements will be made about these issues in the near future.

European Regional Development Fund

Mr. Pike: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will publish in the Official Report the bids for European regional development fund for 1988-89 and the comparative bids and allocations for 1987-88 British regions.

Mr. Atkins: The table shows European regional development fund commitments to the United Kingdom for the calendar year 1987 and the value of applications submitted during this period.

£ million

	Commitments	Applications
North	56	—
Yorkshire and Humberside	30	—
East Midlands	2	—

	Commitments	Applications
South West	28	—
West Midlands	65	—
North West	36	—
England	217	256
Wales	54	82
Scotland	83	153
Northern Ireland	39	53
Multi-Regional	3	—
United Kingdom	396	544

The columns are, however, not directly comparable, since corresponding applications and commitments are not necessarily made in the same calendar (or financial) year. Thus, many 1987 commitments were applied for in 1986, and many of the outstanding 1987 applications can be expected to lead to commitments in 1988.

The total of new applications in 1988 will exceed £400 million. Together with applications outstanding from 1987, they will comfortably suffice for 1988 commitments to a total at least similar to that in 1987. Full or regional estimates cannot however yet be made.

Internal Market Council

Dr. Blackburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will report on the meeting of EC/EFTA Ministers and the Internal Market Council held on 2 February.

Mr. Alan Clark: The meeting of the European Community and European Free Trade Association Ministers re-affirmed the European Community's commitment to strengthen mutual co-operation with the European Free Trade Association in tackling barriers to trade at the same time as the Community makes progress on completion of its single market. European Community and European Free Trade Association Ministers also agreed a joint statement highlighting specific areas for action in the coming months. This gives priority to tackling problems of direct concern to industry, notably in the area of technical standards, origin documentation, and co-operation against counterfeiting.

A meeting of the Internal Market Council followed, which considered proposals for a Community patent conversion and a regulation to establish a Community trade mark system. Technical issues will be pursued by the presidency and the Commission, and at working group level, with a view to further discussion at a forthcoming Council.

British Steel

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what preparations he has made for the appointment of underwriters for the flotation of British Steel; when he hopes to make an appointment; and on what basis and when the advertising budget will be decided.

Mr. Atkins [holding answer 8 February 1988]: Preparations for the flotation of the British Steel Corporation are at an early stage. No decisions have yet been taken therefore on the matters raised.

Mr. Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions he has had with stockbroking firms about the tendering for the British Steel flotation; when he expects to make the choice; and what prospectus has been issued to applicants for the flotation contract.

Mr. Atkins: [holding answer 8 February 1988]: My Department announced on 2 February the appointment of Rowe and Pitman Ltd. as stockbroking advisers for the flotation of the British Steel Corporation. This appointment followed an open competition, during which selected applicants were sent a brief description of the work involved.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what discussions he has had with advertising agencies about the flotation of the British Steel Corporation.

Mr. Atkins [holding answer 8 February 1988]: Two advertising agencies have approached the Department to express an interest in appointment for the British Steel Corporation flotation. The nature of the marketing campaign has not yet been decided, however, and no substantive discussions have been held.

Enterprise Consultants

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which firms of chartered accountants his Department invited to provide enterprise consultants prior to the publication of his White Paper on the role of the Department of Trade and Industry; when; and by what means.

Mr. Atkins [holding answer 8 February 1988]: On 12 November 1987, seven firms with national coverage were invited to tender competitively for the provision of enterprise counsellor services. As a result of that competition two firms, Coopers and Lybrand and Ernst and Whinney, were awarded contracts. It would be a breach of commercial confidentiality to reveal the names of those firms which tendered unsuccessfully.

Lancashire (Grants)

Mr. Hind: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what grants he has allocated to Lancashire county council or Lancashire Enterprises Ltd. for 1988-89; what grants were made in 1987-88; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins [holding answer 5 February 1988]: The Department makes no allocation of grants to Lancashire county council. During 1987-88 Lancashire Enterprises made application for and was offered grant assistance under the European regional development fund's business improvement services scheme.

Textile Industry

Mr. Madden: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Oldham, Central and Royton (Mr. Lamond) on 13 January, what evidence of injury to United Kingdom textile firms as a result of Turkish acrylic yarns was contained in letters sent to him by Mr. B. J. Spencer, president of the Textile Confederation, on 25 November 1987 and by Peter Booth, national secretary of the Textile Transport General Workers Union group on 18 September 1987 and 6 January, drawing his attention to firms in the United Kingdom forced into short-time working and layoffs; what action he is taking substantially to reduce Turkish acrylic yarn imports into the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 1 February 1988]: I have written to the hon. Member.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Northern Ireland (Administration of Justice)

Mr. McCusker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether, during any meetings of the Intergovernmental Council, the representatives of the Government of the Irish Republic have raised with him their objections to the administration of justice in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement.

Sir Geoffrey Howe: The Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Council (AIIC) itself last met in November 1985. Both then and since, the Irish Government have put forward a number of views and proposals concerning the administration of justice in Northern Ireland. These have been considered at the Intergovernmental Conference which was set up under the Anglo-Irish Agreement within the framework of the AIIC. We have considered their proposals as part of our continuing commitment to increase public confidence in the administration of justice in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Boris Chernobilsky

Mr. Bowis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Soviet Government about Mr. Boris Chernobilsky and his family, of Profsoyuznaya 119, Moscow, who are seeking exit visas to enable them to leave the Soviet Union.

Mr. Meller: My right hon. and learned Friend last raised the issue of Soviet citizens awaiting permission to emigrate with the Soviet Foreign Minister at Brize Norton on 7 December, when he handed over a list of cases about which we had received representations, including that of Mr. Boris Chernobilsky and his family. My right hon. and learned Friend expects to press for rapid progress again when he visits the Soviet Union from 14-17 February.

Miss. Nasreen Akhtar

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the British embassy in Islamabad will permit Nasreen Akhtar to return to Bradford; on how many occasions since 2 January Nasreen Akhtar has visited that embassy to ask for a re-entry visa; how many official telex messages have been sent to that embassy confirming the identity of Nasreen Akhtar and on what dates; what replies have been received; why letters from the hon. Member for Bradford, West confirmin Nasreen Akhtar's identity have not been accepted by that embassy; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Meller: Her Majesty's Embassy in Islamabad informed Nasreen Akhtar by registered letter on 4 February 1988, that a returning resident visa was available on an any day basis. The only recorded visit by Nasreen Akhtar to the embassy was on 27 January, the date of application. The embassy received two official telex messages concerning Nasreen Akhtar's immigration status (not her identity) on 14 January and 3 February 1988. The embassy telexed the Home Office on 20 January requesting their reference number in order to locate previous papers, and again on 28 January after the application was actually lodged.

Miss Akhtar's recently issued passport bore only a United Kingdom departure stamp and this was not sufficient to confirm her returning resident status. While the hon. Member for Bradford, West's letter confirmed Miss Akhtar's identity, it did not confirm her status.

EMPLOYMENT

Disabled People (Employment)

Mr. Cartwright: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what reviews have been carried out by his Department since 1979 of the effectiveness of the Disabled Persons (Employment) Act 1944 in increasing the number of disabled people in employment; if he has any plans to seek to amend the Act; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lee: The programmes which derive from the Act have been kept under internal review.

The effectiveness of the quota scheme was the subject of a Manpower Services Commission-led review and report undertaken in 1979-81. The report of a subsequent Manpower Services Commission-led working group which examined ways of improving the scheme was published in 1985. An important conclusion in that report was that research was needed into the numbers and characteristics of people with disabilities. Arrangements for such research are currently under way.

I have no plans at present to amend the Act.

Restart Programme

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people have benefited from the restart programme in (a) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (b) the Chester travel-to-work area and (c) the Runcorn travel-to-work area in each year since the programme's inception; and what has been the cost in each year.

Mr. Lee: I regret that the information is not available in the form requested. However, figures for the Cheshire employment service area, which includes Northwich, Chester and Runcorn, are shown in the table:

	1 July 1986 to 9 April 1987	10 April 1987 to 25 December 1987
Number of restart interviews	23,333	22,136
Percentage of those interviewed who received a positive offer of help	95	94

The estimated cost of delivering restart counselling in the Cheshire area in 1986-87 was £310,000 and so far in 1987-88 has been £294,000.

Major Accident Hazards

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will list the industrial installations with their locations in the county of Durham which are covered by the Control of Industrial Major Accident Hazards Regulations.

Mr. Nicholls: One industrial installation in the county of Durham has been notified to the Health and Safety Executive under the Control of Industrial Major Accident Hazards Regulations 1984. The installation is:

Norske Hydro Polymers Ltd.
Aycliffe Industrial Estate
Newton Aycliffe
Co. Durham

Productivity Payments

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is his policy on wage earners being rewarded for increases in productivity achieved with their co-operation.

Mr. Nicholls: I am, of course, in favour of rewarding genuine productivity achievement provided it can be afforded and does not add to unit wage costs. Primary responsibility for pay must remain a matter for employers and employees directly concerned.

Job Training Scheme

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what percentage of entrants to the job training scheme obtained credits, or qualifications, as a direct result of their time on the scheme.

Mr. Cope: The information is not available. The Manpower Services Commission has commissioned a follow-up survey which has now commenced and which will provide information on qualifications. The results should be known in the spring.

THE ARTS

Public Libraries (Nottinghamshire)

Mr. Haynes: To ask the Minister for the Arts what information he has about the level of loans from public libraries in Nottinghamshire in the last year for which figures are available.

Mr. Luce: Information about public library loans is collected and published by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy. In the latest year for which information is available — 1985-86 — public libraries in Nottinghamshire issued 12·05 million books and more than 296,000 other items.

Business Sponsorship Incentive Scheme

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Minister for the Arts how many first-time corporate donors to the arts were registered under the business sponsorship incentive scheme in 1987; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Luce: The scheme continues to bring a stream of new sponsors into the arts, attracting 216 first-time business sponsors in 1987. As I announced in the House on 26 January at column 154, the scheme will be strengthened and extended in 1988-89 to reflect the existing and anticipated growth in sponsorship.

National Collections

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Minister for the Arts if he has requested the national collections to publish lists of items held in store.

Mr. Luce: The national museums and galleries already maintain, and in some cases publish, catalogues of their collections in whole or in part. I have encouraged them to improve their inventories by the use of modern computerised information systems. Many are doing so, though in the case of the largest collections the task will necessarily take a number of years.

Arts Council

Mr. Butler: To ask the Minister for the Arts if he will make a statement on the Arts Council's progress fund and its enterprise fund.

Mr. Luce: I have discussed with the Arts Council its plans for the progress and enterprise funds. The council will be publishing details of the schemes, and inviting applications, before the end of February.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Banks (Tax Relief)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy on tax relief for British banks on their operations in developing countries.

Mr. Norman Lamont: British banks operating in developing countries qualify for tax relief under general tax law on the same criteria as other traders.

EC Budget

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether, pursuant to the reply of 24 July, Official Report, column 558, concerning the United Kingdom contributions to the EEC Budget, he will publish in the Official Report corresponding figures for 1987, together with the outturn for 1986 and a forecast for 1988.

Mr. Brooke: I regret that outturn information on our net contribution to the Community budget in 1987 is not yet available. An outturn figure for 1987 along with a forecast for 1988 will be included in the statement on the 1988 Community budget, to be published shortly after the 1988 budget is adopted. Information concerning the outturn for 1986 was given in my reply of 24 July, to which the hon. Member refers. The Government's latest projections for the financial years 1987-88 and 1988-89 are contained in the public expenditure White Paper, Cmnd. 288.

European Community (Financial Structure)

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if, with reference to the proposal of the Commission of the European Economic Community draft decision Com. (87), relating to a new financial structure, he will give the maximum limit of overall expenditure in percentage of the gross national product of the Community which is equivalent to the expenditure on a basis of 1·4 per cent. of its harmonised value added tax base and income from other own resources in 1987, together with the respective percentage of that harmonised base necessary to achieve the maximum proposed overall expenditure for each of the years 1988 to 1992, expressed as a percentage of Community gross national product, on the assumption that income from non-percentage based own resources remains stable from year to year.

Mr. Brooke [holding answer 1 February 1988]: The information requested is shown in the table below. Line 1 shows the VAT rate required to finance the maximum level of expenditure that can be afforded within the annual sub-ceilings on own resources set out in the Commission's draft own resources decision (COM(87)420). It is assumed that there is no change in the structure of the own resources system, but an increase in the VAT ceiling. Line 2 shows what the equivalent maximum level of expenditure would be year by year as a proportion of Community GNP. The revenue figures for 1988 onwards used in the calculations are consistent with those in the Commission's report on the future financing of the Community (COM(87)101) and allow for some erosion in customs duties and levies in real terms over time.

	1987	1988	1989	1990	1991	1992
1. Percentage VAT rate required to finance maximum level of expenditure which can be afforded within proposed sub-ceilings	1·4	1·72	1·80	1·87	1·96	2·05
2. Maximum level of expenditure as a percentage of EC12 GNP	1·05	1·20	1·22	1·24	1·27	1·30

Note: Line (1) assumes continuation of the present structure of own resources. Lines (1) and (2) both assume that the correction for the United Kingdom's budgetary imbalance continues to be financed within the own resources ceiling.

Charities

Mr. Barnes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what information he has as to how much money has been donated by individuals to charities in the United Kingdom in each of the last three available years.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 1 February 1988]: I regret that no comprehensive information on all types of giving to charities is available. Covenanted giving to charities amounted to some £350 million in 1983-84, £400 million in 1984-85, and £450 million in 1985-86. With regard to gifts to charities on death, the figures available relate only to estates above the value at which capital transfer tax or inheritance tax would be payable in the absence of exemptions. For these estates the amounts reported were £200 million in 1983-84, £260 million in 1984-85, and £400 million in 1985-86.

Money Supply

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he will publish in the Official Report a table showing the increase in the real money supply and the change in the velocity of circulation of broad money order between 1974 and 1979 and from 1979 to date, together with (a) the average annual rate of growth in each case and (b) the annual rate of increase in real personal disposable increases in each period.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 4 February 1988]: There is no single measure of the real money supply. Recent figures for M0, M3, M4 and M5 are shown in the Bank of England's press release on the monetary aggregates dated 29 January 1988 and in "Financial Statistics". For earlier periods, figures for M0, M3, and M5 are shown in "Economic Trends, Annual Supplement", 1987 edition, and figures for M4 were made available by the Bank of England in June 1987. All of these series have been subject to changes in coverage as the financial system has evolved and in the case of M5 there was a change in definition in June 1986. For this reason, no meaningful growth rates can be calculated over the whole of the periods requested. Recent figures for the velocity of circulation of broad money are shown in "Financial Statistics", table 11·5. Earlier figures for velocity can be derived from figures shown in the "Economic Trends, Annual Supplement", but comparisons over time are affected by the difficulties noted above. Assuming that the hon. Member seeks figures on real personal disposable incomes, these are readily accessible in "Economic Trends".

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he will publish in the Official Report a table showing the increase in the amount of broad money between (a) February 1974 and June 1979 and (b) June 1979 to the end of 1987, together with the average annual rate of growth; and if he will account for the difference and explain the effect on prices in each period.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 4 February 1988]: There is no single measure of the broad money supply. Recent figures for M3, M4 and M5 are shown in the Bank of England's press release on the monetary aggregates dated 29 January 1988 and in "Financial Statistics". For earlier periods, figures for M3 and M5 are shown in "Economic Trends, Annual Supplement", 1987 edition, and figures for M4 were made available by the Bank of England in June 1987. All of these series are subject to changes in coverage as the financial system evolves and in the case of M5 to a change in definition in June 1986. For this reason, no meaningful growth rates can be calculated over the whole of the periods requested.

As was made clear, for example, in chapter 2 of the 1987-88 FSBR, there is no simple relationship between the growth of broad money and money GDP and inflation. The Government monitors the growth of broad money as one of the range of factors taken into account in assessing monetary conditions.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Council of Agriculture Ministers

Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the outcome of the Council of Agriculture Ministers meeting on 8 and 9 February in Brussels; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. MacGregor: The Council of Agriculture Ministers met in Brussels on 8 February 1988. I represented the United Kingdom.

I raised the question of fraud and the CAP, drawing the Council's attention to the recent report by the Comptroller and Auditor General on external trade measures for agricultural produce. I explained that this report commented adversely on the complexity of the Community's agricultural legislation and the scope which this created for fraud. I stressed my own concern on this issue, reminded the Council that the Community's Court of Auditors, in a report last autumn, recommended increased efforts to combat fraud, and asked the Commission for a progress report on the action it had taken in the light of this.

The Commission informed the Council of changes it is making to supervise more effectively the implementation and control of Community law by member states. The Commission also expressed the hope, which the United Kingdom shares, that the Council would pay greater attention to matters of control and monitoring when considering new proposals. The Council took note and agreed to pursue this issue on a future occasion.

The Council agreed on quotas for manufacturing beef, high quality beef and young cattle to be imported from third countries in 1988. The Community quota for manufacturing beef, in which our industry has the principal interest, is to be 12,000 tonnes.

The Council adopted a proposal for a minor change in the milk quota rules. I took the opportunity again to urge the Commission to enable member states to have greater flexibility over the detailed operation of milk quotas while remaining firmly within the basic framework regulations to ensure that quotas are applied effectively.

General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (Uruguay Round)

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will specify the proposals for agriculture being prompted by the European Economic Community in the Uruguay round of General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade negotiations; and when these proposals were approved by the Council of Ministers.

Mr. Gummer: The Commission's proposals for approaching the negotiations on agriculture in the Uruguay round, approved by the Council on 20 October 1987, are for a two-stage negotiating process. The first stage would comprise, in addition to short-term measures to improve market conditions in the cereals and cereals substitutes, sugar and dairy sectors, a reduction in the levels of agricultural support aimed at bringing markets into better balance. The second stage would comprise further reductions in support, coupled with readjustments in external protection and the development of detailed GATT rules to secure the progress made in the negotiation on a lasting basis. It is also proposed that an appropriate framework of rules be negotiated to govern the use of animal and plant health regulations.

Feedstuffs Substitutes (Tariffs)

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if Her Majesty's Government support proposals on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade proposed by the Commission of the European Economic Community for imposing higher tariffs on produces used as substitutes for animal feedstuffs.

Mr. Gummer: When the Council of Ministers endorsed Commission proposals for a Community approach to the negotiations on agriculture in the Uruguay round, the Government made it clear that we would regard it as difficult to justify proposals for increasing Community protection when the main aim of the GATT negotiation is to liberalise agricultural trade and, in particular, to lower import barriers.

Alternative Land Use

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the Government's estimate of the likely cost of taking agricultural land out of productive use in the United Kingdom in the event of the German proposals being accepted as part of a settlement of the EEC budget.

Mr. MacGregor: The Government believe that a scheme of set-aside could form a useful complement to effective stabilisers in helping to reduce surpluses and stabilise costs. It is not possible at this stage to estimate the likely cost of implementing the proposal in the United Kingdom, as this will depend on rules of implementation which have not yet been determined.

Agricultural Support

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the total level of support provided to the British agriculture industry in each of the last 10 years.

Mr. MacGregor: Support to the agricultural industry is provided directly by means of grants and subsidies, and indirectly through expenditure on research and development, advisory services, administration and so on. The annual review of agriculture reports direct expenditure while the public expenditure White Paper covers total expenditure — direct and indirect — on agriculture, fisheries, food and forestry. The latest figures in these two categories are:

	Direct support £ million	Total support[2] £ million
1978-79	537	1,008
1979-80	677	1,244
1980-81	1,012	1,639
1981-82	972	1,669
1982-83	1,432	2,157
1983-84	1,717	2,424
1984-85	1,710	2,418
1985-86	2,162	2,879
1986-87	1,444	2,190
[2]1987-88	1,736	2,512

[1] Including fisheries, food etc.
[2] Estimated.

Dead Sheep (Cumbria)

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for South Shields of 29 January, Official Report, column 422, what advice was given to knackers in Cumbria specifically in respect of the treatment of dead sheep from restricted areas and the resale of meat obtained from such animals.

Mr. Donald Thompson: I have nothing to add to my earlier reply.

Bovine Somatotrophin

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) how many farms in England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland, respectively, are currently involved in trials of bovine somatotrophin;

(2) whether consumers are currently receiving milk deliveries from farms involved in trials of bovine somatotrophin; and if he will make a statement;

(3) what results concerning (a) the farm animal welfare aspects, (b) the economic and production aspects and (c) the human health aspects, respectively, have been ascertained thus far from trials of bovine somatotrophin currently being conducted in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Donald Thompson: As I have made clear on a number of occasions, the applications for animal test certificates for BST were rigorously assessed by the veterinary products committee before being granted. It found no reason to recommend that milk from treated cows should be withheld from human consumption or be subject to any other restriction. The animal test certificates were therefore granted accordingly.

The certificates currently authorise trials on 15 sites in the United Kingdom. However, trials may not be in progress on all sites at any one time. It is not possible to provide separate figures for each region as the small numbers involved might allow identification of some individual farms which might contravene section 118 of the Medicines Act.

The work continuing under these animal test certificates is taking full account of the recommendations of the Farm Animal Welfare Council on this product which were contained in my reply of 17 December 1987 at columns 740-1. No evidence has emerged which would change the veterinary products committee's assessment on human safety. The economic and production aspects of the use of BST are matters for commercial assessment and do not fall under the scope of the Medicines Act.

Food Contamination (Emergency Schemes)

Mr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he expects the Ministry review of contingency plans for dealing with emergency contamination of food and agriculture to be completed.

Mr. Donald Thompson: We are continually reviewing our contingency plans in the light of improvements in information technology and scientific knowledge nationally and internationally.

Milk

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how much milk has been imported into the United Kingdom from Canada in the last 12 months; and what were the figures for each of the last five years.

Mr. Donald Thompson: No milk has been imported into the United Kingdom from Canada in the last five years.

Surplus Commodities

Mr. Allen McKay: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what arrangements are being made to distribute European Economic Communities surplus commodities if voluntary bodies are unable to undertake the task;

Mr. Gummer [holding answer 5 February 1988]: As my right hon. Friend made clear in the announcement on 12 January, the Government are making butter and beef from intervention stores available, for distribution to the most needy, in response to specific applications from suitably qualified organisations. We do not intend to introduce alternative arrangements.

Mr. Allen McKay: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if local authorities are able to deal with the distribution of European Economic Communities surplus commodities, and whether the cost of the distribution will be fully reimbursed from central Government sources.

Mr. Gummer [holding answer 5 February 1988]: Local authorities may be designated under these arrangements provided they apply and can meet the conditions of the scheme. Reimbursement of administrative costs is available up to about 1 per cent. of the value of the products authorised for release to an organisation; and transport costs may be reimbursed at rates set in the Commission regulation. The cost of payments in both these categories would fall on Community funds.

Land Drainage Rates

Mr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he expects to publish his consultation paper on the future of land drainage rates.

Mr. Gummer [holding answer 5 February 1988]: I cannot yet give any indication as to the likely timing.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Department has issued guidance to staff informing them that sexual harassment at work is not tolerated and is dealt with as a disciplinary matter through the usual complaints procedures. Further guidance on what is meant by sexual harassment is planned.

Water Safety Training

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement on the provision of water safety training in schools.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Government recognise the importance of children being able to learn to swim and to be aware of the risks attached to activities where water is involved. The Department's publication "DES Safety Series No. 1 (Safety in Outdoor Pursuits) includes a chapter on "Safety Afloat" and give guidance on various water-based activities.

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what percentage of school pupils learn to swim by the age of (a) seven, (b) eleven and (c) 14 years in England and Wales.

Mrs. Rumbold: This information is not collected by the Department.

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what national guidelines are laid down for the assessment of school pupils' ability to swim.

Mrs. Rumbold: No national guidelines are at present laid down, this being a matter for individual local education authorities to determine.

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what national guidelines are laid down for the qualifications required for the teaching of swimming in schools.

Mrs. Rumbold: My Department does not prescribe qualifications for the teaching of swimming in schools but in its general advice on the matter it recommends that swimming teachers should be competent in the principles and practice of life-saving and resuscitation.

Capital Expenditure

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has as to the proportion of sums allocated for capital projects to individual schools which is retained by local authorities to cover administrative expenses; what amounts were allocated in 1987-88 to each school in the Devon local education authority area under the headings (a) special education, (b) maintenance and repair and (c) administrative and other; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: This information is not available.

The administrative expenses of authorities are not capital expenditure, and do not figure in the allocations made by this Department. These are block allocations which are not earmarked to specific projects.

Local authorities are free to apply their allocations as they wish. They may move resources between services and to a limited extent between years. They may supplement the total of their allocations for all services in 1988-89 by the application of 30 per cent. of their accumulated capital receipts.

Devon local education authority's education capital expenditure allocation for the 1987-88 financial year was £4,734,000, and for 1988-89 is £6,262,000. It is the authority's responsibility to decide on its priorities for using these resources.

Student Grants

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what is the average amount of grant received by students in full-time education.

Mr. Jackson: In 1985-86, the latest year for which figures are available, the average maintenance grant, net of assessed parental and other contributions, paid to students in receipt of mandatory or full-value local education authority discretionary awards was £1,202.

Academic Freedom

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has had from Sir David Smith FRS, principal of Edinburgh university, on the place of academic freedom as a component of the conduct of university teaching and research; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: My hon. Friend the Member for Edinburgh, West (Lord James Douglas-Hamilton) has sent my right hon. Friend a copy of a letter dated 28 January from Sir David Smith. Sir David says that the senatus of Edinburgh university approved unanimously a motion which expressed and reaffirmed the belief that academic freedom is an essential component of the conduct of university teaching and research. He also drew attention to the court's anxiety about the lack of any reference in the Bill to the maintenance of academic freedom.

The Government believe wholeheartedly that academic freedom is fundamental to a healthy system of higher education. I refer the hon. Member to the detailed statements I made in reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Dorset, North (Mr. Baker) on 20 November 1987 at columns 676-78 and the hon. Member for Glasgow, Hillhead (Mr. Galloway) on 13 January 1988 at columns 268-69.

Mathematics Teachers

Mr. Alison: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what estimate he has made of the optimum number of new mathematics teachers required in Britain for (a) the year 1987-88, (b) 1992-93 and (c) 1997-98; how many properly qualified maths teachers were actually recruited in 1987-88; and what actual recruitment is predicted for 1992-93 and 1997-98.

Mrs. Rumbold: Information is given for England only. The supply of teachers in Wales and in Scotland are matters for my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Wales and Scotland. The Department estimates that about 600 newly qualified secondary mathematics teachers entered service in 1987-88. This is some 15 per cent. short of the number planned. The Government have introduced a range of special measures to attract more teachers to the secondary shortage subjects, including mathematics. For the years 1992-93 and 1997-98 the need for and supply of mathematics teachers for secondary schools will have to be weighed against the demands of mathematics within the national curriculum. It is too early to come to precise estimates for particular subjects.

On the future supply of newly qualified teachers, my right hon. Friend announced on 19 January, at column 629, the timetable for bringing forward proposals for intakes to initial teacher training institutions for the year 1990 and for the period 1991-93.

Education Reform

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans he has for retaining each of the following facilities and services, currently provided by the Inner London education authority as a united and comprehensive review to all pupils and parents in inner London (a) educational prospectus, (b) census advice services, (c) computer services, (d) visual aids equipment, (e) library levies, and (f) playing fields and sports facilities.

Mr. Dunn: Under the proposals announced by my right hon. Friend on 4 February, each inner London council will become the local education authority for its own area. Councils will be required to publish in 1989 development plans for the education services they will provide from April 1990; these plans will be expected to provide information about the range of support services, such as those listed by the hon. Member, which the council will maintain. In the light of these development plans, and of discussions which the Department will have with the councils concerned, my right hon. Friend will consider whether formal steps are necessary to promote co-operation between councils in respect of any such services.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science in pursuance of his policy of parental choice and preference, what steps he is taking to consult parents in inner London, concerning the legislation he plans to place before Parliament in respect of education in inner London.

Mr. Dunn: As my right hon. Friend explained in his statement to the House on 4 February, at columns 1178-79, each local council will be required to publish in 1989 a development plan, as a basis for local consultation. These plans will set out the way in which councils propose to organise the transfer of responsibilities and the services they propose to run.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if, pursuant to his statement of 4 February, Official Report, columns 1178-79, relating to his objective of obtaining better standards of education in inner London, he will state those means of resources which he intends to make available to the new proposed education authorities which are currently not obtainable from the existing Inner London education authority.

Mr. Dunn: The new system of local government finance, which will be introduced at the same time as the transfer of education responsibility to the inner London boroughs, will provide a fair means of distributing resources to local authorities, taking account of local social need. Boroughs will have the opportunity to ensure that the education service in their area is meeting local needs.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if, pursuant to his statement of 4 February, Official Report, column 1179, he will state the groups of inner London boroughs that he expects to establish joint education committees for specific functions.

Mr. Dunn: The question whether joint education committees need to be established for specific functions, and, if so, the composition of such committees, is a matter which the Department will be discussing with the councils concerned as they draw up development plans for their education service.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects to publish his proposals for the operation of further and special education in inner London to continue single comprehensive services, following the abolition of the Inner London education authority.

Mr. Dunn: Each inner London council will become the local education authority for its own area, responsible for securing statutory provision such as that referred to by the hon. Member. The question whether these or other aspects of the education service in inner London would benefit from formal or informal co-operation between the new inner London LEAs is one that the Department will be discussing with the councils concerned.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if, pursuant to his statement of 4 February, Official Report, column 1178, he will state the precise evidence on which he based his conclusion that the service provided by the Inner London education authority is poor.

Mr. Dunn: My right hon. Friend's statement explained that pupil performance in ILEA over the past seven years has remained disappointing, despite increasing levels of expenditure which are sharply in excess of those of other inner city authorities. This is borne out by published reports on ILEA schools by HM Inspectorate, and by many of the authority's own reports.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if, pursuant to the reply to the hon. Member for Newham, South of 2 February, Official Report, column 534, he will now obtain and publish the information not then available centrally about pupil and student numbers in each London borough.

Mr. Dunn: As I explained to the hon. Member, my Department does not collect centrally the statistics he has requested. That information is held and published by the Inner London education authority. I will ensure that a copy of the 1987 "Annual Schools Statistics" published by the ILEA, is deposited in the Library of the House.

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will publish in the Official Report the evidence for his assertion, 4 February, Official Report, column 1186, that the political leaders of the Inner London education authority had condemned competitive sport.

Mrs. Rumbold: My right hon. Friend based his statement on remarks made by ILEA's inspector for physical education on Thames Television in July 1986, remarks which were never convincingly repudiated by ILEA's political leaders. The lukewarm attitude of ILEA to competitive sports is reflected in the McIntosh report, which recommends that the authority encourages competitive activities within and outside school time.

Mr. Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will list the inner London boroughs which have (a) finally resolved or (b) indicated an interest in taking over the functions of the Inner London education authority in their area.

Mr. Dunn: The City of Westminster, the Royal Borough of Kensington and Chelsea and the Borough of Wandsworth have publicly stated their wish to apply for LEA status. Reports in the press have made it clear that other inner London boroughs have been considering the implications of such a step.

Free School Meals

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has about the numbers, or percentage of primary and secondary school pupils in the area of the Inner London education authority in receipt of free meals.

Mr. Dunn: In October 1986, the latest date for which data are available, 58,097 primary and 28,279 secondary pupils in ILEA were in receipt of free school meals. These represented 35·7 per cent. and 29·1 per cent. of the totals respectively.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what specific steps Her Majesty's Government are taking to ensure the availability of comparative figures for the whole of the United Kingdom which objectively measure the results of the new general certificate of secondary education examination system and the previous one, and in particular, how both systems compare in respect of (a) the percentage of pupils opting out before examinations, (b) the percentage of pupils actually taking academic qualifications and (c) the percentage of pupils failing the examinations.

Mrs. Rumbold: The range of Government statistics which currently provide information on the nature and extent of academic qualifications obtained by school leavers will be maintained and enhanced. This will permit broad comparisons to be made of the proportions of school leavers entering for, and attaining specific levels of achievement in, the new GCSE examinations and in the former O-level/CSE examinations. These statistics do not cover Scotland, which has a separate examination system from the rest of the United Kingdom.

Science Budget

Mr. Hargreaves: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement on the distribution of the science budget for 1988-89.

Mr. Jackson: Having considered the recommendations of the Advisory Board for the Research Councils, my right hon. Friend has decided that the science budget for 1988-89 should, subject to approval by Parliament of the Estimates in due course, be allocated as follows:

1988-89	£ million cash
Agricultural and Food Research Council	58·44
Economic and Social Research Council	27·66
Medical Research Council	146·68
Natural Environment Research Council	90·86
Science and Engineering Research Council	366·28
The Royal Society	7·94
The Fellowship of Engineering	0·75
Science Policy Studies (ABRC)	0·10
Centre for Exploitation of Science and Technology	0·08

I am publishing the board's advice today. Copies will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Mobility Allowance

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many claims were made for mobility allowance in each of the last three years; and how many appealed to (a) a medical board, (b) a medical appeal tribunal, (c) a social security appeal tribunal, (d) the commissioner and (e) a court, indicating the number of allowances granted at each stage.

Mr. Needham: The information available is given in the table. The figures provided relate to decisions given on claims and appeals in the relevant years not to the outcome of the claims and appeals made in those years.

	1985	1986	1987
Claims
Lodged	5,017	5,427	6,382
Total decisions	4,655	5,556	5,608
Decided in claimant's favour	2,330	2,959	2,838
Appeals to medical boards
Lodged	781	908	772
Total decisions	733	822	697
Decided in claimant's favour	196	186	135
Appeals to medical appeal tribunals
Lodged	286	261	305
Total decisions	222	273	273
Decided in claimant's favour	79	75	93
Appeals to social security appeal tribunals
Lodged	43	52	28
Total decisions	36	36	26
Decided in claimant's favour	5	1	1
Appeals to the commissioner
Lodged	—	2	4
Total decisions	—	2	1
Decided in claimant's favour	—	—	1
Appeals to court of appeal
Lodged	2	1	1
Total decisions	2	1	1
Decided in claimant's favour	2	—	1

Green Week

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many days the Parliamentary Under-Secretary, the noble Lord Lyell, was in Berlin during Green Week; to which radio, press, and television outlets the Minister gave interviews about Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement on the benefits to the people of Northern Ireland of this visit.

Mr. Viggers: My noble Friend Lord Lyell attended Green Week in West Berlin from 28 to 30 January 1988 as the United Kingdom representative at the invitation of the Government of the Federal Republic of Germany, where he had discussions with the President of the Federal Republic, the Federal Minister of Food, Agriculture and Forestry and EC Commissioner Andriessen.

General interviews with the media included the BBC, the British Forces Broadcasting Services and Downtown Radio; The Scotsman; The Press and Journal, Aberdeen; East Anglia Times; Holt Publications, Australia and Tyne Tees Television.

My noble Friend found the visit to be most useful, as he was able to bring back the message to the food industry in Northern Ireland and elsewhere in the United Kingdom that there is a continuing need for the British food industry to recognise consumer demands and the opportunity to capture new markets in Germany by combining all those resources which contribute to high quality and well-presented products.

Extradition

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if, pursuant to his answer of 27 January, Official Report, column 291, he will make it his practice to give (a) the summary facts and (b) available total figures on possible individual extradition cases.

Mr. Stanley: I shall certainly continue the practice of giving the total figures on the number of applications for extradition made in a given period as in my reply to the hon. Member on 27 January, at column 292. It would not, however, be in the public interest to give the number of cases where possible extradition applications are being considered, or details of individual cases prior to Irish court proceedings.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made towards the handing over to the Royal Ulster Constabulary of the three persons for whom applications for extradition from the Irish Republic were made between 1 December and 14 December 1987.

Mr. Stanley: One man is currently the subject of extradition proceedings before the district court.

Cars (Imports)

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he takes to ensure that all personal car imports into Northern Ireland comply with current regulations.

Mr. Needham: All personal car imports into Northern Ireland must be registered with the Department of the Environment. The Department ensures that the requirements of the regulations relating to personal imports are met before effecting registration.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many of the cars brought into Northern Ireland from the Irish Republic in each month in 1987 are recorded as having road fund licences paid by a person other than the importee.

Mr. Needham: The information is not available.

Stalker Inquiry

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will establish a judicial inquiry to examine the role of Sir John Hermon, Chief Constable of the Royal Ulster Constabulary and other senior Royal Ulster Constabulary officers, in relation to specific allegations arising out of the Stalker-Sampson inquiry; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Tom King: The Director of Public Prosecutions reached his conclusions on the results of a very thorough criminal investigation. There is no justification for a judicial inquiry.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether in view of the fact that Mr. John Stalker had recommended the prosecution of Royal Ulster Constabulary officers, up to the rank of chief superintendent for offences, including conspiring to pervert the course of justice and perjury, he will seek the suspension of Sir John Hermon, Chief Constable, pending a full judicial inquiry.

Mr. Tom King: No.

Emergency Provisions Acts

Mr. Hanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the first report by the noble Lord Colville into the operation of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Acts of 1978 and 1987 to be available.

Mr. Tom King: Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses today.

Bray Urban District Council (Contract)

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he has received any representations about the cancellation by Bray urban district council of a contract with Macrete Ireland Ltd., Toombridge, to manufacture concrete pipes; if he will invite the European Commission to investigate this cancellation of contracts as a possible breach of Community law; and if he will refer the matter of discrimination against Northern Ireland firms for contracts in the Irish Republic to the next ministerial meeting of the Anglo-Irish conference.

Mr. Viggers [holding answer 8 February 1988]: No.

Homelessness

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make it his policy that bed-and-breakfast accommodation will not be used in Northern Ireland for the homeless; what advice as to the cost to public funds of bed-and-breakfast accommodation he has had from interested parties; what is his assessment of its value as a means of providing for homeless families and individuals; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Needham: The provision of temporary accommodation for the homeless in Northern Ireland is currently the responsibility of the four health and social services boards. At present boards make limited use of bed-and-breakfast accommodation to meet the immediate needs of homeless people in emergency situations.

Precise information as to the cost of providing bed-and-breakfast accommodation is not readily available. I understand that, to date, the cost has not been greater than the daily board and lodging allowance available under supplementary benefit regulations. The overriding requirement is to meet the immediate needs of the homeless person, which in some instances may be met only by using such accommodation. Given that such accommodation is used only in emergencies and for short periods, I am content with these arrangements.

SOCIAL SERVICES

NHS (Administration)

11. Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what changes he envisages which will have implications for the cost of administration in the National Health Service.

72. Mr. Allan Roberts: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what changes he envisages which will have implications for the cost of administration in the National Health Service.

89. Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what changes he envisages which will have implications for the cost of administration in the National Health Service.

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he has any plans to reduce the numbers of administrative staff in the National Health Service.

Mr. Moore: It is far too early to speculate on this matter.

Regional and District Health Authority Chairmen

12. Mr. Michael McNair-Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what criteria he uses in appointing regional and district health authority chairmen.

Mrs. Currie: In appointing regional and district health authority chairmen we take into account a wide variety of factors, but the most important are the individual's personal qualities, his or her interest in and commitment to health care, any management or other relevant experience, and his or her knowledge of the locality.

Nurse Recruitment

13. Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the level of recruitment of nurses into the National Health Service.

Mr. Newton: The level of recruitment of nurses in the National Health Service varies between locality and specialty. Provisional figures for 30 September 1987 show the highest number of nursing and midwifery staff ever —405,200—and overall between September 1979 and September 1987 nursing and midwifery staff in England increased by nearly 47,000 whole-time equivalents. Nevertheless, the National Health Service, particularly in London and the south-east is facing the same decline in the number of suitably qualified school leavers as other large employers. We have, therefore, announced a range of measures on accommodation, the grading structure and training designed to improve recruitment and retention.

Optical Appliances (Vouchers)

14. Mr. James Lamond: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will carry out an early review of the voucher system at present operating with regard to optical appliances.

Mrs. Currie: The voucher system has been a great success. In the White Paper, "Promoting Better Health", we said that we would, give special consideration to the voucher values for those with the poorest sight; extend the repair/replacement facility to adults who are prone to frequent breakages on account of handicap;

allow vouchers to be used for contact lenses.

These changes will come in on 1 April.

AIDS

15. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he will announce the Government's response to the recommendations of the working group under Dr. Joe Smith concerning ways in which the surveillance of the AIDS epidemic can be improved.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he will publish and when he expects to reach a decision on the recommendation of the working group chaired by the director of the public health laboratory service on ways in which the surveillance of the AIDS epidemic could be improved.

Mr. Newton: We have recently received the report of the expert group chaired by Dr. Joe Smith and are carefully considering its recommendations. We plan to publish it in the near future so that we can take account of the views of those concerned.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what help he will give to local authorities towards the cost of personal social services provided for people with AIDS; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: The Government's reply to the report of the Social Services Committee on problems associated with AIDS (Cm. 297) stresses the importance of provision of care and treatment in the community for people who have HIV-related illness and AIDS. That requires good community support services. The demand for such services is at present heavily concentrated in a few local authority areas in inner London.

For 1988-89 we have decided to make available additional joint finance of £2 million for those inner London boroughs. In allocating this sum, we shall take account of the need for personal support services for people with AIDS resident in these boroughs and the services which local authorities are providing or plan to provide. Details of the arrangements which will apply are being sent to the authorities concerned.

The number of people with AIDS who need personal social services will continue to grow and we are currently considering longer-term financial approaches with the local authority associations.

Personal Pensions

16. Mr. Stevens: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the latest forecast date for the introduction of the new personal pensions arrangements.

Mr. Scott: The date from which it will be possible for individuals to join a personal pension scheme as an alternative to the state earnings-related scheme is 1 July 1988.

Maudsley Hospital (Neuro-sciences Centre)

17. Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he expects to reach a decision about the building of a neuro-sciences centre at the site of Maudsley hospital, London SE5.

Mrs. Currie: The proposal from the South East Thames RHA will cost at least £29 million and was received in my Department on 22 June 1987. It is currently being examined by officials. Ministers will decide as soon as possible.

District General Managers

18. Mr. Bidwell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many district general managers have resigned from the National Health Service over the past two years, identified by district; if he will show for each such manager the sector of employment prior to contract with the National Health Service; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: Nine out of a total of 191. This represents a turnover rate of 2 per cent. per annum, which I understand is below average for posts at this level in large scale organistions. The other information is as follows:

District	Previous employment
West Surrey and North East Hants	Banking
Central Birmingham	Armed forces

District	Previous employment
Macclesfield	Company director
Nottingham	Communications industry
Bexley	Armed forces
Bromley	Armed forces
South Bedfordshire	Company director
Rochdale	National Health Service
West Dorset	National Health Service

Patient Treatment Statistics

19. Mr. Baldrey: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the number of (a) in-patients and (b) out-patients treated in the Oxfordshire health district in 1979 and in the last year for which figures are available.

Mrs. Currie: There were 69,306 in-patient cases treated and 344,852 out-patient attendances in 1979 in this health district; in 1986 the comparable figures were 80,420 and 374,680.

58. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many in-patients and out-patients were treated under the National Health Service in 1978 and the latest available year.

Mrs. Currie: The requested information is given in the table.

Patients treated in NHS hospitals, England

	1978	1986	Per cent. increase 1978-1986
In-patients treated	5,370,319	6,413,789	19·4
New out-patients	7,711,912	8,767,788	13·7
Total out-patient attendances	33,950,339	37,727,608	11·1

Child Abuse

20. Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will set up an inquiry to determine the extent and definition of child sexual abuse; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: We have no plans to set up such an inquiry. Child abuse is defined already in the draft DHSS guide "Working Together". Further guidance will be issued when the Cleveland inquiry report has been received and considered. A national statistical return on the number of children on child protection registers will be piloted in March 1988.

Winter Mortality

21. Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the causes and incidence over the past 30 years of excess winter mortality.

Mrs. Currie: There is no universally accepted definition of excess winter mortality. However, the table shows the number of deaths registered in the three-monthly periods January to March ("winter") and July to September ("summer"), the difference, and the difference expressed as a percentage of the "summer" figure, for each year from 1958 to 1987, and for five yearly periods 1958-62 to 1983-87, for England and Wales.

The causal relationship between cold weather and excess mortality is not clearly understood, and further research is needed.

'Excess' winter mortality: England and Wales, 1953-87

Year	Winter Deaths A	Summer Deaths B	Difference A − B	Percentage Excess (A − B) × 100 / B
1958	163,595	105,629	57,966	54·9
1959	176,880	103,398	73,482	71·1
1960	149,037	112,477	36,560	32·5
1961	177,043	110,747	66,296	59·9
1962	178,210	110,688	67,522	61·0
1963	196,875	113,918	82,957	72·8
1964	156,072	113,551	42,521	37·4
1965	157,184	119,173	38,011	31·9
1966	173,438	118,005	55,433	47·0
1967	145,323	118,552	26,771	22·6
1968	181,136	121,119	60,317	49·8
1969	168,493	120,987	47,506	39·3
1970	172,443	123,750	48,693	39·3
1971	159,347	124,663	34,684	27·8
1972	170,587	128,481	42,106	32·8
1973	169,799	126,645	43,154	34·1
1974	161,028	131,522	29,506	22·4
1975	159,816	128,981	30,835	23·9
1976	184,775	125,861	58,914	46·8
1977	160,233	127,418	32,815	25·8
1978	171,039	128,047	42,992	33·6
1979	175,423	128,112	47,311	36·9
1980	161,577	129,204	32,373	25·1
1981	160,554	128,802	31,752	24·7
1982	166,454	126,944	39,510	31·1
1983	167,638	130,008	37,630	28·9
1984	158,119	123,244	34,875	28·3
1985	173,199	129,569	43,630	33·7
1986	171,106	128,951	42,155	32·7
1987[1]	153,084	127,909	25,175	19·7

[1] Provisional.

Five Year Period	Percentage Excess Winter Mortality
1958-1962	55·6
1963-1967	42·2
1968-1972	37·7
1973-1977	30·5
1978-1982	30·2
1983-1987	28·6

Notes:
Winter: deaths registered in months January to March inclusive.
Summer: deaths registered in months July to September inclusive.

Disabled Claimants

22. Mr. Ray Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what consultation he has had with Disability Alliance about the effect on severely disabled claimants of reducing their entitlements in April.

24. Mr. Haynes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what proposals he has to protect disabled claimants in need of domestic assistance when the allowance for that purpose is abolished in April.

45. Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a further statement about the protection of disabled claimants who will have a reduced entitlement when the Social Security Act 1986 comes into full effect in April.

55. Mr. Terry Fields: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what action he proposes to take to protect disabled people whose allowance for domestic assistance will end in April.

59. Ms. Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what consultation he has had with the Royal Association for Disability and Rehabilitation in regard to the effects for severely disabled people of reducing the entitlements of those applying for benefit after April.

70. Mr. Faulds: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what consultation he has had with the Spastics Society about the effects on severely disabled people of reducing the entitlements of new claimants after April.

71. Dr. Twinn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what measures he intends to take to help provide for the needs of the very severely disabled after the implementation of the Social Security Act 1986.

75. Mr. Eadie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what further consultations he has had with the organisations of and for disabled people about the reduced entitlements of disabled claimants who will be applying for benefit in April.

98. Mr. Lofthouse: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what consultation he has had with the Royal National Institute for the Blind about the effect of reducing the entitlements of severely disabled claimants after April.

110. Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will now make a further statement about the protection of disabled people who will have a reduced entitlement in April.

111. Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on measures to help severely disabled people to live independently in the community from April.

Mr. Scott: I refer the hon. and right hon. Members and my hon. Friends to my reply earlier today to the hon. Members for Kirkcaldy (Dr. Moonie) and for Islington, North (Mr. Corbyn).

114. Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his estimate of the maximum loss new disabled claimants in need of domestic assistance can expect in April.

Mr. Scott: The information is not available in the form requested. Additional supplementary benefit of up to £51·12 may currently be awarded for essential residential domestic assistance. Otherwise, there is no upper limit to the charge met, provided it is reasonable in the circumstances. At February 1986, some 4,500 people received these additions, the average weekly amount was £6·35.

Pensioners (Incomes)

23. Mr. Gerald Bowden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services to what extent pensioners' incomes have changed since 1979.

Mr. Scott: Pensioners' incomes grew on average by 2·7 per cent. a year in real terms between 1979 and 1985—18 per cent. over the period. This rate of increase was more than twice as fast as for the population as a whole.

Junior Hospital Doctors

25. Mr. Eastham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what estimate he has of how much unpaid overtime working is undertaken by junior hospital doctors; and if he will make a statement.

31. Mrs. Golding: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what estimate he has of how much unpaid overtime working is undertaken by junior hospital doctors; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: Under their national terms of service, junior hospital doctors may not be required to undertake unpaid additional duty other than, exceptionally, in occasional emergencies or unforeseen circumstances. Information is not collected centrally on the amount of such duty, but we have emphasised to employing authorities that it should not be undertaken on a regular or prolonged basis.

Northern Regional Health Authority

26. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the annual administrative costs of the Northern regional health authority.

Mrs. Currie: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Health to my hon. Friend the Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood) on 15 December 1987 at columns 493-5.

Young People

27. Mrs. Mahon: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many young people in England and Wales left local authority care to live independently in 1986-87.

Mrs. Currie: Information is not available centrally in exactly the form requested. Of the 12,400 young people aged 16 years and over who left local authority care in England during the year ending 31 March 1986, a total of 1,800 were living independently or in lodgings immediately prior to leaving care.

Information for 1986-87 is not available yet. Information for Wales is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Sickle Cell Anaemia

28. Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on National Health Service provision for sufferers from sickle cell anaemia.

Mrs. Currie: Screening and counselling services are provided by district health authorities which decide the resources to be devoted locally to this inherited blood disorder in the light of local needs, and competing priorities. There are 12 National Health Service sickle cell counselling centres in England. In addition, the Department makes grants of £15,000 per annum each to the Sickle Cell Society and to the Organisation for Sickle Cell Anaemia Research.

We shall be launching a new initiative in March, in which haemoglobinopathy cards will be provided for issue by haematologists to patients who have been tested for either sickle cell disease or thalassaemia. Patients will be able to use the card to provide doctors, nurses and dentists with information they may need before giving treatment.

Competitive Tendering

29. Mr. Patnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his estimate of the savings released by the competitive tendering of catering services.

33. Mr. Patrick Thompson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his estimate of the savings released by competitive tendering of domestic services.

34. Mr. Mans: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the progress to date of the competitive tendering initiative.

80. Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his estimate of the savings released by the competitive tendering of laundry services.

Mr. Newton: The most recent information held centrally is for the quarter ended 30 September 1987. Estimated annual savings generated for the three services were: domestic services £77·8 million, catering services £17 million, and laundry services £8·2 million—a total of some £103 million. Good progress has been made by health authorities in testing the cost-effectiveness of these services. As at 30 September 1987, a total of 84 per cent. had been subject to competitive tendering.

Bexley Health Authority

30. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received concerning the funding of Bexley health authority in the financial year 1988-89.

Mr. Newton: I have received letters from two hon. Members who both refer to correspondence I have received from the chairman of Greenwich and Bexley family practitioner committee and to whom replies have been sent.

In the current financial year Bexley health authority is receiving an additional £275,000 from the additional resources I announce on 16 December 1987.

Pensions and Standing Charges

32. Mr. Skinner: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what recent representations he has received from pensioners' organisations seeking the introduction of higher pensions and the abolition of standing charges.

Mr. Scott: We receive a large volume of regular correspondence from pensioners and pensioners' organisations alike on these issues. There have recently been 12 representations from pensioners' organisations on pension levels and items such as standing charges.

NHS (Industrial Relations)

35. Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the current state of industrial relations in the National Health Service.

Mr. Newton: While I regret that some National Health Service staff have recently taken industrial action, NHS management and staff generally enjoy good industrial relations. There are well-established mechanisms for both national negotiation of pay and conditions of service and local disputes procedures which, allied to the commitment of management, staff and their representatives, ensure that disruption to patient services through industrial disputes is minimal. This is borne out by a comparison of the latest available figures published in the September 1987 Department of Employment Gazette. In 1986 an average of 89 days were lost per 1,000 employees in all United Kingdom industries and services through stoppage of work. In the United Kingdom industry group "medical and health services" (which includes private health care staff and general medical and dental services) only eight days were lost per 1,000 employees.

Information Technology Staff

36. Mr. Devlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many information technology staff in his Department work in the north or north-west of England or in Yorkshire.

Mr. Scott: The total number of civil servants in the Department wholly employed on information technology tasks (as specified in Treasury-Central Computer and Telecommunications Agency guidelines) in grades from executive officer to unified grade 7 is 1,494. Of these, 730 work in the north-east of England and 320 work in the north-west. There are, in addition, 1,174 data processing staff below the grade of executive officer who work in the north-east and 146 who work in the north-west. The Department does not hold any details of information technology staff working in Yorkshire.

Unclaimed Benefit

37. Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give his Department's current estimates of the amount of unclaimed supplementary, unemployment and other benefits.

Mr. Scott: I refer the hon. Member to paragraph 21 on page 272 and table 15.17 on page 273 of Cmnd. 288 (the 1988 public expenditure White Paper).

EC (Health Statistics)

38. Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what percentage of gross domestic product the public sector contributes to health in each EEC country.

79. Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what percentage of gross domestic product the public sector contributes to health in each EEC country.

Mr. Newton: I refer the hon. Members to my right hon. Friend's reply to the hon. Member for Birmingham, Ladywood (Ms. Short) earlier today.

Prescription Charges

39. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the total values of prescription charges collected by prescribing and dispensing doctors for 1986-87.

Mr. Newton: The total income from prescription charges collected by doctors in England during 1986-87 was £7,718,000.

Southend General Hospital (Radiotherapy Unit)

40. Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he is now in a position to determine the appeal by the Southend community health council against the decision of the North-East Thames regional health authority on the future of the radiotherapy unit at Southend general hospital; and if he will make a statement.

104. Dr. Michael Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement about the future of the cancer treatment unit and radiotherapy department at Southend hospital.

Mrs. Currie: We hope to announce a decision on this proposal very soon.

NHS (Computer System)

41. Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has any plans to establish a national computer system of National Health Service treatments and operations available and at which locations, against which patients' needs can be computed; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: We have at present no plans to establish a national computer system of National Health Service treatments and operations. We have asked regional health authorities to make available to GPs information, especially about waiting lists and waiting times, to enable them to make the most appropriate referrals for their patients. Some already make use of computerised systems.

Parents' Incomes (Report)

42. Ms. Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has considered the recent report of the family policy study centre, "Family Fortunes; Parents' Incomes in the 1980s," a copy of which has been sent to him; and if he will make a statement.

90. Mr. Allen Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his policy towards home support in the light of the recent report of the family policy study centre "Family Fortunes; Parents' Incomes in the 1980s," a copy of which has been sent to him; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Scott: I understand that the Central Statistical Office has written to the Family Policy Studies Centre expressing doubts about some of the methods and results used in this study. Particular reservations have been expressed about the treatment of family expenditure survey data on one-parent households where the results differ dramatically from those suggested by other findings. I await the outcome of this correspondence.

Single Payments (Rotherham)

43. Mr. Hardy: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his estimate of the expenditure on single payments incurred in the metropolitan borough of Rotherham in the last year for which figures are available.

Mr. Scott: Claimants who live in the metropolitan borough of Rotherham are served by the following local offices: Rotherham (North); Rotherham (South) and Wath-on-Dearne. The area boundaries of these offices are not conterminous with those of the metropolitan borough of Rotherham. The last complete statistical year for which figures are available is April 1986 to April 1987, and the total expenditure on single payments for that year by these three offices is included in a table which is in the Library.

NHS (Funding)

44. Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he expects his internal inquiry into the funding of the National Health Service to be completed.

86. Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has any plan to publish a Green Paper on financing and reform of the National Health Service.

Mr. Newton: I refer my hon. Friends to my right hon. Friend's reply to the hon. Member for Walsall, North (Mr. Winnick) earlier today.

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make it his policy to apply for extra funds from next year's £3·5 billion spending reserve to meet the needs of the National Health Service.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 26 January 1988]: I have nothing to add to the plans for public expenditure, including spending on the NHS, set out in the White Paper published in January (Cm. 288).

Family Credit

46. Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what plans he has to involve employers in disseminating information on the new family credit scheme.

Mr. Scott: We shall shortly be sending all employers a leaflet giving basic information about family credit so that they can, if they wish, tell employees about the new scheme. Claims and payment of family credit will, of course, be handled by the Department.

117. Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what effect the introduction of family credit will have on the unemployment and poverty traps.

Mr. Scott: I refer my hon. Friend to my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Mid-Kent (Mr. Rowe) on 30 June 1987 at column 76.

Nurse Training

47. Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what proposals he is examining on increasing spending in nurse training.

Mr. Newton: Our aim is to ensure that training provision matches the needs of the NHS; not to spend any particular sum of money. Expenditure is therefore determined largely by health authorities in the light of their own assessments of their future requirements for professional staff. We are however currently considering the UKCC's Project 2000 proposals for changes in the pattern of nurse education and training as a whole.

Project 2000

48. Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the implementation of Project 2000.

Mr. Newton: We want nurses to receive an education and training which not only equips them for their future roles but is sufficiently attractive to recruit—and retain — those who might otherwise be tempted into other fields. So we fully recognise the importance of the proposals that the UKCC has put forward which are designed to meet those ends and hope to be in a position to make a response by Easter.

Birth Statistics

49. Mr. Michael J. Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the comparative rate of caesarian section as opposed to spontaneous delivery of women giving birth in (a) NHS hospitals and (b) private hospitals during the last four years for which figures are available.

68. Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the comparative rate of caesarian delivery as opposed to spontaneous delivery of women giving birth in (a) National Health Service hospitals and (b) private hospitals during the last four years for which figures are available.

107. Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the comparative rate of caesarian delivery as opposed to spontaneous delivery of women giving birth in (a) National Health Service hospitals and (b) private hospitals during the last four years for which figures are available.

Mrs. Currie: The table shows data from the hospital in-patient inquiry maternity statistics. These statistics are derived from registration material and from maternal discharges derived from a nominal one in 10 sample of in-patient records from maternity units of the National Health Service non-psychiatric hospitals in England. The latest available year for these data is 1985.

Comprehensive data on maternities in private hospitals are not available centrally.

Estimated total deliveries, number and percentage by mode of delivery, NHS hospitals, England, 1982-85.

Year	Number or per cent.	Estimated total deliveries	Mode of delivery
			Caesarean	Spontaneous
1982	Number	574,620	58,110	441,440
	per cent.	100	10·1	76·8
1983	Number	578,380	58,370	440,950
	per cent.	100	10·1	76·2
1984	Number	586,110	59,140	449,300
	per cent.	100	10·1	76·7
1985	Number	605,120	63,270	461,860
	per cent.	100	10·5	76·3

District Health Authorities (Deficits)

50. Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the estimated deficit of all district health authorities in England and Wales for the current financial year.

Mr. Newton: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Newbury (Mr. McNair-Wilson) and the hon. Members for Burnley (Mr. Pike) and for Liverpool, West Derby (Mr. Wareing) on 18 December 1987 at columns 936-37.

Questions concerning health authorities in Wales are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Families (Resources)

51. Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he will make a statement on the effects on the targeting of resources for families with children of the social security reforms.

65. Mr. David Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he will make a statement on the effects on the targeting of resources for families with children of the social security reforms.

Mr. Scott: I refer my hon. Friends to my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Banbury (Mr. Baldry) on 12 January 1988 at column 251.

Senior Hospital Doctors and Dentists (Disciplinary Procedures)

52. Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether the review of the disciplinary procedures affecting senior hospital doctors and dentists announced by him in May 1987 has yet reported; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: We are expecting a report later this year from the joint working party which has been undertaking this review. We will then decide what changes might be made to the disciplinary procedures, and negotiations between the health Departments and the professions will follow.

Mobility and Attendance Allowance Tribunals

53. Mr. Holt: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what plans are in hand to improve the operational efficiency of mobility and attendance allowance tribunals.

Mr. Scott: The social security appeal tribunals — which consider appeals on claims for attendance allowance and mobility allowance—and medical appeal tribunals— which consider appeals on medical questions affecting mobility allowance — are the responsibility of the independent president of social security and medical appeal tribunals. Reviews of decisions on the medical criteria for attendance allowance are the responsibility of the independent Attendance Allowance Board. The tribunals and the board consider many thousands of appeals and reviews each year. I know that the president and the board are anxious to minimise the time taken to deal with appeals and reviews. They are in regular contact with our officials to see how arrangements for handling appeals and reviews can be improved.

Thames Region (Capital Expenditure)

54. Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what the revenue resource consequences of capital expenditure by Thames region have been for each year since 1984; if he will provide comparable information for each district health authority and special health authority in London; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: I regret that the information requested is not available centrally. The hon. Member may like to contact the chairmen of the health authorities concerned.

North Western Regional Health Authority

56. Mr. Sumberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he last met the chairman of the North Western regional health authority; what subjects were discussed; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: I refer my hon. Friend to my reply to the hon. Member for Manchester, Central (Mr. Litherland) on 12 January at column 128.

Divisional Relocations

57. Mr. Cran: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he expects to complete his review of the possible relocation out of London of divisions within his Department; and what priority he attaches to achieving such a relocation.

Mr. Moore: It is expected that the first stage of the relocation study will be completed in the spring of this year. The study is being carried out as a part of the continuing requirement to ensure that the administration of the Department is carried out in the most efficient and cost-effective way: a requirement to which I attach the greatest importance.

Social Security Act 1986

60. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the implementation of the Social Security Act 1986.

Mr. Scott: Implementation of the Social Security Act 1986 is well advanced. Indications from our own local officers are that the process of implementation is going well. Introduction of the new family credit is on course and new cases will be accepted from the beginning of March. Existing supplementary benefit cases are now being reassessed for conversion to income support. The social fund manual was published in November, social fund officers are now being trained and local office budgets have been allocated. Preliminary results from a survey of progress in local authorities indicate that the majority of local authorities expect to implement the reform of housing benefit on time.

Pensioners

61. Mr. David Porter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people he expects to attain pensionable age in the decades commencing 1991, 2001 and 2011.

Mr. Scott: The numbers of people in the United Kingdom newly attaining pension age in the decades commencing 1991, 2001 and 2011 are estimated as follows:

Numbers attaining pension Age

Decade commencing	(million)
1991	5·4
2001	6·2
2011	6·8

Source: Office of Population Censuses and Surveys.

105. Mr. Summerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the average annual income of pensioners in England in 1974, 1979, and the latest year for which figures are available.

Mr. Scott: The average total net annual income of a British pensioner couple was £5,025 in 1974, £5,185 in 1979, and £5,995 in 1985 at 1985 prices. That of a single pensioner was £2,700, £2,785 and £3,330 respectively.

Health Authorities (Funding)

62. Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps he has taken to ensure that the distribution of funds to both regional and district health authorities reflects their relative efficiency as well as their need.

Mr. Newton: Our general policy is to bring the allocation of resources to regions gradually closer to targets based on their relative health needs as assessed by the resource allocation working party formula. In judging the pace of change, however, we seek to take account of all relevant factors; and we urge regions in turn to take account of all relevant factors in determining their allocations to districts.

69. Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will allocate additional money to health authorities to finance revenue costs of money raised by voluntary efforts.

Mrs. Currie: I refer my hon. Friend to my reply to him on 24 November 1987, at column 176.

Cook/Chill Catering (Wakefield)

63. Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what action he proposes to take on the call by Wakefield health authority for a public inquiry to be held into the circumstances surrounding the proposed introduction of a cook/chill system of catering into its hospitals.

Mrs. Currie: I can confirm that we have received such a request. It is currently under consideration and I expect to respond to the health authority's letter shortly.

Staff Turnover

64. Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will provide details of the turnover of staff in social security local offices in London and north-east regions, the resignations of staff, by grade, and overall wastage and shortfall of staff in the London and north-east regions; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: The tables give details of the turnover, wastage, resignations and shortfall of staff, in each grade, in local offices in the London north, London south and north-east regions of the Department. The latest available data have been provided in each case. The data concerning the shortfall of staff are not available by grade. Turnover is defined as the loss and movement of staff due to resignation, retirement, dismissal, death, transfer, promotion and reversion. Wastage is defined as the loss of staff due to resignation, retirement, dismissal, death and transfer to other Government Departments.

Period 1 October 1986 to 30 September 1987[1]

	Grade
Region	EO/LOII	AO/LOII	AA	Typists	Others
Turnover
London North	14·36	25·36	34·99	17·87	16·56
London South	18·70	27·48	48·51	18·75	14·97
North East	11·98	13·87	45·80	12·15	14·89
Wastage
London North	4·45	17·06	22·38	14·73	6·09
London South	6·95	17·49	27·43	17·31	6·24
North East	3·51	7·24	11·48	6·34	4·58

[1] The figures shown are the number of "leavers" expressed as a percentage of the staff complement for each grade.

Shortfall of staff—position as on 1 January 1988[1]

Region	Percentage
London North	0·76
London South	1·49
North East	0·48

[1] Percentage shortfall of staff below planned staffing levels.

Total number of resignations for the period 1 April 1986 to 31 March 1987[1]

	Grade
Region	HEO	EO/LOI	AO/LOII	AA	Total
London North	4	93	901	386	1,384
London South	9	125	844	424	1,402
North East	0	28	247	135	410

[1] The figures shown give the position in the regional as well as the local offices within each region.

Thames Regional Health Authorities

66. Ms. Abbot: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what plans he has to reverse the cut in real resources to Thames regional health authorities; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: There has been no cut in real resources. Over the period 1978-79 to 1986-87, gross revenue expenditure in the four Thames regions rose by 119·5 per cent. Compared with general inflation this represents a real terms increase of 12·8 per cent.

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the percentage change in (a) revenue expenditure and (b) capital expenditure on hospital and community health services in real terms, using the National Health Service pay and prices deflator, for the four Thames regional health authorities in total, between 1981-82 and 1986-87.

Mr. Newton: The information required on revenue expenditure was given in my right hon. Friend's reply to the hon. Member on 12 January at column 132. The increase in gross capital expenditure in the Thames regions over this period was 37 per cent. after allowing for the effects of capital inflation in the hospital and community health services.

Operation Costs

67. Mr. Colin Shepherd: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps he is taking to establish the costs of various operative procedures, including hip replacement operations, within the National Health Service.

Mrs. Currie: The Department currently relies on estimates and ad hoc surveys to establish these costs, which will vary significantly according to the type of patient and severity of the condition. An estimate of the cost of a hip replacement operation was made in 1984. At current prices this amounts to about £3,300. But this does not take account of the subsequent fall in the average length of in-patient stay in hospital which will tend to reduce the cost per case treated.

The Department will continue to use these estimates until more comprehensive information systems are available. One such is the resources mangement initiative which is currently being piloted at five acute hospital sites. The projects concerned will be evaluated later in the year.

Resettlement Review

73. Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he expects the work of the resettlement review advisory steering group to be completed.

Mr. Scott: The advisory steering group advises the Department on the best strategy to achieve better resettlement provision and the closure of resettlement units. No date has been set for the completion of this process or the work of the advisory steering group.

Diabetics

74. Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received concerning the ending of the diet allowance for diabetics under the new system of income support.

Mr. Scott: Apart from correspondence from hon. Members, we have received a number of representations from individual members of the public.

Hospital Building

76. Mr. Latham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he will make a statement on the hospital building programme.

Mrs. Currie: The largest ever health building programme in the history of the National Health Service is continuing. Information held centrally shows that there and currently more than 480 health building schemes, each costing over £1 million, at various stages of planning, design and construction. The total value of the programme is estimated at over £3·5 billion, and the total capital expenditure this year is expected to exceed £990 million.

These building schemes, which are located throughout the country, are providing a better health care environment for National Health Service patients and more attractive working conditions for staff. They are helping to improve productivity and value for money. Newer designs have been generally very well received by patients and the public.

Community Care

77. Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what funds have been made available to London local authorities from health authorities for care in the community initiatives for each year since 1984, identified by amount and by authority; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: The information held centrally on joint finance expenditure does not identify separately expenditure on individual schemes such as those related to the care in the community initiative. The hon. Member may wish to seek further information from the chairmen of the health authorities concerned.

82. Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a further statement about the Government's plans for care in the community.

Mr. Newton: Sir Roy Griffiths's recommendations on various aspects of community care, including provisions for people leaving long-stay hospitals under the care in the community arrangements, are expected to reach us very soon. We shall give them very careful consideration.

Voluntary Unemployment

78. Mr. Nellist: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when regulations will be introduced to extend the maximum period of benefit reduction in alleged cases of voluntary unemployment; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Scott: We hope to introduce an order to amend section 20(1) of the Social Security Act 1975, which gives the power to disqualify a person for unemployment benefit, in the near future. Regulations amending the income support regulations consequential on provisions in the current Social Security Bill will follow.

It is the Government's intention that the periods of disqualification for unemployment benefit and for the reduction of income support in cases of voluntary unemployment will be increased from a maximum of 13 weeks to a maximum of 26 weeks from 11 April 1988. Falling unemployment and the strengthening economy are bringing a reduction in the total number of claims for benefit from unemployed people. The number of claims from people who have left jobs voluntarily without just cause has, however, increased.

Departmental Offices

81. Mr. Boateng: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the average interval between redecorations in his Department's local offices; what plans he has to provide play facilities for claimants with young children and to reduce smoking in the public waiting areas; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Scott: Redecorations of local offices are scheduled for every six years, with shorter intervals for offices in more dirty environments or for parts of offices affected by heavy usage, for example public waiting areas. No information is held centrally on the actual interval between redecorations in individual offices. Play facilities are not normally provided unless there is a particular local need. Smoking in local offices, including within the public waiting area, is currently being reviewed by a joint working party with the trade unions.

Health Services (Plymouth)

83. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will arrange to meet the chairman of Plymouth health authority to discuss health services in Plymouth.

Mrs. Currie: There are no present plans to do so. Ministers do, however, have regular meetings with regional health authority chairmen from whom we receive first-hand accounts of current developments within their regions.

Nurses Pay Review Body Report

84. Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, when he expects to receive the report of the nurses pay review board.

Mr. Newton: The nurses' pay review body is expected to make its report to my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in the spring.

Dental Treatment

85. Mr. Callaghan: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps he takes to monitor the effect of National Health Service charges for dental treatment on dental health; and if he will make regular reports on this to the House.

Mrs. Currie: I refer the hon. Member to my reply earlier today to the hon. Member for Stoke-on-Trent, North (Ms. Walley).

London Ambulance Service

87. Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make an official visit to the headquarters of the London ambulance service.

Mrs. Currie: We have no plans to do so. My noble Friend, who has particular responsibility for the London ambulance service, visited the headquarters in October 1987.

103. Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many staff have been employed by the London ambulance service for each year since 1979; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: The number of whole-time equivalent ambulance men and women in post in each year, as at March, was as follows:

Year (March)	Whole-time equivalent
1979	2,017·0
1980	1,950·0
1981	2,148·0
1982	2,131·0
1983	2,063·0
1984	2,079·0
1985	2,099·0
1986	2,037·0
1987	2,248·5

We welcome the continued increase in the number of ambulance personnel since March 1986.

Benefits

88. Mr. Bernie Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the average number of days taken to process a social security claim in (a) the London region and (b) other regions; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Scott: The table records, by region and for the four-week period to 15 December 1987, average clearance times for claims to supplementary benefit, sickness benefit (including invalidity benefit), maternity benefit and retirement pension. I regret that claims for other social security benefits are not recorded by region.

Date (15 December 1987)	Supplementary benefit	Sickness benefit	Maternity benefit	Retirement pension
London North	7·1	13·4	17·7	24·7
London South	6·6	12·5	19·0	24·6
North Eastern	4·7	7·6	11·9	19·8
Midlands	5·7	8·8	12·4	20·7
Wales and South West	5·0	7·4	13·2	21·8
North Western	4·5	8·7	12·8	23·0
Scotland	3·9	7·2	10·6	20·9
National	5·4	9·2	14·4	22·0

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will set out in tabular form the number of (a) claimants and (b) dependants claiming each of the mean-tested benefits for which his Department is responsible; and if he will provide comparable data for 1979.

Mr. Portillo: The readily available information for successful claimants is set out in the tables.

Income-related benefit recipients and their dependants Great Britain: 1986

Thousands

Date	Benefit	Number of recipients	Number of dependants
February 1986	Supplementary Benefit	4,938	3,353
April 1986	Family Income Supplement	200	530
Autumn 1986	Standard Housing Benefit	3,730	n/a
1986	Recipients getting one or more income-related benefit	[1]8,500	n/a

n/a Figures not available.

[1] This figures reflects an adjustment for the overlap between the benefits (ie: people receiving two or more of the above benefits).

Income-related benefit recipients and their dependants Great Britain: 1979

Thousands

Date	Benefit	Number of recipients	Number of dependants
November 1979	Supplementary Benefit	2,855	1,516
April 1979	Family Income Supplement	77	214
1979-80	Rate Rebate[1]	3,065	n/a
1979	Recipients getting one or more income-related benefit	[2]5,900	n/a

n/a Figures not available.

[1] Housing benefit was not introduced until 1983. It replaced the former DOE rate rebate, rent allowance and rent rebate schemes. Most recipients of a rent allowance or rent rebate would also have received a rate rebate. Figures are not available for the small number of people who received rent allowance or rent rebate only.

[2] This figures reflects an adjustment for the overlap between the benefits (ie: people receiving two or more of the above benefits).

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people in the Seaham and Peterlee area are in receipt of (a) attendance allowance, (b) industrial disablement benefit, (c) industrial death benefit, (d) invalid care allowance, (e) invalidity benefit, (f) mobility allowance, (g) retirement pension, (h) severe disablement allowance, (i) supplementary pension, (j) war pensions and (k) widows' benefits; and what were the numbers for each of the last five years.

Mr. Portillo: I regret that some of this information is not available or not available in the form requested.

The table sets out for the periods requested the numbers of people in receipt of industrial disablement benefit, invalidity benefit (including sickness benefit), severe disablement benefit and supplementary benefit in the areas served by the Department's offices at Peterlee and Seaham. No local records are kept for industrial death benefit and no separate records are kept for beneficiaries of sickness and invalidity benefit. In some instances local records before 1985 are not available because they have been destroyed.

Also no records are kept, by area, of the numbers in receipt of attendance allowance, invalid care allowance, mobility allowance, retirement pension, war pension and widows' benefit because these benefits are administered at the Department's central offices.

	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987	1988
Peterlee
Industrial Disablement Benefit	2,416 (Dec)	2,470 (Dec)	2,370 (Dec)	2,252 (Dec)	2,197 (Dec)	2,143 (Jan)
Invalidity Benefit (including sickness benefit)	..	..	7,090 (Jan)	7,051 (Jan)	7,886 (Jan)	7,834 (Jan)
Severe Disablement Allowance[1]	..	..	276 (Jan)	370 (Jan)	363 (Jan)	359 (Jan)
Supplementary Pensions	..	1,295 (July)	1,241 (July)	1,236 (July)	1,237 (July)	[2]
Seaham
Industrial Disablement Benefit	..	1,095 (April)	1,008 (April)	1,162 (April)	926 (April)	824 (Jan)
Invalidity Benefit (including sickness benefit)	1,489 (April)	1,621 (April)	1,696 (April)	1,852 (April)	1,946 (April)	2,051 (April)
Severe Disablement Allowance[1]	..	..	84 (April)	136 (April)	136 (April)	149 (Jan)
Supplementary Pensions	836 (Dec)	962 (Dec)	995 (Dec)	1,019 (Dec)	1,075 (Nov)	[2]

[1] Severe disablement allowance replaced Non-contributory invalidity pensions from 29 November 1984.
[2] Not yet available.
.. Not available.

Doctors (Negligence)

94. Sir Anthony Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will meet representatives of the General Medical Council to discuss the system of dealing with cases of negligence by doctors; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: I have no present plans to do so. However, the General Medical Council, which is an independent statutory body, is currently undertaking a comprehensive review of their disciplinary procedures and I await with interest the outcome of that review.

Private Health Services

95. Mr. Page: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has on the private health contribution by the private health sector in Germany and France in percentages of their gross domestic product.

Mrs. Currie: The proportion of gross domestic product spent on private health care in Germany and France in 1985 was 1·8 per cent. and 1·7 per cent. respectively.

Keep Warm Keep Well Campaign

96. Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the progress to date the Keep Warm Keep Well campaign.

Mr. Scott: To the end of January, there had been approximately 5,000 calls to the "Winter Warmth" freephone line. There has been a strong demand for the campaign booklet, of which 750,000 copies have been printed, from both the general public and from bodies such as community health councils. The Department is continuing to place both national and regional newspaper advertisements on the campaign, and we have provided publicity material to the television and radio organisations.

Pensioners (Investment Income)

97. Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what changes have taken place in the value of pensioners' incomes from investment (a) between 1974 and 1979 and (b) from 1979 to date.

Mr. Scott: The average income from investment of a pensioner household (a) decreased in real terms by 16 per cent. between 1974 and 1979, an average of 3·4 per cent. a year; and (b) increased in real terms by 53 per cent. between 1979 and 1985, an average of 7·3 per cent. a year.

Hospitals Inspectorate

99. Mr. Roger King: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will consider setting up an inspectorate of hospitals to report upon the state and efficiency of hospital establishments, similar in concept to Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools.

Mr. Newton: We will bear my hon. Friend's suggestion in mind.

Disabled People (Discrimination)

100. Mr. Wall: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the number of cases of discrimination against disabled people which have been referred to his Department in each of the last three years; and what action he has taken.

Mr. Scott: The numbers of complaints of alleged discrimination against disabled people referred to the Department in each of the last three years were as follows:

	Numbers
1985	Two
1986	none
1987	Four

Of those six complaints, in one case there was no evidence of discrimination; in two cases we requested further information from the complainant but received no response; one complaint was resolved in favour of the complainant during the course of our inquiries; and two cases are still outstanding.

Nurses (Pay)

101. Mr. McCrindle: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received on nurses' pay levels for 1988-89; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: We have received around 850 representations on nurses' pay levels for 1988-89 in the last two months. The level of pay for nurses is a matter for the independent nurses' pay review body which is expected to make its recommendations on pay levels for 1988-89 to my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in the spring.

Young People (Benefit)

102. Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received relating to his announcement that young people shall no longer generally be eligible to receive benefit.

Mr. Scott: Up to 2 February we have received a total of 69 letters concerning the Government's proposal to withdraw the general entitlement to income support from 16 and 17-year-olds. Like representations made by hon. Members during the passage through the House of the current Social Security Bill, most of the letters expressed concern about particular groups such as lone parents, the homeless, the disabled and those in education. The representations made will be fully considered when the regulations are framed to exempt certain groups of people from the general provision.

Public Houses (No-smoking Areas)

106. Mr. Ashton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what consultations he has had with brewers regarding the installation of no-smoking areas in pubs.

Mrs. Currie: None. The provision of no-smoking areas in bars and restaurants is a matter for the owners. The Government do, however, welcome the extension of non-smoking facilities in public places, since two thirds of the people in this country do not now smoke cigarettes.

Hospital Treatment Costs (Yorkshire)

108. Mr. Gregory: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the most recent figures for the cost of in-patients and out-patients treated at York district hospital; what are the figures for the six similar non-teaching hospitals in the Yorkshire regional health authority; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: For 1986-87, hospital cost returns submitted to the Department show average costs for in-patients and out-patients treated at York district hospital and the six other hospitals classed as acute with over 300 beds (non-teaching) in the Yorkshire region, as follows:

Hospital	In-patients		Out-patients
	Cost per in-patient day £	Cost per in-patient case £	Cost per attendance £	Cost per case £
York District Hospital	82·24	580·63	25·44	112·28
Bradford Royal Infirmary	80·53	519·88	27·24	110·67
Harrogate Hospital	100·80	645·97	29·04	146·51
Huddersfield Royal Infirmary	90·90	544·66	28·14	135·55
Hull Royal Infirmary	86·35	631·81	25·34	95·26
Pinderfields Hospital, Wakefield	91·92	841·06	29·96	148·51
Scunthorpe General	93·00	542·50	22·76	99·60

There are a number of factors which may contribute to variations in costs between one hospital and another. They include variations in the proportion of patients treated in different specialties, the difference in cost of treating certain types of case, in-patient length of stay and numbers and grades of staff employed. 1986-87 cost information by region and for England as a whole is not yet available.

North Staffordshire Health District

109. Mr. Ashley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will visit the North Staffordshire health district to inspect the new surgical block due to open shortly.

Mrs. Currie: I hope to visit the unit some time this year.

Barnet Health Authority (Nurses)

112. Mr. Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what plans he has to tackle the shortage of nurses employed by Barnet health authority.

Mr. Newton: We have announced a range of measures on accommodation, grading structure and training designed to improve recruitment and retention of nurses in the NHS. However, it is for individual health authorities to consider what action to take to deal with local shortages. Should the hon. Member wish to pursue the matter further, he may wish to contact the chairman of the Barnet health authority direct.

Unemployment Benefit Claimants

113. Mr. Andrew Bowden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will estimate the number of claimants of unemployment benefit aged 55 to 60 years who receive income from an occupational pension.

Mr. Scott: It is estimated that some 40,000 claimants of unemployment benefit aged between 55 and 60 receive income from an occupational pension.

Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act

115. Mr. Doran: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will now allocate the necessary resources to enable all local authorities to implement fully the Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act.

Mr. Scott: Responsibility for implementing the Act rests with local authorities, which are in the best position to assess local needs and to decide the most appropriate arrangements for meeting them. We do not allocate resources to specific social services, and it is not practicable separately to indentify the total amount spent on services under the Act. However, between 1978-79 and 1986-87, gross current expenditure by local authorities on the personal social services overall increased by over 26 per cent. in real terms.

Performance Indicators

116. Mr. Favell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received on the quality of information supplied by his Department's computer-based performance indicator package.

Mrs. Currie: Some comments have been received about the accuracy of individual values in the performance indicator package. The quality of the information in the package is largely determined by the accuracy of the data supplied by health authorities. Every effort is made to refer questions of data accuracy back to authorities.

Abortion (Approved Places)

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list the places approved by him under section 1(3) of the Abortion Act 1967.

Mr. Newton: The following places have been approved for period 1 February 1988 to 31 January 1990.

Acland Nuffield Hospital, Oxford
Alexandra Hospital, Cheadle, Cheshire
Alexandra Hospital, Walderslade, Kent
Avenue Clinic, Hove, Sussex
Bath Clinic, Combe Down
Beechwood Private Clinic, Norton, Sheffield
Belvedere Nursing Home, Scarborough
Blackdown Nursing Home, Blackdown, Leamington Spa
Blackheath Hospital, London SE3
Bromhead Nursing Home, Lincoln
BUPA Hospital, Bushey, Watford, Hertfordshire
BUPA Murrayfield Hospital, Thingwall, Wirral, Merseyside
BUPA Hospital, Colney, Norwich
Calthorpe Nursing Home, Edgbaston, Birmingham
Chalybeate Hospital, Southampton, Hampshire
Chatsworth Clinic, New Barnet
Chaucer Hospital, Canterbury
Chesterfield Nuffield Hospital, Bristol
Christchurch Park Hospital, Ipswich, Suffolk
Clare Park Clinic, Farnham, Surrey
Cleveland Nuffield Hospital, Stockton-on-Tees
Cotswold Nuffield Hospital, Cheltenham
Danum Lodge Nursing Home, Doncaster
Dean Park Nursing Home, Bournemouth, Dorset
Duchy Hospital, Treliske, Truro
Duchy House Nuffield Hospital, Harrogate
Evelyn Hospital, Cambridge
Exeter Nuffield Hospital, Exeter
Fairfield Nursing Home, Buckhurst Hill, Essex
Fallodon Private Nursing Home, Leeds
Fitzwilliam Hospital, South Bretton, Peterborough
Foscote Private Hospital, Banbury
Fulford Grange Hospital, Rawdon, Leeds
Garden Hospital, London NW4
Glen Hospital, Bristol
Hampshire Clinic, Basingstoke
Highfield Private Hospital, Rochdale
HRH Princess Christian's Hospital, Windsor, Berkshire
Hull Nuffield Hospital, Hull
Humana Hospital, London NW8
King Edward VII Hospital, Midhurst
Leicester Nuffield Hospital, Leicester
Leigham Private Clinic, London SW16
Marie Stopes Nursing Home, London NW2
Merseyside Nursing Home, Liverpool
Newcastle Nuffield Hospital, Jesmond, Newcastle-upon-Tyne
New Hall Hospital, Bodeham, Salisbury, Wiltshire
New Victoria Hospital, Kingston-upon-Thames, Surrey
Park Hospital, Arnold, Nottingham
Parkfield Private Hospital, Rotherham, South Yorkshire
Parkview Clinic, London W5
Plymouth Nuffield Hospital, Derrifold, Plymouth
Portland Hospital for Women and Children, London W1
Raleigh Nursing Home, London SW2
Robert Nursing Home, Kings Norton, Birmingham
Rosslyn Nursing Home, East Twickenham, Middlesex
Royal Masonic Hospital, London W6 0TN
Salop Nuffield Hospital, Shrewsbury SY3 9PD
Sarum Road Private Nursing Home, Winchester, Hampshire
Somerset Nuffield Hospital, Taunton, Somerset
South Bank Hospital, Worcester
South Manchester Private Clinic, Stockport
St Wilfrid's Nursing Home, Bessacarr, Doncaster
Victoria House Nursing Home, Rochester, Kent
Wellesley Hospital, Southend-on-Sea
Wessex Nuffield Hospital, Eastleigh, Hants
Winterbourne Hospital, Dorchester, Dorset
Wistons Nursing Home, Brighton
Woking Nuffield Hospital, Woking
Wye Valley Nuffield Hospital, Hereford
Yorkshire Clinic, Bingley, West Yorkshire

As part of the Deprtment's control of the private sector all these places are subject to unannounced visits of inspection. Those places specialising in abortion are visited more frequently by both medical-nursing and investigative officers. In the course of these visits, the operation of approved places is observed closely with regard to the conditions of approval under which they are required to operate, the facilities and equipment provided, medical and nursing practice and administrative and financial arrangements.

Mersey RHA

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the level of Government spending on the National Health Service in the Mersey region, expressed per household, in 1979 and in each year since then at (a) current prices, (b) 1979 prices and (c) 1987 prices.

Mrs. Currie: Following are figures for the Mersey region:

Total expenditure on hospital and community health services[1]—per household

	In cash terms £	At 1979-80 prices £	At 1987-88 prices £
1979-80	363	363	632
1980-81	463	391	680
1981-82	510	391	681
1982-83	544	389	677
1983-84	564	386	674
1984-85	599	392	682
1985-86	624	386	672
1986-87	667	399	695

[1] Includes revenue and capital expenditure on hospital, community health, ambulance, blood transfusion and other services.

Sources:

1. Annual accounts of the regional health authority and district (formerly area) health authorities comprising the Mersey region.

2. Mid-year estimates of numbers of households (counties of Cheshire and Merseyside) — 1979, 1980, 1981, 1983 and 1986 (Department of Environment). Data specifically for the other years in the table is not available: the latest available figure was used.

Notes:

i. The figures have been expressed at 1979-80 and 1987-88 prices by the use of the gross domestic product deflator.

ii. Expenditure on family practitioner services is excluded: such expenditure is accounted for by family practitioner committees (FPCs) and cannot strictly be attributed to particular regions. However, prior to 1 April 1985 many of the district (formerly area) health authorities within the region had an associated FPC and those authorities' total expenditure figures for the years before that date include elements relating to FPCs' administrative expenses which are not separately identifiable.

iii. Expenditure by the special health authorities and other bodies providing central services to the National Health Service and expenditure met centrally by the Department is also excluded.

Cervical Cancer

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many women in England and Wales have died from cervical cancer in the last five years for which figures are available, expressed per thousand women.

Mrs. Currie: The table shows the number of deaths with underlying cause of death as malignant neoplasm of cervix uteri, and the rate per thousand women for England and Wales for the years 1982 to 1986.

Number of deaths with underlying cause as malignant neoplasm of cervix uteri (ICD(9) 180) and rate per 1,000 women, all ages. England and Wales 1982-86

Year	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Number of deaths	1,932	1,959	1,899	1,957	2,004
Rate per 1,000 women	0·076	0·077	0·074	0·076	0·078

[1] International Classification of Diseases 9th revision.

Ophthalmic Services

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what consultations his Department had with representatives of ophthalmologists and opticians, or any other medical advisory sources, before proposing the ending of free sight testing.

Mr. Newton: We undertook a lengthy consultation on primary care, in which ophthalmic, optical and other interested bodies took part. Our subsequent decisions, including the proposal to restrict NHS sight tests to particular groups, reflected our judgment in the light of that consultation about the most appropriate use of resources to support our plans for the further development of primary care as a whole.

NHS (Expenditure Losses)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on the loss consequent on National Health Service payments to doctors whose time is lost due to lack of nurses and support staff.

Mr. Newton: There would be some loss to the National Health Service if a doctor were unable to perform his scheduled duties due to the lack of nurses and support staff. A number of initiatives are already in hand aimed at improving the recruitment and retention of nursing and support staff.

Health Care (Costs)

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will issue guidance to all regional health authorities to have regard to the total cost of care on the basis of differing dependency levels when setting the level of their grant to local authorities.

Mr. Newton: We have no plans to issue further guidance, but the funding of community care will be considered in the context of Sir Roy Griffiths' review.

Current guidance to health and local authorities on the transfer of resources with patients moving out of hospital and into personal social services care is set out in HC(83)6 (LAC(83)5).

Community Care

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he now expects to receive the Griffiths report on community care; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Brighton, Kemptown (Mr. Bowden) and the hon. Member for Monklands, West (Mr. Clarke) on 18 January at columns 583-84.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many hospitals have closed since 1979 due to the provision of community care for the mentally handicapped for each year since 1979; and what has been the use made of the sites.

Mrs. Currie (holding answer 1 December 1987]: No large hospital for mentally handicapped people has closed. About 45 National Health Service hospital units, hostels and holiday homes have closed mainly since 1984. Changes of use for the sites so far include new facilities for mentally handicapped people in the community, a general medical practice, private hospitals, nursing homes and homes for elderly people; educational and training establishments; residential development by private developers and housing associations; and a nature reserve.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many beds there were in hospitals in the Leicestershire district health authority on 1 January in each of the years 1978 to 1988 inclusive.

Mrs. Currie: The information available centrally is the average daily number of available beds. These are shown in the table. In Leicestershire health authority the number of in-patient cases treated per available bed rose from 14·4 to 19·9 between 1978 and 1986.

Number of available beds by hospital, Leicestershire District Health Authority at 31 December 1978 to 1986

Hospital	Average daily number of available beds
	1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Leicester General Hospital	714	672	691	730	740	784	910	913	914
Fielding Palmer Cottage Hospital	15	4	15	15	15	15	15	15	15
Market Harborough and District Hospital	27	20	26	26	26	26	25	25	24
Melton and District Hospital	46	46	47	47	42	47	47	46	47
Rutland Memorial Hospital	36	36	36	35	34	34	32	34	32
St. Mary's Hospital	117	117	115	112	108	105	105	101	98
The Towers Hospital	597	568	539	527	542	527	474	477	450
St. Luke's Hospital	52	52	52	52	52	52	51	52	52
Framland Hospital	41	41	41	41	41	41	41	41	37

Hospital	Average daily number of available beds 1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Catmose Vale Hospital	44	44	44	44	44	42	42	38	42
Ashby-de-la-Zouch and District Hospital	28	28	28	28	27	28	29	29	25
Loughborough General Hospital	76	76	73	70	76	71	71	70	74
Groby Road Hospital	241	24[illegible]	235	243	243	243	221	175	180
Markfield Hospital	188	162	133	119	102	2	—	—	—
Zachary Merton Home	79	84	84	83	83	84	45	—	—
Ellen Towle Memorial Home	19	19	19	19	15	19	14	—	—
Glenfrith Hospital-Leicester Frith	785	773	385	347	308	297	288	279	278
Hastings House	78	77	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Glengate Hospital	—	—	56	56	55	54	54	49	48
Mount Sorrell Hospital	—	—	89	89	88	87	86	79	78
Stretton Hall Hospital	—	—	153	141	136	128	125	122	122
Kibworth Hall Hospital	—	—	34	34	34	33	33	32	32
Stoneygate Hospital	—	—	22	22	22	22	22	22	22
Billesdon Hostel	—	—	18	2	—	—	—	—	—
Regent Hospital	—	—	75	74	74	74	72	72	72
Glenfield Community Hospital	168	168	168	168	168	168	167	167	168
Montrose Court	16	16	16	16	20	24	30	32	32
Gorse Hill Hospital	—	—	—	48	96	96	96	96	96
Glenfield General Hospital	—	—	—	—	—	—	22	163	192
The Leicester Royal Infirmary	518	677	802	819	830	830	805	803	795
Fielding Johnson Hospital	52	49	53	54	52	53	54	54	53
Hinckley and District Hospital	34	36	37	31	35	37	37	36	33
Bosworth Park Infirmary	124	124	121	114	121	118	115	117	118
Higham Grange Rehabilitation Centre	36	37	37	36	37	37	36	36	37
Leicester Royal Infirmary Maternity Hospital	177	178	178	178	178	178	178	178	178
Westcotes Hospital	8	15	20	23	23	21	10	—	—
Roundhill Maternity Home	30	30	30	30	30	30	28	30	30
Carlton Hayes Hospital	700	693	692	692	671	685	631	598	565
Hinckley Sunnyside Hospital	38	38	38	37	38	38	38	38	38
Blaby Hospital	20	20	20	20	20	20	20	18	19
Hinckley Cottages	—	—	—	—	—	—	3	9	9
TOTAL	5,101	5,140	5,221	5,221	5,225	5,149	5,070	5,045	5,001

Social Service Staff (Assaults)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has as to how many cases of assault on local authority social service staff during the course of their duties were recorded in 1987.

Mr. Newton: I regret that information about assaults on social services staff is not collected centrally.

Underfunding (Contingency Plans)

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what instructions his Department has given to regional health authorities to prepare contingency plans for possible underfunding by his Department of 1988-89 pay awards.

Mr. Newton: None. We have simply reminded regional health authorities of the general need for authorities to balance their income and expenditure, and to plan flexibly in recognition of the possible need to meet some pay and price pressures in the course of the year.

Skoal Bandits

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what plans his Department has for banning Skoal Bandits; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: The sale of tobacco products, including Skoal Bandits, to under-16s was made illegal under the Protection of Children (Tobacco) Act 1986 and measures to control the product further, including a health warning on the label and advertising material, have been under review. The Government will take any additional steps that appear necessary in the interests of public health.

Drugs (Hospitals)

Mr. Favell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services by what percentage the cost of drugs to hospitals as recorded in the hospital and community health services prices index has risen in each year since 1980.

Mr. Newton: The information requested is given in the table.

Percentage year-on-year increase in the drugs element of the Health Service Price Index from 1980-81 to 1986-87

Year	Percentage change over previous year
1981-82	−3·3
1982-83	10·4
1983-84	4·8
1984-85	5·0
1985-86	6·0
1986-87	4·7

Bacteria Testing

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what discussions he is having with manufacturers of meat and fish products into the case for bacteria testing; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: The food industry is well aware of its responsibilities in law to sell only food which is fit for human consumption. End product testing is not an effective or efficient means of ensuring food safety: absolute assurance could come only from examination of every end product item. Much more reliance is placed on quality assurance through hygienic production using sound ingredients: manufacturers and enforcement agencies therefore undertake random sampling.

Anonymised Blood Testing

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will estimate the cost in a full year of a programme of anonymised screening for HIV infection of a proportion of routine blood samples taken for other purposes in hospitals throughout the United Kingdom.

Mr. Newton: If anonymised screening programmes for HIV antibody were carried out, the factors determining the cost would include (a) the size and geographical location of the sample, (b) any preselection of samples from certain age and sex groups and types of patients, (c) the amount of data to be collected and recorded on factors that may be relevant to HIV transmission, (d) whether attempts are made to eliminate duplicate samples, (e) whether patients have an option to take part and (f) the analysis performed with the data so collected.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the annual costs of the anonymised blood testing programmes carried out for measuring the prevalence of measles antibody, immunity to poliomyelitis; rubella, diphtheria and tetanus and the levels of antibody to influenza virus; how often such testing programmes are repeated; and what use is made of the statistical and epidemiological data produced.

Mr. Newton: Not all the information sought is available, and that which is available could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Alice Fuller

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the current arrangements for the treatment of Mrs. Alice Fuller of 39 New Place square, Bermondsey, London SE16, pursuant to the letter to the hon. Member for Southwark and Bermondsey from his Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State dated 30 November 1987 and in the absence of any response from the chairman of the Disablement Services Authority.

Mr. Scott: I understand that since the hon. Member wrote to my hon. Friend, his constituent has made two visits to the Roehampton disablement services centre, on 10 December 1987 and 19 January 1988, and a further appointment has been made for 16 February 1988. I also understand that both the hon. Member's letters about his constituent have been acknowledged by officials of the Disablement Services Authority, and that the chairman of the authority will write to him shortly.

Limb Fitting Centre, Roehampton

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the average time it takes, from the date that a plaster cast is taken, for the limb fitting centre at Roehampton to make a socket for an artificial limb.

Mr. Scott: This is a matter for the Disablement Services Authority, to which the hon. Member should address his question.

Pharmacies

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will supply figures for the number of pharmacies in each family practitioner committee area in England and Wales for each year since 1978 to the latest date for which figures are available.

Mrs. Currie: The information for England is as follows. The information relating to Wales is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Family practitioner committee	1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
England
Avon	178	176	178	176	174	173	174	176	180
Barking and Havering	71	70	70	71	72	73	77	81	86
Barnet	73	74	74	79	83	90	92	92	91
Barnsley	44	44	43	43	43	43	43	43	45
Bedfordshire	69	68	69	69	73	74	77	83	87
Berkshire	103	104	104	107	109	112	113	118	124
Birmingham	191	191	192	192	199	211	219	245	249
Bolton	48	48	48	49	48	50	52	52	54
Bradford	100	98	96	96	96	99	101	103	105
Brent and Harrow	120	123	125	132	136	140	141	142	144
Bromley	51	51	52	54	53	53	57	60	63
Buckinghamshire	87	88	86	89	89	91	93	97	102
Bury	30	29	28	29	30	31	31	30	29
Calderdale	43	43	41	42	41	43	45	46	47
Cambridgeshire	78	76	77	78	81	81	83	86	88
Camden and Islington	113	111	113	119	122	130	134	142	140
Cheshire	158	158	158	158	162	161	163	169	173
City and East London	158	159	158	163	170	172	180	183	189
Cleveland	84	84	85	85	86	84	84	83	85
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	88	87	87	86	86	87	86	88	87
Coventry	58	57	59	63	64	66	73	77	81
Croydon	63	63	66	66	67	67	71	73	78
Cumbria	101	100	100	98	98	99	100	99	97
Derbyshire	150	152	152	154	155	153	155	161	163
Devon	213	211	209	207	205	202	199	209	213
Doncaster	52	52	51	51	50	49	49	49	50
Dorset	140	136	136	132	134	134	134	135	142
Dudley	48	48	46	46	45	46	47	50	54

Family practitioner committee	1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Durham	111	110	109	107	108	108	106	108	108
Ealing, Hammersmith and Hounslow	161	164	167	171	181	183	186	194	197
East Sussex	154	149	150	149	153	153	157	157	158
Enfield and Haringey	100	99	99	103	107	106	110	113	118
Essex	219	223	228	232	241	244	250	264	280
Gateshead	43	41	44	43	40	40	42	44	46
Gloucestershire	78	78	78	79	81	82	82	84	87
Greenwich and Bexley	86	86	89	89	90	93	93	96	103
Hampshire	247	241	238	246	252	257	261	263	273
Hereford and Worcester	85	86	83	85	84	86	87	94	100
Hertfordshire	174	175	175	184	188	196	205	211	221
Hillingdon	57	55	62	60	62	62	64	65	65
Humberside	150	148	147	148	147	149	148	148	153
Isle of Wight	32	31	31	31	32	31	32	32	30
Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster	181	185	179	179	181	196	199	209	204
Kent	250	253	251	251	252	252	250	253	264
Kingston and Richmond	71	73	74	74	76	76	76	79	81
Kirklees	64	62	61	63	61	63	64	65	68
Lambeth, Southwark and Lewisham	156	160	162	168	174	176	184	188	201
Lancashire	304	300	296	295	293	293	289	301	304
Leeds	166	163	158	159	157	158	158	161	169
Leicestershire	150	149	151	155	159	165	174	186	188
Lincolnshire	71	70	72	72	73	73	72	73	73
Liverpool	135	129	130	127	129	132	132	133	133
Manchester	107	104	103	102	101	101	104	113	114
Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth	133	133	135	143	149	155	155	159	158
Newcastle upon Tyne	63	64	65	64	64	67	68	68	68
Norfolk	92	92	94	97	96	97	98	98	102
Northamptonshire	68	70	71	74	76	79	80	85	93
North Tyneside	47	46	46	46	44	44	43	43	43
Northumberland	60	60	60	59	59	57	58	59	65
North Yorkshire	118	115	114	113	114	113	114	115	114
Nottinghamshire	148	149	149	153	163	166	169	173	179
Oldham	38	39	37	36	34	35	39	40	40
Oxfordshire	69	71	72	72	73	74	77	82	78
Redbridge and Waltham Forest	88	88	88	91	99	102	108	114	119
Rochdale	35	34	34	34	34	34	34	34	34
Rotherham	38	38	36	34	33	33	33	34	34
St. Helens and Knowsley	63	62	62	63	61	60	60	61	66
Salford	52	52	52	50	48	49	50	52	51
Salop	58	58	58	59	60	62	61	64	65
Sandwell	60	60	57	58	59	60	65	68	74
Sefton	59	57	55	57	57	57	57	57	56
Sheffield	101	100	101	99	98	97	97	102	105
Solihull	28	29	29	29	28	30	30	33	36
Somerset	71	69	68	67	70	71	71	73	77
South Tyneside	33	31	31	32	32	32	31	31	32
Staffordshire	149	147	148	149	151	152	155	160	166
Stockport	69	69	67	66	66	65	65	65	67
Suffolk	81	81	80	79	81	81	82	84	85
Sunderland	57	57	46	56	57	55	54	55	56
Surrey	191	191	190	194	198	203	210	211	216
Tameside	39	38	36	37	38	38	39	39	42
Trafford	49	49	46	47	47	47	47	47	53
Wakefield	45	43	41	41	41	43	46	50	50
Walsall	45	47	47	47	50	52	52	58	58
Warwickshire	62	63	62	64	64	66	67	74	78
West Sussex	125	124	123	124	125	126	128	128	131
Wigan	60	59	59	59	59	58	59	60	63
Wiltshire	71	72	72	72	72	73	75	75	76
Wirral	89	88	89	87	87	87	85	89	90
Wolverhampton	43	43	44	46	45	48	47	53	59

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will state the number of pharmacies for 100,000 population in England and Wales for each year since 1978 for which figures are available.

Mrs. Currie: The information is as follows:

Number of pharmacies per 100,000 population

Year	Number
1978	19·09
1979	19·00
1980	18·92
1981	19·09
1982	19·34
1983	19·58
1984	19·84
1985	20·38
1986	20·89

McColl Report

Mr. Stern: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a statement on progress in implementation of the McColl report; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Scott: My predecessor made a detailed statement to the House on 10 March 1987 at columns 149-51 setting out the Government's response to the McColl report on the artificial limb and appliance services.

Accordingly, a new special health authority, the Disablement Services Authority, was created on 1 July 1987 to take over from the Department the responsibility for these services. The authority is charged with running the existing services; developing and improving them in the light of the McColl report and of other initiatives; and planning, in co-ordination with the regional health authorities, the integration of the services into those of the NHS on 1 April 1991.

If hon. Members wish to inquire about the work of the authority, I am sure that its chairman the noble Lord Holderness will be pleased to answer their questions.

Nurses

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many nurses were employed by the Leicestershire district health authority on 1 January for each of the years 1978 to 1988 inclusive.

Mrs. Currie: Such information as is available is shown in the table. Staff-in-post figures are collected on 30 September of each year. The figures for 30 September 1986 are the latest available to this level of detail. Because of the 1982 National Health Service reorganisation, figures on a consistent basis are not held centrally for the years prior to 1982.

National Health Service nursing and midwifery staff in post at 30 September[1] Leicestershire district health authority

	Whole-time equivalents[2]
1982	6,180
1983	6,060
1984	6,020
1985	6,290
1986	6,350

Source: Department of Health and Social Services annual census of National Health Service non-medical manpower.

[1] Includes agency staff.

[2] Figures are independently rounded to the nearest 10 whole-time equivalents.

Special Payments

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will explain the procedures used to calculate special payments to pensioner couples (a) in receipt of one pension and (b) in receipt of two separate pensions.

Mr. Scott: Where only one member of a couple has retired and is drawing a pension the standard loss in weekly benefit over the two years affected by the error in the retail price index will be £7·85, whether or not an addition to pension for the spouse is paid. The £8 special payment made on the couple's single instrument of payment will compensate for this in full. If, on the other hand, both have retired their pensions will be paid separately and a special payment will be made on each.

National Health Service Consultants

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what evidence he has of consultants in the National Health Service (a) indulging in restrictive practices and (b) devoting a disproportionate amount of duty hours to activities not directly related to their clinical functions; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 18 December 1987]: The evidence we have comes from National Health Service managers who report that a minority of consultants may not be meeting fully the letter or spirit of their contractual obligations. It is for National Health Service managers to pursue such problems with the individuals concerned.

Nursing Staff (Merseyside)

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what were the numbers of nursing staff in (a) the Mersey region and (b) the Liverpool district health authority, in each of the years 1980-81 to 1986-87.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 11 January 1988]: Because of the 1982 NHS reorganisation, staff-in-post figures prior to 1982 are not consistent with those for 1982 onwards:

Such information as is available is shown in the table.

NHS Nursing and Midwifery staff in post[1] at 30 September

	Whole time equivalent[2]
	Mersey RHA	Liverpool RHA
1982	22,450	5,390
1983	22,310	5,210
1984	21,850	5,050
1985	22,150	5,070
1986	22,330	5,210

Source: DHSS Annual censur of NHS non-medical manpower

[1] Includes agency staff.

[2] Figures independently rounded to nearest ten (10) whole time equivalents.

Agency Nurses (Mersey)

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will estimate the number and the cost of agency nurses employed by each of the district health authorities in the Mersey region in each of the last five years.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 11 January 1988]: The table shows expenditure on agency nursing staff in each of the 10 district health authorities in the Mersey region for the last five years. Information on the total number of agency nurses employed in each year which relates to the table is not available centrally.

District health authority	Year 1982-83 £	1983-84 £	1984-85 £	1985-86 £	1986-87 £
Chester	—	—	—	—	—
Crewe	—	—	1,050	4,257	33,314
Halton	—	4,031	10,156	38,345	112,017
Macclesfield	1,489	65	10,011	6,540	50,063
Warrington	—	—	—	—	—
Liverpool	67,407	115,959	415,912	426,854	551,626
St. Helens and Knowsley	—	—	—	—	—
South Sefton (Merseyside)	9,974	—	—	—	401
Wirral	—	—	—	—	—

National Insurance

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will update the answer of 29 January 1987, Official Report, column 376, to estimate the revenue effect of the national insurance contribution ceiling for employees being abolished, for 1988-89.

Mr. Scott [holding answer 26 January 1988]: It is estimated that if the upper earnings limit for employees' class 1 national insurance contributions were abolished in 1988-89, but retained for the contracted-out rebate, the additional contribution yield for the full year would be £1,390 million.

Health Care

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what proportions of gross domestic product each member of the European Community devoted to health care in each of the years 1983 to 1986 inclusive.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 28 January 1988]: The information available (to 1985 only) is set out in the table. It covers total health expenditure from both public and private sources.

EEC countries	Percentage of GDP spent on health 1983	1984	1985
Belgium	7·2	7·2	7·2
Denmark	6·6	6·3	6·2
France	8·1	8·4	8·4
Germany	8·0	8·1	8·2
Greece	4·2	4·0	4·2
Ireland	8·0	8·0	8·0
Italy	6·7	6·6	6·7
Netherlands	8·6	8·3	8·3
Portugal	5·4	5·5	5·7
Spain	6·3	6·0	6·0
United Kingdom	6·2	6·2	6·1

Source: OECD 1987.

Note: Luxembourg is excluded from the table because of reported inconsistencies in the national health accounts.

Single Payments

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if all claimants who have made applications for items such as non-essential furniture since August 1986 will be identified by his Department so that decisions on such claims can be reviewed in the light of CSB 241/87.

Mr. Portillo [holding reply 29 January 1988]: We have considered carefully the commissioners' decision in CSB 241/1987 and its possible impact on past claims for furniture and household equipment. The effect of the commissioners' decision is to give some claimants access to a discretionary payment for an exceptional need under regulation 30 of the Single Payments Regulations. However, we believe that, under the stringent conditions which apply for a payment under that regulation, relatively few claimants who had previously been denied a payment would now be entitled to one. To identify those claimants would be a major task, costly to mount, disruptive to local offices, and disproportionate to the amount of extra benefit likely to be payable. We have decided, therefore, that it would not be appropriate to conduct a search for such cases, although individual requests for review will be dealt with in the normal way.

NHS Management Board

Mr. Michael McNair-Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list the current membership of the National Health Service Management Board; if he will give an indication of their financial, commercial or managerial background; and if he will define the role of the management board in the overall running of the service.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 1 February 1988]: The NHS Management Board was established within the Department towards the end of 1983 to give leadership to the management of the hospital and community health services, to control performance and to achieve consistency and drive over the long term. The board has a continuing programme of work on management matters relating to the hospital and community health services. The board is made up of individuals who have held a wide range of senior positions in government, the private sector or the NHS. The members are:

The Right Hon. Tony Newton MP, Minister for Health, Chairman.

Sir Roy Griffiths, Deputy Chairman (Part-time) and adviser to the Government on NHS management. Managing Director and Deputy Chairman of J. Sainsbury PLC.

Mr. Len Peach, Chief Executive and Personnel Director. On secondment from IBM (UK) where he was Director of Personnel and corporate affairs. A past President of the Institute of Personnel Management.

Sir Donald Acheson, Chief Medical Officer. Former Chairman of Southampton and South West Hampshire Health Authority.

Mr. Tom Critchley, Director of Procurement and Distribution. Has held a number of high level purchasing posts in industry and ran his own management consultancy from 1980-86. A past president of the Institute of Purchasing and Supply.

Mr. Michael Fairey, Director of Planning and Information Technology. Seconded from North East Thames Regional Health Authority where he had been Regional Administrator. Chairman of Regional Administrators from 1982-84.

Mr. Graham Hart, Director of Operations. A Civil Servant with experience in a wide variety of posts in DHSS concerned with health services. A member of the Central Policy Review Staff from 1982-83.

Mr. John James, Director of Health Authority Finance. A Civil Servant with experience in DHSS posts concerned with health finance, planning, personnel and policy and also in the Treasury. Currently serves as a non-executive Director on the Board of Laing Homes Ltd.

Mr. Anthony Merifield, Director of Health Authority Liaison. A Civil Servant with experience in DHSS posts concerned with health service operations and management.

Mr. Ian Mills, Director of Financial Management. On a three year secondment from Price Waterhouse where he is a senior partner and was director of central government services. A Fellow of the English Institute of Chartered Accountants and a member of the English Institute of Management Consultants.

Mr. Duncan Nichol, Non-Executive Director. Regional General Manager, Mersey. A past president of the Institute of Health Services Management and chairman of the Education Committee of King Edward's Hospital Fund.

Mrs. Anne Poole, Chief Nursing Officer. Has been Chief Nursing Officer at both district authority and Area Health Authority level. Also has experience as nurse member of Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth Area Health Authority.

Mr. Peter Wormald, Director of Operations (Personnel). A Civil Servant with experience in a post concerned with health service policy and planning and now leads the Department's Health Authority Personnel Group.

In addition, Mr. Idris Pearce, a senior partner in Richard Ellis and Vice President of the Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors acts as property adviser to the Board.

NHS (Staff Statistics)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list by district health authority regions (a) the current nursing staff establishment, (b) the number in post at the latest available date, and (c) the number who have left the service of the National Health Service in the past year.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 2 February 1988]: The number of nursing and midwifery staff in post in each district health authority at 30 September 1986 is given in the table.

Detailed information about nurse establishments and nurses leaving the NHS is not available centrally but some such information will, however, become available later this year as a result of the introduction of improvements in National Health Service information systems.

NHS Nursing and Midwifery Staff[1] in Post by Regional Health Authority at 30 September 1986

whole-time equivalent[3]

Region	Nursing and Midwifery
Northern	27,350
Yorkshire	30,200
Trent	37,120
East Anglia	15,410
North West Thames	27,310
North East Thames	32,940
South East Thames	29,510
South West Thames	23,730
Wessex	22,940
Oxford	16,860
South Western	26,930
West Midlands	42,350
Mersey	22,250
North Western	37,840
London Post-Graduate Special Health Authorities	4,520
England	397,240

NHS nursing and midwifery staff[1] in post by district health authority at 30 September 1986

	Whole-time equivalent[3]
Northern Regional Health Authority
Total	27,350
Hartlepool	800
North Tees	1,270
South Tees	2,580
East Cumbria	1,560
South Cumbria	1,140
West Cumbria	1,190
Darlington	1,190
Durham	1,160
North West Durham	730
South West Durham	1,600
Northumberland	3,180
Gateshead	1,450
Newcastle	4,920
North Tyneside	970
South Tyneside	950
Sunderland	2,590
Yorkshire Regional Health Authority
Total	30,200
Hull	2,570
East Yorks	1,700
Grimsby	1,390
Scunthorpe	1,130
Northallerton	530
York	2,360
Scarborough	850
Harrogate	1,130
Bradford	2,770
Airedale	1,390
Calderdale	1,550
Huddersfield	2,020
Dewsbury	1,030
Leeds Western	3,320
Leeds Eastern	3,130
Wakefield	2,130
Pontefract	1,100
Trent regional health authority
Total	37,120
North Derbyshire	2,130
Southern Derbyshire	3,850
Leicestershire	6,350
North Lincolnshire	2,320
South Lincolnshire	2,020
Bassetlaw	690
Central Nottinghamshire	2,190
Nottingham	5,340
Barnsley	1,610
Doncaster	2,430
Rotherham	1,770
Sheffield	6,330
East Anglia regional health authority
Total	15,410
Cambridge	2,490
Peterborough	1,600
West Suffolk	1,620
East Suffolk	2,610
Norwich	3,780
Great Yarmouth and Waveney	1,390

	Whole-time equivalent[1]
West Norfolk and Wisbech	1,160
Huntingdon	720
North West Thames regional health authority
Total	27,310
North Bedfordshire	1,450
South Bedfordshire	1,900
North Hertfordshire	1,000
East Hertfordshire	990
North West Hertfordshire	2,140
South West Hertfordshire	1,160
Barnet	2,700
Harrow	1,270
Hillingdon	1,980
Hounslow and Spelthorne	1,830
Ealing	1,790
Brent	1,990
Paddington and North Kensington	1,960
Riverside	4,040
North East Thames Regional Health Authority
Total	32,940
Basildon and Thurrock	2,270
Mid Essex	1,920
North East Essex	2,940
West Essex	1,570
Southend	1,920
Barking, Havering and Brentwood	3,290
Hampstead	2,040
Bloomsbury	3,150
Islington	1,470
City and Hackney	2,480
Newham	1,080
Tower Hamlets	2,200
Enfield	1,400
Haringey	1,310
Redbridge	1,460
Waltham Forest	2,350
South East Thames Regional Health Authority
Total	29,510
Brighton	2,230
Eastbourne	1,670
Hastings	1,260
South East Kent	1,570
Canterbury and Thanet	2,540
Dartford and Gravesham	1,930
Maidstone	1,480
Medway	1,610
Tunbridge Wells	1,970
Bexley	1,550
Greenwich	1,910
Bromley	2,070
West Lambeth	2,380
Camberwell	1,940
Lewisham and North Southwark	3,380
South West Thames Regional Health Authority
Total	23,730
North West Surrey	1,660
West Surrey and North East Hants	1,660
South West Surrey	1,200
Mid Surrey	1,890
East Surrey	1,750
Chichester	1,390
Mid Downs	1,760
Worthing	1,430
Croydon	2,440
Kingston and Esher	1,560
Richmond and Twickenham and Roehampton	1,280
Wandsworth	2,860
Merton and Sutton	2,750
Wessex Regional Health Authority
Total	22,940
East Dorset	3,040
West Dorset	1,920
Portsmouth and South East Hampshire	3,650
Southampton and South West Hampshire	4,050
Winchester	1,270
Basingstoke and North Hampshire	1,680
Salisbury	1,420
Swindon	1,730
Bath	3,100
Isle of Wight	1,070
Oxford Regional Health Authority
Total	16,860
East Berkshire	2,150
West Berkshire	2,930
Aylesbury Vale	1,690
Wycombe	1,320
Milton Keynes	720
Kettering	1,480
Northampton	2,410
Oxfordshire	4,090
South Western regional health authority
Total	26,930
Bristol and Weston	3,270
Frenchay	2,640
Southmead	2,110
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	2,880
Exeter	3,470
North Devon	980
Plymouth	2,950
Torbay	1,590
Cheltenham and District	1,290
Gloucester	2,410
Somerset	3,270
West Midlands regional health authority
Total	42,350
Bromsgrove and Redditch	1,210
Herefordshire	1,240
Kidderminster and District	1,290
Worcester and District	1,760
Shropshire	2,810
Mid Staffordshire	1,790
North Staffordshire	4,130
South East Staffordshire	1,890
Rugby	460
North Warwickshire	1,370
South Warwickshire	1,920
Central Birmingham	2,770
East Birmingham	1,390
North Birmingham	1,440
South Birmingham	2,520
West Birmingham	2,570
Coventry	2,710
Dudley	2,080
Sandwell	1,560
Solihull	1,140
Walsall	1,920
Wolverhampton	2,280
Mersey regional health authority
Total	22,250
Chester	1,740
Crewe	1,790
Halton	590
Macclesfield	1,630
Warrington	2,470
Liverpool	5,150
St. Helens and Knowsley	2,600
Southport and Formby	1,200
South Sefton	2,210
Wirral	2,780
North Western regional health authority
Total	37,840
Lancaster	2,240

	Whole-time equivalent[3]
Blackpool, Wyre and Fylde	2,490
Preston	2,540
Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley	2,780
Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale	2,660
West Lancashire	980
Chorley and South Ribble	630
Bolton	1,910
Bury	1,090
North Manchester	2,370
Central Manchester	2,060
South Manchester	3,030
Oldham	1,540
Rochdale	1,210
Salford	3,330
Stockport	2,200
Tameside and Glossop	1,380
Trafford	1,220
Wigan	2,050

Source: DHSS Annual census of National Health Service non-medical manpower.

Notes:

1. Figures include qualified nurses and midwives, learners and unqualified staff but exclude agency staff.
2. Regional totals include Regional Headquarters and units staff.
3. Figures are independently rounded to the nearest ten (10) whole-time equivalents.

Lancashire County Council (Grants)

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what grants have been allocated by his Department to Lancashire county council for 1988-89; what grants were made in 1987-88; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 5 February 1988]: Central Government grant support for Lancashire county council's expenditure in areas which are my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Social Services responsibility is provided mainly via unhypothecated rate support grant paid by the Department of the Environment. Grants allocated to Lancashire county council by this Department in the two years consist of:

1. An indicative allocation for 1988-89 of £204,800 under the Social Services Training Support Programme. 1988-89 is the first year for which grant aid will be available from this source and the indicative allocation will be confirmed later on receipt of a specific bid from the authority.
2. A grant of £17,386 in 1987-88 for expenditure on secure accommodation for children. Applications for grants totalling £45,614 in 1988-89 are currently under consideration.

Lancashire county council will also benefit from funding through the joint financing arrangements but payment is made by the appropriate district health authorities. Information about what the authority will receive in 1987-88 and 1988-89 is not held centrally and my hon. Friend may like to make inquiries of the chairman of North Western RHA.

NHS Spending (London)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the percentage change in (a) revenue expenditure and (b) capital expenditure on hospital and community health services as deflated by the gross domestic product deflator for (i) the Greater London district health authorities in total and (ii) the inner London district health authorities in total, between 1981-82 and 1986-87.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The 1982 reorganisation of the National Health Service resulted in significant boundary changes and changes of management responsibility. Figures for expenditure in inner London are not available prior to 1982-83. The table shows the real-terms growth in inner London between 1982-83 and 1986-87, and in Greater London between 1981-82 and 1986-87 and between 1982-83 and 1986-87.

Percentage real terms growth in gross expenditure as measured by the gross domestic product deflator

	Greater London		Inner London
	1981-82 to 1986-87	1982-83 to 1986-87	1981-82 to 1986-87	1982-83 to 1986-87
Revenue	0·0	0·5	n.a.	0·3
Capital	30·8	35·5	n.a.	29·7

Notes:

1. Figures are based on total gross expenditure (revenue and capital) from the summarised income and expenditure accounts of area, district and special health authorities.
2. Greater and Inner London have been defined as comprising the following health authorities:

i. Inner London health authorities

1982-83 to 1986-87

Hammersmith and Fulham (Riverside from 1985-86)
Victoria
Paddington
Hampstead
Bloomsbury
Islington
City and Hackney
Newham
Tower Hamlets
West Lambeth
Camberwell
Lewisham and North Southwark
Wandsworth
Special Health Authorities for the London Postgraduate Teaching Hospitals

ii. Greater London Health Authorities

1982-83 to 1986-87

Inner London Health Authorities listed at 2(i) above

Barnet
Harrow
Brent
Hounslow and Spelthorne
Ealing
Hillingdon
Barking, Havering and Brentwood
Enfield
Haringey
Redbridge
Waltham Forest
Bexley
Greenwich
Bromley
Croydon
Kingston and Esher
Richmond, Twickenham and Roehampton
Sutton and Merton

1981-82

Barnet
Brent and Harrow
Ealing, Hammersmith and Hounslow
Hillingdon
Kensington, Chelsea and Westminster
Barking and Havering
Camden and Islington

City and East London
Enfield and Haringey
Redbridge and Waltham Forest
Greenwich and Bexley
Bromley
Lambeth, Southwark and Lewisham
Croydon
Kingston and Richmond
Merton, Sutton and Wandsworth
Boards of Governors for the London Postgraduate Teaching Hospitals

Health Authority Funding

Mr. Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the amount of funding by his Department administered by Trent regional health authority to Bassetlaw district health authority in each year from 1980 to 1987.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 1 February 1988]: The information requested is set out as follows from 1982 when Bassetlaw district health authority was created.

Financial Year	Amount[1] (£000's)
1. Revenue Allocation
1982-83	10,627
1983-84	11,333
1984-85	12,589
1985-86A	13,709
1986-87	14,977
1987-88	16,027
2. Capital Allocations
1982-83	1,729
1983-84	1,889
1984-85	758
1985-86	374
1986-87	1,701
1987-88	3,200

[1] Source: Trent Regional Health Authority.

Thames Health Regions

Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will express the sums of money allocated to the four Thames health regions from the £100 million extra moneys allocated to meet 1987-88 shortfall announced on 16 December 1987 excluding the moneys allocated (a) for AIDS, (b) for storm damage, (c) for the reduction of waiting lists and (d) any other specially allocated moneys.

Mr. Newton [pursuant to his reply, 18 January 1958, c. 581-82]: I regret that two of the figures in my earlier reply were misstated. The correct information is as follows:

	£ Million
North West Thames	4·7
North East Thames	6·0
South East Thames	5·3
South West Thames	4·3

D and C Operations

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has concerning the total number of D and C operations performed in England and Wales in each of the last 25 years for which figures are available.

Mrs. Currie [pursuant to her reply, 2 February 1988, c. 591]: The estimated number of D and C (dilettage and curettage of the uterus) operations performed in National Health Service hospitals in England and Wales from 1966 (the first year for which figures are readily available) to 1985 (the latest year for which information is held centrally) is given in the following table:

Year	Estimated numbers
1966	112,050
1967	100,260
1968	125,050
1969	118,920
1970	121,800
1971	132,900
1972	132,620
1973	129,880
1974	125,970
1975	104,940
1976	118,400
1977	127,580
1978	122,600
1979	115,140
1980	115,890
1981	114,700
1982	107,980
1983	112,490
1984	109,450
1985	112,790

British Association of Social Workers

91. Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he intends to meet the British Association of Social Workers to discuss the current situation in social service departments and concern about the repercussions in social service departments arising from the introduction of the social fund.

Mr. Scott: Officials of the Department met the British Association of Social Workers to discuss, inter alia, the social fund on 15 July 1986 and 19 March 1987.

NHS (Royal Commission Report)

92. Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make it his policy to review the hitherto unimplemented recommendations of the 1979 report of the Royal Commission on the National Health Service; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Leyton (Mr. Cohen) earlier today.

Telephones for the Deaf

93. Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a further statement on the future provision of telephone exchanges for the deaf.

Mr. Scott: We are continuing to liaise with the other Government Departments and organisations concerned with a view to assisting the telephone exchange for the deaf, run by the Royal National Institute for the Deaf. We expect to be able to announce our decision shortly.

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 10 February 1988

HOME DEPARTMENT

Ministerial Visit

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the cost to public funds of the recent visit by his Minister of State to the sub-continent of India.

Mr. Renton: The cost to the public funds for travel and subsistence expenses of my recent visit to the sub-continent of India was £10,600.

Residence Applications

Mr. Onslow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to be able to reach a decision on the applicants United Kingdom residence to which his letter and 106257/8(S) of 27 November 1987 to the hon. Member for Woking refers; and if he will allow the individuals concerned to leave the United Kingdom and re-enter again on a temporary basis until this case is determined.

Mr. Renton: I wrote to my hon. Friend on 9 February.

Breath Tests

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to (a) the age of drivers stopped and asked to take a breathalyser test and (b) the age of those failing such a test.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Information on all those required to provide a roadside screening breath test is published annually in Home Office statistical bulletins, the latest issue, No. 24/87, giving figures for 1986. The bulletin does not include information by age of driver, because these details are not collected centrally. However, information on the ages of those found guilty of driving and so on with excess alcohol is published in table 15 of "Offences Relating to Motor Vehicles, England and Wales, 1986, Supplementary Tables", and of those breath-tested after accidents involving personal injury in table 36 of "Road Accidents, Great Britain, 1986", copies of both of which are in the Library.

Risley Remand Centre (Suicide Attempts)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the period of detention at Risley remand centre of the six Iranians and one Iraqi who entered the United Kingdom at Liverpool without authorisation in December 1987; to which nation these people were deported; whether any of them had any form of medical examination while they were at Risley remand centre; what was the nature of the suicide attempts that they made on 4 January; and whether any other suicide attempts were made by these men while they were at Risley remand centre.

Mr. Renton: These stowaways were detained at Risley remand centre from 22 December 1987 to 15 January 1988 following refusal of entry. All of them were medically examined there and held in the hospital wing. On 4 January, two of the men scratched themselves on the stomach and chest with a plastic knife causing superficial injuries. No other attempts to injure themselves were made. The men flew to Greece on 15 January under arrangements made by the immigration service and agreed with the men and the Greek authorities.

Senior Police Officers (Meeting)

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the purpose of the meeting at the Royal hotel, Scarborough, in May 1986 which was attended by Sir Lawrence Byford, Chief Inspector of Constabulary, Mr. Phillip Myers, Inspector of Constabulary for the North West and Northern Ireland, Mr. Colin Sampson, chief constable of West Yorkshire, and Mr. James Anderton, chief constable of Greater Manchester; and for what purpose Sir John Hermon, Chief Constable of the Royal Ulster Constabulary visited this hotel whilst the meeting was taking place.

Mr. Hurd: The meeting was arranged by Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Constabulary to discuss allegations about the conduct of the then deputy chief constable of Greater Manchester which had been brought to the attention of Mr. Anderton.

The meeting took place on 19 May 1986. I understand that Sir John Hermon was in Northern Ireland throughout that day and that he had no prior knowledge of the meeting.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Church Schools

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement regarding the Government's policy towards Church of England secondary schools.

Mr. Dunn: I value the work done by Church of England schools within the maintained sector.

Fee Remission

Mr. Andrew F. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what would be the extra cost involved of full fee remission for all home students, in respect of part-time degree courses in (a) universities, (b) polytechnics and other colleges and (c) the Open University.

Mr. Jackson: The extra cost of full remission of part-time students' fees would have been £14·14 million for the universities in the academic year 1985-86 and £8·85 million for the Open University in 1986. The information is not available for polytechnics and other colleges.

City of London Polytechnic

Mr. Cartwright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what proposals have been made to close down the department of metallurgy and metals engineering at the City of London polytechnic and for what reason; what steps are planned to safeguard the position of existing students in the event of such a closure; and when a decision is likely to be taken.

Mr. Jackson: The court of governors of City of London polytechnic decided at its meeting on 20 January to cease recruitment to all metallurgy courses. I understand that the reason for the decision was the need to contain the polytechnic's expenditure within the funds expected to be available to meet it. The polytechnic has assured all existing students that they will be enabled to complete their courses under arrangements to be made with Thames polytechnic.

Education Reform

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he last met representatives of the National Association of Teachers in Further and Higher Education; and whether he discussed with them his proposals for further education colleges included in the Education Reform Bill.

Mr. Jackson: My right hon. Friend will be meeting representatives of the National Association of Teachers in Further and Higher Education on 24 February. He expects to discuss with them then issues relating to the Education Reform Bill.

Universities Funding Council

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects to establish the membership of the Universities Funding Council; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: My right hon. Friend will announce the membership of the Universities Funding Council in due course.

Further Education Colleges

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received concerning his proposals for devolving the control of further education colleges from local education authorities to college governing bodies.

Mr. Jackson: 361 responses have been received to the consultation paper, "Maintained Further Education: Financing, Governance and Law", from a wide range of colleges, local education authorities, educational and other organisations, and individuals.

Medical Students

Mrs. Rosie Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he has any plans to increase the extra week's allowance given to medical students to the same weekly rate as the basic maintenance grant; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: No. The rates of grant payable for extra weeks of attendance apply equally to all eligible students, and reflect the fact that the main rates of grant include provision for some items (like books and equipment) which is related to a full year's expenditure.

Inner London Education Authority

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science (1) if he will indicate in respect of his policy to require reductions in the net expenditure of the Inner London education authority for the financial year 1988-89, the approximate percentage reduction he expects under each of (a) staff, (b) premises, (c) transport, (d) supplies and services, (e) transfer payments, (f) finance and debt charges and (g) other expenses;

(2) over which academic terms in the financial year 1988-89 he expects the Inner London education authority to implement his required reduction in expenditure; and if he will indicate the percentage reduction of expenditure this indicates for the respective terms.

Mrs. Rumbold: Subject to the House's approval, the Secretary of State intends to prescribe a maximum precept for the ILEA for 1988-89 of 81·8p, enabling the authority to raise £985 million. The ILEA will need to make substantial reductions to manage its expenditure within this level of precept income. It is for the ILEA to determine how best to achieve these reductions.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will tabulate in the Official Report the net expenditure of the Inner London education authority for each of the financial years 1983-84 to that determined for 1988-89, in current values, together with the authorised precept in pence per pound on inner London local authorities, in both actual and current values, indicating which were subject to maximum rate limits, together with the approximate percentage increase or reduction in net real expenditure compared to the previous financial year, and the overall reduction in percentage of real terms from 1983-84 to 1988.

Mrs. Rumbold: The information available is set out in the following table. The ILEA has been subject to precept limitation since 1985-86.

	Total expenditure[1]			Authorised precept
	Cash	[2]1987-88 real terms		Cash	[2]1987-88 real terms
	£ million	£ million	Percentage change year on year	p	p
1983-84	855	1,018	—	77·00	91·66
1984-85	897	1,023	+0·5	80·00	91·17
1985-86	[3]887	954	−6·7	77·25	83·08
1986-87	[4]905	943	−1·2	77·25	80·53
1987-88	[5]1,015	1,015	+7·6	79·73	79·73
1988-89	[6]970	928	−8·6	[7]81·80	78·28
Percentage change between 1983-84 and 1988-89			−8·8

[1]These figures are consistent with the definition of "total expenditure" used for block grant purposes. They exclude the capitalisation of repairs and contributions from special funds.
[2]The cash figures have been repriced to 1987-88 real terms using the gross domestic product (market prices) deflator.
[3]The figure for 1985-86 includes £31·4 million of additional income arising from an adjustment in the calculation of pooling contributions.
[4]Revenue expenditure recorded in ILEA's published statement of accounts for 1986-87 before adjustment for capitalised repairs and including expenditure met by contributions from special funds was £970 million.
[5]ILEA's budgeted revenue spending as recorded in its published estimates before adjustment for capitalised repairs was £1,025 million.
[6]The figure given is the re-determined expenditure level for the ILEA in 1988-89. The precept maximum of 81·8p (see note 7) would enable the ILEA to raise £985 million on the latest available information.
[7]Subject to approval by the House of the draft Precept Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Inner London Education Authority) Order 1988 laid before the House on 29 January.

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what inquiries or reports into the administration of educational standards in the Inner London education authority he has asked Her Majesty's inspectorate of education to undertake, or has received from it since 1979; and with what result.

Mr. Kenneth Baker: The last comprehensive HMI report on educational provision in ILEA was made public in 1980. Since then, HMI has continued to inspect on a wide basis and has reported to the holder of my office accordingly; all institutional reports and surveys have been published and are available in the Library of the House.

Primary and Secondary Schools (London)

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will list the primary or secondary schools in the London boroughs of Islington, Hackney, Tower Hamlets, Southwark and Lambeth to which he, or other Ministers in his Department, have paid an official visit subsequent to his taking up office as Secretary of State for Education and Science.

Mr. Dunn: Since May 1986 my right hon. Friend has visited Notre Dame Roman Catholic girls' school in Southwark. My hon. Friend the Member for Mitcham and Morden (Mrs. Rumbold) has visited St. Luke's Church of England school in Lambeth, Mulberry girls' school in Tower Hamlets and Alleyn's school, which is an independent school, in Southwark and my hon. Friend, the Member for Buckingham (Mr. Walden) has visited Islington sixth form centre.

Ideal Home Exhibition

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what is the estimated total cost of the hire of a stand by his Department at the Ideal Home Exhibition, broken down by (a) full cost of officials and inspectors from his Department staffing the stand, (b) hire of stand, (c) publicity and publications and (d) all other costs.

Mr. Kenneth Baker: The cost of hiring the Department of Education and Science stand is a matter of commercial confidentiality between the Department and the organisers. The stand will be manned by volunteers from the Department and Her Majesty's inspectorate, who will receive time off in lieu for work outside their normal conditioned hours; the extra cost to the Department will be confined to travel and subsistence for some of Her Majesty's inspectorate.

The cost of publications will depend upon their take-up rate during the exhibition; all publications will be supplied from the Department's existing stocks. No publicity costs have been incurred. A 12-screen video wall will be hired at a cost of £25,730. This will be used to display examples of good practice in schools. Other costs of furnishing the stand (furniture, electricity, cleaning and so on) will be in the order of £3,000.

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science between what dates he intends to hire a stand at the Ideal Home Exhibition; for what purpose; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Kenneth Baker: My Department will be taking a stand at this year's Ideal Home Exhibition throughout the period when the exhibition is open, that is from 8 March to 4 April inclusive. The main purposes of the display are:
i. to inform members of the public about the changes in the composition of school governing bodies following the passage of the Education (No. 2) Act 1986; and to interest parents visiting the exhibition in becoming parent governors of their child's school.
ii. to explain the new examinations (GCSE, AS-levels and CPVE) to parents and prospective employers.
iii. to explain the thinking behind the proposed national curriculum.

Relevant publications about these subjects and other education matters of interest to the public will be available on the stand. It will also show examples of best practice in education and will enable visitors to ask questions about particular aspects of their own or their children's education.

SCOTLAND

Hospitals (Lanarkshire)

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will name the hospitals in the Lanarkshire health board area, giving details of the type of hospital and the numbers of (a) doctors and (b) nurses at each hospital.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information is as follows:

Whole-time equivalent doctors and nursing staff in NHS hospitals
Lanarkshire Health Board

Hospital	Type of hospital[1]	Doctors[2]	Nursing staff[3]
		WTE	Qualified	In training	Unqualified	Total
Alexander	Type of hospital subject to change[4]	—	8·0	—	—	8·0
Bellefield	Mental handicap unit (adult and children)	0·9	28·4	—	48·9	77·3
Bellshill Maternity	Non-teaching, non-GP, maternity unit	25·0	143·8	86·0	80·1	309·9

Hospital	Type of hospital[3]	Doctors[2] WTE	Nursing staff[1] Qualified	In training	Unqualified	Total
Birkwood	Mental handicap unit (adult)	1·4	44·8	—	101·9	146·7
Cleland	Geriatric unit including assessment unit	4·9	74·3	—	80·1	154·4
Coathill	Day hospital	1·2	103·6	—	64·1	167·7
Hairmyres	Mixed specialist hospital without maternity unit	62·2	330·4	150·0	102·7	583·1
Hartwood	Mental hospital, non-teaching	23·7	474·6	131·0	249·0	854·6
Kello, Biggar	GP hospital	1·1	12·3	—	6·8	19·1
Kirklands	Mental handicap unit (adult)	1·4	75·3	5·0	87·6	167·9
Lady Home	GP hospital	—	10·1	—	5·2	15·3
Law	Mixed specialist hospital without maternity unit	91·6	426·3	231·0	110·2	767·5
Lockhart	Miscellaneous type of hospital	0·1	18·9	—	9·5	28·4
Monklands	Mixed specialist hospital without maternity unit	120·8	440·7	156·0	137·1	733·8
Motherwell Maternity	Maternity unit, non-teaching, non-GP	0·3	23·9	—	5·0	28·9
Roadmeetings	Long-stay geriatric unit	1·0	36·4	—	49·6	86·0
Stonehouse	Mixed specialist hospital without maternity unit	34·8	180·6	50·0	53·8	284·4
Strathclyde	Long-stay geriatric unit	0·3	46·0	—	24·9	70·9
Udston	Long-stay geriatric unit	0·4	19·6	—	10·2	29·8
Victoria Cottage	GP hospital with long-stay cases	0·7	10·6	—	5·0	15·6
Wester Moffat	Long-stay geriatric unit	0·2	25·6	—	20·1	45·7
William Smellie	Maternity unit, non-teaching, non-GP	8·7	74·9	—	18·5	93·4
Wishaw	Long-stay geriatric unit	0·1	31·0	—	17·9	48·9

[1] In post at 31 March 1987 (excluding teaching staff).
[2] Average over the financial year 1986-87.
[3] As shown in Scottish Health Service Costs.
[4] Used for young chronic sick specialty in 1986-87.

Overseas Visits

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list his overseas visits since June 1987.

Mr. Rifkind: I visited in my official capacity the United States of America between 9 and 16 October 1987 and Japan between 17 and 21 October 1987.

National Health Service (Review)

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what consultations he proposes to hold as part of the review of the National Health Service in Scotland; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: My right hon. and learned Friend will consider carefully any submissions put to him.

Veterinary Inspectors

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when representatives of his Department last met the British Veterinary Association to discuss the work of local veterinary inspectors; what matters were discussed; and when he anticipates a further meeting taking place.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: No such meetings have taken place and none is planned. However, my officials are closely following the discussions which are taking place between the British Veterinary Association and the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has received against proposals to put work done by local veterinary inspectors out to tender.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Letters have been received from two hon. Members following approaches made to them by the north of Scotland division of the British Veterinary Association and an individual practitioner.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total cost to his Department's Department of Agriculture of paying fees to local veterinary inspectors in each of the past 10 years.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Fees and other expenses due to local veterinary inspectors in Scotland, as elsewhere in Great Britain, are borne by the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, not by my Department. However, I am advised that the sums involved in the years for which information is available were as follows:

Year	Fees[1] £	Travel and subsistence £
1981-82	1,317,894	81,694
1982-83	1,342,120	121,175
1983-84	1,461,200	126,825
1984-85	1,560,455	125,825
1985-86	1,341,155	133,219
1986-87	1,574,692	136,189

[1] Including earnings related National Insurance contributions.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many local veterinary inspectors are currently retained by the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries in Scotland; and how many there were in 1985, 1980 and 1975.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The responsibility for appointing local veterinary inspectors in Great Britain rests with the Secretaries of State for Scotland and Wales and the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, acting jointly. The number of local veterinary inspectors currently retained in Scotland is 508. This compares with 510 and 429 in 1985 and 1980 respectively. Comparable information for 1975 is not available.

Brucellosis

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of brucellosis in human beings were recorded in Scotland in 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975, 1980 and 1985.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Brucellosis is not a notifiable disease and figures for 1960 and 1965 are not available centrally. The Communicable Diseases (Scotland) Unit has supplied the following data for the later years:

Year	Number of cases of brucellosis
1970	347
1975	116
1980	79
1985	5

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Stalker-Sampson Investigations

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Attorney-General, pursuant to his statement of 25 January, Official Report, columns 21-23, when he was first informed by the Director of Public Prosecutions for Northern Ireland of the Director's decision to give directions not to institute any criminal proceedings relating to the Stalker-Sampson investigations.

The Attorney-General: Thursday 21 January 1988.

Ministerial Statement

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Attorney-General who was informed of his intention to make a statement in the House on 25 January prior to that date; and when.

The Attorney-General: I shall write to the hon. Gentleman.

Ministerial Communications

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Attorney-General what communications there were between his Office and the hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull, North on 24 January either directly or on behalf of his Office and what communications there were within the previous seven days.

The Attorney-General: I shall write to the hon. Gentleman.

WALES

Health and Personal Social Services

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will publish a table setting out for 1987-88 and 1988-89 the estimated number of (a) families and (b) persons in each health region or equivalent, and in Wales as a whole, showing net average expenditure on health and personal social services per family and per person in each year, and distinguishing between expenditure on the National Health Service and on the personal social services.

Mr. Grist: The information is not readily available in the form requested. For Wales as a whole net estimated outturn in 1987-88 and net planned expenditure in 1988-89 per person and per family of four are as follows:

Population (thousand)	Net expenditure per year
	Health and Personal Social Services £	National Health Service £	Personal Social Services £
1987-88 2,814:
Per head	445	391	54
Per family of 4	1,780	1,564	216
1988-89 2,817:
Per head	472	416·5	55·5
Per family of 4	1,888	1,666	222

The expenditure figures used are constistent with the information given in "The Government's Expenditure Plans 1988-89 to 1990-91" (Cm. 288-II) and include net current and capital spending.

The population estimates quoted are the most recently published ones based on a 1985 projection by the Office of Population Census and Surveys.

Teacher Training

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what were the figures for recruitment to teacher training courses in 1987; what were the figures for 1986 in (a) the University of Wales and (b) the local authority/voluntary sector; and whether recruitment targets were achieved.

Mr. Wyn Roberts: Details of teacher training students recruited in 1986 and 1987 are as follows:

Recruitment to Initial Teacher Training in Wales

	1986-87	Target	1987-88	Target
Public Sector
BEd Primary	410	525	509	525
BEd Secondary	58	100	77	85
PGCE Primary	146	135	148	135
PGCE Secondary	89	105	109	120
Total	703	865	843	865
University Sector
Primary	124	141	160	160
Secondary	451	545	468	545
Total	575	686	628	705

Recruitment to courses in the public sector increased by 20 per cent. and to courses in the University of Wales by 9 per cent.

ENERGY

Mining Equipment

Mr. Stott: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) what has been the contribution of heavy duty longwall mining equipment to the improvements in the productivity of British Coal for the years 1985-86 and 1986-87;

(2) what information he has into how many British coal faces utilise heavy duty mining equipment, and as to when all faces will be so equipped.

Mr. Michael Spicer: These are matters for British Coal, and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Coal (International Trade)

Mr. Stott: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will give his estimate of the growth of the international trade in coal by the end of the century.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The Department does not undertake such estimates. However, a widely known projection of international coal trade in the OECD area is that published by the International Energy Agency (IEA) in "Coal Information 1987". This projects that total hard coal imports by OECD countries in 2000 will be 65 per cent. higher than the level in 1985.

Coal Industry (Policy)

Mr. Stott: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will review the Government's energy policy, in the light of the conclusions of the Financial Times international coal report, a copy of which has been sent to him, about the potential number of coal-importing power stations likely to be built over the next 10 years and their capacity to absorb all the additional tonnage now planned, as well as the slack to be taken up in over capacity at existing mines.

Mr. Michael Spicer: No.

Nuclear Experiments

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will (a) list all occasions since 1 January 1973 when notifications of planned nuclear experiments have been made to the European Commission under European treaty article 34 and (b) place copies of such notifications in the Library.

Mr. Michael Spicer: No experiments have been carried out at United Kingdom nuclear power stations which required to be notified under article 34 of the Euratom treaty.

Radiation

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will undertake to revise all statements made to the House by Ministers in his Department since May 1979 on safe levels of radiation exposure, in the light of (a) new dose limits recommended by the International Commission on Radiological Protection and (b) the new exposure standards set by the National Radiological Protection Board.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Occupational exposure to radiation is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Employment. Reference was made to the current advice on dose limitation provided by national and international bodies in the answers I gave the hon. Member for Newcastle Upon Tyne, Central (Mr. Cousins) on 22 January 1988 at column 886 and 1 February 1988 at columns 474-75.

Nuclear Exports

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will (a) list all occasions since 1 January 1973 that notifications of planned nuclear exports have been made to the European Commission under the European treaty article 103 and (b) place copies of such notifications in the Library.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The hon. Member may have in mind commercial contracts for the export of nuclear materials. I am advised that these contracts do not fall within the scope of article 103 of the Euratom treaty. Particulars of individual consignments and destinations are of course commercially confidential to the parties involved.

Nuclear Installations (Fixed Assets)

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what valuation was put on the fixed assets at Sellafield, Capenhurst and Springfields when transferred from the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority to British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. ownership in 1971; and whether the initial investment cost in these facilities is included as a proportion of the unit cost of nuclear-generated electricity by his Department.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The net book values of the fixed assets to which the hon. Member refers were:

	£ million
Sellafield (Windscale and Calder Hall)	8·29
Capenhurst	6·98
Springfields	4·31

The value of these facilities is reflected in BNF's charges to its customers and, as such, is included in the unit cost of nuclear-generated electricity.

British Nuclear Fuels plc (Exhibition)

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if his Department has considered an application for an exhibition relating to the work of British Nuclear Fuels plc to be displayed in the Upper Waiting Hall.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I understand that, under procedures agreed by the Services Committee, arrangements have been made with the authorities of the House for an exhibition to be held in the Upper Waiting Hall from 29 February to 4 March inclusive.

International Atomic Energy Agency

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement on the level of financial contributions made by member states of the International Atomic Energy Agency for its safeguards system.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The costs of the International Atomic Energy Agency's safeguards system are met from the agency's regular budget. A total of $45 million has been allocated for safeguards in the 1988 budget of $137 million to which member states will contribute in accordance with their assessed contributions.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if Her Majesty's Government will increase its contributions to the International Atomic Energy Agency in support of the expanded role now played by the agency's operational safety review team.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The costs of the International Atomic Energy Agency's operational safety review teams are met from the agency's regular budget. The regular budget for 1988, to which the United Kingdom will contribute in accordance with her assessed contribution, allows for increased activity by these teams.

EMPLOYMENT

Small Businesses

79. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many small businesses have been established in the northern region since 1983.

Mr. Cope: The best estimate available of the number of small businesses is from VAT information. In the three years 1984 to 1986, there were an estimated 20,100 new VAT registrations in the northern region.

MSC (Employment Schemes)

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment whether he has any proposals to increase the range of aids available under the Manpower Services Commission's special aids to employment scheme.

Mr. Lee: The aim of the special aids to employment scheme is to supply any tools or equipment that are needed to overcome the effects of any disability in the employment field. Consequently, there is no limit to the range of aids that can be considered under the scheme.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment whether he has any proposals to publicise more widely the aids currently available under the Manpower Services Commission's special aids to employment scheme.

Mr. Lee: The special aids to employment scheme is already publicised widely by the Disablement Advisory Service and staff at jobcentres, through the code of good practice on the employment and disabled people, videos, leaflets, liaison with employers and voluntary organisations, and direct contact with individual people with disabilities. There are no plans to publicise individual items available under the scheme, but examples are quoted in leaflets.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what assessment is made of the suitability of aids issued under the special aids to employment scheme for the needs of the recipients.

Mr. Lee: The aim is to provide the most cost-effective suitable device which a person with a disability needs to do the job. Assessment of the appropriate aid for the purpose is made by staff of the Disablement Advisory Service in consultation with individual worker, the employer, the manufacturer, and technical and medical guidance and support as necessary.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many aids provided under the Manpower Services Commission's special aids to employment scheme in the last five years were issued to people categorised as (a) deaf without speech, (b) deaf with speech and (c) hard of hearing.

Mr. Lee: The figures showing the number of aids issued under the special aids to employment scheme to the three categories of people with hearing impairment are only readily available for the latest two and a half years (April 1985 to October 1987):

	Numbers
(a) Deaf without speech	97
(b) Deaf with speech	248
(c) Hard of hearing	347

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the average length of time between receipt of an application for equipment under the Manpower Services Commission's special aids to employment scheme and the date the equipment was delivered.

Mr. Lee: There are no figures available on the average length of time between receipt of the application for equipment under the special aids to employment scheme and the date the equipment was obtained. Typically, the period can vary from a few days to several weeks depending on the complexity of the case and the availability of the equipment.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) what has been (i) the numerical, and (ii) the percentage, loss or gain in (a) manufacturing industry, (b) service industries and (c) the public service from 1979 to 1987 in (i) the United Kingdom, (ii) West Germany, (iii) the United States of America and (iv) Japan;

(2) what has been the total increase or decrease in jobs in (a) manufacturing industry, (b) service industries and (c) the total economy from 1979 to 1987 in (i) the United Kingdom, (ii) West Germany, (iii) Japan and (iv) the United States of America.

Mr. Lee: There are no figures for job losses or job gains, and estimates are not available for all the dates, areas and categories specified. The available information is as follows:

Numerical changes in the levels of civilian employment[1]

	Manufacturing Industries	Service Industries	Totals in Civilian Employment
Great Britain
1979-1985	−1,783,000	1,119,000	−919,000
1979-1987	−1,954,000	1,856,000	−432,000
West Germany
1979-1985	−793,000	627,000	−505,000
Japan
1979-1985	1,200,000	3,210,000	3,280,000
United States of America
1979-1985	−1,579,000	9,370,000	8,326,000

Percentage changes in the levels of civilian employment[1]

	Manufacturing Industries	Service Industries	Totals in Civilian Employment
Great Britain
1979-1985	−25	8	−4
1979-1987	−27	13	−2
West Germany
1979-1985	−9	5	−2

	Manufacturing Industries	Service Industries	Totals in Civilian Employment
Japan
1979-1985	9	11	6
United States of America
1979-1985	−7	15	8

[1] Civilian employment is the sum of employees in employment and the self employed in Great Britain. In West Germany, Japan and the United States of America the figures include unpaid family workers.

Mr. Oppenheim: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what percentage of those available for work in Derbyshire were unemployed in each of the years 1983 to 1987; and what was the number of advertised job vacancies for each of those years.

Mr. Lee: The table shows the annual average number of unemployed claimants expressed as a percentage of employees in employment plus the unemployed. Estimates of self-employment, also part of the working population, are not regularly produced for counties. Also included are the annual average number of unfilled job vacancies registered at jobcentres, in the county of Derbyshire for each year from 1983 to 1987. Total numbers of advertised job vacancies are not available but it is estimated that nationally about a third of vacancies are notified to jobcentres.

County of Derbyshire

Year	Unemployed claimants[1] (per cent.)	Unfilled vacancies[2]
1983	12·4	1,512
1984	12·7	1,493
1985	12·7	1,663
1986	12·8	2,049
1987	12·0	2,363

[1] The numbers are affected by changes in the coverage of the count.
[2] The number of unfilled vacancies for 1983 is an average of 9 months, as the figures are only available from April 1983.

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many self-employed people there were in (i) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (ii) the Runcorn travel-to-work area and (iii) the Chester travel-to-work area in each of the last five years; and what those figures represented as a percentage of the working population.

Mr. Lee: The only source of information on the self-employed resident in travel-to-work area (TTWAs) is the decennial census of population. Information from the 1981 census of population for the relevant TTWAs is as shown in the table:

	Self-employed Number	as percentage of economically active
Northwich	5,237	9·1
Widnes and Runcorn	3,115	4·9
Wirral and Chester	17,084	7·0

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what information he has as to how many visitors stayed overnight in (a) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (b) the Runcorn travel-to-work area and (c) the Chester travel-to-work area in each of the last five years; how much they spent; and how many jobs they provided.

Mr. Lee: Data on the number and expenditure of overnight visits to the travel to work areas specified are not available. However, data on the number of overnight visits to Cheshire by overseas visitors and their associated expenditure are:

	Visits (000s)	Spending (£ millions)
1982	172	20
1983	183	23
1984	211	27
1985	198	31
1986	204	38

The latest available data on employment in tourism related industries in Cheshire relates to September 1984 when there were an estimated 21,800 employees in employment. Equivalent data for specified travel-to-work areas are as follows:

	Number
Northwich	2,600
Widnes & Runcorn	3,200
Wirral & Chester	12,800

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people have taken advantage of the job training scheme child care payment systems in (a) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (b) the Chester travel-to-work area and (c) the Runcorn travel-to-work area.

Mr. Cope: There are no trainees receiving child care payments in the three areas concerned. The facility for such payments is being piloted in 10 areas nationally, none of which fall within the boundaries of Cheshire.

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, what is the current level of (a) youth, (b) long-term and (c) all unemployment in (i) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (ii) the Chester travel-to-work area and (iii) the Runcorn travel-to-work area; what have been the figures at the same date in each of the last five years; and what each figure represents as a percentage of those available for work.

Mr. Lee: The following information is available from the Library. Table (a) shows the number of unemployed claimants aged under 18, table (b) shows the number of unemployed claimants unemployed for over one year, and table (c) shows the total number of unemployed claimants at October of each of the last five years, (the most recent available figures are for October 1987) in the Northwich, Wirral and Chester and Widnes and Runcorn travel-to-work areas, together with these numbers as a percentage of employees in employment plus the unemployed. Comparisons over the period are slightly affected by the change in the method of compiling the figures in March 1986.

Travel to work area	October 1983	Per cent.	October 1984	Per cent.	October 1985	Per cent.	October 1986	Per cent.	October 1987	Per cent.
Table (a)—Unemployed Claimants aged under 18
Northwich	478	1·0	485	1·0	461	1·0	344	0·7	258	0·6
Wirral and Chester	2,763	1·3	2,527	1·2	2,374	1·2	2,114	1·1	1,530	0·8
Widnes and Runcorn	1,057	1·8	1,008	1·7	805	1·4	717	1·3	614	1·1
Table (b)—Claimants unemployed over one year
Northwich	2,254	4·9	2,514	5·3	2,493	5·3	2,467	5·3	2,027	4·4
Wirral and Chester	15,703	7·6	17,007	8·3	17,848	8·8	17,650	8·8	15,421	7·7
Widnes and Runcorn	4,865	8·3	5,503	9·3	5,659	9·9	5,487	9·8	4,637	8·3
Table (c)—Total unemployed Claimants
Northwich	6,262	13·5	6,434	13·6	6,563	13·8	6,016	12·9	5,116	11·0
Wirral and Chester	37,083	18·0	38,637	18·9	39,368	19·5	37,875	18·9	33,365	16·6
Widnes and Runcorn	11,389	19·3	11,703	19·8	11,584	20·3	11,335	20·2	9,668	17·2

School Leavers

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what proportion of school leavers went directly into full-time employment in (a) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (b) the Chester travel-to-work area and (c) the Runcorn travel-to-work area, in each of the past five years.

Mr. Lee: I regret that the information requested is not available for the relevant travel-to-work areas.

Confectionery and Biscuits

Mr. Shersby: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what are his estimates of the prospects for further employment in the confectionery and biscuit industry in the north of England, in the event of the removal of value added tax from products currently charged at the standard rate.

Mr. Lee: I am not in a position to make such estimates.

Mental Illness

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many of those registered as unemployed in England and Wales in each of the last five years had previous primary diagnoses of (a) mental illness and (b) schizophrenia psychoses; and how many had been registered as unemployed for (i) three to six months, (ii) six months to one year, (iii) one to three years and (iv) over three years.

Mr. Lee: I regret that this information is not available.

Occupational Health Services

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he has responded to the consultative document produced by the Health and Safety Commission regarding occupational health services and ratification of International Labour Organisation convention 161 adopted in June 1985; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Nicholls: I invited the Health and Safety Commission to give its views on whether the Government should ratify ILO convention 161 on occupational health services. The commission issued a consultative document and, in the light of the comments received, has recently submitted its advice which I am currently considering.

Hourly Earnings

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what information he has for each year since 1975 as to the figures for average hourly earnings of industrial workers in (a) Belgium, (b) Britain, (c) Germany, (d) France, (e) Holland, (f) Sweden, (g) the United State of America and (h) Italy.

Mr. Lee: The table sets out the available information published by the International Labour Office for average hourly wage of employees in manufacturing industry.

Average Hourly Wages of Employees in Manufacturing Industry[1]

	Belgium (Francs)[2]	United Kingdom (£)[2][6]	Federal Republic of Germany (Deutschmarks)[3]	France (Francs)[3]	Netherlands (Guilders)[3]	Sweden (Kronor)[3]	United States of America ($)	Italy (Lira)[4]
1975	144·32	1·399	9·69	11·99	9·95	. .	4·83	1,794
1976	159·68	1·559	10·35	13·87	10·77	27·31	5·22	2,133
1977	174·59	1·687	11·14	15·61	11·83	29·51	5·68	2,673
1978	184·44	1·949	11·73	17·49	12·49	33·03	6·17	3,244
1979	199·61	2·275	12·36	19·56	13·05	36·01	6·70	3,849
1980	217·88	2·664	13·18	22·72	13·77	39·63	7·27	4,684
1981	243·08	2·934	13·92	26·14	14·56	43·18	7·99	5,742
1982	256·80	3·197	14·64	29·75	15·60	45·67	8·49	6,693
1983	270·33	3·436	15·14	33·56	15·93	48·45	8·83	7,712
1984	281·78	3·677	15·49	35·67	16·16	53·98	9·19	8,539
1985	293·81	3·971	16·20	37·75	16·58	58·58	9·53	. .
1986	295·30	4·268	16·80	39·29	. .	. .	9·73	. .

Source: International Labour Office 'Year Book of Labour Statistics 1986'
'Bulletin of Labour Statistics 1987-8'

Notes:
[1]Average gross earnings per hour of men and women of all ages (except salaried employees) unless otherwise indicated. See notes for each country. Figures relate to annual averages unless otherwise indicated.
[2]October of each year.
[3]Includes family allowance paid directly by employer.
[4]Includes value of payments in kind.
[5]Second quarter of each year. Adults only. Including holiday and sick leave payments and the value of payments in kind.
[6]Full time male manual workers on adult rates of pay—includes quarrying after 1983 and all adults prior to 1980.
. . Not available.
Italics Change in coverage of series.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

British Industry Committee

78. Mr. Butterfill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance he proposes to give to the British Industry Committee on South Africa in its efforts to get British companies to invest in social projects in South Africa.

Mrs. Chalker: We have kept in close touch from the outset with the British Industry Committee on South Africa about its scheme to invest in social projects in South Africa. We also maintain contact with the major British companies already involved in such projects, which we welcome. The Government have committed funds totalling £21 million for the five years beginning in April 1987 to our own major development programme for black people in South Africa.

Helsinki Final Act

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he will make a statement on the recent progress of Romania in fulfilling the Helsinki Final Act.

Mr. Mellor: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer which I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, West (Mr. Maples) on 13 January, at columns 185-89.

Romania's performance has not improved over the last six months. The presidency of the European Community made representations to the Romanian authorities on 3 February in Bucharest on behalf of the Twelve, drawing attention to the need for Romania to respect its CSCE commitments.

BBC Overseas Service

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will indicate in real terms the grant payable to the BBC overseas service over the last five years.

Mr. Mellor: The total grants-in-aid of the BBC external services in the last five years for broadcasting and monitoring were as follows:

	Total £ million	Real increase on previous year percentage
1982-83	70·9	5
1983-84	77·6	5
1984-85	81·1	0
1985-86	90·0	5
1986-87	98·8	7

Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if any representations have been made to Her Majesty's Government or to the United Kingdom ambassador in Washington from the member states of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty concerning breaches of non-proliferation treaty article 1 on the prohibition of assistance in making nuclear weapon devices.

Mr. Mellor: We have received no such representations.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he is aware of any breaches of article VI of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

Mr. Mellor: No.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if any member state Government party to the non-proliferation treaty has ever made it known to the depository states that they intend to consider withdrawing from the treaty; and if he will list the signatories to the treaty at the most recent practicable date.

Mr. Mellor: We have received no suggestions that any party to the non-proliferation treaty wishes to withdraw. I have placed copies of the latest list of signatories to the treaty in the Library.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what initiatives his Department will take to ensure the extension and strengthening of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty at the 1995 renewal conference of the treaty.

Mr. Mellor: We are strongly committed to the non-proliferation treaty. It is, however, too soon to consider initiatives for renewing the treaty in 1995.

International Atomic Energy Agency

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will request Her Majesty's Government's ambassador to the International Atomic Energy Agency board of directors to forward a report to his Department on the agency's director-general's latest safeguards implementation report and oral commentary; and if he will place a copy in the Library.

Mr. Mellor: We receive International Atomic Energy Agency safeguards implementation reports on an annual basis. The reports and the Director-General's oral commentary are confidential to board members.

However, a summary and the main conclusions of the 1986 safeguards implementation report (the latest available) are given in paragraphs 34 and 391 to 437 of the International Atomic Energy Agency's annual report for 1986. I am arranging for a copy to be placed in the Library.

Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will instruct Her Majesty's Government's permanent ambassador to the United Nations permanent disarmament conference to initiate negotiations under the amendment procedure of the 1963 partial test ban treaty to enforce the finalisation of a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty.

Mr. Mellor: No.

Nuclear Materials (Security)

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if any representative from the nuclear authorities in the United Kingdom has been invited to the meeting of nuclear experts convened by the DG. 17 energy directorate of the European Commission on 15 February; and if he will set out the assistance the United Kingdom intends to offer to the Energy Commission inquiry looking into nuclear materials security in the European Economic Community.

Mr. Mellor: Yes. The possibility of any United Kingdom assistance being supplied will be considered in the light of the outcome of the meeting.

Nuclear Materials (Oversight)

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on Her Majesty's Government's evaluation of the adequacy of chapters 7 and 10 of the European treaty on ensuring oversight of nuclear materials and technology management within and without the EEC.

Mr. Mellor: We are satisfied that chapters VII and X of the Euratom treaty adequately cater for the safeguarding of nuclear material both inside the Community and in trade between Community and third countries. These chapters do not address the question of technology management.

Nuclear Safeguards

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department currently possesses on the inquiries to be undertaken, respectively, by (a) the Euratom safeguards directorate and (b) the commission of inquiry of the European Parliament appointed on 20 January to investigate the adequacy of the implementations of nuclear safeguards to nuclear facilities within the EEC member states.

Mr. Mellor: I assume that the hon. Member is referring to the allegations involving a German firm, Transnuklear, and the Belgian nuclear centre at Mol. Following those allegations, Euratom officials, working with officials from the International Atomic Energy Agency, carried out exhaustive checks and found no evidence that any nuclear material of significance has been diverted and no evidence of any breach of safeguards.

The European Parliamentary Committee of Inquiry which was appointed on 20 January to investigate activities at Mol is to report within four months from that date.

Armoured Personnel Carriers (Turkey)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assurances have been sought from the Turkish Government on the proposed uses of the 40 Shorts SS50 armoured personnel carriers which its Interior Ministry has contracted to buy for their gendarmerie; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Chalker: None. Turkey is a North Atlantic Treaty Organisation ally with which we enjoy excellent bilateral relations.

Nuclear Materials (Khartoum)

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will instruct Her Majesty's ambassador to Sudan to inquire of the Sudanese Prime Minister if he will make available to Her Majesty's Government any information he possesses concerning the allegations of a black market in weapons grade nuclear materials in Khartoum made public initially on 30 October 1987.

Mr. Mellor: Her Majesty's embassy in Khartoum is in touch with the appropriate Sudanese governmental authorities. There is still no evidence to confirm the allegation of a black market in weapons grade nuclear material in Sudan.

Annette Heunis and Terry Tsle

Mr. Ashby: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received from Her Majesty's ambassador in South Africa about the case of Annette Heunis and Terry Tsle, who have fled to Bophuthatswana to escape the attempts by the South African police to stop their mixed race relationship.

Mrs. Chalker: None. The case has received extensive coverage in the British press. As the House knows, Her Majesty's Government believe that individuals should be free to live where they wish.

Hong Kong

Sir Peter Blaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the Hong Kong Government White Paper on representative government will be published; and if he will make a statement.

Sir Geoffrey Howe: The Hong Kong Government White Paper on the development of representative government was published in Hong Kong earlier today. Copies of the White Paper were placed in the Library of the House today. The paper covers a range of issues connected with the development of representative government. The main decisions are that

(a) ten directly elected members will be introduced into the Legislative Council in 1991;

(b) in 1988 the number of appointed members in the Council will be reduced from 22 to 20, and the number of members elected by functional constituencies will increase from 12 to 14. In 1991 the present geographically-based electoral college system of election will be abolished, but the urban and regional councils will each continue to elect one member to the Council;

(c) links between the urban district boards and the urban council will be strengthened;

(d) the Governor will continue to be the president of the Legislative Council for the immediate future.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Coal Waste (Disposal)

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what discussions he has had with British Coal regarding its proposals to dispose of increased amounts of coal waste and slurry off Dawdon; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Gummer: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave him on 9 February 1988.

Dairy Inspections

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the average (a) cost of a dairy inspection, (b) duration of a visit for a dairy inspection and (c) number of visits each inspector carried out per day, for the last year for which figures are available.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The information is not available in the form requested. However, the charge of £90 reflects the total cost of enforcing the milk and dairies regulations, and the salary and travelling costs of the dairy husbandry staff who carry out farm visits (including follow-up visits which are not chargeable) account for approximately half of this sum.

The duration of routine dairy husbandry visits varies and it is not possible to provide a meaningful average.

Dairy husbandry advisers achieve between three and four visits per day, but this is an average. In practice they aim to devote complete days to farm visiting (during which they normally cover five farms) after which between one third and one half of a day is required for writing up the results and preparing for the next block of visits.

Chemical Trials

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the scope and purpose of all chemical trials currently being conducted on United Kingdom farms.

Mr. Donald Thompson [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The agricultural and horticultural industries use a wide range of chemicals, most notably as fertilisers, pesticides, fungicides, veterinary medicines, disinfectants and cleaning agents. My Department has statutory responsibilities for testing or monitoring in a number of these areas. We also have a research and development programme to support this work and to explore was of minimising chemical usage. This includes studying the effects of chemicals in crops and food, on the environment and on wild life. Most trials involved are carried out in laboratories or at experimental research stations, though some do take place on farms with the agreement of the farmer concerned and subject to the necessary supervision. Farm trials are also undertaken to assess commercial viability, though the majority of these are conducted by chemical companies and subject to any licensing conditions. In the case of pesticides, this involves authorisation by the granting of an experimental permit under the Control of Pesticides Regulations 1986. For veterinary medicines, companies or individuals may apply for an animal test certificate under the Medicines Act 1968. But in order to protect commercial confidentiality, section 118 of the Act prohibits the disclosure of information relating to such applications.

Centrally held information on the R and D programme does not readily allow the identification of projects which include farm trials and details of these and the many pesticide permits could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Rainfall (West Yorkshire)

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when his Department first received from the Meteorological Office rainfall figures for the period 2 to 7 May 1986, in relation to west Yorkshire; when this information was transmitted to his Department's regional offices in west Yorkshire; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Donald Thompson [holding answer 9 February 1988]: First information on rainfall across Britain during the period in question was provided immediately, by telephone—see my reply of 29 January at column 421. This was used to identify areas most likely to be affected by fallout; later, this function was replaced by the use of results of surveys of actual deposition and of monitoring, which made it clear that north Wales, Cumbria and south-west Scotland were the areas of significant deposition. Subsequent to these surveys, preliminary rainfall maps (based on radar data and covering the whole country on 3-4 May) were received by my Leeds regional office at the end of June 1986 from the local meteorological office.

DEFENCE

Air-Sea Search and Rescue

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many mountain rescue associations have submitted comments to his Department on the future of air-sea search and rescue services.

Mr. Freeman: Since 1 January 1987, seven mountain rescue organisations have submitted comments to this Department on the future of search and rescue services. A number of other organisations associated with mountaineering have also done so.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Moray, Official Report, 26 January, column 183, he will list in the Official Report the names of those organisations and individuals who have made representations to retain air-sea search and rescue services as a function of the Royal Air Force.

Mr. Freeman: Representations to retain search and rescue services as a military function have been made by, or on behalf of, the following organisations:

Brecon Mountain Rescue Team
British Mountaineering Council
Cockermouth Mountain Rescue Team
Hinckley Mountaineering Club
Llanberis Mountain Rescue Team
Lomond Mountaineering Club
Mountaineering Council of Scotland
Mountain Rescue Committee
Mountain Rescue Committee of Scotland
Moray District Council
National Organisation for Outdoor Education

(Scotland)
National Union of Seamen
Pembrokeshire Conservative and Unionist Association (St. Davids branch)
Ramblers' Association, East Yorkshire and Derwent Area
Scottish Mountaineers' Club
Swaledale Fell Rescue Organisation
Tweed Valley Mountain Rescue Team
Wick Community Council

It is not the practice to list the names of private individuals who have made representations to this Department.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list in the Official Report the total number of representations he has received about the future of air-sea search and rescue services.

Mr. Freeman: Apart from parliamentary questions, some 60 inquiries or representations about the future of air-sea search and rescue services have been received by this Department since 1 January 1987.

Trident (Contracts)

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the contracts awarded to United Kingdom companies for work on the United States Trident strategic weapon system programme, giving in each case the name of the company, the nature of the work, the value of the contract and the duration of the contract.

Mr. Sainsbury: Up to the end of September 1987, 395 contracts had been awarded to 59 United Kingdom firms out of a total of 1,007 requests for quotation received from the seven major United States primes involved with the United States Trident II programme. The total value of these contracts is $78 million. Many of the contracts are for initial quantities for the full-scale engineering development phase, with the potential for follow-on production orders. It is not the practice to give details of individual contracts.

Exercise Teamwork 88

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if a rehearsal amphibious landing in the United Kingdom is planned for Exercise Teamwork 88; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ian Stewart: No rehearsal amphibious landing is planned to take place in the United Kingdom as a part of Exercise Teamwork 88, which will be a major NATO maritime exercise held later this year in the Atlantic and Norwegian sea areas.

Trident

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if the re-entry vehicle bus for the Trident system is being purchased in the United States of America;

(2) whether the re-entry vehicles for the Trident system are being purchased in the United States; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: As has frequently been stated, the Trident D5 missile — which includes the post boost vehicle (or bus) — will be purchased from the United States. The warheads will be developed and manufactured in this country, and will be assembled in the United Kingdom into re-entry vehicles of which some parts will have been purchased from the United States.

Departmental Staff Duties

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of his departmental staff are employed full-time on nuclear arms control and disarmament research.

Mr. Ian Stewart: Responsibility within the Ministry of Defence for nuclear arms control matters falls initially on the defence arms control unit. Within this unit, two people are engaged full time on nuclear arms control. A great many others, in various parts of the Ministry, contribute to relevant research and to the formulation of policy as an important part of their duties.

British Nuclear Fuels plc

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) on how many occasions in each of the years 1979 to the present day he met the chairman of British Nuclear Fuels to discuss nuclear materials provisions in support of the United Kingdom nuclear deterrent;

(2) when he last paid a visit to (a) British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. Sellafield, (b) British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. Capenhurst and (c) British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. Chapel Cross.

Mr. Sainsbury: Since my right hon. Friend was appointed to his current office in January 1986, he has not met the chairman of British Nuclear Fuels plc officially nor has he visited the company's sites at Sellafield, Capenhurst and Chapel Cross.

Tritium

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he has had any discussions with his counterpart in the United States of America over the provision of tritium to the United States of America from Chapel Cross.

Mr. Sainsbury: My right hon. Friend has had frequent meetings with the United States Secretary for Defence; the details of their discussions are confidential.

Cabinet Defence Committee—UKAEA (Minutes)

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will arrange for a copy of the minutes of the meeting of the Cabinet Defence Committee and the chairman of the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority, of 2 August 1957, recently released under the 30-year rule, to be placed in the Library.

Mr. Freeman: If the hon. Member is referring to a specific document that has already been released for open inspection under the 30-year rule, he may ask the Library to request a copy direct from the Public Record Office at Kew.

Nuclear Accidents

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his Department has made any evaluation of the implications of the radiation contamination of clean-up workers following the 21 January 1968 accident involving a nuclear weapon-carrying B-52 US air force bomber at the US air force base at Thule, Greenland, for emergency procedures at all Royal Air Force bases used by nuclear capable aircraft.

Mr. Ian Stewart: The alleged contamination of personnel involved in the clean-up operation after the Thule accident in 1968 is a matter for the US and Danish authorities. However, the accident was studied in detail by the Ministry of Defence, and all pertinent lessons are now reflected in our nuclear weapon accident contingency plans, the details of which remain classified.

30-Year Rule

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will initiate a review of all the statements and parliamentary answers made by Ministers in his Department to the House to assess if formal revision is necessitated by new information contained in official papers on defence matters released on 11 January under the 30-year rule; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Freeman: To enable me to reply perhaps the hon. Member would specify which statements contained in official papers on defence matters released on 11 January under the 30-year rule would in his opinion necessitate review or revision of parliamentary answers made by MOD Ministers.

TRANSPORT

British Rail

Mr. Adley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will detail the changes in the investment criteria applied by Her Majesty's Government to British Rail for (a) passenger and (b) freight traffic since the Transport Act 1962; and what future changes he envisages.

Mr. David Mitchell: Changes since 1962 could be ascertained only at disproportionate cost. The Government's current views on criteria for railway investment will be set out in their response to the Transport Committee's report on the financing of rail services.

London Regional Transport

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give details of (a) the amount of central Government funding to London Regional Transport and (b) the amount of public funding from all sources that was (i) requested by London Regional Transport, or where appropriate the Greater London council and (ii) provided for the last 10 years.

Mr. David Mitchell: It is not possible to attribute subsidy between ratepayers and taxpayers prior to 1985-86, since much of the latter's contribution was by means of rate support grant and transport supplementary grant to the GLC, which, as block grants, were not hypothecated. The figures for grant provided are as follows:

	1977	1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88
Exchequer	118	114·2	147·5	195·6	216·2	312·5	339·2	317	111	101·4	82·1
Ratepayers									212	193·6	156·9

I have no information about the amount of grant requested prior to 1985-86, but since then the total grant has been in excess of need and surpluses have been carried forward each year.

Traffic Accidents (Radiation)

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give details of the number of traffic accidents in which either workers or employees were exposed to significant levels of radiation for each year since 1975.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Studies carried out by the National Radiological Protection Board show that since 1975 no employees or workers have been exposed to significant levels of radiation in traffic accidents.

Light Dues

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information he has about the level of charges equivalent to light dues levied by different European countries.

Mr. David Mitchell: Within the EC, light dues are charged in Greece, the Republic of Ireland and the United Kingdom. I have no information about the level or scope of the charges in Greece, but the Republic of Ireland operates a similar system to that in the United Kingdom, although the rates of charge may vary from time to time. I understand that in the Netherlands there is a Government levy on port dues which is applied to meeting the costs of navigational aids outside the ports. Elsewhere in Europe, I understand that in Sweden light dues are levied on vessels arriving from abroad, and that in Norway part of the costs of lights is met through port charges. Of the membership of the International Association of Lighthouse Authorities, which is a worldwide organisation, about 45 per cent. of member countries rely solely on port or light dues, and about 38 per cent. rely on general taxation or subsidy or a mixture of public finance and dues.

Road Safety

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information he has about the relative safety for different types of road user on (a) all roads, (b) trunk roads and (c) motorways.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The information requested is available only for English roads:

Accident involvement rates for drivers/riders of different vehicle types: England : 1986
Per 100 million vehicle kilometers

	Motorways	Trunk roads	All roads
Car drivers	26·1	78·8	122·8
Pedal cyclists	N/A	1,156·5	631·5
Motor cyclists	167·2	697·4	1,011·9
Light goods vehicle drivers	22·1	69·6	100·9
Heavy goods vehicle drivers	23.2	61·2	67·1

	Motorways	Trunk roads	All roads
All drivers/riders of motor vehicles	26·1	85·2	137·9

The involvement rates relative to the involvement rate of car drivers are given in the table.

Relative accident involvement rates for drivers/riders of different vehicle types: England: 1986

(car drivers = 1)

	Motorways	Trunk roads	All roads
Car drivers	1·00	1·00	1.00
Pedal cyclists	N/A	14·67	5·14
Motor cyclists	6·40	8·85	8·24
Light goods vehicle drivers	0·84	0·88	0·82
Heavy goods vehicle drivers	0·89	0·78	0·55
All drivers/riders of motor vehicles	1·00	1·08	1·12

Casualty rates for drivers/riders of different vehicle types: England: 1986

Per 100 million driver kilometres

	Motorways	Trunk roads	All roads
Car drivers	10·9	31·5	38·4
Pedal cyclists	N/A	1,121	605
Motor cycle riders	148	636	908
Light goods vehicle drivers	9·6	22·7	24·2
Heavy goods vehicle drivers	7·1	14·1	12·3
All drivers/riders of motor vehicles	10·8	36·1	51·8

Relative casualty rates, for drivers/riders of different vehicle types: England: 1986

(car drivers = 1)

	Motorways	Trunk roads	All roads
Car drivers	1·00	1·00	1·00
Pedal cyclists	N/A	35·6	15·8
Motor cycle riders	13·5	20·2	23·6
Light goods vehicle drivers	0·88	0·72	0·63
Heavy goods vehicle drivers	0·65	0·45	0·32
All drivers/riders of motor vehicles	0·99	1·15	1·35

Roads (Repair and Maintenance)

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which road repair and maintenance schemes originated by (a) his Department and (b) local authorities are now privately managed; and what plans he has to extend management privatisation of road projects.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Private agents manage repair and maintenance on our behalf in the following areas:

1. South Yorkshire, Greater Manchester, and the West Midlands (motorways only).
2. West Yorkshire (motorways and part of the trunk roads).

I am not aware of arrangements for private management of maintenance of local authority roads.

We have no plans at present to extend private management of trunk road maintenance. We shall keep the possibility under review.

Aircraft (Near-Miss Incidents)

Mr. McCrindle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will discuss with Civil Aviation Authority making the maximum information available to the public regarding the near-miss involving a British Airways plane and a Bulgarian aircraft.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on Monday 8 February.

Mr. McCrindle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ascertain from the Civil Aviation Authority whether lack of command of the English language has been a contributing factor in near-miss incidents.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I will ask the chairman of the CAA to write to my hon. Friend.

Mr. McCrindle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ascertain from the Civil Aviation Authority whether the near-miss involving a British Airways plane and a Bulgarian aircraft was in any way contributed to by defective air traffic control equipment.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on Monday 8 February. This is a matter which will be considered by the investigation being conducted by the chief inspector of accidents.

Railways Inspectorate

Mr. Snape: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what are the duties of the Railways Inspectorate.

Mr. David Mitchell: The principal duties of the Railway Inspectorate are to assist and advise the Secretary of State in the exercise of his jurisdiction under the railway regulatory Acts. This includes the inspection and approval of new and altered railway works, including level crossings, safety rules and regulations, and the reporting and investigation of accidents. In addition, the inspectorate applies the provisions of the Health and Safety at Work Etc. Act 1974 to the operational parts* of the railways in Great Britain under an agency agreement between the Department and the Health and Safety Commission, and inspects railway works and investigates accidents in Northern Ireland, Hong Kong and Singapore under separate agency agreements. Full details of the Secretary of State's jurisdiction under the railway Acts, and details of the agency agreement with the HSC, are given in appendix 11 of the Department's report on the safety record of the railways in Great Britain during 1986, a copy of which is in the Library.

Railways (Safety)

Mr. Snape: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the availability of finance is one of the criteria adopted by the Railways Inspectorate in determining its policy towards safety measures on railways.

Mr. David Mitchell: Both British Rail and London Regional Transport have a statutory duty to provide or secure the provision of rail services and in so doing to have due regard to efficiency, economy and safety of operation. In considering proposals affecting safety the Railway Inspectorate bears these requirements in mind.

Heavy Vehicles

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he intends to take to encourage the use of air suspensions on heavy vehicles to reduce the harmful effects on roads and bridges.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: We are circulating proposals to increase the permitted weight on each axle of a triaxle of a semi-trailer from 7·5 tonnes to 8 tonnes provided that air suspensions or other equivalent fluid suspensions are fitted. This will allow more flexibility in load distribution and reduce the likelihood of overloading axles. The maximum weight of articulated vehicles remains at 38 tonnes.

Night Flying

Mr. Dicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he has reached decisions about future night-flying restrictions at Heathrow and Gatwick airports; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Channon: On 6 November last year I published proposals for future night restrictions at the two airports. I set out then my objective—to improve the night noise climate around the airports without imposing unnecessary restrictions on the airline industry.

I am very aware that many people living near the airports feel strongly about night flying. I have considered their views very carefully. My predecessors accepted that some night disturbance was unavoidable. They framed night restrictions designed to phase out the noisiest aircraft. This phasing out has now been achieved and those living near the airports have benefited—at no small cost to the airlines. I now have the opportunity to build on those achievements with further improvements in the night noise climate.

The challenge is to ensure that the benefits of modern aviation technology are enjoyed not only by those who fly, but by those on the ground. I believe that we can do that by giving airlines an incentive to replace their older, noisier aircraft by modern quieter ones. There is a balance to be struck. These modern aircraft are expensive. But because they make so much less noise than their predecessors, particularly on take-off, they can be used at night with much less disturbance. And because night movements can make a lot of difference to the economics of operating expensive new aircraft, they become more attractive to airlines. They will be used by day, much more than at night, and so will help to improve the daytime noise climate.

I am determined that at Gatwick night noise disturbance should be reduced over the next five years. I therefore intend to reduce sharply flights by noisier, older aircraft, while increasing those by quieter aircraft — allowing a very small increase year by year in the total number of flights. I am thus adopting the preferred option in the consultation paper.

At Heathrow there is less demand for night flights than at Gatwick. The present quotas are not fully used, and I can achieve my objectives by limiting the further growth of night movements by keeping them to about their present level, as proposed in the consultation paper. There are very few planned departures in the middle of the night at Heathrow: in future I shall require that these should be modern, quieter aircraft. Take-offs by older, noisier aircraft will not be allowed in the small hours except for a small quota for those planned to take off earlier which are unavoidably delayed. This should achieve a considerable improvement in the noise climate during this most sensitive period.

I know that many people near Gatwick remain to be convinced that more flights, even by modern aircraft, can mean less disturbance from noise. I assure them that we shall monitor the noise climate, and the noise of individual aircraft, to ensure that the benefits of quieter aircraft are realised in reduced disturbance. I am prepared to consider whether additional monitoring is necessary, to verify the reduced effects on local populations of night flights by quieter aircraft. It is important that people should have confidence in the monitoring, and I therefore intend to conduct it more openly, by inviting the airport consultative committees to nominate representatives of local people to sit with representatives of the airline industry on an advisory committee to consider all aspects of monitoring.

The consultation paper proposed a regime for night flights extending over five years. However, if after two years (that is after the summer season 1989) it is apparent that disturbance from night flights at Gatwick is getting worse, rather than lessening as our research leads us to expect, we shall revise the quotas accordingly. Thus we shall, in effect, be putting the onus on the airline industry to prove their case in the meantime. At Heathrow, because the quotas are being cut, the level of disturbance will in any case be less than it otherwise would have been.

In response to suggestions made during the consultation, I shall make some small adjustments to the consequential changes which we proposed.

The main points of the new restrictions are described in a paper I have placed in the Library. Copies will be sent to hon. Members who were involved in the recent consultations.

Channel Tunnel (Rail Infrastructure)

Mr. Adley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will indicate the investment criteria applied by Her Majesty's Government to British Rail, and information available to him on criteria applied by the French Government to SNCF, in relation to rail infrastructure connected to or associated with the Channel tunnel.

Mr. David Mitchell: So far as Channel tunnel related investment is concerned, it is our understanding that the French Government, like Her Majesty's Government, expect the investments of their railways to show a proper commercial rate of return.

Motor Vehicles (Safety)

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the manufacturers of motor vehicles with a view to improving vehicle safety and safety of other road users; what steps he is taking to secure wider adoption of safer vehicles; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: We attach high importance to safety-conscious vehicle design and maintenance. We regularly meet vehicle manufacturers and the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders to discuss the implications of new technology, new vehicle standards, vehicle defects and appropriate corrective action including recalls.

The Transport and Road Research Laboratory has been in the forefront in fostering safer vehicle design. Current ideas and developments include the pedestrian-friendly car, which could save pedestrian casualties caused by unsympathetic vehicle fronts, increased use of rear seat belts and child restraints, improved fire prevention, a softened steering wheel which could prevent facial injuries, and increased fitment of such braking features as antilock.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Tax Changes

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much on average those earning over £50,000 a year have gained, on an annual basis, from tax changes over the past eight years.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply which I gave to the hon. Members for Worsley (Mr. Lewis), for Durham, North-West (Ms. Armstrong) and for Cynon Valley (Mrs. Clwyd) on 14 January 1988, at columns 389-90.

Borrowing Requirement

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether, pursuant to the reply of 25 January, Official Report, columns 82-84, concerning the Government's borrowing requirements, he will publish in the Official Report particulars of the difference between Government revenues and disbursements for (a) central Government, (b) local government and (c) other public bodies in the current financial year, excluding borrowing.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The difference between the Government's receipts and expenditure is their borrowing requirement. Details of the borrowing requirements of central Government, the local authorities and the public corporations are published in "Financial Statistics", tables 3.4, 4.4 and 5.4 respectively.

Government Data Network

Mr. Soley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guidelines currently apply to limitations on the exchange of information between Government Departments; and in what way this will be affected by the proposed introduction of a Government data network.

Mr. Brooke [holding answer 8 February 1988]: Any transfer of date between Departments requires the authorisation of the Department that owns the data. This requirement will continue if the proposed GDN is introduced.

Mr. Soley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if, pursuant to his answer of 12 November, Official Report, column 277, he is yet in a position to announce the outcome of the tendering process for the Government data network.

Mr. Brooke [holding answer 8 February 1988]: No. Memoranda of agreement were agreed by Departments and the bidding consortia on 11 January. Tenders will be invited shortly.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Data Processing Industry

12. Mr. Knapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the level of output in the data processing industry in 1986 and in 1980; and what was the level of exports in the industry in the same period.

Mr. Alan Clark: Respondents to the Department's computing services inquiry reported sales of £1·6 billion in 1986, including £114 million exports. In 1980, respondents reported £500 million sales and £34 million exports.

Management Education

15. Mrs. Peacock: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to encourage the spread of management education.

54. Mr. Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how he intends to advance his proposals on management education outlined in the recent White Paper.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: As set out in the White Paper, "DTI—department for Enterprise," (Cmnd. 278), DTI, along with other Government Departments and the Manpower Services Commission, is represented on the industry-led Council for Management Education and Development (the Charter Group initiative). The council's objective is to encourage the spread of management education and good management practice. Its work will include formulating a code of good practice and helping to develop a framework for management education and training at all levels. I am greatly encouraged by the progress which the council has made so far.

Letter Monopoly (Breaches)

16. Mr. Nellist: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many prosecutions have been initiated by his Department relating to the breaking of the letter monopoly of the Post Office; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: None. It is the responsibility of the Post Office to decide what action should be taken if it believes that its letter monopoly is being infringed.

Printing Industry

19. Mr. John Townend: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the level of output in the printing industry in 1986 and 1987.

Mr. Atkins: The index of production for the United Kingdom printing and publishing industries was 105·6 in 1986 and 116·3 in the first three quarters of 1987 based on 1980 = 100.

Space Research

20. Mr. Ingram: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his policy on the science and technology of space research; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I remain wholly committed to a programme of scientific research in space and in particular to the European Space Agency's Horizon 2000 programme. This programme has received a 20 per cent. real terms increase in funding over the last three years and I am satisfied that the present level of planned funding will enable the objects of Horizon 2000 to be met satisfactorily.

Space can be a spur to new advances in technology by British industry. It can sometimes be a profitable area of economic activity, for example in the field of communications. I am satisfied that the current level of Government expenditure of some £120 million per annum is justified and I will continue to seek to use it in ways which are potentially beneficial for industry. However, I do not consider that a case has been established for any increase. I have today confirmed to the European Space Agency that Britain will not be extending its involvement in ESA by taking part in the optional programmes on the Ariane V launcher or the Columbus space station as presently proposed.

Earth observation from space, however, could have significant potential. It involves the processing of remote sensing data from satellites and its supply to end-users for a range of applications. Data from the European Space Agency's first remote sensing satellite, to which the United Kingdom is contributing, will start to be transmitted by the early 1990s. To process this data I have decided to provide funds, estimated at £4 million per annum over five years, to set up an earth observation data centre as part of the national remote sensing complex at the Royal Aircraft Establishment, Farnborough.

At present there is little agreement, either among manufacturing companies or users, on a preferred strategy for future earth observation operations, but I will continue to consider the various options open to us.

Investment Capital

22. Mr. George: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his estimate of the amount of capital raised for new investment on the stock market in the latest year for which figures are available.

Mr. Maude: New money raised on the stock exchange in the year to January 1988, net of redemptions, was £16·7 billion.

Manufacturing Industry

24. Mr. McCartney: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what has been the increase in United Kingdom producer prices and manufactured import prices in the latest year for which data are available.

Mr. Alan Clark: United Kingdom output producer prices for manufacturing increased by 3·8 per cent. and manufactured import prices by 4·2 per cent. between 1986 and 1987.

52. Mr. Clay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his latest estimate for the balance of trade in manufactured goods for the current year and 1989.

Mr. Alan Clark: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer in his Autumn Statement forecast that there would be a deficit in trade in manufactures of £9 billion in 1988. A new forecast will be published at the time of the Budget.

70. Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is the increase in manufactured imports and manufactured exports between 1979 and 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: Between the years 1979 and 1987 imports of manufactures, on a balance of payments basis, increased in value by £39·8 billion (141 per cent.) to reach £68·1 billion while exports rose by £29·9 billion (96 per cent.) to £60·8 billion. The corresponding increase by volume was 62 per cent. for imports of manufactures and 25 per cent. for exports.

76. Mrs. Mahon: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is the latest estimate of the deficit on manufactured trade in 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: For the year 1987 the deficit in trade in manufactures was provisionally estimated to be £7·3 billion.

Computer-aided Design

25. Dr. Michael Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what support his Department is providing for computer-aided design.

Mr. Butcher: My Department offers support for the promotion of computer-aided design by the provision of information and advice, and through specific initiatives, to schools, higher education institutions and industry.

Electronics Industry

26. Mr. Forth: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the level of output in the electronic capital goods sector in 1986 and in 1980; and what was the level of exports in the industry over the same period.

Mr. Alan Clark: United Kingdom manufacturers' sales of radio and electronic capital goods amounted to £3 billion in 1986 and £1·6 billion in 1980. The industry's exports came to £1·2 billion in 1986 and £500 million in 1980.

40. Mr. Robert B. Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the level of output in the consumer electronic sector in 1986 and in 1980; and what was the level of exports in the sector in the same period.

Mr. Alan Clark: The available information is shown in the table:

Consumer electronics sector[1]

£ million

	1980	1986
United Kingdom manufacturers' sale	551	989
Exports	134	448

Note:
[1] Activity Heading 3434 of the Standard Industrial Classification (1980).

Commercial Vehicles

27. Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has on total unit sales of British-produced commercial vehicles in the home market in 1987 and 1986.

Mr. Atkins: Sales to the home market of United Kingdom-built commercial vehicles increased from 175,843 units in 1986 to 193,553 in 1987.

Association of British Chambers of Commerce

28. Mr. Fearn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he last met the officers of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce; and what matters were discussed.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry met the national council of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce last week. A wide variety of topics were discussed.

Consumers' Association

29. Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he next expects to meet representatives of the Consumers' Association; and what subjects he proposes to discuss.

Mr. Butcher: My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Corporate Affairs visited the Consumers' Association on 25 January and discussed a number of topics relevant to consumers. I have no specific plans for a further visit, but I shall be arranging to meet representatives of consumer bodies, including the Consumers' Association, in the near future.

Textile Industry

30. Dame Elaine Kellett-Bowman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has on the growth of productivity and change in profitability in the textile industry since 1980.

Mr. Atkins: Between 1980 and the three quarters of 1987, productivity rose by 44 per cent. Profitability of large textile companies has also increased strongly over the period, according to their published accounts.

Austin Rover

31. Mr. Boswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has on sales of individual models made by Austin Rover in 1987 and 1986.

Mr. Atkins: During 1987 Austin Rover sold a total of 296,784 cars in the United Kingdom against 293,240 in 1986. The model breakdown was as follows.

	1987	1986
Mini	15,873	16,154
Metro	108,223	109,351
Maestro	43,815	51,406
Montego	56,238	62,658
Rover 200	50,254	45,197
Rover 800	20,200	4,307
Total	296,784	293,240

Preliminary figures indicate that total worldwide sales by Austin Rover increased in 1987 to over 435,500 against 411,023 in 1986.

73. Mr. Madel: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to return the Austin Rover Group to the private sector; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: It remains the aim of both the Rover Group board and the Government to return Austin Rover and Land Rover to full private ownership. The group's chairman has spoken publicly of his belief that privatisation can be achieved in the lifetime of this Parliament, and work continues within the company to review the options towards that general objective.

Aerospace Industry

32. Mr. Brazier: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster by how much turnover in the aerospace industry has increased in the last 10 years; and by how much exports in the industry have increased over the same period.

Mr. Alan Clark: Aerospace industry sales increased from £2·2 billion in 1977 to £7·6 billion in 1986. In the same period, exports increased from £900 million to £4·3 billion.

Regional Aid

33. Mr. Geraint Howells: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a further statement on the criteria for obtaining regional selective assistance.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I have nothing to add to my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Industry's replies of 19 January, at columns 671-75, to my hon. Friend the Member for Cornwall, South-East (Mr. Hicks) and to the hon. Member for Sedgefield (Mr. Blair) and 26 January, at column 149, to the right hon. Member for Swansea, West (Mr. Williams).

35. Mr. McFall: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations he has received on the regional policy aspects of his Department's recent White Paper.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: Since the publication of the DTI White Paper on 12 January we have received several representations on aspects of regional policy which refer, amongst other things, to the changes we have made.

51. Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what timetable he envisages for the assessment of eligibility for regional selective assistance.

Mr. Atkins: For offers of regional selective assistance made by my Department in 1987 the average period between receipt of application and date of offer was eight weeks. I am actively considering ways in which the processing time can be kept to a minimum in future — particularly for small applications — consistent with meeting the objectives of the scheme.

Questions about the administration of regional selective assistance in Scotland should be addressed to the Secretary of State for Scotland.

64. Mr. Allen McKay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations he has received on his statement on the future of regional policy, and how he proposes to respond to these.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: Since the publication of the DTI White Paper on 12 January we have received several representations on aspects of regional policy which refer, amongst other things, to the changes we have made. We will consider the views expressed very carefully.

66. Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what advice will be available to businesses to enable them to acquire regional selective assistance.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: The regional selective assistance scheme is described in the Department's booklet, "The Regional Initiative: Guide to Regional Selective Assistance," which also gives contact points for further inquiries. Officials are available to give further advice to potential applicants as and when it is requested.

68. Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the implications of the White Paper "DTI the Department for Enterprise" for the west midlands region.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: The west midlands has a strong tradition of entrepreneurship and business enterprise and I have every expectation that the region's businesses will make extensive use of the consultancy initiatives and of the other elements of the enterprise initiative. Regional selective assistance remains available within the west midlands intermediate area. The DTI is establishing new offices in Stoke-on-Trent, Telford, Coventry and Hereford in order to get nearer to the business community. I am sure that the enterprise initiatives will make a very worthwhile contribution to the region's prosperity.

74. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations he has received concerning the future funding of regional aid and the consequences of any changes in regional funds from the European regional development fund.

Mr. Atkins: I have received a number of representations about the European Community's current review of its structural funds, including the European regional development fund. The Government consider that the highlands and islands of Scotland should continue to be eligible for the fund. We have made representations to the Commission accordingly.

Turkish Yarn

34. Mr. Madden: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what evidence he has received of trade disruption to United Kingdom industry arising from the importing of Turkish acrylic yarn.

Mr. Alan Clark: I have nothing to add to the reply I have sent to the hon. Member following his priority written question put down for answer on 1 February.

53. Mr. James Lamond: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he has received any representations regarding the recent agreement reached with Turkey on the import into the United Kingdom of acrylic yarn.

Mr. Alan Clark: Yes, I have received a number of representations about the recent agreement with Turkish textile exporters.

I met representatives of the Confederation of British Wool Textiles, who are concerned about the acrylic yarn imports.

North Peckham Task Force

36. Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement concerning expenditure of Government funds by the North Peckham task force.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: Since the Government's North Peckham task force was set up in 1986, some £4·2 million of Government funds have been committed for task force projects benefiting the residents of the area. Of this, about £1·2 million has come from funds available to task forces and £3 million from other Government programmes.

Competition Policy

37. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has for strengthening competition policy and acting against restrictive practices.

Mr. Maude: Proposals for strengthening competition policy were announced in last month's White Paper "DTI —the department for Enterprise" (Cm 278).

British Telecom (Magnetic Tapes)

38. Mr. Darling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he has had discussions with British Telecom regarding the proposed sale of magnetic tapes containing telephone directory and other information to third parties.

Mr. Butcher: No. This is a matter for British Telecom. It would be for the Director General of Telecommunications to consider any representations about such a proposed sale.

New Businesses (Retired People)

39. Mr. Bowis: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will take steps to encourage retired people with business or professional experience to use their experience for the benefit of new businesses.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I am actively seeking semi or newly retired people to serve as enterprise counsellors to conduct business reviews for small and medium-sized firms under the consultancy elements of the new enterprise initiative. A national recruitment campaign has already attracted many applicants, and I expect that 200 additional enterprise counsellors will be appointed as a result.

European Regional Development Fund

41. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he last met representatives of the European Community Commission to discuss grants from the European regional development fund.

Mr. Atkins: At the Industry Council on 22 December, which agreed in substance on the proposed RESIDER programme for European regional development funds in certain steel closure areas.

Research and Development

42. Mr. Irving: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has for strengthening collaborative research and development.

Mr. Butcher: The White Paper, "DTI — the Department for Enterprise," which was placed before the House on 12 January announced important initiatives to strengthen collaborative research, including programmes on information technology and superconductivity. On 3 February my right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Education and Science announced five programmes in the LINK initiative. These programmes have a total Government contribution of £42 million over five years. One of the principal aims of LINK is to strengthen collaboration between the science base and industry.

59. Mr. Stott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what measures he is taking to evaluate the effectiveness of spending on civil research and development in the United Kingdom; and what are the results.

Mr. Butcher: It is primarily for the market to evaluate research and development activity in the private sector.

As far as my Department's programmes of support for R and D are concerned, we undertake regular reviews of their effectiveness and, in particular, their value for money. Where such reviews show that some adjustment to our approach is justified we take appropriate measures to achieve this.

Leyland Trucks

43. Mr. Jack: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has on the profitability of the former Leyland Trucks since its merger with DAF.

Mr. Atkins: I understand that DAF BV has not yet published its audited results for the year ended 31 December 1987. However, the chairman of DAF's board of management recently confirmed that Leyland DAF had made a significant contribution to the DAF group's 1987 profit of £18 million.

Departmental Confidential Hot Line

44. Mr. Michael: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will introduce a confidential hot line at his Department for informants on suspected insider dealing and other breaches of the Financial Services Act.

Mr. Maude: It is already open to members of the public to contact my Department, anonymously or otherwise, about alleged contraventions of the Company Securities (Insider Dealing) Act 1985. Any such approaches are treated in confidence if the informant so wishes. The main provisions regarding breaches under the Financial Services Act 1986 are not yet in force. When that Act is fully implemented, responsibility for its enforcement will be shared between my Department and the Securities and Investments Board. My Department will shortly be discussing the practical implications of this with the Securities and Investments Board.

Japanese Manufacturers

45. Mr. Heddle: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Japanese manufacturers are established in the United Kingdom; and what percentage of total Japanese investment in western Europe this represents.

Mr. Atkins: The Department of Trade and Industry is aware of 75 Japanese companies in the United Kingdom that are either manufacturing or have announced plans to do so. This represents about 30 per cent. of all Japanese manufacturing plants in western Europe.

Car Sales

46. Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has on new car sales in 1987; and what was the importers' share of the market in 1987 and in 1986.

Mr. Atkins: There were 2,013,693 new car sales in 1987. The importers' share of the market was 51½ per cent. in 1987 and 56 per cent. in 1986.

Single European Market

47. Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he will take to ensure that inner cities benefit from the single European market from 1992.

Mr. Atkins: Completion of the single market will create opportunities and challenges for all sectors of the economy by ensuring unimpeded access to a market of 320 million people. Our policies reflect the need to equip inner-city firms to compete for that business.

65. Mr. Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how he will encourage small firms to take advantage of the 1992 single European market.

Mr. Alan Clark: The national awareness campaign which we are preparing is intended to ensure that all companies in Britain, large and small, are fully aware of the opportunities and challenges of the single European market. Under the enterprise initiative (launched on 13 January) financial assistane is available to firms of fewer than 500 employees for consultancy support to help them improve their competitive performance.

67. Mr. Riddick: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to prepare British companies for the competition of the single European market in 1992.

Mr. Alan Clark: We are determined to ensure that British business is given every chance to take advantage of the new opportunities which will come from creating a single Community market. We will shortly announce the details of a major awareness campaign to reach companies throughout the country.

Assisted Areas

48. Mr. Livsey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what timetable he envisages for carrying out a review of the assisted areas map.

Mr. Atkins: The White Paper, "DTI—the department for Enterprise", (Cm. 278), indicated that the Government have no intention at present of reviewing the assisted areas map.

Television Advertising

49. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his Department's budget for television advertising in the current year.

Mr. Butcher: Currently planned expenditure by DTI on television advertising is £5·3 million in this financial year.

Japan (Trade Deficit)

50. Mr. Henderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the level of trade deficit with an inward flow of capital from Japan in 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: The United Kingdom trade deficit with Japan in 1987 totalled £3,968 million, on an OTS basis, exports and imports reaching £1,495 million and £5,463 million respectively.

The United Kingdom does not compile comprehensive statistics on flows of capital between the United Kingdom and other individual countries.

HOTOL

55. Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he has received any further proposals from British Aerospace and Rolls-Royce on HOTOL.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I have recently received a proposal from Rolls-Royce for a further year's work on the HOTOL propulsion concept. I expect to receive a related proposal from British Aerospace shortly and I will consider them both with care.

Staff Dispersal

56. Mr. Cran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to complete his review of the possible relocation out of London of divisions within his Department; and what priority he attaches to achieving such a relocation.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I am very committed to ensuring that my Department's divisions are located as cost effectively as possible, bearing in mind the services they provide, the need to recruit and retain staff, and the potential benefit to a receiving region's economy. I hope to announce shortly a decision on the relocation of the Patent Office. I will continue to consider the best location for other parts of my Department.

English Industrial Estates

57. Mr. Harris: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is the future planned expenditure on English Industrial Estates.

Mr. Atkins: In 1987-88 English Estates' planned programme in the assisted areas was increased from £33·5 million to £37 million. As a result of increased levels of asset sales, it is likely to achieve a record programme of £47 million. In 1988-89 it has been asked to plan for a programme £5 million higher than this year's (that is, £42 million). In practice it may exceed this figure and it has been authorised to spend up to £49 million if it can generate the necessary funds from its own resources. The level of the new managed workspace programme for the inner cities has not yet been finalised. It will, however, be additional to the planned expenditure under the existing programme for the assisted areas.

Mergers

58. Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proportion of proposed mergers was referred to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission in 1987.

Mr. Maude: Of the 321 mergers and merger proposals which qualified under the Fair Trading Act 1973 for reference to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission in 1987, six, or approximately 2 per cent., were subsequently referred to the commission.

Companies (Grants)

60. Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if his Department maintains an approved list of companies for the purposes of grants towards management, financial, organisational and other consultancies.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: Under the enterprise initiative consultancy schemes, which currently cover marketing, design, quality and manufacturing systems, the selection and deployment of consultants is a matter for the scheme contractors who operate on behalf of the DTI. Similar arrangements will be made for the new consultancy initiatives on business planning and financial and information systems to be introduced in April.

Inner Cities

61. Mr. Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on progress on departmental co-operation and initiatives to tackle inner-city problems.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: Government Departments are continuing to work together with business, local councils, voluntary organisations and local residents in the inner cities through a range of programmes and initiatives to bring about inner-city renewal. Government Departments co-operate through the urban programme and inner-city task forces to support projets which encourage enterprise and development and improve the environment. The Government effort is also co-ordinated by the five city action teams which promote joint initiatives and provide a local point of contact for companies and others wishing to be involved in inner-city renewal.

72. Mr. Hanley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what contribution the private sector is making to his Department's inner-cities initiative.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: The private sector is making a tremendous contribution to the success of our policies for the inner cities. within my own Department's inner-cities initiative we have:

—support from six clearing banks for task force development funds
—secondments, including the secondment of the task force leader in Spitalfields by TSB England and Wales plc
—backing by over 150 individual firms for the scheme of enterprise advice and training—"Headstart in the Inner Cities" which the Industrial Society is running for my Department and MSC
—the setting up, by "Investors in Industry plc", of a £10 million investment fund for growing businesses in inner-city areas
—involvement through Business in the Community with which we are collaborating in four task force areas on a neighbourhood partnership programme.

These are only a few examples. There are many other individual cases in which the private sector is involving itself in task force projects. I greatly welcome the work currently being taken forward by the CBI to develop still more ways in which industry and commerce can commit itself to the economic future of our cities.

Steel Industry

62. Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the weekly output of United Kingdom-made steel in November 1987; and what has been the trend in the weekly rate since 1980.

Mr. Atkins: In November 1987 the weekly average of United Kingdom crude steel production was 370,000 tonnes. The information on steel output is published monthly in "BSC/BISPA Steel Industry Statistics" and the "CSO Monthly digest of statistics", copies of which are in the Library of the House.

EC (Trade Barriers)

63. Mr. Hunter: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on his policy on the removal of trade barriers within the European Community.

Mr. Alan Clark: We and other member states are committed to taking all the steps necessary to complete the single market of the Community by 31 December 1992. Completing this market of 320 million people will open up major opportunities for business. We are determined to ensure that British business is given every chance to make the most of them.

EC (Insurance Market)

69. Mr. Andrew MacKay: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress has been made in attempts to achieve agreement in the European Community on removing national barriers to free trade in insurance.

Mr. Maude: At the Internal Market Council on 18 December agreement was reached, by qualified majority, on the main elements of the non-life insurance services directive. This is a welcome step forward in opening up the Common Market to free trade in insurance, and we hope that it will now be possible to move quickly to formal adoption of the directive.

Managed Workshops

71. Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proposals he has on the provision of managed workshops.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: We have asked English Estates to establish a new programme for the provision of managed workspace, primarily in inner-city locations and with considerable private sector involvement. The level of the new programme has yet to be finalised, but it will be additional to the planned expenditure under the corporation's existing programme for the assisted areas.

Financial Institutions

75. Ms. Primarolo: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what are the implications of the recent White Paper on his Department for its responsibility for regulating the City financial institutions.

Mr. Maude: Paragraphs 2.27 to 2.33 of the White Paper explain the work being done to increase confidence in the working of markets by achieving a fair level of protection for the individual customer and investor. The Financial Services Act 1986 establishes a new regulatory structure which will provide a comprehensive system of investor protection which will retain the flexibility to respond to developments in rapidly changing markets.

Canning Town Glassworks

77. Mr. Hardy: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what action he proposes to take in regard to the closure of the Canning Town Glassworks at Swinton in view of the reassurances previously offered by Guinness plc. to the hon. Member for Wentworth.

Mr. Atkins: I shall write to the hon. Gentleman shortly.

Support for Innovation

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what support for innovation will be provided by his Department outside development areas after 1 April; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: The White Paper "DTI—the department for Enterprise" (Cm 278) sets out in chapter 8 "Innovation, using Technology" the support for innovation available throughout Great Britain. This support covers collaborative research, technology transfer, small firms and start-ups, exceptional projects, space and other research programmes. Support for collaborative research is described in more detail in the "Research and Technology Initiative" booklet, and I am sending the hon. Member a copy.

Balance of Trade

Mr. Oppenheim: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has about the latest figures for the balance of trade on a per capita basis between the United Kingdom and the United States of America; and what information he has as to the per capita balance of trade between the United States of America and Canada, Sweden, Japan, West Germany and Brazil.

Mr. Alan Clark: The information is in the table.

United States of America balance of trade per capita
January to October 1987

United States $

	(A)	(B)
United Kingdom	−10	−50
Canada	−40	−370
Sweden	[1] −10	[1] −290
Japan	−200	−390
F R Germany	−50	−200
Brazil	−10	−20

[1] = estimate
(A) balance per head of United States population.
(B) balance per head of trading partner.
Sources: United States Department of Commerce.
OECD.
IMF International Financial Statistics.

Trade Safety

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his policy on the European Community draft directive for general duty to trade safety.

Mr. Butcher: The Consumer Protection Act 1987 introduced a general safety requirement into United Kingdom law on 1 October 1987. We can therefore support in principle the concept of a general safety duty throughout the European Community. When the EC draft directive is communicated, we will approach the discussions with the Commission and member states in a constructive way. But there are a number of potential problems involved in this complex issue which will need careful handling if it is to result in genuine improvements to the protection afforded to consumers.

Child Safety Campaign

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what action the Government are taking as their contribution to the European child safety campaign beginning in April.

Mr. Butcher: The United Kingdom has made clear its willingness to participate in some form of European child safety campaign, provided that it is well thought through and properly targeted. Discussions have been held during 1987 with the Commission and other member states about the form and content of a campaign and we are waiting for revised proposals to come forward from the Commission. No decision has been taken on the launch of the campaign, and any action taken by the United Kingdom Government will need to be considered in the light of the Commission's proposals. My Department has already announced the start of a series of consumer safety awareness campaigns to be run over the next three years. Child safety will feature prominently among the target areas.

Heavy Duty Mining Equipment

Mr. Stott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what was the United Kingdom share of the following markets for heavy duty mining supports for the period 1981 to 1986: North America, Western Europe (excluding the United Kingdom and West Germany), Africa, the far east and Australia;

(2) what was the United Kingdom share of the following markets for heavy duty mining shearers for the period 1981 to 1985: North America, Western Europe (excluding the United Kingdom and West Germany), Africa, the far east and Australia;

(3) what was the United Kingdom share of the following markets for heavy duty mining face conveyors for the period 1981 to 1985: North America, Western Europe (excluding the United Kingdom and West Germany), Africa, the far east and Australia.

Mr. Atkins: The information is not readily available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Stott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what was the total value in 1987 of exports of British-produced heavy duty longwall mining equipment;

(2) what was the total value in 1987 of exports of home-produced mining equipment, excluding heavy duty longwall mining equipment.

Mr. Atkins: Information on exports of home-produced mining equipment is not available. However, total exports of mining equipment for 1987 amounted to £86·8 million; this figure may include some re-exported goods.

Source: Overseas Trade Statistics.

Note: Mining equipment defined as Standard Industrial Classification Activity heading 3251.

Guinness plc

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects the inspectors appointed to investigate the affairs of Guinness plc to report.

Mr. Maude: The investigation continued, but I am unable to say when a report will be received.

House of Fraser (Holdings) plc

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects the inspectors appointed to investigate the affairs of House of Fraser (Holdings) plc to report.

Mr. Maude: The investigation continues, but I am unable to say when a report will be received.

Lonrho plc

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to complete his consideration of representations in relation to a possible breach by Lonrho plc of sections 204 to 206 of the Companies Act 1985 in relation to share dealings in House of Fraser plc during the period from the date of the inspector's interim report into share dealings in House of Fraser to the date of its acquisition by Al Fayed Investment and Trust (UK) Limited.

Mr. Maude: These matters are kept under review, but at present no action is considered necessary.

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to complete his consideration of representations in relation to a possible breach of section 231 of the Companies Act 1985 by Lonrho plc in relation to its Liechtenstein subsidiaries Blorg and Contango.

Mr. Maude: By letter dated 16 November 1987, my right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry informed my hon. Friend that representations in relation to a possible breach of section 231 of the Companies Act 1985 by Lonrho in relation to its Liechtenstein subsidiaries, Blorg and Contango, had been considered and he had decided to take no further action in the matter, the substance of which occurred some 20 years ago.

Electronic Fund Transfers

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to introduce a statutory code of practice to govern electronic fund transfers between banks and customers.

Mr. Butcher: I have no immediate plans to introduce such a code of practice. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer set up a review committee in November 1986 to look into all aspects of banking services law. Developments in electronic funds transfer are an important element in that review. Until the review committee has reported, it would not be appropriate for the Government to form a view on such issues.

Productivity Rates

Mr. Wray: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has for each year since 1974 about the figures for productivity hourly of industries in (a) Belgium, (b) Britain, (c) Germany, (d) France, (e) Holland, (f) Sweden, (g) the United States of America and (h) Italy.

Mr. Atkins: The information is in the table.

Output per manhour in manufacturing
1980 = 100

Year	Belgium	United Kingdom	Federal Republic of Germany	France	Netherlands	Sweden	United States of America	Italy
1974	68·1	96·4	80·5	75·6	76·5	87·6	88·5	81·5
1975	71·7	94·5	83·0	77·7	75·4	88·9	92·2	77·9
1976	79·1	98·8	88·8	84·1	83·8	90·3	96·3	84·5
1977	83·5	99·2	92·1	88·7	87·9	88·8	98·6	85·5
1978	89·0	100·8	95·0	93·8	93·9	91·3	99·4	88·1
1979	94·0	101·5	99·6	98·4	98·9	98·4	100·0	94·4
1980	100·0	100·0	100·0	100·0	100·0	100·0	100·0	100·0
1981	107·1	106·5	102·2	104·2	104·2	100·4	102·2	103·4
1982	113·1	111·9	103·7	110·9	107·4	103·4	104·4	105·4
1983	120·6	120·4	109·7	115·7	114·3	111·4	110·4	108·2
1984	124·6	125·7	113·7	120·2	126·5	116·3	116·4	115·1
1985	127·6	129·7	118·7	124·2	131·2	119·4	122·5	116·9
1986	126·7	133·0	121·1	126·8	133·9	122·4	127·0	118·3
1987[1]	128·2	140·8	122·7	129·7	133·2	127·0	130·8	121·9

[1] 1st quarter to 3rd quarter, not seasonally adjusted.
Source: International Monetary Fund.

Compliance Cost Assessments

Dr. Blackburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will take steps to publish lists of compliance cost assessments which Departments prepare, showing the impact of proposed new Government regulation on businesses.

Mr. Maude: Officials in the enterprise and deregulation unit are arranging for a selected list of compliance cost assessments (CCAs) to be published in the Department of Trade and Industry magazine "British Business". In addition, Departments will arrange for lists of CCAs to be published in appropriate publications and press notices.

SOCIAL SERVICES

1991 Census

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether the 1991 census information will be made available to community charge officials in England and Wales; whether census officials expect to use the community charge register; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: It would be an offence under section 8(2) of the Census Act 1920 for the Office of Pupulation Censuses and Surveys to pass census information about identified persons or households to community charge officials. The office has no plans to use community charge registers in carrying out the 1991 census.

Health Services

Mr. Wheeler: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will conduct an urgent exercise within the European Community to compare the various funding arrangements for hospital and health care services; how private and taxpayer funding contributes to these services and by what proportion; and what personal control and accountability the individual has over the provision of health services.

Mr. Newton: Much of the information referred to by my hon. Friend is already available in published form in this country. In particular, the funding arrangements for state health systems are summarised in "Tables of Social Benefit Systems in the European Communities" a copy of which is in the Library.

We shall of course take appropriate account of this information, supplemented by further inquiries where this seems sensible, in conducting the review announced recently by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister.

Family Practitioner Committee (Leeds)

Mr. Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will reconsider the funding application from the Leeds family practitioner committee for the salary for a general practitioner dealing with the homeless.

Mr. Newton: Yes. We have asked officials to look into ways in which the problems encountered so far in funding can be overcome.

British Paediatrics Association

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if his Department has considered an application for an exhibition relating to the British Paediatrics Association campaign "Making Children a Priority Again", which is to be held in the Upper Waiting Hall.

Mrs. Currie: I understand that, under procedures agreed by the Services Committee, arrangements have been made with the authorities of the House for the exhibition to be held in the Upper Waiting Hall during the week commencing 22 February.

Health and Personal Social Services

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish a table setting out for 1987-88 and 1988-89 the estimated number of (a) families and (b) persons in each health region or equivalent, and in England as a whole, showing net average expenditure on health and personal social services per family and per person in each year, distinguishing between expenditure on the National Heath Service and on the personal social services.

Mr. Newton: The information is not readily available in the form requested. For England as a whole net expenditure per person and per family of four in 1987-88 and 1988-89 is as follows:

	Population (million)		Net expenditure per year: Health and personal social services £	National health service £	Personal social services £
1987-88	47·380	per head	413	349	64
		per family of four	1,652	1,396	256
1988-89	47·488	per head	436	370	66
		per family of four	1,744	1,480	264

The expenditure figures used in this calculation are taken from table 14.1 in "The Government's Expenditure Plans 1988-89 to 1990-91", vol II (Cm 288-II) and include net current and capital spending. The national health service figure is the balance of health and personal social services expenditure after the deduction of health and personal social services spending and includes an element in respect of centrally financed services.

National Health Service Staff

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give details of the total numbers and the total costs of salaries of National Health Service administrative and clerical staff for each of the years 1974, 1979 and 1986.

Mr. Newton: The information is given in the table:

Numbers and costs of salaries of administrative and clerical staff employed in the National Health Service in England

	Number[1] (whole-time equivalent at September)	Cost[3] (in financial year beginning) £ million
1974	82,800	207 (755)
1979	103,000	501 (872)
1986	[2]111,400	903 (941)

[1] Rounded to the nearest hundred.
[2] Including general managers.
[3] Main figures represent true costs in each year. Figures in parentheses alongside represent these costs at 1987-88 money values.

Age Allowance

Mr. Andrew Bowden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will estimate the cost of extending the age allowance to all persons over state retirement age; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Andrew Scott: The estimated cost of extending the retirement pension age addition to all pensioners together with a corresponding increase in the pensioner premium in income support would be about £100 million in 1988-89.

Retail Prices Index (Error)

Mr. Andrew Bowden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received from voluntary organisations regarding the error in the retail prices index and the distribution of funds surplus to those required for £8 compensatory payments.

Mr. Scott: We have received more than 20 letters from organisations about the disbursement of funds, mostly registering an interest in applying for funding. We have also been asked if the funds could be used to increase war widows pensions.

Pay Scales

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the pay scales currently in force for (a) speech therapists, (b) clinical psychologists and (c) hospital pharmacists; and what were these pay scales in 1983, 1979 and 1975.

Mr. Newton: The information is as follows:

Speech therapists

	Salary from 1 April 1975		Salary from 1 August 1979		Salary from 1 October 1982 to 31 March 1984
	Minimum £	Maximum £	Minimum £	Maximum £	Minimum £	Maximum £
Speech therapist	2,142	2,811	3,212	4,048	5,130	6,074
Senior II speech therapist	2,811	3,537	4,048	4,968	6,345	7,468
Senior I speech therapist	3,243	4,005	4,598	5,555	7,468	8,370
Chief IV speech therapist	3,243	4,005	4,598	5,555	7,468	8,370
Chief III speech therapist	3,684	4,641	5,155	6,324	8,370	9,269
Chief II speech therapist	4,179	5,334	5,764	7,166	9,630	10,799
Chief I speech therapist	4,872	6,033	6,606	8,011	10,799	12,108
District senior chief (grade introduced on 1 April 1982)			—	—	11,204	12,561

Speech therapists current salary (from 1 January 1988)
Grades amended from 31 December 1987

Grade	Minimum £	Maximum £	Maximum, plus discretionary increase £
Grade A	8,250	8,903	—
Grade B	8,570	10,777	11,636
Grade C	11,198	14,103	15,233
Grade D	13,058	15,233	16,455
Grade E	15,233	17,777	19,207

Pharmacists

	Salary from 1 June 1975		Salary from 1 August 1979		Salary from 11 September 1982—31 March 1984		Current salary from 1 October 1986 (pay award pending)		Pharmacists who give a commitment to provide an emergency duty service
	minimum £	maximum £	minimum £	maximum £	minimum £	maximum £	minimum £	maximum £	minimum £	maximum £
Pre-registration student	2,580	—	3,509	—	4,659	—	5,388	—	—	—
Basic Grade Pharmacist	3,078	3,933	4,527	5,592	6,428	8,096	8,232	10,344	9,288	11,400
Staff Pharmacist	4,437	5,697	6,228	7,803	8,910	11,887	10,296	13,680	11,424	14,808
Principal Pharmacist Grade 3	5,844	7,824	7,995	10,458	12,120	16,339	14,016	18,816	15,216	20,016
Grade IV Pharmacist	6,876	7,923	9,275	10,588	15,401	16,994	17,808	19,632	18,720	20,544
Senior Grade IV Pharmacist	—	—	9,891	10,715	16,331	17,925	18,888	20,712	19,800	21,624
Grade V Pharmacist	7,665	8,346	10,263	11,118	16,597	18,191	19,188	21,060	20,124	21,996
Pharmaceutical Officers	7,368	9,270	9,891	12,278	16,331	20,314	18,888	23,472	19,800	23,520

Clinical Psychologists

	Salary from 1 April 1975		Salary from 1 August 1979		Salary from 11 September 1982 to 31 March 1984		Current Salary from 1 April 1987
	Minimum £	Maximum £	Minimum £	Maximum £	Minimum £	Maximum £	Minimum £	Maximum £
Probationary/Trainee Grade *A	2,277	3,078	3,486	4,527	5,681	6,759	7,825	8,404
Basic Grade	3,183	3,933	4,662	5,592	6,996	8,349	8,681	10,496
Senior Grade	4,437	5,697	6,228	7,803	9,010	11,649	11,164	14,591
Principal Grade	5,844	7,824	7,995	10,458	11,413	16,010	14,389	19,895
Top Grade	7,551	9,198	10,119	12,174	16,090	19,117	20,034	23,978
Top Grade (with *B Greater Responsibility)	7,779	10,386	10,404	13,656	18,285	21,311	22,667	26,624

Notes:
*A Title amended 1 February 1987.
*B Top Grade with plussage prior to 19 March 1982.

Swimming

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how much his Department spent, in each of the last three years for which figures are available, on the promotion of swimming as a form of healthy exercise.

Mrs. Currie: The promotion of swimming is not funded by the Department. The Health Education Authority includes swimming in its promotion of exercise as one aspect of a healthier way of life. It is not possible to quantify the cost of this separately.

Community Treatment Orders

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what representations he has received about the possible introduction of community treatment orders for the mentally ill; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: Representations are received from time to time on the question of compulsory treatment in the community. Discussions have been taking place within such organisations as the Mental Health Act Commission, the Royal College of Psychiatrists and MIND. At present, no concrete proposals have been put to the Department.

General Practitioners

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the number of general practitioners per 10,000 population for (a) England, (b) the Mersey region, (c) the Crewe health district, (d) the Chester health district and (e) the Halton health district.

Mrs. Currie: The information requested is collected from family practitioner committees which are not necessarily conterminous with health authority boundaries. Figures, as at 1 October 1986, are as follows:

	Number of general practitioners per 10,000 population
England	5·18
Mersey Region	5·14

	Number of general practitioners per 10,000 population
Cheshire FPC (including Crewe, Cheshire and Halton Health Districts)	5·00

Meningitis

Mr. Robert B. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will set out, in a table for each hospital in the North-West Hertfordshire district health authority, the number of cases of meningitis admitted for each month since January 1987.

Mrs. Currie: I regret that the information requested is not available centrally.

Private Health Insurance

Mr. Batiste: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what estimate he has of the proportion of (a) England and (b) Wales which is not covered, in whole or in part, by private health insurance.

Mrs. Currie: It is estimated that 91 per cent. of the United Kingdom population was without any form of private health insurance in 1986. The latest available estimate for England only is for 1983, when 92 per cent. of the population was without cover. Information for Wales is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Benefits

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many beneficiaries in the Seaham and Peterlee area have more than one pension, benefit or allowance paid from one book.

Mr. Portillo: The number of pensioners receiving a combined payment of retirement pension and supplementary benefit is as follows:

	Number
Seaham	571
Peterlee	1,222

Source: 100 per cent. count of cases in action at 28 July 1987.

I regret that information is not available on the number of claimants receiving any other combination of benefits on one order book.

Abortions

Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish the monthly figures for the cost of abortions carried out under the auspices of the National Health Service in the current financial year.

Mr. Newton: Information is not available in the exact form requested. However, the estimated cost of abortions carried out under the National Health Service, excluding those performed under agency arrangements with the private sector in each month of the current financial year, based on the number of notifications received in each of those months is as follows:

	£
April 1987	990,000
May 1987	967,000
June 1987	1,049,000
July 1987	1,183,000
August 1987	993,000
September 1987	1,017,000
October 1987	1,062,000
November 1987	1,103,000
December 1987	972,000
January 1988	950,000

Later information is not yet available.

Endometriosis

Mr. Bernie Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what assessment he has made of the adequacy of provision in the National Health Service for the diagnosis and treatment of endometriosis and of the suitability of the practice of same-day discharge of laparoscopy patients.

Mrs. Currie: Specialist advice and treatment for endometriosis are available in gynaecology departments in all health authorities. Following laparoscopy, patients are discharged when assessed as fit for discharge by their gynaecologist.

Health Inspectorate

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has any plans to set up a health inspectorate to visit acute services; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: Not at present, but I will bear my hon. Friend's suggestions in mind.

St. James's Hospital, Portsmouth

Mr. David Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many patients received in-patient care and attended out-patient clinics for mental illness at St. James's hospital, Portsmouth, for the latest two years available.

Mrs. Currie: The table shows the information available centrally on admissions and attendances at St. James's hospital and its subsidiary units. A patient may be readmitted or attend an out-patient clinic a number of times in any year.

	1985	1986
Number of admissions, for mental illness	1,766	1,609
Number of attendances to out-patient clinics conducted by psychiatric medical staff	11,547	10,469

Cot Deaths

Mr. David Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what is the latest annual number available for sudden infant death syndrome (cot death) for the United Kingdom and for the two previous years; and if he will make a statement;

(2) what is the latest annual number available for sudden infant death syndrome (cot death) for Hampshire and for the two previous years.

Mrs. Currie: The information is shown in the table. Data relate to Great Britain rather than the United Kingdom, since comparable data for Northern Ireland are not available. The latest available data year is 1986.

Number of deaths under one year of age with any mention of sudden infant death syndrome (ICD 9 798.0) on the death certificate, Great Britain, and Hampshire 1984-86

Year	Great Britain	Hampshire
[1]1984	1,383	45
[1]1985	1,444	63
[1]1986	1,654	62

[1] Provisional.

Variations to Product Licences

Mrs. Peacock: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the average length of time taken to deal with applications to variations to product licences in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: Information is not readily available in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The licensing authority is currently examining ways in which better statistical information can be produced, using new technology wherever possible. The time taken to process an application to vary a product licence can be days or months, depending upon the nature of the variation (for example, it may require extensive pharmaceutical or medical consideration) or on the number of applications being dealt with by the licensing authority at any one time.

Atenolol Tablets

Mrs. Peacock: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he expects the following PI Variations submitted by APS Ltd., to be approved: (a) Atenolol tablets 50 mg and 100 mg, new source of active ingredient, (b) Atenolol tablets 50 mg and 100 mg, new source of active ingredient, (c) Atenolol tablets 50 mg and 100 mg, improved assay method and (d) Stilboestrol tablets 1 mg and 5 mg.

Mr. Newton: The licensing authority notified APS Ltd. about its PI Variations for Atenolol on 5 February 1988 and about Stilboestrol on 22 December 1987. The outcome of the company's applications is regarded as confidential.

Special Payments

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish the formula under which he has calculated the special payment for pensioners and others to adjust for the proper level of inflation.

Mr. Scott: In the main, the maximum loss to retirement pensioners and other groups eligible for £8 special payments is £7·85 over the full two years affected by the error in the retail price index. The benefits in question have been 5p a week less than they would have been during 1987-88, a 53-week benefit year, and 10p a week less than they would have been during 1988-89, a 52-week benefit year. Mobility allowance will have been paid at rates 5p a week less than it would have been in each year, yielding a loss of £5·25; a special payment of £5 will be made on this benefit.

NHS Review

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services with which organisations or individuals he proposes to consult or from which he hopes to obtain views as part of his review of the National Health Service.

Mr. Moore: We should like to hear from any organisation with constructive proposals.

Mental Hospitals (Patients' Money)

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps he has taken to revise memorandum HM(71)90, published in 1971; and when he will publish the circular which will provide advice to mental hospital administrations on access to, and use of, patients' money.

Mr. Newton: We are considering whether a revised circular is needed at the present time to replace HM(71)90. We know that many hospitals are devising imaginative and useful schemes within the existing guidelines to use patients' money for their personal benefit and with a view to enhancing their quality of life.

Hospitals (Treatment Statistics)

Mr. Favell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many hospital in-patients and out-patients were treated in the latest year for which figures are available in each region; how many consultants are employed by each region; and at what annual cost.

Mrs. Currie: The information requested is set out in the tables.

Patients treated NHS hospitals, England 1986
All specialties

	Discharges and deaths	Day cases	New out-patients	Total out-patient attendances
England	6,413,789	1,050,158	8,767,788	37,727,608
Northern	441,095	81,047	602,318	2,564,607
Yorkshire	525,296	81,635	654,945	2,906,164
Trent	592,398	95,092	779,739	3,442,368
East Anglian	253,483	42,022	335,814	1,391,156
North West Thames	419,008	67,766	673,473	2,676,886
North East Thames	530,372	70,304	860,602	3,670,603
South East Thames	495,246	71,323	778,104	3,288,125
South West Thames	347,089	56,449	484,808	2,043,912
Wessex	366,421	63,297	468,549	1,854,115

	Discharges and deaths	Day cases	New out-patients	Total out-patient attendances
Oxford	299,270	39,901	397,586	1,564,003
South Western	417,443	63,375	516,671	2,006,240
West Midlands	673,375	93,403	855,524	3,840,664
Mersey	336,944	79,098	446,162	2,022,898
North Western	624,678	125,564	789,043	3,644,682
SHAs and BGs	91,671	19,882	124,450	811,185

Table 2
Hospital Medical and Dental Consultant staff[1] at 30 September 1986

whole-time equivalents

Region	All Staff	Costs (£'000)
Northern	918	35,669,000
Yorkshire	928	35,196,000
Trent	1,139	41,719,000
East Anglian	544	20,671,000
North West Thames	951	36,462,000
North East Thames	1,260	48,926,000
South East Thames	1,079	41,095,000
South West Thames	804	28,631,000
Wessex	720	27,131,000
Oxford	640	23,359,000
South Western	805	29,651,000
West Midlands	1,384	51,051,000
Mersey	659	25,390,000
North Western	1,204	48,609,000
SHA's	—	12,832,000

[1] Includes permanent paid, honorary and locum staff.

Brook Hospital

Mrs. Rosie Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many intensive treatment unit beds are currently closed at the Brook hospital; and for how long these beds have been closed.

Mrs. Currie: As I informed the hon. Member in my reply on 2 February at column 595, at present two of the eight intensive treatment unit beds at the Brook hospital are closed.

At the beginning of 1986 there was a nursing staff complement of 50 whole-time equivalents (WTEs) for eight intensive treatment unit beds plus six coronary care unit beds. Because of concern about the adequacy of these staffing levels, two of the intensive treatment unit beds were then closed. The nursing complement was also reviewed (using the recommendations of the Cheltenham study report on nurse staffing ratios) and increased to 57 WTEs for the six intensive treatment units plus two coronary care unit beds.

Mrs. Rosie Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many beds have been closed either temporarily or permanently over each of the past three years at the Brook hospital and Greenwich district hospital; and how long each closure lasted.

Mrs. Currie: I am sorry that I cannot give the hon. Member the information she seeks which is not held centrally. Details about the availability of beds at the Brook hospital and Greenwich district general hospital should be available from Greenwich health authority, and the hon. Member may wish to contact the district chairman.

Hospices

Mrs. Rosie Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list those district health authorities that do not have a hospice for the care of the terminally ill within their boundaries.

Mrs. Currie: The information is not collected centrally by the Department, but information collected by the hospice information service at St. Christopher's hospice indicates that as at November 1987 the following district health authorities had no in-patient hospice unit within their boundaries.

Northern Region
Darlington
Durham[1]
East Cumbria
Gateshead
Hartlepool[1]
North Tees[1]
North Tyneside
Northumberland
North West Durham
South Cumbria
South Tees[1]
South Tyneside[1]
South-West Durham
West Cumbria[1]

Yorkshire Region
Bradford[1]
Dewsbury[1]
East Yorks
Harrogate[1]
Hull[1]
Northallerton
Pontefract[1]
Scunthorpe[1]
Wakefield[1]

Trent Region
Barnsley[1]
Bassetlaw[1]
Central Nottinghamshire[1]
Doncaster[1]
North Derbyshire[1]
Rotherham[1]
South Lincolnshire[1]

East Anglian Region
East Suffolk[1]
Huntingdon
West Norfolk and Wisbech[1]
West Suffolk[1]

North West Thames Region
Barnet[1]
Brent[1]
East Hertfordshire[1]
Harrow
Hounslow and Spelthorne[1]
North Hertfordshire
Riverside[1]
South Bedfordshire[1]

[1]Districts with home care services or a support team for terminal care.

North East Thames Region
Basildon and Thurrock
Bloomsbury[1]
Enfield[1]
Haringey[1]
Islington[1]
Newham
Redbridge[1]
Tower Hamlets[1]
West Essex

South East Thames Region
Bexley[1]
Camberwell[1]
Dartford and Gravesham[1]
Greenwich[1]
Lewisham and North Southwark[1]
Maidstone[1]
South East Kent[1]
Tunbridge Wells[1]

South West Thames Region
Croydon
Mid-Surrey
Richmond, Twickenham and Roehampton
South West Surrey
Wandsworth

Wessex Region
Basingstoke and North Hampshire[1]
West Dorset[1]
Winchester [1]

Oxford Region
Aylesbury Vale[1]
West Berkshire[1]
Wycombe[1]

South Western Region
Frenchay
Gloucester[1]
North Devon[1]
Southmead

West Midlands Region
Bromsgrove and Redditch
Central Birmingham
Coventry[1]
Dudley[1]
East Birmingham
Kidderminster and District[1]
Mid Staffordshire
North Birmingham
North Warwickshire[1]
Rugby
Sandwell
Shropshire[1]
Walsall
Worcester and District[1]

Mersey Region
Chester[1]
Crewe[1]
Halton
Macclesfield
Southport and Formby[1]

North Western Region
Bolton
Burnley Pendle and Rossendale
Bury[1]
Central Manchester[1]
Chorley and South Ribble[1]
North Manchester
Oldham
Rochdale[1]
South Manchester[1]
Tameside and Glossop
Trafford

[1] Districts with home care services or a support team for terminal care.

Mrs. Rosie Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what advice he gives to district health authorities with regard to the provision of hospices for care of the terminally ill.

Mrs. Currie: The guidance given to health authorities by the Department on the planning and provision of terminal care services, including of hospices, is contained in health circular HC(87)4 of February 1987, a copy of which is in the Library.

Infant Feeding

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he expects to publish the report on present day practice in infant feeding from the chief medical officer's committee on medical aspects of food policy.

Mrs. Currie: "Present day practice in infant feeding: third report" is being published today. I warmly welcome this addition to what has become a notable series of scientific reports on feeding British babies and young children. It has been awaited eagerly by paediatricians, midwives, health visitors, and child dieticians. It breaks new ground for the series because it considers the one to five-year-olds as well as infants.

The authors are to be congratulated, particularly for their unequivocal statement that breastfeeding provides the best nutrition for babies. I shall make sure that all their recommendations are studied carefully and I am setting in hand arrangements for disseminating their main messages very widely.

National Health Service

Mr. Churchill: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will detail the increase in the cost of the National Health Service over the years, both in terms of percentage of gross domestic product and of the cost to the average family in constant 1988 prices.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 25 January 1988]: The information is as follows:

	NHS gross expenditure United Kingdom £ million (1987-88 prices)	Percentage of GDP[1]	Cost per annum per family of four[2] £
1979-80	16,248	4·9	1,157
1979-80	16,531	4·8	1,176
1980-81	18,102	5·3	1,285
1981-82	18,544	5·5	1,316
1982-83	18,852	5·5	1,339
1983-84	19,106	5·4	1,356
1984-85	19,628	5·5	1,391
1985-86	19,602	5·3	1,385
1986-87	20,417	5·4	1,439
1987-88	21,454	n/a	1,508

[1] GDP (E).
[2] Derived from per capita spending × 4.

Trent Regional Health Authority

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many consultants and doctors within the

Trent regional health authority are currently suspended on full pay on disciplinary grounds; and for how long the individual suspensions have been in operation;

(2) if he will obtain from the Trent regional health authority, and publish in the Official Report, the cost of the suspension on full pay of three consultants and one associate specialist in the authority, one of whom has been suspended since June 1982; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 29 January 1988]: Information supplied by Trent regional health authority shows there are four consultants and one associate specialist who have been suspended on full pay since respectively June 1982, April 1985, March 1987, April 1987, and January 1986. The total estimated salary costs of the suspensions to date amount to £455,797.

In the longest case of suspension the Secretary of State confirmed, in February 1986, the health authority's dismissal of a consultant after normal disciplinary and appeals procedures had been followed.

The consultant subsequently took legal action which resulted in a divisional court ruling that the Secretary of State's decision was invalid and that the case should be reconsidered. It is now being reviewed and a decision will be taken as soon as possible.

Because of concern about the length of time taken in such disciplinary cases, a working party including representatives of the Department, the professions and the NHS is currently reviewing the procedures.

NHS (Funding)

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will express (a) central Government funding and (b) health charges accruing to the National Health Service in 1979 and 1987-88 as a sum per (i) person, (ii) income taxpayer, (iii) household and (iv) average family of four.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 29 January 1988]: The information is as follows:

	At cash prices
	Gross expenditure		Net expenditure
	1978-79 £	1987-88 £ (estimated)	1978-79 £	1987-88 £ (estimated)
(i) Average expenditure per head	142	377	139	363
(ii) Per income taxpayer[1]	308	869	301	836
(iii) Per household[2]	400	998	391	961
(iv) Per family of four[3]	569	1,508	556	1,453
	At 1987-88 prices[4]
(i) Average expenditure per head	289	377	283	363
(ii) Per income taxpayer[1]	627	869	614	836
(iii) Per household[2]	812	998	795	961
(iv) Per family of four[3]	1,157	1,508	1,132	1,453

Notes:
[1] Number of income taxpayers 1978-79, 25·9 million; 1987-88, 24·7 million (projected)—Inland Revenue.
[2] Number of households 1978-79, 20·0 million; 1987-88, 21·5 million—Department of Environment.
[3] Notional family of four = per capita spending × 4.
[4] Revalued in line with GDP deflator at market prices.
All figures relate to the United Kingdom.

NHS (Waiting Lists)

Dr. Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what new proposals he has to cut waiting lists for operations within the National Health Service.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 2 February 1988]: The waiting list fund will be increased from £25 million to £30 million for 1988-89. On 18 December 1987 I wrote to the chairman of regional health authorities setting out our objectives for the waiting list initiative in 1988-89.

We are making the reduction of waiting time our prime objective, giving particular attention to serious or disabling conditions. As a first step, we are asking regions to adopt, as some aleady have, a target-based approach to waiting time.

We also want to see every district develop a local statement of policy on out-patient and in-patient waiting times, particulary for the major specialties and most frequently occurring conditions. Such a statement can flow only from constructive discussion between clinicians and managers and must take into account local services, rates of demand, facilities and resources.

The £30 million waiting list fund will be available for allocation to regions for specific waiting list projects. There is considerable scope for the Health Service to make cost-effective use of external sources of treatment for waiting list patients. For 1988-89 we expect the regional programmes to contain serious and substantial examples of projects making cost-effective use of facilities outside the district, whether they be in the private sector, or armed forces hospitals or in other districts.

Basingstoke and North Hampshire Health Authority

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what have been the numbers of patients, subdivided into convenient categories, waiting for (i) first appointments and (ii) subsequent treatment in the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority district each year since 1974-75, expressed also as a percentage increase or decrease on the previous year and on 1974-75 figures; and what were the average times of waiting.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The information available is set out in the tables.

Number of patients on in-patient waiting list for Basingstoke and North Hants District Health Authority from 31 March 1976 to 31 March 1987

Year	All cases			All urgent cases			All urgent cases on list for more than one month
	Number	Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1976[2]	Number	Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1976[2]	Number	Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1976[1]
1976	2,055	0	0	92	0	0	56	0	0
1977	2,259	9·9	9·9	93	1·1	1·1	67	19·6	19·6
1978	2,368	4·8	15·2	116	24·7	26·1	92	37·3	64·3
1979	3,239	36·8	57·6	107	−7·8	16·3	67	−27·2	19·6
1980	3,556	9·8	73·0	136	27·1	47·8	78	16·4	39·3
1981	3,178	−10·6	54·6	98	−27·9	6·5	80	2·6	42·9
1982	3,371	6·1	64·0	64	−34·7	−30·4	47	−41·3	−16·1
1983	3,511	4·2	70·9	103	60·9	12·0	78	66·0	39·3
1984	3,436	−2·1	67·2	112	8·7	21·7	94	20·5	67·9
1985	3,279	−4·6	59·6	132	17·9	43·5	100	6·4	78·6
1986	3,589	9·5	74·6	134	1·5	45·7	106	6·0	89·3
1987	2,411	−32·8	17·3	66	−50·7	−28·3	34	−67·9	−39·3

Year	Non-urgent cases			Non-urgent cases on list for more than one year
	Number	Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1976[2]	Number	Per cent. change over previous year	Per cent. change over 1976[2]
1976	1,963	0	0	588	0	0
1977	2,166	10·3	10·3	301	−48·8	−48·8
1978	2,252	4·0	14·7	470	56·1	−20·1
1979	3,132	39·1	59·6	608	29·4	3·4
1980	3,420	9·2	74·2	751	23·5	27·7
1981	3,080	−9·9	56·9	848	12·9	44·2
1982	3,307	7·4	68·5	837	−1·3	42·3
1983	3,408	3·1	73·6	1,045	24·9	77·7
1984	3,324	−2·5	69·3	1,234	18·1	109·9
1985	3,147	−5·3	60·3	831	−32·7	41·3
1986	3,455	9·8	76·0	920	10·7	56·5
1987	2,345	−32·1	19·5	474	−48·5	−19·4

[1] Percentage change figure based on 1982 as no data shown in 1974.
[2] Percentage change figure shown for 1976 as no data shown for 1974.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) to what extent the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority has benefited from the Government's special £50 million funding of their initiative to reduce waiting lists, in terms of financial support and additional personnel;

(2) how many more patients are likely to be treated by the Basingstoke and North Hampshire health authority as a result of additional funding through the Government's special funding to reduce waiting lists; and what categories of patients will benefit.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The Basingstoke and North Hampshire district health authority has been allocated £22,560 from the Wessex regional health authority's £1·4 million allocation from the £25 million waiting list fund for 1987-88. This funding is being used to finance two projects. The appointment of a bed allocation officer in the orthopaedic specialty will have a considerable impact on bed occupancy and throughput in this specialty. The appointment of an additional consultant in opthalmology is expected to enable 200 additional in-patients to be treated by 31 March 1988.

For 1988-89 the waiting list fund has been increased to £30 million. The regional allocations from the fund will be anounced shortly.

Waiting Lists (Leeds)

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list the number of patients awaiting (a) urgent and (b) non-urgent treatment in (i) Leeds Eastern health authority and (ii) Leeds Western health authority on the latest available figures; and if he will give the figures for the previous six and 12 months, respectively.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 1 February 1988]: The requested information is given in the table.

In-patient waiting lists in the following district health authorities

	Urgent	Non-urgent	Total
Leeds Eastern
31 March 1986	604	5,059	5,663
30 September 1986	493	4,651	5,144
31 March 1987	445	5,619	6,064
Leeds Western
31 March 1986	587	3,810	4,397
30 September 1986	443	4,033	4,476
31 March 1987	357	4,401	4,758

THE ARTS

"Arts in the Inner Cities"

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Minister for the Arts when he intends to publish the report "Arts in the Inner Cities", by Mr. Paul Collard.

Mr. Luce [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I have considered a survey submitted by Mr. Paul Collard and am placing a copy in the Library, together with a working document by the Arts Council, which I warmly welcome.

The Government do not accept many of the statements or recommendations in Mr. Collard's survey, in particular those elements which over-emphasise central intervention and the role of the public sector. I do not intend to publish it.

The Government believe that the arts can play an important part in helping to revitalise the inner cities, particularly where they have the support of local and private sector interests. Arts bodies do, however, need to present more clearly what they have to offer. I shall be considering how best to assist this over the next few months.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Disabled People

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what retraining facilities he intends to provide for the disabled unemployed in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Viggers: Retraining for the disabled unemployed is provided at the 12 training centres operated by the Department of Economic Development and at the Thomas Doran training centre, Dungannon which provides specialised training for the disabled. Where appropriate places are also obtained at specialised training colleges in Great Britain. Rehabilitation-resettlement is provided at the employment rehabilitation centre, Felden, Whiteabbey for those returning to work after an illness or accident. The provision of additional facilities is kept under review.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what further action he intends to take to counteract unemployment among disabled people in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Viggers: Disabled people are encouraged to use all the facilities provided through the jobmarket network including the restart and jobclubs schemes. Encouragement is also being given to the employment of disabled persons on Action for Community Employment (ACE) projects. Additional sheltered employment places are being provided with private employers for severely disabled people. Consideration is being given to improvements in the service provided by disablement resettlement officers. Discussions are also taking place with the Northern Ireland Council on Disability to seek further ways of improving employment opportunities for disabled persons.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what training and support facilities are available for the disabled unemployed in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Viggers: Training for unemployed disabled people is available on an integrated basis at training centres and on employers' premises through various departmental schemes. Specialised training is also available at the Thomas Doran centre, Dungannon. Home-based training in the use of computers has been introduced on a pilot basis for house-bound disabled people. It is intended to extend this form of training.

Support facilities are available through the disablement resettlement officers based in local jobmarkets.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what has been the unemployment rate for disabled people from 1980 to 1987 inclusive at all social security offices in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Viggers: Disabled persons claiming benefit do not have to indicate that they are disabled. The proportion of disabled persons who are unemployed is therefore not known.

Community Services

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the amount allocated to each district council in Northern Ireland for community services in the financial years from 1976-77 to 1986-87 inclusive.

Dr. Mawhinney: The amounts allocated by the Department of Education for Northern Ireland for community services recurrent costs are shown below. Details of amounts to cover capital costs are not readily available.

District Councils	1976-77	1977-78	1978-79	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
Antrim	2,223	8,577	25,065	18,750	25,336	27,375	40,500	43,050	43,875	47,250	51,750
Ards	5,219	11,250	12,500	15,000	18,784	19,950	22,500	25,050	28,125	32,250	37,500
Armagh	5,789	7,875	9,000	10,875	12,275	13,125	15,750	17,475	18,000	17,850	18,750
Ballymena	6,942	23,175	25,030	31,575	32,326	37,500	40,500	44,250	55,500	56,625	60,000
Ballymoney	322	2,250	1,500	1,350	874	2,025	7,200	6,150	6,375	6,750	7,500
Banbridge	—	—	—	2,250	4,151	9,900	13,500	16,275	16,875	16,950	17,625
Belfast	65,831	129,975	211,480	262,500	353,839	479,625	546,150	579,000	600,000	624,000	660,000
Carrickfergus	4,040	13,954	20,485	22,980	26,691	30,000	31,800	35,325	39,000	40,500	42,000
Castlereagh	10,812	43,050	52,420	45,055	56,353	61,050	68,250	72,525	76,500	81,000	93,750
Coleraine	4,084	8,520	12,200	14,250	22,148	24,900	27,750	29,475	30,750	33,000	33,750
Cookstown	2,138	5,250	5,250	4,690	4,543	4,500	5,400	5,775	6,000	6,600	6,750
Craigavon	31,630	65,438	111,800	107,250	128,867	138,750	161,250	171,150	176,250	183,750	192,750
Derry	17,306	53,625	78,375	92,250	123,188	106,500	117,000	117,000	120,000	124,500	124,500
Down	7,435	7,782	13,300	12,750	15,726	15,375	17,475	18,975	22,500	31,875	33,750
Dungannon	2,351	4,125	4,900	4,875	5,679	5,700	9,000	9,525	9,750	8,250	8,625
Fermanagh	4,222	8,213	11,250	13,275	21,405	24,000	31,125	34,275	36,000	37,500	40,500

District Councils	1976-77	1977-78	1978-79	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
Larne	5,739	11,240	15,100	14,625	19,220	20,400	24,900	25,650	26,250	27,000	21,750
Limavady	750	2,287	4,240	6,675	6,640	10,275	11,625	12,750	15,000	16,500	17,250
Lisburn	8,838	17,243	24,000	22,500	31,016	47,250	56,250	60,975	66,000	66,000	69,000
Magherafelt	—	2,625	2,650	2,625	2,883	2,400	4,125	4,425	4,875	5,100	5,250
Moyle	2,160	3,150	3,750	1,915	2,447	4,425	7,050	8,700	13,125	15,750	15,750
Newry and Mourne	4,643	28,383	45,450	46,500	61,158	64,875	75,375	82,350	86,250	91,500	95,250
Newtownabbey	19,871	29,625	37,200	43,405	45,213	45,000	45,900	48,750	57,750	60,000	57,250
North Down	4,978	14,429	17,000	21,225	25,774	27,225	31,125	34,575	34,500	45,000	50,250
Omagh	5,198	13,425	18,375	18,375	21,842	27,375	36,750	40,050	43,500	52,950	62,250
Strabane	11,512	25,350	39,750	42,370	48,752	49,500	57,750	55,500	58,500	66,750	73,500
Total	234,033	540,816	802,070	879,890	1,117,130	1,299,000	1,506,000	1,599,000	1,691,250	1,795,200	1,897,500

Equal Opportunities

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will consider establishing an equal opportunities unit within the Northern Ireland Council for Disability to be resourced by the Department of Economic Development.

Mr. Viggers: This question is currently under consideration.

Travel to Interview

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what definition is used by the Department of Economic Development of permanent post for the purposes of assessing applications under the travel-to-interview scheme; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Viggers: The job must be expected to last for more than one year.

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applications have been made under the travel-to-interview scheme operated by the Department of Economic Development; how many of these have been rejected on grounds that the posts applied for were not permanent ones; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Viggers: From its introduction in October 1986 until the end of December 1987, a total of 1,508 applications were made under the travel-to-interview scheme. Forty-four applications were rejected on the grounds that the posts applied for were not permanent ones.

School Nurse

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list in the Official Report, for each year over the last five up to the latest year for which figures are available, the following information with respect to school nurses: (a) the total number employed, given as total, whole-time, part-time and whole-time equivalent, (b) the establishment figure and (c) the number of vacant posts.

Mr. Needham: The information on numbers employed at 31 December each year is set out in the table. Information on establishments and vacant posts is not collected centrally and is not readily available.

Northern Ireland
Total Number of School Nurses 1982-1986

Year	Total	Whole-time	Part-time	Whole-time Equivalent
1982	97	60	37	82·64
1983	96	60	36	81·83
1984	96	60	36	81·49
1985	97	57	40	80·94
1986	92	53	39	76·57

Private Health Insurance

Mr. Batiste: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has of the proportion of the population of Northern Ireland which is not covered, in whole or in part, by private health insurance.

Mr. Needham: This information is not available.

Cars (Imports)

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many of the cars brought into Northern Ireland from the Irish Republic as formal imports in each month in 1987 were recorded as changing ownership within (a) one month and (b) two months of importation.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: Information in the form requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

General Practitioner Trainees

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what were the numbers of (a) general practitioner trainees per unit of management, (b) general practitioner training practices per population in each health unit of management and (c) candidates for the training programme, in each of the past five years.

Mr. Needham: The number of general practitioner trainees per unit of management is not available. The table shows the number of general practitioner trainees per health and social services board area.

	Health and Social Services Board
Year	Eastern	Northern	Southern	Western
1983	30	12	6	6
1984	22	13	9	7
1985	28	11	8	4
1986	26	[1]10	6	7
1987	26	11	8	4

[1] 1 resigned from Northern board during the year.

The number of general practitioner training practices per population in each health unit of management is not available. The table shows the number of general practitioner training practices per head of population in each Health and Social Services Board area. The figures for 1987 are not yet available.

	Health and Social Services Board
Year	Eastern	Northern	Southern	Western
1983	1:21,000	1:22,000	1:31,000	1:21,000
1984	1:22,000	1:24,000	1:28,000	1:28,000
1985	1:22,000	1:21,000	1:32,000	1:26,000
1986	1:23,000	1:21,000	1:29,000	1:29,000

Up to 1987 there were two annual intakes to the vocational training scheme, February and August. The numbers applying for each of the past five years are shown in the table. Unsuccessful candidates frequently reapply, thus the numbers given include a substantial degree of double counting.

Year	February Intake	August Intake
1983	42	58
1984	31	78
1985	38	77
1986	35	105
1987	43	112

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what are the criteria applied in the selection of general practitioner trainees and their allocation to training practices.

Mr. Needham: Any medical practitioner fully registered with the Central Medical Council may apply for a place on the Northern Ireland vocational training scheme for general practice. Applications are considered by a selection panel and thereafter successful candidates arrange for 12 months' general practice training with an approved general practice trainer.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what figures are available to indicate the allocation of general practitioner trainees to each training practice in each of the past five years.

Mr. Needham: It is not possible to provide this information in the form requested. However, over the past five years the average number of trainees per training practice in each health and social services board area was as follows:

	Number
Eastern Board	4·5
Northern Board	3·1
Southern Board	3·7
Western Board	3·3

Higher Education Students

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what figures are available to indicate the number of higher education students in Northern Ireland, excluding overseas students, who did not receive a full value award in each of the past five years, by granting authority.

Dr. Mawhinney: No figures are available.

Lesser-value Awards

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what figures are available to indicate the amounts of lesser-value awards, by granting authority in each of the past five years in Northern Ireland.

Dr. Mawhinney: The latest available information on the total cost of such awards is as follows:

Granting Authority	1981-82 £	1982-83 £	1983-84 £	1984-85 £	1985-86 £
Belfast Education and Library Board	135,465	130,696	110,520	173,600	197,166
North-Eastern Education and Library Board	166,617	184,547	230,191	305,746	331,465
South-Eastern Education and Library Board	82,197	90,027	105,459	117,162	121,280
Southern Education and Library Board	122,361	182,477	109,839	163,630	195,629
Western Education and Library Board	235,411	234,297	218,550	348,824	247,231

ENVIRONMENT

Green Belt

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received about his most recent planning guidance in respect of the use of green belt land.

Mr. Waldegrave: To date I have received no representations about planning policy guidance note 2, on green belts, the publication of which I announced on 20 January in reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Christchurch (Mr. Adley), at columns 745-46. The new guidance note contains no departure from established green belt policy.

Nuclear Waste

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the dispersal of radioactive waste under the sea and the use of sub-duction zones.

Mrs. Ree: The disposal of low and intermediate-level radioactive waste in a repository under the seabed, either with access from a tunnel from the shore or from an offshore structure, are two of the options currently being considered by UK Nirex Ltd. No consideration has been given by Nirex to the use of sub-duction zones for radioactive waste disposal.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his policy on co-operation with, and provision of information and documentation for, the European Parliament special commission of inquiry on problems of nuclear waste and materials management and transport in the European Economic Community member states.

Mrs. Roe: I am happy to co-operate with the European Parliamentary committee of inquiry appointed to investigate activities at the Belgian nuclear centre at Mol.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the proportional increase in the volumes of solid nuclear waste arising at Sellafield from the full operation of the site iron exchange plant.

Mrs. Roe: Less than 5 per cent.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what communication he has had with the European Commissioners for Energy and Environmental Affairs over the Commission's internal inquiry over recent problems of handling nuclear waste and its transport in the EEC.

Mrs. Roe: None, but I understand that my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Energy has been consulted by the European Commission about United Kingdom participation at a meeting of nuclear experts.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment by what proportion the volume of nuclear waste is expected to increase annually over present annual production when the thermal oxide reprocessing plant is commissioned for full operation.

Mrs. Roe: The volumes of untreated high, intermediate and solid low level nuclear wastes arising at Sellafield are expected to increase by 160 per cent. 40 per cent. and 40 per cent. respectively over present annual production when the thermal oxide reprocessing plant is commissioned for full operation.

Boxing

Mr. Allen McKay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what steps he intends to take to encourage the British Boxing Board of Control to eliminate unnecessary risk to boxers in fights.

Mr. Ridley: The Government plan no such steps. The safety of those taking part in professional boxing is a matter for the British Boxing Board of Control. British boxing is subject to stringent medical safeguards and the board's medical advisers take full account of the latest medical research.

Staff Dispersal

Mr. Cran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many divisions within his Department have been relocated out of London since 1979; what plans he has for further relocation; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ridley: Some 20,000 of the 32,000 staff in my Department, including PSA are already located outside London. Approximately 60 posts in the Crown Suppliers were moved from central London to Bootle in 1982. Some 70 posts comprising the Department's eastern regional office are to move from London to Bedford later this year. I am actively looking for other areas of work where relocation would be cost-effective and seek to ensure that, where practicable, appropriate work is carried out in the Department's regional offices.

Planning Appeals

Mr. David Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many planning appeals are being considered at this time; and how long before it takes to resolve such an appeal.

Mr. Waldegrave: On 31 December 1987 there were 12,090 planning appeals being processed in the Department. For those cases decided in December the median handling time from receipt to decision was 22 weeks.

Isle of Wight

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) why the Isle of Wight was omitted from the report "Developing the Rural Economy";

(2) why the Isle of Wight was not included in the areas selected by ECOTEC on behalf of the Development Commission.

Mr. Trippier: The ECOTEC report, "Developing the Rural Economy", was an assessment of the general effectiveness of the Development Commission's economic programmes. Only nine areas were selected for study solely to provide a representative cross-section of the rural areas in which the commission operates and the programmes it has provided. No significance therefore should be attached to the inclusion or omission of any particular area.

Water Supplies

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if refunds of water charges are available to householders who are dissatisfied with the quality and colour of their water supply; and how many disconnections of water supplies have occurred in the last five years where consumers have refused to pay water charges because of poor quality water.

Mrs. Roe: No refunds of water charges are available.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will take steps to obtain information on the disconnections of water supplies by (a) water authority and (b) local authority area.

Mrs. Roe: Information on the number of disconnections for non-payment is collected annually by my Department from each water authority. Latest figures for 1986-87 are as follows. Figures by local authority area are not available centrally.

	Number
North West	457
Northumbrian	300
Severn Trent	1,000
Yorkshire	293
Anglian	2,268
Thames	576
Southern	1,152
Wessex	0
South West	404
England	6,450

Local Authority Services

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a further statement on progress with contracting out local authority services by competitive tendering.

Mr. Ridley [pursuant to his reply, 4 November 1987, c. 735]: It has come to the Government's attention that a number of authorities are considering setting up companies, under their control, whose main function would be to carry out work which, if the Local Government Bill were enacted in its present form, would fall within a defined activity for the purposes of part I of the Bill. It seems probable that the main, or perhaps the only, purpose of setting up such companies would be to circumvent the Bill's competition provisions.

As the law presently stands, authorities to which section 135 of the Local Government Act 1972 or section 81 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973 applies must make standing orders to secure competition for contracts for the supply of goods or materials or for the execution of works, but are not required to do so in relation to contracts for the provision of services. It would therefore be possible, even after enactment of the Bill, for an authority to award to its own company, and without competition, a contract for work which, if carried out by the authority's own employees, would be subject to the competition provisions of part I of the Bill.

Although we are still considering, in the context of the Widdicombe report, the wider aspects of local authority involvement in companies, we have decided that this particular issue calls for immediate action.

We therefore propose to make it unlawful for an authority to enter into a contract with one of its own companies for the carrying out by the company of work which falls within any of the activities which are defined activities for the purposes of clause 2 of the Local Government Bill, unless the authority has taken steps for the purpose of securing competition for that work. This requirement is to have effect from midnight tonight.

An appropriate amendment to the Local Government Bill is being tabled today—its text is as follows.

The authorities to whom the new provision will apply are local authorities in England, Wales and Scotland (as defined in clause 1(2) and (3) of the Bill), police, fire and civil defence, waste disposal and passenger transport authorities and the Inner London education authority. For the purposes of the new provision, a company will be treated as an authority's own company if, as a result of a decision of the authority, either the authority itself, or any member or officer of the authority, or any nominee of the authority is a member of the company or its subsidiary or holding company.

After Clause 32

Insert the following new Clause—

("Local authority companies.

.—(1) A local authority or relevant public body shall not enter into a contract under which a company which is associated with the authority or body is to carry out work falling within a defined activity, unless, before entering into that contract, the authority or body has taken reasonable steps for the purpose of securing competition for the carrying out of that work.

(2) For the purposes of this section a company is associated with a local authority or relevant public body if, by virtue of any decision of the authority or body (including that of any committee or sub-committee thereof in the course of discharging any function conferred upon them by virtue of section 101 of the Local Government Act 1972, or, in relation to Scotland, section 56 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973)—

(a) the authority or body, or

(b) any member or officer of the authority or body, or

(c) any nominee of the authority or body,

is a member either of the company or of another company which, in accordance with section 736 of the Companies Act 1985, is the company's subsidiary or holding company.

(3) In this section—

(a) "defined activity" has the meaning assigned by section 2 above;

(b) "local authority" has the meaning assigned by subsection (2) or, as the case maybe, subsection (3) of section 1 above; and

(c) "relevant public body" means any authority or committee falling within paragraphs (e) to (j) of subsection (1) of section 1 above

(4) This section (and, so far as is relevant for the purposes of the definitions in subsection (3) above, sections 1 and 2 above) shall be deemed to have come into force on 11th February 1988 and, accordingly, has effect in relation to contracts entered into on or after that day.")

Local Authorities (Financial Aid)

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to seek to amend the law relating to the powers of a local authority to offer financial assistance to the owner of (a) a church or place of religious observance, (b) a training centre run by a voluntary organisation, (c) health care premises run commercially or by a voluntary body, (d) a small shop, (e) a restaurant, (f) a sports club and (g) industrial premises to make the property accessible for disabled people including wheelchair users.

Mr. Chope: No. Local authorities already have powers for these purposes.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 11 February 1988

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Maintenance Payments

Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Attorney-General if he will bring forward proposals to abolish the right of an ex-spouse to no-fault maintenance; and if he will make a statement.

The Attorney-General: No. Over the past 14 years the practice has been developed by the courts that conduct is relevant to only a limited number of applications for financial relief. That practice was approved by the Law Commission in 1981 and has statutory authority in section 25 of the Matrimonial Causes Act 1973, as amended by section 3 of the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984.

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Attorney-General whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all departmental premises of his office and the Lord Chancellor's Office.

The Attorney-General: There is no need for the Lord Chancellor to issue such an instruction as there is no evidence that this is a problem in his Department. The Department's equal opportunity policy statement makes it clear that displays of pin-ups causing offence may amount to sexual harassment which will not be tolerated and may be the subject of disciplinary proceedings.

There is no offensive pin-up in my own Department.

"Stalker"

Mr. Gerald Bowden: To ask the Attorney-General if he has completed consideration of whether to prosecute Mr. John Stalker under the Official Secrets Acts in relation to information in his book "Stalker".

The Attorney-General: I have concluded that a prosecution would not be in conformity with the code for Crown prosecutors issued pursuant to the Prosecution of Offences Act 1985.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Confidential Discussions

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to the reply by the hon. and learned Member for Putney (Mr. Mellor), Minister of State in his Department, on 18 January Official Report, column 495, what criteria are used to decide whether discussions with foreign affairs departments or Ministers in other states are to be considered as confidential; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: We consider all exchanges with foreign Governments to be confidential unless their details are publicised by mutual agreement.

Chile

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Newham, North-West (Mr. Banks) on 18 November 1987, Official Report, column 592, what assessment he has made of the extent to which the judicial system in Chile conforms with international accords on human rights; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: The answer given to the hon. Member for Newham, North-West (Mr. Banks) on 18 November did not imply that in our opinion the Chilean judicial system conforms with international accords on human rights. We take every opportunity to make clear to the Chilean Government our view that their judicial system reflects serious shortcomings. We have also made clear our view that they should publish in their official Gazette their ratification of the international covenant on civil and political rights, so as to give full effect to that covenant in domestic courts.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his reply of 18 November 1987, Official Report, column 593, what assessment he has made of the extent to which the forthcoming plebiscite in Chile represents a transition to democracy.

Mr. Mellor: We remain concerned to see an early return to democracy in Chile. The Chilean people themselves will have the chance to decide who will be their future president when they go to the polls in the forthcoming plebiscite. We hope that the campaign and poll will be freely and fairly conducted, with full opposition access to the media.

Disarmament and Development

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action Her Majesty's Government have taken following the adoption at the recent United Nations conference on the relationship between disarmament and development of a final document calling for studies and planning related to a conversion of military industry to civilian production, and consequent action.

Mr. Mellor: We are committed to the search for balanced, equitable and verifiable measures of arms control that maintain the United Kingdom's security. Given the small size of the Government defence industry and in the absence of relevant arms control agreements, we do not believe that a case has been made for consideration of such studies or planning by the Government.

Hong Kong (Animal Welfare)

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will seek to prevent the sale by auction by the Hong Kong authorities of illegally imported animal tusks, skins and antlers which have been confiscated.

Mr. Mellor: No. The confiscated animal tusks, skins and antlers being offered for sale by auction by the Hong Kong Government, are listed under appendix II of the convention on international trade in endangered species of wild fauna and flora (CITES), for which trade for commercial purposes is allowed under strict licensing control. These goods were seized by the Hong Kong Government over the last three years from illegal importers as a result of stringent enforcement action.

The sale is being conducted in accordance with CITES guidelines and with the endorsement of Hong Kong's endangered species advisory committee, a statutory body which advises the Hong Kong Government on all endangered species protection matters. Successful tenderers must obtain appropriate possession licences, or registration in the case of ivory tusks, before they may take possession of the goods.

All species listed in CITES appendix II are not immediately threatened with extinction, but may become so unless trade in such species is strictly regulated through licensing control in order to prevent overexploitation.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will provide details by animal species of the tusks, skins and antlers seized by the Hong Kong authorities and due for auction on 26 February.

Mr. Mellor: The items due for auction on 26 February consist of:

638 pieces of elephant ivory tusk,
Nine pieces of lynx skin,
Six pieces of wild cat skin,
96 pieces of otter skin,
18 pieces of red deer antler,
250 pieces of alligator-crocodile,
1,708 pieces of monitor lizard skin,
246 pieces of python skin,
239·2 kgs of elephant ivory cut pieces,
81·2 kgs of elephant ivory scraps,
2·9 kgs of wild American ginseng.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

USA (Veto Powers)

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is Her Majesty's Government's policy towards the attempts by the United States Administration to gain veto powers in international organisations, in particular the Food and Agriculture Organisation, and the Inter-American Development Bank; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chris Patten [holding answer 9 February 1988]: According to our understanding, the United States Government are not seeking to gain veto powers in either of these organisations.

The agreement establishing the Inter-American Development Bank, however, contains a requirement for a two-thirds majority for all decisions concerning the operations of the concessional fund for special operations. This effectively requires United States consent to such decisions, unless its voting power were to fall below one third. The United Kingdom accepted this, with other provisions of the agreement, when it joined the bank.

PRIME MINISTER

Basingstoke

Q10. Mr. Hunter: To ask the Prime Minister whether she plans to visit Basingstoke in the current year.

Mr. Wakeham: I have been asked to reply.
My right hon. Friend has at present no plans to do so.

East Stow

Q11. Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if she has any plans to make an official visit to East Stow.

Mr. Wakeham: I have been asked to reply.
My right hon. Friend has at present no plans to do so.

Thurrock

Q106. Mr. Janman: to ask the Prime Minister if she has any plans to visit Thurrock in the near future.

Mr. Wakeham: I have been asked to reply.
My right hon. Friend has at present no plans to do so.

EC (Finance)

Q108. Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister what proposals have been submitted by the Commission to the February meeting of the European Council in relation to the financial problems facing the community; and if she will make a statement.

Mr. Wakeham: I have been asked to reply.
During 1987 the Commission published a number of proposals which were considered at the European Council in Copenhagen. It has submitted no new proposals since.

Engagements

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Thursday 11 February.

Mr. Wakeham: I have been asked to reply.
My right hon. Friend is in Brussels for a meeting of the European Council.

Trade Unions (Leaders)

Mr. Eadie: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to her reply of 8 February, if she regards leaders of trade unions who meet her in their representative capacity as private individuals.

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Gentleman to my reply of 8 February, at column 46. I have also made clear that my normal practice is not to provide details of the many engagements and meetings I undertake in the course of each day.

Civil Service

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Prime Minister (1) if she will list the studies into the future of the Civil Service currently being undertaken;

(2) if she will list studies into the future of the Civil Service completed in the last 12 months; and if she will place copies of the reports in the Library.

The Prime Minister: The only study into the future of the Civil Service which has been conducted during the last 12 months is the efficiency unit's current study on the next steps in improving management in government, which is still under consideration.

"The Next Steps"

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Prime Minister if she will place in the Library a copy of Sir Robin Ibbs report "The Next Steps".

The Prime Minister: The Government are considering Sir Robin Ibbs' report, together with the question of its publication.

Efficiency Unit

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Prime Minister (1) if she will list all the studies undertaken by her efficiency unit in the past;

(2) if she will list studies currently being undertaken by her efficiency unit.

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Beaconsfield (Mr. Smith) on 19 January, at column 598.

Parliamentary Questions

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Prime Minister if she will make it her policy that on occasions when it is only possible to answer parliamenatry questions at disproportionate cost with full replies, a reply is provided containing such information as is compatible with an acceptable cost; and if she will make it the policy of Her Majesty's Government that all Government Departments adopt a similar policy on the provision of information.

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Newham, North-West (Mr. Banks) on 29 October 1987, at column 358, and to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Lord President of the Council to the hon. Member for Workington (Mr. Campbell-Savours) on 3 February, at column 618.

The decision on whether to give a partial reply to questions involving disproportionate cost is also a matter for the judgment of individual departmental Ministers. I shall continue to deal with such questions in the light of the particular circumstances of each case.

Advertising

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Prime Minister how much the Government have spent on advertising during the last 12 months.

The Prime Minister: Information on publicity costs, including advertising is held centrally only where the expenditure is incurred through the Central Office of Information. All other publicity and information expenditure is a matter for each Department.

Expenditure on advertising by the Central Office of Information on behalf of all Government Departments for the financial year 1986-87 was £104 million inclusive of COI overheads and value added tax.

ENVIRONMENT

Footpaths and Bridleways

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what positive moves he is taking to promote public awareness of their ancient rights of travel on public footpaths and bridleways.

Mrs. Rae: The Countryside Commission has recently published proposals for improving and extending public enjoyment of the countryside, including measures for raising awareness of a variety of recreational activities. My right hon. Friend welcomes this initiative.

Water Authorities

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he last met the chairman of the water authorities; and what matters were discussed.

Mr. Ridley: I last met the chairman of the water authorities on 19 January. We discussed many things, including the way ahead to the earliest practicable establishment of the National Rivers Authority, and privatisation.

Sites of Special Scientific Interest

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he next plans to meet the Nature Conservancy Council to discuss any threat to sites of special scientific interest arising from commercial interests in England and Wales.

Mrs. Rae: As is well known, Ministers and officials in my Department work closely with the council and my right hon. Friend will be meeting the council on 25 February to discuss a wide range of issues of mutual interest.

Council House Sales

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a further statement on the progress in the sales of council houses under the right-to-buy legislation.

Mr. Waldegrave: Up to the end of September 1987, some 654,100 council tenants in England had bought their homes under the right-to-buy legislation. Sales last year were running a little higher than in 1985 and 1986, and are expected to rise further following the substantial increase in applications received.

West Yorkshire Waste Management Joint Committee

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will take urgent steps to announce the capital allocation to the West Yorkshire waste management joint committee for 1988-89; if he will publish details of the reasons for the delay in this announcement; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rae: The capital allocations for waste regulation and disposal will, as in previous years, be announced before the end of February.

Homelessness

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his latest estimate of the public sector revenue costs of housing homeless families in each of the London boroughs (a) by providing them with newly built council dwellings, (b) by providing them with council dwellings acquired from the private sector and newly improved for letting and (c) by providing them with bed-and-breakfast accommodation; and if he will publish these figures on a comparable basis with those published in his replies to the hon. Member for Southwark and Bermondsey of Thursday 21 January, Official Report, column 826.

Mrs. Rae: The information on which my hon. Friend's estimates of the new build and acquisition and renovation costs were based was Londonwide and cannot reliably be broken down by individual authority area. The information on bed and breakfast costs was derived from CIPFA's publication "Homelessness Statistics, 1986-87 Actuals", copies of which are in the Library. This gives figures of gross expenditure and household days for those authorities which responded to CIPFA's questionnaire.

Fur Farms

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he will list those bodies which he will usually consult when considering planning applications for new fur farms over any likely detrimental impact upon the local environment.

Mr. Waldegrave: Decisions on most planning applications are taken by local authorities who will consider each case on its individual merits. Article 15 of the Town and Country Planning General Development Order 1977 lists the bodies which authorities are statutorily required to consult before granting planning permission for any particular development. There are no specific consultation requirements for applications for new fur farms. Apart from the statutory requirements, generally it is for local authorities to decide the extent of consultation in particular cases.

Toxic Waste

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the amount and extent of the tipping of toxic waste in the west midlands.

Mrs. Rae: I am advised by the waste disposal authorities that 324,049 tonnes of special waste were disposed of in the West Midlands county area in 1986-87.

Empty Council Houses

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many local authority dwellings were vacant at the most recent date for which figures are available in (a) Vale Royal and (b) Chester; how many had been vacant for over six months; and what where the figures represented as a percentage of stock.

Mrs. Rae: The information derived from the authorities' 1987 housing investment programme returns is as follows:

Vacant local authority dwellings at April 1987

	Total vacant	Percentage of stock	Number vacant for more than six months	Percentage of stock
Chester	106	1·3	2	[1]—
Vale Royal	136	1·4	1	[1]—

[1] Less than 0·05 per cent.

Economic League

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if his Department has made use of the services provided by the Economic League since 1979.

Mr. Ridley: No.

Chelsea Football Club

Mr. Pendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to his answer of 20 November 1987, Official Report, column 684, why he has now decided to instigate an independent public inquiry into the proposed development by Chelsea football club at Stamford Bridge; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Trippier: The planning application for this site was notified to my right hon. Friend on 8 January as a departure from the Greater London Development Plan. My right hon. Friend accordingly considered the proposals afresh, in the light of the papers sent by Hammersmith and Fulham council and the further representations he had received. He concluded that the application should be called in for his decision. Arrangements are being made for a public local inquiry to be held as soon as possible.

Housing Corporation

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he will now give details of the Housing Corporation's approved development programme for 1988-89.

Mr. Waldegrave: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment announced on 3 November that the gross provision for the Housing Corporation in 1988-89 would increase by nearly £50 million to £735 million and that we hoped that the extra public resources would increasingly be augmented by private finance under mixed funding arrangements.

The £737 million programme we have now approved (which takes account of an additional £2 million in forecast capital receipts) includes provision for the first year's expenditure on a £58 million grant programme for new mixed funding schemes. This should allow the corporation to approve schemes providing some 3,300 homes at a total cost of £126 million—over 25 per cent. more than planned for the current year's experimental programme. This new programme will include at least £20 million worth of schemes to help homeless families and especially those in bed and breakfast accommodation.

Provision for the homeless will also be among the priorities for the conventionally funded programme for housing for rent which will be maintained at the same level as 1987-88. And within this programme priority will also be given to reimprovement schemes which, together with increased spending on major repairs, will help bring empty properties back into full use. Another significant area for expansion is the low-cost home ownership programmes under which the corporation should be able to approve nearly one third more new homes than in the current year and which we hope to see expanded further by the introduction of mixed funding wherever possible. In allocating the resources for new rented projects, the percentage of investment in the 81 designated urban stress areas will be maintained, but the guidelines for allocations to rural areas will be revised. Priority will no longer be confined to the designated rural stress areas and schemes will be targeted on smaller and more isolated agricultural settlements with a view to doubling the present level of provision by housing associations in these areas.

The breakdown of the approved development programmes for 1988-89 is as follows:

Housing corporation—approved development programme 1988-89

	£ million
Net allocation (cash limit)	655
Receipts	82
Gross allocation	737
HOUSING FOR RENT
Conventionally funded projects
1. Contracted expenditure	371
2. New tenders approved	145
3. New projects approved	63
Mixed funding projects
4. Committed expenditure	14
5. New projects approved	25
Major repairs
6. Committed expenditure	28
7. New projects approved	10
Mini HAG
8. Committed and new projects	3
HOUSING FOR SALE
Improvement for sale, Leasehold for the elderly, shared ownership and home ownership for tenants of charitable associations
9. Comitted expenditure	50
10. New projects approved	26
RTB
11. Mortgages and other expenditure	2

Notes:

1. £7·7 million has been included in Housing for Rent and for Sale to cover the costs of certain projects in Merseyside.
2. The allocation of funds for new conventionally funded rented projects (Block 3) will initiate projects to a total cost of some £510 million to be completed over the next three to four years.
3. The allocation of funds for new mixed funding rented schemes (Block 5) will allow the Corporation to approve schemes requiring a total of £58 million grant.

Property Services Agency and Crown Suppliers

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what studies and reports have been, and are being undertaken on the operation of the Property Services Agency and the Crown Suppliers from 1979 up to the latest date available.

Mr. Chope [holding answer 29 January 1988]: The table sets out, on the information available, studies and reports which were made on the operation of the Property Services Agency in each of the years 1979-80 to 1987-88, and the studies still in progress at present. It excludes internal studies and reports (but includes those led by other, central Departments). The first part of the list relates to the Property Services Agency, except for the Crown Suppliers. The second part relates to the Crown Suppliers alone.

Part 1: Property Services Agency (except the Crown Suppliers)

1979-80

Estate Management Case Study (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]
Energy Conservation on the Government Estate (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]
Works Transport (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]
Administration Costs (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]

1980-81

Repayment System for PSA Services[3]
Custody Guard Service (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]
Economy in New Building Works for the Armed Services (Efficiency Scrutiny)[14]

1981-82

Report on Fees Paid to Works Consultants (Public Accounts Committee)
Report on Frauds and Irregularities in the PSA (Public Accounts Committee)
Report on Investment Appraisal in Government generally (Public Accounts Committee)[3]

1982-83

Resource Control Reviews—Study of District Works Offices in the Property Services Agency (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]
Report of the Working Group on Design Costs (Messrs Davis-Sweet and others)[3]
Report on Contracts Functions (Deloitte Haskins and Sells)
Interim Report to the Secretary of State for the Environment on Cases of Fraud and Corruption in the PSA (Wardale-Touche Ross)[6]
Multi Departmental Review of Personnel Work (Efficiency Unit)[2]

1983-84

Final report to the Secretary of State for the Environment on Cases of Fraud and Corruption in the PSA (Wardale/Touche Ross)[3]
Report on Economy Measures in Civil, Defence and Overseas estates (Public Accounts Committee)[6]
Report on Building Maintenance Expenditure in the United Kingdom (Public Accounts Committee)
Report on Systems Control in District Works Offices [in the light of the Wardale Report] (Public Accounts Committee)

1984-85

Report on Main Estimates 1984-85 (Environment Committee)
Report on Building Maintenance (Comptroller ad Auditor-General)
Report on Action Plans in the PSA on the Wardale Report and on Building Maintenance Expenditure (Public Accounts Committee)
Report on Economy Measures in Civil, Defence and Overseas estates (Public Accounts Committee)
Report on Defence Works in the Falkland Islands (Public Accounts Committee)
Multi-Departmental Review of Consultancy, Inspection and Review (CIR) capability in Government Departments (Efficiency Unit, Cabinet Office)[2]
Multi-Departmental Review of the Identification of Internal Talent (Efficiency Unit)[2]

1985-86

Identification and Disposal of Surplus Property (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]
Report on Main Estimates 1985-86 (Environment Committee)
Multi-Departmental Review of Budgetary Control (HM Treasury)[2]
Report on the Programme for the Provision of Prison Places (Comptroller and Auditor General)
Report on Court Building Programmes (Public Accounts Committee)
Report on Prison Building Programmes (Public Accounts Committee)
Multi-Departmental Review of Office Accommodation (former Management and Personnel Office)[2]
Report on Capital Expenditure Projects (Efficiency Unit, Cabinet Office)[3]
Report on follow up to the Multi-Departmental Review of CIR services (HM Treasury and former Management and Personnel Office)[2]

1986-87

Specialist Professional Advice within PSA (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]
Report on Commercial Accounts (Deloitte, Haskins and Sells)

Report on Main Estimates 1986-87 (Environment Committee)
Report on Management of the Defence Estate (National Audit Office)
Report on Management of the Civil Estate (National Audit Office)
Report into the Property Services Agency (Environment Committee)
Multi-Departmental Review of Use of Private Enterprise in Government Departments (Efficiency Unit, Cabinet Office)
Report on Internal Audit in Central Government (National Audit Office)[2]
Report of Working Group of Capital Expenditure Projects (HM Treasury)[2]
Report of Working Group on Major Capital Projects (HM Treasury)[2]
Report on further follow up to the Multi-Department Review of CIR services (HM Treasury and former Management and Personnel Office)[2]

1987-88
Report on Control and Management of the Trident Programme (National Audit Office)[7]
Project Management in the PSA (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1 8]
Study on Management of the Civil Estate (National Audit Office)[9]
Study on Management Controls in District Works Offices (National Audit Office)[9]
Study of Commercial Management of HM Dockyards (National Audit Office)[7 9]
Study on the Employment of Works Consultants by Government Departments and Health Authorities (National Audit Office)[9]
Study on National Energy Efficiency (National Audit Office)[9]

Part 2: The Crown Suppliers
1983-84
Report on Supplies Transport Branch (Cranfield Institute of Technology)
PSA Supplies Market Research Consultancy (Farnfield Marketing Consultancy)
Multi Departmental Review of Government Purchasing: Contract and Procurement Procedures (former Management and Personnel Office)[2]

1984-85
Government Car Service and Inter-departmental Despatch Service (Efficiency Scrutiny)[1]

1985-86
Report on the Future of the Crown Suppliers (former Management and Personnel Office)[6]

1986-87
Report on the Future of the Crown Suppliers (Central Unit on Purchasing)[2]
Study into the Feasibility of Privatisation of the Crown Suppliers (Coopers and Lybrand)
Review of the Crown Suppliers (Mr. D. W. Jones)[11]

Notes

1. Efficiency Scrutinies are carried out under the aegis of the Cabinet Office's Efficiency Unit. They include in this list studies formerly known as Rayner Scrutinies.

2. These studies applied to certain other Government Departments as well as to PSA, and were led by the central Department(s) indicated;

3. The Working Group which carried out this study was led by Sir Derek Rayner, then adviser to the Prime Minister on Efficiency.

4. This Scrutiny was undertaken jointly with the Ministry of Defence.

5. This Working Group included Mr. R. O'B Davis, a partner in Coopers and Lybrand, and Mr. C. Sweet a consultant quantity surveyor as well as representatives from HM Treasury and the PSA.

6. The interim and the final reports of the Wardale Enquiry were written by Sir Geoffrey Wardale, formerly Second Permanent Secretary to the Department of the Environment, and Mr. A. G. Herron a partner in Touche Ross.

7. These studies apply also to the Ministry of Defence.

8. This Scrutiny was undertaken jointly with the Central Unit on Purchasing.

9. These studies are currently in progress.

10. These studies apply also to other Departments.

11. Mr. D. W. Jones is a procurement consultant, formerly an executive in Esso Petroleum.

Rateable Antiquities

Mr. Cormack: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he proposes to publish his consultative document on portable antiquities.

Mr. Moynihan [pursuant to his reply, Friday 29 January, c. 398]: My Department and the Welsh Office are today issuing a consultation paper seeking comments on the present arrangements for reporting funds and inviting suggestions for possible changes in the present law or administrative procedures. The paper explains how archaeological knowledge can be lost if finds are not reported. It asks for views on alternative arrangements, including how they might be implemented and enforced.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Hurd: All managers have been advised to ensure that no material which is likely to be found sexually offensive is displayed in the workplace; and to deal promptly with any complaints.

Firearms (Amendment) Bill

Mr. Bernie Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received about the level of consultation on his Firearms (Amendment) Bill.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Several hon. Members raised this matter during the Second Reading debate in the House on 21 January. Representations have also been received from shooting organisations and members of the public.

Wormwood Scrubs (Annex)

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement as the future of the annex in Wormwood Scrubs.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I assume my hon. Friend is referring to the psychotherapeutic annex, which is often called the hospital annex.

The annex is to continue operating, and there are no plans to change its role or methods of working. During the present preliminary redevelopment phase the annex will be moved from the north end of B hall to the south end above the temporary hospital. We intend that, following other redevelopment work, the annex will be permanently located at the north end of one of the halls, where 36 cells with integral sanitation will be provided with office, meeting room and ancillary facilities for the exclusive use of the annex.

Police (Complaints)

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps police forces take to monitor and analyse the ethnic origin of complaints regarding police behaviour; what is the practice of the Police Complaints Authority in this respect and whether the results of these excercises are made public.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Information about the practices of individual police forces in this regard is not held centrally. The Police Complaints Authority does not itself routinely receive complainants or interview complaints and does not therefore collect statistics of this kind.

Telephone Tapping

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he next expects to receive the judicial review on telephone tapping.

Mr. Douglas Hurd: I expect my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister to present Lord Justice Lloyd's next annual report to the House in March 1988.

Television Licences

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received concerning the abolition of television licences for pensioners: and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Renton: Since 1 January this year one petition forwarded by an hon. Member has been received, and four members of the public have written seeking free television licences for pensioners.

Staff Dispersal

Mr. Cran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many divisions within his Department have been relocated out of London since 1979; what plans he has for further relocation; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Hurd: Since 1979 two main units of the Home Office have been moved from London. The computing and pay services division (301 posts) was relocated to Bootle in 1982-83, and the Prison Service south-east regional office (74 posts) to Woking in 1987. The transfer of at least 50 posts from the London Passport Office to Glasgow is planned to start later in the year. For future policy I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Paymaster General's answer of 18 January to a question from the hon. Member for East Kilbride (Mr. Ingram), at columns 475-76.

Game Licences

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for modifying the system of game licences.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: None at present.

Mr. Ronald J. Garcia (Visa)

Mr. Maxwell-Hyslop: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why the consular section of the British embassy in Manila had not received instructions to issue a visa to Mr. Ronald J. Garcia as of 27 January, despite his having had his appeal against refusal of a visa allowed by the tribunal at Southampton on 6 September 1987; and when such instructions will be issued to the British embassy in Manila.

Mr. Renton: On 30 November a copy of the adjudicator's determination was sent to the British embassy in Manila. In accordance with normal practice where a visit visa is refused and the applicant's appeal is subsequently upheld, but no direction is given by the adjudicator, I would expect Mr. Garcia to be invited for interview to have his case reconsidered in the light of current circumstances. We have been in touch with Manila in the light of the hon. Member's representations and the entry clearance officer will certainly bear in mind the adjudicator's careful determination.

War Crimes (Inquiry)

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will specify the powers available to Sir Thomas Hetherington and Mr. William Chalmers to require witnesses to testify in the inquiry on war crimes; and which authority they have to compel the giving of evidence.

Mr. Hurd: They will have no powers to compel witnesses to give evidence. In this respect they will be in the same position as the police and the prosecuting authorities generally are when dealing with alleged offences under the existing criminal law.

Machine Gambling (Counselling)

Mr. Andrew Hargreaves: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish a list of organisations with which his Department has contacts which offer a counselling service to people addicted to machine gambling.

Mr. John Patten: In the course of our review of the law on amusement arcades we have had information from the organisations Parents of Young Gamblers and the Gordon House Association, both of which, I understand, offer such a service. We have also been in touch with the probation service: the work of the service can include counselling offenders with problems of addiction. Other organisations in contact with us in the review may offer services of which we are not aware.

Michael Ryan (Guns)

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list all the automatic and fully automatic guns owned by the late Michael Ryan; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I understand from the chief constable that extensive investigations carried out by the Thames Valley police since the Hungerford shootings into the weapons held by Michael Ryan have not disclosed any substantive evidence that Ryan was ever in possession of automatic or fully automatic weapons. He was lawfully entitled to possess the following self-loading weapons:

Beretta 9 mm pistol
Bernadelli ·22 pistol
CZ OR50 ·32 pistol
Kalashnikov 7·62 mm rifle
Underwood Carbine ·30 rifle

Data Protection

Mr. Robert Hicks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether codes of practice for police computer systems relating to the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1984 have yet been published; and whether he will place copies in the Library.

Mr. Hurd: The Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Chief Police Officers (Scotland) have now published codes of practice and copies have been placed in the Library.

Organisations (Infiltration)

Ms. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will introduce legislation to make it a criminal offence for any person to infiltrate or join under false pretences a trade union or other organisation for the purpose of supplying confidential information about that organisation to other persons or bodies not authorised to receive such information; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten [holding answer 5 February 1988]: No.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

COCOM

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the value of exports of COCOM licensed aircraft to the eastern bloc countries for each year from 1980 to 1985.

Mr. Alan Clark: Export licence records are not classified by special goods or by value. It would thus be possible to supply the information only at disproportionate cost.

Racal (Equipment Sales)

Mr. Janner: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to complete his investigations into alleged sales of military or sensitive equipment by Racal to the Palestine Liberation Organisation in 1981: and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Alan Clark: An investigation by the Departments concerned into the allegations made just over a week ago is under way. My Department has invited the newspaper concerned and anyone else who may have documents or other relevant information which might help the investigation to make these available. The investigation will be completed as soon as possible.

Rover Group (Positive Vetting)

Mr. Corbett: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he will issue a direction to the Rover Group to cease the political vetting of job applicants; and whether he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: Questions relating to recruitment and personnel are matters for the company.

Crown Copyright

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he has any proposals for changing Crown copyright.

Mr. Butcher: The Copyright, Designs and Patents Bill currently in another place will repeal the Copyright Act 1956 and replace it with a fresh statement of the law of copyright. Clause 151 sets out the provisions relating to Crown copyright. The most significant changes to the existing law are that the Crown's entitlement to copyright in works first published by the Crown will be repealed and the indefinite duration of copyright in unpublished Crown copyright works will be limited to 125 years.

Communications Equipment (Licences)

Mr. Janner: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he will now review requirements for the provision of licences for the supply of communications equipment.

Mr. Alan Clark: No.

PLO (Export Licences)

Mr. Janner: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what export licences he has issued for the supply of goods to the Palestine Liberation Organisation, for each of the past 10 years.

Mr. Alan Clark: Records of export licences are classified, where applicable, by applicant or country of destination rather than by end-user or consignee. The Palestine Liberation Organisation has not been so listed.

Regional Aid

Mr. Eastham: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many jobs he expects to be sustained by regional selective assistance in 1988-89; and how many jobs have been sustained by all regional assistance in 1987-88.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: The number of jobs created and safeguarded by regional selective assistance in 1988-89 will depend on the number, size and nature of applications which attract assistance.

Sub-Post Offices

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will seek a meeting with the chairman of the Post Office to discuss the proposed reduction in hours and salaries of sub-offices and their staff.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: When I met the chairman of the Post Office in January we discussed the agreement concluded between the National Federation of Sub-Postmasters and the Post Office for the introduction of part-time sub-post offices, if that is the proposal to which the hon. Member's question refers. No one is proposing to reduce the salaries of sub-post office staff.

Policy

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what progress has been made in implementing the Consumer Affairs Council resolution of 1986 on the integration of consumer policies on food;

(2) what progress has been made towards implementing the Consumer Affairs Council resolution of 1986 on the integration of consumer policies on competition.

Mr. Butcher: The European Commission has recently submitted its first report to the Council on the progress made towards better integtration of consumer policy into other common policies including agriculture, competition, and transport, as requested by the Council resolution of 15 December 1986. A copy of the report is available in the Library (document 10541/87 of 14 December 1987). It is a disappointing report recording little progress.

Estate Agents

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Mid-Staffordshire of 16 December 1987, Official Report, column 539, if he will indicate what reviews he has carried out either generally or specifically since the implementation of the Estate Agents Act 1979; if he will publish in the Official Report the results of these reviews; whether any review in any form is currently being carried out in respect of sections 5, 18 or 21; whether he has any plans to amend regulation 5 of the Estate Agents (Accounts) Regulations 1981; and whether he has any plans to introduce regulations to give effect to section 22 of the 1975 Act.

Mr. Butcher [holding answer 10 February 1988]: This Department has not carried out any overall review of the Act since its implementation. My predecessors have, however, considered whether regulations should be made under sections 16 and 17, section 19 and section 22 of the Act, but have concluded that there was no strong case for doing so. I have no plans to introduce regulations to give effect to section 22 of the Act and no immediate plans to amend regulation 5 of the Estate Agents (Accounts) Regulations 1981. The Director General of Fair Trading has a statutory duty under section 25 of the Act to superintend its working and enforcement, and I have received advice from him on aspects of the working of the Act, including sections 5, 18 and 21. I am awaiting with interest the outcome of proceedings between the Office of Fair Trading and the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors with regard to section 18.

Rural Transport Innovation Grant

Mr. Livsey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he will give details of the number, type, and levels of grant paid under the rural transport innovation grant (Transport Act 1985) in (a) England and (b) Wales.

Mr. David Mitchell: I have been asked to reply.

The administration of the rural transport innovation grant in Wales is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

The English equivalent of the grant is the rural transport development fund, which is administered by the Development Commission on behalf of the Department of Transport. The commission has paid 100 grants and has approved a further 14. Seventy grants, averaging about £8,500, have been paid for scheduled services, mainly by minibuses and taxibuses. Additionally, 18 grants have been paid to assist the appointment of county transport advisers, at an annual average of about £6,250 for up to three years, and 12 grants, averaging about £4,000, have been paid towards other miscellaneous projects.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Education Reform

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what statement of policy he has made concerning reductions in educational provision in respect of schools, colleges of further and higher education, careers advice and adult education institutes, respectively, which are currently the responsibility of the Inner London education authority.

Mrs. Rumbold: My right hon. Friend announced on 4 February, at columns 1178-79, the Government's proposals for education in inner London. Under those proposals each inner London council will become the local education authority for its area, responsible as such—subject to any co-operative arrangements between councils—for the provision of the services to which the hon. Member refers.

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he has made any calculations on the effect on the rate support grant of the proposed abolition of the Inner London education authority; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Government propose that the Inner London education authority should be wound up and education responsibilities transferred to local borough councils from 1 April 1990. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Environment proposes to introduce from the same date new arrangements for the finance of local government. Under the provisions of the Local Government Finance Bill, rate support grant will be replaced by a new grant to local authorities, to be known as revenue support grant; rate support grant will not be payable after the financial year 1989-90. The distribution of revenue support grant will take account of the responsibilities of the inner London boroughs for education after 1 April 1990.

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he has made any calculations on the effect on the rate support grant of the proposed abolition of the Inner London education authority in relation to the hand over of such functions as may be given to Hackney borough council.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Government propose that from 1 April 1990 rate support grant should be replaced by revenue support grant, as part of the reform of local government finance. Authorities' entitlement to revenue support grant will depend on their assessed needs, which will take account of their responsibilities. Following the transfer of education functions from the Inner London education authority, the needs assessment for Hackney borough council will include an assessment of its need to spend on education. Revenue support grant to the borough will take account of that need.

Polytechnics and Colleges Funding Council

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he and his officials first made contact with Mr. William Stubbs, education officer of Inner London education authority, as regards the possibilities of his running the funding council for the polytechnics.

Mr. Jackson: Discussions between the Department and persons considered for the post of chief executive to the Polytechnics and Colleges Funding Council were held in confidence. It would breach that confidence to disclose the dates of such contacts.

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if Mr. William Stubbs, education officer of Inner London education authority, has accepted his offer to head the funding council for the polytechnics.

Mr. Jackson: Mr. Stubbs has agreed to become chief executive designate to the Polytechnics and Colleges Funding Council.

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects the head of the funding council for the polytechnics to take up his post.

Mr. Jackson: I expect the chairman and chief executive designate to begin the work of preparing for the Polytechnics and Colleges Funding Council in May.

Pupil Records

Mr. Ashley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will list those organisations which have responded to the consultation paper on the keeping and disclosure of pupil records.

Mrs. Rumbold: The information requested is as follows:

Avon LEA
Barnet LEA
Bedfordshire LEA
Berkshire LEA
Bradford LEA
Brent LEA
Bromley LEA
Bury LEA
Cheshire LEA
Cornwall LEA
Croyden LEA
Derbyshire LEA
Devon LEA
Dorset LEA
Dudley LEA
Durham LEA
Essex LEA
Gateshead LEA
Haringey LEA
Harrow LEA
Havering LEA
Hounslow LEA
Inner London Education Authority
Isle of Wight LEA
Kent LEA
Kingston-upon-Thames LEA
Kirklees LEA
Knowsley LEA
Lancashire LEA
Leicestershire LEA
Lincolnshire LEA
Merton LEA
Newcastle-upon-Tyne LEA
Norfolk LEA
Northamptonshire LEA
North Tyneside LEA
Northumberland LEA
North Yorkshire LEA
Redbridge LEA
Shropshire LEA
Solihull LEA
Somerset LEA
South Tyneside LEA
Staffordshire LEA
Suffolk LEA
Sunderland LEA
Surrey LEA
Sutton LEA
Tameside LEA
Trafford LEA
Wakefield LEA
Warwickshire LEA
Wiltshire LEA
West Sussex LEA

Universities Central Council on Admissions
Association of Workers for Maladjusted Children
ILEA Divisional Parents Committee
British Chamber of Commerce
College of Preceptors
Girls' Schools' Association
Professional Association of Teachers
Oxford Certificate of Educational Achievement
Independent Schools Joint Council
National Confederation of Parent-Teacher Associations
Community Rights Project
Polytechnic Central Admissions System
Inner London Education Authority
National Union of Teachers
National Association of Head Teachers
Association of County Councils
Special Educational Needs—National Advisory Service
Department of Health and Social Security
Trade Union Congress
Commission for Racial Equality
Children's Legal Centre
Advisory Centre for Education
Assistant Masters and Mistresses Association
Education Otherwise
National Union of Students
Secondary Heads Association
Methodist Church Division of Education and Youth
Voluntary Council for Handicapped Children
National Association of Schoolmasters/Union of Women Teachers
Association of Metropolitan Authorities
Dr Barnardo's
Free Church Federal Council
Her Majesty's Inspectorate
National Association of Social Workers in Education

In addition, responses have been received from school staff and governors, local councillors and other interested individuals.

Pilgrim Upper School, Bedford

Sir Trevor Skeet: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will give his reasons for approving the closure of Pilgrim upper school, Bedford; what criteria he used in reaching his decision; how many representations he has received from parents opposing the closure; if he will reconsider his decision; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: My right hon. Friend's decision to approve the proposal by the Bedfordshire LEA to cease to maintain the Pilgrim and John Howard upper schools and to establish a new upper school on the John Howard site was taken after careful consideration and on the balance of all the relevant facts and arguments, including the views of objectors. The criteria underlying my right hon. Friend's decisions on proposals of this kind are set out in detail in the Department's circular 3/87.

A total of 2,066 statutory objections to the proposals were submitted to the authority, together with 527 non-statutory objections and a petition signed by 300. The authority also received a number of representations in support of the proposals, together with a petition signed by 3,286. My right hon. Friend has no power to change his decision.

Teachers

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many teachers left the profession in each of the last five years on health grounds; and if any figures are available for those suffering mental stress.

Mrs. Rumbold: The table gives the number of teachers in England and Wales granted retirement benefits under the Teachers' Superannuation Regulations on the grounds of ill-health in each financial year since 1982.

Financial year	Number of retirements
1982-83	1,910
1983-84	2,172
1984-85	2,449
1985-86	2,698
1986-87	2,707

Information is not available to show the number of retirements due to stress or stress-related illnesses.

University Grants

Mr. Ken Hargreaves: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will announce the recurrent grants allocated to universities for the academic year 1988-89 by the University Grants Committee, along with the provisional allocations for 1989-90.

Mr. Jackson: The University Grants Committee's initial allocation of recurrent grant to universities in the academic year 1988-89, along with a provisional indication of the basic distribution for 1989-90 is shown in the table. Copies of the general letter of guidance that the chairman of the UGC has sent to all universities have been placed in the Library of the House. The general letter will be followed in about a week's time by an institutional annex about student numbers and funding for individual universities. The annexes will also be placed in the Library.

The total grant distributed by the UGC as announced in the table does not include items which it is the UGC's practice to allocate separately, such as local authority rates, the overseas research student awards scheme, and the committee's small central reserve. These items amount to £147 million. Nor does the distribution include provision which is to be allocated separately for a targeted programme of restructuring for which my right hon. Friend announced an additional £155 million over three years on 3 November 1987 in answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Rugby and Kenilworth (Mr. Pawsey) at columns 645-48.

Also to be distributed separately is the £56 million which the Government have made available in the financial year 1988-89 towards the cost of the 1987 academic pay restructuring settlement. The release of a further instalment of £71 million in the financial year 1989-90 will be subject to continued satisfactory progress on staff appraisal, probation and promotion arrangements.

£ million

University or college	Basic distribution 1988-89	Recurrent grant 1988-89	Provisional basic distribution 1989-90
Aston	15·362	15·91	15·457
Bath	16·209	16·48	17·198
Birmingham	39·878	41·06	40·754
Bradford	15·691	16·17	16·063
Bristol	33·258	33·86	34·889
Brunel	13·807	14·00	14·166
Cambridge	47·806	48·85	49·336
City	12·150	12·29	12·377
Durham	17·728	18·16	17·751
East Anglia	14·666	15·22	14·296
Essex	9·274	9·49	9·529
Exeter	17·245	17·55	17·970
Hull	15·056	15·70	15·384
Keele	8·490	8·67	8·426
Kent	12·049	12·63	12·602
Lancaster	14·584	14·85	15·009
Leeds	44·973	45·85	45·884
Leicester	19·542	19·98	20·223
Liverpool	39·508	40·34	40·374
London Business School	1·803	1·82	1·709
London University (of which Imperial College)	258·219 (32·466)	265·87 (33·70)	267·915 (33·281)
Loughborough	21·184	21·72	22·108
Manchester Business School	0·988	1·00	0·857
Manchester	52·033	53·95	54·085
UMIST	17·857	18·50	18·532
Newcastle	33·238	34·21	33·732
Nottingham	30·009	30·79	30·923
Oxford	48·592	49·84	50·272
Reading	19·982	20·27	20·478
Salford	13·965	14·93	14·407
Sheffield	33·274	34·47	33·958
Southampton	28·841	30·34	30·542
Surrey	13·902	14·47	14·387
Sussex	16·000	16·29	16·774
Warwick	21·274	22·39	22·681
York	13·269	14·33	14·108
Total England	1,031·706	1,062·25	1,065·166
Aberystwyth UC	10·470	10·60	10·617
Bangor UC	10·926	11·46	10·822
St. David's Lampeter	2·109	2·15	2·175
Swansea UC	13·745	14·31	13·730
UWCM	7·398	7·72	7·717
UCC/UWIST	27·061	28·50	27·867
Welsh Registry	2·391	2·39	2·461
Total Wales	74·100	77·13	75·389
Aberdeen	22·016	22·40	21·677
Dundee	14·651	14·99	14·265
Edinburgh	46·593	48·08	47·582
Glasgow	47·584	49·67	48·844
Heriot-Watt	11·641	12·69	12·060
St. Andrews	11·783	11·93	12·006
Stirling	8·288	8·73	8·306
Strathclyde	25·638	26·93	26·704
Total Scotland	188·194	195·42	191·444
Total Great Britain	1,294·000	1,334·80	1,332·000
Queen's Belfast	31·087	31·21	30·630
Ulster	32·478	32·58	34·723

EMPLOYMENT

Job Broking

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what job-broking facilities his Department has (a) at Sizewell B power station, (b) at Ashford for the Channel Tunnel and (c) in London docklands.

Mr. Lee: The employment service is providing special help for people to get jobs on the Sizewell B power station and Channel tunnel projects through on-site jobcentres. We are considering what more can be done in London docklands to help local unemployed people take advantage of the increasing number of jobs which are available there.

Labour Costs

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what has been the increase in unit labour costs in Britain in each of the last nine years, and also in the original EEC six.

Mr. Lee: International comparisons of unit labour costs for the whole economy are not available. However, figures for manufacturing are provided in the table:

Unit Labour Costs in Manufacturing—Percentage Change on Previous Year

	Great Britain	Belgium	France	Germany	Italy	Netherlands
1978	15	1	7	5	11	2
1979	18	3	9	3	10	3
1980	22	4	12	8	12	4
1981	9	4	12	5	19	1
1982	3	−1	11	3	17	4
1983	−1	−1	8	0	14	−2
1984	2	5	5	1	5	−7
1985	3	4	3	0	9	1
1986	4	4	3	3	3	−1

Notes:
1. The percentages are calculated from index series produced by the International Monetary Fund except for Great Britain, figures for which are published in the Employment Gazette.
2. Unit labour costs for Luxembourg are not available.
3. The source index series are in local currency and are not adjusted for exchange rate changes.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people are engaged in (a) service and (b) manufacturing industries in (i) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (ii) the Chester travel-to-work area and (iii) the Runcorn travel-to-work area; and what were the figures at the same time of year in each of the past five years.

Mr. Lee: The available employee estimates for travel-to-work areas are from censuses of employment taken in September 1981 and September 1984 and are as follows:

Employees in employment[1]

(Thousand)

Divisions SIC 1980	Travel to work area[2]
	Northwich		Wirral and Chester		Widnes and Runcorn
	1981	1984	1981	1984	1981	1984
6-9 Service industries	22·4	24·4	110·7	108·5	26·8	25·2
2-4 Manufacturing industries	14·6	13·6	46·6	39·0	21·3	19·6

[1] The figures exclude the self-employed and members of Her Majesty's forces.
[2] Defined in terms of ward boundaries as at 1981.

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the number of advertised job vacancies in (a) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (b) the Chester travel-to-work area and (c) the Runcorn travel-to-work area; what were the numbers at the same date in each of the last five years; and what each figure represents as a percentage of those unemployed but available for work.

Mr. Lee: The following tables show the number of unfilled vacancies (excluding community programme vacancies) at jobcentres covering areas closely corresponding to the Northwich, Wirral and Chester and Widnes and Runcorn travel-to-work areas in December of each of the last five years, along with the total number of unemployed claimants in each travel-to-work area. Total numbers of advertised job vacancies are not available but it is estimated that nationally about a third of vacancies are notified to jobcentres. Comparisons of the unemployment figures over the period are slightly affected by the change in the method of compiling the figures in March 1986.

Northwich travel-to-work area

	Unfilled vacancies	Unemployed claimants
December 1983	178	6,449
December 1984	186	6,441
December 1985	209	6,465
December 1986	301	6,039
December 1987	209	4,908

Wirral and Chester travel-to-work area

	Unfilled vacancies	Unemployed claimants
December 1983	1,197	37,315
December 1984	1,019	38,848
December 1985	1,139	39,317
December 1986	1,511	37,824
December 1987	1,773	32,633

Widnes and Runcorn travel-to-work area

	Unfilled vacancies	Unemployed claimants
December 1983	198	11,403
December 1984	249	11,549
December 1985	272	11,536
December 1986	278	11,074
December 1987	292	9,535

Business in the Community

Mr. Dykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will hold early discussions with interested parties involved in the business in the community liaison framework with private industry, on further measures to promote employment among young adults from disadvantaged areas.

Mr. Cope: All of this Department's employment and training measures are available to young adults from disadvantaged areas, including the enterprise allowance scheme. Further details of the new training scheme for unemployed adults will be given in a White Paper shortly. While I am always willing to consider new proposals to promote employment, the Government's main contribution to rising employment will continue to come from pursuing sound economic policies as a foundation for sustained growth. I am in frequent contact with business in the community.

Ethnic Minorities (Training Grants)

Dr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment when his Department will reach a decision on the application made by Reading borough council in June 1987 for approved training status under section 37 of the Race Relations Act 1976; and if he will explain the reasons for the delay in dealing with the application.

Mr. Nicholls: Reading borough council submitted an application for designation as a training body under section 37(3)(b) of the Race Relations Act 1976 on 1 June 1987. Officials from my Department contacted the council on 11 June to seek additional information, and on 28 July met officials from the council. In the light of that meeting, and further contacts, the council submitted revised proposals on 5 January 1988. These proposals, along with additional supporting material dated 29 January, but received by my Department on 5 February, are now under consideration.

A decision on the application will be reached shortly.

Average Earnings

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what has been the level of average earnings of (a) male manual workers, (b) male non-manual workers and (c) managers, senior managers, directors, and professionals, in whatever categories the information is available, for each year since 1979, both current and constant (1987-88) prices; and what has been the percentage increase each year in the earnings of each group in both money and real terms since 1979.

Mr. Lee: The information requested is provided in the table. Data for senior managers and directors are not available.

Average gross weekly earnings
Full-time males whose pay was not affected by absence[1]

£ per week

April	Manual	Non Manual	[2]Group 2	[3]Group 3	[4]Group 5	[5]Group 6
Current prices
1979	93·0	113·0	129·0	113·1	119·2	114·4
1980	111·7	141·3	167·7	139·6	147·5	145·6
1981	121·9	163·1	189·3	179·6	168·9	162·9
1982	133·8	178·9	211·0	185·8	184·9	176·9
1983	143·6	194·9	230·9	197·6	200·9	195·3
1984	152·7	209·0	251·6	208·1	216·2	212·0
1985	163·6	225·0	270·3	223·1	229·5	229·1
1986	174·4	244·9	298·2	242·2	248·6	246·8
1987	185·5	265·9	328·2	261·2	267·0	265·5
Percentage Increase[6]
1979-80	20·1	25·0	30·0	23·4	23·7	27·3
1980-81	9·1	15·4	12·9	28·7	14·5	11·9
1981-82	9·8	9·7	11·5	3·5	9·5	8·6
1982-83	7·3	8·9	9·4	6·4	8·7	10·4
1983-84	7·8	9·0	9·2	5·8	8·5	9·1
1984-85	7·1	7·7	7·4	7·2	6·2	8·1
1985-86	6·6	8·8	10·3	8·6	8·3	7·7
1986-87	6·4	8·6	10·1	7·8	7·4	7·6
Constant 1987 prices[7]
1979	174·4	211·9	241·9	212·0	223·5	214·5
1980	172·0	217·6	258·2	215·0	227·1	224·2
1981	167·5	224·2	260·2	246·8	232·1	223·9
1982	168·1	224·7	265·1	233·4	232·3	222·2
1983	173·4	235·4	278·9	238·7	242·7	235·9
1984	175·4	240·0	288·9	239·0	248·3	243·5
1985	175·7	241·7	290·3	239·6	246·5	246·1
1986	181·8	255·3	310·8	252·4	259·1	257·2
1987	185·5	265·9	328·2	261·2	267·0	265·5
Percentage increase[6] [7]
1979-80	−1·4	2·7	6·8	1·4	1·6	4·5
1980-81	−2·6	3·0	0·7	14·8	2·2	−0·1
1981-82	0·3	0·3	1·9	−5·4	0·1	−0·7
1982-83	3·2	4·7	5·2	2·3	4·5	6·2
1983-84	2·5	3·6	3·8	0·6	3·2	3·7

April	Manual	Non Manual	[3]Group 2	[3]Group 3	[4]Group 5	[5]Group 6
1984-85	0·2	0·7	0·5	0·3	−0·7	1·1
1985-86	3·4	3·6	7·1	5·3	5·1	4·5
1986-87	2·0	4·2	5·6	3·5	3·0	3·2

Source: New Earnings Survey

[1] Data up to 1983 on the basis of males 21 and over. Data from 1984 on adult rates.
[2] Professional and related occupations supporting management and administration.
[3] Professional and related occupations in education, welfare and health.
[4] Professional and related occupations in science, engineering and technology.
[5] Managerial occupations other than general management.
[6] Increases for 1983-84 based on adult rates of pay.
[7] Constant prices at April 1987 RPI (All items).

YTS

Mr. Carrington: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he has any plans to expand the YTS scheme in his Department during the current year.

Mr. Fowler: YTS has established itself as a high-quality training programme for young people with a nationally recognised record leading to jobs and vocational qualifications.

YTS has had tremendous support from employers, the training profession and most particularly from young people themselves. YTS leads to jobs. It is the best start in working life young people can have. During the last six months the Department of Employment group has provided 120 training places. It is my intention that this number should be increased. The DE group will be making a further 80 placements available in 1988-89 bringing the total to 200.

DEFENCE

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Sainsbury: As part of the Department's equal opportunities plan, on which the trade unions were consulted, an instruction will be issued to all civilian staff in the near future defining the Department's policy on sexual harassment. The instruction states that the display of material which is of a sexual nature and offensive to women and-or men generally may constitute sexual harassment and will not be tolerated. Specific instructions requiring the removal of any such material which may be on display in Civil Service premises will also be issued.

Turkey (Arms Sales)

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Shorland S550 armoured personnel carriers have been supplied to Turkey by Shorts; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: It has been the practice of successive Administrations not to announce details of specific defence sales business with other countries as the information is commercially confidential. In this case Shorts themselves announced on 27 January that they had received an order for 40 Shorland S550 APCs for Turkey.

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the types and quantities of arms sold to Turkey.

Mr. Sainsbury: It has been the practice of successive Administrations not to give details of defence sales business with other countries.

Irish Air Space (Breach)

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what information is available on a Royal Air Force aeroplane that breached Irish air space on 30 December 1987; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ian Stewart: On the morning of 30 December 1987 an Army Air Corps Beaver aircraft penetrated Irish air space. The incident has been fully investigated by my Department and it is clear that it occurred as a result of a misunderstanding by the pilot of the exact terms of the flight clearance given to him, and this has been explained to the Irish Government. Appropriate disciplinary action has been taken and the relevant instructions to air crew in Northern Ireland have been clarified in order to avoid the recurrence of such a misunderstanding.

HMS Conqueror (Logbook)

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish the outcome of the inquiry into the disappearance of the navigator's logbook of HMS Conqueror.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I have nothing to add to the statements made by my right hon. Friend the Member for Henley (Mr. Heseltine) on 30 November 1984, at columns 593-94, and by my right hon. Friend the Member for Tonbridge and Malling (Mr. Stanley) on 25 October 1985, at column 277.

Economic League

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his Department has made use of the services of the Economic League since 1979; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: No.

WALES

Private Health Insurance

Mr. Batiste: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has of the proportion of the population of Wales which is not covered, in whole or in part, by private health insurance.

Mr. Grist: The 1983 general household survey indicated that 95 per cent. of the population aged 16 and over living in private households in Wales did not have private medical insurance cover. Equivalent results from the 1986 general household survey are not yet available.

Infant Cardiology Services

Mr. Roy Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what progress has been made concerning infant cardiology services in south and west Wales; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Grist: South Glamorgan health authority is readvertising the post of consultant paediatric cardiologist. Approval has been given to the development of a paediatric cardiac unit at the University hospital of Wales and work on site is planned to commence this year. On the recommendation of the Welsh medical committee, the cardiology committee of the Royal College of Physicians has been invited and has agreed to undertake, early this year, a review of the planning policies and service provision of cardiac services in south Wales for children and adults.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which of his spending programmes will show a reduction in real terms in any of the next three years as compared with 1987-88 expenditure; and what is the figure of each reduction in each year.

Mr. Peter Walker: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer which I gave on 25 January, Official Report columns 121-24 in reply to an earlier question from him, from which the information now requested can easily be derived.

I have already explained that it is misleading to make comparisons between public expenditure plans for one year and outturn (or estimated outturn) for other years.

It will be readily seen that for 1988-89, planned provision in Cmnd. 288 for programmes within my other services block increases substantially over the comparable levels of planned expenditure provision in Cmnd. 56 for 1987-88. Reductions in planned provision for roads and transport (£10 million) housing (£6 million) other environmental services (£5 million) and arts and libraries (£1 million) are more than offset by increases in education (£34 million) and health and personal social services (£51 million). These are in addition to the increase in planned provision of £46 million for my industry, trade and employment programme. It means therefore that, within the programme as a whole, for each £1 of reductions there are more than £5 of increases.

For 1989-90 and 1990-91 the distribution between programmes within my other services block is illustrative only. Decisions on the public expenditure totals and within that the allocation to individual block programmes will be taken in future public expenditure surveys.

SCOTLAND

Hydro-electricity

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make funds available to the North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board, for the implementation of the smaller run-of-the-river hydro project.

Mr. Lang: My right hon. and learned Friend sets a limit on the North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board's overall capital expenditure in any year and it is for the board to establish priorities between projects within the limits set taking account of system requirements and the expected return on the investments. The board has in recent years taken the view that other projects have had a higher priority against these criteria than run-of-the-river schemes.

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Rifkind: In a general notice prohibiting sexual harassment, managers in my Department have been asked to ensure that potentially offensive material is not displayed in the workplace.

Erskine Bridge (Tolls)

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is his policy with regard to tolls on the Erskine bridge.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The policy of successive Governments since 1973 has been to fix tolls at levels which, while having full regard to the economic needs of the areas served by the bridge, are likely to yield the best result in terms of revenue.

Planning Appeals

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if for 1986 he will give the number of planning appeals against local authorities and the number that were successful.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: In 1986 decisions were issued on 542 planning permission appeals under section 33 of the Town and Country (Planning) Scotland Act 1972. Of these 193 appeals (36 per cent.) were sustained.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give both the total number of National Health Service beds and the number of acute beds per head of population.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: This information is published annually in "Scottish Health Statistics" (table 6.3), copies of which are held in the Library.

Shaw Medical Centre Ltd.

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what is the structure proposed by the Scottish Development Agency that will allow the repayment of its investment in Shaw Medical Centre Ltd. made necessary by the cash risk after the first year;

(2) what financial support is being given by the Scottish Development Agency to the Shaw Medical Centre Ltd.; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lang: The Scottish Development Agency's dealings with companies are conducted in confidence and are not disclosed except in cases where the agency holds more than 20 per cent. of the voting rights, and where the total investment is in excess of £100,000. In these cases a report is made in the agency's annual report. Any investment made by the agency will be in accord with the investment guidelines laid down by my right hon. and learned Friend and will take into account the needs of the company.

Procurators Fiscal (Written Warnings)

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland in how many cases procurators fiscal in Tayside have issued written warnings following the introduction of the legislation which awarded them the powers to do so; and how many individuals have been charged by Tayside police with offences of indecent acts and have received such written warnings.

Mr. Rifkind: Figures showing the number of warnings issued in recent years are contained in the first of the tables.

"Offences of indecent acts" is not a precise category, but the numbers of offences involving such conduct as can be identified from available statistics are given in the second of the tables.

Total number of warnings issued

	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987	Total
Dundee	927	971	832	756	819	—
Perth	174	331	135	162	245	—
Forfar	139	211	182	215	177	—
Arbroath	54	89	92	102	98	—
Tayside	1,294	1,602	1,241	1,235	1,339	6,711

Warnings in cases involving indecency

	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987
Dundee	2	6	8	17	35
Perth[1]	—	—	—	—	—
Forfar	—	—	—	—	—
Arbroath	—	—	—	—	—

[1] Figures for Perth are not available.

Scottish Special Housing Association

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if there have been any changes in the senior management of the Scottish Special Housing Association in the last four weeks.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Staffing questions of this kind are a matter for the Scottish Special Housing Association itself. I understand, however, that a member of staff at director level left the association's employment recently under early retirement arrangements.

Fire Safety

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he expects to issue guidance on means of escape from fire in house in multiple occupation in Scotland.

Mr. Rifkind: The guide setting out an advisory standard for means of escape from fire in certain houses in multiple occupation in Scotland will be issued by the Scottish Home and Health Department today. The guide also covers related fire safety measures and will assist the process of consultation between housing and fire authorities which is required under housing legislation. Copies of the guide are being placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Health Boards (Finance)

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will give the total cash allocation to each Scottish health board for each year from 1978-79, including projected allocations for the years 1988-89 and 1989-90;

(2) if he will give the total cash allocation to Scottish health boards for each year from 1978-79, including projected allocations for the years 1988-89 and 1989-90.

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer, 26 January 1988]: Health boards' final allocations for recurrent expenditure on hospital and community health services, for the years 1978-79 to 1987-88 inclusive, are shown in the table. The allocations for 1989-90 will not be determined until the early part of 1989 once the relevant population and other data are available.

£ Thousand

Health boards	1978-79	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88 (estimated)
Argyll and Clyde	43,038	53,348	67,961	77,063	83,425	86,906	91,463	96,811	105,779	114,482
Ayrshire and Arran	26,313	32,475	43,166	49,467	55,328	60,852	65,902	70,447	77,304	85,129
Borders	8,368	10,095	13,239	14,920	16,498	17,904	19,088	20,163	21,815	24,415
Dumfries & Galloway	15,037	18,556	24,982	27,243	29,713	31,120	33,734	35,642	37,925	41,171
Fife	27,003	33,061	43,249	49,323	53,743	57,640	62,329	67,720	72,509	78,880
Forth Valley	27,134	33,113	44,377	49,002	52,659	56,522	59,960	63,634	69,112	75,115
Grampian	51,646	62,738	82,953	92,119	101,559	106,293	113,677	120,189	130,395	143,452
Greater Glasgow	164,369	203,355	262,095	291,087	310,181	327,945	346,301	360,693	384,189	414,636
Highland	22,198	27,280	35,842	39,342	41,614	44,475	47,849	51,552	56,033	60,186

Health boards	1978-79	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88 (estimated)
Lanarkshire	47,379	58,114	77,605	85,072	92,542	97,956	104,996	111,060	119,060	129,381
Lothian	98,543	119,359	154,874	172,268	186,705	195,184	207,852	218,430	235,556	253,551
Orkney	1,438	1,718	2,342	2,752	2,985	3,248	3,475	3,674	3,961	4,419
Shetland	1,701	2,203	2,987	3,389	3,849	3,990	4,341	4,523	4,807	5,237
Tayside	61,323	73,926	96,896	105,553	111,711	116,468	122,978	128,462	136,722	146,558
Western Isles	2,600	3,277	4,280	5,047	5,832	5,754	6,508	6,998	7,476	8,050
	598,090	732,618	956,848	1,063,647	1,148,344	1,212,257	1,290,453	1,359,998	1,462,643	1,584,510

NORTHERN IRELAND

Teacher Training

Mr. McCusker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many teacher-training places have been available in Northern Ireland during the past five years; and what is the estimated number of places needed during the next five years in each of the institutions offering teacher training in the Province.

Dr. Mawhinney: The information is as follows:

Academic years	Number
1983-84	630
1984-85	640
1985-86	640
1986-87	640
1987-88	735

For 1988-89, a total of 735 places have been allocated — 110 to Queen's University of Belfast, 145 to the University of Ulster and 240 each to St. Mary's and Stranmillis colleges. Intake places beyond 1988-89 have not yet been determined and estimates would be unreliable.

Health and Personal Social Services

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will publish a table setting out for 1987-88 and 1988-89 the estimated number of (a) families and (b) persons in each health board or equivalent, and in Northern Ireland as a whole, showing net average expenditure on health and personal social services per family and per person in each year, and distinguishing between expenditure on the National Health Service and on the personal social services.

Mr. Needham: Estimates of population at board level are not held for 1987-88 or 1988-89; the following figures are based on the estimate for mid-1986 which gave the population of Northern Ireland as 1,566,800. There is no generally accepted definition of the family, so per capita expenditure figures only are given. The total per capita expenditure on health and personal social services is expected to be:

	£
1987-88	511
[1]1988-89	530

Per capita spending by boards is expected to be[2]:

	Eastern	Northern	Southern	Western
Mid-1986 estimate of population	642,100	379,000	288,900	256,800
Hospital and Community Health Services and Family Practitioner Services	525	285	355	390
Personal Social Services	85	61	63	63
Total	610	346	418	453
Hospital and Community Health Services and Family Practitioner Services	545	294	366	404
Personal Social Services	88	63	65	66
Total	633	357	431	470

[1] These figures include expenditure which is incurred centrally by the Department and which is not possible to attribute to individual Boards.
[2] Comparisons of per capita spending by Boards are not meaningful as administrative populations do not coincide with actual catchment populations for man services including regional medical services, acute hospital services, psychiatric and mental handicap hospital services.

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Stanley: The Civil Service policy on sexual harassment is set out in the programme of action to achieve equal opportunities for women in the Civil Service, which was published by the Cabinet Office (MPO) in 1984. Sexual harassment, including the display of sexually offensive material, at work is not tolerated and is dealt with as a disciplinary matter through the usual Civil Service complaints procedures. To reaffirm this position, action is in hand to issue guidance to all members of staff in the Northern Ireland Office and the Northern Ireland Departments in the near future.

Travelling People

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what provisions exist for the education of the children of travelling people in Northern Ireland.

Dr. Mawhinney: These children may attend any grant-aided school or further education establishment in Northern Ireland.

However in the Belfast area specific provision is made at St. Paul's primary school, Cavendish square where some 140 such pupils are enrolled and the teaching staff complement is six.

Board and Lodging

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what figures are available to indicate the numbers of people aged under 25 years residing in board-and-lodging accommodation in each health and social board area in Northern Ireland in each of the past five years.

Mr. Needham: Information is not available in the precise form requested. Table A below shows, for each health and social services board, the numbers of single persons aged under 25 years occupying temporary accommodation reserved for homeless persons, during the years 1981 to 1985.

Table A

Year ended 31 December	Health and Social Services Board
	Eastern	Northern	Southern	Western	Total
1981	19	12	11	8	50
1982	30	12	5	5	52
1983	50	11	12	16	89
1984	76	20	7	12	115
1985	48	12	3	21	84

Table B below contains, for each Health and Social Services Board, the numbers of homeless families (including children) occupying temporary accommodation reserved for homeless persons, during the years 1981 to 1985.

Table B

Health and Social Services Board	Year ended 31 December
	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985
Eastern
Families	134	208	251	164	164
Children	274	430	476	346	331
Northern
Families	144	121	35	59	67
Children	204	161	75	136	165
Southern
Families	29	16	39	35	30
Children	68	36	89	78	44
Western
Families	55	61	60	61	60
Children	117	125	124	155	145
Total
Families	362	406	385	319	321
Children	663	752	764	715	685

Attorney-General (Statement)

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he informed the Government of the Irish Republic of the Attorney-General's intention to make a statement to the House on 25 January.

Mr. Tom King [holding answer 10 February 1988]: The Irish Government were informed on the morning of 25 January that my right hon. and learned Friend would be making a statement. A text was passed to them after the statement had been made.

Salmon

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he intends to take to maintain a boat on the north coast of Northern Ireland for the protection of salmon during the current year.

Mr. Viggers [holding answer 9 February 1988]: Responsibility for the protection of salmon stocks rests with the Fisheries Conservancy Board for Northern Ireland. It is for the board to determine the most cost-effective manner of properly discharging its responsibility. The fishery patrols of the Department of Agriculture supplement the measures underaken by the Board.

Mobility Allowance

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many mobility allowance appeals were heard by medical appeal tribunals at each venue in Northern Ireland in the past three years.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The information is as follows:

Year	Belfast	Londonderry
1985	226	58
1986	262	62
1987	295	43

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what are the waiting times for appeals regarding mobility allowance, indicating any local differences in those waiting times.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: Medical questions arising on mobility allowance appeals are decided in the first instance by medical boards and thereafter, if necessary, by medical appeal tribunals. Boards are held in Belfast and Londonderry although most appellants are examined at home. It takes just under five weeks on average from the time an appeal is received until the board makes its decision. There are no local differences. Non-medical questions are decided, on appeal, by social security appeal tribunals. The administration of both medical and social security appeal tribunals is the responsibility of the president of social security and medical appeal tribunals, Mr. C. G. MacLynn, LL.B and the hon. Gentleman should write to him as regards waiting times for appeals to those tribunals.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the length of time taken to process claims for mobility allowance.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: Eight weeks.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many claims and appeals regarding mobility allowance are pending at present.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: At 1 January 1988 there were 1,529 claims and 342 appeals pending.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people are in receipt of mobility allowance in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: Some 11,600 at 31 December 1987.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff there are by grade in the mobility allowance branch of the Department of Health and Social Security in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The information is as follows:

Grade	Number of staff
Deputy principal[1]	1
Staff officer[1]	1
Executive officer I	1
Executive officer II	1
Administrative officer	4
Administrative assistant	2
	10

[1] These grades have additional staff responsibilities.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many renewed mobility allowance claims, from those who had been in receipt of the allowance, have been disallowed in each of the past three years, indicating how many were subsequently awarded on appeal.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The information is as follows:

Year	Renewed claims disallowed	Subsequently award on appeal
1985	148	30
1986	224	48
1987	209	52

Appeal figures related to appeals decided in the relevant years and do not necessarily reflect claims disallowed in those years.

AIDS

Mr. Coleman: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information he has about the decision of the United States national institutes of health to instruct all biological laboratories to review their safety guidelines following the reported infection of two laboratory workers with the AIDS virus after working with concentrated samples; and whether he will carry out such a review of procedures in medical and biological laboratories in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Needham [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I am aware of the decision referred to. Current guidance on safety procedures, prepared by the advisory committee on dangerous pathogens and the expert advisory group on AIDS, continues to be appropriate and therefore I have no plans to review those procedures.

Maryfield (Costs)

Mr. Maginnis: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what yearly contributions the Irish Republic has made towards (a) the maintenance, (b) the operating costs and (c) the staffing costs at Maryfield; and what proportion these contributions are of the total costs within each of these areas.

Mr. Tom King [holding answer 27 January 1988]: The Irish Government do not pay maintenance costs directly, but rather a share of rent for the secretariat building. In the last financial year, their contribution was £32,000. They also contribute to operating expenses in varying proportions, reflecting the use they make of each facility. The cost to the Irish Government of their staff is a matter for them.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Chemical Trials

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what chemical trials are being conducted on farms within the Easington area; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Donald Thompson: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave to the hon. Member for Caerphilly (Mr. Davies) on 10 February 1988.

Dairy Inspections

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) how many inspectors are currently employed to carry out dairy inspections;

(2) what system there is of monitoring dairy inspections.

(3) whether he will review the workings of the dairy inspections procedure.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The complement of the dairy husbandry discipline of ADAS is currently 103 and there are 91 officers actually in post. Of these, 72 dairy husbandary advisers undertake visits to dairy farms to check compliance with the milk and dairies regulations, but other duties (such as advisory work) account for about half of their time. The work of these advisers is monitored by their line managers and is also subject to regular staff inspection. In addition, as I told my hon. Friend the Member for Pembroke (Mr. Bennett) on 26 January at column 175, there is to be a formal efficiency scrutiny of this work.

Wool

Mr. Geraint Howells: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will consider increasing the guaranteed price for wool by 10 per cent. per kilogramme to cover production and other costs in the current year; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Donald Thompson: My right hon. Friend met the farmers' unions and the British Wool Marketing Board last week to review the prospects for the 1988 clip year and the level of the guarantee which for the 1987 clip was set at 129p/kg. An announcement on the level of the guarantee for the 1988 clip will be made as soon as possible.

Cereals

Dr. David Clark To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) what was the shortfall in the amount to the co-responsibility levy in respect of the 1986 cereal harvest, as between that paid by farmers and that collected by the Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce; and if he will make a statement;

(2) on how many tonnes of cereal following the harvest of 1986 co-responsibiltiy levy was paid to the Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce;

(3) what was the cereal harvest for 1986; and on how many tonnes co-responsibility levy was paid.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The cereals harvest for 1986 was 24·5 million tonnes. Co-responsibility levy has now been collected on 13·4 million tonnes, including 2 million tonnes of grain imported from other member states. About 13 million tonnes of cereals was not liable to levy in the United Kingdom during the 1986-87 marketing year; this comprised grain exported to other member states; grain used for seed; grain used on farms and grain processed by farmers and fed to their own livestock; grain stocks carried over into the current marketing year.

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many tonnes of the British cereal harvest in 1986-87 he estimates were liable to co-responsibility levy; and how much of the levy has been collected to date.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The cereals harvest for 1986 was 24·5 million tonnes. Co-responsibility levy has now been collected on 13·4 million tonnes, including 2 million tonnes of grain imported from other member states. About 13 million tonnes of cereals was not liable to levy in the United Kingdom during the 1986-87 marketing year; this comprised grain exported to other member states; grain used for seed; grain used on farms and grain processed by farmers and fed to their own livestock; grain stocks carried over into the current marketing year.

Organic Products

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will give import figures for each of the following organic produce for each year in the last 10 years: carrots, parsnips, potatoes, cabbages, turnips, swedes, courgettes, lettuces, tomatoes, cucumbers, apples, pears and strawberries.

Mr. Donald Thompson: No records are maintained in overseas trade statistics of fruit and vegetables classified according to production systems. Moreover, there would be little point in keeping such statistics for organic produce until importing and exporting countries had agreed the necessary organic production standards and the inspection and certification arrangements.

Pesticides

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what progress is being made in achieving common standards of safety assessment and certification for agriculture pesticides within the European Community.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The European Community has been operating a prohibition directive since 1979 which requires member states to withdraw certain substances from circulation. The EC Commission is advised by a committee of scientific experts in making its recommendations under this directive, and unanimous agreement of member states is required in the Council before substances can be added to the existing list of prohibitions. Outside the scope of this directive member states operate national controls on the supply and use of pesticides. A draft directive proposing an EC regime for approving or accepting pesticides was tabled by the EC Commission in 1976, but no progress has been made in discussing it in recent years.

Ewe Premium

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what action he proposes to take to repay to British producers and trade interests the sums recoverable from the European Community as a result of recent favourable judgments on ewe premium and clawback, respectively.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The European Court's judgment of 2 February in cases 305/85 and 142/86 declares void the rates of ewe premium which were set by EC Commission regulation for Great Britain for the 1984-85 and 1985 marketing years. This welcome judgment fully vindicates the Government's case that the rates had been wrongly calculated. It means that supplementary premium payments will be payable to GB producers from FEOGA funds. Some £11 million is involved, and we shall make payment arrangements as soon as the EC Commission has made new regulations setting properly calculated rates. And we are pressing the Commission to make the necessary regulations as soon as possible.

The judgment in EC case 61/86—the Government's other sheepmeat case against the EC Commission—declares the relevant EC regulations void in so far as they apply clawback to exports of ewes, ewemeat and other categories of sheep and sheepmeat which cannot receive variable premium. As an immediate result, exporters of the affected categories are no longer obliged to pay clawback. In our view, the judgment also means that the Commission should return to us the clawback collected under the invalid regulations. We are also pressing the Commission on this as a matter of urgency. My officials will be maintaining close contact with the farmers' unions and the export trade who together have a related case before the High Court concerning one particular export consignment.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Company Profits

3. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the level of profitability in British companies.

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the level of profitability in British companies.

Mr. Brooke: The profitability of non-oil industrial and commercial companies has increased in each of the past six years: the best performance for a generation.

Interest Rates

16. Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the level of interest rates in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about the current level of interest rates.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Bank base rates are 9 per cent.

34. Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about his policy on interest rates.

Mr. Lilley: Short-term interest rates are the essential instrument of monetary policy and are held at whatever level is necessary to maintain downward pressure on inflation.

Tax and Prices Index

17. Mrs. Widdecombe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the rise in the tax and prices index in the 12 months to December 1987.

52. Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the rise in the tax and prices index in the 12 months to December 1987.

Mr. Brooke: In the 12 months to December 1987 the tax and prices index rose by 1·9 per cent.

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the rise in the tax and prices index in the 12 months to December 1987.

Mr. Lilley: In the 12 months to December 1987 the tax and prices index rose by 1·9 per cent.

Inflation

18. Mr. Ward: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the rate of inflation.

Mr. Brooke: The increase in retail prices over the 12 months ending December 1987 was 3·7 per cent.

26. Mr. Patrick Thompson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the rate of inflation.

Mr. Lilley: The increase in retail prices over the 12 months ending December 1987 was 3·7 per cent.

38. Mr. Andy Stewart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the rate of inflation.

65. Mr. Andrew MacKay: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the current level of inflation.

97. Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the rate of inflation.

Mr. Lilley: The increase in retail prices over the 12 months ending December 1987 was 3·7 per cent.

Mr. Michael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what rate of inflation he has assumed in relation to his expenditure plans for (a) National Health Service and (b) Government expenditure generally for each of the next three years.

Mr. Major: The economic assumptions underpinning the Government's plans set out in the 1988 public expenditure White Paper (Cm. 288), including the assumptions for general inflation as measured by the GDP deflator and the RPI, are set out in volume I, chapter 2, paragraph 4.

The Government do not publish assumptions about the future movements in particular prices affecting individual expenditure programmes though, in planning and managing their programmes, Departments take account of the prices of the goods and services they purchase.

Third World Debts

20. Dr. Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with the Finance Ministers of creditor countries concerning the rescheduling of debt in Third world countries.

Mr. Brooke: Last September my right hon. Friend attended the Commonwealth Finance Ministers' meeting and the annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank where the problems of developing countries' debt, especially that of sub-Saharan Africa, were discussed.

Take-home Pay

21. Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the growth of real take-home pay for a married man with two children who is on half male average earnings since 1978-79.

27. Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the growth of real take-home pay for a married man with two children who is on half male average earnings since 1978-79.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Real take-home pay for a married man on half average male earnings with two children has risen by 18½ per cent. since 1978-79.

49. Mr. Wood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the growth of real take-home pay for a married man with two children who is on half male average earnings since 1978-79.

106. Mrs. Maureen Hicks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the growth of real take-home pay for a married man with two children who is on half male average earnings since 1978-79.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Real take-home pay has risen by 18·5 per cent. for a married man on half average earnings since 1978-79. Average earnings are those for men in all occupations paid at adult rates who work a full week.

Public Investment

22. Mr. Henderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the level of public investment as a proportion of gross domestic product.

Mr. Major: In 1987-88 public sector capital spending, as defined in table 2.10 of volume I of the 1988 public expenditure White Paper, is estimated to be about 5½ per cent. of gross domestic product.

VAT (Zero-rating)

23. Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he has received notice of the date on which the European Court of Justice will declare its decision on the proceedings initiated by the Commission on the legality of the United Kingdom's zero-rating of supplies of electricity, gas, water and sewerage to industry and commerce and on the construction of commercial and industrial buildings; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Brooke: No.

Tax Relief

24. Mr. Blair: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what average income tax relief has been received by a taxpayer earning £50,000 each year since 1979 at 1987 prices.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for East Lothian (Mr. Home Robertson).

Manufacturing Output

25. Mr. Curry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the underlying rate of growth of manufacturing output.

47. Mr. Brandon-Bravo: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the underlying rate of growth of manufacturing output.

55. Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the underlying rate of growth of manufacturing output.

Mr. Major: In the three months ending last November output was 6 per cent. higher than a year earlier.

Tax (Higher Rates)

29. Mr. Darling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the revenue raised from higher rates of tax in 1987-88.

57. Mr. Doran: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the revenue raised from higher rates of tax in 1987-88.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The total tax liability resulting from the difference between the higher rates of income tax and the basic rate is estimated to be £3·1 billion in 1987-88.

Income Tax

30. Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the effect on the income, per week, of a single person and a married couple on average national earnings as a result of cuts in the standard rate of income tax and the raising of personal allowances since 1979.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The effect of reductions in income tax since 1978-79 has been to increase income after tax by £10·69 per week for a married man and £10·88 per week for a single person on average earnings in 1987-88. The calculation is made by comparing the tax liabilities of the single person or married man under the 1987-88 income tax regime with those under the 1978-79 regime indexed to 1987-88 levels according to the statutory formula. Average earnings estimated at £229·80 per week are those for full-time men in all occupations, paid at adult rates, whose pay is unaffected by absence.

82. Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much a taxpayer earning £50,000 a year would gain per year if the top rate of tax were reduced to 40 per cent.

Mr. Norman Lamont: A married man with gross income of £50,000 per year and no allowances or reliefs other than the married man's allowance would gain £2,961 if the top rate of income tax were reduced to 40 per cent. for 1988-89. The estimate assumes indexation of allowances and rate bands from their 1987-88 levels in accordance with the statutory formula.

Government Shareholdings

31. Mr. Cummings: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on his policy on the disposal of Government-held shareholdings, in the light of the National Audit Office report on the sale of the Government shareholding in Rolls-Royce plc.

32. Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on his policy on the disposal of Government-held shareholdings, in the light of the National Audit Office report on the sale of the Government shareholding in Rolls-Royce plc.

40. Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on his policy on the disposal of Government held shareholdings, in the light of the National Audit Office report on the sale of the Government shareholding in Rolls-Royce plc.

99. Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on his policy on the disposal of Government-held shareholdings, in the light of the National Audit Office report on the sale of the Government shareholdings in Rolls-Royce plc.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Wallsend (Mr. Garrett).

Mortgages (Tax Relief)

33. Mr. Sumberg: To as the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking an amendment of the law relating to tax relief on mortgage interest; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont: As usual, my right hon. Friend has received a number of representations about the tax relief on mortgage interest. The level of mortgage interest relief has to be fixed each year and will be considered in framing the Budget proposals.

Jobs

35. Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many new jobs have been created by growth in the economy since 1983.

43. Mr. Forth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many new jobs have been created by growth in the economy since 1983.

80. Mr. French: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many new jobs have been created by growth in the economy since 1983.

Mr. Major: The combination of steady, sustained growth and supply side improvements has contributed significantly to the creation of nearly 1½ million new jobs since 1983.

Borrowing Requirement

36. Mr. McLeish: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his latest estimate for the public sector borrowing requirement for 1987-88.

67. Ms. Armstrong: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his latest estimate for the public sector borrowing requirement for 1987-88.

Mr. Major: The Autumn Statement forecast was for a PSBR in 1987-88 of £1 billion. A revised estimate will be published next month in the "Financial Statement and Budget Report".

Income Tax (Reduced Rate Band)

37. Mr. Hunter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking the introduction of a reduced rate band of income tax.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My right hon. Friend has received a small number of representations.

Productivity

39. Mr. Robert B. Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the growth of productivity in the United Kingdom economy over the period since 1980.

Mr. Major: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Paymaster General gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Hallam (Mr. Patnick).

International Debt

41. Mr. Skinner: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he next proposes to meet other Finance Ministers to discuss the problems of international debt; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lilley: My right hon. Friend frequently meets other Finance Ministers; he is likely to do so at the spring meetings of the IMF/IBRD in April when international debt will be discussed.

Balance of Payments

42. Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures he is taking to improve the balance of payments.

Mr. Major: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given earlier today by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland (Mr. Wallace).

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the Government's policy towards the balance of payments.

Mr. Lawson: The current account deficit last year was precisely in line with the forecast I made at the time of the Budget. The Government's policies are directed towards improving the performance of the economy overall. This is fully consistent with normal fluctuations in the composition of the balance of payments.

Personal Disposable Income

44. Mr. Carrington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the growth of real personal disposable income since 1983.

108. Mr. Knapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the growth of real personal disposable income since 1983.

Mr. Major: I would refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Chancellor gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Wokingham (Mr. Redwood).

Growth

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the current British rate of growth compares with that of the other major industrialised countries.

60. Mr. Mans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the current British rate of growth compares with that of the other major industrialised countries.

109. Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the current British rate of growth compares with that of the other major industrialised countries.

Mr. Lilley: Total output in the United Kingdom grew by more than 4 per cent. over the year to the first three quarters of 1987. This is faster than any other major industrialised country.

59. Mr. Hayes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to what extent growth in the economy has been reflected in falling unemployment over the past year.

68. Mr. David Martin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to what extent growth in the economy has been reflected in falling unemployment over the past year.

81. Mr. Holt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer to what extent growth in the economy has been reflected in falling unemployment over the past year.

Mr. John Major: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Derbyshire, West (Mr. McLoughlin) on 5 February at columns 783-84.

Overseas Assets

46. Mr. Page: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will provide the latest figures for net United Kingdom assets overseas.

107. Mr. Cash: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will provide the latest figures for net United Kingdom assets overseas.

Mr. Major: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Chipping Barnet (Mr. Chapman).

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will provide the latest figures for net United Kingdom assets overseas.

Mr. Major: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Chipping Barnet (Mr. Chapman).

Business Starts

48. Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by how much business starts have exceeded stops between 1979 and 1986.

105. Mr. Devlin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by how much business starts have exceeded stops between 1979 and 1986.

Mr. Bowis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by how much business starts have exceeded stops between 1979 and 1986.

Mr. Brooke: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Salisbury (Mr. Key).

Manufacturing Investment

50. Mr. Allan Stewart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are the latest projections for the growth of manufacturing investment in the United Kingdom.

54. Dr. Twinn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are the latest projections for the growth of manufacturing investment in the United Kingdom.

71. Mr. Janman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are the latest projections for the growth of manufacturing investment in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Major: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave to an earlier question from my hon. Friend the Member for Bury, North (Mr. Burt).

Privatisation

51. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the extent of the state-owned commercial sector which has been transferred to the private sector since 1979.

63. Mr. Baldry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the extent of the state-owned commercial sector which has been transferred to the private sector since 1979.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Ludlow (Mr. Gill).

100. Mr. Leigh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the proposed privatisation of nationalised companies in the financial year 1988-89.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The Government have announced their intention to privatise the water and electricity industries and British Steel. There may also be other privatisation sales in this Parliament. No decision has been taken yet on the timing of sales.

Mr. Riddick: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the extent of the state-owned commercial sector which has been transferred to the private sector since 1979.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Chancellor gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Ludlow (Mr. Gill).

CBI

53. Mr. David Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he last met the director-general of the Confederation of British Industry to discuss economic prospects.

Mr. Major: My right hon. Friend last met the director-general of the CBI at the meeting of the National Economic Development Council on 13 January 1988.

Mr. Watts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, when he last met the director-general of the Confederation of British Industry to discuss economic prospects.

Mr. Major: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor last met the director-general of the CBI at the meeting of the National Economic Development Council on 13 January 1988.

British Banks (Developing Countries)

56. Mr. O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy on tax relief for British banks on their operations in developing countries.

58. Mr. McFall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy on tax relief for British banks on their operations in developing countries.

110. Mr. Holland: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy on tax relief for British banks on their operations in developing countries.

Mr. Norman Lamont: British banks operating in developing countries qualify for tax relief under general tax law under the same criteria as other traders.

Electricity Prices

61. Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his latest estimate of the (a) deflationary impact on economic activity and (b) the inflationary impact on prices of the proposed increases in electricity prices.

Mr. Major: Subject to the decisions of the area boards, the likely increases in electricity prices will add directly about ¼ per cent. to the level of the RPI. Calculating the net impact on activity and inflation would require the simulation of an economic model, and it has not been the practice to publish such estimates.

New Zealand Finance Minister

62. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he next expects to meet the Finance Minister of New Zealand.

Mr. Lilley: The Chancellor meets the Finance Minister of New Zealand from time to time.

Gross Domestic Product

64. Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the latest figures for the growth of gross domestic product over the past year.

75. Mr. Irvine: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the latest figures for the growth of gross domestic product over the past year.

Mr. Major: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave on 5 February at column 785 to my hon. Friend the Member for Pembroke (Mr. Bennett).

69. Dr. Reid: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the level of public investment as a proportion of gross domestic product.

70. Mr. McAvoy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the level of public investment as a proportion of gross domestic product.

Mr. Major: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, North (Mr. Henderson).

Government Departments (Relocation)

66. Mr. Cran: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether any costings have been undertaken by his Department of the likely saving from the relocation out of London of public bodies, including divisions of Government Departments; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Brooke: The responsibility for undertaking costings for relocation of activities out of London lies with the Department or public body concerned. With regard to a statement, I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I provided to the hon. Member for East Kilbride (Mr. Ingram) on 18 January 1988 at columns 475-76.

Government Expenditure

73. Dr. Michael Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will indicate Government expenditure per head of the electorate in (a) Scotland and (b) England and Wales in 1979 and the latest year for which figures are available.

Mr. Major: The table shows identifiable public expenditure per head of the electorate:

£ per head of the electorate

	1979-80	1986-87
Scotland	1,804	3,235
England and Wales	1,421	2,591

The figures for the two years are not directly comparable because of changes in definition which have taken place between different public expenditure White Papers.

Forestry

74. Mr. Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the annual cost of tax reliefs on forestry.

76. Mr. Hood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the annual cost of tax reliefs on forestry.

78. Mr. Galloway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the annual cost of tax reliefs on forestry.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The income tax forgone is currently estimated at some £10 million. No information on which to base an estimate of the cost of capital tax reliefs is available.

96. Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking a change in the taxation rules relating to forestry development.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Caerphilly (Mr. Davies) on 18 January at column 470.

Relative Prices

77. Mr. Beith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he has any plans to change the extent to which the impact of relative prices is assessed in the public expenditure White Paper.

Mr. Major: I have no such plans at present. However, the possibility of including information on relative prices in the White Paper has been discussed in the Treasury and Civil Service Committee and the Government will consider carefully any recommendations the Committee may make on the subject.

Inheritance Tax

79. Mr. Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the revenue to be raised from inheritance tax in 1987-88.

104. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the revenue to be raised from inheritance tax in 1987-88.

Mr. Norman Lamont: £1,050 million.

Merchant Shipping

83. Sir John Farr: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what fiscal measures he intends to take to prevent the further decline of the merchant shipping fleet.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My hon. Friend will understand that I cannot anticipate the Chancellor's Budget statement.

Council of Ministers

84. Mr. David Knox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he next proposes to have discussions with the European Community Council of Ministers about European monetary matters.

Mr. Lilley: The next meeting of the European Community's Council of Economic and Finance Ministers is expected to be on 7 March. The agenda for that meeting has not yet been decided.

Personal Equity Plans

85. Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the number of personal equity plans entered into since the commencement of the scheme; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont: About 250,000 plans were started during 1987.

Nurses (Pay)

86. Mr. Vaz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what additions to the Government's expenditure plans for (a) the National Health Service and (b) other central Government services for 1988-89 and 1989-90 would require to be made if (i) nursing staff and (ii) other employees were to receive a pay increase of 20 per cent.

Mr. Major: Departments are generally expected to contain the costs of any pay increases within the published plans. The Government will consider the financing of pay increases for nurses when the report of the nurses pay review body has been received.

Public Expenditure

87. Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assumptions about pay levels for (a) nursing and (b) Civil Service staff are made in the Government's expenditure plans for 1988-89.

103. Mr. Allan Roberts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what account he has taken, in drawing up his expenditure plans for (a) the National Health Service and (b) central Government expenditure for 1988-89 of the provision of funds for (i) the pay award for nurses and (ii) public sector pay generally.

Mr. Major: The Government do not make a central pay assumption.

91. Mr. Marlew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to increase the planned expenditure on (a) hospital and (b) all Government services for 1988-89 and 1989-90.

95. Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether, in the light of representations received, he intends to increase the resources in his published expenditure plans for 1988-89 (a) for the National Health Service and (b) for Government expenditure generally.

Mr. Major: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Glanford and Scunthorpe (Mr. Morley).

Expenditure

28. Mr. Worthington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the current estimate of underspend for 1987-88.

72. Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the expected outturn for 1987-88.

Mr. Major: The latest estimated outturn for the planning total in 1987-88 is £147·3 billion as set out in the 1988 public expenditure White Paper.

88. Mr. Michael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what will be the percentage increase in spending on (a) hospital and (b) all central Government services between 1988-89 and 1989-90.

Mr. Major: Health figures for the United Kingdom are shown in table 2.7 of volume I of the 1988 public expenditure White Paper. The table shows increases between 1988-89 and 1989-90 of about 4½ per cent. for hospital and community health services and about 5 per cent. for the National Health Service as a whole. The overall increase in central Government spending between 1988-89 and 1989-90 is planned to be about 5¼ per cent.

89. Mr. Morley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to increase planned expenditure on (a) the National Health Service and (b) all Government expenditure in the years 1988-89 to 1990-91.

Mr. Major: The Government have announced increases in public spending in total and on the National Health Service. The latest plans are set out in "The Government's Expenditure Plans 1988-89 to 1990-91" (Cm. 288). These plans will be reviewed in the normal way in the annual public expenditure survey.

90. Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received in relation to his recently published expenditure plans for (a) education spending and (b) Government expenditure generally.

Mr. Major: The White Paper plans, and the increased provision they include for education, have been widely welcomed.

Hospital Radio Broadcasting Equipment (VAT)

92. Mr. Ancram: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what further representations he has received seeking zero rating of value added tax for hospital radio broadcasting equipment.

Mr. Lilley: My right hon. Friend has received no further representations since the reply I gave to my hon. Friend on 27 November at column 129.

Job Creation

93. Mr. Nellist: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking the inclusion in his Budget of measures designed to reduce unemployment.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My right hon. Friend has received a number of representations covering a variety of proposals, but relatively few have mentioned unemployment.

Taxation

94. Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by how much in real terms the average annual tax payment of someone earning £50,000 has reduced in the past eight years.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The tax liability of a married man earning £50,000 per year with no allowances or reliefs other than the married man's allowance is £4,880 less in 1987-88 than it would be if the 1978-79 tax regime had been retained and indexed by the statutory formula to 1987-88. This is a reduction of one-fifth.

102. Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many representations he has received during the past 12 months urging him to increase the level of taxation.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Of the large number of representations my right hon. Friend has received, only a small number support an increase in the level of taxation.

Companies (Profitability)

98. Mr. Roger King: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the level of profitability in British companies.

Mr. Major: The profitability of non-oil industrial and commercial companies has increased in each of the past six years: the best performance for a generation.

Income Tax Returns

101. Mr. Michael McNair-Wilson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he has any plans to revise the format of an income tax return.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Following its computerisation programmes for both self-employed taxpayers and employees, the Inland Revenue has over several years altered the layout of its tax returns for individuals so that they may be addressed and issued by machine. The last returns affected were those for issue on or after 6 April 1987. No further amendments are planned but the returns are reviewed annually as a matter of course following the passage of the Finance Bill.

Public Investment

Ms. Mowlam: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the level of public investment as a proportion of gross domestic product.

Mr. Major: In 1987-88 public sector capital spending, as defined in table 2.10 of volume I of the 1988 public expenditure White Paper, is estimated to be about 5¼ per cent. of gross domestic product.

Taxation Revenue

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the revenue raised from higher rates of tax in 1987-88.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The total tax liability resulting from the difference between the higher rates of income tax and the basic rate is estimated to be £3·1 billion in 1987-88.

Wages and Salaries

Mr. Pike: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the expenditure proposed for (a) hospital services and (b) other central Government services in the plans for 1988-89 to 1990-91 is calculated to account for wages and salaries.

Mr. Major: The Government do not have a central pay assumption.

Confectionery

Mr. Shersby: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if Her Majesty's Customs and Excise have completed their review of the current borderline between standard rated and zero rated confectionery.

Mr. Lilley: No.

Harvest Chewy Bars

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the cost to Her Majesty's Customs and Excise of seeking to levy value added tax on Harvest Chewy Bars.

Mr. Lilley: I regret that this information is not yet available.

Special Car Tax

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are the implications of EEC fiscal harmonisation for the United Kingdom special car tax; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 10 February 1988]: The European Commission's package of proposals as currently drafted make no provision for the continuation of car tax in its current form. The proposals have been submitted by ECOFIN to the Economic Policy Committee for consideration of their implications. They cannot be adopted without the unanimous agreement of the Governments of member states.

ENERGY

NUM (Meeting)

Mr. Eadie: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will publish in the Offical Report the text of his reply to the request from the general secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers for a meeting with him.

Mr. Parkinson: I understand that the general secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers has said that he and the president asked for a meeting when I took office. Neither I nor my Department have any record of such a request and I have written to the general secretary asking for further details.

UDM (Meetings)

Mr. Eadie: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy on what dates he or his representatives have met the leaders of the Union of Democratic Mineworkers.

Mr. Parkinson: Energy Ministers meet leaders of the Union of Democratic Mineworkers from time to time to discuss matters of mutual interest.

Deep-mined Coal (Subsidies)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will publish the average level of Government subsidy per tonne of deep-mined coal in each year since 1978 (a) for each of the United Kingdom coal fields, (b) for England, (c) for Wales, (d) for Scotland and (e) for the United Kingdom.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Government grants accrued in British Coal's accounts in each year since 1978-/79 are set out in the table:

Year	Government Grants £ million	Deep-mined Production million tonnes	Grant per tonne £/tonne
1978-79	172	107·8	1·60
1979-80	251	109·3	2·30
1980-81	254	110·3	2·30
1981-82	575	108·9	5·28
1982-83	520	104·9	4·96
1983-84	1,145	90·1	12·71
1984-85	2,414	27·7	87·15
1985-86	563	88·4	6·37
1986-87	882	88·0	10·02

Grants are not given to specific areas or coalfields, so it is not possible to provide the other information requested.

Power Stations (Environmental Import)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what are the implications for (a) the Sizewell B pressurised water reactor project, (b) the proposed Hinkley C pressurised water reactor project, (c) the proposed European demonstration reprocessing plant at

Dounreay, (d) the thermal oxide reprocessing plant at Sellafield, (e) the planned coal-fired power station at Fawley, (f) the proposed Severn barrage tidal energy project and (g) any plans for a nuclear waste repository chosen by Nirex, of the new EEC regulation for environmental impact assessments, due to come into force on 3 July.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The sole purpose of the EC directive is to ensure that as from 3 July 1988 the environmental implications of major new developments are carefully examined in a fashion consistent throughout the Community, before consent is given to their construction. Such assessments have been undertaken for major energy developments, including those referred to by the hon. Member, in the United Kingdom for many years within the framework of planning law. Existing procedures will be brought into line with the directive's requirements. These will apply to developments for which planning or other consent is sought after 3 July. The directive does not apply to planning or consent applications submitted before that date.

Nuclear Power Stations

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what is his policy towards the provision of funds to objectors and section 34 parties at the forthcoming public inquiry into Central Electricity Generating Board plans to build a pressurised water nuclear reactor at Hinkley Point C.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The Select Committee on Energy's recent report on the Electricity Generating Stations and Overhead Lines (Inquiries Procedure) Rules 1987 raised the issue of funding for objectors at public inquiries. The Government will respond to this report as soon as possible. The hon. Member will know that the Government have hitherto taken the view that the funding of the objectors would not improve the efficiency of public inquiries.

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he has any plans to commission a public opinion survey of national and regional acceptance of nuclear station siting in the United Kingdom, in the light of the recently published study by the Health and Safety Executive on the tolerability of risks from nuclear power stations.

Mr. Michael Spicer: No. The Health and Safety Executive have produced a careful study, on which the Health and Safety Commission have invited considered comments.

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make it his policy to invite the International Atomic Energy Agency operational review safety team to (a) review the technical necessity and (b) be present at any future experimental test at a Magnox reactor of the type presently postponed at Trawsfynydd.

Mr. Michael Spicer: We fully support the development of the International Atomic Energy Agency's OSART missions. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has invited the agency to send such a mission to visit a United Kingdom nuclear plant. Details will be announced in due course. However, the objectives of OSART missions do not include the examination of specific porposals for tests, which are a matter between the plant operators and the regulatory authority.

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make it his policy to be present at any future experimental test at a Magnox plant of the type presently postponed at Trawsfynydd.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I would consider at the time if there was any advantage to my being present at such a test.

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will seek to obtain for his departmental library transcripts of the three BBC2 "Brass Tacks" programmes on nuclear power, broadcast in October 1987.

Mr. Parkinson: No.

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what information he possesses on the resolution and vote in the European Parliament on 21 January on the proposed Central Electricity Generating Board experimental test at the Trawsfynydd Magnox reactor.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I am arranging for a copy of the text of the resolution to be placed in the Library of the House. It was carried by a majority of 24.

Pit Closures

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy how many pits have closed in each year since 1979; what was the location and name of each pit; how many jobs were lost as a result of each closure; and what was the profit of loss of each pit closed in the year prior to closure.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a matter for British Coal and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Combined Heat and Power Scheme (Edinburgh)

Mr. Madel: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement on the development of combined heat and power/district heating in Edinburgh.

Mr. Peter Morrison: My Department has carefully considered the report prepared by the Edinburgh CHP consortium. I accept the consortium's judgment that the options they studied are insufficiently attractive economically to proceed without further substantial support from public funds.

It is the Government's long-standing policy that combined heat and power-district heating schemes should be taken forward by the private sector. The consortium has been informed that under these circumstances, I am not prepared to meet their requests for further financial support.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Child Benefit

111. Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what would be the cost of increasing child benefit in line with the projected rate of inflation.

Mr. Scott: Increases in the rate of child benefit are not statutorily linked to movements in the retail prices index, but even for those benefits which are, the calculations are made on a "historical" and not a "projected" basis. If the current rate of child benefit were to be increased from April 1988 in line with the prices movement—over the 12 months to September 1987—used for uprating other benefits, the net additional cost for a full year would be £120 million.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what provision he has made in his public expenditure plans for additional funding to meet increased housing benefit costs arising from the proposed deregulation of the privately rented sector.

Mr. Portillo: The public expenditure plans published in Cm. 288 include provision for increased expenditure on housing benefit as a consequence of the Government's proposals to remove controls on new private lettings of some £10 million in 1988-89 rising to some £80 million at the end of the survey period. As explained in Cm. 288, the plans also allow for rents in the private sector to increase in real terms by 3 per cent. per year over the survey period.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will take urgent steps to pay housing benefit due to residents for part III accommodation in Wakefield metropolitan district council for 1985-86 and 1986-87; what has been the cause of the delay; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: The administration of the housing benefit scheme, including the payments of awards of benefit, is the responsibility of local authorities. The Department has, however, withheld subsidy payments to a number of local authorities, including Wakefield, in respect of awards of housing benefit made to residents of part III accommodation. This is because we need to be satisfied that local authorities dealt with such claims in accordance with the regulations and detailed information from each of the authorities concerned is now being considered. I regret the delay, but final decisions on settlement will be taken once this process has been completed, which will be done as quickly as possible.

Social Work Training

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what assessment he has made of the progress being made towards the introduction of the new mode of social work training; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: Officials of this Department, in conjunction with those of the other Government Departments involved, are currently considering the proposals submitted by the Central Council for Education and Training in Social Work in its publication "Care for Tomorrow". We expect to be in a position to respond to the proposals by the spring of this year.

Special Payments

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps have been taken to ensure that disabled persons who are in receipt of two allowances through a combined order book will receive the £8 special payment on each allowance.

Mr. Scott: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Southport (Mr. Fearn) on 2 February, at column 591.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether leaflet N1262 issued to indicate the benefits which attract the £8 special payment took account of those people who receive more than one benefit through a combined order book.

Mr. Scott: The leaflet was designed to provide basic information to everyone qualifying for a special payment. There is a limit to the amount of detailed information that can be included in a leaflet of this kind, and a balance had to be struck. The leaflet did, however, make it clear that anyone needing further information should contact the Department.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many severely disabled people in the United Kingdom currently receive more than one benefit through the use of a combined order book.

Mr. Nicholas Scott: I regret that the information requested is not available.

Ambulance Services

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list by categories the amounts raised by the ambulance services collectively from third parties in the last financial year.

Mrs. Currie: The summarised accounts of health authorities in England for 1986-87 record income in total only from charges to third parties for the non-national Health Service use of ambulance services as £340,263.

This does not, however, include a small element in respect of ambulance services within the income arising from the provision of services to private health care establishments and private patients (totalling £1,490,424 in 1986-87) which health authorities are required to account for as income under section 58 of the National Health Service Act 1977.

Supplementary Benefit (Caseload)

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list the supplementary benefit caseloads in terms of (i) pensioners, (ii) unemployed claimants paid through unemployment benefit offices and (iii) other supplementary allowance cases (a) for each local office and (b) nationally, for the 32-week period ended on 7 April 1987.

Mr. Portillo: Information is not available in the precise form requested.

A breakdown by claimant category and local office of the number of people receiving supplementary benefit on 10 February 1987 is available in the "Analysis of Supplementary Benefit Claimants as at 10 February and 28 July 1987", a copy of which is in the Library.

The national totals for each category of claimant is as follows for 10 February:

	Numbers
Pensioners	1,683,580
Unemployed claimants paid through unemployment benefit offices	2,069,962
Other supplementary allowance cases	1,465,560

Source: 100 per cent. count of cases in action at 10 February 1987.

Dental and Sight Test Charges

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has as to which countries in the EEC charge for (a) dental check-ups and (b) sight tests.

Mr. Newton: I regret that the information available to the Department on optical and dental charges in European Community Countries is insufficient to provide the details requested.

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what statement or other evidence he has that charges will not deter people from having sight tests.

Mr. Newton: The effect of the Government's proposals is necessarily a matter of judgment, especially since it would be for opticians themselves to determine the level of any charges for those ceasing to be entitled to a free NHS sight test. But it is relevant to note that approximately a third of the population would continue to be so entitled, including the least well-off, and that most people who have a test need spectacles and there is no evidence that they have been deterred from attending the optician by the price of private spectacles.

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what statistical evidence he has on the relationship between charges and the take-up of dental treatment.

Mrs. Currie: After an increase in dental charges there is evidence of a short-term drop in demand, followed by a recovery and a continuation of the long-term rise in the number of courses of dental treatment.

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many representations he has now received on his proposal to introduce a charge for eye examinations; what proportion were in favour of charges; and what proportion were against charges;

(2) how many representations he has now received on ending free dental checks; and what proportion were in favour of introducing a charge.

Mr. Newton: We have now received about 1,500 representations on the proposals to restrict the NHS sight test to certain groups and to introduce a charge for the NHS dental examinations subject to the same exemptions as for other dental charges. Concerning the balance of these representations, I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Liverpool, West Derby (Mr. Wareing) on 11 January, at column 181.

Hospital and Community Health Service

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the share of gross national product represented by the hospital and community health service budget, adjusted by the hospital and community health service pay and price index, in each year since 1979.

Mr. Newton: The table shows the available figures. Deflators of whatever kind are not appropriate to this calculation since each figure represents one cash sum expressed as a percentage of another in the same year.

Gross expenditure on the NHS and HCHS as a percentage of GDP

Year	NHS	[1] [2] HCHS
1979	4·8	[3]—
1980	5·3	[4] 4·2
1981	5·5	4·3
1982	5·4	4·2
1983	5·7	4·5
1984	5·5	4·2
1985	5·4	4·2
1986	5·5	4·3

[1] Including expenditure on central health and miscellaneous services (separate figures for United Kingdom not readily available).
[2] The adjustment from financial year data to calendar year has been estimated using Departmental records.
[3] Comparable data for 1979 are not readily available.
[4] Estimated.

Health Service Funding

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish the findings of the review of Health Service funding conducted by his Department between 1981 and 1982.

Mr. Moore: The preliminary survey carried out during 1981-82 into methods of health financing was confidential advice to Ministers. In consequence, as reported to the Select Committee on Social Services ("Reply by the Government to the Second Report from the Select Committee on Social Services", Session 1981-82 Cmnd. 8775 page 8), it will not be made available outside Government.

Research

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what proposals he has to change the contractual agreements between his Department and scientists and social scientists relating to the publication of results obtained in the course of research undertaken on behalf of his Department;

(2) what restrictions are presently imposed upon the publication of results by persons contracted to undertake research on behalf of his Department.

Mrs. Currie: I refer the hon. Member to the reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Eastleigh (Sir D. Price) on 1 December 1987, at column 562.

Earnings (Jury Service)

Mr. Roy Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what consideration he is giving to changing the regulations concerning the non-recognition of jury service payments for average pay calculations in order to permit jury allowance to be taken into account for average earnings purposes; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: None. I assume the hon. Member is referring to the calculations used in establishing entitlement to statutory sick pay (SSP). Payments for jury service are not part of an employee's normal weekly earnings, nor do they attract liability for national insurance contributions. Such payments do not count, therefore, in the calculation of average weekly earnings for SSP.

Abortion

Mr. Amos: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services why the information on the identity of doctors carrying out abortions in private sector places approved under the Abortion Act is confidential.

Mr. Newton: The detail of a person's employment in this field is information which some individuals may not wish to be made publicly available. The Department respects this and treats all such information as confidential. I see no reason to change our practice in this respect.

Airline Passengers (Smoking)

Mr. Amos: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has about the effects on the health of those non-smoking airline passengers obliged to occupy smoking seats.

Mrs. Currie: It is not possible to quantify separately the risk arising from particular episodes. However, the Independent Scientific Committee on Smoking and Health has concluded that there is evidence to link passive smoking with exacerbation of respiratory and cardiovascular symptoms in non-smokers, and that over an extended period exposure to passive smoking is consistent with an increase of between 10 and 30 per cent. in the risk of lung cancer. Non-smokers who are dissatisfied with facilities provided for their comfort when travelling should complain to the company concerned.

Departmental Offices (Staffing)

Ms. Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give the staffing allocations for 1988-89 as determined by the agreed complementing system, for his Department's offices in Hackney, Stoke Newington, Shoreditch, Hoxton and Finsbury Park; and what were the comparable staffing levels in 1986-87 and 1987-88.

Mr. Portillo: Staffing allocations for the year 1988-89 have yet to be finally determined. It is expected that details will be available in March 1988.

The information requested for the previous two years is as follows:

	1986-87	1987-88
Hackney ILO	195	210·5
Stoke Newington ILO	135	141·5
Shoreditch AO	88	95·5
Hoxton ILO	149	163·0
Finsbury Park ILO	210	224·0

Abbreviations:
ILO = Integrated Local Office.
AO = Area Office.

Income Support

Ms. Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will report progress on the conversion of supplementary benefit cases to income support at his Department's offices in Hackney, Stoke Newington, Shoreditch, Hoxton and Finsbury; what percentage of cases have to date been converted; what is his Department's estimate of the percentage of cases at each office that will be converted by 11 April; and when his Department's staff in each office expect to have finished the conversion exercise.

Mr. Portillo: We plan to complete the conversion of supplementary benefit cases to income support by 11 April in all the offices mentioned although we recognise that there is stil a great deal to be done. The percentage of cases converted by 26 January (the latest information available) in each of these offices was:

Office	Percentage
Hackney ILO	26
Stoke Newington ILO	38
Shoreditch AO	18
Hoxton ILO	39
Finsbury Park ILO	16

Additional staff are working at Shoreditch AO and Finsbury Park ILO to assist them with conversion of cases.

Prescriptions (Drugs)

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what he estimates would be the cost to the National Health Service if hospital doctors prescribed brand name drugs, after the patent period had expired, rather than generic drugs.

Mr. Newton: Substitution of generic equivalents for brand name drugs is common practice in National Health Service hospitals. Where a generic equivalent is available hospital pharmacists and doctors carefully evaluate its suitability for use instead of the brand name product.

Figures for the increased costs which health authorities would incur if brand name drugs were used exclusively are not held centrally.

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what he estimates would be the saving to the National Health Service if all general practitioners prescribed generic drugs rather than brand name drugs, after the patent period.

Mr. Newton: It is estimated that if all general practitioners were to prescribe drugs generically the savings, assuming no change to prescribing patterns or mix or cost of drugs, would be in the region of £35 million in England.

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what evidence he has that general practitioners are increasingly prescribing generic drugs rather than brand name drugs, after the patent period.

Mr. Newton Statistics derived from prescriptions for drugs dispensed by community pharmacists show that the percentage of prescriptions written and dispensed generically in England has risen from 15 per cent. in 1976 to 28 per cent. in 1986.

Management Consultants

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the total expenditure by his Department on management consultants on health matters each year since the introduction of general management in 1984.

Mr. Newton: The expenditure by the Department in 1984-85, 1985-86, 1986-87 and the estimated expenditure for 1987-88 on fees and expenses for outside consultants on health matters are as follows:

	£ million
1984-85	0·911
1985-86	1·700
1986-87	4·525
1987-88	[1]4·845

[1] Estimated.

The figures are approximate. In some cases expenditure has been apportioned where consultants have been employed on both health and social security matters. The figures include social services consultancy.

NHS (Performance Indicators)

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services upon what date a copy of the new National Health Service performance indicators for 1986-87 will be placed in the Library.

Mr. Newton: I refer my hon. Friend to my reply to him on 17 December 1987, at column 709. The national set of performance indicators for 1986-87 will now be completed by the end of February 1988 ready for issue to all health authorities in England in March 1988; they will be placed in the Library at the same time.

GPs (Postgraduate Educational Allowance)

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if the programme of regular education and training which general practitioners must undertake to qualify for the new postgraduate educational allowance is relevant to general practice; and if the programme's content will be approved by the Royal College of General Practitioners.

Mr. Newton: Relevance to general practice will be a key feature of courses qualifying for the new postgraduate educational allowance announced in the White Paper "Promoting Better Health". No decisions have been made about this new allowance. The detail will be discussed with the family doctors' representatives, the General Medical Services Committee during the coming year. The views of the Royal College of General Practitioners will be an essential part of our consideration of this issue.

National Insurance

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many companies or individuals were prosecuted during 1985 and 1986 by his Department for non-payment of national insurance contributions on behalf of their employees.

Mr. Portillo: Both criminal and civil proceedings are used to recover class 1 national insurance contributions which have not been paid by employers. The numbers of court proceedings involving individuals and companies were as follows:

	1985	1986
Criminal Proceedings	17	14
Civil Proceedings	1,196	1,402

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how much has been expended by his Department since 1979 on national insurance credits in cases where deductions had been made by employers but then not passed on.

Mr. Portillo: I regret that the information requested is not available.

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the national insurance contribution per year of a person on average earnings.

Mr. Portillo: In 1988-89 a person on average earnings is expected to earn £175 per week and will therefore contribute £15·75 per week if not contracted out of the state earnings related pension scheme (SERPS) and £13·07 per week if contracted out of SERPS. A person receiving £175 during each week in 1988-89, will pay £819 in contributions if not contracted out, and £679·64 if contracted out, on the basis of 52 weekly payments.

Medical Personnel (Liverpool)

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many (a) nurses, (b) midwives, (c) doctors (d) professional medical staff, (e) administrative officers and (f) ancillary workers were employed by the Liverpool health authority in each of the last six years; and what was the average yearly pay for each group in each year.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 11 January 1988]: Because of the 1982 National Health Service reorganisation, figures on a consistent basis are not held for the years prior to 1982. The figures for medical staff excludes senior registrars whose contracts are held by the regional health authority. The district health authority where those staff actually work cannot be identified separately. There will therefore be more doctors working in the Liverpool health authority than are accounted for in the table.

Information on the pay of NHS staff in individual health authorities is not collected centrally and the hon. Member may care to contact the chairman of the Liverpool health authority for this information.

NHS staff in post: Liverpool district health authority at 30 September

	Whole-time equivalent[1]
Staff group	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Medical[2]	560	580	550	560	540
Nursing[3]	5,160	4,960	4,780	4,780	4,920
Midwifery[3]	230	260	270	290	290
Administrative and Clerical	1,360	1,330	1,350	1,290	1,310
Ancillary[4]	2,630	2,490	2,320	2,190	1,860

Source: DHSS annual census of NHS medical and non-medical manpower.

[1] Figures are independently rounded to the nearest ten (10) whole-time equivalents.

[2] Includes permanent paid, honorary and locum staff. Excludes senior registrars—these staff have their contracts with the regional health authority.
[3] Includes agency staff.
[4] On 1 April 1984 operating department assistants transferred from ancillary to professionsl and technical staff group. Figures have not been adjusted to take account of this change.

TRANSPORT

Rail Services (South-east)

Mr. Bright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the response from the British Railways Board to the Monopolies and Mergers Commission report on rail passenger services supplied by the board in the south-east of England; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Channon: The British Railways Board has responded to the report and I have placed copies of its reply in the Library of the House. It shows that it has accepted all the Commission's recommendations, and sets out the action it intends to take. I have discussed the commission's report with Sir Robert Reid, and I welcome the board's positive response. I shall be monitoring BR's progress in following up the commission's recommendations and I shall make a further statement on this in the autumn.

Our policy is that by improving its efficiency BR should provide its customers with an attractive and reliable service and at the same time reduce its call on the taxpayer. I believe the commission's findings show that we have got this right, but there is still room for improvement and I agree with the commission's view that investment will be needed on some routes to relieve overcrowding and cater for traffic growth. I have already approved some investment in new rolling stock on this basis and I am pleased to see that BR is investigating options to identify what further investment is required to meet the quality standards I have agreed with it. In deciding BR's future investment ceilings, the Government will take account of any additional requirements that are shown to be justified. The expenditure figures incorporated in the public expenditure White Paper already contain provision for much of the investment mentioned by the commission, including improvements to the south-eastern approaches to London. I am always happy to receive sensible proposals from BR for cost effective new projects.

The report suggests that we clarify the purpose of the public service obligation grant (PSO) for Network SouthEast and whether it is directed at certain groups of passenger rather than others. The grant is not intended to distinguish between different groups of passenger. Its main purpose is to enable BR to provide essential services and to subsidise fares where that is the most cost-effective way of contributing to the relief of road congestion in the south-east. I shall be discussing with the board in the light of the MMC's report whether its current fares structure reflects both the purpose of subsidy and the proper allocation of costs.

The commission has taken a close look at BR's employment practices and the report contains a number of recommendations. This is an important area for BR to tackle and one where I hope that swift and substantial progress can be made.

Finally, I must comment on the commission's statement that the board has failed to meet its statutory requirement to break even on revenue account, taking one year with another. The Government do not accept this conclusion. The statutory requirement allows for fluctuation between profit and loss in individual years. The period covered by this report includes the ASLEF strikes in 1982 and the miners' strike — both of which had serious "one-off" effects on the board's revenue — and the taking of substantial provisions for the restructuring of British Rail Engineering Ltd. The board has also now changed its accounting policies so that the contribution made by the substantial proceeds from property sales is, for the first time in the 1986-87 annual report and accounts, reflected in the profit and loss account. Over the longer term, the fluctuation between profit and loss has been in balance. I do not, therefore, accept that the board can be said to have failed to meet its statutory duty.

We are grateful to the commission for this comprehensive and detailed report, which follows up its 1980 investigation into BR's London commuter services. I am sure that it will prove to be an equally effective stimulus for further improvements in the way BR runs its services in the south-east.

M3-M27 Road Link

Mr. Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give the dated of the public inquiries which have been held over the past 20 years into the route of the M3/M27 road link.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The following inquiries have been held into proposals for the sections of the M3 stated:

March-April 1971	Popham to Compton
June-July 1972	Compton to M27
June 1976-June 1977	Popham to Compton
June-August 1985	Bar End to M27
June 1987-to date (re-opened inquiry)	Bar End to Compton

Winchester Bypass

Mr. Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents there have been on the Winchester bypass in each of the last 10 years, and what percentage of these involved heavy goods vehicles.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The number of recorded personal injury accidents on the A33 between Compton and Bar End in the last 10 years is as follows:

	Number of accidents	Percentage involving HGVs over 3 tons
1978	15	33
1979	22	22
1980	23	17
1981	20	10
1982	19	16
1983	12	none
1984	26	19
1985	25	24
1986	27	37
1987 Jan-Nov	28	32

Our proposals for improving this road are currently being considered at a public inquiry.

Railway Property (Trespass)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many legal actions for trespass on railway property were initiated by British Rail against fox hunts during 1986 and 1987.

Mr. David Mitchell: My Department has no figures readily available. These are detailed matters for the British Railways Board and the British Transport police.

Car Ownership

Mr Ian Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the growth in the last year in car ownership as expressed as a percentage of the adult population; what is the projected annual growth (a) nationally and (b) in Surrey; what recent census there has been of traffic on major roads and motorways in Surrey; and what is the density of major road traffic (i) nationally and (ii) in Surrey.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: In the year to December 1986 the number of cars per head of adult population increased by 3 per cent. both in Surrey and in Great Britain. At national level growth of between 18 and 27 per cent. is forecast between 1986 and 2000. Similar growth is expected for Surrey.

In 1986 the estimated traffic flow on major roads was 25,500 vehicles per day in Surrey, compared with 11,000 in Great Britain as a whole. These estimates are based on the continuing national traffic census.

Figures for the number of cars per adult in 1985 and 1986 are derived from Driver and Vehicle Licensing Centre records and from population estimates produced by the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys. Figures for the number of cars at the end of 1987 will be available by end February.

Forecasts of car ownership, expressed per head of total population are from the national road traffic forecasts for five-year periods to the year 2015 published by the Department.

The Department's rotating census covers the whole major road network over a six-year period. Average daily flow on a link in the latest year is derived by scaling counts in earlier years using a factor derived at national level from repeated counts at a small number of sites.

The average flow is obtained by weighting together flows on all links by their length.

Air Misses

Mr. Maxwell-Hyslop: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people in each of the last 10 years, passengers plus aircrew, have been at risk in serious air misses where, in the opinion of the Civil Aviation Authority, a collision would have resulted had one or both pilots not taken avoiding action without prior instructions to do so from air traffic control.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The information is not available.

Mr. Maxwell-Hyslop: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the inquiry which he has ordered in connection with his statement to the House on air misses on Monday 8 February, Official Report, column 21-24, has power to require the pilot of the Maley aircraft concerned to give evidence; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The investigation into the air miss on 6 February involving a British Airways Tristar and a Bulgarian Balkan Airways TU154B was ordered by the Department's chief inspector of accidents, following a request from the chairman of the Civil Aviation Authority. The investigation is being carried out under the Civil Aviation (Investigation of Accidents) Regulations 1983, which give the inspector powers to examine all such persons as he thinks fit. Where witnesses are resident overseas reliance is placed on annex 13 to the Chicago convention on international civil aviation, which covers the investigation of accidents and incidents. The Bulgarian authorities have accepted an invitation to participate in this investigation in accordance with the provisions of annex 13.

Economic League

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if his Department has made use of the services provided by the Economic League since 1979.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: No.

Road Costs

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he is considering further action which will ensure that local authority expenditure allocations for road construction and repair will be used to their fullest extent.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Provision for new construction has not been underspent since transport supplementary grant was limited to roads capital expenditure in 1985-86. We shall be keeping the position under review.

The recent substantial underspend on road maintenance is regrettable. We are looking to highway authorities to set budgets for 1988-89 which more closely reflect provision in the public expenditure survey. In the light of those budgets we shall consider whether further action is necessary and might be effective.

Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was the amount of money made available for roads to (a) the Department of Transport and (b) local authorities in England and Wales for (i) capital expenditure and (ii) repairs; and what was the amount spent in each year from 1978 to 1987.

Mr. Peter Bottomley [holding answer 10 February 1988]: The tables show provision and outturn for national roads (motorways and other trunk roads) and local roads in England. The Secretary of State for Wales is responsible for roads in Wales.

(a) National Roads (Department of Transport)
£ million cash

	Provision	Outturn
1978-79
Capital	377	327
Current	—	40
1979-80
Capital	443	402
Current	—	45
1980-81
Capital	536	472

	Provision	Outturn
Current	—	50
1981-82
Capital	685	557
Current	—	69
1982-83
Capital	739	672
Current	—	60
1983-84
Capital	652	641
Current	71	64
1984-85
Capital	724	718
Current	71	78
1985-86
Capital	741	734
Current	75	77
1986-87
Capital	812	766
Current	81	93
1987-88
Capital	893	..
Current	83	..

.. Not available.

Notes:

1. Capital expenditure covers new construction and improvement schemes and structural maintenance. Current expenditure covers routine maintenance of the network. (A different capital/current distinction applies to local roads expenditure.)
2. Because of changes in the structure of the vote, for the years 1978-79 to 1982-83, an accurate allocation of the provision totals between capital and current cannot be made. Separate outturn figures are available.

(b) Local Roads (Local Authorities)

£ million cash

	Provision	Outturn
1978-79
Capital	n/a	221
Current	477	505
1979-80
Capital	295	293
Current	591	575
1980-81
Capital	318	354
Current	708	667
1981-82
Capital	344	308
Current	710	793
1982-83
Capital	410	385
Current	799	844
1983-84
Capital	469	437
Current	844	877
1984-85
Capital	482	451
Current	902	907
1985-86
Capital	492	522
Current	972	963
1986-87
Capital	523	538
Current	1,115	1,072
1987-88
Capital	617	n/a
Current	1,264	1,117

Notes:

1. Capital expenditure covers new construction and improvement schemes only. Current expenditure covers all renewal (including structural) and routine maintenance plus road safety. (A different capital/maintenance distinction applies to national roads expenditure).
2. Figures exclude urban programme and car parks.
3. Outturns for 1986-87 remain provisional.
4. Current outturn for 1987-88 is the total of local authority budgets.

Consumer Policies

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in implementing the Consumer Affairs Council resolution of 1986 on the integration of consumer policies on transport.

Mr. Butcher: I have been asked to reply.

The European Commission has recently submitted its first report to the Council on the progress made towards better integration of consumer policy into other common policies including agriculture, competition, and transport, as requested by the Council resolution of 15 December 1986. A copy of the report is available in the Library (document 10541/87 of 14 December 1987). It is a disappointing report, recording little progress.

Written Answers to Questions

Friday 12 February 1988

HOME DEPARTMENT

Representation of the People Act (Charges)

Mr. Grocott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many charges under section 106 of the Representation of the People Act have been brought in each of the last five years.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The information requested is not available from the records held centrally.

Prisons (Management)

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had about involving the private sector in the construction and management of prisons.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We are carefully considering the recommendations of the Select Committee on Home Affairs and hope to reply shortly. The private sector is already heavily involved in the construction of new prisons. The new Prisons Building Board, which includes representatives from the private sector, will help to ensure that private sector expertise and techniques are harnessed to bring new prisons on stream as quickly as possible.

Crime Statistics

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will indicate the levels of reportable and detectable crime in Seaham and Peterlee subdivisions over the last five years.

Mr. John Patten: I refer the hon. Member to the statistics given by the chief constable of Durham in his annual reports (Appendix G of the issue for 1986). The figures are collected centrally only for police force areas and are published each year in chapter 2 of the Command Paper "Criminal Statistics, England and Wales". Copies of both of these publications are available in the Library.

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will indicate the levels of reported and detected crime in the Barnsley, East constituency over the last five years, on a year by year basis.

Mr. John Patten: Crime statistics for the B (Barnsley) division of the South Yorkshire police are published by the chief constable in his annual reports (page 59 of the issue for 1986). The information which is collected centrally relates only to police force areas, and is published each year in chapter 2 of the Command Paper "Criminal Statistics, England and Wales". Copies of both publications are available in the Library.

Remand Prisoners

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has any plans to review the conditions under which remand prisoners are held in England and Wales.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: No. The reasons for the unsatisfactory conditions in which many remand prisoners are held are well known — antiquated and inadequate buildings and a continually increasing remand population. In order to tackle these problems we have started the biggest prison building and refurbishment programme this century, built new courts, appointed additional judges, set time limits on the remand period before trial, provided for further bail hostel places and introduced other measures aimed at reducing the need for remands in custody.

Police Manpower

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has on the levels of police manning in the Barnsley, East constituency over the last five years on a year by year basis.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I understand from the chief constable that the information requested is as follows:

On 31 December	Strength
1983	126
1984	134
1985	143
1986	136
1987	145

Radio Stations

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether he intends to limit the percentage of equity in new radio stations which can be held by companies involved in record production, newspapers, publishers or advertising; and if he will make a statement;

(2) whether he intends to limit the percentage of equity in new radio stations which can be held by individuals who have substantial involvement with newspapers, publishing houses, record companies; or advertising agencies, and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Renton: We have not yet reached firm conclusions on all aspects of the rules on ownership of independent radio stations which may be needed in order to safeguard competition. We are giving careful consideration to this matter as we develop our proposals for legislation.

DNA Testing

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has now received the results and report on DNA testing that he had commissioned from Dr. Alec Jeffries; and when he intends to publish it.

Mr. Renton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to a question from the hon. Member for Bradford, West (Mr. Madden) on 5 February at column 781.

WALES

Regional Assistance

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what, in real terms, has been the difference between the expenditure on regional development grant and regional selective assistance in Wales since 1978-79; and what are the projected figures for the next three years.

Mr. Peter Walker: Total expenditure in real terms[1] on regional development grant and regional selective assistance in Wales between 1978-79 and 1986-87 (last complete financial year) was £1,029 million and £248 million respectively, the difference being £781 million. Planned provision for 1988-89 to 1990-91, as contained in the 1988 public expenditure White Paper, is, in real terms, £119 million for regional development grant and £141 million for regional selective assistance, the difference being an additional £22 million on regional selective assistance as compared with regional development grant. Additional resources are being provided for regional selective assistance following the ending of the regional development grant scheme; I hope that industry in Wales will take full advantage of the substantial resources being provided not only for regional selective assistance but for the Welsh Development Agency and the new investment, innovation, and business development grant schemes.

[1] Cash figures adjusted for general inflation as measured by GDP deflator at market prices (1986-87 base year).

Welsh Development Agency

Mr. Rowlands: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) what is his estimate of the proceeds accruing to the Welsh Development Agency's property budget for 1988-89; what will be derived from increased rents and the sale of property; and what were the comparable proceeds for 1987-88;

(2) what is his estimate of the Welsh Development Agency's budget for (a) its WINtech operation, (b) its WINvest operation and (c) its venture capital programme, in 1988-89; and what the comparable figures were in 1987-88;

(3) whether he will list the objectives and powers of the Welsh Development Agency's urban renewal unit; what is his estimate of the budget for that unit in 1988-89; and what the relationship will be between that unit and his own Department's organisation of urban development grants.

Mr. Peter Walker: The buoyancy of the property market in Wales allows the Welsh Development Agency to plan for a continued rise in income generated from receipts. In total, the property-related receipts are forecast at £38 million in 1988-89, of which about £18 million and £14 million relate to factory rents and sales respectively. In the current financial year total property-related receipts are currently projected at £30·8 million, of which £14·3 million relate to rents and £11 million to sales.

A detailed breakdown of the agency's increased budget for 1988-89 and comparisons with spending in the present financial year will be available when the Supply Estimates are presented to Parliament in March.

The Welsh Development Agency's urban renewal unit will be strengthened considerably in 1988-89 in order for it to contribute even more effectively to the development and implementation of my urban policies.

Over the next three years the agency is likely to have up to £75 million available to fund its land reclamation, urban renewal and environmental improvement programmes—about 40 per cent. more than originally planned.

Further information on the role of the urban renewal unit, the measures at its disposal and the links with my Department and other bodies will be available when I announce my proposals for developing the valleys initiative.

Regional Development Grant

Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his most up-to-date estimate of the expenditure on regional development grants in Wales in the next financial year, if there were no changes in the regional aid scheme to industry.

Mr. Peter Walker [pursuant to his reply, 28 January 1988, c. 321-22]: The reply should have been as follows: The 1988 public expenditure White Paper contained planned provision of £63·5 million (net of non-EC receipts) for regional development grants in Wales in 1988-89. Equivalent provision in the 1987 public expenditure White Paper was £26·7 million. The increase in provision results from a combination of several factors, including the need to provide resources for those RDG applicants who meet the deadline of 31 March 1988 and are thus subject to the transitional arrangements provided for the ending of the scheme. I am not able to make any precise estimate of the cost of such transitional arrangements at this stage.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Public Inquiries (Legal Fees)

Mr. Andrew F. Bennett: To ask the Attorney-General if he will establish a scale of fees for (a) judges and (b) Queen's counsel (i) chairing or (ii) appearing before major public inquiries, involving the Cleveland child abuse inquiry and the King's Cross tube fire inquiry.

The Attorney-General: A judge who chairs an inquiry continues to receive the usual judicial salary. The amount of the fee for Queen's counsel chairing or appearing at an inquiry is a matter for negotiation between the counsel concerned and the person instructing that counsel. The fee payable depends on many factors, including the experience and seniority of counsel and the length and complexity of the inquiry. As each inquiry differs from another, scale fees would not be appropriate. Where a Queen's counsel is appointed by a Secretary of State to chair an inquiry, the fee is settled with the approval of the Treasury.

Conveyancing

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General in what ways the conveyancing standing committee of the Law Commission has attained its first objective of bringing about within two years of its appointment improvements in matters relating to conveyancing which will be apparent to ordinary housebuyers and sellers.

The Attorney-General: The conveyancing standing committee has published practice recommendations on preliminary inquiries before contract and on pre-contract deposit agreements. It has issued an explanatory guide to "House Selling the Scottish Way for England and Wales". It has also initiated the widespread use of mortgage certificates.

Council for Licensed Conveyancers

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General on what date the initial period of existence of the Council for Licensed Conveyancers contemplated by sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 3 of schedule 3 to the Administration of Justice Act 1985 will come to an end.

The Attorney-General: It is envisaged that the initial period will come to an end on 28 February 1989.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General what procedures the Council for Licensed Conveyancers has established for consultation with licensed conveyancers generally and for telling them about decisions taken or rulings made by the council itself and by the committees which it establishes and about action taken in the fulfilment of the general duty of the council, in accordance with subsection (2) of section 12 of the Administration of Justice Act 1985.

The Attorney-General: The Council for Licensed Conveyancers consults groups representing licensed conveyancers. The rules governing the profession and other forms of guidance will be made available to all licensed conveyancers. This action is taken in the fulfilment of the general duty to which the hon. Gentleman refers.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General what committees have been established by the Council for Licensed Conveyancers under the power accorded in paragraph 8 of schedule 3 to the Administration of Justice Act 1985.

The Attorney-General: The council has established an education working group, a licence and practice working group and a financial working group.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General who are the members of the discipline and appeals committee established by the Council for Licensed Conveyancers in accordance with the provisions of section 25 of the Administration of Justice Act 1985; and what relevant professional or other qualifications each member has.

The Attorney-General: Caroline Hutton, practising barrister; Peter Davis, licensed conveyancer; Katherine Foss, chairman of the Insurance Ombudsman Council; Ian Oddy, chartered surveyor, member of the Council of the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors and chairman of its professional practice committee; Peter Price, licensed conveyancer.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General who are the members of the investigating committee established by the Council for Licensed Conveyancers in accordance with the provisions of section 24 of the Administration of Justice Act 1985; and what relevant professional or other qualification each member has.

The Attorney-General: Rachel Waterhouse, Ph D, chairman of the Consumers' Association; Robert King, solicitor, Law Society council member; Phillip Kenny head of law school, Newcastle-upon-Tyne polytechnic.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General in what form the Council for Licensed Conveyancers is accountable to (a) Her Majesty's Government and (b) licensed conveyancers.

The Attorney-General: The Council for Licensed Conveyancers is accountable to Her Majesty's Government for the proper use of grants made to it by the Lord Chancellor in pursuance of the council's responsibility to give effect to the relevant provisions of part II of the Administration of Justice Act 1985. The council is responsible for publishing its audited annual accounts and for sending a copy of these, together with any report of the auditors thereon, to the Lord Chancellor.

As to accountability to licensed conveyancers, from 1 March 1988 the Council for Licensed Conveyancers will comprise a majority of licensed conveyancers. After 1 March 1989 members of the council will be elected from among licensed conveyancers.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General if he will give particulars of (a) attendance fees, (b) travelling allowances, (c) subsistence allowances and (d) other allowances paid during its first year by the Council for Licensed Conveyancers in exercise of the power accorded to it by paragraph 5 of schedule 3 to the Administration of Justice Act 1985.

The Attorney-General: The particulars for the first 15 months up to 31 March 1987 are:

(a) £16,654; (b) and (c) £8,952; and (d) none.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General on what date the Council for Licensed Conveyancers published accounts for its first year of existence; and by what means copies are made available for hon. Members and others.

The Attorney-General: Accounts for the first 15 months of the existence of the Council for Licensed Conveyancers (that is up to 31 March 1987) will be published shortly. Copies will be available to all licensed conveyancers on request and copies will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Attorney-General if he will make a statement about the circumstances in which the Council for Licensed Conveyancers conducted a review of the outcome of examinations held by it in July 1987, with the result that a number of candidates who had been notified that they had failed to satisfy the examiners then were later notified that they had passed in papers which they had taken.

The Attorney-General: Representations made following the publication of the results of examinations held in July 1987 led the Council for Licensed Conveyancers to conclude that those results might not give a fair indication of candidates' abilities. The decision to review those results was taken in the knowledge that there would not be a further opportunity for unsuccessful candidates to demonstrate their abilities before they would be precluded, from 1 December 1987, from drawing or preparing a contract in addition to the instrument of conveyance.

SCOTLAND

Blood Donors

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what information he has as to the proportion of blood donors in Edinburgh who are HIV positive.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Effective measures are taken to ensure that blood donations are free from HIV. First, all potential donors are required to sign a statement that they are not in one of the groups which have a high risk of catching AIDS. Secondly, all blood donations have been screened for HIV antibodies since October 1985. In the south-east of Scotland region (which includes Edinburgh) since screening began the proportion of donors found to be HIV positive is only 0·012 per cent.

Foreign Language Teaching

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what figures he has to show foreign language teaching provision in Scottish schools and that provided in other EEC countries.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The timetabled percentage of teaching group time in secondary schools in Scotland devoted to foreign languages was 7·6 in 1983. Comparable statistics for other European Community countries are not readily available.

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps he is taking to implement EEC recommendations about foreign language teaching in Scottish schools; if he has any plans to increase current language teaching provision; and what steps he is taking to improve the present situation.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Advice on curricular design for the secondary stages of schooling was issued by the Consultative Committee on the Curriculum (CCC) with the approval of my right hon. and learned Friend in November of last year. The CCC has now submitted further advice on the teaching of languages other than English which my right hon. and learned Friend is now considering.

Regional Aid

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total expenditure on regional aid to industries in (a) Greenock and Port Glasgow and (b) Strathclyde in each category of aid in each financial year since 1978-79, both at current and outturn prices.

Mr. Lang: Total payments of regional selective assistance under section 7 of the Industrial Development Act 1982 to firms in the Greenock and Port Glasgow parliamentary constituency and Strathclyde region are set out in table 1 at both current (synonymous with outturn) and constant (1986-87) prices. Total payments under the revised regional development grant scheme are set out in table 2.

Information on the old RDG scheme is available only by local employment office area (EOA) for payments exceeding £25,000 to individual firms in any quarter. Payments to firms in the Greenock and Port Glasgow EOAs (which approximate to the Greenock and Port Glasgow parliamentary constituency) and in those EOAs which approximate to Strathclyde region are given in table 3.

Table 1: RSA Payments (£ million)

Year	Greenock and Port Glasgow Parliamentary Constituency		Strathclyde Region
	Current prices	Constant (1986-87) prices	Current prices	Constant (1986-87) prices
1978-79	0·4	0·9	6·7	13·1
1979-80	1·0	1·6	9·7	16·1
1980-81	2·6	3·7	14·4	20·2
1981-82	2·8	3·6	13·4	17·2
1982-83	1·4	1·7	12·1	14·4
1983-84	0·8	0·9	13·4	15·2
1984-85	0·7	0·8	18·2	19·9
1985-86	3·8	3·9	30·0	30·9
1986-87	0·9	0·9	19·6	19·6

Table 2: Payments of revised RDG (£ million)

1984-85	—	—	—	—
1985-86	0·1	0·1	9·6	9·9
1986-87	0·6	0·6	31·6	31·6

Table 3: Payments of old RDG (£ million)

	Greenock and Port Glasgow EOAs		EOAs lying wholly or mainly in Strathclyde region
1978-79	2·0	3·9	31·2	60·7
1979-80	0·4	0·7	17·2	28·6
1980-81	2·0	2·8	35·5	49·8
1981-82	5·1	6·5	51·9	66·3
1982-83	7·6	9·0	61·5	73·3
1983-84	2·2	2·5	34·6	39·5
1984-85	8·0	8·8	41·5	45·3
1985-86	8·8	9·1	39·7	40·8
1986-87	9·1	9·1	61·4	61·4

Local Government

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what percentage of those eligible to vote in local government elections in (a) Strathclyde region and (b) Inverclyde district authority are (i) domestic ratepayers, (ii) spouses of domestic ratepayers and (iii) people who receive relief from domestic rates.

Mr. Lang: This information is not held centrally.

Sheep (Restricted Areas)

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, pursuant to the reply of 5 February, Official Report, column 786, how many (a) ewes, (b) rams and (c) lambs, respectively, were given a dispensation to be moved unmarked (i) within and (ii) out of the restricted areas following the Chernobyl accident; and on what dates.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: During August 1986 60 ewes but no rams or lambs were allowed to be moved unmarked within the restricted areas. No ewes but seven rams and 8,404 lambs were allowed to be moved unmarked out of the restricted areas.

Student Grants

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what account he took, in providing for an increase of 3·9 per cent. in student grants for 1988-89, of the loss of housing benefit suffered by students.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The changes in claimants' entitlement to housing benefit, to be introduced in April of this year, will affect all beneficiaries, not simply students; but they do not amount to withdrawal of the benefit.

The enhancement of the maintenance grant rates for students living away from the parental home, which was introduced in session 1986-87 in recognition of changes in benefit arrangements, was retained in the base used to calculate the 1988-89 rates. The changes in housing benefit were also one factor in the decision to increase the rates broadly in line with inflation.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what account he took in settling the student grant increase at 3·9 per cent. for 1988-89, of students' liability for the poll tax from 1 April 1989.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The grant rates for 1988-89, announced on 18 December, do not include any specific addition for students in Scotland who will be liable to pay 20 per cent. of the community charge from 1 April 1989. For most students, that liability extends to only a small part of the session.

For the future, the student support review group is taking account of students' discounted liability for the community charge as part of its consideration of undergraduate student support in general.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he expects to publish the student financial support review.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: We hope to publish the report of the student support review by June this year.

Education (Grant Allocations)

Mr. Allan Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he will announce the recurrent grant allocations to the centrally funded colleges in Scotland for 1988-89; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I am pleased to announce that my right hon. and learned Friend has made the following offers of grant to the 17 colleges of higher education in Scotland for 1988-89. These offers are conditional on parliamentary approval of the Supply Estimates.

	£,000
Central institutions
Duncan of Jordanstone College of Art	3,671
Dundee College of Technology	6,636
Edinburgh College of Art	4,100
Glasgow College of Technology	11,861
Glasgow School of Art	3,613
Napier College of Commerce and Technology	16,499
Paisley College of Technology	10,582
Queen Margaret College	4,251
Queen's College, Glasgow	3,042
Robert Gordon's Institute of Technology	11,909
The Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama	2,479
Scottish College of Textiles	2,344
Colleges of education
Craigie	1,508
Jordanhill	10,001
Moray House	7,302
Northern	6,141
St. Andrew's	3,710

In contrast to previous years, the allocation of grant to individual institutions has been made without regard to estimates of other income available to each institution, but with regard to their efficiency and economy. I welcome the improvements in efficiency that have been achieved in recent years. I am sure that the colleges will respond positively to the incentives that we have now introduced to raise income from sources other than the Exchequer and to improve efficiency yet further.

Tayside Health Board (Staff)

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many doctors, dentists, nurses and other professional staff were employed by the Tayside health board in 1978, 1985 and 1986.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information is shown in the following table.

Whole-time equivalent doctors, dentists, nurses and other professional staff[1] employed by Tayside health board at 30 September

Type of staff	[1]1978	1985	1986
Hospital and community[2]
Doctors	546·8	552·0	536·0
Dentists	71·5	66·7	65·0
Qualified nurses[3]	2,721·0	3,259·0	3,385·5
Scientists	41·0	45·3	44·9
Paramedical staff and speech therapists	[5]260·8	307·0	318·4
Pharmacists[4]	[5]42·0	47·9	44·5
Opticians[4]	[5]—	0·2	0·2

[1] The data refer to qualified staff only. Students, helpers and other similar categories of staff are excluded.
[2] Includes general practitioners employed part-time in hospitals.
[3] The conditioned hours, on which whole-time equivalents is based, for nurses changed from 40 in 1979 to 37·5 hours thereafter.

[4] Excludes high street pharmacists and opticians.

[5] Figures for 1978 for qualified Paramedical staff, Speech Therapists, Pharmacists and Opticians are not readily available. 1979 data are therefore shown.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Industrial Action

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether his Department is undertaking research into the effects of industrial action by teachers on the advancement and motivation of pupils.

Mrs. Rumbold: No research on this topic is currently being funded by the Department.

Examination Syllabuses

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what measures have been taken to collate all previous examination syllabuses, including those for O-levels, CSE, GCSE and 16+, in order that comparative studies may be made.

Mrs. Rumbold: The GCSE examining groups and the Secondary Examinations Council are responsible for ensuring continuity of standards and for making any comparative studies that may be required. Within the groups, the GCE and CSE boards are specifically charged with ensuring GCSE grades require at least the level of achievement required for the corresponding O-level and CSE grades.

American Degrees

Mr. Andrew F. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what progress has been made on the evaluation of American degrees for the purposes of pay of teachers in the United Kingdom with such degrees.

Mrs. Rumbold: Under the provisions of the "School Teachers' Pay and Conditions Document 1987" it is for local authorities to take a view on whether American and other overseas qualifications are of equivalent standard to a United Kingdom degree. Local authority employer and teacher union representatives are holding discussions with the National Academic Recognition Information Centre to consider how degrees from the USA might be scrutinised with greater sensitivity to assess equivalence.

Teachers (Trade Unions)

Mr. Stern: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has as to how many individual teachers are not members of national trade unions.

Mrs. Rumbold: This information is not available within the Department.

Inner London

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what studies he has commissioned on the viability of education provision in inner London being transferred to borough authorities under the provisions of the Education Reform Bill.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Government's decision to legislate for the transfer of education responsibilities to the inner London councils took account of the nature of the present education service in the area, and of the experience of borough LEAs in outer London and in other inner-city areas.

Maintenance Grants

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what estimates he has made of the financial effect of indexing maintenance grants for each category of student.

Mr. Jackson: The cost would depend on the index used and the date from which grants were assumed to be adjusted. In the 1988-89 academic year the main rates of student grant will be increased broadly in line with inflation.

Medical Students (Grants)

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received regarding the reduction of parental contributions in grants for medical students; and what action he intends to take.

Mr. Jackson: My right hon. Friend receives representations about various aspects of the system of parental contributions to student support; those in respect of medical students cannot be separately identified. Future arrangements for student support are the subject of a comprehensive review under my chairmanship.

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what will be the financial effect of the abolition of the special equipment grant for medical students (a) for the Government and (b) for the students; and what representations he has received on this subject.

Mr. Jackson: The abolition of the special equipment grant has achieved savings in public expenditure which have been redeployed within the student awards system. Students attending courses which began before 31 August 1986, and which were in subjects—including medicine—qualifying for the special equipment grant, continue to be eligible to claim up to £90 during their courses. Students whose courses began after 31 August 1986 are ineligible to claim.

Since the abolition of the grant was announced, some 140 letters on the subject have been received, about half of them referring specifically to the situation of medical students.

Extra-mural Education

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science (1) if he will list the allocations of funds by the University Grants Committee for extra-mural education in Wales and England in each of the past 10 years;

(2) if he will list the allocations of funds by the University Grants Committee for extra-mural education in Scotland in each of the past 10 years.

Mr. Jackson: Extra mural provision is a factor in the University Grants Committee's calculation of university grant levels but is not separately identified in the distribution of block grant.

Students (Special Difficulties)

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what funds have been allocated by University Grants Committee to students with special difficulties in each of the past five years in (a) Welsh and English and (b) Scottish universities; and which categories of students have benefited.

Mr. Jackson: The University Grants Committee's distribution of recurrent grant makes no specific provision for students with special difficulties.

Press Releases

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how much in the last year for which figures are available, his Department has spent on the preparation and issue of press releases.

Mrs. Rumbold: In 1986-87, the last financial year for which figures are available, the cost of printing and distributing the Department's press notices was £112,419.

The preparation of press notices is undertaken as a normal part of their duties by departmental officials and cannot be costed separately.

Education Reform

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many bodies have expressed an interest in opting out of local education authority control in Barnsley under the terms of the Education Reform Bill.

Mr. Dunn: All individual schools which have approached the Department have done so on the basis that their interest will be treated in confidence.

University Students

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will publish a table showing the (a) numbers of and (b) percentage of (i) English and (ii) Scottish students attending university in (1) Scotland and (2) England; and if he will express the figures as a proportion of all students attending universities in each of the countries.

Mr. Jackson: The information is shown in the following table:

Full-time students in 1986

	Universities in Scotland	England
Total	47,230	233,538
Numbers domiciled in
England	9,073	188,316
Scotland	30,449	2,938
Other[1]	7,708	42,284
Total[2]	100	100
Percentages domiciled in
England	19	81
Scotland	64	1
Other[1]	16	18

[1] Includes those domiciled in Wales, Northern Ireland and overseas.
[2] Percentages may not sum to 100 due to rounding.

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will publish a table showing the (a) numbers of and (b) percentage of (i) English, (ii) Scottish and (iii) other students attending each university in Scotland; and if he will express the figures as a proportion of all students attending each university.

Mr. Jackson: Information is given in the following table. Figures for students domiciled in England are not readily available.

Full-time students at Scottish universities in 1986

	Numbers Domiciled in				Percentages Domiciled in
	Total	England and Wales	Scotland	[1]Other	[2]Total	England and Wales	Scotland	[1]Other
Aberdeen	5,629	930	3,853	846	100	17	68	15
Dundee	3,300	967	1,874	459	100	29	57	14
Edinburgh	10,127	3,161	5,537	1,429	100	31	55	14
Glasgow	10,521	719	8,369	1,433	100	7	80	14
Heriot-Watt	3,487	618	2,137	732	100	18	61	21
St. Andrews	3,627	1,732	1,223	672	100	48	34	19
Stirling	2,897	807	1,541	549	100	28	53	19
Strathclyde	7,642	382	5,915	1,345	100	5	77	18

[1] Includes those domiciled in Northern Ireland and overseas.
[2] Percentages may not sum to 100 due to rounding.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Balance of Payments

Mr. Douglas: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the United Kingdom's balance of payments, current and trade, for the years 1972 to 1987, with respect to the following groups (a) worldwide, (b) total European Economic Community, (c) European Economic Community national, and (d) Japan; and what was the balance of trade in manufacturing goods with regard to those groups for the same period.

Mr. Alan Clark: The available information is in the following tables.

United Kingdom balance of payments

£ billion

	World			European Community
	Current balance	Visible balance	[1]Manufactures	Current balance	Visible balance	[1]Manufactures
1972	0·2	−0·8	2·1	n.a.	−0·5	0·1
1973	+1·0	−2·6	1·5	n.a.	−1·3	−0·4
1974	−3·3	−5·4	2·0	n.a.	−2·1	−0·5
1975	−1·6	−3·3	3·7	n.a.	−2·5	−0·6
1976	−0·9	−3·9	4·9	−2·5	−2·2	−0·5
1977	−0·1	−2·3	5·9	−2·3	−1·8	−0·5
1978	1·0	−1·5	5·1	−3·1	−2·5	−1·7
1979	−0·7	−3·4	2·7	−3·2	−2·7	−2·6
1980	2·9	1·4	5·5	0·1	0·8	−1·2
1981	6·3	3·4	4·6	0·7	0·1	−2·6
1982	4·0	2·3	2·4	−0·5	−1·2	−4·3
1983	3·3	−0·8	−2·3	−1·1	−2·4	−7·2
1984	1·5	−4·4	−3·9	−2·2	−3·1	−8·1
1985	2·9	−2·2	−3·0	−2·8	−2·0	−8·7
1986	−0·9	−8·5	−5·5	−9·2	−8·4	−10·1
1987	−2·7	−9·8	−7·3	n.a.	−8·9	−10·2

n.a. = not available.
[1]Standard International Trade Classification sections 5 to 8.
Source: CSO United Kingdom Balance of Payments 1987.
Department of Trade and Industry.

United Kingdom Balance of Trade[1]

Overseas Trade Statistics basis £ million

	European Community	Belgium/ Luxemburg	Denmark	France	FRG	Greece	Ireland	Italy	Nether-lands	Portugal	Spain	Japan
1972	−571	20	−110	−92	−250	50	24	−69	−163	−13	32	−143
1973	−1,376	−34	−148	−300	−561	52	84	−121	−308	−40	0	−172
1974	−2,380	−58	−146	−429	−876	37	3	−212	−651	−49	1	−252
1975	−2,508	−181	−177	−457	−698	53	−26	−244	−752	−43	17	−363
1976	−2,369	−180	−47	−344	−916	85	199	−278	−921	25	8	−436
1977	−2,214	−278	−11	−508	−1,078	130	327	−534	−341	69	30	−590
1978	−2,921	−152	−124	−702	−1,412	113	423	−805	−267	30	−25	−741
1979	−3,581	−382	−64	−989	−1,561	122	863	−1,016	−382	−33	−139	−882
1980	−70	−122	−76	−254	−587	91	870	−394	441	56	−95	−1,110
1981	−612	−357	−123	−353	−425	92	1,031	−588	124	35	−48	−1,593
1982	−2,165	−348	−237	225	−1,993	104	886	−712	131	49	−70	−1,978
1983	−3,657	−554	−353	608	−3,597	113	766	−918	337	−79	18	−2,556
1984	−4,281	−636	−464	1,111	−3,604	75	759	−905	12	−259	−370	−2,845
1985	−3,247	−667	−344	1,136	−3,689	15	814	−827	792	−256	−221	−3,104
1986	−9,580	−251	−545	−1,177	−5,589	47	499	−1,203	−1,181	−296	115	−3,743
1987	−10,141	−505	−642	−600	−6,380	89	343	−1,071	−1,292	−148	65	−3,968

[1] Standard International Trade Classification Sections 0 to 9.
Information on trade with individual countries is not available on a Balance of Payments basis.
Source: UK Overseas Trade Statistics.

United Kingdom Crude Balance of Trade in Manufactures[1]

Overseas Trade Statistics basis £ million

	European Community	Belgium/ Luxemburg	Denmark	France	FRG	Greece	Ireland	Italy	Nether-lands	Portugal	Spain	Japan
1972	113	29	59	2	−307	55	166	−36	55	6	84	−141
1973	−340	−8	78	−89	−624	69	218	−70	11	−15	90	−196
1974	−647	−2	96	−106	−900	70	243	−110	−43	−8	111	−269
1975	−540	−34	129	−157	−749	84	265	−186	10	−15	113	−379
1976	−494	−60	234	−119	−1,030	104	347	−190	47	50	123	−464
1977	−662	−125	264	−280	−1,334	171	476	−376	294	104	144	−641
1978	−1,981	−177	179	−535	−1,868	141	735	−667	162	53	−4	−800
1979	−3,144	−403	147	−727	−2,523	184	954	−796	84	13	−77	−960
1980	−3,743	−168	114	−439	−2,001	140	793	−368	184	79	−77	−1,185
1981	−3,014	−379	−5	−594	−2,152	136	690	−497	−191	49	−71	−1,657
1982	−5,024	−525	−1	−535	−3,314	137	547	−826	−466	39	−80	−2,045
1983	−8,071	−499	−71	−1,082	−4,926	172	471	−1,175	−803	−74	−84	−2,654
1984	−8,944	−558	−81	−1,154	−5069	162	495	−1,302	−844	−236	−257	−2,913
1985	−9,543	−518	−21	−1,221	−5833	167	548	−1,387	−747	−238	−293	−3,206
1986	−10,837	−357	−1	−1,510	−6,712	149	584	−1,590	−1,128	−216	−54	−3,918
1987	−11,083	−529	−57	−1,161	−7,456	152	488	−1,554	−1,119	−98	252	−4,165

[1] Standard International Trade Classification Sections 5 to 8.
Information on trade with individual countries is not available on a Balance of Payments basis.
Source: UK Overseas Trade Statistics.

Textile Products (West Bank)

Mr. Robert Hicks: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the action taken by Her Majesty's Government following the discovery of an alleged commercial violation by Israel of a consignment of textile products from the occupied West Bank in which the certificate of origin and description had been altered and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 11 February 1988]: I am aware of one case involving a consignment of lingerie from a supplier in the occupied territories which arrived in the United Kingdom under cover of an Israeli certificate of origin. This certificate had been improperly substituted for the original document issued by a West Bank chamber of commerce. After consultation between officials from my Department and Customs and Excise, the goods were imported without difficulty. However, in view of the alteration of the certificate, the Government referred this case to the European Commission to investigate. I understand they have now made a formal complaint to the Israeli authorities, whose response is awaited.

ENVIRONMENT

Toxic Waste

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Enviroment if he will list (a) the amount in tonnes of toxic waste imported through and offloaded at the port of Seaham over the last five years, (b) the composition of the toxic waste, (c) the point of origin of the toxic waste, (d) the dates of offloading of the toxic waste, (e) the point of disposal of the said toxic waste and (f) the method of transport.

Mrs. Roe: My Department does not normally keep records of waste movements. However, I am advised by Durham WDA that no waste covered by the special waste regulation has been imported through Seaham in the last five years.

Badger Sets

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has received any representations seeking an amendment of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 to protect badger sets.

Mrs. Roe: We have recently received a number of representations from right hon. and hon. Members and members of the public on this matter.

However, badgers are not under threat as a species and already receive a substantial degree of protection under the existing law. We therefore have no plans at present to amend the current statutory provisions.

Housing Associations

Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received regarding the proposals in the Housing Bill to increase the level of private funding of housing associations.

Mrs. Roe: My Department has received over 300 representations on the provisions of the Housing Bill relating to housing associations and in response to the consultation paper "Finance for Housing Associations" issued in September 1987.

Water Supplies

Mr. Allan Roberts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list all public water supply zones in the Yorkshire and Southern water authority regions which failed on bacteriological criteria in the years 1985-87, in particular those which exhibited coliform contamination in distributed water samples on more than five per cent. of occasions.

Mrs. Roe: No public water supplies in the Southern water authority area failed to meet the bacteriological standards set in the EC drinking water directive in the years 1985-87. In the Yorkshire water authoriy area the following supplies marginally failed at some time in 1985-87, but almost half of these now comply and the remainder will do so shortly.

Supply area
Calverley Service Reservoir
Garforth Service Reservoir
Tinshill Service Reservoir
Sowden Beck Spring
West Burton Spring
Sicklinghall Service Reservoir
Burnshall Spring
Crumma Spring
Carr Bottom Treatment Works
Panorama Treatment Works
Blackmoorfoot North Treatment Works
Blackmoorfoot South Treatment Works
Austwick Spring
Blackhill Service Reservoir
Kirkburton Service Reservoir
Ingbirchworth Treatment Works Royd Moor
Cranworth Service Reservoir
Kimberworth No. 1 Service Reservoir
Moonshine Service Reservoir
Sandtoft Service Reservoir
Stannington Service Reservoir
Wadsley Service Reservoir
Wickersley Service Reservoir
Jaw Hill Treatment Works
Gypsey Lane Service Reservoir
Hazelwood Service Reservoir
John O'Gaunts Service Reservoir
Middleton Service Reservoir
Moortown East Service Reservoir
Park Hill (2) Service Reservoir
Tinshill (3) Service Reservoir
Stalling Busk Spring
Countersett Spring
Norwood Treatment Works
Fossdale Spring
Marsett Spring
Gayle Spring
Middlesmoor Spring
Lofthouse Spring
Caperby Spring
Cranehow Bottom Spring
Ellingstring Spring
Newbiggin Spring
Feldom Spring
Cockmoor Service Reservoir
North Coates Road Service Reservoir
Dunnington Service Reservoir
Kexmoor Service Reservoir
Green Hammerton Service Reservoir
Gallogate Service Reservoir
Osmotherley Service Reservoir
Bentham High Level Spring
Bentham Low Level Spring
Blackhouse Spring
Chapel Le Dale Spring
Grassington Spring
Hawkswick Spring
Ingleton Low Level Spring
Lancliffe Spring
Baw Head Spring
Oughtershaw Spring
Moor Lane—Menston Service Reservoir
Clough Head—Goldear Service Reservoir
Cowersley Service Reservoir
Gledhill Service Reservoir
Star Inn Service Reservoir

Mr. Allan Roberts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will estimate the proportion of private water supplies in the United Kingdom which fail the provisions of the European Community directive relating to the quality of water intended for human consumption; and whether the Government have requested the European Commission to exempt all private supplies from the provisions of the directive.

Mrs. Roe: Local authorities are responsible for ascertaining the quality of private water supplies and information on the proportion which fail the provisions of the EC drinking water directive is not held centrally. The Government are discussing with the European Commission a suitable time scale for the application to private supplies of the lead and microbiological parameters of the directive.

Car Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Allan Roberts To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the total annual emissions of (i) nitrogen oxides, (ii) hydrocarbons and (iii) carbon monoxide from all petrol-engined motor vehicles registered in the United Kingdom for each of the following categories (a) over 2 litres cubic capacity, (b) 1·4 to 2 litres cubic capacity and (c) under 1·4 litres cubic capacity in each year since 1970, and the number of vehicles in each of these categories for each of the specified years.

Mr. Waldegrave: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to him on 20 January at column 753.

London Residuary Body

Mr. Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much office space is presently unoccupied at London's county hall; and how much is occupied by the London residuary body.

Mr. Chope: Vacant office accommodation in county hall amounts to 196,400 sq ft. The LRB currently occupies 237,450 sq ft of office accommodation.

Mr. Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment for what reason board members and staff of the London residuary body occupy office space at St. Vincent house, Orange street London.

Mr. Chope: The LRB was established some seven months before the GLC was abolished. It was therefore necessary to acquire premises outside the GLC's property portfolio. Suitable available space was identified at St. Vincent house. The continuing location of the board and support staff is an administrative matter for the LRB.

Mr. Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the cost to his Department of maintaining the headquarters of the London residuary body at St. Vincent house, 30 Orange street, London WC2H 7HH; and how much of the available space there is occupied by the London residuary body.

Mr. Chope: There is no cost to my Department. The London residuary body occupies about 5,400 sq ft of office space in St. Vincent house.

Care in the Community (Barnsley)

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what extra resources he intends to make available to Barnsley metropolitan borough council to provide care in the community.

Mr. Chope: Local authority revenue expenditure is supported by rate support grant block grant; this is an unhypothecated grant; which cannot be attributed to particular elements of an authority's expenditure. The 1988-89 RSG settlement makes provision for local authorities' spending needs on all services, including community care. If Barnsley MBC chooses to spend in 1988-89 at the level assumed in the settlement 55·1 per cent. of its total expenditure will be supported by block grant. In addition, local authorities have almost complete freedom to target their capital spending according to local appreciation of need, within their total capital resources.

Rate Limits

Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what further progress there has been, since his reply to the hon. Member for Banbury on 3 February, Official Report, column 652, in the finalising of rate limits for rate-capped authorities in 1988-89.

Mr. Ridley: I announced on 3 February that I was seeking the agreement of five rate-capped authorities to limits higher than those which I had proposed in December. Two of those authorities — Greenwich and Hackney — have accepted their new figure and these limits have now been prescribed by written direction.

In three other cases, where I was prepared to agree a particular higher figure, the authorities did not accept my proposal. In these cases, and in the eight others where I was not minded to agree an increase over the limits proposed in December, I have looked carefully at any further information provided by the authorities and any further representations which they have made. I was not persuaded, however, that I should take a different view from that which I announced on 3 February. I have therefore today laid a draft order before the House and shall be seeking the approval of the House to the rate limits specified in that draft.

Lancashire

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list in the Official Report those services on which Lancashire county council spends above the national average; by how much; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope [holding answer 5 February 1988]: The comparative information has been presented in terms of net current expenditure per head of population in 1986-87 is as listed.

Net Current Expenditure Per Head

£

Services	Lancashire County Council	Average for all Shire County Councils	Spending by Lancashire County Council in excess of the average for all Shire Counties
Education	245	228	17
School meals and milk	11	8	3

Services	Lancashire County Council	Average for all Shire County Councils	Spending by Lancashire County Council in excess of the average for all Shire Counties
Personal Social Services	51	41	10
Police	53	47	6
Fire	13	12	1
Courts and probation	7	6	1
Town and Country Planning	4	2	2
Local Transport	34	29	5

EMPLOYMENT

London Docklands

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if for each year since 1981, he will give the number of deaths or serious injury recorded by the Health and Safety Executive in the London docklands, together with the respective number of successful or unsuccessful prosecutions.

Mr. Nicholls: The information is not available in the form requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Industrial Tribunals (Membership)

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what percentage of industrial tribunal members are from ethnic minorities.

Mr. Nicholls: 1.5 per cent. of the lay membership of industrial tribunals is from ethnic minorities.

Community Programme

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment whether proposals for the replacement for the community programme have been finalised; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Cope: The details about the new training programme for unemployed adults, which is to replace the community programme from September this year, will be set out in a White Paper to be published very shortly.

DEFENCE

Service Children's Education Authority

Mr. Cartwright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his policy on reducing cost-of-living allowances paid to single parents working as teachers for the Service Children's education authority in respect of dependent 18-year-old children when such children take up full-time undergraduate courses at English polytechnics.

Mr. Sainsbury: In the circumstances described a single parent whose child is presently on a full-time course in the United Kingdom is treated no differently from their married colleagues. However, if the hon. Member has a particular case in mind perhaps he might care to send me the details.

Atomic Energy (Agreement)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library the full text of any addenda or amendments made to the 1958 agreement for co-operation on the uses of atomic energy for national defence purposes with the United States.

Mr. Sainsbury: The 1958 United States/United Kingdom agreement for co-operation on the uses of atomic energy for mutual defence purposes and all subsequent amendments thereto have been published in Command Papers. Generally, the amendments have served only to extend the life of the agreement and keep pace with developments in nuclear technology.

Horse Riding

Mr. Allan Roberts: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to abolish limits on the number of permits for horse riding on his Department's land and towards the setting up of circular bridleway routes for each Ministry of Defence permit area; and if he will make a statement on any problems presently being faced by permit holders and those awaiting permits, in the Aldershot area.

Mr. Freeman: It is Ministry of Defence policy to allow maximum use of its facilities for recreational purposes where such use is consistent with military requirements and with the interests of tenants and licensees and where it does not affect the local amenities and environment unreasonably. Within these parameters it is up to the local military commander, in consultation with the PSA estate surveyor, to decide to what extent horse riding may be permitted.

The huge popularity of horse riding in the Aldershot area has necessitated the operation of a permit scheme so as to control the number of riders on MOD land. The number of permits issued is reviewed annually and reflects military training requirements and conservation interests, including the avoidance of soil erosion. In view of the large number of applicants on the waiting list, discussions were held with the British Horse Society in November last year with a view to doubling the number of permits but restricting the number of days each member of the public could ride. This proposal has not yet been accepted. It is not, however, my intention to abolish limits on the number of permits for horse riding in this area or to set up circular bridleway routes for each permit area.

D-Notice Committee

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State of Defence if he will publish in the Official Report the texts of the letter from Mr. Michael Ramsden, vice-chairman, to Sir Clive Whitmore, chairman of the D-Notice Committee, concerning the future of the D-Notice system, and Sir Clive's letter in reply; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Younger: The text of the correspondence between Sir Clive Whitmore, chairman of the Defence Press and Broadcasting committee, and Mr. J. M. Ramsden, vice-chairman and leader of the press side, was published on Friday 5 February 1988. It is as follows:

Text of a letter from Sir Clive Whitmore to Mr. J. M. Ramsden, dated 21st January 1988

At the special meeting of the Defence Press and Broadcasting Committee which we held on 21st December to discuss the Government's actions in respect of the BBC 4 programme "My Country Right or Wrong" you made the following statement on behalf of the media members of the Committee:—

> "We deplore the Government's resort for the second time this year to legal action in cases where the D Notice procedures have been scrupulously followed by the Press side of the D Notice Committee. The D Notice system rests on mutual trust between Government and media. This trust is now seriously at risk, putting into question the continued relevance of the D Notice Committee. In the light of the injunction against the BBC Radio 4 programme "My Country Right or Wrong" we seek an early statement clarifying the Government's attitude towards the D Notice system."

2. The main point that I wish to make in this reply is that the Government continues to place very great value on the D Notice system. It has served the country well. It has done so because there has been a general recognition on the part of the media, as well as the Government, that publication of certain material could or would prejudice national security and that it is in the national interest to avoid its being made public. The Government continues to hold that view and hopes that the media continue to share it.

3. The Government wishes to continue to operate the D Notice system on the established basis. As your statement above says, its continued value will require trust on both sides. The Government hopes and expects that the media will continue to discuss freely and fully with the Secretary of the DPBC any material within the scope of the D Notices, so that the Secretary can be in a position to provide clear and full advice.

4. The D Notice system deals with information in specific categories, as set out in the D Notices themselves. It is advisory and voluntary. It does not deal with the question of breaches of the duty of confidentiality owed by members and former members of the security and intelligence services to the Crown, a matter which therefore falls outside the remit of th DPBC Secretary. The Government's position, expounded at length in the Peter Wright case, is that members and former members of the security and intelligence services owe a lifelong duty of confidentiality to the Crown and that the upholding of that duty is essential to the effectiveness of these services and thus to the overall security of the country. If advice on a question in this field is desired, the Treasury Solicitor would always be glad to provide it.

5. The D Notice system will continue only if both the Government and the media regard it as worthwhile in the national interest. Whatever disagreements there have been and may continue to be in other areas, nothing has changed, in the Government's view, with regard to the value of the system. The Government hopes very much that the media will agree with this and will continue to participate in the system.

Text of a letter from Mr. J. M. Ramsden to Sir Clive Whitmore, dated 2 February 1988

Thank you for your letter of January 21, and for your reassurance—which we understand has the backing of the Prime Minister and the Attorney-General — that the Government places great value on the D Notice system. We note that the Government wishes to continue to operate the system "on the established basis", but we have again to express our concern that this may not prove possible while the Government maintains its present course of proceeding against the media in the Courts rather than against those it believes to be in breach of their duty of confidentiality.

We accept the breaches of confidentiality by members and former members of the security and intelligence services should not be matters for the D Notice Committee, but we remind you that the Government's own actions have brought the issue before us. The injunction suppressing the BBC Radio 4 programme "My Country Right or Wrong" is still in force, though the Secretary of the D Notice Committee found nothing in it to prejudice national security; and reports on some activities of the security services which have been published in the past without objection from the D Notice Secretary are now the subject of injunctions in the Courts. These and similar inconsistencies on the part of the Government which have threatened the D Notice system and have led us to question our role in its operation. We cannot accept that the duty of confidentiality should become a Government licence to prevent the publication of material which complies with D Notices.

You recognise that the system's "continued value will require trust on both sides". We have to warn you again that this trust will not be forthcoming from the Press side of the Committee if the principle of absolute confidentiality becomes enshrined in any new law with no corresponding recognition of the value of Press freedom.

Yours
J. M. Ramsden
Editor-in-Chief

Text of a letter from Sir Clive Whitmore to Mr. J. M. Ramsden, dated 5 February 1988

Thank you for your letter of 2nd February.

2. I have taken note of the response of the media members of the Defence Press and Broadcasting Committee to my letter of 21st January in which I explained why the Government placed great value on the D Notice system and hoped that the system would continue in being. I have drawn your letter to the attention of those in the Government who are concerned with these matters.

Isle of Wight (Training Area)

Mr. Higgins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many days in the last 12 months for which figures are readily available live ammunition was used by Her Majesty's forces in the Ministry of Defence danger area south of the Isle of Wight.

Mr. Freeman: Figures are not readily available for the last 12 months, but during the six months from 3 August 1987 to 7 February 1988 live ammunition was used by Her Majesty's forces on 66 days in the danger area in question.

Mr. Higgins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many men were trained in the Ministry of Defence danger area south of the Isle of Wight in the last 12 months for which figures are readily available; and what was the total cost of such training exercises.

Mr. Freeman; It is not possible to quantify the benefits arising from these exercises in terms of individual training programmes. However, it may help my right hon. Friend to know that, during the period 3 August 1987 to 7 February 1988, for which records are available, exercise and trials activities in the area referred to amounted to some 530 ship days; and that independent flying activity in the same period totalled some 220 aircraft days. The cost of these activities cannot readily be extracted from the total operating costs of the ships and aircraft concerned.

Mr. Higgins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the maximum height at which practice military targets fly within the Ministry of Defence danger area south of the Isle of Wight; and whether they are only used in good visibility.

Mr. Freeman: The maximum heights for practice military targets used in tracking exercises and target towing exercises are 40,000 ft and 25,000 ft respectively. Good visibility is not necessarily a prerequisite for their use.

Search and Rescue Helicopters

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he is yet in a position to make a statement on his decision on proposals submitted to his Department advocating the transfer of responsibility for United Kingdom search and rescue helicopter units to civil contractors.

Mr. Freeman: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the announcement made by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Armed Forces in the debate on the Royal Air Force on 11 February.

HMS Conqueror

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if, in the light of recent statements by a former official in his Department, Mr. Paul Newbigin, he will reopen the inquiry into the disappearance of the navigator's log book of HMS Conqueror.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I have already written to the hon. Member to explain that recent suggestions in the press that the missing control room logs of HMS Conqueror were destroyed on official orders have been looked into and found to have no substance. The civil servant alleged to have claimed that he was present at the destruction of the logs had no involvement in the administration or reception of units, including submarines, returning from the Falklands conflict. Indeed, he has never been in a post which brought him into contact with naval logs of any kind. As no new light has been shed on the disappearance of the logs since the statements made by my right hon. Friend the Member for Henley (Mr. Heseltine) on 30 November 1984, at columns 593-94, and by my right hon. Friend the Member for Tonbridge and Malling (Mr. Stanley) on 25 October 1985, at column 277, it would serve no purpose to reopen the inquiry.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Profit-Related Pay

Mr. Steel: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many copies of the Treasury leaflet on profit-related pay, ISBN 0 947819 088, were printed and circulated; and if there is a similar leaflet for profit-sharing schemes.

Mr. Lawson: One hundred and ninety thousand copies of the Treasury leaflet on profit-related pay were printed and nearly all of them have been distributed. There is no separate Treasury leaflet on profit-sharing schemes, but I refer the right hon. Member to the reply which I gave to him on 21 January, at column 833, drawing attention to the variety of Inland Revenue leaflets which have been made available.

European Community (Finance)

Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what were the United Kingdom's net contributions to the European Community for the financial years 1982-83 to 1986-87; and what are the projected net contributions for 1987-88 and 1988-89.

Mr. Brooke: The latest figures for the United Kingdom's net contributions to the European Community for the financial years 1982-83 to 1990-91 are shown in table 3.1 in the public expenditure White Paper (Cm. 288-II, page 33).

Parliamentary Papers

Mr. Shersby: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what expenditure has been incurred on providing computers for use in producing (i) Order Papers and (ii) Amendment Papers for use in Standing Committees of the House; if he is satisfied with the arrangements for training Her Majesty's Stationery Office staff to use such equipment; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Brooke: The computers employed at the Parliamentary Press form part of an integrated computer typesetting system which is used to produce a wide variety and large volume of parliamentary work — of which Standing Committee Order and Amendment Papers form a part. It would not be possible to identify separately the expenditure on computers associated with production of Standing Committee Papers alone. The training for HMSO staff at the new press compares very favourably with that provided in the printing trade generally.

Mr. Shersby: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what action he proposes to take to improve the punctuality of delivery of (i) Order Papers and (ii) Amendment Papers for use in Standing Committees of the House.

Mr. Brooke: I am advised that there has been no occasion during the current parliamentary Session when Standing Committee proceedings have been delayed owing to lateness of Order or Amendment Papers. These have been made available either in printed form or in typescript, but I am conscious of attendant difficulties. HMSO is making every effort to increase the number of Committees provided with papers in printed form, including the use of outside trade assistance to cope with the quite exceptional volume of parliamentary business.

Growth

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the reply of 25 January, Official Report, column 81, concerning the rate of growth in each of the past three decades, to what factors he attributes the higher rate of growth in 1957 to 1967; and whether he expects that rate of growth to be achieved in the next four years.

Mr. Major [holding answer 9 February 1988]: Among other things, the world economic environment was more favourable in the 1950s and 1960s than subsequently. Even so, growth in the non-oil economy over the past six years has averaged 3·3 per cent; higher than in the period 1957-67. The Chancellor will be publishing a forecast to mid-1989 at the time of the Budget.

Profits

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the level of profits in each major sector of the economy in each year since 1979, at both current prices and constant 1987-88 prices; and what has been the percentage increase in each case for each year since 1979, both in money and real terms.

Mr. Major [holding answer 11 February 1988]: The information is given in the tables. Profits figures for 1987 are not yet available. Financial year 1987-88 has not yet finished; the real profit figures cannot, therefore, be expressed in 1987-88 prices. Real profits are instead shown in 1980 prices.

Table 1

Profits[1] (including self employment income and other trading income) by sector 1979-86

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
£ million current prices
Agriculture forestry and fishing	3,068	3,371	3,791	4,205	4,063	4,556	4,089	4,206
Energy and water supply	10,580	14,295	17,758	19,809	23,287	25,209	25,379	15,993
Manufacturing	14,721	12,733	12,118	14,362	16,609	18,634	21,175	24,404
Construction	4,472	5,053	5,457	6,285	7,390	8,553	9,789	10,888
Distribution hotels, catering, repairs	9,233	8,549	8,691	8,715	10,499	12,411	14,921	18,019
Transport	2,452	2,257	2,417	2,658	3,214	3,413	3,777	4,718
Communication	1,504	1,523	1,967	2,540	2,337	2,708	3,226	3,686
Banking, finance, insurance, business services and leasing[2]	9,546	10,032	10,997	13,191	13,728	15,076	17,718	20,463
Education and health services	1,075	1,384	1,481	1,583	1,987	2,208	2,499	2,928
Other services	2,073	2,265	2,641	2,830	3,260	3,676	4,411	5,511
Adjustment for financial services	−7,323	−9,353	−10,609	−11,728	−11,636	−13,793	−15,734	−17,404
Total gross profit	58,724	61,462	67,318	76,178	86,374	96,444	106,984	110,816
Percentage increases on a year earlier
Agriculture forestry and fishing	11·5	9·9	12·5	10·9	−3·4	12·1	−10·3	2·9
Energy and water supply	60·8	35·1	24·2	11·5	17·6	8·3	0·7	−37·0
Manufacturing	14·2	−13·5	−4·8	18·5	15·6	12·2	13·6	15·2
Construction	22·0	13·0	8·0	15·2	17·6	15·7	14·5	11·2
Distribution hotels, catering, repairs	16·7	−7·4	1·7	0·3	20·5	18·2	20·2	20·8
Transport	−0·5	−8·0	7·1	10·0	20·9	6·2	10·7	24·9
Communication	−3·5	1·3	29·2	29·1	−8·0	15·9	19·3	14·3
Banking, finance, insurance, business services and leasing[2]	32·2	5·1	9·6	20·0	4·1	9·8	17·5	15·5
Education and health services	15·1	28·7	7·0	6·9	25·5	11·1	13·2	17·2
Other services	3·2	9·3	16·6	7·2	15·2	12·8	20·0	24·9
Adjustment for financial services	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Total gross profit	22·4	4·7	9·5	13·2	13·4	11·7	10·9	3·6

[1] Including gross trading surpluses of public enterprises.
[2] Includes adjustment for financial services.

Table 2

Profits[1] (including self employment income and other trading income) by sector 1979-86

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
£ million 1980 prices
Agriculture forestry and fishing	3,644	3,371	3,443	3,567	3,261	3,489	2,957	2,960
Energy and water supply	12,565	14,295	16,129	16,802	18,689	19,302	18,351	11,255
Manufacturing	17,483	12,733	11,006	12,182	13,330	14,268	15,311	17,174
Construction	5,311	5,053	4,956	5,331	5,931	6,549	7,078	7,662
Distribution hotels, catering, repairs	10,966	8,549	7,894	7,392	8,426	9,503	10,789	12,681
Transport	2,912	2,257	2,195	2,254	2,579	2,613	2,731	3,320
Communication	1,786	1,523	1,787	2,154	1,876	2,074	2,333	2,594
Banking, finance, insurance, business services and leasing[2]	11,337	10,032	9,988	11,188	11,018	11,544	12,811	14,400
Education and health services	1,277	1,384	1,345	1,343	1,595	1,691	1,807	2,061
Other services	2,462	2,265	2,399	2,400	2,616	2,815	3,189	3,878
Adjustment for financial services	−8,697	−9,353	−9,636	−9,947	−9,339	−10,561	−11,377	−12,248
Total gross profit	69,743	61,462	61,142	64,613	69,321	73,847	77,356	77,985
Percentage changes on a year earlier
Agriculture forestry and fishing	−1·1	−7·5	2·1	3·6	−8·6	7·0	−15·2	0·1
Energy and water supply	42·6	13·8	12·8	4·2	11·2	3·3	−4·9	−38·7
Manufacturing	1·3	−27·2	−13·6	10·7	9·4	7·0	7·3	12·2
Construction	8·2	−4·9	−1·9	7·6	11·3	10·4	8·1	8·3
Distribution hotels, catering, repairs	3·5	−22·0	−7·7	−6·4	14·0	12·8	13·5	17·5
Transport	−11·7	−22·5	−2·7	2·7	14·4	1·3	4·5	21·6
Communication	−14·4	−14·7	17·3	20·5	−12·9	10·6	12·5	11·2
Banking, finance, insurance, business services and leasing[2]	17·3	−11·5	−0·4	12·0	−1·5	4·8	11·0	12·4
Education and health services	2·1	8·4	−2·8	−0·1	18·8	6·0	6·9	14·1
Other services	−8·5	8·0	5·9	0·0	9·0	7·6	13·3	21·6

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Adjustment for financial services	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Total gross profit	8·6	−11·9	−0·5	5·7	7·3	6·5	4·8	0·8

[1] Including gross trading surpluses of public enterprises.
[2] Includes adjustment for financial services.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Overseas Civil Service (Pensioners)

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he has any plans to propose measures to safeguard the value of Her Majesty's overseas Civil Service pensions of those serving in or retired from Hong Kong following the transfer of sovereignty to the People's Republic of China and during the transition period prior to then; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: In the past sterling safeguards have normally been negotiated on behalf of members of Her Majesty's overseas Civil Service immediately before constitutional change. It would be a significant departure from previous practice to contemplate such arrangements at this stage, and we have no plans to do so.

Afghanistan

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the policy of Her Majesty's Government towards the sale of weapons to Afghanistan by British manufacturers; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: Our general policy is to consider all applications for licences to export defence equipment on a case by case basis.

Stalker/Sampson Report

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of the Republic of Ireland following the criticism by the Irish Minister for Justice, Mr. Collins, of the statements in the House on the Stalker/Sampson report by the Attorney-General; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Chalker: We fully conveyed our concern to the Irish ambassador at the time, and made it clear that certain of the remarks made on British radio and television by the Irish Minister for Justice were totally unacceptable.

CIVIL SERVICE

Qualifying Test

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Minister for the Civil Service what is the machine-marked qualifying test in the Civil Service; and how it operates.

Mr. Lace: There are two qualifying tests used in Civil Service selection. One is used in the executive officer scheme of recruitment, the other in the appointments in administration scheme. In both cases, the tests perform a dual function. First, they provide selectors with essential information about a range of aptitudes for the work—for example, candidates' verbal skills, numeracy and general reasoning ability. Secondly, they act as an objective method of reducing initial applicant numbers to proportions suitable for interview. The tests are in the multiple-choice form, which enables the Civil Service Commission to use a computer-linked optical mark reader to mark the answer papers.

ENERGY

Dr. David Lowry (Publication)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) if he will seek to obtain for his departmental library a copy of Open University energy research group report, ERG-048, entitled "Reflections on Britain's Nuclear History, A Conversation with Lord Minton", by David Lowry, dated September 1984;

(2) if he will seek to obtain for his departmental library a copy of the 1986 doctoral thesis, "Nuclear Powers—An Assessment of Nuclear Decision Making, 1932-1979, with Special Reference to the Anglo-American Atomic Relationship" by Dr. David M. Lowry, of the Open University.

Mr. Parkinson: Yes.

Nuclear Power Stations (Tests)

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he or his predecessor informed the European Commission and Euratom under article 34 of the Euratom treaty of the test carried out at Hinkley Point; and if he will list all those occasions of which his Department has informed Euratom under article 34 of such tests in civil nuclear facilities in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Spicer: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Bradford, South (Mr. Cryer) on 10 February 1988 at column 227.

Coal Industry

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will indicate the proposed levels of capital investment at the following collieries in each of the years 1988-89 to 1990-91 (a) Houghton Main (b) Goldthorpe Hickelton, (c) Darfield Main, (d) Dearne Valley and (e) Grimethorpe.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Decisions on capital investment at individual collieries are a matter for British Coal.

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what information he has about the workable reserves at the following collieries (a) Houghton Main (b) Goldthorpe Hickelton, (c) Darfield Main, (d) Dearne Valley and (e) Grimethorpe.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a matter for the British Coal Corporation, and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what information he has about the cost per colliery for subsidence at the following collieries in the past five years (a) Houghton Main (b) Goldthorpe Hickelton, (c) Darfield Main, (d) Dearne Valley and (e) Grimethorpe.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a matter for the British Coal Corporation, and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Nuclear Material (Safeguards)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy on how many occasions since July 1986 nuclear material has been withdrawn from safeguards under article 14 of the 1978 tripartite agreement between the United Nations, Euratom and the International Atomic Energy Agency; from which reactors such material originated; what quantities of material were involved on each occasion; and to what use the material was being put.

Mr. Michael Spicer [holding answer 22 January 1988]: In the period 1 July 1986 to 31 December 1987 there have been five withdrawals of plutonium in greater than gramme quantity. One withdrawal was permanent and involved material of Calder Hall/Chapel Cross origin. Four involved the temporary removal from safeguards of material for treatment by specialised equipment in non-civil plant. These are purely technical movements which are necessary for safety reasons. All of this material will be returned to safeguards after treatment.

PRIME MINISTER

Stalker Inquiry

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister which members of the Government were consulted prior to the removal of Mr. John Stalker from his inquiry into the alleged shoot-to-kill policy of the Royal Ulster Constabulary.

Mr. Hurd: I have been asked to reply.

None. The then Attorney-General was, however, consulted about the decision to appoint Mr. Sampson to continue the investigation which Mr. Stalker had started. I and my Home Office colleagues were also informed of Mr. Sampson's appointment.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Debt

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what total levels of debt existed in each of the years from 1979 to 1986 in each category for which deductions were made from debtors in those years under the Payments for Debt (Emergency Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1971.

Mr. Stanley: The information is available only for financial years and is as follows:—

£ million

	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
NIHE (Rent, Rates District Rating)	8·7	10·1	12·2	16·9	21·2	20·1	18·9	18·2
NIE (Electricity)	12·0	11·1	12·7	8·1	7·9	7·5	7·1	7·0
Rating Division	3·9	4·2	5·0	6·1	11·0	14·3	9·7	9·3
Belfast Gas	3·7	3·7	3·7	3·6	3·6	3·3	3·1	2·8

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland from how many people deductions were made under the Payments for Debt (Emergency Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1971 in each of the years from 1979 to 1986.

Mr. Stanley: Numbers of people from whom deductions were made in each category are not available. However, the total number of debt cases recorded by the four creditor bodies was as follows:

Year	Numbers
1979-80	175,300
1980-81	176,300
1981-82	165,000
1982-83	158,000
1983-84	169,100
1984-85	141,400
1985-86	137,000
1986-87	127,000

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what total deductions were made from public sector employees earnings in each of the years from 1979 to 1986 under the Payments for Debt (Emergency Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1971.

Mr. Stanley: Information on the total deductions made from public sector employees earnings is readily available only for 1985-86 and 1986-87 and is as shown:

Year	Amount £
1985-86	1,736,302
1986-87	1,799,290

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what were the total amounts recovered in each of the years from 1979 to 1986 under the Payments for Debt (Emergency Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1971; and what were the total administrative costs for the recovery of these sums.

Mr. Stanley: This information is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what total deductions were made from (a) criminal damage compensation payments and (b) criminal injury compensation payments in each of the years from 1979 to 1986 under the Payments for Debt (Emergency Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1971.

Mr. Stanley: The information is available only from April 1981 and is as follows:

Deductions from Compensation

Financial Year	Criminal Damage £	Criminal Injuries £	Totals £
1981-82	328,137	76,362	404,499
1982-83	[1]1,518,210	113,638	1,663,848
1983-84	202,042	119,143	321,185
1984-85	146,038	98,074	244,112
1985-86	64,296	102,223	166,519
1986-87	72,805	139,720	212,525

[1] Included a single deduction in excess of £1·2 million.

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what categories of debts payments were deducted from debtors in each of the years from 1979 to 1986 under the Payments for Debts (Emergency Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1971; and what are the total amounts deducted in each category were in each of those years.

Mr. Stanley: The categories of debt in respect of which deductions were made from 1979 to 1986 were rent, rates, district heating, electricity and gas. Information on the total amounts deducted over this period is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Travelling People

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans exist to establish further serviced legal sites for travelling people in Northern Ireland; where it is intended that these should be located; what services will be provided; and how many families will be accommodated at each site.

Mr. Needham: Current plans provide for additional serviced sites to Great Britain gipsy site design guide standards for 98 families distributed over three council areas; namely, Belfast city council 72, Derry city council 12 and Strabane city council 14.

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Government have taken to prevent harassment of travelling people in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Needham: Travelling people are entitled to the same protection as other Northern Ireland citizens. The Advisory Committee on Travellers is particularly vigilant in respect of conflicts between the travelling people and local communities and seeks to resolve such conflicts as speedily and amicably as possible.

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what environmental health monitoring is undertaken at legal and other sites occupied by travelling people in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Needham: Environmental health officers of district councils in Northern Ireland visit legal and other sites occupied by travelling people to monitor living conditions and general environmental and sanitary standards. Close liaison is maintained with doctors, health visitors and social workers who also visit the sites.

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what provision has been made in the Belfast urban area plan for site provision for travelling people; and what plans exist for serviced site provision in the Belfast area.

Mr. Needham: Belfast city council plans to develop fully serviced sites for the 72 travelling families resident in its area. It has currently planning permission for one site and has made applications for planning permission to develop five other sites. A further location is under active investigation by the council. The Belfast urban area plan deals with strategic development issues and is not an appropriate basis for dealing with the needs of travelling people.

The council was represented on the 1984 Department of Environment working party on travelling people. The working party produced recommendations which are the basis of current Department of the Environment policies for travelling people. The council has three representatives on the Advisory Committee on Travellers which advises the Minister on the implementation of travellers policy and takes an active role in promoting that policy.

Students

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what figures are available to indicate the number of students aged over 19 years who have received lesser value awards in each of the past five years in Northern Ireland.

Dr. Mawhinney: This information is not available in the form requested.

Education Maintenance Allowances

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what figures are available to indicate the total amounts awarded in education maintenance allowances in each year since 1980 by each education and library board in Northern Ireland.

Dr. Mawhinney: The information is as follows:

Education and Library Board £

	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	[1]1986-87	[2]1987-88
Belfast	16,765	26,941	50,344	48,631	45,392	35,318	30,084	35,000
North-Eastern	32,262	54,646	73,517	74,027	74,382	52,270	40,416	38,000
South-Eastern	21,782	30,531	36,661	37,075	43,522	38,887	30,922	32,000
Southern	71,573	104,014	172,745	174,114	180,459	113,048	87,298	82,000
Western	94,419	162,758	180,562	189,991	174,558	124,467	127,681	101,000

[1] Unaudited figures.
[2] Estimated figures taken from 1987-88 revised recurrent schemes.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what figures are available to indicate the cost of administering education maintenance allowances in Northern Ireland;

(2) what information is available to indicate the number of applications for education maintenance allowances in each board area in Northern Ireland in each year since 1980.

Dr. Mawhinney: No such figures or information are available.

St. Peter's Gaelic Athletics Association Club

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is available to him on what action is to be taken following the Local Government Auditor's inquiries regarding Craigavon council's expenditure in relation to St. Peter's Gaelic Athletics Association Club.

Mr. Needham: The Local Government Auditor has written to a number of former and serving members of Craigavon borough council setting out the matters which he proposes to take into account in relation to this case. The recipients have until 19 February 1988 to make written representations and to indicate whether they wish to seek an oral hearing. Following this the Local Government Auditor will decide whether to proceed with the issue of a certificate under section 82(1) of the Local Government Act (NI) 1972, as amended by article 28 of the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) (NI) Order 1985, that the loss has been incurred due to wilful misconduct.

It is entirely a matter for the Local Government Auditor to decide on the action to be taken in such cases.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Butane Gas

Mr. Janner: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he has any records concerning death or personal injury caused through the inhalation of butane gas.

Mrs. Currie: It is not possible to give exact information relating specifically to injury or death associated with the inhalation of butane gas. Mortality data are available, but cannot precisely separate the category required. The tables show the most reliable currently available information.

Table 1 shows the number of deaths the underlying cause of which relates to the use of liquefied petroleum gas distributed in mobile containers. Most, but not necessarily all, of these products contain butane; in addition, it is not possible to be sure whether butane was inhaled in each case.

Table 2 shows data taken from a continuing study undertaken by the department of clinical epidemiology and social medicine of St. George's hospital medical school, London, of deaths associated with the abuse of volatile substances. This study collects data from a variety of sources, including death registrations and a survey of coroners' findings; the resulting data relate only to those cases where it appeared that the use of volatile substances was deliberate. As with table 1, most but not necessarily all the cases shown involved the use of butane.

Table 1: Number of deaths with an underlying cause relating to poisoning by liquefied petroleum gas distributed in mobile containers, England and Wales, 1980-86.

Year	Number
	ICD (9) E868.0	ICD (9) E981.1
1980	18	0
1981	12	1
1982	6	1
1983	17	0
1984	24	0
1985	18	1
1986	16	1

International Classification of Disease (ICD) E868.0: Accidental poisoning by liquefied petroleum gas distributed in mobile containers.
ICD E981.1: as above, but undetermined whether accidentally or purposely inflicted.

Table 2: Number of deaths associated with the deliberate abuse of gas fuels, England and Wales, 1980-85.

Year	Number
1980	9
1981	11
1982	7
1983	13
1984	27
1985	22

Source: National Study of deaths associated with the abuse of volatile substances, Department of Clinical Epidemiology and Social Medicine, St. George's Hospital, London.

National Insurance

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what portion of national insurance contributions from the average family on average pay is attributable to the cost of the National Health Service.

Mr. Moore: In 1988-89, the NHS contribution from class 1 national insurance contributions will be 0·95 per cent. of earnings up to the upper earnings limit of £305 per week for all employees, and 0·8 per cent. of earnings for employers. The actual amount that the average family will pay will depend on their earnings, and whether one or both partners work. This NHS contribution will fund 13·2 per cent. of the gross cost of the NHS in Great Britain in 1987-88. The table provides the information.

Estimated Average amount of weekly National Insurance Contributions Paid to the NHS (couples with children) Great Britain 1988-89 (Employees Contribution)

	Weekly Earnings (average) £	NHS Contribution 0·9 per cent. of earnings £	Total NIC (not contracted out) £	Percentage of NIC Paid to NHS
One Earner Couples
Husband Working	280	2·66	25·20	10·6
Wife Working	83	0·79	5·81	13·6
Two Earner Couples:
Husband	257	2·44	23·13	10·5
Wife	80	0·76	5·60	13·6
Total	337	3·20	28·73	11·1

Note:
Earnings figures are based on the 1985 family expenditure survey with earnings uprated to 1988-89 levels in line with the normal assumptions about the growth of average earnings.

Family Statistics

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will update to 1985 the reply given to the hon. Member for Kensington, Official Report, 27 January 1987, column 215 showing the numbers of working and out-of-work families with children at different income levels.

Mr. Portillo: I refer my hon. Friend to my reply to the hon. Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on 21 January 1988 at columns 836-40.

Operation Statistics

Sir Peter Hordern: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the 10 most frequently performed surgical operations carried out in National Health Service hospitals; and what estimate he has of the average cost of each type.

Mrs. Currie: The information requested is given in the table.

Estimated number of the 10 most common forms of surgery (in order of frequency) performed in NHS non-psychiatric, non-maternity hospitals, England 1985

Condensed[1] list operation number		Operation	Estimated number of operations	Approximate cost (current prices)	Estimate based on
1.	080	Dilatation, Curettage, Biopsy and Excision of Lesion of Cervix	127,450	£200 to £250	National average cost per patient day in hospital
2.	093	Treatment of Fracture by Operations	105,850	—	Not available
3.	061	Cystoscopy (with Destruction of Lesion)	87,680	—	Not available
4.	023	Tonsils and Adenoids	83,550	£300 to £350	National average cost per patient day in hospital
5.	078	Hysterectomy	68,590	£1,200	Study carried out in 1982
6.	038	Operations on Abdominal Wall, Peritoneum and Mesentery	67,710	—	Not available
7.	039	Inguinal Hernia Operations	66,660	£650	Study carried out in 1982[2] (average for all hernia operations)
8.	092	Post-natal or Post-abortion Operations	65,800	—	Not available
9.	014	Operations on Lens	60,100	£950	1986 estimate for cataracts (including lens implant) only
10.	100	Arthroplasty[3]	53,080	£3,300	1984 estimate for hip joint replacement only

[1] OPCS condensed list of surgical operations.
[2] Many of these operations are now carried out by day surgery but a separate costing for such operations is not available.
[3] Arthroplasty also includes knee joint replacement for which a separate figure is not available.
Source: Hospital In-Patient Enquiry (HIPE).

NHS Staff Statistics

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many medical dental and nursing/midwifery staff (a) left and (b) joined the service of the National Health Service in each of the past five years in (i) the Crewe health service district, (ii) the Chester health district and (iii) the Halton health district;

(2) what were the numbers of directly employed medical/dental and nursing/midwifery staff at 30 September 1987 in (a) Crewe health district, (b) Chester health district and (c) Halton health district.

Mrs. Currie: The latest staff in post figures held centrally are for 30 September 1986. This information is shown in the table. Information on "leavers" and "joiners" is not held centrally.

National Health Service medical and dental and nursing and midwifery staff at 30 September 1986

Whole-time equivalents[1]

District health authority	Medical and dental[2]	Nursing and midwifery[3]
Crewe	89	1,794
Chester	109	1,744
Halton	39	604

Source: DHSS annual census of National Health Service medical and non-medical manpower.

[1] Figures independently rounded to nearest whole-time equivalent.

[2] Includes permanent paid, honorary and locum staff. Excludes consultants and senior registrars whose contracts are held by the regional health authority.

[3] Includes agency staff.

Social Fund

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how much of the expenditure on the social fund set out in table 15.1 of volume II of the Government's expenditure plans 1988-89 to 1990-91 for each year between 1988-89 to 1990-91 is attributable to (a) help with maternity expenses, (b) help with funeral expenses, (c) severe weather payments, (d) community care grants, (e) budget loans and (f) crisis loans.

Mr. Scott: Information for 1989-90 and 1990-91 was given in my reply to the hon. Member for Derby, South (Mrs. Beckett) on 1 February at column 488. The breakdown for maternity and funeral payments for those two years is as follows:

£ million

	1989-90	1990-91
Maternity payments	19·3	19·6
Funeral payments	15·9	16·7

The information for 1988-89 is as follows:

£ million

Maternity payments	19
Funeral payments	15
Exceptionally cold weather payments	4·5
Community care grants	60
Net cost of loans	[1]65

[1] Separate allocations are not made for budgeting and crisis loans.

Operating Theatres

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps he is taking in the light of the report of the Audit Commission to increase the use of operating theatres in National Health Service hospitals; and if he will a statement.

Mrs. Currie: The report by the National Audit Office on the use of operating theatres in the NHS is being studied by the Department together with that from the confidential inquiry into perioperative deaths to see what further initiatives by the Department would be helpful. The five district health authorities studied by the NAO have told us of a number of steps they have taken locally to improve utilisation.

Hospital Charges

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients except the chronically sick and those in receipt of retirement pension or supplementary benefit to make a payment of £25 a day for hospital in-patient care;

(2) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients, excluding those in receipt of supplementary benefit, to make a payment of £25 a day for hospital in-patient care;

(3) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients, excluding those in receipt of retirement pension, to make a payment of £25 a day for hospital in-patient care;

(4) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients, excluding those who are chronically sick, to make a payment of £25 a day for hospital in-patient care;

(5) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients to make a payment of £25 a day for hospital in-patient care;

(6) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients to pay £10 for each visit to a hospital accident and emergency unit;

(7) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients except those in receipt of supplementary benefit, to pay £10 for each visit to a hospital accident and emergency unit;

(8) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients except those in receipt of retirement pension, to pay £10 for each visit to a hospital accident and emergency unit;

(9) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients except those who are chronically sick or in receipt of retirement pension or supplementary benefit, to pay £10 for each visit to a hospital accident and emergency unit;

(10) what is his estimate of the annual yield, excluding administration costs, from requiring all patients except those who are chronically sick, to pay £10 for each visit to a hospital accident and emergency unit;

Mrs. Currie: I regret that information is not held centrally on the number of chronically sick, retirement pensioners or supplementary benefit recipients who are in-patients or who visit hospital accident and emergency units, and estimates in respect of these groups are not therefore possible. The gross annual yield from a £25 daily charge to all NHS in-patients is estimated at £2,370 million. The gross annual yield of a £10 charge for all NHS visits to a hospital accident and emergency unit is estimated at £138 million (this does not include out-patient attendances). No estimate has been made of the administration costs involved in collecting such charges but these costs would not be insignificant.

Fraud Investigators (Seaham and Peterlee)

Mr. John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many benefit fraud investigators are employed in Seaham and Peterlee by his Department.

Mr. Portillo: The most recent available information relates to 8 February 1988. On that date Seaham had one benefit fraud investigator in post and Peterlee had two.

EC (Health Expenditure)

Mr. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish a table showing for (a) 1984,

(b) 1985 and (c) 1986, for each member state of the EEC, the (i) total, (ii) public and (iii) private spending on health as a proportion of gross domestic product.

Mr. Newton: The information for 1984 and 1985 is shown in the table. Comparable statistics for 1986 are not yet available.

Expenditure on health in total and by sector as a percentage of GDP in EEC countries in 1984 and 1985.

	1984			1985
EEC Country	Total	Public	Private	Total	Public	Private
Belgium	7·2	5·5	1·7	7·2	5·5	1·7
Denmark	6·3	5·3	1·0	6·2	5·2	1·0
France	8·4	6·7	1·7	8·4	6·7	1·7
Germany	8·1	6·3	1·8	8·2	6·4	1·8
Greece	4·0	3·9	0·1	4·2	4·1	0·1
Ireland	8·0	6·9	1·1	8·0	6·9	1·1
Italy	6·6	5·3	1·3	6·7	5·4	1·3
Netherlands	8·3	6·6	1·7	8·3	6·5	1·8
Portugal	5·5	3·9	1·6	5·7	4·1	1·6
Spain	6·0	4·3	1·7	6·0	4·3	1·7
United Kingdom	6·2	5·3	0·9	6·1	5·2	0·9

Source: OECD 1987
Note: Luxembourg is excluded from the table because of reported inconsistencies in the national health accounts.

Performance Indicators

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list the 450 performance indicators now available to the National Health Service.

Mr. Newton: A table listing the indicators included in the current package issued to health authorities in England is kept in the Library. A copy of the performance indicator packages issued so far which cover the years 1983-84, 1985-86 and 1986-87 is held also in the Library along with guidance material which gives full descriptions of the indicators and the sources of data from which they are calculated. Indicators for 1986-87 will be placed in the Library during March 1988.

Management Boards

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services who are the members of the National Health Service management board; what are its terms of reference; and how often it meets.

Mr. Newton: The board has no formal terms of reference. Its role and membership are set out in my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Newbury (Mr. McNair-Wilson) on 9 February at columns 207-8. In general it meets formally twice a month.

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services who are the members of the Social Security management board; what are its terms of reference; and how often it meets.

Mr. Scott: The members of the Social Security Management Board are:

C. W. France, Permanent Secretary, DHSS (Chairman)
Mrs. A. E. Bowtell, Deputy Secretary, Social Security Policy
D. V. Chislett, Director of Finance, Social Security
N. E. Clarke, Director Social Security Operations
M. E. G. Fogden, Chief Executive, The Employment Service

Non-Executive
N. L. Colne, Director, Marks and Spencer PLC
Sir Geoffrey Otton KCB, formerly Second Permanent Secretary, DHSS

The board is responsible for ensuring that social security benefits are administered quickly, accurately and economically; that the Government's investment in computers and information technology is brought into use as soon as possible; and that the social security reforms are successfully implemented. It meets at least once a month.

Local Offices (Staff)

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the total number of staff employed in local offices of his Department in (a) Greenock and Port Glasgow, (b) Strathclyde and (c) Scotland at the latest available date; if any changes are envisaged in the number of those employed in the near future; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: The most recent available information regarding the numbers of staff in post in local offices relates to 1 February 1988 and is as follows:

	Numbers
Greenock ILO	176
Port Glasgow ILO	81
Strathclyde Region	4,582·5
Scotland	8,192

Notes: Figures exclude cleaners.
ILO = Integrated Local Office.

The number of staff employed are expected to reduce by April 1988 to take account of reductions in work loads. As part of the annual recomplementing exercise staffing allocations will then be revised. Final details should be available in March 1988.

Income Support Scheme

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the estimated numbers of claimants in (a) Scotland, (b) Strathclyde and (c) Greenock and Port Glasgow who will be eligible for transitional payments under the income support scheme; and if he will list them in terms of categories of claimant.

Mr. Scott: I regret that this information is not available.

Agency Nurses

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if he will list in the Official Report the district health authorities which spent more than 1 per cent. of their allocation in 1986-87 on agency nurses, giving the percentage for each case;

(2) if he will list in the Official Report the district health authorities which spent more than £300,000 in 1986-87 on agency nurses, giving the amount spent in each case.

Mr. Newton: Following is information derived from the 1986-87 annual accounts of district health authorities and those of the special health authorities for the London postgraduate teaching hospitals.

Expenditure on non-national health service (agency etc.) staff—nursing

	Expenditure (authorities in excess of £300,000) £	Expenditure in excess of one per cent. of total revenue expenditure Per cent.
Yorkshire Region
Scarborough	—	1·28
Leeds Western	357,453	—
Leeds Eastern	446,994	—
East Anglian Region
West Norfolk and Wisbech	—	1·02
Cambridge	664,086	—
Norwich	622,285	—
North West Thames Region
South West Hertfordshire	531,657	1·88
Barnet	1,432,868	1·93
Harrow	1,267,046	3·20
Hillingdon	1,526,023	2·54
Hounslow and Spelthorne	2,002,673	3·66
Ealing	337,476	—
Brent	1,207,244	2·23
Paddington	2,370,432	3·62
Riverside	4,056,499	3·04
North East Thames Region
Basildon and Thurrock	560,161	1·17
Mid Essex	559,114	1·05
West Essex	478,906	1·19
Southend	691,564	1·48
Barking, Havering and Brentwood	378,802	—
Hampstead	1,349,503	2·27
Bloomsbury	4,745,219	3·68
Islington	777,354	1·51
City and Hackney	2,123,687	2·43
Newham	1,444,239	3·36
Tower Hamlets	1,365,551	1·92
Enfield	954,921	2·39
Haringey	1,433,658	2·91
Redbridge	771,162	1·89
Waltham Forest	1,580,540	2·87
South-East Thames Region
Brighton	882,130	1·49
Eastbourne	522,100	1·20
Canterbury and Thanet	584,661	—
Dartford and Gravesham	758,412	1·62
Maidstone	466,874	1·25
Tunbridge Wells	671,782	1·41
Greenwich	799,327	1·30
Bromley	946,556	1·75
West Lambeth	1,648,359	1·95
Camberwell	1,797,873	2·55
Lewisham and North Southwark	1,882,684	1·67
South-West Thames Region
North-West Surrey	519,334	1·28
West Surrey and North-East Hampshire	803,363	1·97
South-West Surrey	471,817	1·31
East Surrey	747,873	1·58
Worthing	444,352	1·28
Croydon	343,861	—
Kingston and Esher	575,102	1·37
Richmond, Twickenham and Roehampton	911,998	2·44
Wandsworth	2,510,595	2·72
Merton and Sutton	588,650	—
Wessex Region
East Dorset	449,749	—
Oxford Region
East Berkshire	358,770	—
West Berkshire	496,669	—
Aylesbury	371,664	—
West Midlands Region
Central Birmingham	400,071	—
East Birmingham	301,405	—
West Birmingham	304,732	—
Mersey Region
Liverpool	551,626	—
Special Health Authorities for the London Postgraduate Teaching Hospitals
Hospital for Sick Children	1,405,078	4·15
National Hospital for Nervous Diseases	1,171,056	6·30
Moorfields Eye Hospital	645,679	4·73
National Heart and Chest Hospitals	787,255	2·46
Hammersmith and Queen Charlotte's Hospitals	1,518,411	3·28

Invalid Care Allowance

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will reconsider the application by Mr. John Davis of 6 Tudor Gardens, Shoeburyness, Essex, for invalid care allowance; references ICA/988302 and ICA/168680, which was rejected on the grounds that his father had not been granted the attendance allowance, in the light of the decision to grant the allowance to his father on 3 June 1987, backdated to 14 November 1986, under the reference 0074P 937, and in the light of Mr. Davis's attempts since June 1987 to clarify the situation in various letters to his Department in Palatine house, Preston.

Mr. Scott: A revised decision on Mr. Davis's claim was made on 11 February and he should receive payment within the next seven days. I regret that the review of his entitlement took longer than is usual and I will be writing to my hon. Friend.

Mentally Handicapped Patients (Salford)

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many mentally handicapped patients have been registered in the Salford heath authority area for each year from 1979 to 1987;

(2) if he will give the levels of staff, by National Health Service category, working with mentally handicapped patients in the Salford area for each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mrs. Currie: The information requested since 1982, when the current authority was formed, is given in the tables. Figures for 1987 are not yet available.

Numbers of residents in mental handicapped hospitals and units in Salford Health Authority at 31 December

Year	Number
1982	81
1983	82
1984	80
1985	78
1986	73

NHS medical and nursing and midwifery staff in post in mental handicap area of work, Salford District Health Authority, at 30 September

Year	Whole time equivalents[1]
	Medical[2]	Nursing and midwifery[3]
1982	2	90
1983	3	122
1984	2	133
1985	2	121
1986	2	120

Source: DHSS Annual Censuses of NHS Medical and Non-medical Manpower

[1] Figures are independently rounded to the nearest whole time equivalent.

[2] Includes permanent paid and honorary staff. Excludes Senior Registrars whose contracts are held by the Regional Health Authority.

[3] Excludes agency staff.

NHS Review

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will now publish the terms of reference approved for the internal review of the National Health Service.

Mr. Moore: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Walsall, North (Mr. Winnick) on 1 February 1988 at columns 489-90. I have nothing to add.

NHS (Beds)

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give the numbers of beds in National Health Service hospitals (a) reserved solely for the use of private patients, (b) sometimes used for private patients and (c) never used for private patients, for the years 1979 and 1987; and if he will give for 1987 the percentage occupancy of beds under each category.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 28 January 1988]: I am sorry I cannot give the hon. Member all the information he seeks. The available information is given in the tables. Authorised pay beds are rarely used exclusively by private patients.

Beds for NHS and private patients in NHS hospitals, 1979 and 1986 (England)

Year	Average daily available beds	Average daily occupied beds	Percentage bed occupancy
1979	361,670	293,272	81·1
1986	315,714	254,597	80·6

Authorised pay beds in NHS hospitals, 1979 and 1986 (England)

Year	Authorised pay beds at 31 December	Average daily occupancy by private patients	Percentage bed occupancy by private patients
1979	3,171	1,508	47·6
1986	2,980	958	32·1

Accident and Emergency Units

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the estimated average cost of each treatment by a hospital accident and emergency unit in England.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I regret that the information is not available in the form requested. Hospital cost returns show that the average total cost of an accident and emergency out-patient attendance in England in 1985-86 was £17·30. The range of treatments available in NHS hospitals is so diverse that it would be very expensive to cost each one separately, and difficult to obtain statistically sound results. We estimate that approximately 5 per cent. of all attendances are admitted to in-patient care.

Hospital Accommodation and Food

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the estimated daily cost of (a) accommodation and (b) food for hospital patients in each district health authority in England.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I regret that information on the daily cost of hotel services for in-patients could not be provided in the form requested without incurring disproportionate cost. However, the average daily cost of in-patient hotel services (including catering) in large acute hospitals was £4·89 in 1985-86 (the latest year available).

The estimated cost of feeding patients is not available by district health authority. The estimated cost by regional health authority in 1985-86 was:

Region	Total catering cost per patient/day (£)
Northern	2·74
Yorkshire	2·77
Trent	2·81
East Anglian	2·94
North West Thames	2·83
North East Thames	2·70
South East Thames	2·91
South West Thames	2·66
Wessex	2·90
Oxford	2·76
South Western	2·74
West Midlands	2·75

Region	Total catering cost per patient/ day (£)
Mersey	2·56
North Western	2·79
All Regions	2·78

Care in the Community

Mr. Dixon: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the latest figures available of the number of people returned into the community from mental illness and mental handicap institutions in (a) South Tyneside health authority area, (b) Northumbria health authority area and (c) nationally.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 11 February 1988]: I am sorry I cannot give the hon. Member all the information he seeks as it is not centrally collected. An indication of the number of people who have been settled in the community after living in hospital is given in the table. Some of these people may have been readmitted since because of changes in their condition.

Discharges for 1986 from mental health hospitals and units after durations of stay of 5 years or more (excluding transfers to other NHS hospitals and special hospitals)

Health Authority	Mental illness	Mental handicap
(a) South Tyneside	0	0
(b) Northumberland	3	48
(c) All England	1,082	1,951

Ambulance Authorities (Orcon Standard)

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he will place in the Library a list of which ambulance authorities are not meeting the Orcon standard.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 11 February 1988]: Information about ambulance authorities meeting the Orcon standard is included in the NHS performance indicators published by the Department. A copy of the three performance indicator packages published since 1985 are available in the Library. The performance indicators for 1986-87 will be completed by the end of February 1988 ready for issue to all health authorities in England in March 1988; a copy will be placed in the Library at the same time.

TRANSPORT

Roads (Designation)

Mr. Churchill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what are the criteria a roadway has to meet to acquire an M designation.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Motorways, designated M, are special roads whose use is restricted to certain classes of motor traffic.

The decision to build or improve a road as a motorway takes into account the level and nature of traffic and the function and location of the road.

Vehicles (Lighting)

Mr. Couchman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to amend the present rules for the lighting of vehicles.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Following a major revision of the vehicle lighting regulations in 1984, a large number of small corrections and clarifications have become necessary.

Draft regulations to revise the Road Vehicles Lighting Regulations 1984 are being circulated to interested parties for comment by 30 April.

New requirements are included for direction indicators on agricultural trailers and certain invalid carriages and for new bicycles to have front lamps conforming to British standard.

Stansted Airport

Mr. Haselhurst: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has considered the responses to the consultation on his proposals for aircraft departure routes from Stansted; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Channon: We received many helpful replies to the consultation document sent out on 16 December 1987. We are grateful to all those who responded.

For air traffic control reasons the route structure is needed this summer. But many of those consulted have raised questions which cannot be resolved before then. I have therefore decided to introduce the proposed routes on 7 April on a provisional basis, with a few changes to take into account some of the more straightforward comments which we have received. I shall continue the consultation through a small working party with local representation to see whether the revised routes can be improved in 1989.

Our objectives will continue to be to establish a route structure which will be adequate for the traffic expected as the airport develops, which will safely and efficiently integrate with the air traffic patterns in the London terminal manoeuvring area (the air space serving all the London airports), which will avoid heavily populated areas as far as practicable, and which will give local people and local authorities reasonable certainty for many years to come of those areas which are likely to be overflown.

My noble Friend the Minister with responsibility for aviation will write to my hon. Friend and to other hon. Members with a constituency interest, local authorities and the airport consultative committee, with copies of large-scale maps showing the provisional routes.

Tyres

Mr. Mills: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will publish details of those who responded to his Department and their comments on the EEC directive about tyre tread depth legislation.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The Department has not issued any general invitation to comment on this draft directive. We have received a large number of letters inspired by the tyre industry's published and circulated views on this matter.

Coach Passengers (Accident Statistics)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information he has as to the number of passengers in inter-city coaches killed or injured over the most recent period for which figures are available; what assessment he has made of what the number would have been in each case had seat belts been worn by those concerned; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The Department's accident records do not show figures for inter-city coach services. The number of public service vehicle passengers who were injured on non-built-up motorways, A(M) and A-class roads in the last three years for which figures are available are:

	1984	1985	1986
Fatal	5	12	1
Serious	85	166	65
Slight	521	671	523
All	611	849	589

The number of casualties who might have been saved by seat belts cannot be assessed.

Coaches (Seat Belts)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will now consider seeking to make mandatory the use of seat belts by coach passengers.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: From 1 October this year all newly registered coaches will be required to have seat belts fitted to all exposed forward facing seats. It is passengers in these seats who are most at risk, because they have no other impact protection. They should wear the belts. We will encourage them to do so.

Coaches (Speed Limits)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, in order to harmonise provisions within the EEC, he will consider reducing the speed limit for coaches on motorways to 60 mph.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Seventy miles per hour on motorways is a safe speed limit for coaches in normal traffic and weather conditions. We are making regulations to require coaches to be fitted with speed limiters which will ensure this is not exceeded. There are no Community proposals for harmonised speed limits currently under consideration.

Driving Tests

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many driving tests were cancelled between September 1987 and 31 January 1988 at the driver and vehicle licensing centre, north western traffic area; what was the average waiting time between cancellation and the new appointment; and how many vacant posts for examiners there are.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: 4,417 L-tests and 33 vocational (HGV/PSV) driver tests were cancelled after test programmes had been dispatched to test centres (i.e., four days before test date). No record is kept of the number of cancellations made prior to dispatch. During this period some 120,000 L-tests and 4,000 vocational tests were conducted.

Periods between cancelled and rebooked appointments were in the order of three to four weeks.

There are currently two vacancies for L-test examiners and three for HGV/PSV examiners against complements of 191 and 12 respectively.

London Underground

Mr. Snape: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his policy towards the granting of fire certificates to London Underground station platforms and access passages.

Mr. David Mitchell: The conditions under which a fire certificate is required in respect of offices, shops and railway premises are set out in the Fire Precautions Act 1971. Where a certificate is required, it is the responsibility of the owner of the premises to apply for one to the appropriate fire authority. The Secretary of State for Transport has no responsibility for the granting, or otherwise, of fire certificates for London Underground's premises.

Mr. Snape: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will deposit in the Library copies of the correspondence and memoranda exchanged between Lieutenant-Colonel Anthony Townsend-Rose of his Department's railways inspectorate and the London fire brigade on the subject of the granting of fire certificates for platforms and access passages at Heathrow Central underground station.

Mr. David Mitchell: No. Copies of the correspondence have been made available to the King's Cross investigation. It will be for the investigation to consider whether it is relevant to the circumstances of the King's Cross fire or the lessons to be learnt from it.

Mrs. Mahon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, when he last met the chairman of London Regional Transport, he held any discussion on the future staffing of London Underground stations; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: No. Staffing is a matter for management in accordance with its statutory duty to operate safely and efficiently. Within that framework, I would expect staffing levels to reflect the manpower required to do the job.

London Transport (Women Passengers)

Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many cases of attacks on women passengers were reported in the London Regional Transport area on one-person-operated buses and buses with a conductor, respectively, in the 12 months to the latest available date.

Mr. David Mitchell: Assaults on passengers on buses are dealt with by the Metropolitan police. London Regional Transport does not maintain a central statistical record of such assaults.

Pedal Cycles (Accidents)

Sir Anthony Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many children have been killed or injured in each of the last five years while riding with their parents or another adult on a pedal cycle.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The number of children aged between 0 and 14 inclusive who were recorded as being killed or injured whilst passengers on a bicycle ridden by an adult aged 18 or more are as follows:

Child pedal cycle passenger casualties, carried on pedal cycles ridden by adults. Great Britain 1982 to 1986

	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Fatal	1	2	2	0	1
Serious	10	6	9	12	5
Slight	49	67	46	52	42
Total	60	75	57	64	48

Volunteer Ambulance Schemes

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will introduce legislation to ensure that vehicles used to carry members of the public in volunteer ambulance schemes, are subject to the same licensing procedures as those applying to vehicles used for general hire.

Mr. David Mitchell: PSV operator licences are generally needed for private ambulances that carry passengers for hire and reward. Non-profit-making volunteer ambulance organisations may obtain minibus permits that exempt them from PSV operator licensing. I see no need to change these arrangements.

Buses

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he will, in the course of his current review of the Public Service Vehicles, Conduct of Drivers, etc, Regulations, give further consideration to the case for preserving in the revised regulations the existing obligation on drivers and conductors, as opposed to bus operators, to ensure that information on vehicles about destinations, route numbers, and so on, is correctly displayed; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: Any failure by a driver or a conductor to display adequate information about the destination or routes of a service should be a disciplinary matter for the operator, not a criminal offence.

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he will, in the course of his current review of the Public Service Vehicles, Conduct of Drivers, etc, Regulations, propose the introduction of a ban on smoking by drivers, conductors and inspectors at all times in those areas of a bus in which smoking by passengers is prohibited; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: The 1936 regulations ban smoking by drivers and conductors during a journey or when there are passengers on board. I propose to extend this obligation to inspectors.

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he will, in the course of his current review of the Public Service Vehicles, Conduct of Drivers, etc, Regulations, give further consideration to the case for preserving in the revised regulations the existing prohibition on singing, shouting, spitting and begging; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: The revised regulations that I propose to put to Parliament contain a new prohibition against actions which cause discomfort to anyone travelling on the vehicle or which soil the fittings of the vehicle or the clothing of other passengers. They would also make it an offence to play musical instruments or sound-recording equipment unreasonably to the annoyance of other people.

Maritime Fleet

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will publish in the Official Report a table showing the size in tonnes of the maritime fleet owned and registered in the United Kingdom in 1979 and that for the latest period for which figures are available; what information he has about the corresponding trend in other major European Community fleets over the same period; and what recent discussions have taken place with the European Commission and in the Council of Ministers regarding likely future developments, including the subject of aid to fleets.

Mr. David Mitchell: The available information is as follows:

Table 1
Deadweight tonnage of trading vessels 500 grt and over owned and registered in the United Kingdom and the Crown Dependencies

	Million tonnes
End 1979	36·6
End 1987	9·5

Table 2
Deadweight tonnage of trading vessels 100 grt and over registered in other European Community Countries with major fleets

	Million tonnes
	Mid-1979	Mid-1987
Greece	63·3	42·6
France	20·6	8·2
Italy	19·0	12·0
Spain	13·6	8·0
Federal Republic of Germany	13·5	5·5
Denmark	8·9	6·8
Netherlands	8·2	4·7

Note: Statistics above are not entirely compatible:

(i) United Kingdom figures are based on vessels of 500 grt or over since ownership information is not available for vessels below this threshold;

(ii) United Kingdom figures are end-year; figures in table 2 are mid-year;

(iii) Figures in table 2 relate only to registration. Ownership information is not available.

The Council of Ministers requested the Commission in December 1986 to produce proposals aimed at the harmonisation of state aids and improving the competitiveness of the European fleets. Commissioner Clinton Davis assured the Council of Ministers last December that this was being pursued, and I hope that proposals will be received shortly.

Written Answers to Questions

Monday 15 February 1988

PRIME MINISTER

Corporations (Statistics)

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Prime Minister how many people were employed in the work force in 1987 in (a) British Coal, (b) British Telecom, (c) British Rail, (d) the Post Office, (e) British Gas, (f) British Steel, (g) British Shipbuilders and (h) British Airways; and how much was paid to the chairmen of these concerns.

The Prime Minister: British Telecom, British Gas and British Airways are no longer in the public sector. The information requested for the public sector corporations is as follows:

	Average number of employees[1]	Salary of Chairmen[2]
British Coal	162,800	145,000
British Rail	171,400	81,000
Post Office	188,732	90,000
British Steel	54,650	100,000
British Shipbuilders	8,642	65,000

[1] Information taken from 1986-87 annual reports and accounts.
[2] Salaries payable to current chairmen following each Board's latest pay review. Some chairmen are additionally eligible for performance bonuses.

Economic League

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Prime Minister what directives or policy statements have been issued to nationalised industries regarding the use by those industries of information supplied by the Economic League; and what information she has about the involvement of that organisation in supplying information to nationalised industries or Government-sponsored bodies.

The Prime Minister: No such directives or policy statements have been issued; such matters would be for the industries themselves. I also refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, the Member for South Ribble (Mr. Atkins), to the hon. Member for Erdington (Mr. Corbett) on 11 February, at column 307.

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Prime Minister what steps she is taking to ensure that public funds designed to create employment do not go to bodies which use information supplied by the Economic League in taking employment and staff decisions.

The Prime Minister: Grants from public funds are made in accordance with the appropriate guidelines and are not allocated or withheld by reference to such criteria.

Trawsfynydd (Test)

Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to her reply to the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Dr. Thomas), Official Report 25 January, column 21, which authorities were consulted concluding that article 34 of the Euratom treaty is not relevant to the Trawsfynydd nuclear test.

The Prime Minister: I have nothing to add to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Dr. Thomas) on 25 January, at column 8.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Unification Church

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Attorney-General what assessment he has made of the likelihood of new evidence becoming available to enable him to reverse his intention not to continue with the appeal against the decision not to remove charity status from the Unification Church; what efforts are being made to obtain fresh evidence; and if he will make a statement.

The Attorney-General: With the leave of the court, my appeal has been discontinued and cannot therefore be proceeded with further. If circumstances were to change further so as seriously to call into doubt the charitable status of either of the trusts in question I would consider raising the matter afresh with the Charity Commissioners. Immense efforts were made by the Treasury Solicitor to obtain new material while the proceedings were pending, but no active steps are being taken to amass further evidence now that my action has been discontinued.

Legal Aid

Mr. Heffer: To ask the Attorney-General what steps the Lord Chancellor is prepared to take to change the present position whereby, because of regulation 9 of the Legal Advice and Assistance Regulations (No. 2) 1980, legal aid is not available when defendants are outside the United Kingdom, following their extradition; and if he will make a statement.

The Attorney-General: Legal advice and assistance is restricted to the application of English law. The Lord Chancellor is not contemplating any change.

Mr. Heffer: To ask the Attorney-General whether legal aid has been available since the House of Lords judgment in the Heysel stadium extradition case, to help English lawyers in their efforts in the United Kingdom to assist Belgian lawyers in their defence of those involved in this case; and if he will make a statement.

The Attorney-General: No, Sir. Legal aid is not available in respect of proceedings abroad.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Civil Service (Staffing and Conditions)

59. Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will review the staffing and conditions of civil servants with a view to ensuring adequate levels to provide an efficient service to the public.

Mr. Brooke: The standards and efficiency of service to the public provided by individual Departments are a matter for the Ministers responsible for those Departments.

Terms and conditions of service for civil servants, and other matters of personnel management policy determined centrally, are kept under constant review to ensure that they meet the needs of individual Departments and Government as a whole.

Income Tax

Sir Peter Hordern: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what would be the cost of reducing the top rate of income tax from 60 per cent. to 50 per cent. and what would be the gain to the Exchequer if personal allowances for those who paid the original rate of 50 per cent. and above were not raised in line with inflation, on income which attracts income tax at that level and above.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The cost of reducing the 55 per cent. and 60 per cent. rates of income tax to 50 per cent. would be £530 million in a full year at 1988-89 levels of income. The cost assumes that 1987-88 personal allowances and tax bands are indexed to 1988-89 levels according to the statutory provisions. The yield from not indexing personal allowances for those liable to rates of 50 per cent. or more under indexation would be about £50 million.

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will update his reply of 10 April 1986, Official Report, columns 191-92, to give the tax band table for 1986-87, 1987-88 and his estimate for 1988-89;

(2) how many people in work or in receipt of unearned income paid (a) no income tax and (b) tax at top rate of (i) 60 per cent., (ii) 55 per cent., (iii) 50 per cent., (iv) 45 per cent., (v) 40 per cent., and (vi) 27 per cent. for the two years ended 1986-87, with estimates for the year ended 1987-88; and what was the total tax yield from each of the above groups for 1986-87.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answers 26 and 27 January 1988]: Information is in the tables. All estimates are provisional. Estimates of the number of taxpayers by marginal rate in 1988-89 are not available.

Number of tax units (thousands)

	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88
Marginal rate[1]
Basic rate[2]	19,400	19,400	19,700
40 per cent.	400	410	390
45 per cent.	290	290	330
50 per cent.	160	170	210
55 per cent.	70	80	100
60 per cent.	100	110	140
Total higher rate	1,020	1,060	1,170
Total paying tax	20,400	20,500	20,900
Total[3] not liable to tax	5,300	5,500	5,500

Income tax liabilities by marginal rate[1] of tax unit (£ million)

	1986-87
Marginal rate[1]
Basic rate[2]	29,630
40 per cent.	2,360
45 per cent.	2,220
50 per cent.	1,820
55 per cent.	1,240
60 per cent.	3,800
Total tax from higher rate tax units	11,450
Total tax liabilities	41,080

[1] The marginal rate is taken as the higher of the marginal rates for married couples making a wife's earnings election.
[2] The basic rates are 30 per cent. for 1985-86, 29 per cent. for 1986-87, and 27 per cent. for 1987-88 and 1988-89.
[3] ie the total with earned income or investment income.

Mortgage Tax Relief

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the estimated cost in 1988-89 of increasing mortgage tax relief to £35,000.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The direct revenue cost, in 1987-88 terms, of an increase in the ceiling for mortgage interest relief to £35,000 is estimated to be about £165 million. This estimate makes no allowance for any consequential changes to the distribution of outstanding mortgages. It would be premature to provide an estimate for 1988-89, since the cost will depend on the amounts of mortgage lending and level of interest rates, as well as on the 1988-89 income tax rates and bands.

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what would be the estimated saving to the revenue of allowing only one individual to claim tax relief on any mortgage.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I assume that my hon. Friend is interested in the cost of the additional mortgage interest relief which sharers can receive in respect of a shared loan which exceeds £30,000. The direct revenue cost in 1987-88 of this additional relief is estimated to be about £25 million.

United States Forces

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the total cost to the Exchequer of United States forces in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Information on the total cost to the Exchequer is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However the net identifiable public expenditure costs in 1986-87 were as follows:

	£ million
Host Nation Support	[1]6·1
PSA Administrative Expenditure	[2]15·7
Rents for Married Quarters	1·2
Contributions in lieu of rates	9·6
Total	32·6

[1] These are costs incurred by the United Kingdom in pursuance of its obligations under the Status of Forces Agreements.
[2] These costs reflect the net expenses incurred by PSA in design of buildings, letting contracts, supervising work in progress and consultancy fees.

Tax Burden

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the direct tax burden has changed for those on below average earnings since 1979.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Income tax liabilities of single people and married couples with total income below average earnings are £3·4 billion less in 1987-88 than they would be if the 1978-79 tax regime had been retained and indexed for inflation. Average earnings are those for full-time males (all occupations) paid at adult rates and they are estimated at £229·80 per week in 1987-88.

Foreign Companies

Mr. Rooker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish details of the additional income brought into charge as a result of the controlled foreign companies legislation introduced in the Finance Act 1984, specifying in each financial year (a) the total acceptable distributions paid to United Kingdom residents, (b) the total number of directions made, (c) the total chargeable profits apportioned and assessed under those directions, excluding those under appeal, and (d) the number of individual controlled foreign companies and individual groups involved in (i) pursuing acceptable distribution policies and (ii) having directions made on them, including those under appeal.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The additional income brought into charge as a result of the controlled foreign companies legislation introduced in the Finance Act 1984 is as follows:

	Financial year 1985 £ million	Financial year 1986 £ million	Financial year 1987 (to date) £ million
(a) The total acceptable distributions paid to United Kingdom residents	111·57	181·17	203·73
(b) The total number of directions made	Nil	9	16
(c) The total chargeable profits apportioned and assessed under those directions, excluding those under appeal	Nil	2·98	4·12
(d)(i) The number of individual controlled foreign companies involved in pursuing acceptable distribution policies	101	138	145
The number of individual groups involved in pursuing acceptable distribution policies	48	77	69
(d)(ii) The number of individual controlled foreign companies involved in having directions made on them, including those under appeal	Nil	8	14
The number of individual groups involved in having directions made on them, including those under appeal	Nil	7	11

Note: The statistics are on the basis of amounts agreed or determined in each Financial Year, and, in the case of acceptable distributions, as reported by local offices.

EC Finance Ministers

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consultations he will hold with Finance Ministers of other EEC countries in regard to the framework of his forthcoming Budget.

Mr. Norman Lamont: My right hon. Friend consults his counterparts in other EC countries on a range of fiscal and monetary issues. The composition of the Budget is, however, a matter for him alone.

Tax Offices (Relocation)

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received from bodies within the county of Durham concerning the relocation of the 21 district tax offices away from London; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The Inland Revenue has received representations on this subject from Durham county council. The Inland Revenue's plans to relocate the 21 district tax offices—and parts of head office—have their origin in the reluctance of many trained inspectors to accept transfers to the London area. The choice of location for these offices was made only after a careful and thorough consideration of all the options. Operational and personal needs pointed to locations which already had a number of offices with a sufficient core of fully trained inspectors at particular grades.

Tobacco Tax

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking a substantial increase in tobacco tax in the 1988 Budget, in the light of continuing evidence by bodies including the Royal College of Physicians of the dangers to health posed by smoking.

Mr. Lilley: My right hon. Friend has received a number of such representations.

Public Bodies and Corporations

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the public bodies and corporations whose accounts are presented to Parliament each year and the dates on which the accounts were presented in the last 12-month period.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I regret that this information cannot be provided without a disproportionate expenditure of time and resources.

ECOFIN Council

Mr. Carrington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the outcome of the latest meeting of the European Community's Economic and Finance Council.

Mr. Nigel Lawson: The ECOFIN Council met in Brussels on 9 February. I represented the United Kingdom.

The Council heard and discussed interim reports from the chairmen of the monetary committee and committee of central bank governors on the Commission's proposals to complete the liberalisation of capital movements in the Community. The Council agreed that the committees should complete their final reports to the Council by April and that Council working group discussions should start forthwith.

Enterprise Zones

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give for each of the years 1981-82 to 1985-86 and for the aggregate of these years the number of taxpayers claiming 100 per cent. capital allowances for investment in enterprise zones.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 9 February 1988]: I regret that this information is not available.

Tax Fraud

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the number of prosecutions for cases of tax fraud detected in 1979 and 1986-87 for which the amount recovered was (a) under £999, (b) £1,000 to £4,999, (c) £5,000 to £9,999, (d) £10,000 to £24,999, (e) £25,000 to £49,999, (f) £50,000 to £99,999, (g) £100,000 to £499,999, (h) £500,000 to £990,999, (i) £1,000,000 to £1,499,999, (j) £1,500,000 to £1,999,999 and (k) over £2,000,000.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 9 February 1988]: No records are kept of the total amounts recovered in cases of prosecution for tax fraud. However, the numbers of prosecutions categorised by the amounts of tax due from fraud provable to criminal standards, were:

	1979	1986-87
Under £999	42	7
£1,000-£4,999	46	20
£5,000-£9,999	11	33
£10,000-£24,999	14	66
£25,000-£49,999	7	50
£50,000-£99,999	1	25
£100,000-£499,999	3	18
£500,000-£999,999	—	—
£1,000,000-£1,499,999	—	—
£1,500,000-£1,999,999	—	4
over £2,000,000	—	—

These figures do not include police prosecutions, for which details of the tax involved are not held by the Inland Revenue.

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the total amount of money recovered from those cases of tax fraud in 1986-87 which each individually involved more than £1 million.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The total amount recovered including, where appropriate, interest and penalties was £7,888,255·14.

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the number of cases of tax fraud detected in 1979 and 1986-87 for which the amount recovered was (a) under £999, (b) £1,000 to £4,999, (c) £5,000 to £9,999, (d) £10,000 to £24,999, (e) £25,000 to £49,999, (f) £50,000 to £99,999 (g) £100,000 to £499,999, (h) £500,000 to £990,999, (i) £1,000,000 to £1,499,999, (j) £1,500,000, to £1,999,999 and (k) over £2,000,000.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The Inland Revenue do not keep records of the number of investigations opened in any particular year, and the total number of investigations settled within each of the categories stipulated could not be provided except at undue cost.

Unpaid Tax

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the numbers of taxpayers for whom the ground for non-payment of tax in 1979 and 1986 was (a) that they had gone abroad (b) that they were untraceable.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 9 February 1988]: The numbers of cases in which tax was irrecoverable in 1979 and 1986 because (a) the taxpayer had gone abroad or (b) the taxpayer was untraceable were:

	Number
1979
(a) Gone abroad	2,491
(b) Untraceable	23,680
1986
(a) Gone abroad	2,295
(b) Untraceable	49,009

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give for 1979 and 1986 the numbers of taxpayers from whom tax was not collected for reasons of going abroad or being untraceable for whom the amount of tax owing exceeded (a) £10,000, (b) £50,000, (c) £100,000, (d) £500,000 and (e) £1,000,000.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 9 February 1988]: I regret that the detailed information requested is not readily available and could not be obtained without disproportionate cost.

PAYE

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many cases have been detected since 1979 of employers deducting moneys from employees in respect of PAYE and then not passing such payments to the Inland Revenue; and how many prosecutions ensued.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 11 February 1988]: Where amounts of PAYE deducted have been properly reported to the Inland Revenue by employers but not paid, debt recovery procedures are instituted. Prosecution does not occur in these cases.

In 1986-87 — the first year for which figures are available — there were 852 detected cases in which deductions made from employees' earnings were not reported to the Revenue. In many of these cases the omissions were simply errors. In cases of negligence or fraud the normal consequence would be money penalties provided for in the Taxes Act. Only in very few instances would the question of criminal proceedings arise. The figures for such proceedings are not recorded separately, and could not be provided except at undue cost.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been expended by his Department on crediting employees with PAYE deductions which had been made by employees but not subsequently passed on to the Inland Revenue..

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 11 February 1988]: Employees are given credit for all PAYE deductions actually made, whether paid over to the Inland Revenue or not. The total amount of such deductions written off as irrecoverable between 1 November 1979 and 31 October 1986 was £214·7 million.

Taxation

Mr. Key: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list for each year since 1979 (a) the basic rate of income tax and (b) Government revenue from all taxation, adjusted for inflation; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 11 February 1988]: Following is the information:

	Basic rate of income tax (pence per pound)	Total taxes and national insurance contributions (£ billion 1986-87 prices)
1978-79	33	114·1
1979-80	30	121·6
1980-81	30	121·0
1981-82	30	131·4
1982-83	30	132·3
1983-84	30	135·3
1984-85	30	140·9
1985-86	30	143·3
1986-87	29	146·3
1987-88	27	[1]152·5
	[revalued at 1986-87 prices using GDP deflator]

[1] As forecast in the 1987 Autumn Statement.

Sport and Recreation (Tax Exemption)

Mr. Squire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the net effect to the Exchequer in the current financial year of giving tax exemption without charitable status to the governing bodies of sport and recreation.

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what would be the net effect of granting tax exemption without charitable status to the governing bodies of sport and the umbrella representative organisations of such bodies.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answers 11 February 1988]: I regret that this information is not available centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Persian Gulf

Mr. Hill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further developments or action, in application of paragraph 3 of article VIII of the modified Brussels treaty, in geographical areas outside NATO will follow from the concerted action of Western European Union member countries on the Gulf crisis that started in summer 1987; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: The action taken by Western European Union member countries in the Gulf is a good example of the practical benefits which appropriate use of the organisation can bring to our security. Further such use of WEU should be considered whenever the right opportunity occurs.

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the policy of Her Majesty's Government in regard to the visit and search of unarmed merchant ships in international waters in the Persian Gulf.

Mr. Mellor: Under article 51 of the United Nations charter, a state actively engaged in armed conflict, such as Iran, is entitled in exercise of its inherent right of self-defence to stop and search a foreign merchant ship on the high seas if there is reasonable ground for suspecting that the ship is taking arms to the other side for use in the conflict. This is an exceptional right: if the suspicions prove to be unfounded and if the ship has not committed acts calculated to give rise to suspicion, then the ship's owners have a good claim for compensation for loss caused by the delay.

USSR

Mr. Hill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what are the main developments in the Soviet Union's external policy which call for a reappraisal of Western European countries' relations with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Mr. Mellor: We have welcomed the improved atmosphere of East-West relations and practical achievements such as the intermediate nuclear forces treaty. We have also noted signs of a less aggressive Soviet approach in some foreign policy areas. But we shall judge by deeds not words, and are awaiting in particular full Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan.

Atlantic Alliance

Mr. Hill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the extent to which recent developments in the Atlantic Alliance make it essential to strengthen its European pillar; and what role the Western European Union will play in the organisation of strengthening this pillar.

Mr. Mellor: It has long been our objective to strengthen the European pillar of the Alliance. The Western European Union provides a forum for its members to concert a clear and distinctive contribution to the deliberations of the Alliance as a whole.

Bophuthatswana

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions the South African Government have made representations to him, seeking United Kingdom recognition of Bophuthatswana; by whom such representations were made; and what precise form they took.

Mrs. Chalker: My right hon. and learned Friend has received no such representations in recent years.

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, further to the answer of 5 February, if he will make a statement on the relevance of the history of the people of Bophuthatswana before 1977 to the formulation of United Kingdom policy towards Bophuthatswana.

Mrs. Chalker: As I explained in my answer of 8 February, at column 56, our policy is based on the fact that Bophuthatswana was created out of the Republic of South Africa, as a key element in the policy of separate development, to which we are wholly opposed.

Foreign Ministers Meeting (Lusaka)

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs why Her Majesty's Government were not represented at a meeting of eight Commonwealth Foreign Ministers in Lusaka on 1 February, to consider and review existing sanctions against the apartheid regime in South Africa.

Mrs. Chalker: The United Kingdom is not one of the eight members of the committee.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on resource assessment work in the Falkland Islands conservation zone.

Mr. Mellor: A data collection and biological research survey programme was instituted by the Falkland Islands Government's fisheries department on the establishment of the Falkland Islands interim conservation and management zone on 1 February 1987. The data is analysed with the assistance of the FIG's scientific advisers, the renewable resources assessment group at Imperial college, who submit regular reports.

Romania

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has received any requests to make representations to the Romanian Government over the planned and actual destruction of churches and other old monuments in the city of Bucharest; and whether he has made any such representations.

Mr. Mellor: We are aware of the strong concern which exists over the destruction of churches and other historic buildings in Bucharest, and over reports of further planned demolitions. My right hon. and learned Friend reflected this concern in his discussions with the Romanian Foreign Minister in London in November 1987.

EC (Border Controls)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on plans to end border controls in western Europe by 1992.

Mrs. Chalker: The Single European Act commits member states to work towards completing the single market by the end of 1992. We wish to see obstacles to the legitimate movement across frontiers of people, goods and services reduced as far as possible. This must be done in a way which preserves our ability to take measures to control immigration, combat terrorism, crime and drug trafficking and maintain essential safeguards for human, animal and plant health in accordance with the Single European Act.

PLO (Training)

Mr. Janner: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he will institute an inquiry into the training of militamen from the Palestine Liberation Organisation in battleground communications, provided by Racal Ltd. in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Mellor: No. The question of the alleged sale of radio equipment by Racal Ltd. to the Palestine Liberation Organisation in 1981 is currently under investigation, as my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Corporate Affairs told the House on 2 February.

Northern Ireland (US Visits)

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many locally and nationally elected United States politicians have been invited during each of the last 10 years to visit Northern Ireland at public expense; what positions they held; what was the full cost in each case; how many were involved in each party; how many brought their spouses or other relatives; and in those cases, who paid.

Mrs. Chalker: The table shows United States politicians who have visited Northern Ireland at the invitation and expense of the United Kingdom Government in each year from 1981 to 1987, and the number of relatives who are recorded as accompanying each one. In none of these cases were the expenses of a relative met by the United Kingdom Government. The total cost of all these visits, including travel between Belfast and London, hotel charges and meals, but excluding Government staff time and transport is estimated (at 1987 prices) at £9,000. It is likely that all the visits formed a part of a wider programme which covered other areas of the United Kingdom. The other information sought in the question is not available.

1981
—

1982
—

1983
The Hon. Thomas Hynes, Assessor of Cook County, Illinois.

1984
Mr. Richard Bauman, Member of the Oregon House of Representatives.

1985
Lieutenant Governor George Ryan of Illinois (with one relative).

1986
—

1987
The Hon. Michael Madigan, Speaker, Illinois House of Representatives (with one relative).
Mr. Jack Kubik, Member, Illinois House of Representatives.
Senator Royal Bolling, Senator, State of Massachusetts.

Heysel Stadium

Mr. Heffer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foriegn and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made, in the light of the expected duration of the case and the volume of evidence, of the adequacy of legal aid available in Belgium to assist the lawyers acting for the defendants extradited in the Heysel stadium case; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: The Belgium authorities have appointed lawyers to represent the detainees. British legal aid is not available oversees. British consular officers continue to monitor the case closely.

Hong Kong (Delegations)

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the members of each delegation from Hong Kong that has been received by Ministers in his Department since May 1979, giving the dates of each such meeting.

Mr. Mellor [holding answer 1 February 1988]: Ministers have received the following Hong Kong delegations since May 1979:

October 1979:
Four members of the Urban Council:
Mrs. Elsie Elliot
Mr. Denny Mong-Hua Huang
Mr. Tsin Sai-Min
Miss Cecilia Lai-Yin Yeung

September 1982:
Five members of the Executive and Legislative Councils:
Sir S. Y. Cheung
Mr. R. H. Lobo
Mr. Li Fook-Wo
Miss Lydia Dunn
Mr. Chan Kam-Cheun

May 1984:
Delegation comprising:
Dr. L. K. Ding—Vice President Hong Kong Medical Association
Mr. Fund Wai-Kwong—Hong Kong Federation of Students
Mr. Fung Ho-Lup—Society for Community Organisation
Mr. Ma Kwok-Ming—"Meeting Point"
Mr. Andrew Tu—Association for the Protection of Public Justice
Mr. Fung Kin-Kee—Elected Urban Councillor
Mr. Lee Chik-Yuet—Elected Urban Councillor

May 1984:
Eleven members of the Executive and Legislative Councils:
Sir S. Y. Cheung
Mr. R. H. Lobo
Mr. T. S. Lo
Miss Maria Tam
Mr. Y. L. Cheung
Mr. Allen Lee
Mrs. Selina Chow
Mr. S. K. C. Cheong
Mr. Y. L. Chan
Mr. M. D. Sargent
Mr. O. V. Cheung

December 1984:
Twelve members of the Executive and Legislative Councils:
Sir S. Y. Cheung
Miss Lydia Dunn
Mr. R. H. Lobo
Mr. Q. W. Lee
Miss Maria Tam
Mr. Andrew So
Mr. Y. L. Cheung
Mrs. Selina Chow
Mr. Y. L. Chan
Mrs. Rita Fan
Mr. P. Poon
Mr. Allen Lee

January 1985:
Three members of the Executive and Legislative Councils:
Sir S. Y. Cheung
Miss Maria Tam
Mr. P. Wong

September 1986:
Ten members of the Executive and Legislative Councils:
Sir S. Y. Cheung
Miss Lydia Dunn
Mr. O. V. Cheung
Sir M. Sandberg
Mr. Q. W. Lee
Mr. S. L. Chen
Miss Maria Tam
Mr. Allen Lee
Mr. Donald Liao
Mr. E. P. Ho

January 1988:
Mr. Martin Lee (member of the Legislative Council)

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

Family Planning

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further assistance the Government intend to provide for family planning projects in developing countries.

Mr. Chris Patten: I am ready to consider requests for assistance with family planning activities from developing country Governments and non-governmental organisations. The projects in India, Kenya and Pakistan listed in the answer which my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs gave the hon. Member for Birmingham, Hodge Hill (Mr. Davis) on 26 January at column 130 will include family planning activities.

In addition, subject to parliamentary approval, in 1988 we will contribute to the following multilateral organisations working in family planning:

	£ million
(i) International Planned Parenthood Federation	5·75
(ii) United Nations Fund for Population Activities	5·25
(iii) World Health Organisation Special Programme in Human Reproduction	2·20

Nicaragua

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will urgently consider aid to Nicaragua for the expansion of its education and health programmes.

Mr. Chris Patten: I am not proposing to provide additional Government-to-Government aid to Nicaragua at this time. The European Community provides substantial aid to central America, including Nicaragua.

Bophuthatswana

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what United Kingdom funds have been directed to projects in Bophuthatswana since 1977-78, expressed in cash terms and real terms and as a percentage increase or decrease on the first year when such funds were so directed.

Mr. Chris Patten: The figures are as follows. Those for the period before 1982-83 are not readily available. The projects in question are all non-governmental ones.

	Expenditure in cash terms	Expenditure in real terms (1987-88 estimated prices)	Percentage increase/ decrease in real terms on 1983-84
	£	£	Per cent.
1982-83	Nil	—	—
1983-84	227	270	—
1984-85	Nil	—	−100

	Expenditure in cash terms £	Expenditure in real terms (1987-88 estimated prices) £	Percentage increase/ decrease in real terms on 1983-84 Per cent.
1985-86	2,073	2,225	+725
1986-87	3,010	3,138	+1,063
1987-88 (forecast)	18,927	18,927	+6,913

Southern Africa Development Co-ordination Conference

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list information available to him on the external debt, for the latest available year, for each of the member states of the Southern Africa Development Co-ordination Conference.

Mr. Chris Patten: Total external debt, including the use of International Monetary Fund credits, outstanding at the end of 1986 for each of the SADCC countries is estimated to have been as follows:

Country	$US millions
Angola	1,544
Botswana	358
Lesotho	186
Malawi	1,114
Mozambique	1,390
Swaziland	232
Tanzania	3,955
Zambia	5,300
Zimbabwe	2,480

Sources: The World Bank World Debt Tables 1987-88, Vol. II, except for Angola and Mozambique for which OECD estimates have been provided.

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list information available to him on the repayments of external debt, as a proportion of export earnings, for the latest available year, for each of the member states of the Southern Africa Development Co-ordination Conference.

Mr. Chris Patten: Debt service payments (excluding those in respect of short term debt but including repayments to the International Monetary Fund) as a proportion of export earnings in 1986 for each of the SADCC countries is estimated to have been as follows:

Country	Per cent.
Angola	n/a
Botswana	5
Lesotho	50
Malawi	57
Mozambique	n/a
Swaziland	11
Tanzania	25
Zambia	38
Zimbabwe	29

Source: World Bank World Debt Tables 1987-1988, Vol. II.

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list information available to him on the repayments of external debt, for the latest available year, of each of the member states of the Southern Africa Development Co-ordination Conference.

Mr. Chris Patten: Repayments of principal and payments of interest on external debts (excluding short term debt but including repayments to the International Monetary Fund) in 1986 by each of the SADCC countries is estimated to have been as follows:

Country	$US millions
Angola	n/a
Botswana	44
Lesotho	14
Malawi	132
Mozambique	n/a
Swaziland	31
Tanzania	87
Zambia	268
Zimbabwe	397

Source: The World Bank World Debt Tables, 1987-1988, Vol. II.

Population Projects

Mr. Terry Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many requests for assistance with population projects or projects with a population component were received in January.

Mr. Chris Patten: None.

Mr. Terry Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what was the total expenditure on population projects or projects with a population component in 1987.

Mr. Chris Patten: Figures for total expenditure on bilateral projects financed during 1987 are not yet available. Contributions to multilateral population programmes in 1987 totalled £13·2 million.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Derbyshire (Bids)

Mr. Oppenheim: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science, further to his reply of 3 February, Official Report, column 624, if he will publish figures for the bids by Derbyshire county council; and what percentage this represents of the allowed capital expenditure on education.

Mr. Dunn: The information requested for the years 1981-82 to 1988-89 is set out in tables 1 and 2. Before 1981-82, local education authorities did not receive block allocations but were notified annually, in the context of a rolling programme, of a limit on the value of building starts in the following year.

The allocation in respect of prescribed expenditure does not represent my right hon. Friend's view of what an authority's capital expenditure on education should be. Authorities may use spending power from capital receipts and other flexibilities in the capital control system to supplement the allocations.

Table 1: Plans for and Allocations of Prescribed Capital Expenditure 1981-82—1988-89

Year	Derbyshire's Plans (Cash Prices)	Derbyshire's Allocation[2]	Allocation as per cent. of Plans
	£	£
1988-89	15,025,000	10,777,000	72
1987-88	20,028,000	9,036,000	45
1986-87	13,942,000	7,202,000	52
1985-86	10,794,000	7,239,000	67
1984-85	9,885,000	6,546,000	66
1983-84[1]	—	6,848,710	n.a.
1982-83[1]	—	8,490,005	n.a.
1981-82[1]	—	8,750,830	n.a.

[1] Cash plans were not requested in these years.
[2] The allocations shown are those announced before the start of the financial year.

Table 2: Plans for and Allocations for Capital Expenditure by Governors of Aided Schools, 1981-82—1988-89 in Derbyshire

Year	Governors Plans for the Area of Derbyshire	Allocation[3]	Allocation as per cent. of Plans
	£	£
1988-89	1,580,000	1,155,000	73
1987-88	900,000	685,000	76
1986-87	665,000	190,000	29
1985-86	455,000	375,000	82
1984-85	475,000	225,000	47
1983-84[1]	215,000	310,000	144
1982-83[1]	693,000	576,000	83
1981-82[2]	—	—	—

[1] The planned expenditure relates to new projects only but the allocations included allowances for on-going projects.
[2] Allocations for 1981-82 were made on a different basis from those for later years and have therefore been omitted.
[3] The allocations shown are those announced before the start of the financial year in question and do not include subsequent revisions. Allocations made may be greater than the planned expenditure shown in the table. The information provided on bids was sometimes incomplete and compensatory adjustments were made to allocations.

Medical Students

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will list in the Official Report the number of (a) women and (b) men students in all medical schools accepted for pre-clinical study in 1958, 1968, 1978 and 1988.

Mr. Jackson: The intake of pre-clinical medical students to United Kingdom medical schools is shown in the following table. 1960 is the first year for which information was collected.

	Academic year starting in
	1960	1968	1978	[1]1987
Men	1,528	2,076	2,480	2,246
Women	492	721	1,499	1,874

[1] Provisional.

University Grants

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science (1) if he will publish tables showing (a) the volume of University Grants Committee grants to each university in Britain for each year since 1979-80, including planned expenditure to 1990-91, at constant 1987 prices and (b) the overall value of these grants at 1987 prices for each year since 1979-80, including planned expenditure to 1990-91, to (i) Scottish institutions, (ii) Welsh institutions, (iii) English institutions and (iv) British institutions as a whole; and if he will express as a percentage the change in real terms of these grants to (i), (ii), (iii) and (iv) between 1979-80 and 1990-91, and 1987-88 and 1990-91;

(2) if he will publish a table showing for each year since 1979-80 to 1990-91 the value of Government grants to each university in Britain.

Mr. Jackson: For 1979-80, I refer the hon. Member to table 41 of "Statistics of Education 1979 Universities Vol. 6", and for 1980-81 to 1985-86 to table 3 of the respective annual editions of "University Statistics Volume 3 Finance". Copies of these documents are available in the Library. Comparable information is not available for later years. The figures may be converted to constant prices on an academic year basis by taking account of the following gross domestic product deflators:

Year
1979-80	60·780
1980-81	69·625
1981-82	75·673
1982-83	80·309
1983-84	83·988
1984-85	88·275
1985-86	92·475
1986-87	95·825
1987-88	100·000

Student Grants

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what provisions he has made for the financial value of student grants to increase so that they will take into account students (a) liability for payment of the poll tax and (b) loss of housing benefit entitlement; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: Students' liability to pay the community charge, and eligibility to receive housing benefit, are among the many matters which will be taken into account in reaching decisions on future levels of student support from public funds. The main rates of grant for the 1988-89 academic year have already been announced, at column 759 on 18 December 1987.

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects the student financial support review to report.

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he now expects to publish the student financial support review.

Mr. Jackson: The work of the student support review is expected to be completed by the middle of this year.

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will indicate for each year since 1977 the value of the maximum student grant, outside London, at constant 1987 prices.

Mr. Jackson: The information is as follows:

Academic Year	"Elsewhere" rate of grant in constant (1987-88) prices
1977-78	2,271
1978-79	2,294
1979-80	2,230
1980-81	2,210
1981-82	2,130
1982-83	2,063
1983-84	2,042
1984-85	2,017
1985-86	1,964
1986-87	1,980
1987-88	1,972

Notes:

1. Repricing is based on the RPI for September each year.
2. For the years 1977-78 to 1983-84 an adjustment has been made to take account of revised arrangements for travel expenses introduced in 1984-85.

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will seek to compensate students through increases in their grant for (a) their loss of housing benefit and (b) their liability for at least 20 per cent. of the poll tax.

Mr. Jackson: All prospective changes in students' financial circumstances will be taken into account in determining future levels of student support.

ILEA

Mrs. Rosie Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science (1) what specific measures he will undertake to safeguard the standard of provision of nursery education in inner London, following the abolition of the Inner London education authority;

(2) what specific measures he will undertake to safeguard the standard of provision of adult education in inner London, following the abolition of the Inner London education authority;

(3) what specific measures he will undertake to safeguard the standard of provision of education for children with special needs in inner London, following the abolition of the Inner London education authority;

(4) what specific measures he will undertake to safeguard the standard of provision of the youth service in inner London, following the abolition of the Inner London education authority.

Mr. Dunn: Under the proposals announced by my right hon. Friend on 4 February, each Inner London council will become the local education authority for its own area. Councils will be required to publish in 1989 development plans setting out the service they expect to provide from April 1990. The Government will issue guidance on the subjects to be covered by these plans, which will include nursery education, provision for children with special educational needs, adult education and the youth service.

My right hon. Friend also explained that the Department of Education and Science will be discussing, with the Inner London councils, which services, if any, might be better provided by formal or informal co-operative arrangements.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Police Liaison Committees

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to the frequency of meetings of police liaison committees; and if he will list (a) the 10 committees that meet most frequently and (b) the 10 committees that meet least often.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: In accordance with section 106 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984, the arrangements made in each police area for obtaining the views of the community on policing are the responsibility of individual police authorities, or, in the Metropolitan police district, the Commissioners of Police. I regret that information in the form requested is not available.

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to the number of times the police liaison committee has met on the Isle of Wight.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I understand that the police liaison committee for the Isle of Wight met five times in 1986 and once in 1987.

Football Games (Arrests)

Mr. David Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many arrests have been made at or around English Football League grounds in the current season.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: 2,297 up to 31 October, the latest date for which figures are available.

Child Murder

Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish a table showing the numbers of (a) homicides made known to the police in each of the past 10 years which involved the death of a child under 16 years of age and over the age of one year, and (b) infanticides made known to the police in the past 10 years, indicating the numbers of such cases where the child or infant was sexually abused.

Mr. John Patten: The available information is published in chapter 4, "Homicide", of "Criminal Statistics, England and Wales, 1986", Cm. 233, copies of which are in the Library.

Remand Prisoners (Police Cells)

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many juveniles have spent time on remand, or convicted, in police cells in the last six months, and how many of those were removed from the region in which they appeared in court in order to be held in police cells;

(2) how many 17 to 20-year-olds have spent time on remand, or convicted, in police cells in the last six months; and how many of these were removed from the region in which they appeared in court in order to be held in police cells.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Information is not available in the form requested. Records do not distinguish between juveniles and other under-21s or between convicted and unconvicted prisoners. The available information relates to persons aged under 21 years held in police cells in England and Wales on any day. The following table lists this information for each Friday between 7 August 1987 and 5 February this year:

Date	Number
7 August	86
14 August	77
21 August	41
28 August	16
4 September	179
11 September	213
18 September	190
25 September	193
2 October	272
9 October	272
16 October	249
23 October	273
30 October	181
6 November	203
13 November	203
20 November	152
27 November	201
4 December	238
11 December	218
18 December	213
25 December	179
1 January	216
8 January	255
15 January	257
22 January	238
29 January	247
5 February	236

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will authorise Her Majesty's Inspector of Prisons to carry out an investigation into the situation in police cells which are regularly used for the detention of prisoners on remand; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: No. The role of the Chief Inspector of Prisons is to report on prison matters, whereas care and custody of prioners in police cells are the responsibility of chief officers of police.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prisoners on remand were being detained in police cells on the most recent date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: On Friday 12 February, 985 prisoners were held in police cells, in England and Wales, most of whom would have been on remand.

Hampshire Constabulary

Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received from the Hampshire police authority, or other interested parties, about increasing the establishment of the Hampshire constabulary.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Hampshire police authority sought an increase in its force establishment of 23 posts in 1987-88. Representations in support of the application have been received from a number of my hon. Friends whose constituencies lie within the force area and from the right hon. Member for Birmingham, Sparkbrook (Mr. Hattersley).

My right hon. Friend was unable to approve the application for 1987-88 but the authority has been informed that further consideration will be given to it in 1988-89.

Nuclear Power Stations (Fires)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many instances have occurred since 1979 where access to a nuclear power station has been denied to fire officers when a known fire has taken place; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the Question from the hon. Member for Bradford, South (Mr. Cryer) on 22 January at column 869.

Charity Law

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any proposals for the reform of the law on charities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: My right hon. Friend announced on 21 January, in reply to a question from the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Ashdown), at column 1089, that the Government intend to bring forward legislation to implement the recommendations of Sir Philip Woodfield's efficiency scrutiny for the supervision of charities.

Police Ancillary Services (Privatisation)

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what ancillary services to the Metropolitan police have been privatised since 1979.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I understand from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that the following services have been contracted out in whole or in part since 1979, although a few may have been contracted out to some extent before then:

- vehicle servicing and repairs
- boat and aircraft repairs
- radio repairs
- vehicle wheelclamping
- design and organisation of building works
- design and installation of electrical, mechanical and public health services in buildings
- maintenance, alterations and improvements to buildings
- quantity surveying
- cleaning of buildings
- laundering
- security of buildings
- computer services
- publishing and bookbinding
- recovery of vehicles

From 15 February 1988, the removal of storage of illegally parked vehicles in three areas of London will also be contracted out.

Birmingham Pub Bombings

Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will set up an independent review body to examine evidence in relation to the Birmingham pub bombings that was inadmissible before the Court of Appeal.

Mr. Hurd: No. The Court of Appeal has carefully reviewed the convictions in this case and has concluded that they are safe. I am not aware of any evidence which the court was unable to consider and which merits further inquiry. In particular, having studied reports of what the hon. Member for Sunderland, South (Mr. Mullin) has said to my hon. and learned Friend, the Member for Putney (Mr. Mellor), to Home Office officials and to the police, I have found no grounds for further action on the basis of his statements.

Correspondence

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many letters he has received from residents of the London borough of Tower Hamlets in the last two years; and what were their subject matters.

Mr. Hurd: Correspondence is not recorded in a way which enables this information to be obtained.

Palestine Liberation Organisation (Training)

Mr. Janner: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) on what basis his Department gave permission for the entry of members of the Palestine Liberation Organisation to be trained at Racal training college, Heckfield place;

(2) when applications were made by members of the Palestine Liberation Organisation to enter the United Kingdom for the purpose of training in battlefield communications by Racal Ltd.; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Renton: Without full particulars of the individuals concerned we have been unable to trace these applications, which were apparently made some years ago.

Leicester (Officials' Visit)

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the purpose of the visit by his Department's officials to Leicester on 16 February; what are (a) the names of the officials concerned; (b) the criteria used to select those organisations attending the meeting and (c) the names of the other cities to be visited in similar fashion; why hon. Members for Leicester have not been informed of the visits; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Renton: As is the normal practice, I wrote to the hon. Members for Leicester on 11 February notifying them and explaining the purpose of the visit by officials from the immigration and nationality department to Leicester on 16 February. The officials concerned are Mr. R. M. Morris; Mr. R. Fries; Mr. G. Treadwell; Mr. R. Weekes; and Mr. B. Leslie. Leicester county council was responsible for issuing invitations, but the meeting is open to the public. Similar visits have been made to Birmingham and Blackburn, and one to Haringey is also planned.

Wedding (Prison)

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why Sister Sarah Clarke has been denied permission to attend the wedding of Paul Hill and Marian Sarah Seravalli at Her Majesty's prison Long Largin on 12 February.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Sister Clarke is not on Mr. Hill's list of approved visitors and the decision to deny her permission to attend the wedding ceremony was made in accordance with the rules governing visits to category A prisoners.

Immigration

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) in what proportion of cases in which he received a recommendation from the appellate authorities in respect of individuals appealing against refusal to vary leave to remain in the United Kingdom, the adjudicators have (a) refused to hear or consider compassionate grounds and (b) made no recommendation that he should exercise his discretion to consider compassionate grounds;

(2) how many recommendations he has received from the appellate authorities in respect of individuals appealing against refusal to vary leave to remain in the United Kingdom during each of the last three years; in how many of those cases the adjudicator recommended that he should consider compassionate circumstances; and in how many of those cases he did exercise discretion on compassionate circumstances.

Mr. Renton: No central record of these recommendations is held.

Prisons

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on prison overcrowding.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: On Friday 12 February, nearly 48,700 prisoners were held in prison service establishments in England and Wales. They were held in accommodation designed for 42,400. A further 985 prisoners were held in police cells, and the total population was some 1,500 higher than a year ago. We are tackling the rapid population increase by measures designed to reduce demand by building up convincing alternatives to custodial sentences and remands in custody, and by increasing the supply of prison places. Our building programme will deliver four new prisons this year.

Heysel Stadium

Mr. Heffer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will take steps to grant financial aid to the lawyers who are assisting the Belgian lawyers defending those involved in the Heysel stadium case; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: There is no provision for such expenditure. On the question whether legal aid could be available for this case, I would refer the hon. Member to the reply to his question being given today by my right hon. and learned Friend the Attorney-General.

Dr. Frank Skuse

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if, in the light of Dr. Skuse's evidence before the Court of Appeal, he will give the data of the first recorded expression of doubt about Dr. Skuse's competence; and what form it took.

Mr. John Patten: It is not the practice to disclose details of this nature about individual members of staff.

Mr. Clay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many cases in which Dr. Frank Skuse gave evidence as a Home Office forensic scientist the defendant entered a not guilty plea.

Mr. John Patten [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The forensic science service does not keep records of the pleas entered by defendants in cases which it investigates.

Mr. Clay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the number of cases, year by year, in which Dr. Frank Skuse gave evidence as a Home Office forensic scientist.

Mr. John Patten [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The information is not available in the form requested.

Dr. Alan Clift

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will give the dates when Dr. Alan Clift worked at his Department's forensic science laboratory at Chorley.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Dr. Clift worked at the forensic science laboratory at Chorley, formerly located at Preston, from 1 January 1955 until 28 June 1974.

Fixed Penalty Fines

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will list the total number of foreign offenders imprisoned for each of the last five years; and if he will express the figures as a percentage of (a) the total number of prisoners and (b) the total number of foreign prisoners imprisoned for road traffic offences;

(2) if he will list, by country of origin, the total number of offenders imprisoned for road traffic offences for each of the last five years, who were using foreign-registered vehicles.

Dr. Douglas Hogg [pursuant to his reply, 5 February and 8 February 1988]: It is regretted that the figures given in the reply were inaccurate. The correct information requested appears in the following table:

Receptions under sentence[1] into Prison Department establishments in England and Wales: by type of offence and citizenship, 1986

Number of persons

Citizenship	Motoring	Other	All
British, British Overseas, British Dependent Territories, Commonwealth countries, Pakistan and the Republic of Ireland	10,010	74,910	84,920
Other Foreign nationalities of which:	90	930	1,020
Belgium/Luxembourg	1	—	—
France	1	—	—
German Federal Republic	13	—	—
Greece	3	—	—
Holland	1	—	—
Hungary	3	—	—
Italy	8	—	—
Poland	6	—	—
Spain	2	—	—
Other Europe	10	—	—
United States of America	9	—	—
South Africa	3	—	—
Burma	2	—	—
Peoples' Republic of China	1	—	—
Iran	4	—	—
Israel	1	—	—
Turkey	5	—	—
USSR	1	—	—
Rest of the World	12	—	—
Not recorded	50	170	210
All	10,140	76,010	86,150

[1] Including fine defaulters. Based on records held centrally which are approximate.

Royal Observer Corps

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish figures for the number of persons currently enrolled in and for the numbers of persons entering and leaving the Royal Observer Corps in each of the years 1979 to 1987; and whether the shortage of personnel is affecting the Royal Observer Corps' ability to perform its operational role.

Mr. Freeman: I have been asked to reply on behalf of the Home Department. The total strength of the Royal Observer Corps as at 31 December 1987 was 10,404. The numbers of persons entering and leaving the corps in each of the years 1979 to 1987 are as follows. There is no evidence to suggest that the current shortfall is having a serious effect on the corps' ability to perform its operational role, although effort continues to be put in to the recruitment of spare-time observers.

Year	Entering	Leaving
1979	1,223	1,364
1980	2,193	1,260
1981	1,943	1,535
1982	1,617	1,588
1983	1,434	1,747
1984	1,567	1,636
1985	1,334	1,454
1986	1,278	1,585
1987	1,399	1,542

NORTHERN IRELAND

Discrimination

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of alleged discrimination have come before the courts in the last five years; and what was the decision on each case, listing the organisations involved.

Mr. Viggers: Twenty-one appeals against findings by the Fair Employment Agency, concerning discrimination on grounds of religious or political belief under the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1976, have come before the courts in Northern Ireland within the five years ending 31 January 1988. These are as follows, together with the decision where known. The decision in every case cannot be obtained without disproportionate effort and cost.

Table 1
Appeals to County Court under section 28(3) of the Fair Employment (NI) Act 1976

Date appeal lodged	Complainant		Respondent organisation	Outcome of appeal
April 1984	Stoneman	v	Londonderry and Lough Swilly Railway	Not known
July 1984	McLaughlin	v	Department of the Environment	Dismissed
October 1984	Sterritt	v	F. A. Wellworth Co. Ltd.	Dismissed
February 1985	Timoney	v	University of Ulster	Withdrawn
January 1985	Wilson	v	Anglo Irish Meats	Allowed
May 1985	King	v	Eastern Health Board (2 cases)	Not known
November 1985	Boyle	v	Short Brothers plc	Dismissed
April 1986	Carlin	v	NI Postal Board	Dismissed
April 1987	McFetridge	v	Cookstown Community Project	Not known
July 1987	Herald	v	Harland and Wolff	Not known
November 1987	Brewster	v	Western Education and Library Board	Not known

Appeals to County Court by respondents under section 28(2) of the Fair Employment (NI) Act 1976: from 1983

Date appeal lodged	Organisation involved	Outcome of appeal
January 1983	Maghera High School Management Committee	Settled at court
December 1984	Southern Health and Social Services Board (2 cases)	Allowed
April 1985	Northern Ireland Electricity Service	Allowed
April 1985	Derry City Council	Allowed
February 1986	Department of Environment (NI)	Allowed
November 1986	The Village Inn (2 cases)	Dismissed
May 1987	Ministry of Defence	Dismissed

Murders

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many murders were committed in the constituency of Fermanagh and South Tyrone in each year since 1970; what information he has as to how many of these murders have been committed by the Irish Republican Army; and for how many there have been convictions;

(2) how many murders were committed in each county in Northern Ireland in each year since 1970; what information he has as to how many of these murders have been committed by the Irish Republican Army;and for how many there have been convictions;

(3) how many murders were committed in Northern Ireland in each year since 1970; what information he has as to how many of these murders have been committed by the Irish Republican Army; and for how many there have been convictions.

Mr. Stanley [holding answer 9 February 1988]: I will write to the hon. Gentleman.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

London City Action Team

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will describe the remit, record of activity, and objectives of the London City Action Team.

Mr. Atkins: The city action teams, set up in April 1985, bring together my Department, the Department of Employment and the Department of the Environment. These are the Departments most responsible for boosting business confidence and development, improving training and the built environment, and encouraging small businesses. The teams co-ordinate Government programmes, which, for example in the Inner London partnership authorities of Hackney, Islington and Lambeth are estimated to amount to over £300 million of expenditure this year. They target those programmes more effectively on the needs of the inner city. They also aim to encourage private sector action for cities and investment in them.

Particular objectives of the London team are to encourage enterprise, promote tourism and address employment difficulties covered by the mismatch between demand and the availability of jobs and skills. Since April 1987, the team has had an extra £1 million to help meet these aims, especially through joint projects with the private sector, for example through two local purchasing initiatives in south, north and east London in association with the south London business initiative and Business in the Community. The team's contribution of £82,000 is matched by £85,000 from the private sector; by contributing around £89,000 for a mobile training and technology unit for small clothing firms in the east end and elsewhere in association with private support of at least £75,000; by supporting a multi-purpose training centre in Lewisham designed to help reduce the mismatch of skills and job opportunities in London. The team is contributing £55,000 alongside private sector support from TEAM Greyfriars Ltd of £87,000.

I am satisfied that the team is working well, meeting its objectives and making London a better place in which to live and work.

Retail Sales

Mr. Wells: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his estimate, taking into account the relevant figures for December 1987, of the rate at which retail sales are rising on an annual basis; and what was the figure a year earlier.

Mr. Butcher: The final estimate of the annual rise in the volume of retail sales in 1987 was 5·8 per cent; the corresponding figure a year earlier was 5·4 per cent.

ECGD (Tender to Contract Scheme)

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will review the Export Credits Guarantee Department tender to contract scheme, in view of the rates and conditions offered by the foreign exchange market for currency options and the minimal take-up rate for the scheme in the past three years.

Mr. Alan Clark: The tender to contract scheme has been reviewed twice in recent years. In view of the heavy losses incurred under the scheme in 1984 premium rates were raised, the minimum contract value was increased to £10 million and it became a requirement that applicants should demonstrate a genuine need to commit a firm foreign currency tender. Although the reduction in applications is probably partly due to these changes, it also reflects the worldwide decline in project business.

Following a further comprehensive review in 1986, I concluded that the scheme could still play a useful role in helping exporters compete for new business and that experience indicated that the terms of the scheme were sound if the remit to contain costs was to be met. That remit was endorsed by the Committee of Public Accounts in its second report for the 1987-88 Session which followed the transfer of the scheme to the public expenditure account. However to meet a major criticism of exporters, from 1 April 1987 the non-refundable initial premium paid when cover is issued was halved.

The scheme is a minor one supplementing the protection available from the foreign exchange market and of some value to British exporters. However, it is important to continue to contain potential claims on public expenditure. In view of this, I do not consider that a further review should be carried out, although of course the scheme will continue to be monitored.

British Telecom

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will refer to the Director General of Oftel British Telecom's practice of supplying subscribers' names, addresses and telephone numbers to other companies for use in unsolicited mail and telephone calls; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Butcher: The Director General of Telecommunications has a duty under section 49 of the Telecommunications Act 1984 to consider any matter which relates to telecommunication services or apparatus which is the subject of a representation by or on behalf of a person who has an interest in that matter. The director general will consider the hon. Member's question and write to him.

Consumer Credit Act 1974

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will seek to amend the Consumer Credit Act 1974 so as to stop the practice whereby files supplied by a credit reference agency under section 184(1) of the Act may in some circumstances include information about people other than the particular consumer involved.

Mr. Maude: I assume that the hon. Member is referring to section 158(1) of the Consumer Credit Act. I have no plans to change this provision of the Act. I am aware, however, of the concern about certain commercial practices of credit reference agencies. The Director General of Fair Trading has a statutory responsibility in this area, and I know that he is considering this issue.

Airbus

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer of 2 February, Official Report, columns 608-10, if in his recent talks with British Aerospace he discussed possible Government subsidies to compensate the company for losses incurred on Airbus in consequence of dollar rate fluctuations; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: I have nothing to add to the answer which my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster gave the hon. Member on 2 February 1988 at column 608 about his recent talks with British Aerospace.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what is his policy on the proposal of the continental partners of Airbus that subsidies should be given to Airbus Industrie to compensate for fluctuations in the dollar; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: I am not aware of such a proposal.

Member's Questions

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster why information contained in a press release from his Department dated 1 February could not be given in answer to parliamentary questions from the hon. Member for Great Grimsby on Monday 8 February; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: The hon. Member's questions of 8 February, at column 148, referred to the appointment of underwriters, an advertising agency and stockbrokers. My replies explained that Rowe and Pitman Ltd had been appointed stockbroking advisers for the flotation, but that no decisions had yet been taken on underwriting or advertising. This remains the position.

My Department's press release of 1 February related to the appointment of merchant bank advisers, stockbrokers and reporting accountants. Had the hon. Member asked in his questions of 8 February about merchant bank advisers or reporting accountants, I would have been pleased to give him that information.

Rover Group (Job Vetting)

Mr. Nellist: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will call for a report from the chairman of the Rover Group on the vetting of job applicants in conjunction with the Economic League; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Birmingham, Erdington (Mr. Corbett) on 11 February at column 307.

DEFENCE

AWRE Aldermaston

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 26 January, Official Report, column 163, what is the current full establishment of AWRE Aldermaston; and what is the current complement of staff.

Mr. Sainsbury: It is not our practice to disclose the numbers of staff employed on the nuclear warhead programme.

Service Personnel (Medical Treatment)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers are currently receiving electroconvulsive therapy for depression.

Mr. Freeman: There are no case currently being treated by the Army medical services.

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers who have applied to leave Her Majesty's forces over the past 12 months have been found to be suffering from depression and received medical treatment as a result.

Mr. Freeman: No cases of depression have been found specifically as a result of soldiers applying to leave the Army over the past 12 months. However, within that period there have been 13 cases of soldiers in service being found to be suffering from severe depression who were subsequently medically discharged following counselling and treatment.

Thames House, Millbank

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he has any plans to locate any unit of his Department in Thames house, Millbank.

Mr. Freeman: I have nothing to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Bolsover (Mr. Skinner) on 20 January 1988, at column 764.

Civil Servants (Numbers)

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will give for each year since 1980 the number of civil servants employed by his Department, excluding those employed on construction, in (a) Greater London, (b) England excluding Greater London, (c) Wales, (d) Scotland and (e) Northern Ireland.

Mr. Sainsbury: It is not possible to distinguish Ministry of Defence employees employed on construction, but the number of full-time equivalent civilian staff, excluding casual staff, employed on January for each year since 1980 was as follows:

Date	Greater London	Rest of England	Wales	Scotland	Northern Ireland
1 January 1980	29,763·0	154,087·0	7,363·5	19,467·5	3,231·0
1 January 1981	27,742·5	147,904·0	7,514·5	19,292·5	3,086·5
1 January 1982	26,694·5	140,339·0	7,222·5	18,655·5	2,946·5
1 January 1983	25,074·5	132,877·0	7,059·5	18,335·0	2,825·0
1 January 1984	24,721·5	126,221·0	6,834·0	18,594·0	2,760·5
1 January 1985	22,332·0	120,922·0	6,631·0	18,398·5	2,708·5
1 January 1986	21,090·5	117,966·0	6,338·0	18,032·5	2,693·0
1 January 1987	20,373·0	114,038·0	6,137·5	18,130·5	2,621·0
1 January 1988	19,268·5	99,518·0	5,759·5	12,268·0	2,618·0

For the purposes of consistency and comparability the above figures exclude personnel employed at royal ordnance factories, which changed to independent Companies Act status on 2 January 1985.

Some 10,800 of the reduction in numbers in the rest of England between January 1987 and January 1988 was due to the transfer of royal dockyard staff to commercial management on 6 April 1987, and some 5,700 of the reduction in Scotland between the same dates was due to the similar transfer of Royal Dockyard Rosyth staff.

Diego Garcia

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the military facilities available to the United States armed forces on Diego Garcia.

Mr. Ian Stewart: The United States Government operate a United States navy support facility on Diego Garcia, in accordance with the provisions of the 1976 Exchange of Notes, Cmnd. 6413.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the number of (a) United States personnel and (b) United States aircraft based on Diego Garcia; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ian Stewart: There has been no material change in the numbers of United States service personnel on Diego Garcia since the reply of my right hon. Friend the Member for Tonbridge and Malling (Mr. Stanley) to the hon. Member for Leyton (Mr. Cohen) on 19 January 1987 at column 452. As for the deployment of United States military resources, it is not our usual practice to comment on details.

Merchant Ships (Hong Kong)

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence at what date Hong Kong-registered merchant ships were added to the list of those ships covered by the information and notification and accompaniment system applied in the Persian Gulf.

Mr. Ian Stewart: The Armilla patrol has been accompanying merchant ships since early 1987. Hong Kong and dependent territory registered merchant ships have been eligible for protection from the Armilla patrol ever since it was established in 1980.

Ships (Lost Components)

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list each occasion since 1979 on which large components or prefabricated sections of ships being built under contract for his Department have been lost at sea and at what locations; what was the total cost of the losses; how much was recovered from the contractors; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: There have been no previous losses at sea since 1979 of large components or prefabricated sections of ships being built under contract for the MOD.

Trident Submarine

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department proposes to take to prevent a recurrence of the loss of the bow section of a Trident submarine off the Mull of Galloway on 5 February; what discussions have taken place with the relevant contractors; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: The MOD has informed the company dealing with a shipment due next week of the importance of giving careful attention to the shipping arrangements. In the longer term, recommendations from the inquiries into the recent incident will be taken up, as appropriate.

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the implications for the timing and cost of the Trident programme of the loss at sea on 5 February of the bow section of a Trident submarine; and if he will make a statement;

(2) if he will make a statement on the circumstances in which the bow section of a Trident submarine rolled off the dock of the ship transporting it from Glasgow to Barrow-in-Furness on 5 February; whether any casualties were involved; if he will give the precise location of the bow section; at what depth of water it is lying; what steps will be taken to mark the spot; and if he will make a statement;

(3) if he will order an immediate inquiry into the loss of the bow section of a Trident submarine off the Mull of Galloway on 5 February; if there are any penalty clauses in the contract with the fabricator which can be invoked in these circumstances; and if he will make a statement;

(4) what estimate is available to him of the value of the bow section of a Trident submarine lost off the Mull of Galloway on 5 February; what attempts will be made to salvage this item and at whose expense; and if he will make a statement;

(5) what is his assessment of the risk of the Trident bow section lost at sea on 5 February falling into the hands of a hostile foreign power; what steps his Department is taking to avert this risk; what resources are being devoted to this task; and if he will make a statement;

(6) what assessment he has made of the risk posed to other sea traffic by (a) the presence off the Mull of Galloway of an unsecured Trident bow section and (b) his Department's attempts to recover it or prevent it falling into unauthorised hands; and if he will make a statement;

(7) what steps his Department has taken to warn (a) fishing vessels and (b) other marine craft of the presence off the Mull of Galloway of an unsecured Trident bow section; whether other vessels will be informed of the precise location of the item; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: The loss of a forward dome structure for a Vanguard class submarine occurred on 5 February off the coast of South Galloway whilst it was being transferred from the Clyde to Barrow on the cargo vessel "Skellig Rock". The item, valued at some £¼ million, is in a water depth of 55 m.

Later on that same voyage, on 6 February, more sections of Vanguard class submarine structure were lost overboard near Walney Island. These items also valued at some £¼ million, are in a water depth of 16 m. We have had no notification of any casualties involved in these incidents.

The detailed circumstances of these incidents are the subject of inquiries currently being undertaken by the Shipbuilder (VSEL) and the sub-contractor (Motherwell Bridge Engineering). My Department is represented at these inquiries, which will be additional to the insurers' inquiries. There is a liquidated damages clause in the contract with the fabricators (MBE).

The consequences of these incidents are a matter for the shipbuilder and his sub-contractor to make good. Our present view is that there will be no effect on the overall United Kingdom Trident programme.

Attempts will be made to recover all the lost items; however, no estimate of the expense to the parties concerned of such salvage is available at present. In the meantime, Hydrographer has issued the appropriate warnings to shipping and the coastguard is aware of the incidents. Neither location has been marked, but Motherwell Bridge Engineering has been formally requested to provide picket boat surveillance over the forward dome structure whilst the coastguard is keeping watch over the other items.

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department takes to monitor the arrangements for transporting components and prefabricated sections for the Trident submarines; whether any representative of his Department accompanies such cargoes; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: My Department is not required to approve the transport arrangements, as these are the responsibility of the shipbuilder and his sub-contractor.

Binary Munitions (NATO)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if, pursuant to the answer, Official Report, 26 January, column 186, the new binary munitions will be assigned for use by NATO.

Mr. Ian Stewart: No.

Chemical Weapons

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if, pursuant to his answer, Official Report, 26 January, column 165, the new United States binary chemical weapons will also remain solely for the use of the United States forces.

Mr. Ian Stewart: Yes.

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he last met his United States counterpart to discuss chemical weapons.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I have nothing to add to the reply my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State gave to the hon. Member on 26 January 1988 at column 164.

Armilla Patrol

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria are laid down on the ownership of British foreign-flagged ships to qualify them for accompaniment by the Armilla patrol in the Persian Gulf.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I have nothing to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 1 February 1988 at column 445.

Maintenance and Affiliation Orders

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the average time the Army Board of the Defence Councils takes to deal with an appeal under section 180 of the Army Act 1955.

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 8 February 1988]: Typically, the time taken from submission to the conclusion of an appeal varies between three to six months depending on the complexity of the case, and the amount of preparatory work which needs to be done before presentation to the Army Board.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Staff (Clocking-on)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed, as representing the House of Commons Commission, how many staff of the House (a) are and (b) are not obliged to clock on for work; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Beith: Two hundred and twenty two staff of the House are required to clock on for work and 695 are not required to do so. The former are industrial staff employed in the Refreshment Department. The requirement for these staff to clock on reflects the provisions of the House of Commons (Administration) Act 1978 under which conditions of staff of the House are kept broadly in line with those in the Civil Service, where industrial staff are required to record their hours of work. It also facilitates the calculation of overtime pay for those staff who are required to work shifts and who have varied starting and finishing times.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed, as representing the House of Commons Commission, when clocking-on for Refreshment Department staff was first introduced; under what conditions as to its duration; and if he has any plans to end the practice.

Mr. Beith: Clocking-on for industrial staff in the Refreshment Department was introduced as a permanent arrangement in 1967 on the advice of a consultant engaged by the Department. The old system of clock cards was discontinued in the latter part of 1986 and replaced,after consultation with the Central Computer and Telecommunications Agency (CCTA), by a modern electronic system. When the system was first introduced there was no official trade union representation in the Refreshment Department. Consultation did take place, however, when the system was upgraded in 1986. After allowing a settling-in period in which to gain experience, it was decided to review the system. A consultant has been engaged, through the CCTA, who will report to management. The future of the present system will then be considered.

Visitors

Mr. Allen: To ask the Lord President of the Council when the last review of the procedures for allocating tickets, special permits and guides for parties of visitors to the House took place; and if he will make a statement on the streamlining of current procedures.

Mr. Wakeham: Arrangements for Members' parties on the line of route were last reviewed by the Accommodation and Administration Sub-Committee of the Services Committee in January 1987. If the hon. Gentleman has any particular points to raise, I suggest that in the first instance he should write to the Serjeant at Arms.

TRANSPORT

Severn Bridge

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, pursuant to his answer of 14 December 1987, Official Report, column 421, he will estimate the percentage rise in tolls on the Severn bridge to achieve the objective laid down in the Severn Bridge Tolls Act 1965 should any rise be deferred for (a) one year, (b) two years and (c) five years.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: On the basis of assumptions contained in my reply of 29 January, at columns 403-4, current projections indicate (a) 90 per cent., (b) 100 per cent., and (c) 140 per cent.

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, pursuant to his answer of 29 January, Official Report, columns 403-4, his projections of the required level of tolls increase at the Severn bridge to achieve the objectives of the Severn Bridge Tolls Act 1965 take into account the effect of a second Severn bridge on traffic flows over the original bridge.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: No.

Highway Maintenance

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the information on local authority expenditure on highway maintenance given in his reply to the hon. Member for Taunton (Mr. Nicholson), Official Report, 27 January, columns 260-2, included expenditure on public rights of way; and if he will list for each shire county for the years 1984-85, 1985-86 and 1986-87, the expenditure on maintenance of rights of way.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Expenditure on the maintenance of public rights of way will generally be included as part of local highway authorities' total expenditure on highway maintenance. Figures are available only for expenditure on the maintenance of "footways, cycle tracks and other rights of way" by shire counties in 1984-85, 1985-86 and 1986-87. These are shown in the following table. No further disaggregation of these figures is possible.

Local authority highway maintenance expenditure
Footways, Cycle tracks and other rights of way

£ million

County	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
Avon	3·101	3·115	3·311
Bedfordshire	0·696	0·783	0·752
Berkshire	0·920	1·152	1·350
Buckinghamshire	1·711	2·000	1·956
Cambridgeshire	1·058	0·646	1·606
Cheshire	1·646	2·411	2·467
Cleveland	1·048	0·347	0·355

County	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
Cornwall	1·485	1·303	1·850
Cumbria	0·953	0·303	0·945
Derbyshire	1·941	2·017	2·548
Devon	2·021	2·646	2·612
Dorset	0·700	0·870	0·890
Durham	2·725	2·175	1·955
East Sussex	0·869	1·197	1·814
Essex	4·312	4·948	5·641
Gloucestershire	0·951	1·028	1·310
Hampshire	1·407	1·364	1·383
Hereford and Worcestershire	1·122	1·311	1·492
Hertfordshire	2·239	2·372	1·679
Humberside	2·687	2·581	3·045
Isle of Wight	0·384	0·126	0·129
Kent	3·084	3·200	3·219
Lancashire	1·719	1·974	1·904
Leicestershire	1·631	3·033	3·265
Lincolnshire	2·363	2·549	3·075
Norfolk	1·445	1·657	1·696
Northamptonshire	1·283	0·987	1·131
Northumberland	0·196	0·248	0·254
North Yorkshire	0·431	0·473	0·499
Nottinghamshire	3·686	4·073	3·654
Oxfordshire	1·064	1·052	1·092
Shropshire	0·183	0·080	0·104
Somerset	0·850	0·389	0·527
Staffordshire	1·303	1·897	0·877
Suffolk	1·192	1·462	2·043
Surrey	1·608	1·959	2·109
Warwickshire	0·654	1·178	1·377
West Sussex	1·718	1·909	2·715
Wiltshire	0·252	0·581	1·427

Source: Local Authority Maintenance Outturn Forms.

The Countryside Commission is currently carrying out a survey of spending on footpaths, bridleways and other public rights of way. Their provisional figure for maintenance spending by shire counties as a whole for 1986-87 is in the region of £3 million.

Bypasses

Mr. Favell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many bypasses were built in 1987.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Twelve bypasses or relief roads were completed in 1987. Other road improvements which are not primarily bypasses also relieve communities of traffic.

Bus Stops (Obstruction)

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the road safety implications of the obstruction of bus stops by parked vehicles; and what action he proposes to take.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Vehicles parked illegally at bus stops cause inconvenience to passengers and create delays and congestion for buses and other traffic. Road safety implications are not easily assessed. Police and traffic wardens are responsible for taking appropriate enforcement action. Technical information on the design of bus stops is contained in "Roads and Traffic in Urban Areas". (HMSO 1987).

London Regional Transport Act 1984

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has any plans to introduce legislation to amend section 40 of the London Regional Transport Act 1984.

Mr. David Mitchell: I have no plans to do so at present.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received concerning the consultation procedures adopted by London Regional Transport in respect of schemes under section 3(2) of the London Regional Transport Act 1984; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: We have received one letter in addition to one of 8 February from my hon. Friend. The statutory requirement for consultation applies to proposals by London Regional Transport to introduce a new London bus service, or vary or discontinue an existing one, whether or not the service is procured under section 3(2) of the London Regional Transport Act 1984. I am satisfied that those arrangements work adequately in practice.

Ashbourne Bypass

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is the current position on the plans for the Ashbourne bypass; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Preliminary investigations by our consulting engineers into possible routes are now complete. We expect to be able to consult the public on alternatives in April this year and to make an announcement about this in March. A preferred route will be announced after we have fully considered the comments received. Future progress will depend on the results of further investigations and the completion of statutory procedures. At this early stage we do not expect construction work to start until late 1992.

Leisure Drives (Cheshire)

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the cost of advertising and signposting leisure drives in Cheshire in the last year for which figures are available; how many people he estimates use the designated routes who would not otherwise use them; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Leisure drive signing is entirely a matter for Cheshire county council as local highway authority. My hon. Friend may wish to contact the council.

London Regional Transport

Mr. John Marshall To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he last met the chairman of London Regional Transport; and what subjects were discussed.

Mr. David Mitchell: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State last met Sir Keith Bright on 4 February. They discussed the tragic fire at King's Cross and other matters relating to London Regional Transport.

Vehicle Excise Duty

Mr. Gorst: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give an estimate of the number of vehicles currently in use on the road without road fund licences; and what was the number of prosecutions for 1986 and 1987 for not being in possession of a currently valid road fund licence.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The most recent estimate of vehicle excise duty (VED) evasion in Great Britain, based on a national survey in June 1984, indicated that some 1·1 million unlicensed vehicles are in use on the road. In 1986, 342,513 evaders were prosecuted or agreed to pay a penalty in out-of-court settlements; and enforcement action induced a further 271,492 to relicense. The comparable figures for 1987 were 339,458 and 253,708, respectively.

Heathrow Airport

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, in the light of the Civil Aviation Authority's statement in a press release dated 8 February about increased pressure on the air traffic control system, he will make it his policy not to approve any increase in the use of Heathrow airport; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: No. The Civil Aviation Authority, which has responsibility for air traffic control at Heathrow airport, has not recommended against increased use of Heathrow airport.

Section 8 Grants

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 1 February, Official Report, column 690, if he will publish the number of applications received by his Department for section 8 grants, the number of grants made and total expenditure in 1985-86 and 1986-87; and if he will make a statement on the operation of the section 8 grant system.

Mr. David Mitchell: The information requested is as listed:

Year	Number of applications	Number of grants made	Expenditure £ million
1985-86	9	13	6·9
1986-87	4	1	5·5

The number of applications received and awards made fluctuate from year to year.

There is no direct correlation, in any particular year, between the number of applications received, grants made and expenditure incurred.

I am satisfied with the operation (although less so with the number of applicants) of the section 8 grant scheme, although we continue to see whether there are ways of streamlining the administration of these grants.

Rail Closures

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information he has on the current closure of the Sudbury to Bures section of the Sudbury to Colchester railway line and the likely date for reopening; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: I understand that the board is currently working to clear the bank slip which, recently closed the line between Sudbury and Marks Tey, and that it hopes to reopen the line as soon as possible. In the meantime, a bus shuttle service is in operation.

Railway Termini (Platforms)

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, pursuant to his answer of 1 February, Official Report, column 695, he will give the number of platforms at each principal rail terminus in the capitals of each of the countries of Great Britain; and how many of these would have to be lengthened to add an extra coach to trains leaving at peak hours.

Mr. David Mitchell: The length of platforms at termini is not the only consideration. The length of platforms at intermediate stations is equally important. It is not generally possible to add single coaches to EMUs and DMUs, which form the majority of commuter trains, because they are normally made up in permanently-coupled sets of two, three or four. There can also be problems of signalling and timetabling and at maintenance depots. NSE is already planning to lengthen some platforms to allow longer trains to run where this will solve acute overcrowding problems.

Thelwall Viaduct

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what arrangements he intends to make to ease congestion during the reconstruction of the Thelwall viaduct on the M6.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: We shall make every effort to keep three lanes open in each direction during construction of the new viaduct and the reconstruction of the existing structure.

British Rail

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement about the external financing limit for British Rail for the current financial year.

Mr. Channon: I am able to announce that it has been possible to reduce the board's external financing limit for 1987-88 by £121 million from £751 million to £630 million.

This reduction, which will have no effect on British Rail's investment programme, has been made possible by increased property sales and improved receipts. BR will therefore be able to reduce its borrowing requirement.

London Regional Passengers Committee

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received concerning the role and composition of the London regional passengers committee.

Mr. Butcher: I have been asked to reply.

None.

National Dock Labour Scheme

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what are the principles and objectives of the national dock labour scheme; and if he will make a statement on Her Majesty's Government's policy on the scheme.

Mr. Nicholls: I have been asked to reply.

The scheme, known formally as the Dock Workers Employment Scheme 1967, is set out in full in schedule 2 to the Dock Workers (Regulation of Employment) (Amendment) Order 1967. Clause 1(2) states that "the objects of the scheme are to ensure greater regularity of employment for dock workers and to secure that an adequate number of dock workers is available for the efficient performance of dock work."

The Government's position with regard to the scheme remains as stated in an earlier reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Bournemouth, East (Mr. Atkinson) on 17 November 1987, at column 915.

Dockers

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many persons were employed as registered dockers on the most recent date for which figures are available; and what was the comparable number 10 years previously.

Mr. Nicholls: I have been asked to reply.

There were 10,455 registered dock workers at the end of December 1987 compared with 29,168 at the end of December 1977. The latest available figure, for week ending 9 February 1988, is 9,873.

ENVIRONMENT

Planning Appeals

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received about the operation of the present planning appeal system.

Mr. Waldegrave: The planning appeals system is generally well regarded by appellants, but hon. Members and others are rightly concerned about delays in reaching decisions in many cases.

The number of appeals has risen by some 60 per cent., from 13,700 in 1983-84 to an estimated 22,000 in 1987-88. The main factors in this increase appear to be the increase in the proportion of planning applications refused by local planning authorities and, lately an increase in the volume of applications.

In order to deal with the volume of appeals and reduce decision times, we have increased the number of inspectors and administrative staff; and are introducing new procedures and information technology.

Rating Reform

Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he next proposes to update his estimate of the number of individual gainers and losers under his community charge proposals.

Mr. Howard: On 13 January 1988, I placed a note in the Library which showed my latest estimate of the number of gainers and losers from the community charge proposals. This replaced the estimates published in the Green Paper "Paying for Local Government" (Cmnd. 9714) in January 1986. No further update is presently proposed.

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he has received any proposals to replace the present domestic rating system with a system of rates based on capital values plus a local income tax; and what was his response.

Mr. Howard: Of those who responded to the Green Paper "Paying for Local Government", 48 advocated a combination of rates and local income tax, compared with 283 who supported the community charge. The Government have consistently drawn attention to the short-comings of domestic rates and of LIT. In combination, they would fail to provide accountability, be very volatile, produce big changes in bills, and be extremely complicated and expensive to administer.

Mr. Riddick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has now come to a decision as to the percentage of the cost of implementing the community charge which the Government intend to contribute to local authorities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Howard: These are matters under discussion with local authority associations. The cost of the community charge will be taken account of in the 1989-90 RSG settlement.

Mr. Ashdown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what will be the total benefit to the Exchequer as a result of charging overseas students the full community charge; and what would be the difference in the returns to the Exchequer between charging overseas students the full poll tax and treating them in the same way as other students.

Mr. Howard: Overseas students on full-time courses in this country will have to pay only 20 per cent. of the community charge, under the provisions of clause 12 of the Local Government Finance Bill, in common with other full-time students.

Skilled Workers (Rented Property)

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any specific proposals to increase the supply of rented property for skilled workers in areas of housing stress; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rae: An increase in the supply of rented accommodation is the central objective of the deregulation proposals in the Housing Bill. Such an increase should have an impact both in the relief of housing stress and in facilitating job mobility.

More specifically, the Housing Corporation gives priority to a number of groups, including key workers, with its conventional funding programme and can support schemes aimed specifically at helping young people to move to take up employment under its mixed funding programme, which is being increased to £58 million for the coming financial year.

The Local Government Bill includes an explicit new power for local authorities to assist in the provision of privately let accommodation, subject to my right hon. Friend's consent. The new power could be used to help provide accommodation such as that described by the hon. Member.

New Building Programmes

Mr. David Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what incentive there is for (a) local authorities, (b) housing associations and (c) private landlords to invest in new building programmes to house homeless and low income families.

Mrs. Rae: Subsidies are payable to local authorities' housing revenue accounts, and to registered housing associations through housing association grants. In each case, our policy is that subsidies should be paid only where rents would be insufficient to cover costs. In the allocation of resources, local authorities and the Housing Corporation give priority to areas of housing shortage.

Powers in the Local Government Bill will also enable local authorities to provide subsidies to private landlords. Low-income families are of course eligible for housing benefit.

Improvement Grants

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to reduce the age qualification of a property for which one can apply for an improvement grant; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Roe: The consultation paper on home improvement policy, published last November, included a proposal that age limits for improvement grants might be replaced by more flexible arrangements which would allow local authorities to make grants for all but the most recently built properties. We are currently considering the comments received with a view to reforming the improvement grant legislation at the next suitable opportunity.

Uniform Business Rate

Sir Brandon Rhys Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his estimate of the amount of the aggregate annual relief to business chargepayers benefiting from the concession in each of the relevant years if the uniform business rate proposed in the Local Authority Finance Bill were phased in with an upper limit on the extent of any increase (a) of 20 per cent. and (b) of 10 per cent. in any years, assuming currently estimated rates of inflation of rateable values.

Mr. Howard: It is not yet possible to make an accurate estimate of the cost of setting the proposed ceiling on year-on-year rate increases at any given level. The ceiling will apply both to increases resulting from the introduction of the uniform business rate, and to those resulting from the non-domestic revaluation in 1990; and detailed forecasts of the distribution of charges in rateable value on revaluation are not yet available.

Skiers (Deaths)

Mr. Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has an estimate of the number of deaths of skiers at British ski resorts which could have been avoided by wearing safety helmets, and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ridley: The Government have no such estimate. In th 1986-87 season there were five deaths at ski resorts in Britain. Only one of these was from a fall in which head and other injuries were sustained. It is not possible to say whether this death could have been prevented by the wearing of a safey helmet.

Caravan Sites Act 1968

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish in the Official Report a list of all county councils in England and Wales that have applied for designation under the provisions of the Caravan Sites Act 1968; and how many have been so designated.

Mrs. Roe: Following is the list of all authorities in England that are designated, or are in the process of designation, or whose applications for designation are under consideration. Designation in Wales is a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

S.12 Caravan Sites Act 1968 as amended:
Designated authorities

Type of authority	Made	Laid before Parliament	Coming into operation
London boroughs
Barking	13 March 1973	21 March 1973	1 June 1973
Bexley	17 April 1975	25 April 1975	1 July 1975
Camden[1]	27 April 1981	6 May 1981	27 May 1981
Croydon	28 May 1974	7 June 1974	1 August 1974
Enfield	4 March 1975	13 March 1975	1 June 1975
Greenwich	28 May 1974	7 June 1974	1 August 1974
Hammersmith and Fulham	1 July 1975	10 July 1975	1 August 1975
Havering	13 March 1973	21 March 1973	1 June 1973
Hillingdon	15 August 1984	15 August 1984	17 August 1984
Islington[1]	27 April 1981	6 May 1981	27 May 1981
Kensington and Chelsea[1]	17 April 1975	25 April 1975	1 June 1975
Kingston upon Thames	10 January 1984	19 January 1984	10 February 1984
Lambeth	3 April 1979	5 April 1979	26 April 1979
Lewisham	3 April 1979	5 April 1979	26 April 1979
Merton	8 May 1973	16 May 1973	1 August 1973
Newham	13 March 1973	21 March 1973	1 June 1973
Redbridge	13 March 1973	21 March 1973	1 June 1973
Richmond-upon-Thames	13 December 1972	21 December 1972	1 April 1973
Sutton	28 May 1974	7 June 1974	1 August 1974
Waltham Forest	13 March 1973	21 March 1973	1 June 1973
Wandsworth	5 November 1981	16 November 1981	7 December 1981
Westminster[1]	30 October 1974	7 November 1974	1 January 1975
Former county boroughs
Bolton	2 January 1974	17 January 1974	31 March 1974
Bury	8 May 1973	16 May 1973	1 August 1973
Leeds	8 May 1973	16 May 1973	1 August 1973
Lincoln	2 January 1974	17 January 1974	31 March 1974
Manchester	13 December 1972	21 December 1972	1 April 1973

Type of authority	Made	Laid before Parliament	Coming into operation
Oxford	28 May 1974	7 June 1974	1 August 1974
Plymouth	25 September 1972	4 October 1972	1 January 1973
St. Helens	25 September 1972	4 October 1972	1 January 1973
Stoke-on-Trent	25 September 1972	4 October 1972	1 January 1973
Wolverhampton	13 December 1972	21 December 1972	1 April 1973
County and district councils
Dorset CC. Aylesbury Vale	17 August 1978	25 August 1978	21 September 1978
Chiltern, South Bucks, Buckinghamshire	16 September 1981	23 September 1981	14 October 1981
West Sussex CC	25 January 1982	3 February 1982	24 February 1982
High Peak, Derbyshire[1]	25 January 1982	3 February 1982	24 February 1982
Kennet; North Wiltshire; Thamesdown; West Wiltshire, Wiltshire	25 January 1982	3 February 1982	24 February 1982
Milton Keynes, Buckinghamshire	1 September 1982	13 September 1982	5 October 1982
Dartford, Kent	21 October 1982	4 November 1982	26 November 1982
South Bedfordshire	1 November 1982	11 November 1982	3 December 1982
Oswestry, Shropshire	13 December 1982	22 December 1982	13 January 1983
Nuneaton and Bedworth, Warwickshire	11 March 1983	23 March 1983	14 April 1983
Oldham	11 March 1983	24 March 1983	14 April 1983
Hyndburn, Lancashire	15 March 1983	24 March 1983	15 April 1983
Luton, Bedfordshire	5 August 1983	17 August 1983	8 September 1983
Trafford	5 September 1983	—	—
Ashford, Kent	13 September 1983	22 September 1983	14 October 1983
Salisbury, Wiltshire	13 September 1983	22 September 1983	14 October 1983
Gravesham, Kent	22 December 1983	12 January 1984	3 February 1984
Rochdale	23 Februrary 1984	5 March 1984	27 March 1984
South Derbyshire	11 July 1984	19 July 1984	13 August 1984
Boston, Lincolnshire	12 September 1984	20 September 1984	12 October 1984
West Lindsey, Lincolnshire	14 November 1984	23 November 1984	15 December 1984
Selby, North Yorkshire	19 November 1984	29 November 1984	21 December 1984
Huntingdonshire; Cambridgeshire	14 December 1984	4 January 1985	26 January 1985
Wealden; Rother; Eastbourne; Hastings; East Sussex	17 December 1984	4 January 1985	26 January 1985
Chester, Cheshire	14 December 1984	4 January 1985	26 January 1985
Middlesbrough, Cleveland[1]	5 March 1985	14 March 1985	5 April 1985
Northampton; Wellingborough; South Northamptonshire, Northamptonshire	12 March 1985	21 March 1985	12 April 1985
Epsom and Ewell, Surrey	15 March 1985	22 March 1985	13 April 1985
Tonbridge and Malling, Kent[1]	26 June 1985	5 July 1985	27 July 1985
Babergh; Ipswich; Mid-Suffolk; Suffolk Coastal, Suffolk	29 October 1985	7 November 1985	28 November 1985
Peterborough, Cambridgeshire[1]	15 November 1985	25 November 1985	16 December 1985
Windsor and Maidenhead, Berkshire	20 November 1985	28 November 1985	19 December 1985
Hartlepool; Stockton-on-Tees; Cleveland[1]	3 December 1985	12 December 1985	2 January 1986
Chesterfield; Bolsover; North East Derbyshire, Derbyshire	12 December 1985	20 December 1985	10 January 1986
Broxbourne, Hertfordshire	9 April 1986	18 April 1986	9 May 1986
Canterbury, Kent	8 July 1986	18 July 1986	8 August 1986
Ryedale, North Yorkshire	8 July 1986	18 July 1986	8 August 1986
Darlington; Chester-le-Street; Derwentside; Easington; Sedgefield; Teesdale; Wear Valley; Durham	8 September 1986	19 September 1986	10 October 1986
East Northamptonshire	27 November 1986	5 December 1986	26 December 1986
Watford, Hertfordshire[1]	17 December 1986	8 January 1987	29 January 1987
Maidstone, Kent	21 January 1987	30 January 1987	20 February 1987
Lancaster	26 March 1987	2 April 1987	23 April 1987
Cherwell, Oxfordshire	15 September 1987	24 September 1987	15 October 1987
Kettering, Northants	15 September 1987	24 September 1987	15 October 1987
Northumberland	15 September 1987	24 September 1987	15 October 1987
Great Yarmouth	28 September 1987	7 October 1987	28 October 1987
Mid Bedfordshire
North Bedfordshire	12 January 1988	20 January 1988	10 February 1988

[1] Designated on the grounds that it is not necessary and/or expedient to make adequate provision.

Designated Orders in preparation
Gateshead MDC.
Shepway, Kent.

Applications for designation under consideration
Dacorum, Hertfordshire.
Dover, Kent.
Hinkley and Bosworth; Oadby and Wigston; Blaby, Leicestershire.
Runnymede, Surrey.
Stratford on Avon, Warwickshire.
Vale of White Horse, Oxfordshire.
Wyre Forest, Hereford and Worcestershire.

"Water and Sewerage Law"

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his intention regarding implementing the proposals outlined in the discussion Paper "Water and Sewerage Law" chapter 1, paragraphs 1.25 to paragraphs 1.41, published by his Department.

Mrs. Roe: Final decisions have still to be taken on the proposals in the consultation paper. An announcement will be made as soon as possible.

Local Authority Services

Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what steps he intends to take to prevent local authorities from evading competition by forming their direct labour organisations into separate companies.

Mr. Ridley: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Hendon, South (Mr. Marshall) on Wednesday 10 February at column 291.

Water Industry

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he intends to publish a White Paper on his proposals to privatise the water industry.

Mrs. Roe: No.

Rural Areas

Mr. Amos: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to increase the assistance for rural areas in England, through the Development Commission, to ensure equality on a per capita basis with the rural development programmes for Scotland and Wales; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Roe: Provision for expenditure by the Development Commission in 1988-89 has been increased by £2·5 million over previous plans in order to allow the Commission to respond to the increased demand for its established programmes, and carry forward the new initiatives which formed part of the Government's rural enterprise package. Because of differences in definitions and in administrative arrangements, it is not possible to make direct comparisons between the assistance per capita given to rural areas in England, Scotland and Wales.

Euratom

Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what information has been provided by (a) British Nuclear Fuels Ltd., (b) the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority, (c) the Central Electricity Generating Board and (d) the South of Scotland Electricity Board to the European Commission under article 37 of the Euratom treaty on nuclear waste disposal since May 1979; and if he will list by date all submissions made by each of the nuclear facility operators to Euratom under article 37 of the Euratom treaty since each organisation has had a requirement to make available such data.

Mrs. Roe: Under article 37 of the Euratom treaty, responsibility for making submissions to the European Commission concerning plans for the disposal of radioactive waste rests with Her Majesty's Government, not the operators of nuclear installations.

The information, which is supplied by the Department of the Environment on behalf of the nuclear site operators to the Commission under article 37 of the Euratom treaty, conforms to the regulations laid down by the Commission in the Official Journal of the European Community dated 29 March 1982 (ref. No. L 83/15), a copy of which will be placed in the House of Commons Library. The following submissions have been made to the Commission since May 1979:

	Date
(a) British Nuclear Fuels plc:
Capenhurst—Uranium Enrichment Plants	May 1981
Sellafield—Thermal Oxide Reprocessing Plant	June 1984
(b) United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority
Dounreay—PFR Fuel Reprocessing Plant	November 1979
(c) Central Electricity Generating Board
Heysham 1—Nuclear Power Station	May 1980
Heysham 2—Nuclear Power Station	January 1986
Sizewell "B"—Nuclear Power Station	November 1987
(d) South of Scotland Electricity Board
Torness Power Station	February 1986

Submissions made Prior to May 1979 under Article 37 are as follows:

	Date
Central Electricity Generating Board
Hinkley Point "B" Power Station	1974
Dungeness "B" Power Station	1975
Hartlepool Power Station	1978
South of Scotland Electricity Board
Hunterston "B" Power Station	1974

Environmental Protection

Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will initiate a review of all statements made by Ministers in his Department to the House or in predecessor Departments with responsibility for environmental protection that may require revision in the light of official information made public under the 30-year rule on 1 January.

Mrs. Roe: No.

Agricultural Buildings

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his latest estimate of the total saving annually to the agriculture industry of not levying rates on agricultural buildings.

Mr. Chope: I estimate that the amount that would be raised if agricultural land and buildings were rated is between £400 million and £500 million.

Portable Discount Schemes

Mr. French: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if, pursuant to the reply of 9 November 1987, Official Report, column 13, to the hon. Member for Gloucester, he has completed his study of portable discount schemes; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Waldegrave: We are still considering the results of the studies of the schemes operated by the London boroughs of Brent and Bromley.

WALES

Housing (Alyn and Deeside)

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he is taking to improve housing provision in Alyn and Deeside; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Grist: Alyn and Deeside district council receive an appropriate share of the capital allocations which my right hon. Friend makes to housing authorities. Similarly, housing associations active in the Alyn and Deeside area will receive an appropriate share of Government funding made to the Housing Corporation.

Education (Clwyd)

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he is taking to improve educational facilities in Clwyd; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Wyn Roberts: Clwyd education authority receives its share of the Welsh rate support grant as determined by the agreed formula. It is also receiving support under the education support grant scheme in respect of expenditure of about £500,000 in 1987-88 and £1 million in 1988-89; together with grant under the in-service training grant scheme against expenditure of £1·8 million in 1988-89.

Additionally the county receives moneys under the training and vocational education initiative from the Manpower Services Commission.

Pig Farmers

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what action he proposes to assist pig farmers in Wales.

Mr. Peter Walker: It remains our objective to remove monetary compensatory amounts from the pigmeat sector and we shall continue to pursue this in future negotiations. This would help Welsh pig farmers as will the private storage aids scheme to be reintroduced with effect from 15 February.

Ophthalmic Waiting Lists

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps are being taken to monitor the effect of charges for eye testing on ophthalmic waiting lists in Wales; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Grist: It is not anticipated that a reduction in the availability of free sight tests will effect the rate of detection of abnormalities nor the work load of the hospital eye service. Statistics on waiting lists are collected and published on a routine basis and are always studied with care.

Congenital Cardiac Malformation

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what information he has or intends to gather in Wales about congenital cardiac malformation after the first week of life.

Mr. Grist: Health authorities in Wales are asked to provide the Welsh Office with information in respect of each in-patient and day patient discharged from hospital, including information relating to congenital cardiac malformation. Officials of the Department are presently exploring with those of the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys, which collates information on congenital malformation during the first week of life, the potential use of the child health computer system to provide data on congenital cardiac and other malformation after the first week of life.

Dental Treatment

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps are being taken to monitor the effect of charges for dental treatment on dental care in Wales; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Grist: Dental health surveys of adults and children are conducted periodically and the results reported to the House. The general household survey also monitors dental health. These surveys show that the nation's dental health has shown dramatic improvement in recent years. I believe that this trend will continue.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Less Intensive Farming Methods

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the research projects his Department is conducting and funding into less intensive farming methods; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Donald Thompson: My Department is conducting and funding a wide range of research and development on less intensive farming methods. This includes work aimed at reducing chemical inputs in respect of crops and increasing the use of forage as an alternative to intensive feeding systems for livestock. We are also studying the production of beef and sheepmeat in hill areas and the more general environmental effects of less intensive production methods.

Canthaxanthin

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if it is Her Majesty's Government's intention to ban the use of canthaxanthin in the production of fish farm feeding stuffs; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The use of canthaxanthin in fish feed in the United Kingdom is permitted under European Community directive and I am not aware of any proposals to change that. In its recent report on colouring matter in food, the Food Advisory Committee endorsed a recommendation from the Committee on Toxicology that the use of canthaxanthin should be restricted to feed prepared for farmed salmon and farmed trout only. Representations on the report were invited and I shall be making a further statement on the report when all the representations have been fully considered.

Farming

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many persons were in business as farmers on the most recent date for which figures are available; and what was the comparable number 10 years previously.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The information requested is set out in table 5 in the "Annual Review of Agriculture 1988" (Cmnd. 299) and in table 4 in the "Annual review of Agriculture 1982" (Cmnd. 8491). Copies of these documents are in the Library of the House.

Subsidies

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his latest estimate of the total annual cost of subsidies and other payments made by his Department to agriculture; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. MacGregor: The latest estimates of total annual expenditure on agriculture by the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food are published in table 4·1 of the White Paper, "The Government's Expenditure Plans 1988-89 to 1990-91" (Com. 288-II).

Cereals, Rape and Grass

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will update the information in the reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North of 30 January 1987, Official Report, column 462, about the total acreage (a) in cereals and rape and (b) in grass in 1987 and the forecast for 1988 and about the increase or decrease in each case since 1979 in actual and percentage terms.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The areas for 1987 and 1979 are as set out.

The 1988 area cannot be accurately forecast.

England

	Thousand Hectares
	1979	1987	Actual change	Per cent. change 1987-79
Total area of cereals (excluding maize plus rape grown for oilseed)	3,322	3,637	+315	+9·5
Total area of grassland (excluding rough grazing)	4,295	3,941	[1]355	−8·2

[1] The actual change does not agree because of rounding.

Radioactive Caesium

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food whether he will estimate the length of time that radioactive caesium will continue to be available for uptake from the soil by vegetation in the restricted areas set up after the Chernobyl accident; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Donald Thompson [holding answer 12 February 1988]: My Department has set in hand a substantial programme of research to enable the best possible estimate to be made. I am not willing to make any predictions before studying the results of this work which should start to become available later this year.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list details of the research projects his Department is funding or has funded into the uptake of radioactive caesium in upland sites; when the results will be completed; and if he will publish interim results.

Mr. Donald Thompson [holding answer 12 February 1988]: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave to him on 8 February 1988 at column 62.

CIVIL SERVICE

Civil Servants (Guidance)

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Minister for the Civil Service what representations he has received from the Association of First Division Civil Servants about those aspects of the recently issued revised note of guidance to civil servants which impinge on the ethics of the Civil Service; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Luce: None.

THE ARTS

Public Libraries

39. Mr. Ted Garrett: To ask the Minister for the Arts what information he has on the level of loans from public libraries in the last year for which figures are available.

Mr. Luce: The latest available information indicates that in 1985-86 English public libraries loaned 540 million books. Loans of items other than books are estimated to have been about 14 million.

Education Reform

43. Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Minister for the Arts what discussions he has had with the Arts Council about the role of the arts in the national curriculum.

Mr. Luce: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Cynon Valley (Mrs. Clwyd) earlier today.

Museums (Co-operation)

44. Mr. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Minister for the Arts whether he will meet the director of the British Museum to discuss the level of co-operation between that museum and regional museums.

Mr. Luce: I am keen to encourage co-operation between the national museums and galleries I sponsor and regional museums and galleries. The British museum's good record in this area is illustrated in the trustees' triennial report, a copy of which is in the Library.

45. Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister for the Arts what plans he has to widen co-operation between national and regional museums.

Mr. Luce: I am keen to encourage co-operation between national and regional museums. One of the principal functions of the Museums and Galleries Commission, which is funded from the central Government arts programme, is to promote co-operation between sectors of the museums community.

"Percentage for Arts" Schemes

46. Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Minister for the Arts what information he has on the effectiveness of "Percentage for Arts" schemes.

49. Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Minister for the Arts what is his policy towards the introduction of "Percentage for Arts" schemes.

Mr. Luce: I am actively encouraging putting art in public and private buildings. I am glad to see that there is much effective co-operation between the owners of buildings, developers, and artists in devising schemes which have enriched the environment.

National Museum of Photography

47. Mr. Boyes: To ask the Minister for the Arts how many people visited the National Museum of Photography in Bradford in each of the last three years.

Mr. Luce: The attendance figures for the last three years are as follows:

	Number
1985	546,894
1986	677,530
1987	706,319

Opera (Ministerial Visit)

50. Mr. John Greenway: To ask the Minister for the Arts when he last paid an official visit to an opera performance.

Mr. Luce: I last paid an official visit to the opera on Tuesday 2 February. I attended a performance of Puccini's "Madam Butterfly" by the English National Opera.

Pensioners and Young People

51. Mr. Vaz: To ask the Minister for the Arts what plans he has to encourage access to the arts by pensioners and young people.

Mr. Luce: The Arts Council, the Scottish and Welsh arts councils and the regional arts associations encourage a variety of schemes to increase accessibility to the arts. I am very much in favour of this.

Industrial Museums

52. Mr. Bill Michie: To ask the Minister for the Arts what financial support has been given in the last three years to industrial museums.

Mr. Luce: Two major museums devoted to science and industry receive grant-in-aid from central Government, the Science museum and the Greater Manchester museum of science and industry. The sums provided as grant-in-aid of these museums in the last three years were as follows:

£'000

	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88
Science Museum	8,954	9,171	9,589
Greater Manchester Museum of Science and Industry	[1]	1,075	1,252

[1] Funded by the Greater Manchester Council.

Museums in the public and private sectors are eligible for grants administered by the Museums and Galleries Commission and the area museum councils. The value of such grants made to industrial museums is not readily available.

Artists (Arts and Music Education)

53. Mr. Devlin: To ask the Minister for the Arts what information he has as to the current proportion of artists who received arts or music education at school; and what estimate he has of the proportion in future years.

Mr. Luce: This information is not held centrally.

Museums and Galleries (Trustees)

54. Mr. Key: To ask the Minister for the Arts when he last met the chairmen of trustees of the national museums and galleries; and what was discussed.

Mr. Luce: I meet the chairmen of particular national museums and galleries from time to time to discuss matters of mutual interest.

South Bank Complex

Mr. Butler: To ask the Minister for the Arts what information he has on the recent increase in turnover in the shops in the South Bank complex.

Mr. Luce: I am pleased to note that turnover at the shops in the Royal Festival Hall has increased by 47 per cent. in the last 12 months.

Subsidised Arts Bodies

Mr. Chapman: To ask the Minister for the Arts what proportion of moneys raised by subsidised arts bodies will have to be returned to him or the Arts Council.

Mr. Luce: None at all. No arts body will be penalised for increasing its income from other sources. On the contrary, I am providing incentives for arts organisations to seek and retain income from the private sector.

Art Collections (Obscenity)

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Minister for the Arts what advice he has given to trustees of national art collections on the display of works that might be regarded by the public as obscene.

Mr. Luce: I have issued no specific advice on this. If, however, an institution goes beyond what I regard as acceptable I have no hesitation in making this clear to them.

EMPLOYMENT

Nuclear Installations Inspectorate

60. Mr. Sackville: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many inspectors have been recruited by the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate in the current year.

Mr. Nicholls: The Health and Safety Executive has recruited 19 inspectors to the nuclear installations inspectorate since 1 April 1987. A further three inspectors are expected to take up appointment in early March.

MSC Training Schemes

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people there are on Manpower Services Commission training schemes in (a) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (b) the Chester travel-to-work area and (c) the Runcorn travel-to-work area; and what were the figures on the same date in each of the past five years.

Mr. Cope: The information is not available in the form requested. The following table gives the number of people in training on some Manpower Services Commission training schemes in Cheshire on the same date over the past three years:

Numbers on MSC Training Schemes[1] in Cheshire[2] at 31 December

	1985[3]	1986	1987
YTS[4]	5,684	7,120	8,676
The New Job Training Scheme[5]	—	—	287

[1] Figures for the numbers in training on any given date are not available for other adult training schemes.
[2] Figures are not available for Northwich, Chester and Runcorn travel-to-work areas.
[3] Figures for earlier years are not readily available.
[4] One year YTS in 1985 and two years in 1986 and 1987.
[5] The New Job Training Scheme has operated nationally since April 1987.

Fraud Investigators

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) how many fraud investigators are at present operating in the Seaham and Peterlee area of his Department;

(2) what is the cost to his Department of the benefit fraud investigators who are operating in the Seaham and Peterlee offices; and if he will make a statement on their cost-effectiveness.

Mr. Lee: Two members of staff of my Department are engaged in fraud investigation work in offices covering the Seaham and Peterlee areas. Both are of executive officer grade and receive the appropriate salaries and allowances. I am quite satisfied that both officers operate cost-effectively.

Ethnic Minorities

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what evaluation his Department has made of the experiment of having extra staff at job centres to work on outreach to ethnic minorities.

Mr. Lee: My Department plans to complete an initial evaluation of the experiment by spring of this year.

Restart

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the cost of each restart interview.

Mr. Lee: The cost of each restart interview in 1987-88 is estimated at around £13.

YTS

Mr. Leighton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many trainees are participating in the pilot YTS scheme in his Department; and how many are from ethnic minorities.

Mr. Cope: There are presently 84 trainees participating in the Department of Employment group YTS scheme, of whom 17 are from ethnic minorities.

Electricity Charges

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what representations he has received from pottery, brick and tile manufacturers and other concerned industrialists about the effect of increased electricity charges on jobs in those industries; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lee: I am not aware of any representations to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on this matter.

Wages (Underpayment)

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many cases of underpayment the Wages Inspectorate investigated in the north-west division in each of the past five years; how many were the results of complaints by staff; how many were the results of routine spot checks; and what were the outcomes.

Mr. Nicholls: The information requested for 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986 is given in the table. I shall arrange for the figures for 1987 to be published in the Official Report when they become available. The table cannot be taken as indicating the general level of compliance with wages council orders in the north-west division, because the inspectorate tends to concentrate its visits on establishments where underpayments appear more likely to be found.

Outcome of checks of pay carried out at establishments in north-west division, 1983-1986

	Checked by visit (routine)	Found to be underpaying	Checked by visit (complaint)	Found to be underpaying
1983	2,097	741	1,031	754
1984	2,062	744	1,054	703
1985	2,055	590	1,048	743
1986[1]	2,529	617	1,040	780

[1] North Wales became part of north-west division in 1986.

Parental Leave

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what are the provisions for parental leave (a) in the United Kingdom and (b) in other European Community countries; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Nicholls: Provision for parental leave in the United Kingdom is on a voluntary basis. I understand that other member states of the EC have a statutory basis for parental leave, but that there are fundamental variations in the range and scope of these provisions.

Benefit (Scotland)

Mr. McLeish: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) if he will give the total number of claimants in Scotland who have been refused unemployment benefit pursuant to the recommendations of claims investigators; and if he will break this figure down according to the reasons for withdrawal of benefit, for each year from 1979 to 1987;

(2) if he will give the total number of unemployment benefit claimants referred to claims investigators for each of the unemployment benefit offices in Scotland for each year from 1979 to 1987;

(3) if he will give the total number of unemployment benefit claimants referred to claims investigators in Scotland; and if he will break this figure down according to the reasons given for referral, for each year from 1979;

(4) what was the total number of unemployment benefit claimants referred to claims investigators in Scotland for each year from 1979.

Mr. Lee: It is unclear from the hon. Member's questions which officials he is referring to as "claims investigators" and I am unable, therefore, to provide the information requested. If the hon. Member would like to write to me with further details, I should be happy to try to respond.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the current ratio of persons in employment to those not in employment but available for work; and what has been the saving at the same date in each of the past five years in (a) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (b) the Chester travel-to-work area and (c) the Runcorn travel-to-work area.

Mr. Lee: Following is the available information. Employee estimates for travel-to-work areas are derived from censuses of employment, the latest of which relates to September 1984. The table shows the total numbers of employees in employment (excluding self-employed people and members of Her Majesty's Forces), and the numbers of unemployed claimants in September 1984 in each of the requested travel-to-work areas, and also the ratio of employees in employment to unemployed claimants.

September 1984

Travel-to-work area	Employees in employment	Unemployed claimants	Ratio
Northwich	41,852	6,627	6·3:1
Wirral and Chester	167,559	39,726	4·2:1
Widnes and Runcorn	47,839	12,010	4·0:1

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people in the Blyth Valley constituency at 1 January for each year between 1979 and 1987 had been unemployed (a) for less than six months, (b) for between six months and one year, (c) for between one and two years and (d) for over two years.

Mr. Lee: The following information is in the Library. The table shows the number of unemployed claimants in the Blyth Valley parliamentary constituency at the closest date to 1 January of each year from 1984 to 1987 for which figures are available, for each of the durations requested. The comparison is affected by the change in the compilation of unemployment figures in March 1986. Statistics for parliamentary constituencies are derived from the ward-based system and are available only from June 1983.

Blyth Valley Parliamentary Constituency

Unemployed	Less than six months	Six months to a year	One to two years	Over two years
12 January 1984	2,235	858	817	734
10 January 1985	2,176	977	779	920
9 January 1986	2,555	988	811	1,023
8 January 1987	2,400	979	946	1,057

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the rate of unemployment for the York travel-to-work area, in January of each year from 1978-79.

Mr. Lee: The following information is in the Library. Unemployment figures are not comparable over the whole period because of changes in the coverage of the count, and in the boundary definitions of the travel-to-work areas. The table shows the number of unemployed registrants in the York travel-to-work area as defined in 1978, at January of each year from 1979 to 1982, the number of unemployed claimants in that area at January 1983, and the number of unemployed claimants in the travel-to-work area as defined in 1984 for January of each year from 1984-87, expressed as a percentage of employees in employment and the unemployed.

	Unemployment rate Per cent.
York travel-to-work area, 1978 definition
Unemployed Registrants
January 1979	4·2
January 1980	3·8
January 1981	6·4
January 1982	7·8
Unemployed Claimants
January 1983	8·5
York travel-to-work area, 1984 definition
Unemployed Claimants
January 1984	8·5
January 1985	10·9
January 1986	11·3
January 1987	11·2

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the rate of unemployment for the Barrow travel-to-work area, in January of each year from 1978-79.

Mr. Lee: The following information is in the Library. Unemployment figures are not comparable over the whole period because of changes in the coverage of the count, and in the boundary definitions of the travel-to-work areas. The table shows the number of unemployed registrants in the Furness travel-to-work area as defined in 1978, at January of each year from 1979 to 1982, the number of unemployed claimants in the Barrow in Furness travel-to-work area as defined in 1984 for January of each year from 1984-1987, expressed as a percentage of employees in employment and the unemployed.

	Unemployment Rate per cent.
Furness travel-to-work area, 1978 definition
Unemployed Registrants
January 1979	6·1
January 1980	5·9
January 1981	9·9
January 1982	10·4
Unemployed Claimants
January 1983	11·3
Barrow in Furness travel-to-work area, 1984 definition
Unemployed Claimants
January 1984	10·8
January 1985	10·9
January 1986	11·2
January 1987	12·1

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the rate of unemployment for the Stafford travel-to-work area, in January of each year from 1978-79.

Mr. Lee: The following information is in the Library. Unemployment figures are not comparable over the whole period because of changes in the coverage of the count, and in the boundary definitions of the travel-to-work areas. The table shows the number of unemployed registrants in the Stafford travel-to-work area as defined in 1978, at January of each year from 1979 to 1982, the number of unemployed claimants in that area at January 1983, and the number of unemployed claimants in the travel-to-work area as defined in 1984 for January of each year from 1984-1987, expressed as a percentage of employees in employment and the unemployed.

	Unemployment Rate per cent.
Stafford travel-to-work area, 1978 definition
Unemployed Registrants
January 1979	3·3
January 1980	3·8
January 1981	6·9
January 1982	8·8
Unemployed Claimants
January 1983	9·8
Stafford travel-to-work area, 1984 definition
Unemployed claimants
January 1984	8·8
January 1985	9·4
January 1986	10·1
January 1987	9·6

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the rate of unemployment for the Lincoln travel-to-work area, in January of each year from 1978-79.

Mr. Lee: The following information is in the Library. Unemployment figures are not comparable over the whole period because of changes in the coverage of the count, and in the boundary definitions of the travel-to-work areas. The table shows the number of unemployed registrants in the Lincoln travel-to-work area as defined in 1978, at January of each year from 1979 to 1982, the number of unemployed claimants in that area at January 1983, and the number of unemployed claimants in the travel-to-work area as defined in 1984 for January of each year from 1984 to 1987, expressed as a percentage of employees in employment and the unemployed.

	Unemployment rate per cent.
Lincoln travel-to-work area, 1978 definition
Unemployed registrants
January 1979	6·3
January 1980	6·7
January 1981	10·4
January 1982	12·8
Unemployed claimants
January 1983	12·7
Lincoln travel-to-work area, 1984 definition
Unemployed claimants
January 1984	12·8
January 1985	12·9
January 1986	13·2
January 1987	13·2

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the rate of unemployment for the Preston travel-to-work area, in January of each year from 1978-79.

Mr. Lee: The following information is in the Library. Unemployment figures are not comparable over the whole period because of changes in the coverage of the count, and in the boundary definitions of the travel-to-work areas. The table shows the number of unemployed registrants in the Preston travel-to-work area as defined in 1978, at January of each year from 1979 to 1982, the number of unemployed claimants in that area at January 1983, and the number of unemployed claimants in the travel-to-work area as defined in 1984 for January of each year from 1984 to 1987, expressed as a percentage of employees in employment and the unemployed.

	Unemployment rate per cent.
Preston travel-to-work area, 1978 definition
Unemployed registrants
January 1979	5·2
January 1980	5·4
January 1981	9·7

	Unemployment rate per cent.
January 1982	12·3
Unemployed claimants
January 1983	12·2
Preston travel-to-work area, 1984 definition
Unemployed claimants
January 1984	11·9
January 1985	12·6
January 1986	12·7
January 1987	11·8

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will produce a table in the Official Report showing the number of men and women unemployed in the Houghton and Washington constituency for (a) under one year (b) one to two years (c) two to five years and (d) over five years.

Mr. Lee: The following information is in the Library. The table shows the number of male and female unemployed claimants in the Houghton and Washington parliamentary constituency on 10 October 1987, the latest date for which information is available, for each of the durations requested.

Houghton and Washington Parliamentary Constituency
10 October 1987

Unemployed	Male	Female
Under one year	2,750	1,390
One to two years	858	242
Two to five years	1,088	234
Over 5 years	617	137

SCOTLAND

Gaming Machines

Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he has any plans to review the law on the installation of gambling or gaming machines in premises open to minors.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The need for such a review will be considered following the assessment of the findings of a recently completed research project into the use of which young people make of such machines.

Tourism

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much public money has been spent in Angus, Scotland, to promote tourism in 1984, 1985 and 1986.

Mr. Lang: The main source of public sector support for tourism in Angus are the Scottish Tourist Board and Angus district council. Figures for expenditure in the financial years 1984-85, 1985-86 and 1986-87 were £118,999, £205,000 and £240,000 respectively. They include public sector assistance for the Angus tourist board.

EC (Grants and Loans)

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give details of EEC grants and loans which have been allocated for projects in Angus, Scotland, in 1984, 1985 and 1986.

Mr. Lang: There is no record of any EEC loan for projects in Angus in the years specified and no information is available in the form requested for grants under the European social fund. Details of other grants awarded are set out in the table.

Scheme	1984 £	1985 £	1986 £
European Regional Development Fund	1,142,000	—	24,000
European Agricultural Guidance and Guarantee Scheme
Hill Livestock Compensatory Allowance	186,277	199,698	283,353
Suckler Cow Premium	125,045	116,155	105,679
Sheep Annual Premium	332,451	537,979	384,338
EC Processing and Marketing Regulation 355/77	60,365	221,936	176,218
Capital Grants s.c. (only part EC funded)	1,278,648	853,306	396,118
	3,124,786	1,929,074	1,289,706

Notes:

1. Information on agricultural capital grants is not kept on a region or county basis. However, the figures provided are for the area covered by the DAFS office in Dundee, which corresponds closely with the former County of Angus.
2. It is not possible to provide a breakdown of refunds from the EC, but over the three years in question refunds in respect of agricultural capital grants and so on paid by DAFS average some 21 per cent. of the assistance paid in Scotland.

Student Grants

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what estimates he has made of the financial effect of indexing maintenance grants for each category of student.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I am afraid that we are unable to provide the information requested, since the cost would depend on the index concerned and the date from which grants were assumed to be adjusted in line with such an index. The hon. Member will be aware that, for Session 1988-89, the main rates of student grant are to be increased broadly in line with inflation.

Mr. Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when the student financial support review will be completed.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Glasgow, Maryhill (Mrs. Fyfe) on 12 February 1988, at column 371.

Legal Aid

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has received about applications for legal aid made under the Advice and Assistance (Scotland) Regulations 1987; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The Scottish Legal Aid Board has recommended that failure to send the board a copy of the client's application within 14 days (as required by regulation 10) should render the grant ineffective for the purpose of payment of the account; and that, where a second solicitor is to act in the same matter, he or she should be required to sign the application. I am preparing amending regulations which will give effect to these proposals.

Foreign Language Teaching

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what level of resources has been allocated to foreign language teaching in Scottish schools in each of the past five years.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The numbers of teachers in education authority secondary schools in Scotland in 1984 whose main teaching subject was a foreign language was 2,105 (7·6 per cent. of all teachers). Information for the other years requested is not readily available.

A74 (Upgrading)

Mr. Dewar: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what he estimates will be the total cost of upgrading the A74 to motorway standard; and what sums towards this have been included in the expenditure totals for roads expenditure for the years 1988-89 to 1990-91 published in table 16.1 of Cm. 288-II.

Mr. Rifkind: A clear estimate of the costs of the A74 upgrading will be available only when feasibility studies are completed at the end of this year. When that information is available, I will be in a position to consider the implications for future reviews of expenditure plans.

Mr. Dewar: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he expects construction work to start on upgrading the A74 to motorway standard; and when he now expects this to be completed.

Mr. Rifkind: I attach a high priority to an early start to this project, but the precise timetable depends on the results of the detailed feasibility studies which are under way.

Mr. Dewar: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if a decision has been taken as to whether the upgraded A74 motorway will follow the line of the present road or will be on a separate line of route.

Mr. Rifkind: Decisions on the preferred line of the new motorway will not be taken until feasibility studies have been completed later this year.

Rating Reform

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will introduce legislation to amend the Abolition of Domestic Rates etc. (Scotland) Act 1987, so as to incorporate those features of the Local Government Finance Bill which impose less onerous obligations on poll tax payers in England and Wales than are contained in the legislation already in force in Scotland; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lang: The Local Government Finance Bill embodies essentially the same system of community charges as is contained in the Abolition of Domestic Rates Etc. (Scotland) Act 1987. The 1987 Act was fully debated by Parliament and we have no plans to make any fundamental changes to it. If, however, Parliament decides that refinements should be made to the proposals contained in the Local Government Finance Bill, we shall of course look carefully at what is decided and consider whether any parallel changes need to be made to the 1987 Act.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether poll tax registration officers will be required to omit from the published version of the register the name of any individual who satisfies them that he or she may suffer physical injury if his or her name is listed; and whether in cases where this would result in an address being listed with no corresponding name, the address would also be omitted, thus ensuring that attention is not drawn to properties where people at risk are residers.

Mr. Lang: My right hon. and learned Friend is considering this matter.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether or not residents of women's refuges will be exempted from the poll tax.

Mr. Lang: My right hon. and learned Friend intends that women's refuges should give rise to liability for the collective community charge.

Residents of such premises will be exempt from personal community charge liability but will, under section 11(11) of the Abolition of Domestic Rates Etc. (Scotland) Act 1987, be liable to pay a collective community charge contribution to the landlord of the premises at the same daily level as the personal community charge.

Young Offenders

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the number of initial police reports on children for crimes and offences in (a) the Tayside region and (b) the Dundee area on the latest available date for each year since 1979.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is given in the table:

Initial Police Reports on Children for Crimes and Offences

Year	City of Dundee District	Tayside Region
1979	1,460	2,222
1980	1,486	2,312
1981	1,603	2,602
1982	1,254	2,110

Year	City of Dundee District	Tayside Region
1983	1,261	2,752
1984	1,074	2,133
1985	1,027	2,044
1986	1,013	1,917

YTS

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will estimate what proportion of the people who have participated in YTS went on to get work for each year since the scheme began.

Mr. Lang: Of those who left YTS in Scotland in the period June 1984 to March 1985 (the earliest information available) 50 per cent. were in employment three months after leaving the scheme. The comparable figures for those who left between April 1985 to March 1986 and between April 1986 to August 1987 were 50 and 49 per cent. respectively.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many people in the Dundee district authority area are on YTS at the latest available date; and what are the corresponding figures for each month since the scheme began.

Mr. Lang: As at 10 February 1988 there were 1,605 people on locally run YTS schemes in city of Dundee district. Comparable figures for the same date are 1,252 in 1987 and 1,371 in 1986 (the earliest information available). Monthly figures are not available except at disproportionate cost. The numbers on schemes administered by the Manpower Services Commission large company unit are not broken down to local level.

NHS (Ancillary Services)

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the expenditure on ancillary services in the National Health Service in each year since 1983, at constant 1983 prices.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Total recurrent expenditure by health boards on catering, domestic, laundry, transport and portering services has been as follows:

	£ thousand at 1983-84 prices (using GDP deflator)
1983-84	174,739
1984-85	173,413
1985-86	169,367
1986-87	167,909

Nurses

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will instruct health boards in Scotland not to offer voluntary redundancy to nurses.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: No. It is for health boards as employers to apply the NHS redundancy provisions having regard to their manpower requirements.

Scottish Development Agency

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much public money has been spent by the Scottish Development Agency task force in Clydebank since its inception.

Mr. Lang: Since inception of the Clydebank task force in March 1980, the Scottish Development Agency has spent £31 million in Clydebank.

Afforestation

Ms. Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what acreage of (a) England, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales was afforested with conifers in 1970, 1975, 1980, 1985 and 1987.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Information is not available for 1970 or 1975.

Figures for the subsequent years are set out in the following table:

Area of Productive Coniferous Woodland (Hectares)

Year (at 31 march)	England	Scotland	Wales
1980	407,000	781,000	167,000
1985	395,000	871,000	174,000
1987	396,000	918,000	176,000

Ms. Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what acreage of (a) the Northumberland national park, (b) Northumberland, (c) the Borders region and (d) Dumfries and Galloway, was afforested with conifers in 1970, 1975, 1980, 1985 and 1987.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information is set out in the following table:

Area of Productive Coniferous Woodland (Hectares)

Year (at 31 March)	Northumberland National Park	Northumberland County	Borders Region	Dumfries and Galloway Region
1970	17,000	52,000	31,000	82,000
1975	19,000	55,000	(not available)	(not available)
1980	21,000	58,000	59,000	125,000
1985	22,000	59,000	63,000	138,000
1987	22,000	60,000	64,000	139,000

Primary Schools

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many primary schools there are in Scotland; and if he will list them.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: There were 2,418 education authority primary schools and departments at September 1987. I shall write to the hon. Member to provide a list of schools.

Education Expenditure

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the total expenditure on education, primary and secondary, in Scotland for each year since 1975, in 1986 money; and what are the estimates for 1988-89 and 1989-90.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information requested is given in the following table:

£ million

	Primary	Secondary
1974-75	437·1	547·2
1975-76	456·3	549·9
1976-77	465·1	567·4
1977-78	442·7	526·9
1978-79	466·2	535·9
1979-80	457·3	554·1
1980-81	471·6	587·0
1981-82	461·4	617·8
1982-83	459·0	604·8
1983-84	451·1	609·8
1984-85	438·4	600·1
1985-86	412·6	568·4
1986-87	457·0	625·0
1987-88	480·6	629·3
1988-89	458·0	582·9
1989-90	447·9	572·0

Notes:
1. The figures shown cover current expenditure by local authorities only; information on capital expenditure covers all education sectors and cannot be split between primary and secondary.
2. Figures up to 1986-87 are outturn or estimated outturn; 1987-88 is the total of local authority budgets; 1988-89 is the total of service provision within the rate support grant settlement (and excludes any attribution of the education unallocated margin of £90 million); and the 1989-90 figure is a provisional planning figure subject to review later this year.
3. The figures reflect constant prices determined by application of GDP deflator, base year 1986-87.

Education Statistics

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the total number of (a) pupils and (b) teachers in (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools in Scotland.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The provisional estimates are 430,900 pupils and 21,340 teachers in primary schools and departments, and 327,300 pupils and 25,290 teachers in secondary schools in September 1987.

Hospitals

Mr. Norman Hogg: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give figures showing the number of new hospitals opened in Scotland for every year since 1979.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Details of all hospital developments are not held centrally, as minor capital projects are delegated to health boards. The information for capital projects costing over £1 million is as follows:

Year	Number of Hospitals
1979	2
1980	10
1981	6
1982	5
1983	10
1984	6
1985	4
1986	4
1987	4
TOTAL	51

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Norman Hogg: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give the latest figure for the National Health Service in-patient waiting list for Scotland.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information requested is published in "Scottish Health Statistics 1986/87" (table 6.5), copies of which are held in the Library.

Hip-replacement Operations

Mr. Norman Hogg: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give figures showing the number of people waiting for hip-replacement operations in Scotland; and if he will provide the relevant figures for every year since 1979.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: This information is not available centrally.

Hospital Beds

Mr. Norman Hogg: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give figures showing the total number of hospital beds available in Scotland for each year since 1979; if he will provide a breakdown of these figures for each health board.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The average available staffed beds in each year ending 30 September in National Health Service hospitals in Scotland are as follows:

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	[1]1986	[1,2]1987
Scotland	58,501	58,208	58,028	57,440	57,295	57,216	56,334	55,757	55,338
Argyll and Clyde	4,599	4,523	4,488	4,472	4,438	4,445	4,415	4,367	4,312
Ayrshire and Arran	2,837	2,822	2,827	2,794	2,918	3,059	3,001	2,974	2,951
Borders	898	897	943	928	928	931	927	939	944
Dumfries and Galloway	1,676	1,595	1,571	1,548	1,540	1,542	1,531	1,507	1,493
Fife	2,953	2,913	2,929	2,989	3,026	3,161	3,152	3,262	3,290

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	[1]1986	[1] [2]1987
Forth Valley	3,611	3,616	3,583	3,498	3,446	3,436	3,407	3,417	3,410
Grampian	5,392	5,391	5,393	5,462	5,486	5,595	5,558	5,575	5,513
Greater Glasgow	14,045	14,084	14,032	13,547	13,355	13,166	12,907	12,691	12,559
Highland	2,455	2,422	2,427	2,347	2,290	2,277	2,220	2,149	2,165
Lanarkshire	5,517	5,536	5,538	5,528	5,491	5,404	5,283	5,164	5,042
Lothian	8,374	8,389	8,397	8,452	8,522	8,451	8,279	8,089	8,047
Orkney	119	126	131	131	131	132	129	131	131
Shetland	160	159	160	160	160	161	157	160	158
Tayside	5,648	5,522	5,408	5,377	5,354	5,248	5,158	5,120	5,109
Western Isles	216	212	202	207	210	208	211	212	216

[1] Provisional.
[2] Year ended 31 March.

Industrial Development Grant

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what research he has undertaken, and what information is available to him, about the effects of withdrawal of industrial development grant status on areas close to enterprise zones.

Mr. Lang: I am not aware of any research directed to this specific topic. An evaluation of enterprise zones (including those in Scotland) was undertaken for the Department of the Environment by PA Cambridge Economic Consultants, and a copy of their report has been placed in the Library of the House of Commons. Additionally, a research study by Messrs. S. McDowall and H. Begg on the "Impact of Regional Policy Regradings in Scotland" is nearing completion.

Cancer Screening

Mr. Maclennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the currently envisaged locations and operating dates for all 10 breast cancer screening facilities in Scotland; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Rifkind [holding answer 12 February 1988]: We have announced that the first four centres will be established at Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen and Dundee. We expect the Glasgow centre to begin operation in May, the Edinburgh centre in June and the Aberdeen and Dundee centres to begin operation later in 1988. The location of the remaining centres and the mix of static and mobile units is currently being considered by the Advisory Group on Breast Cancer Screening in Scotland, under the chairmanship of Sir Patrick Forrest. All 10 centres will be in operation by 1991.

Regional Aid

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the total expenditure on regional aid to industry in (a) Dundee and (b) Tayside in each differing catagory of aid in each financial year since 1978-79, both at current and outturn prices.

Mr. Lang [holding answer 8 February 1988]: Total payments of regional selective assistance (RSA) under section 7 of the Industrial Development Act 1982 to firms in Dundee city and Tayside region are set out in table 1 at both current (synonymous with outturn) and constant (1986-87) prices. Total payments under the revised regional development grant scheme (RDG2) to firms in Dundee city and Tayside region are set out in table 2.

Information on the old RDG scheme is available only by local employment office area (EOA) for payments exceeding £25,000 to individual firms in any quarter. The total of such payments to firms in the Dundee EOA (which approximates to Dundee city local authority district) and the Arbroath, Blairgowrie, Brechin, Dundee, Forfar, Montrose and Perth EOAs (which approximate to Tayside region) are give in table 3.

Table 1 Payments of RSA (£ million)

Year	Dundee city		Tayside region
	Current prices	Constant (1986-87) prices	Current prices	Constant (1986-87) prices
1978-79	0·3	0·6	0·7	1·4
1979-80	0·7	1·1	0·9	1·5
1980-81	1·2	1·6	1·5	2·1
1981-82	1·4	1·8	1·6	2·1
1982-83	1·2	1·4	1·4	1·7
1983-84	2·2	2·5	2·5	2·8
1984-85	2·5	2·7	3·0	3·3
1985-86	2·0	2·1	2·3	2·4
1986-87	2·7	2·7	2·9	2·9

Table 2 Revised RDG payments (£ million)

Year	Dundee city		Tayside region
	Current prices	Constant (1986-87) prices	Current prices [1]	Constant (1986-87) prices
1984-85	—	—	—	—
1985-86	0·4	0·4	0·7	0·7
1986-87	2·3	2·3	3·1	3·1

Table 3 Payments of old RDG (£ million)

Year	Dundee EOA		EOAs lying wholly or mainly in Tayside Region
	Current prices	Constant (1986-87) prices	Current prices	Constant (1986-87) prices
1978-79	1·0	2·0	2·2	4·2
1979-80	1·2	1·9	1·8	3·1
1980-81	1·4	1·9	2·7	3·8
1981-82	1·8	2·3	3·6	4·7
1982-83	2·8	3·3	3·6	4·3
1983-84	4·3	4·9	4·7	5·3
1984-85	5·5	6·0	6·1	6·6
1985-86	3·4	3·5	3·9	4·0
1986-87	4·4	4·4	5·1	5·1

SOCIAL SERVICES

Community Care

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what further consideration he has given to the recommendation of the Select Committee on Social Services in its Second Report on community care, Session 1984-85, that the lessons from other countries of hasty change in closing down one set of facilities before firmly established alternatives exist need further examination; and if he will identify what action has been taken since the publication of the Government's response to that report, Cmnd. 9674.

Mr. Newton: Professional and other staff have continued to study a wide range of research and other reports fom other countries, which contain a number of useful lessons for ourselves. Our response to the Select Committee report clearly affirmed the view that, in the words of the policy paper attached to the response and circulated to health authorities, "New facilities must be available before old facilities are dispensed with." Since that time, after studying reports from other countries, we have funded research studies designed to demonstrate whether models of community care which have been found beneficial in those countries can be successful here.

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish in the Official Report details of all schemes which his Department has arranged with private health service companies as part of its initiative to reduce hospital waiting lists.

Mr. Newton: A list of the projects currently being funded from regional health authorities' allocations from the waiting list fund for 1987-88 which make use of facilities in the private sector is as follows:

Yorkshire RHA
Scunthorpe DHA: ENT—70 cases
Huddersfield DHA: Breast Surgery—90 cases
Pontefract DHA: ENT/Gynaecology—306 cases
Hull DHA: ENT—150 cases

East Anglian RHA
Cambridge DHA: Plastic surgery—50 cases

North West Thames RHA
South Bedfordshire DHA: ENT—25 cases
Hounslow and Spelthorne DHA:
Surgery—226 cases
Ophthalmology—50 cases

North East Thames RHA
City and Hackney DHA: ENT—242 cases (2 projects)
Southend DHA: Gynaecology—241 cases

South West Thames RHA
West Surrey/North East Hants DHA: Urology—12 cases

Trent RHA
Leicestershire DHA: 10 CABGs
South Lincolnshire DHA:
Orthopaedics—88 cases
Orthopaedics—460 cases
Southern Derbyshire DHA: Gynaecology—54 cases
Central Notts DHA: Orthopaedics—160 cases
Barnsley DHA: Gynaecology/Radiology—202 cases
Doncaster DHA:
General Surgery—170 cases
ENT—270 cases
Gynaecology—115 cases
Rotherham DHA: Surgery 67 cases
Sheffield DHA:
10 CABGs
General Surgery—20 cases
Surgery—92 cases

South East Thames RHA
Dartford and Gravesham DHA:
Urology—130 cases
General Surgery—40 cases
Bromley DHA: Orthopaedics—22 hips
In addition some post-operative nursing care has been purchased in the private sector for projects in Tunbridge Wells, Maidstone and Brighton DHAs.

Wessex RHA
East Dorset DHA: Orthopaedics—20 cases
Portsmouth and South East Hants DHA: Orthopaedics—100 hips

West Midlands RHA
South East Staffordshire DHA: Orthopaedics—80 cases
North Staffordshire DHA: Gynaecology—20 cases
Shropshire DHA: General surgery—100 cases

Oxford RHA
Milton Keynes DHA: Gynaecology—30 cases
Aylesbury DHA: Plastic surgery—250 cases

Mersey RHA
Crewe DHA: Gynaecology: 107 cases

North Western RHA
Blackburn DHA: Orthopaedics—33 hips
Burnley DHA:
ENT—181 cases
Orthopaedics—100 hips
Bolton DHA: Ophthalmology—175 cases
Bury DHA: ENT—225 cases
Stockport DHA: Urology—42 cases

Medical Professionals

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has received any representations from individuals in the Nottingham district health authority regarding the integration of medical professionals into the general management system.

Mr. Newton: I have received one letter about the principle of combining general managerial responsibilities with continuing clinical practice, but not from a member of the Nottingham district health authority.

Mentally Ill People

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make it his policy that in regions where health authority assessments of the local needs of the mentally ill have not been made, he will withhold approval of further reductions in mental hospital beds and if plans for the closure of such hospitals until assessments of their needs have been made and alternative services to meet the needs provided.

Mr. Newton: We have already emphasised that no closure of a mental illness hospital should go ahead until a carefull assessment of all the existing patients' needs has been made and alternative services appropriate to those needs have been provided. The closure of hospitals should be a consequence of the former residents being suitably accommodated elsewhere, and not a reason for them to be placed in unsuitable accommodation.

Nurses

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what plans he has to recruit and retain nurses within the National Health Service.

Mr. Newton: We have taken a number of steps recently designed in whole or in part to improve nurse recruitment and retention in the National Health Service. For example, we announced before Christmas the special mortgage scheme with the Nationwide Anglia building society and agreement has been reached on a new grading structure for nurses which will mean that the skills of nurses in key specialisms will be reflected in their grading and therefore in their pay. Other central initiatives include the recently completed consultations on new nurse training proposals (Project 2000) and a new support worker grade for nursing; the feasibility study on the use of the youth training scheme as a means of recruiting to nurse training and to the support worker grade, on which a report has recently been published; a study commissioned by RHA chairmen to examine factors influencing recruitment and retention and suggest improvements; a career development project group established to examine the scope for attractive career goals for nurses; and in NHS/DHSS working group on equal opportunities for women which will in particular make recommendations for management of the career break.

Action at national level can only be effective if it is matched by action by local management. Health authorities have been asked to improve recruitment and retention by making greater efforts to recruit mature entrants; organising "Back to Nursing" campaigns including refresher training; increasing male recruitment; establishing nurse banks; giving more opportunities for flexible working and job sharing.

Treatment Costs

Mr. Watts: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the average cost of treating a patient in hospital in the most recent year for which figures are available; and what information he has as to the range of such costs in district health authorities.

Mrs. Currie: The average cost of treating a patient in a major acute hospital in 1985-86 was £724. At the level of district health authorities, average costs ranged from £467 (35 per cent. below the national average) to £1,231 (70 per cent. above the national average). A large part of this variation may be attributed to different types of cases and different lengths of stay. If allowance is made for these factors by estimating what district costs would have been if their case mix and lengths of stay were equal to the national averages, districts' actual costs vary from 21 per cent. under to 23 per cent. over such estimated costs. To illustrate the variations that can arise a special study in one health authority has shown that the cost of a bronchoscopy is £125 plus £227 per day, while the cost of implanting a cardiac defibrillator is £10,500 plus £227 per day.

Expenditure Statistics

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list in the Official Report the proportion of United Kingdom gross domestic product spending on (a) the National Health Service as a whole, (b) hospital and community health services and (c) family practitioner services, for each year from 1970 until the latest year in which figures are available.

Mr. Newton: NHS expenditure in the United Kingdom as a percentage of gross domestic product in each year since 1970 is shown in the following table. These estimates are derived from Central Statistical Office national accounts. These accounts, however, do not identify separately expenditure on the hospital and community health services or on family practitioner services. The figures used in the table for these services are estimates derived from departmental records, which are compiled on a financial year basis. Comparable data for the United Kingdom for years before 1978-79 are not readily available.

Percentage of GDP spent

Year	NHS	[1][2]HCHS	FPS
1970	3·8	—	—
1971	3·8	—	—
1972	4·0	—	—
1973	3·9	—	—
1974	4·8	—	—
1975	5·1	—	—
1976	5·0	—	—
1977	4·9	—	—
1978	4·8	—	—
1979	4·8	[3]—	[3]—
1980	5·3	[4]4·2	1·1
1981	5·5	4·3	1·2
1982	5·4	4·2	1·2
1983	5·7	4·5	1·2
1984	5·5	4·2	1·3
1985	5·4	4·2	1·2
1986	5·5	4·3	1·2

[1] Including expenditure on central health and miscellaneous services (separate figures for United Kingdom not readily available).
[2] The adjustment from financial year data to calendar year has been estimated using Departmental records.
[3] Comparable data for 1979 and earlier years are not readily available.
[4] Estimated.

Hospital and Community Health Services (Staff Targets)

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list in the Official Report his Department's staff targets for the hospital and community health services for each year since 1981 up to the latest year for which figures are available and similarly actual staff in post, all broken down by staff type.

Mr. Newton: A manpower control system was introduced in 1983 and the first manpower targets were given for March 1984. The distribution of approved targets between staff groups is a matter for regional decision.

The table therefore gives overall total comparisons of the 14 regions as at 31 March.

NHS Directly Employed Staff at 31 March
Total 14 Regional Health Authorities

Year	Targets	Staff in post
1984	802,700	796,000
1985	802,700	792,600
1986	796,000	775,300
1987	789,500	767,300
1988	781,300	Not available

Source: DHSS Annual Censuses of NHS Medical and Non-Medical Manpower.

Notes: 1. Excludes staff at the Dental Estimates Board, Prescription Pricing Authority and London Post-Graduate Special Health Authorities.

2. Excludes Medical and Dental Locum Staff, Hospital Practitioners, Clinical Assistants and Agency Nursing and Midwifery staff.

3. All figures are independently rounded to the nearest hundred (100) whole-time equivalents.

Health Authority Waiting Lists

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what plans he has to seek to discover the reasons why certain health authorities have waiting lists of over one year; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: We asked regional health authorities to submit comprehensive reports on the nature and causes of their waiting lists and time in July 1986 when we launched our waiting list/times initiative. The reports demonstrated that the causes of excessive waiting times varied from district to district and specialty to specialty. Many of the problems were able to be tackled within existing resources but others did require additional funding. We therefore set up a special £25 million waiting list fund for 1987/88 and aim to have treated some 100,000 additional cases by the end of March.

For 1988/89 we have increased the fund to £30 million and have asked health authorities to make reductions in waiting times their top priority in making bids against the fund.

Progress on projects supported from the fund and health authorities' progress within the initiative generally are monitored regularly.

Laboratory Workers (HIV Infection)

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if, pursuant to his answer of 3 February, and in the absence of regular testing, he will give his reasons for stating that the risk of HIV infection to laboratory workers is extremely remote.

Mr. Newton: Published scientific literature illustrates that more than 2,000 recorded incidents of direct exposure to HIV contamination have resulted in very few occupationally acquired infections worldwide. The incidence of HIV infection in health care workers in general both in the United States and in this country closely matches that of the general population despite in some cases, multiple and daily encounters with AIDS patients and others who are HIV-positive.

In the United Kingdom, more than 190 incidents of exposure to the HIV virus involving health care workers and including accidental direct innoculations have been recorded since 1985 with no evidence of infection. A single instance of sero-conversion in a British nurse was reported earlier in 1984.

Some laboratory workers in this country engaged in work with the virus have volunteered to be tested, but none has been found to have contracted the infection.

Income Support Scheme

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how much of the £225 million extra expenditure planned for the income support scheme is attributable to compensation for the payment of 20 per cent. of rates.

Mr. Scott: Including transitional protection, the planned level of expenditure on income support in 1988-89 is some £420 million higher than it would have been if the supplementary benefit scheme had continued with a normal uprating. This includes expenditure of £280 million to compensate for the 20 per cent. rates contribution.

Social Fund

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his estimate of the level of loans that will be written off each year under the social fund in the figures in the Government's expenditure plans 1988-89.

Mr. Scott: Social fund loans will seldom be written off. The net expenditure figures for loans which underlie the figures in the Government's expenditure plans 1988-89 assume that a proportion of loan repayments will remain outstanding at the end of each accounting period, but do not contain specific assumptions about the level of loans which are written off.

Consultants

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he is satisfied that consultants employed on contract by regional health authorities adhere to the conditions set out in them; if he will detail the management procedures to ensure that the terms of the contracts are followed; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: I am satisfied that, in general, consultants carry out their contractual duties in a proper and responsible manner. Regional health authorities and the district health authorities in which the consultants actually work are together responsible for devising arrangements to ensure that consultants adhere to the terms of their contracts.

Grimsby Health Authority

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many residential units for National Health Service staff there have been in the Grimsby district health authority in each year since 1979.

Mrs. Currie: I regret that this information is not available centrally. The hon. Member may wish to write to the chairman of Grimsby health authority for the information he is seeking.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many consultants are employed by the Grimsby district health authority on contracts; and how many of these work full time and part time for the National Health Service;

(2) what is the annual cost of consultants contracts for the Grimsby district health authority.

Mrs. Currie: Information on the number of consultants in non-teaching districts such as Grimsby is not available centrally, as such staff are employed by regional health authorities. Some information on costs is available from District accounts. In 1986-87, Grimsby's total expenditure on salaries and wages of medical consultants was £1,451,000 and on dental consultants £56,000. The hon. Member may wish to contact the chairman of Yorkshire regional health authority for any further information which he requires.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the bed availability at the Grimsby district health authority as at the latest date; and if he will give similar figures for each year since 1979.

Mrs. Currie: The requested information is given in the table, together with throughput.

Average daily number of available beds in Grimsby District Health Authority

Year	Average daily number of available beds	Throughput[1]
1979	797	22·7
1980	800	23·4
1981	806	24·9
1982	800	25·0
1983	807	26·4
1984	800	27·9
1985	957	24·9
1986	970	25·2

[1] Number of cases per available bed.

Notes:

Caistor hospital (mental handicap) was transferred to Grimsby district health authority from North Lincolnshire district health authority on 1 April 1985.

Figures for years before 1982 relate to Grimsby's predecessor district within Humberside area health authority.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many appointments he has made to the Grimsby health authority since 1983.

Mrs. Currie: The Secretary of State reappointed Mr. R. Blair as Chairman of Grimsby health authority on 1 April 1986.

The appointment of members to Grimsby district health authority is the responsibility of the Yorkshire regional health authority and certain local authorities

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many nurses have left the Grimsby district health authority since 1979; how many have been reinstated; what is the present number; and what it was in 1979.

Mrs. Currie: Staff in post figures are shown in the table. Because of the 1982 National Health Service reorganisation, figures on a consistent basis are not held centrally for the years prior to 1982.

Information on staff who have "left" or been "reinstated" is not held centrally. The hon. Member may wish to contact the chairman of the Grimsby district health authority for this information.

National Health Service and midwifery staff in post[1] Grimsby district health authority at 30 September

Year	[2]Whole time equivalents
1982	1,190
1986	1,390

[1] Includes agency staff.

[2] Figures independently rounded off to nearest ten (10) whole time equivalents.

Source: DHSS Annual Census of National Health Service Non-medical Manpower

927

Severe Weather Payments (Grimsby)

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the total of severe weather payments paid by benefit offices within the Grimsby constituency in 1986-87; if he will break down this figure by week of payment; and if he will estimate the number of claimants involved.

Mr. Scott: The Grimsby constituency is situated within the area covered by the Grimsby local office, although the boundaries are not conterminous. The total and weekly number of exceptionally cold weather payments made by the Grimsby office last winter is given in the table. Figures are not available for the number of individuals receiving payment but the great majority of successful claimants will have received £5 in respect of each of the two weeks for which help was available in the Grimsby area. The number of successful claimants is therefore approximately half the total number of £5 payments made.

Number of exceptionally cold weather payments made by the Grimsby local office by week of payment in the winter of 1986/87.

Payment made in week ending	Number of £5 weekly payments made
20 January 1987	155
27 January 1987	4,174
3 February 1987	2,005
10 February 1987	852
17 February 1987	279
24 February 1987	304
3 March 1987	103
10 March 1987	50
17 March 1987	76
24 March 1987	74
31 March 1987	38
7 April 1987	54
14 April 1987	36
21 April 1987	2
28 April 1987	4
TOTAL	8,206

Nurses (Special Duty Payments)

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how much has been paid in the last eight years on special duty payments for nurses in the Grimsby health authority.

Mrs. Currie: I regret that the information is not available centrally. The hon. Member may wish to contact the chairman of Grimsby health authority for the information he is seeking.

Benefit Fraud Investigators

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the cost to his Department of the benefit fraud investigators who are operating in the Peterlee and Seaham area; and if he will make a statement on their cost-effectiveness.

Mr. Portillo: The estimated cost to the Department, in terms of salaries and expenses, of the three benefit fraud investigators currently operating in the Peterlee and Seaham area is of the order of £3,800 per month. I am completely satisfied that these staff fulful their duties in a cost-effective manner.

Invalid Care Allowance

Mrs. Maureen Hicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether invalid care allowance paid to a mother looking after hanidicapped dependants and therefore unable to work continues after the said mother reaches pensionable age of 60 years.

Mr. Scott: If the qualifying conditions are satisfied, entitlement to an invalid care allowance continues after pension age, but the amount payable may be reduced or extinguished on account of the payment of a retirement pension or other social security benefits.

Supplementary Benefit (Caseload)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, pursuant to the reply of 26 January, Official Report, columns 200-214, what is the nature of the evidence he has relating to activity on the supplementary benefit caseload of benefit offices.

Mr. Portillo: The staffing levels of local social security offices are established by their proportionate share of the forecast national workloads (for example, the number of unemployed supplementary benefit claimants) and the average time spent on each of these workloads. The information on average times is obtained from periodic activity sampling exercises. The latest such exercise was held from August 1986 to July 1987.

Dogs (Northumberland)

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people in Northumberland health authority (a) received hospital treatment as a result of attacks by dogs, (b) died as a result of such attacks and (c) received hospital treatment for dog-borne diseases, including toxocara canis, as a result of contact with dogs or dog excrement, for the last year for which figures are available.

Mrs. Currie: There were no deaths of usual residents of Northumberland district health authority registered in 1986 where the underlying cause of death was due to injury caused by dogs. I regret that the remaining information requested is not available centrally.

Cervical Cancer

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many women in the northern region have died from cervical cancer in the last five years for which figures are available, expressed per thousand women.

Mrs. Currie: The information is shown in the table.

Number of deaths to women usually resident in Northern Regional Health Authority with underlying cause as malignant neoplasm of cervix uteri (ICD(9)[1]180), and rates per thousand resident women. 1982 to 1986

Year	Number of deaths	Rate per 1,000 women
1982	153	0·096
1983	155	0·097
1984	134	0·084
1985	147	0·093
1986	145	0·092

[1] International Classification of Diseases 9th revision.

Worth House Children's Home

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what inquiries the Social Services Inspectorate has made of the Kent constabulary at Herne Bay relating to the operation of Worth House children's home.

Mrs. Currie: It is not the Inspectorate's normal practice to make inquiries of the police in the conduct of its inspections, and none was made on this occasion.

Benefits (RPI Error)

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if, pursuant to the statement by the Minister of State of 18 December 1987, Official Report, column 1376, he will now update the estimate of the total amount of underpayment due to the miscalculation of the retail prices index in relation to social security benefits; and what was the total amount actually paid out in special lump-sum payments during the week started 1 February.

Mr. Scott: It is estimated that the underspend on social security will be £109 million between April 1987 and April 1989. £98 million of this was allocated to the first stage of the special payments exercise, for those entitled to benefit during the week commencing 1 February. Not all these special payments will actually have been made during that week, as many beneficiaries are paid monthly or quarterly or will cash their order book foils for that week at a later date. Consequently, no firm figures for the total spending on this stage of the special payments will be known for several weeks. Special payments will also be made to people whose entitlement arises between 8 February and 8 October, and to certain categories of people whose losses on weekly benefit as a result of the error were significantly more than £8.

Mr. Andrew Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if, pursuant to the statement of 18 December 1987, Official Report, column 1376, he will explain the precise basis on which the figures of £8 and £7·85 were calculated in relation to the underpayment in benefit as a result of an error in computing the retail prices index.

Mr. Scott: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Dunfermline, East (Mr. Brown) on 10 February at column 274.

War Widows' Pensions

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make it his policy to lower the age limit for the age allowance in war widows' pensions from 65 to 60 years; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: The age allowances currently paid are £5·50 at age 65, increasing to £11 at 70 and £13·85 at 80. They are paid in addition to the standard war widow's pension of £51·35 a week, which is itself 30 per cent. higher than the national insurance widow's pension. These allowances are unique to the war widow's pension scheme and are intended to recognise the additional needs of elderly war widows as they grow older. There is no reason to reduce the age at which they are paid to 60.

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make it his policy to implement the request made by the War Widows Association of Great Britain to increase the additional sums paid in age allowances related to war widows' pensions by £2 a week; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: The request stems from proposals made in 1986 by a joint working group of officials and representatives of ex-service organisations to abolish some of the out-of-date provisions of the war pensions scheme and use the resources released to increase war widows' age allowances by £2 a week. The Central Advisory Committee on War Pensions rejected the proposals. That remains the position.

Supplementary Benefit

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the number of outstanding claims for supplementary benefit in the Dundee, East and Dundee, West offices of his Department on the latest available date; and what were the corresponding figures in each month since January 1982.

Mr. Portillo: Details of the number of outstanding claims to supplementary benefit at Dundee, East and Dundee, West offices are shown in the following table:

Date	Dundee East	Dundee West
11 May 1982	72	51
8 June 1982	80	60
6 July 1982	215	103
3 August 1982	77	78
31 August 1982	120	100
28 September 1982	101	59
26 October 1982	70	52
23 November 1982	56	39
21 December 1982	123	54
18 January 1983	275	57
15 February 1983	175	48
16 March 1983	209	56
12 April 1983	339	92
10 May 1983	226	48
7 June 1983	256	74
5 July 1983	550	93
2 August 1983	460	95
30 August 1983	349	65
27 September 1983	443	144
25 October 1983	292	64
22 November 1983	238	51
20 December 1983	260	58
17 January 1984	169	56
14 February 1984	130	64
13 March 84	177	55
10 April 1984	201	68
8 April 1984	137	107
5 June 1984	118	57
2 July 1984	289	83
31 July 1984	225	23
28 August 1984	251	115
25 September 1984	221	98
23 October 1984	181	84
20 November 1984	122	60
8 December 1984	166	74
16 January 1985	172	91
12 February 1985	110	100
12 March 1985	76	61
9 April 1985	129	104
7 May 1985	83	104
4 June 1985	128	142
2 July 1985	324	203
30 July 1985	187	131
27 August 1985	187	223
24 September 1985	214	206
22 October 1985	201	155
19 November 1985	180	182
17 December 1985	232	220
14 January 1986	245	273
11 February 1986	167	180
11 March 1986	198	257
8 April 1986	217	212
6 May 1986	172	116
3 June 1986	189	134
1 July 1986	344	275
29 July 1986	232	164
26 August 1986	307	174
23 September 1986	267	151
21 October 1986	141	110
18 November 1986	78	106
16 December 1986	86	102
13 January 1987	127	160
10 February 1987	138	184
10 March 1987	119	255
7 April 1987	157	168
5 May 1987	157	133
2 June 1987	113	153
30 June 1987	184	226
28 July 1987	276	141
25 August 1987	213	122
22 September 1987	270	145
20 October 1987	192	121
17 November 1987	92	105
15 December 1987	113	120
12 January 1988	165	122

There are no figures held prior to May 1982.

NHS (Ancillary Services)

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the expenditure on ancillary services in the National Health Service in each year since 1983, at constant 1983 prices.

Mrs. Currie: Information derived from the annual accounts of health authorities in England is shown in the table,

The savings which authorities have achieved largely reflects the success of the Department's policy requiring them to subject their arrangements for catering, domestic/cleaning and laundry services to competitive tendering procedures.

Hospital and Community Health Services[1]—Expenditure on Ancillary Services

	Per annual accounts £ million	At 1983-84 prices £ million
1983-84	1,151	1,151
1984-85	1,143	1,094
1985-86	1,142	1,032
1986-87	1,133	992

[1] Includes ambulance, blood transfusion and other services.

Source: Annual accounts of regional and district health authorities and those of the special health authorities for the London postgraduate teaching hospitals.

Notes:

1. Expenditure on ancillary services lacks a precise definition but has been taken as total current expenditure on catering, domestic/cleaning, portering, laundry, linen and non-ambulance transport services.

2. The figures have been expressed at 1983-84 prices by the use of the Gross Domestic Product deflator.

Radiotherapy Unit, Southend

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many letters he has now received from the general public about the proposal by the North East

Thames regional health authority to close the radiotherapy unit at Southend general hospital; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: We have received tens of thousands of representations from members of the public about the proposals. The matter has now come to the Secretary of State for a final decision which will be made shortly.

National Health Service Staff (Pay)

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if (a) medical laboratory technicians, (b) physiotherapists, (c) occupational therapists, (d) speech therapists, (e) medical physicists, (f) radiographers and (g) radiologists have received pay rises equal to the rise in the retail prices index in each year since 1983.

Mr. Newton: The percentage pay settlements for these groups in the National Health Service from 1983-84 to 1986-87 (1 August to 31 July) together with the annual rise in the retail prices index (July to July) are set out in the table.

Pay round year	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
(a) medical laboratory scientific officers	4·5	4·7	6·0	5·0
(b) Physiotherapists	7·8	[1]12·1	8·2	9·1
(c) occupational therapists	7·8	[1]12·1	8·2	9·1
(d) speech therapists	4·5	4·7	6·0	[2]—
(e) medical physics technicians	4·5	4·7	6·0	5·0
(f) radiographers	7·8	[1]12·1	8·2	9·1
(g) radiologists	6·9	6·3	7·6	8·25
Retail Prices Index annual movement July to July	4·5	6·9	2·4	4·4

[1] Staged award, final part paid with effect from 1.2.86
[2] Settlement provided £450 lump sum and introduced revised grading definitions from 1 January 1988 (average increase estimated as approximately 9·0 per cent.)

Birmingham Children's Hospital

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has any plans to increase funds to provide for the specialist and standard nursing levels which would be required to reduce the waiting list for heart operations at Birmingham children's hospital; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: The recent problems at the Birmingham children's hospital are primarily the result of a shortage of trained nurses. The chairman of the West Midlands regional health authority has recently announced six areas of action intended to ensure that in future children do not wait for long periods for cardiac surgery. A number of measures are already being taken to improve the recruitment and retention of trained nurses including the proposal for a new paediatric intensive care course in Birmingham later this year.

NHS (Private Patients)

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if decisions have been taken on the central reference lists of model charges for National Health Service private patients for the year from 1 April.

Mr. Newton: As from 1 April 1987, health authorities have had the function of determining the charges they will apply to their private patient facilities. Each authority must set its charges annually from 1 April each year. They will do so either by setting their own charges to recover costs or by adopting a centrally calculated list of model charges.

The central reference lists of model charges for private in-patients and private out-patients for the year from 1 April are given in the tables.

For private in-patients, the model charges for 1988-89 are on average 6·3 per cent. higher than those for 1987-88. The model charges are inclusive daily amounts based on the cost of providing accommodation and services for all patients. The figures take account of increased costs (including capital depreciation) and as last year also reflect the fact that private patients have shorter lengths of stay than NHS patients. The figures also take account of the fact that a number of authorities have set their own in-patient charges; where this has happened the hospitals concerned have been removed from the model list calculations. As a result, charges in one category have gone down, and model charges are no longer needed for another category.

For private out-patients, the model charges for 1988-89 are on average 6·5 per cent. higher than for 1987-88. Charges for amenity beds are unchanged.

All private resident charges 1988-89

Charge class	Not separate arrangements						Separate arrangements
	Single rooms			Shared accommodation			Single rooms			Shared accommodation
	1987-88	1988-89	Per cent. increase	1987-88	1988-89	Per cent. increase	1987-88	1988-89	Per cent. increase	1987-88	1988-89	Per cent. increase
Long stay (A)	83	93	12·0	75	84	12·0	78	87	11·5	71	79	11·3
Psychiatric (B)	70	85	21·4	64	77	20·3	66	80	21·2	60	73	21·7
Mainly acute (C1)	138	142	2·9	125	129	3·2	130	134	3·1	118	122	3·4
Acute (C2)	157	169	7·6	142	154	8·5	148	160	8·1	134	145	8·2
London Teaching (D)	219	226	3·2	199	206	3·5	206	214	3·9	187	194	3·7
Provincial Teaching (E)	174	182	4·6	158	166	5·1	164	172	4·9	149	156	4·7
London PG SHAs (F)	238	197	−17·2	217	179	−17·5	225	186	−17·3	204	169	−17·2
Sick children and National Heart and Chest (G)	335	n/a	n/a	305	n/a	n/a	316	n/a	n/a	287	n/a	n/a

Average (unweighted) per cent. increase: 5·9.
Average weighted per cent. increase: 6·3.

Private non-resident charges 1988-89

Item of Service	Class A to E 1987-88	Class A to E 1988-89	Class A to E Percentage change	Class F + G 1987-88	Class F + G 1988-89	Class F + G Percentage change
1. Consultation	6·50	7·00	+7·7	12·00	13·00	+8·3
2. (i) Day cases	26·50	28·50	+7·5	27·50	29·50	+7·3
(ii) Day patients	31·00	34·00	+9·7	32·00	35·00	+9·4
3. Pathology	7·00	7·50	+7·1	13·50	15·00	+11·1
4. Radiography
(i) Per unit value	0·78	n.a.	n.a.	1·00	n.a.	n.a.
(ii) Minimum charge	12·50	13·50	+8·0	16·00	18·50	+15·6
(iii) CT scanning	96·00	96·00	no change	115·00	115·00	no change
5. Radiotherapy	18·00	18·00	no change	44·50	44·50	no change
6. Physiotherapy	5·00	5·50	+10·0	9·00	11·50	+27·8
7. Occupational Therapy	7·00	8·50	+21·4	10·00	10·00	no change
8. Other diagnostic procedures
(i) Audiometry	5·00	5·00	no change	5·00	5·00	no change
(ii) ECG	9·00	9·50	+5·6	16·50	17·50	+6·1
(iii) EEG	37·00	38·50	+4·1	72·50	83·50	+15·2
(iv) EMG	23·00	24·00	+4·3	44·50	50·50	+13·5
9. Use of Operating theatres
(i) Less than 10 minutes	22·00	22·50	+2·3	27·00	28·00	+3·7
(ii) 10-30 minutes	42·50	44·00	+3·5	54·00	56·00	+3·7
(iii) More than 30 minutes	64·50	67·00	+3·9	81·00	84·00	+3·7

AIDS

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will indicate, for the current financial year and for the past two financial years, the funds devoted by the Government specifically to respond to the AIDS crisis, broken down into funds spent on (a) public education, (b) health care and treatment, (c) provision of drugs, (d) research and (e) other actions.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 26 October 1987]: It is not possible to give a comprehensive three-year breakdown of funding devoted to all aspects of the Government's response to the challenge posed by HIV infection and AIDS. Much of the expenditure on care and treatment of people with HIV and AIDS, and the provision of drugs, comes from health authorities' and boards' general allocations and is not identifiable separately. This is also the case with the Ministry of Defence's Defence Medical Services where any expenditure on AIDS is subsumed within their overall allocation.

The table sets out the money expended for the United Kingdom (figures rounded to the nearest £000) over and above the resources devoted to AIDS services by health authorities and boards from their general allocations. The figures must be read in conjunction with the notes.

£'000s

	1985-86	1986-87	[1] [2] 1987-88
(a) Public education[3]	548	7,303	12,578
(b) Health care and treatment[4]	1,169	3,189	21,556
(c) Provision of drugs	—	—	[5] 1,600
(d) Research	470	1,050	9,010
(e) Other[6]	1,148	2,372	16,300

[1] 1987-88 figures include estimates based on likely expenditure at end of 1987-88 financial year.
[2] Excludes £125,000 of the Welsh Health Promotion Authority's budget, to support the work of the Welsh AIDS Campaign.
[3] Excludes educational material aimed at specific groups, included under (e) Other.
[4] Amounts shown are specific extra allocations made to health authorities as a contribution towards these costs. Other care and treatment costs are met from health authorities' general allocations, and are not separately identifiable.
[5] Central allocation to health authorities for Retrovir (AZT). Health authorities' and boards' expenditure on drugs otherwise met from other allocations and not separately identifiable.
[6] For example: overseas aid, funding of voluntary organisations, advice and guidance to specific groups (such as schools and the education service, employers and the police), and the Public Health Laboratory Service AIDS programme.

Single Payments (North-East)

Mr. Blair: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many supplementary benefit single payments were made, and what was the cost thereof, for 1983-84, 1984-85, 1985-86, 1986-87 and the latest figures for 1987-88, for (a) Cleveland, (b) Durham, (c) Northumbria and (d) Tyne and Wear;

Mr. Portillo [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The information requested is given in the table.

The Department has 28 offices within the four areas mentioned in the question. However, the boundaries of the local offices and those of the county/administrative district are not conterminous.

Number and cost of single payments made by DHSS local offices in (a) Cleveland, (b) Durham, (c) Northumberland and (d) Tyne and Wear

(a) Cleveland
This area includes the offices of Eston, Hartlepool, Middlesbrough, Redcar and Stockton

Year	Number of awards	Cost £
April 1983 to April 1984	46,244	4,114,983
April 1984 to April 1985	96,503	5,678,783
April 1985 to April 1986	111,615	7,901,695
April 1986 to April 1987	93,332	6,585,497
April 1987 to 12 January 1988[1]	40,596	2,615,608

(b) Durham

This area includes the offices of Bishop Auckland, Chester-le-Street, Darlington, Durham, Peterlee, Seaham and Stanley

Year	Number of awards	Cost £
April 1983 to April 1984	28,394	1,621,120
April 1984 to April 1985	48,963	2,529,882
April 1985 to April 1986	69,501	3,589,559
April 1986 to April 1987	69,720	3,217,527
April 1987 to 12 January 1988[1]	31,449	2,149,397

(c) Northumberland

This area includes the offices of Ashington, Berwick, Blyth and Hexham

Year	Number of awards	Cost £
April 1983 to April 1984	7,458	487,381
April 1984 to April 1985	12,496	785,649
April 1985 to April 1986	16,590	1,146,094
April 1986 to April 1987	14,121	1,021,046
April 1987 to 12 January 1988[1]	8,599	578,295

(d) Tyne and Wear

This area includes the offices of Gateshead, Houghton le Spring, Jarrow, Newcastle on Tyne (St. James'), Newcastle on Tyne (East), Newcastle on Tyne (West), North Shields, South Shields, Sunderland (North) and Sunderland (South)

Year	Number of awards	Cost £
April 1983 to April 1984	88,185	5,840,421
April 1984 to April 1985	154,735	9,156,968
April 1985 to April 1986	196,630	13,101,212
April 1986 to April 1987	162,021	11,646,645
April 1987 to 12 January 1988[1]	76,698	5,339,385

[1] The figures for April 1987 to 12 January 1988 are provisional and subject to amendment.

Mr. Blair: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many supplementary benefit single payments were made, and what was the cost thereof, for 1983-84, 1984-85, 1985-86, 1986-87 and the latest figures for 1987-88 for his Department's local offices at (a) Darlington, (b) Bishop Auckland and (c) Peterlee.

Mr. Portillo [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The information requested is given in the table.

Number and Cost of Single Payments Made by DHSS Local Offices at (a) Darlington, (b) Bishop Auckland and (c) Peterlee

(a) Darlington

Year	Number of Awards	Cost £
April 1983 to April 1984	6,197	258,450
April 1984 to April 1985	10,513	611,790
April 1985 to April 1986	15,944	790,037
April 1986 to April 1987	14,995	791,343
April 1987 to 12 January 1988[1]	8,088	552,056

(b) Bishop Auckland

Year	Number of Awards	Cost £
April 1983 to April 1984	6,642	378,301
April 1984 to April 1985	11,625	691,649
April 1985 to April 1986	16,557	1,212,728
April 1986 to April 1987	13,080	917,386
April 1987 to 12 January 1988[1]	5,921	436,251

(c) Peterlee

Year	Number of Awards	Cost £
April 1983 to April 1984	3,091	221,976
April 1984 to April 1985	5,979	436,178
April 1985 to April 1986	6,248	433,083
April 1986 to April 1987	5,752	417,003
April 1987 to 12 January 1988[1]	2,833	197,736

[1] The figures for April 1987 to 12 January 1988 are provisional and subject to amendment.

Ambulance Services

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services in what circumstances an individual ambulance authority raises charges from another authority for mutual assistance or services; and whether the financing of such mutual services is balanced.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 11 February 1988]: It is for the regional health authority to agree the circumstances in which such charges should be raised. Where the boundaries of an area served by a particular ambulance authority are not coterminous with regional health authority boundaries, an appropriate adjustment is made to the resource allocation targets of the health authorities concerned.

National Health Service Beds

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give the total number of National Health Service beds and the number of acute beds per head of population.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 11 February 1988]: The requested information is given in the table.

Average daily number of available beds in the National Health Service (England) 1986

	Number
Total beds	315,714
Total acute beds	131,332
Total beds per 1,000 population	6·7
Total acute beds per 1,000 population	2·8

Figures for Scotland and Wales are a matter for my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland, and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Benefits

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people were receiving supplementary benefit in 1983-84, 1984-85, 1985-86 and 1986-87 and the latest figures for 1987-88 in (a) Scotland (b) Strathclyde and (c) Greenock and Port Glasgow.

Mr. Portillo [holding answer 12 February 1988]: The table sets out the information requested. The Strathclyde area is served by 31 local offices, including Greenock and Port Glasgow, although the boundaries are not coterminous.

Region/ local office	Number of supplementary benefit claimants
	2 August 1983	31 July 1984	31 July 1985	13 August 1986	29 July 1987
Scotland	469,871	507,785	531,176	545,621	563,047
Strathclyde	266,818	290,618	305,744	313,911	323,033
Greenock	9,936	10,740	11,101	11,868	12,672
Port Glasgow	4,235	4,723	5,006	5,376	5,275

Source: 100 per cent. count of cases in action.

Private Patients

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give for 1985, 1986 and 1987 (a) the number of pay beds, (b) the number of discharges and deaths of private patients, (c) the average number of pay beds occupied by private patients daily and (d) the percentage occupancy for each district health authority and special health authority.

Mrs. Currie [pursuant to her reply, 1 February 1988]: The information that is available has now been placed in the Library.

Health Statistics

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list by district health authority the number of people on waiting lists for urgent and non-urgent operations for December of each year since 1982.

Mr. Newton [pursuant to his reply, 2 February 1988]: I regret I cannot provide the hon. Member with all the information he seeks. The table gives the figures for March 1986 and March 1987 as the December figures do not separately identify urgent and non-urgent cases. Figures for earlier years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In-patient waiting list for surgical specialties, 31 March 1986 and 31 March 1987

	1986		1987
	Urgent cases	Non-urgent cases	Urgent cases	Non-urgent cases
Northern RHA
Hartlepool	40	1,336	36	1,625
North Tees	0	796	0	922
South Tees	171	5,923	134	5,330
East Cumbria	0	3,003	0	3,769
South Cumbria	14	1,321	0	1,191
West Cumbria	33	1,316	39	1,357
Darlington	5	2,280	5	2,392
Durham	22	741	39	997
North West Durham	4	660	0	683
South West Durham	0	446	0	903
Northumberland	142	1,558	37	1,522
Gateshead	28	1,053	43	1,277
Newcastle	997	7,851	1,069	7,580
North Tyneside	21	1,186	11	1,812
South Tyneside	0	686	0	712
Sunderland	167	3,643	152	3,485
Yorkshire RHA
Hull	0	6,615	0	6,908
East Yorkshire	0	1,101	0	1,410
Grimsby	8	1,237	27	1,373
Scunthorpe	0	2,850	0	2,832
Northallerton	0	419	0	679
York	9	2,856	11	2,522
Scarborough	43	1,541	83	1,621
Harrogate	35	1,604	36	1,827
Bradford	181	6,102	146	6,925
Airedale	101	2,537	75	1,990
Wharfedale	0	1,000	0	1,000
Calderdale	1	985	5	991
Huddersfield	0	2,097	0	2,175
Dewsbury	4	652	2	427
Leeds Western	555	3,650	343	3,989
Leeds Eastern	595	4,939	445	5,523
Wakefield	39	2,122	47	2,131
Pontefract	588	1,671	311	1,788
Trent RHA
North Derbyshire	187	2,405	n.a.	†2,489
South Derbyshire	168	6,281	n.a.	4,937
Leicestershire	787	6,788	n.a.	7,962
North Lincolnshire	111	3,033	n.a.	2,782
South Lincolnshire	61	3,870	n.a.	4,166
Bassetlaw	26	785	n.a.	535
Central Nottinghamshire	76	5,292	n.a.	4,936
Nottingham	160	7,994	n.a.	6,594
Barnsley	90	2,350	n.a.	2,384
Doncaster	401	4,172	n.a.	4,625
Rotherham	113	4,060	n.a.	4,435
Sheffield	1,112	10,300	n.a.	10,146
East Anglia RHA
Cambridge	585	4,402	605	4,087
Peterborough	40	3,199	300	4,073
West Suffolk	61	2,549	73	2,648
East Suffolk	112	2,884	114	3,286
Norwich	1,264	5,586	1,171	5,182
Great Yarmouth and Waveney	358	3,040	290	2,893
West Norfolk and Wisbech	120	1,886	6	2,094
Huntingdon	14	727	63	729
North West Thames RHA
North Bedfordshire	0	2,251	0	2,419
South Bedfordshire	0	2,107	5	2,366
North Hertfordshire	1	2,873	61	3,194
East Hertfordshire	8	1,296	9	1,307
North West Hertfordshire	0	1,821	0	1,501
South West Hertfordshire	160	1,735	105	1,970
Barnet	464	3,568	266	3,152
Harrow	8	951	7	941
Hillingdon	624	6,838	769	7,055
Hounslow and Spelthorne	498	4,652	330	5,513
Ealing	276	1,830	142	1,263
Brent	15	1,957	36	1,808
Paddington and North Kensington	95	2,807	109	3,183
Riverside	752	4,696	827	4,519
North East Thames RHA
Basildon and Thurrock	881	5,100	828	5,640
Mid Essex	23	3,535	210	4,430
North East Essex	399	3,883	289	2,977
West Essex	60	4,787	190	4,406
Southend	584	2,560	711	3,046
Barking, Havering and Brentwood	183	6,232	143	6,208
Hampstead	40	1,939	n.a.	n.a.
Bloomsbury	569	13,074	432	12,089
Islington	314	2,092	464	2,338
City and Hackney	1,839	3,766	2,095	4,583
Newham	60	1,051	79	1,488
Tower Hamlets	1,473	5,604	1,518	5,855

	1986		1987
	Urgent cases	Non-urgent cases	Urgent cases	Non-urgent cases
Enfield	32	2,782	29	2,792
Haringey	160	1,065	156	848
Redbridge	47	1,553	69	2,266
Waltham Forest	190	4,151	224	4,279
South East Thames RHA
Brighton	241	3,627	135	3,839
Eastbourne	43	2,638	118	3,177
Hastings	109	2,419	151	2,731
South East Kent	19	2,620	3	2,538
Canterbury and Thanet	364	4,213	364	4,460
Dartford and Gravesham	23	4,388	46	4,793
Maidstone	91	2,056	113	2,340
Medway	194	1,893	364	2,974
Tunbridge Wells	395	4,469	289	4,363
Bexley	0	1,493	0	1,842
Greenwich	0	2,486	32	2,516
Bromley	6	1,863	74	2,130
West Lambeth	641	5,109	1,554	6,054
Camberwell	129	2,487	212	2,493
Lewisham and North Southwark	686	6,914	840	7,918
South West Thames RHA
North West Surrey	76	2,987	25	2,890
West Surrey and North East Hants	1,425	3,262	2,329	3,375
South West Surrey	101	3,083	83	3,092
Mid Surrey	131	2,162	66	2,094
East Surrey	141	1,483	156	2,053
Chichester	146	2,249	73	2,368
Mid Downs	98	2,064	113	2,097
Worthing	364	3,068	250	2,785
Croydon	179	2,087	119	2,312
Kingston and Esher	246	2,295	176	2,213
Richmond, Twickenham and Roehdington	289	3,042	145	2,346
Wandsworth	429	1,720	279	2,248
Merton and Sutton	286	2,676	149	2,741
Wessex RHA
East Dorset	955	4,159	1,098	4,183
West Dorset	240	1,786	283	1,490
Portsmouth and South East Hampshire	294	5,847	315	7,244
Southampton and South West Hampshire	1,046	6,977	1,339	6,543
Winchester	109	2,215	139	2,710
Basingstoke and North Hampshire	134	3,446	66	2,343
Salisbury	286	4,173	177	4,506
Swindon	54	2,975	91	3,057
Bath	430	4,907	507	4,855
Isle of Wight	27	1,817	7	1,331
Oxford RHA
East Berkshire	528	6,815	509	7,233
West Berkshire	83	4,469	81	3,859
Aylesbury Vale	68	3,324	18	3,168
Wycombe	7	1,864	0	1,311
Milton Keynes	41	2,080	69	2,545
Kettering	21	2,757	70	3,474
Northampton	703	4,373	613	3,452
Oxfordshire	79	5,426	40	5,639
South Western RHA
Bristol and Weston	471	7,328	486	7,539
Frenchay	81	3,376	77	3,362
Southmead	48	2,090	62	1,309
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	254	4,363	188	4,174
Exeter	101	4,513	143	4,501
North Devon	1	1,351	15	1,678
Plymouth	286	5,041	332	5,442
Torbay	89	1,679	41	1,561
Cheltenham	6	2,180	4	2,153
Gloucester	321	4,003	300	3,838
Somerset	503	4,312	896	4,581
West Midlands RHA
Bromsgrove and Redditch	41	2,007	44	1,940
Herefordshire	98	2,536	56	2,069
Kidderminster and District	13	1,203	19	1,566
Worcester and District	33	3,333	50	3,407
Shropshire	293	7,202	401	8,341
Mid Staffordshire	53	1,625	88	1,520
North Staffordshire	943	7,912	1,057	7,826
South East Staffordshire	14	2,346	38	2,628
Rugby	0	528	0	659
North Warwickshire	39	1,786	66	2,507
South Warwickshire	16	3,192	13	2,512
Central Birmingham	755	4,178	736	4,315
East Birmingham	231	3,052	282	2,460
North Birmingham	61	2,296	65	1,235
South Birmingham	788	6,503	991	6,668
West Birmingham	75	3,294	69	4,520
Coventry	664	5,309	491	4,220
Dudley	161	4,054	138	3,746
Sandwell	0	1,288	0	1,728
Solihull	0	1,967	74	1,504
Walsall	9	2,847	26	2,716
Wolverhampton	133	3,901	174	4,585
Mersey RHA
Chester	51	1,736	0	2,736
Crewe	479	4,198	251	3,258
Halton	4	387	0	123
Macclesfield	158	1,001	61	691
Warrington	0	2,626	0	1,862
Liverpool	571	7,086	355	6,874
St. Helens and Knowsley	8	3,846	33	4,016
Southport and Formby	0	1,103	0	1,331
South Sefton	37	3,338	58	3,177
Wirral	195	2,937	136	3,416
North Western RHA
Lancaster	118	1,957	19	2,269
Blackpool, Wyre and Fylde	442	3,625	511	3,816
Preston	69	4,581	29	4,462
Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley	8	2,915	9	2,387
Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale	276	2,191	255	1,812
West Lancashire	28	1,892	16	2,431
Chorley and South Ribble	0	764	0	770
Bolton	40	2,788	119	3,013
Bury	6	729	0	731
North Manchester	168	2,454	82	2,331
Central Manchester	337	4,643	291	6,870
South Manchester	682	4,933	439	5,529
Oldham	321	4,058	447	4,475
Rochdale	122	2,911	118	2,815
Salford	120	3,708	219	4,517
Stockport	403	3,648	290	3,794
Tameside and Glossop	100	1,533	60	1,526
Trafford	25	1,476	5	1,528
Wigan	74	4,281	40	4,410

[1] Total cases in 1987 for Trent RHA districts.

ENERGY

Electricity Prices

4. Mr. Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement on his policy towards competitive electricity pricing in the light of the results of the survey on international electricity pricing organised by National Utility Services, a copy of which has been sent to him.

Mr. Michael Spicer: United Kingdom domestic electricity prices are among the lowest in Europe and will continue to be among the lowest after the increase in April. United Kingdom electricity prices will continue to compare favourably with world electricity prices.

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what representations he has received from pottery, brick and tile manufacturers and other concerned industrialists about the effect of proposed electricity price increases on their industry; what information he has of the effect on industries highly dependent on energy; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I have received a small number of representations from pottery, brick and tile manufacturers. The increase in electricity tariffs this April is likely to represent only about one quarter of 1 per cent. of their gross output. United Kingdom electricity tariffs for industry will remain highly competitive with those overseas even after April, and intensive users will have the continued benefit of contracted load management schemes and the qualifying industrial consumers' scheme (QUICS).

Pit Closures

12. Mr. Loftheuse: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy how many pit closures the chairman of British Coal has advised him will be likely to take place in the current year.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Pit closures are the responsibility of British Coal management under a procedure agreed with the unions.

Fast Breeder Reactors

14. Mr. Alan W. Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what is his latest assessment of progress on the fast breeder reactor research programme.

Mr. Parkinson: Significant design improvements have been achieved in recent years making use of the results of the R and D programme. Effort is now being concentrated on a common European design.

Electricity Industry

15. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what recent discussions he has had with the chairman of the Central Electricity Generating Board and area electricity boards concerning privatisation of the electricity supply industry.

Mr. Parkinson: I met the chairman of the area boards as a group last month and I meet Lord Marshall, chairman of the CEGB, regularly to discuss privatisation of the electricity supply industry.

19. Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement on the implications of the Government's policy of privatisation of the electricity generation industry for the nuclear component of that industry.

Mr. Parkinson: Proposals for the privatisation of the electricity supply industry are still under consideration. The Government will announce their plans for the industry, including the implications for nuclear generation, in due course.

22. Mr. Dykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a further statement on his plans for the privatisation of electricity.

32. Dr. Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a further statement on the progress of Government plans to privatise the electricity industry.

Mr. Parkinson: Proposals for privatisation are still under consideration and no final decisions have been taken. The Government will announce their plans for the electricity supply industry in due course.

28. Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what information he has as to the cost to the taxpayer of the present advertising campaign by the electricity supply industry for electricity; and if he will seek to limit expenditure on such advertising during the approach to privatisation.

Mr. Parkinson: This is a matter for the industry; I have asked the chairman of the Electricity Council to write to the hon. Member.

31. Mr. Rost: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he expects to publish his White Paper on electricity privatisation.

Mr. Parkinson: The Government are still considering whether to publish a White Paper.

33. Mr. Prescott: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he last met the Central Electricity Generating Board chairman; and what decision he has reached on the board's advice on the privatisation of the electricity supply industry.

Mr. Parkinson: I meet Lord Marshall, chairman of the Central Electricity Generating Board, regularly to discuss privatisation of the electricity supply industry. No final decisions have been taken on the privatisation of the industry.

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when and in what form he now expects to announce his proposals for the privatisation of the electricity industry.

Mr. Haynes: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he expects to announce his plans for electricity privatisation, in the light of his recent public statement.

Mr. Parkinson: The Government will announce their plans for privatisation of the electricity supply industry in due course.

British Coal

16. Mr. Janner: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he last met the chairman of British Coal; and what matters were discussed.

37. Mr. Hardy: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he last met the chairman of British Coal; and what matters were discussed.

Mr. Parkinson: I meet the chairman of British Coal at regular intervals to discuss all aspects of the coal industry.

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what information he has as to how the £25 million investment plan recently announced for the north-east area for British Coal will be apportioned as between (a) Murton Howthorn, (b) Vane Tempest-Seaham, (c) Easington, (d) Dawdon, (e) Wearnmouth and (f) Westho.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The allocation of capital to individual collieries is a management matter for British Coal and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy whether he intends to privatise British Coal engineering workshops, transport, and canteen services.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Decisions on the appropriate balance between in-house and bought-in services are management matters for the British Coal Corporation.

British Nuclear Fuels Ltd.

17. Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he next expects to meet the chairman of British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. to discuss the commercial future of Sellafield.

Mr. Michael Spicer: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and I meet the chairman of British Nuclear Fuels from time to time.

Sir Phillip Jones

18. Mr. Allen McKay: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement on the new terms of reference of Sir Philip Jones on his reappointment as chairman of the Electricity Council.

Mr. Parkinson: I have nothing to add to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Stockton, South (Mr. Devlin) on 21 January at columns 858-59.

Coal-fired Power Stations

20. Mr. Wyn Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he has any plans to meet the chairman of the Central Electricity Generating Board in the near future to discuss plans for coal-fired power stations.

Mr. Parkinson: I meet the chairman of the CEGB regularly and discuss a wide range of subjects of mutual interest. The hon. Member will be aware that I received applications from the CEGB for consent to construct two new coal-fired power stations at West Burton and Fawley earlier this month.

Hinkley Point

21. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate is expected to report on the Central Electricity Generating Board proposal to build a pressurised water reactor at Hinkley Point.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate assessed generic safety features of the pressurised water reactor as part of its consideration of the Central Electricity Generating Board safety case for Sizewell B. Its views were reported in depth at the Sizewell inquiry.

The Health and Safety Executive informs me that the Central Electricity Generating Board is currently submitting to the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate its detailed safety case for Hinkley Point C. It expects to be in a position to make a statement on the licensability of the station in June.

Electricity Generation

23. Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what is his current estimate of the proportion of electricity generation he expects to come from nuclear power by 1990.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I am advised that Central Electricity Generating Board nuclear plants are expected to contribute 18·4 per cent. (46·9 TWh) of total electricity generation in England and Wales in the financial year 1990-91.

Oil Fabrication Industry

24. Mr. Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a further statement on the level of activity in the United Kingdom oil fabrication industry.

Mr. Peter Morrison: The contract tonnages awarded to United Kingdom construction yards from current offshore developments are around 136,000 tonnes.

Offshore Fabrication Industry

35. Mr. Devlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he next expects to meet representatives of the United Kingdom offshore oil industries to discuss the health of the offshore fabrication industry.

Mr. Peter Morrison: As chairman of the Offshore Industry Liaison Committee (OILCO) which represents the United Kingdom offshore supplies industry, I expect to meet committee members this summer to discuss the health of the offshore fabrication industry. Apart from that meeting, I see representatives of all sides of the offshore industries regularly.

Nuclear Power Stations

25. Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement on the current series of tests at nuclear power stations.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The CEGB has decided to postpone the natural circulation test scheduled for 12 February at Trawsfynydd nuclear power station. Any new proposal for a test is a matter for the board, subject to the agreement of the Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate.

27. Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he was consulted by the Central Electricity Generating Board about the specific selection of locations for the cooling tests to be performed at Trawsfynydd and Wylfa nuclear power stations; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a operational matter for the CEGB. No test can go ahead unless the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate is satisfied that it is safe.

Mr. Frank Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will invite a safety team from the International Energy operations safety review team to evaluate the safety of any planned tests or experiments at Trawsfynydd nuclear plant or any other nuclear establishment before they are undertaken.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Dr. Thomas) on 11 February 1988 at column 347.

Staff Dispersal

26. Mr. Cran: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy how many divisions within his Department have been relocated out of London since 1979; what plans he has for further such relocation; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Parkinson: None. I have no plans for any such relocation.

Coal Industry (New Pits)

31. Mr. Eadie: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what criteria he uses in considering applications from British Coal relating to proposed new pit sinkings.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Investment decisions in respect of new mines, like other capital expenditure, are for the British Coal Corporation. Under long-standing arrangements it consults my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State as to the public interest before reaching its decision.

The criteria to be applied by nationalised industries to capital expenditure are set out in Cmnd. 7131.

34. Mr. Patchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he next intends to meet representatives of the National Union of Mineworkers to discuss the future of British Coal.

Mr. Parkinson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Midlothian (Mr. Eadie) on 11 February at column 346.

CEGB Chaplains

36. Mr. Oppenheim: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he next plans to meet the Central Electricity Generating Board chaplains.

Mr. Michael Spicer: My right hon. Friend and I have no such plans.

Colliery Waste Disposal

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) what information he has on the cost per colliery of waste disposal at (a) Murton-Hawthorn, (b) Vane Tempest-Seaham, (c) Dawdon and (d) Easington for the last five years;

(2) what information he has on the cost per tonne of coal, and the cost per colliery for subsidence, at the following collieries for the last five years: (a) Murton-Hawthorn, (b) Easington, (c) Vane Tempest-Seaham and (d) Dawdon.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a matter for the British Coal Corporation. I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Colliery Linkings

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) if he has received an application from British Coal for reimbursement of the cost of linking Murton, Hawthorn colliery to Seaham, Vane Tempest colliery;

(2) if he has received an application from British Coal for reimbursement of the cost of linking Dawdon and Easington collieries through underground drifting for the purposes of winning and transporting coal.

Mr. Michael Spicer: British Coal does not submit claims for reimbursement of any capital costs. Such costs form part of the corporation's overall expenditure limit which is discussed and agreed with the corporation in the annual investment and financing review.

Mining Machinery

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what has been the expenditure of British Coal in purchasing mining machinery made in Great Britain during the last five years.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The purchase of mining machinery is a management matter for British Coal, and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

British Coal, Nottinghamshire

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) if he has any plans to privatise the road transport section operations of British Coal in Nottinghamshire; and if he will make a statement;

(2) if he has any plans to privatise the workshops, including national workshops of British Coal's operation in Nottinghamshire; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Decisions on the appropriate balance between in-house and bought-in services are management matters for the British Coal Corporation.

Nuclear Power Sites

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what steps he has taken to ensure that access to nuclear power station sites is afforded to fire officers in the execution of their duties; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I am advised that arrangements are in place at all nuclear power station sites to afford the fire services full access, should their presence be required to carry out fire-fighting or rescue duties.

Fawley A Power Station

Sir David Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what was the average output of electricity from the Fawley A oil-fired power station in the last year in relation to its designated capacity; and what was the anticipated output at the time when planning permission was given to the Central Electricity Generating Board under section 2 of the Electric Lighting Act 1909.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is an operating matter for the CEGB. I have asked the chairman to write to my hon. Friend.

Nuclear Energy Policy

Mr. Favell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what representations he has received from the Irish Government regarding nuclear energy policy.

Mr. Parkinson: Nuclear energy matters were discussed when I last met the Irish Minister for Energy in September 1987. We have since corresponded on nuclear issues of topical interest.

Industry (Energy Requirements)

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will make a statement about the current energy requirements of British industry.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The table gives the latest available figures for the energy requirements of British industry for each fuel, and all fuels combined.

Table 2
Supply and use of fuels

Million therms

	1985	1986	Per cent. change	1985 4th quarter	1986 1st quarter	1986 2nd quarter	1986 3rd quarter	1986 4th quarter	[1]1987 1st quarter	1987 2nd quarter	1987 3rd quarter	[6]Per cent. change
Final consumption by use[2]
Iron and steel industry
Coal	7	6	−14·3	3	3	2	1	2	2	1	1	—
Other solid fuel[3]	1,756	1,565	−10·9	412	447	348	332	439	464	464	404	+22·0
Other coal derived fuels[4]	286	283	−1·0	70	73	72	67	71	69	72	77	+14·9
Gas	484	453	−6·7	124	123	105	87	119	132	114	98	+13·1
Electricity	265	251	−5·3	66	68	65	55	63	68	67	60	+8·1
Petroleum	286	276	−3·5	65	68	66	75	87	70	64	50	−23·6
Total	3,063	2,834	−0·1	739	782	658	617	781	805	782	698	+13·1
Other industries[5]
Coal	1,862	2,075	+11·4	566	512	468	546	549	479	532	472	−13·6
Other solid fuel[3]	116	105	−9·5	27	27	24	27	27	13	11	22	−18·5
Other coal derived fuels[4]	25	20	−20·0	8	5	6	4	6	9	10	8	(+)
Gas[5]	5,462	4,946	−9·4	1,496	1,476	1,097	954	1,419	1,603	1,212	1,073	+12·5
Electricity	2,649	2,479	+1·2	618	657	613	579	630	660	605	596	+3·0
Petroleum	3,565	3,789	+6·3	865	1,156	929	822	882	1,036	726	685	−16·6
Total	13,470	13,414	−0·5	3,578	3,833	3,137	2,932	3,513	3,844	3,096	2,856	−2·6

[1] Provisional.
[2] Deliveries are used as a proxy for consumption, except for gas, electricity, and the iron and steel industry use of solid fuels.
[3] Other solid fuel—coke and other manufactured solid fuels.
[4] Other coal derived fuels—coke oven gas and creosote/pitch mixtures.
[5] Gas—natural gas (supplied direct), and town gas.
[6] The final column shows the per cent. change on the same quarter in the previous year.
[7] 'Industry'—broadly manufacturing plus construction.

Electricité De France

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what information was available to him about the profitability of Electricité De France when he made his most recent statement to the House about the alleged price advantage enjoyed by French electricity consumers.

Mr. Michael Spicer: According to the 1986 annual report of Electricité De France (EdF), EdF's profit in that year was FF. 1·3 billion. EdF's annual report for 1987 has not yet been published.

United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) what has been the direct gross funding of the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority by the Government since 1958 to 1987-88 by year, in both cash prices and 1986 prices;

(2) what has been the net funding received by the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority from the Government since 1958 to 1987-88 by year, after deducting income.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The following table gives the gross expenditure of the United Kingdom Energy Authority from 1958-59 to 1987-88. It also gives the expenditure by the Department of Energy (and its predecessors) with the UKAEA during that period.

	£ million (cash)		£ million (1986-87 prices)
	UKAEA Gross expenditure	Department of Energy Expenditure	UKAEA Gross expenditure	Department of Energy Expenditure
1958-59	106·2	95·6	880·9	793·0
1959-60	115·3	88·1	945·9	722·7
1960-61	112·2	87·5	902·4	703·7
1961-62	107·0	71·7	832·5	557·8
1962-63	101·0	60·8	762·1	458·8
1963-64	107·7	53·0	794·0	390·7
1964-65	119·6	36·1	844·0	254·8
1965-66	80·6	23·7	543·7	159·9
1966-67	75·7	26·7	488·6	172·3
1967-68	74·9	18·2	470·8	114·4

	£ million (cash)		£ million (1986-87 prices)
	UKAEA Gross expenditure	Department of Energy Expenditure	UKAEA Gross expenditure	Department of Energy Expenditure
1968-69	91·8	27·4	549·0	163·9
1969-70	90·6	20·2	515·5	114·9
1970-71	95·7	37·1	503·3	195·1
1971-72	96·3	44·3	463·4	213·2
1972-73	93·1	52·4	415·2	233·7
1973-74	91·0	47·5	378·8	197·7
1974-75	106·6	61·6	371·9	214·9
1975-76	152·5	93·4	423·4	259·3
1976-77	174·9	110·0	429·0	269·8
1977-78	186·1	100·1	400·8	215·6
1978-79	213·4	127·4	415·2	247·9
1979-80	251·2	145·5	418·2	242·2
1980-81	323·3	186·2	453·9	261·4
1981-82	355·7	205·4	454·9	262·7
1982-83	380·4	214·8	453·8	256·2
1983-84	404·6	203·8	461·4	232·4
1984-85	399·7	196·1	436·6	214·2
1985-86	424·0	189·6	436·8	195·3
1986-87	416·6	183·9	416·6	183·9
1987-88	445·3	172·3	427·1	165·3

Nuclear Fuel

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what assessment has been made by (a) his Department, (b) consultants to his Department and (c) research scientists at the Central Electricity Generating Board, British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. and United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority of the increase in neptunium-237 produced by recycling of uranium-236 from Magnox fuel for the production of advanced gas-cooled reactor nuclear fuel, compared with the use of natural uranium in advanced gas-cooled reactor fuel fabrication; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I am informed that assessments have been made of the use of recycled uranium rather than natural uranium in advanced gas-cooled reactor fuel. Resultant increases in concentration of neptunium-237 in the irradiated fuel are small and of no special significance.

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 16 February 1988

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Refreshments

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will list by bar and restaurant the non-alcoholic and low-alcoholic beverages which are available for sale in the House.

Mr. Wakeham: In addition to soft drinks and mineral waters, alcohol-free wines and alcohol-free and low-alcohol beers are available in all Refreshment Department outlets in the House.

WALES

Craft Industry

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he expects to publish the independent report he commissioned into the developmental and marketing needs of the Welsh craft industry.

Mr. Peter Walker: The report was published earlier today. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House. I shall be consulting widely on its proposals. Given the need to reduce the present uncertainties in the industry, I hope to be in a position to make early decisions.

Regional Aid

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how the operation of selective grants for industrial development will benefit areas without assisted area status.

Mr. Peter Walker: Regional selective assistance under section 7 of the Industrial Development Act 1982 is not available outside the assisted areas. Many measures administered by the development agencies and the Wales Tourist Board, most of them selective in nature, are available, however, to support industrial and commercial projects in the unassisted areas, where about 11 per cent. of the economically active population live and work.

These include Mid Wales Development grant, DRIVE, rural building conversion grants, the new business development grant administered by WDA and MWD, capital grants and assistance for joint marketing schemes from the Wales Tourist Board, subsidised and small rural loans, equity capital, business and technology-oriented advice, assistance under the Welsh food initiative, advance and bespoke factories and derelict land and environmental improvement grants.

In addition, depending on their precise location certain projects could also be eligible for assistance under the Department's urban programme and urban development grant schemes and the Welsh Development Agency's recently announced property development grant.

Speech Therapy Training Centre

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will now take steps to facilitate the establishment of a speech therapy training centre in North Wales.

Mr. Grist: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Alyn and Deeside (Mr. Jones) on 23 November 1987 at col. 12.

Consultant Community Health Physicians

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if any health authorities in Wales do not have a consultant community health physician.

Mr. Grist: At September 1986 all district health authorities in Wales had at least one consultant community health physician.

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, for each of the last three years, what was the maximum length of time that a patient confirmed as suffering from a cervical carcinoma had to wait before commencing in-patient treatment at (a) Singleton hospital, Swansea, and (b) Velindre hospital, Cardiff.

Mr. Grist [holding answer 28 January 1988]: The available information is shown in the following table. It relates to the length of time that patients were on the waiting list before commencing in-patient radiotherapy treatment. In cases where the patient received in-patient treatment on several occasions, the information relates to the first in-patient episode in the sequence.

Maximum Waiting Times (Days)

	1984	1985*	1986
Singleton Hospital	17	30	19
Velindre Hospital	21	25	28

Health Service (Clwyd)

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he is taking to improve the health service in Clwyd; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Grist [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Clwyd will benefit from the increased resources of £69·8 million which is being made available to the National Health Service in Wales in 1988-89. Net resources available to the National Health Service in Wales in 1988-89 in real terms will be 39 per cent. above what it was in 1978-79.

PRIME MINISTER

Teesside Development Corporation

Q41. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Prime Minister whether she will visit the offices of the Teesside development corporation.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

Wolston

Q43. Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Prime Minister if she has any plans to make an official visit to Wolston, near Rugby.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

EURATOM

Q49. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Prime Minister if, during her recent meeting with Chancellor Kohl, she discussed the implications of the Transnuklear nuclear wastes and nuclear materials alleged bribes and false labelling scandal with regard to the effectiveness of the EURATOM nuclear oversight and future public confidence in civil nuclear power.

The Prime Minister: No.

Newbattle Abbey College

Q61. Dr. Godman: To ask the Prime Minister if she wrote to the principal of Newbattle Abbey college prior to the announcement that funding would be withdrawn.

The Prime Minister: No.

Upper Barnsley

Q103. Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Prime Minister if she plans to make an official visit to Upper Barnsley.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

Advisory Council on Science and Technology

Q124. Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: To ask the Prime Minister whether she has any plans to chair the Advisory Council on Science and Technology.

The Prime Minister: I hope to chair a meeting of the Advisory Council on Science and Technology shortly.

Extortion (Terrorists)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Prime Minister what action she has taken since the terrorist practice of using extortion to obtain funds first became known in 1982; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: A number of important initiatives have been undertaken or are in train to deal with the serious problem represented by the extortion practised by terrorists in Northern Ireland. In 1982 the Royal Ulster Constabulary set up its anti-racketeering squad which, among other things, has investigated extortion and related offences. Its inquiries continue, as do a number of prosecutions, and the squad has very recently been strengthened and reorganised. The Northern Irish (Emergency Provisions) Act 1987 included provisions to prevent security firms extorting money under the guise of providing security services. Progress has also been made in co-ordinating Government activity to make extortion more difficult and further initiatives in this area are being considered.

President Waldheim (Wartime Record)

Mr. Rhodes James: To ask the Prime Minister whether she will instigate further inquiries into the fate of Sub-Lieutenant Allen Tuckey, Private Ray Jones, Captain Bluett, Captain Hamilton, Private Davies and Private Bennett, in the light of the report of the International Historians' Commission on the wartime record of President Kurt Waldheim; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: We are reviewing the results of investigations carried out in 1986 by the Ministry of Defence into the fate of captured British service men, including those mentioned by my hon. Friend, in the light of the report of the International Commission of Historians on the wartime record of President Waldheim. I would remind the House that we have taken the allegations concerning Dr. Waldheim very seriously, particularly those concerning British service men, and that our thorough investigation of British official records has found no evidence to substantiate the allegations. As we have said before, we remain ready to examine all new information.

Engagements

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 16 February.

Mr. James Cran: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 16 February.

Mr. Stern: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 16 February.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 16 February.

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Tuesday 16 February.

The Prime Minister: This morning I had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. In addition to my duties in the House I shall be having further meetings later today. This evening I hope to have an Audience of Her Majesty the Queen.

ENVIRONMENT

Local Authority Staff

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what has been the number of employees of the Cheshire county council and each district council in Cheshire in each of the last 10 years, broken down by functions.

Mr. Chope: Individual authority data have only been included in the Joint Manpower Watch since the end of 1979. The information relating to Cheshire county council, broken down by function, is not available centrally. Aggregate figures for that authority are as follows:

Cheshire County Council—June figures

	Full-time	Part-time	Total
1980	20,356	17,180	37,536
1981	19,760	15,857	35,617
1982	19,129	15,844	34,973
1983	18,917	15,036	33,953
1984	18,220	16,766	34,986
1985	18,072	17,051	35,123
1986	18,155	18,037	36,192
1987	18,307	19,757	38,064

Tables showing the numbers employed, broken down by function, for each of the districts within the county from June 1980 are being placed in the Library of the House.

Housing Associations

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received from district councils in Northumberland about his proposals for the reform of finance of housing associations; and what replies he has given.

Mrs. Roe: My right hon. Friend has received representations from Alnwick district council. I am sending the hon. Member a copy of the Department's reply.

Leicestershire (Job Selection)

Sir John Farr: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will take steps to end discrimination being practised by the Leicestershire county council in the selection procedure it adopts for job vacancies, in so far as this affects past or retired employees of the Crown.

Mr. Chope: Local authorities, as independent bodies responsible for their own recruitment policies, are free to employ whomever they wish provided that they have regard to relevant employment legislation. They have to account to their local electorates for their recruitment policies.

Urban Regeneration

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Mid-Staffordshire of 1 December 1987, Official Report, column 549, if he will indicate when he expects to complete his review on the progress of urban regeneration grants.

Mr. Trippier: Soon.

Listed Buildings

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what evidence he has as to whether his Department's code of guidance regarding the listing of buildings is being adhered to; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Roe: The code summarises the instructions given to field workers about their conduct towards the owners of the buildings they inspect. It was introduced to give more publicity to best practice. Since its publication in October 1986, over 38,000 buildings have been listed, but only about 80 complaints have been received about the conduct of field workers; of these, about 10 have been upheld on investigation.

Cheshire County Council

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what information he has as to which services Cheshire county council spends above the average; by how much; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: The comparative information has been presented in terms of net current expenditure per head of population in 1986-87.

Net current expenditure per head

Services	Cheshire County Council £	Average for all Shire County Councils £	Spending by Cheshire County Council in excess of the average for all Shire Counties £
Education	248	228	20
School meals and milk	11	8	3
Personal Social Services	45	41	4
Fire	13	12	1
Courts and probation	7	6	1
Town and Country Planning	3	2	1
Miscellaneous services[1]	7	6	1

[1] Including land drainage and flood protection, non-housing revenue account housing, employment, consumer protection and general administration.

Storm Damage

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if in view of the exceptionally wet weather, he will consider extending the time limit from 1 March to 31 March for local authorities to clear up the hurricane damage.

Mr. Ridley: On 8 December 1987, at column 99, I announced, inter alia, proposals to widen the total expenditure exclusion on storm-related revenue expenditure above a threshold amount. Total expenditure exclusions have the effect of relieving authorities from block grant loss. I have now consulted the local authority associations and the authorities concerned about these revised proposals and have considered their comments carefully.

A number of the responses also made representations about the scheme of financial assistance (the Bellwin scheme) to assist authorities with the costs of storm damage. After careful consideration of these representations I have decided to make no changes to the Bellwin scheme which was designed to provide assistance in meeting emergency expenditure in the immediate aftermath of the storm. For the purposes of the scheme, the date by which work of an emergency nature must be completed therefore remains 1 March 1988.

In the light of the representations on the total expenditure exclusions, I have decided to extend the exclusion for 1987-88 to cover all storm-related revenue expenditure above the threshold defined for the Bellwin rules, including revenue contributions to capital outlays, incurred by the end of March 1988. In addition, as proposed, I have decided to exclude for 1987-88 and 1988-89 all debt charges incurred in respect of capital expenditure on storm damage on 16 October up to the end of March 1989. Finally, I have also proposed that all debt charges on this capital expenditure which fall in 1989-90 should also be excluded: a decision on this proposal will be taken prior to the 1989-90 RSG settlement.

Members' Accommodation

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether the quality of furnishings and fittings in the new Members' accommodation in Bridge street will be of similar standard to those in the Department of Health and Social Security building in Richmond terrace; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: Members' accommodation in the new parliamentary building will be fitted out generally in accordance with the design brief published in the Select Committee on House of Commons (Services), Third Report, Session 1983-84, Appendix 1.1 (HC571). The quality will be comparable to the furniture in the Commons Court offices though taken from current standard ranges.

European Year of the Environment

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the achievements sponsored by Her Majesty's Government to date, in support of the European Year of the Environment; and if he will make a statement on the major initiatives known to his Department achieved by other European countries participant in the European Environment Year.

Mrs. Roe: My Department has provided over £750,000 of support to the United Kingdom Committee for the European Year of the Environment (EYE). This includes a grant scheme of £300,000 under which the Department has supported over 150 practical environmental projects on the recommendation of the committee. It also includes the running costs of a full-time team which has put together the United Kingdom EYE programme and publicity campaign on behalf of the committee.

In addition, my Department has been associated with a number of major events and projects in the EYE programme including the second International ministerial conference on the protection of the North sea hosted by the Government in London in November 1987; support for the production of the second edition of "EEC Environmental Policy and Britain" by Nigel Haigh; and the international pollution abatement fair in Birmingham in April 1987. As a further contribution the Department is preparing a general guide to the Government's environmental protection policies which it hopes to publish shortly.

The Property Services Agency has contributed a large number of events, including open days, a travelling landscape exhibition, tree and shrub planting and conservation projects.

Ministers from my Department and other Departments have also attended a number of speaking engagements and other events associated with EYE.

The regional campaigns for EYE have received additional support from the territorial Departments. The Scottish Office has contributed £30,000 to support the work of the Scottish EYE panel and a range of projects in Scotland. The Welsh Office has contributed £10,000 as well as administrative support to the work of the Welsh EYE panel, and projects including a bilingual information leaflet and an environmental exhibition. The Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland has provided some £20,000 covering administrative support to the Northern Ireland EYE panel and grants to projects. It has also sponsored a range of events including conferences and guided walks and open days in country parks and nature reserves.

Other Government Departments have also contributed events and projects to the EYE programme and have encouraged many of the bodies which they sponsor to participate. The following are examples of the activities they have sponsored:

Publication of a booklet on "Defence and the Environment"; Army training areas clean-up week — a series of anti-litter, anti-pollution, landscaping, tree-planting and works projects involving the armed forces and local conservation groups such as Salisbury Plain conservation day, May 1987—Ministry of Defence

Conference on "The Global Environment After Chernobyl" (April 1987) — Foreign and Commonwealth Office

Financial support of £60,000 for the International Institute for Environment and Development/World Bank conference on sustainable development (April 1987); publication of booklet "The Environment and the British Aid Programme"—Overseas Development Agency

Schools pack "Watching Waste" for EYE recycling week (October 1987); joint DTI/CBI conference on recycling (February 1988); series of articles in British Business on environmentally friendly projects and processes — Department of Trade and Industry

Publication of booklet on "Transport and the Environment of Transport

National and local publicity events drawing attention to community programme environmental improvement projects; secondment of member of staff to United Kingdom EYE team — Department of Employment/Manpower Services Commission.

Series of open days held as part of a programme of farming and countryside events launched in May 1987; conservation event held in collaboration with the Royal Agricultural Society of England at the national agricultural centre (October 1987)—Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries and Food.

Projects to preserve ancient woodlands, reclaim land and improve bird habitats; major project in Sherwood forest to create a traditional oak wood for conservation and recreation purposes—Forestry Commission.

These activities add up to a strong contribution by Government to the United Kingdom EYE campaign and are clear evidence of their support for the aims of the year.

The Department does not have full information about EYE initiatives in other European countries. The various national committees have put together wide-ranging and varied compaigns reflecting the circumstances and priorities of their respective countries. All EC member states including the United Kingdom have also played their part in the series of projects and events co-ordinated by the European Commission at Community level. This includes awards schemes; competitions; twinning and exchange scheme; and "weeks" focusing on clean beaches, water, recycling and tree planting.

Council House Rents

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what figures he has for levels of council home rents in each London borough for each of the past five years.

Mrs. Roe: For average unrebated rents for individual London boroughs at April 1987 I refer to the reply I gave to the hon. Member on 30 November 1987 at column 420. Available information for the other years appears in the earlier editions of "Housing Rents Statistics", published by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy, copies of which are in the Library.

Local Authorities and Joint Boards

(Rates and Precepts)

Dr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list in the Official Report, for each year since April 1985, those local authorities and joint boards subject to rate or precept limitation.

Mr. Ridley: The relevant information was included in my reply of 11 January at columns 95-99.

Local Authorities (Expenditure)

Dr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list in the Official Report, the cash growth in net current expenditure from (a) 1978-79 to 1987-88 and (b) 1985-86 to 1987-88 for each of the following local authorities: Basildon, Brent, Camden, Greenwich, Hackney, Haringey, Inner London education authority, Islington, Lambeth, Lewisham, Sheffield, Southwark, Thamesdown, Liverpool, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Tower Hamlets, showing also the average figure for all local authorities in these two periods.

Mr. Ridley: The information, based on authorities' budget estimates for 1987-88, is as follows:

Increase in net current expenditure

£ million

	(a) from 1978-79 to 1987-88	(b) from 1985-86 to 1987-88
Basildon	10·0	5·3
Brent[1]	123·5	47·8
Camden[1 2]	95·4	41·1
Greenwich[1 2]	58·2	22·7
Hackney[1 2]	80·4	39·0
Haringey[1]	97·6	37·6
ILEA	569·9	124·0
Islington[1]	48·2	18·3
Lambeth[1 2]	90·5	43·5
Lewisham[1 2]	69·4	36·0
Sheffield[1]	165·2	58·1
Southwark[1 2]	65·1	20·2
Thamesdown	3·2	−0·9
Liverpool[1]	169·8	68·0
Newcastle upon Tyne[1 2]	90·8	37·1
Tower Hamlets[1]	59·0	27·6
Average for all English authorities[3]	36·2	9·9

[1] Authority assumed new functions on 1 April 1986, following abolition of the GLC and the metropolitan county councils.
[2] Based on revised estimate for 1987-88.
[3] This is an average cash figure taken across all different classes of authority — and therefore has no significance for the purposes of comparison with any individual authority.

Dr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish for each local authority selected for rate limitation since 1 April 1985, the percentage increase or decrease in its total expenditure for each year compared with the previous year, showing also the maximum rate applicable in each year.

Mr. Ridley: The information on percentage changes in total expenditure is as shown. The relevant information on maximum rates and precepts was included in my reply of 11 January at columns 95-99.

Percentage increases in total expenditure

	1985-86 over 1984-85	1986-87 over 1985-86	1987-88 over 1986-87	1988-89 over 1987-88
Authorities first selected for 1985-86
Sheffield	2·1	not selected	[2]−6·9	not selected
Camden	−8·8	[1]41·6	[3]0·7	[4]—
Greenwich	13·7	[1]53·7	[3]−8·5	[4]—
Hackney	17·4	[1]37·3	[3]12·5	[4]—
Islington	−3·7	[1]26·3	[2]−2·9	not selected
Lambeth	5·9	[1]52·9	[3]−11·4	[4]—
Lewisham	2·0	[1]42·7	[3]19·0	[4]—
Southwark	−2·6	[1]13·2	[3]24·2	[4]—
Brent	1·3	not selected	[2]−0·3	not selected
Haringey	0·2	[1]30·6	[2]−8·1	[4]—
Basildon	−27·4	82·8	[2]4·4	[4]—
Thamesdown	−1·9	5·9	[2]−4·4	[4]—
Leicester	1·0	not selected	not selected	not selected
Portsmouth	3·1	not selected	not selected	not selected
GLC	−38·2	abolished	abolished	abolished
ILEA	−4·0	n/a	n/a	n/a
Merseyside MCC	13·0	abolished	abolished	abolished
South Yorkshire MCC	1·1	abolished	abolished	abolished
Authorities first selected for 1986-87
Liverpool	n/a	[1]27·7	not selected	[4]—
Newcastle upon Tyne	n/a	[1]28·2	[3]−4·8	[4]—
Authorities first selected for 1987-88
Gateshead	n/a	n/a	[2]3·0	not selected
North Tyneside	n/a	n/a	[2]−0·6	not selected
Tower Hamlets	n/a	n/a	[2]−3·3	[4]—
Hounslow	n/a	n/a	[3]−25·2	not selected
Newham	n/a	n/a	[2]5·5	not selected
Middlesbrough	n/a	n/a	[2]2·7	[4]—
Brighton	n/a	n/a	[2]−4·2	not selected
Authorities first selected for 1988-89
Manchester	n/a	n/a	n/a	[4]—

	1985-86 over 1984-85	1986-87 over 1985-86	1987-88 over 1986-87	1988-89 over 1987-88
Ealing	n/a	n/a	n/a	[4]
Waltham Forest	n/a	n/a	n/a	[4]
Kingston-upon-Hull	n/a	n/a	n/a	[4]

[1] Authority assumed new functions on 1 April 1986, following abolition of GLC and metropolitan county councils.
[2] Based on budget estimate for 1987-88.
[3] Based on revised estimate for 1987-88.
[4] Budget information for 1988-89 not yet available.

Housing Project Control

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether any decisions have yet been made regarding his proposals to abolish housing project control for local authorities.

Mr. Waldegrave: My Department and the Welsh Office have today sent to the local authority associations copies of circulars about the abolition of the present housing project control system for new building and renovation schemes. It will be replaced by a system of admissible cost limits which will not require the submission of schemes to the Department or the Welsh Office.

The change will reduce work both for local authorities and for the Department and the Welsh Office, and will allow authorities greater freedom to plan and implement their capital programmes more efficiently. It will also clarify their responsibility for achieving value for money in their housing schemes. The circulars and the new system which it describes are the product of extensive consultations with the local authority associations.

Local Authorities (Subsidies)

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has decided what deemed rent increase and what increase in reckonable expenditure on management and maintenance should be used in calculating the entitlement of local authorities to having subsidies for 1988-89.

Mr. Waldegrave: Our proposals for these increases were issued as consultation papers last September. The local authority associations have sent us their comments in writing and in discussion with my officials. We have considered these comments very carefully.

My right hon. Friend has decided, jointly with the Secretary of State for Wales, that, in view of the need to encourage local authorities in improving the condition of their housing, the increases in reckonable expenditure and income for the purposes of calculating entitlement to housing subsidy for 1988-89 should be in excess of the general level of rises in costs and prices. Therefore, the allowance for management and maintenance will go up by 9·2 per cent., provided an authority's actual expenditure reaches the enhanced level. Similarly the increase in the deemed local contribution will be £1·60 per week. It is for local authorities themselves to decide actual rents according to their own circumstances. Taken together, the increases represent a balance between central and local contributions towards extra renovation costs.

Rating Reform

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will estimate the further margin of error relating to the tables in annex F of "Paying for Local Government" resulting from taking account of the regular 30 per cent. non-response rate to the family expenditure survey, stating for which bands of household income the data would be most affected.

Mr. Howard [holding answer 3 February 1988]: Direct evidence of the income of non-respondents is not available. Comparison with the 1981 census does provide an indication of the types of household whose response rate is below average (see "Statistical News No. 72," February 1986, HMSO). This evidence suggests that households with three or more cars and the self-employed are under-represented. The response rate for the elderly aged over 70 is also significantly below average.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish the repriced tables in his Department's note on the relationship between local taxes and income and the distributional impact of the community charge alongside the results from the 1986 family expenditure survey, together with an explanation of how the repriced figures were derived and what margin of error applies to them.

Mr. Howard [holding answer 3 February 1988]: I am afraid the hon. Member's question is unclear. The family expenditure survey does not contain tables comparable with those in the note placed in the Library on 13 January. The table, however, shows the proportion of households in each band of net income as used in that note alongside the most nearly comparable table from the 1986 FES.

1986 FES Table 1		DOE note of 13 January
Disposable income £	Percentage of sample	Weekly net income £	Percentage of sample
Under 45	6·8
45-50	2·2	Under 50	5·4
50-55	1·9
55-60	1·9
60-65	2·5
65-70	2·5	50-75	12·0
70-80	4·0
80-90	4·1
90-100	3·6	75-100	10·3
100-120	7·0
120-140	6·5	100-150	15·7
140-160	6·7
160-180	5·0
180-200	5·5	150-200	15·9
200-225	7·3
225-250	6·0	200-250	13·6
250-275	5·0
275-300	4·2	250-300	10·2
300-325	3·3
325-350	2·7	300-350	6·5
350-375	2·1
375-400	1·4	350-400	4·1
400-450	2·4
450-500	1·4	400-500	4·0
500+	3·0	500+	2·3

Percentage of households in each income band

The aggregated FES sample used to exemplify the impact of the community charge has been regrossed to 1986-87 prices using a number of appropriate indices. For example earned income in each quarter was updated by reference to the index of seasonably adjusted average earnings, water rates were updated by the water charges component of the RPI and local authority rates were regrossed according to the actual level applying to each household in the sample. The margin of error which applies will vary according to the index used.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the sampling ratio achieved by the combination of family expenditure survey responses for 1981 to 1984 used in annex F of Cmnd. 9714 "Paying for Local Government" and subsequently (a) for Great Britain and (b) for England; and what margin of error should be allowed for in a sampling ratio of this kind.

Mr. Howard [holding answer 3 February 1988]: The tables in annex F of the Green Paper "Paying for Local Government" (Cmnd. 9714) have been superseded by those contained in the note I placed in the Library on 13 January showing the relationship between local taxes and income and the distributional impact of the community charge. The sampling ratio achieved by the family expenditure survey is around 6,000 out of 18½ million in England. Using four years data gives a combined sampling ratio of around one in 750. It is not possible, however, to estimate the margin of error simply from the sampling ratio. This will depend on

(i) the sample size
(ii) the design of the sample
(iii) the nature of the variable being measured

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Overseas Ministers (Entry)

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the policy of Her Majesty's Government in respect of access into the United Kingdom of Ministers of foreign Governments.

Mr. Mellor: We afford every appropriate facility, consistent with the Immigration Act 1971 and immigration rules, in respect of the access of Ministers of foreign Governments to the United Kingdom.

El Salvador (Mercenaries)

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has about the supply of mercenaries by a United Kingdom-based company, KMS, to the Government of El Salvador; what action he proposes to take; what advice he will give them regarding danger of prosecution under the Foreign Enlistment Act should any fatalities arise from the actions of such United Kingdom personnel; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Mellor: We are aware of press reports about KMS involvement in El Salvador, but have received no evidence to confirm them. KMS is a commercial company which is not controlled by Her Majesty's Government.

Defence Services Ltd.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what services have been and are provided to his Department or any of its agencies by Defence Services Ltd.

Mr. Mellor: Defence Systems Ltd. (DSL) is sub-contracted to Hall and Watts (International) Ltd. which has a commercial contract with the Mozambique Government to provide equipment and training for a Mozambican militia force deployed on security duties on the Nacala railway line. DSL provides the training element of the contract. We have no involvement with this private sector operation, but recognise that the work being done in the Nacala line accords with our overall policy towards Mozambique and the needs of its neighbours.

Atomic Energy (Peaceful Uses)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if there have been any recent discussions with (a) the Japanese Government, (b) Euratom and (c) the International Atomic Energy Agency over exports from the United Kingdom of nuclear materials and technology under Cmnd. 3853 on agreement for co-operation between the United Kingdom and Japan in the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Mr. Mellor: We have had several contacts with the Japanese Government about the implementation of this agreement, but no recent discussions about the agreement with Euratom or the International Atomic Energy Authority.

Plutonium

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to initiate the renegotiation of the United Kingdom-Euratom-International Atomic Energy Agency Tripartite Safeguards Treaty (Cmnd. 6730) in order to include the requirement to report yearly plutonium production figures, by nuclear station, to the appropriate international agency.

Mr. Mellor: No renegotiation is necessary. Existing arrangements with Euratom provide for plutonium produced to be reported when the fuel is shipped from United Kingdom civil reactors. Euratom keeps the International Atomic Energy Authority informed.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Office Equipment and Computers

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what was the total output of office equipment, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987;

(2) what was the total output of computers, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: Information for the United Kingdom for Office Equipment (Activity Heading 3301) and Computers (Activity Heading 3302) is published in table 10.5 of the Monthly Digest of Statistics and in Business Monitor MQ12, "Import penetration and export sales ratios for manufacturing industry". These are available in the House of Commons Library. Information for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Consumer Goods (Imports)

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what was the total output of compact disc players, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987;

(2) what was the total output of hi-fi equipment, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987;

(3) what was the total output of photographic cameras, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987;

(4) what was the total output of television cameras, the percentage exported, and proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and each year from 1979 to 1987;

(5) what was the total output of food mixers, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: The information requested is not available for the United Kingdom. That for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of loudspeakers, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in: (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: The available information for the United Kingdom is published in Business Monitor PQ 3453, "Electronic sub-assemblies and active components" (formerly PA 364, "Radio and electronic components"), which is available from the Library of the House. Information for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of video recorders, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: Information for the United Kingdom is not available prior to 1985. Figures for 1985 onwards are published in the quarter 2 1987 Business Monitor PQ3454, "Electronic consumer goods and miscellaneous equipment". Information for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of microphones, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in: (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: The available information for the United Kingdom is shown in the table. That for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Microphones

1975	£ thousands
Sales (1)	1,657
Exports	282
Imports	2,709

Note:

(1) Sales data relate primarily to units in the United Kingdom with a minimum employment of 25. Reliable estimates of sales of microphones by smaller establishments are not readily available.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of tape recorders, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in; (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975, and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: The available information for the United Kingdom is published in the quarter 2 1987 issue of British Monitor PQ 3454, "Electronic consumer goods and miscellaneous equipment", which is available from the Library of the House. Information for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Enterprise and Deregulation Unit

Sir Fergus Montgomery: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what role the Enterprise and Deregulation Unit has played and is playing in the reviews of the export licensing system, the Consumer Credit Act 1974 and the burdens on business, including Sunday trading restrictions; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: The EDU has played and continues to play its usual role of looking at issues in all areas of the Government's work, including those my hon. Friend raises, for ways in which unnecessary burdens on businesses can be removed or minimised.

Castleford (Industrial Development)

Mr. Lofthouse: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to encourage industrial development into the Castleford travel-to-work area.

Mr. Atkins: A number of measures already exist to encourage industry to locate and develop in the area. Companies in, or moving to, the TTWA are eligible to apply for assistance under the Department's enterprise initiative consultancy schemes and the area is also eligible for assistance from the European Coal and Steel Community and social and agricultural funds. In addition, the Yorkshire and Humberside development association, funded by the DTI, local authorities and private sector sponsors, is charged with attracting inward investment to the Yorkshire and Humberside region, including the Castleford and Pontefract TTWA.

Redundant Steel Workers

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many outstanding claims are still being processed for training payments for redundant steel workers in the Sheffield area; if the delays in making such payments arise within his Department or within the EEC Commission; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Atkins: Nine redundant steel workers from the Sheffield area have not yet received training benefits under the iron and steel employees re-adaptation benefits scheme (ISERBS) because of the European Commission's delay in approving United Kingdom applications for re-adaptation aid under the treaty of Paris. No payments can be made until Commission approval has been given. We are continuing to press the Commission for an early decision on these cases.

Regional Aid

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to York travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79;

(2) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Barrow travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79;

(3) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Stafford travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79;

(4) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Lincoln travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79;

(5) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Preston travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79.

Mr. Atkins: The information requested for each travel-to-work area for the years 1978-79 to 1986-87 is as follows:

Regional Development Grant and Regional Selective Assistance Expenditure

£ million

TTWA	York		Barrow		Preston
Fin. Year	RDG	RSA	RDG	RSA	RDG	RSA
1978-79	0·3	0·1	1·3	0·1	1·6	0·6
1979-80	0·4	neg	0·9	neg	1·3	0·3
1980-81	0·6	neg	0·9	neg	1·5	0·3
1981-82	0·7	neg	1·6	neg	3·1	0·2
1982-83	0·3	neg	0·1	—	0·4	0·2
1983-84	—	neg	—	neg	0·6	0·5
1984-85	—	neg	—	neg	—	0·1
1985-86	—	—	—	—	neg	0·1
1986-87	—	—	—	—	—	—

Notes:
1. Stafford and Lincoln TTWAs are not assisted areas and have not therefore received any RDG or RSA. The assisted area status of the remaining 4TWAs has changed during the period and none of the areas is now assisted.
2. Regional selective assistance includes project and training grants only.
3. neg = less than £50,000.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Upminster travel-to-work area in each year from 1973 to 1979 to date.

(2) what was the total expenditure in (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Portland travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(3) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Weymouth travel-to-work area in each year from 1987-79 to date;

(4) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Redditch travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(5) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Droitwich travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(6) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Bodmin travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(7) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Newquay travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(8) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Bude travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(9) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Launceston travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(10) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Alfreton travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(11) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Haverhill travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(12) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Long Melford travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(13) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Lavenham travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(14) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Heanor travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(15) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Ripley travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79 to date;

(16) what was the total expenditure on (a) regional development grant and (b) selective assistance to Sudbury travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79.

Mr. Atkins: Expenditure under the regional development grants (RDG) and regional selective assistance (RSA) schemes since 1978-79 to the travel-to-work areas (TTWAs) for which information is requested was as follows:

Travel-to-work area		1978-79	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
Alfreton	RDG	0·2	0·1	0·5	1·2	0·1	—	*—	—	—
	RSA	0·5	0·4	0·3	0·3	0·4	0·2	0·1	—	—
Birmingham (Redditch)[2]	RDG	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
	RSA	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	1·5	3·3
Bodmin	RDG	—	—	0·5	*—	—	—	—	*—	0·2
	RSA	0·1	0·2	0·1	0·1	—	—	—	0·3	0·4
Bude	RDG	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	*—
	RSA	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Nottingham (Heanor and Ripley)[2]	RDG	0·1	*—	0·1	0·6	*—	—	—	—	—
	RSA	—	0·2	0·1	0·2	0·1	0·1	—	—	—
Launceston	RDG	*—	—	*—	*—	—	0·3	0·2	0·1	0·1
	RSA	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Newquay	RDG	—	—	0·1	—	—	—	—	*—	0·5
	RSA	—	0·1	0·1	0·1	0·1	—	—	—	—

* Negligible.

[2] Heanor, Ripley and Redditch are not current TTWAs: information has been given for the TTWAs which currently encompass these towns except that some payments under the original regional development grant scheme have been identified for the former Heanor TTWA.

Notes:

1. RSA information covers project and training grants only.
2. No RDG has been paid in the TTWAs covering the other areas listed in the questions.

Microcircuits

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of microcircuits, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: Information for the United Kingdom is published in Business Monitor PQ3453, "Electronic sub-assemblies and active components" (formerly PQ364, "Radio and electronic components"), which is available from the Library of the House. Data for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Computer Software

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of computer software, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: Total and export sales by a voluntary panel of United Kingdom companies are published in Business Monitor SDQ9, "Computing Services" (formerly SD9, "Computer Services"), which is available from the Library of the House. Statistics on the imports of software are not available. Information for West Germany and Japan could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Insider Dealing

Mr. Blair: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many cases of reported insider dealing are currently under investigation by his Department; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Maude: There are 14 cases where inspectors appointed under section 177 of the Financial Services Act are currently investigating possible contraventions of the insider dealing legislation.

The appointment of such inspectors is considered in all appropriate cases which are brought to the attention of my Department.

Internal Market

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what categories of people have been invited to the Lancaster house conference on the internal market; if they include trade union representatives and Opposition hon. Members of the House; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Invitations will be issued shortly. The Lancaster House conference is primarily for British business, and we are inviting nearly 200 senior representatives from all the main industry and service sectors.

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what are his estimates of the employment implications for each category of employment of the completion of the European Community internal market in 1992.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Completing a single Community market of 320 million people should bring substantial economic benefits, helping to create wealth and employment in this country. The effect on the pattern of employment in the United Kingdom will depend on a number of factors, including the way British business seizes the opportunities of a single large market to increase sales and improve their competitive performance in Community and world markets.

Waste Paper

Mr. Irving: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what action he is taking to encourage commercial collection from Government Departments and other producers of greater or lesser amounts of waste paper, to reduce litter, and smoke from burning and save imports.

Mr. Brooke: I have been asked to reply.

Her Majesty's Stationery Office collects some 20,000 tonnes of waste paper and allied materials per year from Government Departments throughout the United Kingdom. Of this, more than 17,000 tonnes are commercially shredded and pulped for the manufacture of cardboard boxes and similar products. The balance comprises security materials, some of which are disposed of by burning, and other products unsuitable for recycling. Her Majesty's Stationery Office already advertises these services, but I have asked it to consider whether more could be done to encourage other public sector customers to use the facility.

DEFENCE

Trident

Mr. Michael McNair-Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether there has been any slippage in the timetable for introducing work on the Trident programme at AWRE Aldermaston; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Saimsbury: As my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State stated on 19 January at column 775, there is no slippage of the in-service date of the Trident programme, and AWRE Aldermaston is playing its part in this programme.

London University

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many research agreements or contracts his Department has with University college, London; and in which subjects;

(2) how many research contracts or agreements his Department has with King's college, London; and in which subjects.

Mr. Saimsbury: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Bow and Poplar (Ms. Gordon) on 21 January at column 775.

F-16 Aircraft

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the outcome of his discussions with Mr. Valerio Zanone, the Minister of Defence of Italy, on the fate of the F-16s formerly at the Torrejon base in Spain.

Mr. Ian Stewart: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State visited Rome on 27 January for bilateral discussions with Signor Zanone on a range of issues of mutual interest. In noting the proposed withdrawal of the F-16s currently based at Torrejon it was agreed that, in view of the important role played by the aircraft in the defence of Europe, they should if possible be relocated elsewhere in the southern region.

Novel Defences

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proposals exist within NATO for novel defences, including terrain enhancement; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ian Stewart: The Alliance regularly reviews proposals across the whole spectrum of defence planning including terrain enhancements. Details of defence planning proposals are classified.

Radiation-Capable Shells

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if there are any plans to introduce enhanced radiation-capable shells into Europe.

Mr. Ian Stewart: As my right hon. Friend the Member for Tonbridge and Malling (Mr. Stanley) made clear in the reply he gave to the hon. Member on 8 May 1987 at column 557, NATO has no plans to introduce enhanced radiation weapons into Europe.

Chemical Warfare Research

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many marmosets have been used for chemical warfare research in the United Kingdom in each of the past five years; and if he will list the establishments carrying out such research.

Mr. Saimsbury: Wherever possible, animals are not used in experiments. Where there is no suitable alternative the lowest order of animal possible is used for any experiment. It is not our practice to make available detailed information on the usage of a particular species for chemical defence research. Such information could enable an informed observer to gain a useful insight into the scope and direction of MOD's work to the detriment of national security.

La Belle Discotheque

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will call for a report from the General Officer Commanding British Sector West Berlin on the progress of the investigations, carried out by the West Berlin police into the bomb outrage at La Belle discotheque.

Mr. Freeman: No.

Trident Submarine (Transportation Loss)

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in what circumstances a section of a Trident submarine broke free from its transporting ship in the Irish sea on Friday 5 February; what is the estimated value of the section lost; whether it is intended to attempt to recover it; what warnings are being issued to fishing and other vessels in the area; what are the defence implications; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Salisbury: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answers I gave on 15 February at columns 448-49 to the hon. Member for Linlithgow (Mr. Dalyell).

SCOTLAND

Caravans (Illegal Parking)

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give details of the number of individuals who have been charged by Tayside police with offences of parking caravans illegally in Angus over the past two years.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: I regret that the information requested is not available.

Criminal Records Office

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps he has taken to ensure that all entries in the Scottish Criminal Records Office relating to convictions are accurate in all respects.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Information relating to convictions is obtained by the police service from the relevant court. Every effort is made and will be made to ensure the accuracy of the material supplied.

NHS Funding

Dr. Moonie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make it his policy to allocate sufficient resources for National Health Service funding for Scotland in 1988-89 to maintain the development of services in the community for elderly, mentally ill and mentally handicapped people, without reducing the level of acute services.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Gross expenditure in the National Health Service in Scotland has risen from £1,053 million in 1979-80 to an estimated £2,334 million in the current year, a cash increase of over 120 per cent. This corresponds with growth of about 27 per cent. in real terms. The allocation for 1988-89 will shortly be announced and it will be for health boards to give adequate priority to the development of community care provision and of acute services from the very substantial resources made available to them.

A74 (Upgrading)

Mr. Dewar: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what new funds he intends to provide to the relevant local authorities to meet the costs of upgrading the A74 to motorway standard; and whether he will expect local authorities to meet any of those costs from their existing budgets.

Mr. Rifkind: The A74 is a trunk road, for which I am directly responsible. Consequently no costs of its upgrading will be met by local authorities.

Water (Lead Levels)

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what information he has as to lead levels found in water in Edinburgh during a study carried out by the Scottish Home and Health Department; what maximum lead level has been recommended by that study; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: There has been no recent study on lead levels in water in Edinburgh.

Rating Reform

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will seek to amend the scope of section 15 of the Abolition of Domestic Rates Etc. (Scotland) Act 1987 in order to avoid the necessity of community charges registration offices having to serve a statutory notice on dead people in terms of the Act; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lang: My right hon. and learned Friend is considering this matter.

Labour Statistics

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give, for each month since June 1979, the number of job vacancies in Dundee.

Mr. Lang [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The number of job vacancies (excluding community programme) notified and remaining unfilled in the Dundee jobcentre area for each month since June 1979 is shown in the table.

Unfilled vacancies—Dundee jobcentre area

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987
January	—	536	273	383	321	322	190	205	419
February	—	501	311	289	416	241	201	249	369
March	—	476	373	291	424	270	218	267	358
April	—	472	329	307	293	219	205	315	326
May	—	468	288	366	389	179	200	342	267
June	692	347	272	402	369	169	257	534	365
July	674	403	302	352	370	110	273	437	434
August	565	359	274	366	265	120	198	437	510
September	602	346	283	419	269	195	384	517	495

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987
October	690	287	246	346	364	298	414	518	665
November	719	442	325	432	378	265	430	561	523
December	590	374	299	427	358	242	226	412	317

The figures are not directly comparable due to a change in the compilation of the statistics in October 1985, from which date this information is available in the Library. It is estimated that only around one-third of all vacancies are notified to jobcentres.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986

Mr. Favell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, if he will make a statement on the operation of the Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The powers in the Act to trace, freeze and confiscate assets are proving an effective new weapon against drug trafficking. During the first year of operation of the Act the High Court made over 150 orders freezing some £7 million pounds of suspected drug traffickers' assets. The Crown court has ordered some substantial sums to be confiscated, including £452,000 in one case last month. We are seeking reciprocal agreements with other countries so as to make the most effective use of these powers: the first such agreement, with the United States of America, was signed on 9 February.

Hooliganism

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received with regard to the threat to good order and quiet enjoyment represented by hooligans, vandals, litter louts and graffiti writers.

Mr. John Patten: We receive frequent, and understandable, representations on these subjects. In regard to the lower level of offences, much can be achieved through local preventive approaches, including proper enforcement of the law against under age drinking, good planning and provision of constructive activities for young people who may otherwise congregate on the streets causing a nuisance. The Government have taken firm action against the misuse of alcohol associated with football matches and are discussing with the Football League what more needs to be done to control hooliganism. The police are giving a high priority to combatting racially motivated harassment and the Home Office has issued guidance to forces on the recording and handling of racial attacks. The Public Order Act 1986 created the new offence of disorderly conduct to deal with loutish behaviour liable to cause harassment, distress or alarm to vulnerable members of the community.

Prisons (Speech Therapy)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any plans to increase the provision of speech therapy in prisons.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Because of the limited and fluctuating demand for speech therapy the Prison Service's policy is to use the resources of the National Health Service rather than to employ its own therapists. Prison medical officers have discretion to refer patients to a local hospital in suitable circumstances or to arrange for a therapist to vist the establishment. There are no plans to change these arrangements.

Prisoners (Counselling)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any proposals to increase counselling help available for prisoners.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: A wide range of counselling help is available for prisoners which may be provided by seconded probation officers, prison chaplains or ministers of other faiths, medical officers or other doctors including psychiatrists, psychologists, education officers, other prison staff or members of voluntary agencies concerned with specific problems such as alcohol abuse. No new central initiative is currently planned, although the continued development of shared working between probation officers and prison officers will lead to the greater involvement of the latter in the social work and welfare needs of prisoners. A particular recent development has been the training of some Prison Service specialist staff to counsel inmates identified as HIV antibody positive.

Traffic Offences (Revenue)

Mr. Holt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the total revenue raised from traffic offences in each of the past five years in the metropolitan region.

Mr. John Patten: It is estimated that in 1986 the value of fines imposed by courts in the Metropolitan police district for offences related to motor vehicles was £10 million, but information on resulting payments is not available. Information on the number of fixed penalty notices paid, by police force area, is published annually in "Offences Relating to Motor Vehicles, England and Wales, Supplementary Tables" (table 21 of the issue for 1986), copies of which are in the Library. For tickets issued in 1985, the latest year for which complete information is available, £11·7 million was paid as a result of fixed penalty notices issued by the Metropolitan police.

Traffic Wardens

Mr. Holt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent traffic wardens have been employed by the Metropolitan police in each of the past five years.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I understand from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that the information is as follows:

	Number
31 December 1983	1,789
31 December 1984	1,829

	Number
31 December 1985	1,698
31 December 1986	1,668
31 December 1987	1,527

These figures include wardens employed at Heathrow airport.

Criminal Injuries Compensation Board

Mr. Ground: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many cases were awaiting resolution by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board at the end of each month since June 1987;

(2) how many cases were resolved by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board during each month since June 1987;

(3) how many staff were employed by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board at the end of each month since June 1987.

Mr. John Patten: The information requested is given in the following table:

Month	Cases awaiting resolution at the end of each month	Cases resolved during each month	Staff in post (part-time staff being each counted as one half)
June 1987	68,600	2,023	218·5
July 1987	70,400	2,112	218·5
August 1987	72,000	2,132	218·5
September 1987	73,300	2,244	221·5
October 1987	74,800	2,532	259·5
November 1987	76,500	1,943	283·5
December 1987	76,700	2,320	297·5
January 1988	76,000	3,652	310·5

Lunar House, Croydon

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff are currently employed at the public inquiry office at Lunar House, Croydon; and how many of these speak (a) Gujarati, (b) Punjabi, (c) Urdu, and (d) Hindi.

Mr. Renton: There are currently 90 staff employed in the immigration public inquiry office at Lunar House, of whom four speak one or more of these languages. Three speak Gujarati; one speaks Punjabi; three speak Urdu and three speak Hindi. A further six staff are employed in the nationality public inquiry office, one of whom speaks all four languages.

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many hours were worked as overtime by employees at the public inquiry office at Lunar House, Croydon for each year from 1984 to 1987 and to the latest available date in the current year; and what was the total cost of this overtime.

Mr. Renton: The number of hours worked as overtime by staff in the immigration public inquiry office at Lunar House are set out in the table. The estimated cost of the overtime for the period is £150,000.

	Hours
1984	2,885
1985	8,578
1986	6,827
1987	9,279
1988 to 22 January	928

As regards the nationality public inquiry office, no overtime was worked in the years 1984 to 1986. In 1987, 428 hours overtime was worked, at an estimated cost of £2,526. So far in 1988, 12 hours overtime has been worked, at an estimated cost of £80.

Police (Crime-related Injuries)

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board resolved in 1986-87 for police officers suffering crime-related injuries while on duty.

Mr. John Patten: As stated at paragraph 8 of the board's latest annual report (Cm. 42), copies of which are in the Library, 1,948 cases involving injury to police officers on duty were resolved in the year ended 31 March 1987.

Prisoners (Strip Searches)

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many category A women prisoners there were in Her Majesty's prison, Durham in January 1988; and how many strip searches were made on these prisoners in that month, indicating strip searches before and after consultation with legal advisers, after visits and after cell changes, wing searches and cell searches, and listing reasons for searches and illegal contraband or smuggled items found.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: During January there were three category A women prisoners in Durham prison. The number of occasions on which each was strip searched during the month is shown in the table:

	Inmate A	Inmate B	Inmate C
After legal visits	—	—	—
After other visits	2	—	1
At the time of cell changes, and wing and cell searches	1	1	1
Other	—	2	1

No unauthorised article was found on any of the three women. I set out the reasons for such searches in my reply to a question from the hon. Member on 15 January at column 446.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many category A prisoners are at present held on remand at Risley detention centre; to how many strip searches they have been subjected on a monthly basis since they have been remanded at Risley, giving the number of persons involved, the number of times each person was searched and if any prison contraband, smuggled item or illegal correspondence was discovered in any search, indicating which items; in how many cases prisoners refused to be searched and had to be restrained while a search was being conducted; and what were the reasons for the search under each of the following headings: (a) making a remand appearance at court, (b) attending a trial, (c) inter-prison visit and (d) other reasons.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: On 9 February there were six inmates on remand at Risley remand centre who had provisionally been allocated to category A. Comprehensive records of strip searches are available only in respect of category A women prisoners, of whom there was one in Risley on the date in question. In accordance with standing instructions, this prisoner was strip searched on initial reception at Risley in September. Subsequently, she was strip searched on the following number of occasions up to the end of January, all in connection with appearances at court for remand hearings:

	Number
September	2
October	6
November	4
December	4
January	6

No unauthorised article was discovered on any of these occasions. On no occasion did the prisoner refuse to be strip searched.

Irish Republican Army

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when his Department was first made aware of the existence of Irish Republican Army extortion rackets in London and other cities in England; what actions have been taken to track down the sources of Irish Republican Army funds; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Hurd: Allegations of IRA extortion appeared in the Evening Standard on 5 February 1988. It is an offence under section 1 of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 to solicit or invite financial or other support for a proscribed organisation, or knowingly to make or receive any contribution in money or otherwise to the resources of a proscribed organisation. Under schedule 1 to the 1984 Act the Irish Republican Army and the Irish National Liberation Army are proscribed organisations. Any evidence of such offences which comes to light is investigated by the appropriate authorities.

Kidnap and Ransom Insurance

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has any plans to introduce legislation to make it illegal to provide kidnap and ransom insurance; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: No.

Mr. Gene Meyer

Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why Mr. Gene Meyer, a United States citizen with permanent residence rights in the United Kingdom, was stopped and interrogated about his sexuality by officials at Gatwick airport on 4 January, and told that he was a high risk and medically unsuitable to enter the United Kingdom.

Mr. Renton: Mr. Meyer is not a resident of the United Kingdom, but sought entry at Gatwick on 4 January as a visitor. The immigration officer was not immediately satisfied that he was a genuine visitor under the immigration rules. He was not, however, questioned about his sexuality, nor was he told that he was a high risk and medically unsuitable to enter the United Kingdom. He was admitted as a visitor until the end of February 1988.

AIDS

Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if there are any circumstances under which incoming travellers with the HIV virus are banned from entering the United Kingdom;

(2) if immigration officers receive training in the detection of symptoms of AIDS in travellers entering the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement;

(3) if he has any information regarding the interviewing and vetting by immigration officers of incoming travellers suspected of having the HIV virus; and if he will make a statement on his policy regarding such practices.

Mr. Renton: Evidence of HIV infection is not considered to be a sufficient reason for refusal of leave to enter the United Kingdom. Immigration officers receive no medical training, but the immigration rules require them to refer for examination by the port medical inspector any passenger who mentions health or medical treatment as a reason for his visit, or who appears not to be in good health. Passengers coming here for medical treatment or who may need treatment during their stay, including treatment for AIDS, are required to satisfy the immigration officer that they can meet any charges which might be made for such treatment and that they can otherwise support themselves without recourse to public funds. Under the rules, any passenger arriving in the United Kingdom must provide the immigration officer with such information as may be required for the purpose of deciding whether he requires leave to enter and, if so, whether and on what terms leave should be given.

Mentally Ill Prisoners

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are his Department's current estimates of the number of mentally ill people discharged from prison each year into the community.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are his Department's current estimates of the number of mentally ill people currently held in Her Majesty's prisons.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Our most recent estimate is that on 30 September 1987 there were 344 inmates who, in the opinion of prison medical officers, were suffering from mental disorder of a nature or degree which would satisfy the criteria for detention in hospital for medical treatment. 298 of these were mentally ill.

British Nationality

Mr. Nellist: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will publish in the Official Report the letter from Coventry community relations council, dated 23 November 1987, with reference to the deadline for applications for British nationality, and the reply sent by the assistant private secretary to the Minister of State; and if he will make a statement;

(2) what grounds would be considered acceptable as justifying a late application for registration as a British citizen made by Commonwealth and Irish citizens resident in the United Kingdom since 1 January 1973.

Mr. Renton: No. The position on the matters dealt with in the correspondence referred to was set out fully in the reply to the hon. Member for Bradford, West (Mr. Madden) on 15 January, at c. 449.

Metropolitan Police

Mr. Wheeler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what will be the total cost to public funds of the Metropolitan police in 1988-89; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Hurd: As police authority for the metropolis I have approved estimates which provide for net revenue expenditure by the Metropolitan police of £1,004·967 million in 1988-89, an increase of 8·2 per cent. on the expenditure I approved for 1987-88. There will be a cash limit on current expenditure of £994·609 million. The remainder will be capital expenditure, for which separate controls exist.

I have also authorised the issue of a precept requiring rating authorities to levy rates at 16·5p in the £ for Metropolitan police purposes. This is an increase of 7·1 per cent. on the 1987-88 precept of 15·4p.

Dr. Frank Skuse

Mr. Clay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will now call for a review of all cases in which Dr. Frank Skuse gave evidence.

Mr. John Patten [holding answer 8 February 1988]: No.

EMPLOYMENT

Training Schemes

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people are currently employed on Government-sponsored training schemes in the Basildon area; and if he will express the figures as a percentage of the total local work force.

Mr. Cope: The information is not available in the precise form requested. At 29 January in the Basildon local authority district there were 461 young people in training on YTS of whom 143 were employed by their training provider and 37 people on the new job training scheme of whom none were employed. Occupancy figures are not available for other adult training schemes. The total local work force for the Basildon LAD is currently 64,489 (as at 29 January).

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people in the Basildon area have been employed on Government-sponsored training schemes for each of the last five years.

Mr. Cope: Information about the number of people participating in Government training schemes in the Basildon area for each of the last five years, and the number of those who had employed status, is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Overtime

Mr. Grocott: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what are the average hours of overtime worked per week by full-time employees in (a) manufacturing industry (b) mining and (c) agriculture.

Mr. Lee: The most recent estimates of the information requested are provided in table X2 of part B of the 1987 New Earnings Survey report.

Price Increases

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what have been the average increases each year since 1979 of (a) textiles, (b) motor vehicles, (c) electrical goods and (d) food.

Mr. Lee: I regret that the information is not available in the precise form requested.

However, the following table gives changes in retail prices over the 12 months to January each year for the closest approximation to the categories specified.

Retail prices index—percentage changes over twelve months to January

	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987	1988
Food	12·6	8·9	11·0	1·9	6·0	3·4	3·2	3·8	2·9
Radio, TV and other household appliances[1]	9·8	4·3	2·9	0·9	−0·5	−0·8	0·0	−2·8	n.a.
Electrical appliances	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	2·8
Audio-visual equipment[2]	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	n.a.	−4·7
(Purchase of) motor vehicles[2]	11·6	6·5	6·1	3·8	3·7	−0·6	2·2	6·2	6·9
Men's outer clothing[3]	15·1	6·1	0·1	0·7	−1·2	3·1	2·9	1·5	1·6
Women's outer clothing[3]	3·7	1·1	−1·5	0·3	−2·7	2·3	3·8	0·9	−0·8
Children's clothing[3]	8·9	5·2	3·2	4·0	5·3	6·7	2·5	3·3	1·0

[1] No figure for electrical goods is available. This heading is the most closely comparable, and includes gas appliances.
[2] From February 1987 the definition of some components were changed. These figures show the annual change in prices for January 1988.
[3] No figure for textiles is available and figures for various types of clothing are therefore given.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is (a) the number of participants in and (b) the cost of the enterprise allowance scheme in (i) the Northwich travel-to-work area, (ii) the Chester travel-to-work area, and (iii) the Runcorn travel-to-work area; and what have been the figures in each year since the scheme's inception.

Mr. Cope: The figures are not available in the form requested. The Northwich, Chester and Runcorn travel-to-work areas are all covered by the Cheshire enterprise allowance team. The table gives the number of participants in receipt of the allowance in Cheshire at the end of each financial year (in 1987-88 at the latest date available) and expenditure for each financial year (in 1987-88 up to the latest date available).

(£ million)

	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88
Participants at year end	596	946	1,038	1,407	[1]1,507
Expenditure for year	1·25	1·98	2·17	2·94	[2]3·15

[1] (at 9 February 1988).
[2] (to 9 February 1988).

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Sudbury travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79;

(2) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Haverhill travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79;

(3) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Long Melford travel-to-work area in each year from 1978-79;

(4) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Lavenham travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(5) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Ripley travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(6) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Grimsby travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(7) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Heanor travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(8) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Upminster travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(9) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Weymouth travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(10) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Portland travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(11) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Redditch travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(12) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Droitwich travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(13) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Bodmin travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(14) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Newquay travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(15) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Bude travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(16) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Launceston travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79;

(17) what was the rate of unemployment for January of Alfreton travel-to-work area, in each year from 1978-79.

Mr. John Lee: The following information is in the Library. Unemployment figures are not comparable over the whole period because of changes in the coverage of the count, and in the boundary definitions of the travel-to-work areas. The table shows the number of unemployed registrants in the requested travel-to-work areas as defined in 1978, at January of each year from 1979 to 1982, the number of unemployed claimants in those areas at January 1983, and the number of unemployed claimants in the travel-to-work areas as defined in 1984 for January of each year from 1984 to 1987, expressed as a percentage of employees in employment and the unemployed. Long Melford, Lavenham, Ripley, Heanor, Upminster, Portland, Redditch, and Droitwich do not form travel-to-work areas; these areas are all only a small part of a travel-to-work area.

1978 Definition travel-to-work areas

	Sudbury	Haverhill	Grimsby	Weymouth	Bodmin	Newquay	Bude	Launceston	Alfreton
Unemployed registrants
January 1979	4·3	4·0	7·4	7·7	7·6	13·7	12·4	8·5	5·5
January 1980	4·0	4·0	6·6	8·7	5·9	13·0	11·4	8·9	6·1
January 1981	7·1	8·6	11·9	10·8	8·7	18·0	15·0	12·4	11·5
January 1982	10·1	9·8	14·2	13·3	10·7	22·4	16·9	13·6	14·8
Unemployed claimants
January 1983	9·5	11·7	13·2	14·8	14·5	23·3	18·6	12·1	15·2

1984 Definition travel-to-work areas

	Sudbury	Haverhill	Grimsby	Dorchester and Weymouth	Bodmin and Liskeard	Newquay	Bude	Launceston	Alfreton and Ashfield
Unemployed claimants
January 1984	11·7	9·3	16·5	10·3	15·6	27·3	15·9	13·8	10·3
January 1985	11·2	8·6	16·3	10·5	16·5	30·6	18·6	15·4	11·3
January 1986	11·9	8·6	15·5	11·4	17·3	32·2	19·3	15·8	11·5
January 1987	11·2	7·1	15·6	11·6	17·6	31·8	19·3	15·7	11·3

TRANSPORT

Taxis

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many taxis, including minicabs, are currently licensed in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) Essex region, (c) Basildon area, (d) London.

Mr. David Mitchell: The figures are as follows:

Area	Taxis	Hire Cars
England and Wales excluding London	21,100 (1986)	25,780 (1985)
London	14,200 (1986)	Not licensed
Scotland	6,358 (1985)	2,956 (1985)
Essex	629 (1986)	Not available
Basildon	63 (1986)	141 (1985)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the total number of taxis licensed in (a) the United Kingdom, and (b) the Basildon area, for each of the last five years.

Mr. David Mitchell: The available figures are as follows:

Area	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
England and Wales (excluding London)[1]	17,700	18,100	18,400	18,900	21,100
London[1]	12,800	13,100	13,600	13,800	14,200
Scotland[2]	n.a.	n.a.	5,641	6,358	n.a.
Basildon[2]	62	62	62	61	63

Sources:
[1] Transport statistics for Great Britain.
[2] TRRL surveys.

Motor Cars (Geneva Convention)

Mr. Mills: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to update the 1948 Geneva convention as this applies to motor cars crossing European borders where differing regulations exist concerning head lights and tyre tread depths.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The 1949 Geneva convention was in many respects updated by the 1968 Vienna convention. Further amendments have been proposed in the appropriate working groups of the Economic Commission for Europe. The requirements on headlamps and tyres are in broad terms so as to accommodate the differences between national regulations. For example, headlamps may be white or yellow and their use may be allowed or required in built-up areas at night. Tyres must be in a state such as to ensure conditions of safety, including adhesion, even on a wet road. This implies the presence of some tread, without specifying any minimum tread depth.

Air Traffic Control Radar

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how old the air traffic control radar on St. Boniface Down, Isle of Wight, is; what plans there are for its replacement and modernisation; what part this installation plays in preventing air near misses; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Air traffic control services are the responsibility of the Civil Aviation Authority. I shall draw my hon. Friend's question to the attention of the authority's chairman.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing

Mr. Janman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the Government will publish their response to the special report of the Select Committee on the Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Bill, Session 1987-88: HC 213; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the Government will publish their response to the special report on the Select Committee on the Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Bill, Session 1987-88: HC 213; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The response has been published today. Copies have been sent to members of the Select Committee and the Standing Committee, are available in the Vote Office and have been placed in the Library.

The Government appreciate that the task which the Select Committee was called upon to perform was exceptionally difficult, raising issues of great technical complexity. We are grateful to the members, and particularly to the Chairman, my hon. Friend the Member for Chipping Barnet, (Mr. Chapman) for their very thorough examination of all the issues put to them.

The response addresses all the matters to which the Select Committee made reference. Since receiving its report the Department has reviewed the effects of wind on vehicles using the bridge, the traffic management measures available, and the effect of imposing a requirement for full windshielding on the bridge. The re-examination of the evidence put to the Select Committee and the results of further work commissioned since then have led us to conclude that the provision of full windshielding on the bridge is not justified. The Government will therefore seek to have the requirement deleted from the Bill at the Report stage.

However, the discussions leading up to the Select Committee, and the proceedings themselves, have helped to establish the benefits to be gained from local windshielding near the bridge towers. I am informed that this can be accommodated in the existing design and that Dartford River Crossing Ltd. will be providing it.

The Select Committee asked me to inquire into the way in which the case on windshielding was presented. I am pursuing that. Difficult issues arise about the way in which commercially confidential information should be presented.

The Government accept the Select Committee's recommendation about road access to Dartford and maintains their neutral attitude to naming of the bridge.

Finally, the response notes the recommendation on compensation for Mr. Michie and his neighbours at Rose Villas. The Department will make every effort to assist in the speedy assessment and payment of compensation.

This is an urgent and badly needed project. The Government hope that the extra capacity at this crossing will be provided as quickly as possible.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Infant Mortality

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give the numbers of post neonatal deaths, and the rate per 1,000 live births, in England and Wales attributed to (a) sudden infant deaths, (b) respiratory diseases, (c) congenital abnormalities, (d) conditions arising in the perinatal period, (e) injury and poisoning and (f) all other causes, for the latest available year.

Mrs. Currie: The information is given in the table.

Postneonatal mortality for selected causes (numbers and rates)
England and Wales 1986

Cause of death	ICD	Sex	Number	Rate[1]
All causes	000-999	Male	1,693	5 · 00
		Female	1,131	3 · 51
		Total	2,824	4 · 27
Sudden Infant Death Syndrome	798-000	Male	798	2 · 36
		Female	494	1 · 53
		Total	1,292	1 · 95
Diseases of the Respiratory System	460-519	Male	195	0 · 58
		Female	116	0 · 36
		Total	311	0 · 47
Congenital Anomalies	740-759	Male	249	0 · 73
		Female	240	0 · 74
		Total	489	0 · 74
Certain conditions originating in the perinatal period	760-779	Male	137	0 · 40
		Female	66	0 · 20
		Total	203	0 · 31
Injury and poisoning	800-999	Male	58	0 · 17
		Female	46	0 · 14
		Total	104	0 · 16
Other Remainder	000-999	Male	256	0 · 76
		Female	169	0 · 52
		Total	425	0 · 64

[1] Rate per 1,000 live births.
Postneonatal deaths: deaths at ages 28 days and over, but under one year.

Hospital Closures

Mr. Irving: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how he proposes to correct the tendency in regional hospital plans to emphasise hospital closures as a central plank of strategy for the mentally ill and to be unspecific about how local needs have been assessed; and how the new pattern of services is to be developed and resourced.

Mr. Newton: I refer my hon. Friend to my reply to him on 8 February 1988 at column 97.

Special Hospital Patients

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many patients are currently residing in each special hospital who no longer require a secure environment, due to an inability to relocate them in National Health Service or local authority accommodation.

Mr. Newton: The table shows the number of patients in the special hospitals who at 4 January (a) had been recommended for a move to another hospital on trial leave or transfer and were awaiting a vacancy in an identified hospital; and (b) had been conditionally discharged or were the subject of a deferred conditional discharge by a mental health review tribunal and were awaiting a vacancy in local authority accommodation.

	(a)	(b)
Broadmoor	10	—
Moss Side	4	1
Park Lane	5	4
Rampton	17	2
TOTAL	36	7

Pin-ups

Ms. Richardson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he will issue instructions for the removal of all offensive pin-ups in all his departmental premises.

Mr. Portillo: The Department has made clear that it is the responsibility of line managers to ensure that potentially offensive material is not displayed in the workplace.

Lost Operations

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what estimate he has of the number of operations and hospital treatments, including emergency operations, lost on 3 February, and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: The information we received from health authorities showed that the number of non-emergency operations lost through strike action in the National Health Service on 3 February was 206. There were no reports of cancelled emergency operations. A small number of non-emergency admissions, out-patients and day patients had their attendances disrupted.

Nurses

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many working days were lost in 1986 and 1987 amongst nurses in the National Health Service due to back problems.

Mr. Newton: I regret that we do not collect this information centrally.

Disabled People

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what measures he intends to take to help provide for the needs of the very severely disabled people in Blyth Valley, in the light of the entitlements of new claimants after April.

Mr. Scott: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Members for Kirkcaldy (Dr. Moonie) and for Islington, North (Mr. Corbyn) on 9 February at column 172.

Prescriptions

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will give for each of the last five available years the cost to the National Health Service of general practitioners' prescribing of (a) brand name drugs and (b) generic drugs.

Mr. Newton: The estimated net ingredient cost of drugs prescribed by general practitioners in the National Health Service in England for the last five calendar years is set out in the table:

£ million

Calendar year	Drugs prescribed Generically	Drugs prescribed by brand name
1982	48·5	811·8
1983	53·3	916·4
1984	56·6	978·7
1985	88·2	955·8
1986	103·3	1,021·5

Not included in this table are those drugs prescribed generically but dispensed by brand name, that is, where a generic equivalent is not available.

Breast Cancer (Screening)

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he intends to encourage health authorities to send written reminders to women over 64 years of age of the need for three-yearly screening for breast cancer.

Mrs. Currie: We have no plans to encourage health authorities to send written reminders to women aged 65 and over to attend for breast cancer screening. The nationwide breast cancer screening service which we are introducing over the next three years is based on the conclusions in the report of a Government-appointed working group, chaired by Professor Sir Patrick Forrest. The report recommended that the priority for any screening programme should be to offer an initial screen to as many women as possible aged 50-64. Women aged 65 and over will not be automatically invited for screening but they will be screened on request.

Health Authorities (Chief Officers)

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many graduates with masters of business administration degrees are employed at chief officer level in regional and district health authorities; and how many such graduates are employed in health service administration within his Department.

Mr. Newton: I regret that the information for health authority officers is not held centrally. For departmental staff, information is not readily available in this form and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Consultants

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has as to how many consultants do more work for the National Health Service than is stipulated in their contracts.

Mr. Newton: I regret that this information is not collected centrally.

NHS (Funding)

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what proportion of the representations he has received on the means of funding of the National Health Service favoured (a) a tax-based system and (b) a system based on personal insurance.

Mr. Newton: A variety of different funding methods have been recommended in the representations we have received. Variations on both systems have featured in these representations, but it would not be meaningful to categorise them precisely in this way.

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the total amount of National Health Service funding what comes from direct taxation; and what percentage of the total National Health Service funding this represents, for each year from 1979.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 11 February 1988]: The information requested is as follows for Great Britain:

Year	From general taxation (Consolidated Fund) £ million	Per cent. of total NHS funding	From National Health Service Contributions £ million	Per cent. of total NHS funding
1978-79	6,810	88·0	745	9·6
1979-80	8,071	87·9	877	9·6
1980-81	10,654	89·1	989	8·2
1981-82	11,783	87·8	1,257	9·4
1982-83	12,588	85·7	1,662	11·3
1983-84	13,325	85·8	1,708	11·0
1984-85	14,291	85·6	1,848	11·1
1985-86	15,071	85·6	1,945	11·0
1986-87	16,055	84·6	2,205	11·6
1987-88 (est)	16,841	83·1	2,676	13·2

NHS funding drawn from the Consolidated Fund is not attributable to different forms of taxation, direct or indirect.

Medicine and Surgery (Expenditure)

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, of the total expenditure on secondary services, what amounts and proportions are attributed to medicine and surgery, respectively.

Mr. Newton: The requested details of expenditure, for hospitals in England in 1986-87, are as follows:

	Total revenue expenditure (£)	Percentage of total revenue expenditure (£)
(1) Expenditure on drugs, dressings and pharmacy	836,132,385	10·1
(2) Expenditure on direct treatment of patients excluding costs at (1)	3,950,185,144	47·5

AIDS

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he is aware of any research findings which show that infection caused by the AIDS virus cannot pass through the material of an intact condom.

Mr. Newton: I am advised that there are two published studies from San Francisco and Brussels in which various commercially available latex condoms have been demonstrated to be impermeable to human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) under laboratory conditions. In addition, I understand that similar results have been obtained by other researchers which have not yet been published.

Neonatal Intensive Care

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what were the conclusions of the meeting held between the Medical Research Council and the health departments into the long-term consequences of neonatal intensive care.

Mrs. Currie: A meeting of experts to discuss appropriate measurements of developmental, social and educational outcome in children who had undergone neonatal intensive care was proposed at the last annual meeting between the health departments and the Medical Research Council. I understand that the Medical Research Council is currently considering the most appropriate way to approach the issue. Progress is to be reviewed at the next annual meeting in March.

Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley District Health Authority

Mr. Ken Hargreaves: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many cases were dealt with by the Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley district health authority from 1979 to 1986 in (a) general medicine, (b) paediatrics, (c) geriatric medicine and (d) general surgery.

Mrs. Currie: The requested information is given in the table.

Patients treated in Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley district health authority for the following specialties

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
General medicine
Number of available beds	174·2	187·6	204·9	201·8	200·8	195·3	197·2	177·7
Number of occupied beds	166·1	172·1	174·9	165·3	165·4	158·0	162·6	150·3
Discharges and deaths	5,634	5,854	6,385	6,145	6,563	7,035	7,352	7,064
Total out-patient attendances	15,428	15,341	20,001	21,453	23,382	23,797	25,402	26,708
Day cases	553	553	920	1,154	1,037	1,266	1,365	1,314
Paediatrics
Number of available beds	36·3	37·4	58·3	59·3	58·2	51·6	50·6	53·5
Number of occupied beds	16·2	17·2	25·1	28·6	25·7	24·0	24·7	22·9
Discharges and deaths	1,515	1,501	2,326	2,542	2,699	2,663	2,852	2,669
Total out-patient attendances	4,431	4,459	6,111	6,783	7,397	6,972	6,575	6,075
Day cases	2	9	1	1	5	4	6	3
Geriatrics
Number of available beds	337·2	350·2	352·9	351·6	334·8	282·4	280·9	276·5

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Number of occupied beds	332·8	346·3	348·5	339·7	315·3	266·0	257·9	244·2
Discharges and deaths	1,015	1,328	1,636	2,013	2,439	2,255	2,385	2,267
Total out-patient attendances	345	508	773	1,054	1,089	1,382	1,745	1,812
Day cases	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
General surgery
Number of available beds	154·4	156·2	155·0	147·8	154·3	142·5	137·2	130·2
Number of occupied beds	129·7	128·6	125·2	119·6	120·0	111·4	106·5	97·2
Discharges and deaths	6,088	6,259	6,160	6,136	6,577	6,740	6,772	6,487
Total out-patient attendances	13,731	14,217	14,806	14,848	14,004	14,546	14,338	13,753
Day cases	397	560	650	570	553	698	708	715

Housing Benefits (Lambeth)

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has as to how many housing benefit claims have been made to Lambeth council but have not been processed.

Mr. Portillo: We do not collect such unformation centrally. Local authorities are responsible for the day-to-day administration of the housing benefit scheme.

1981 Census

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what were the reasons for the difficulties encountered when the trial ethnic question for the 1981 census was tried out in Haringey; and whether similar difficulties are expected with the 1991 census.

Mrs. Currie: Co-operation from the public in the test carried out in Haringey in 1979 was seriously hampered by an organised campaign of opposition which was given considerable publicity in the media. The campaign contended that information collected in the test was linked with plans to change the nationality laws in a manner that would worsen the status of ethnic minority groups in Britain. Such fears were unfounded, but the level of opposition at the time of the test and subsequently during consultation with organisations representing ethnic minority groups was sufficient to show that an ethnic origin question was not acceptable at that time.

The Office of Population Censuses and Surveys and the Commission for Racial Equality are currently holding meetings with community relations officers and representatives of ethnic minority organisations to find out why some people are worried about a possible ethnic origin question in the census so that ways can be found to remove any mistaken doubts and fears if such a question were to be included in the 1991 census. These meetings follow a recent series of tests carried out by the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys to develop an effective form of wording of such a question.

Pontefract Health Authority

Mr. Lofthouse: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many consultants are employed by Pontefract district health authority on contracts; and how many of these work (a) full-time and (b) part-time for the National Health Service;

(2) what is the annual cost of consultants' contracts for the Pontefract district health authority.

Mrs. Currie: Information on the number of consultants in non-teaching districts such as Pontefract is not available centrally as such staff are employed by regional health authorities. Some information on costs is available from district accounts. In 1986-87 Pontefract's total expenditure on salaries and wages of consultants was £1,376,934. The hon. Member may wish to contact the chairman of Yorkshire regional health authority for any further information which he requires.

Mr. Lofthouse: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many beds have been closed either temporarily or permanently in each of the past three years in the Pontefract district health authority area; and how long each closure lasted;

(2) what is the bed availability to the Pontefract district health authority at the latest date; and if he will give similar figures for each year since 1979.

Mrs. Currie: Information is available centrally only on the average number of beds in Pontefract. This is given in the table, together with discharges and deaths per available bed.

The hon. Member may wish to approach the chairman of Pontefract DHA for the remainder of the information he is seeking.

Average daily available beds in Pontefract district health authority

	Average daily available beds	[1] Throughput
1979	853·5	22·3
1980	848·3	25·0
1981	873·0	24·2
1982	864·5	23·1
1983	883·0	25·1
1984	904·0	25·0
1985	884·9	26·2
1986	880·6	25·9

[1] Discharges and deaths per available bed.
Figures before 1982 relate to Pontefract's predecessor district within Wakefield area health authority.

Mr. Lofthouse: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many nurses have left the Pontefract district health authority since 1979; how many have been reinstated; what is the present number in post; and what was the number in post in 1979.

Mrs. Currie: Such figures as are available are shown in the table. Because of the 1982 National Health Service reorganisation, figures on a consistent basis are not held centrally for the years prior to 1982. Information on nurses who have left, or been reinstated, is not held centrally. The hon. Member may wish to contact the chairman of the Pontefract district health authority for this information.

NHS nursing and midwifery staff in post[1]
Pontefract District Health Authority at 30 September

	Whole time equivalents[2]
1982	1,020
1983	1,040
1984	1,070
1985	1,080
1986	1,100

Source: DHSS annual census of National Health Service non-medical manpower.

[1] Includes agency staff.

[2] Figures are independently rounded to nearest ten whole time equivalents.

Mr. Lofthouse: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many appointments he has made to the Pontefract health authority since 1983.

Mrs. Currie: The Secretary of State reappointed Mr. R. Widdowson as chairman of Pontefract health authority on 1 April 1986. The appointment of members to Pontefract district health authority is the responsibility of the Yorkshire regional health authority and certain local authorities.

Schizophrenics

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the annual numbers of schizophrenics discharged from hospitals in the United Kingdom over the past 10 years.

Mrs. Currie: The number of discharges of patients with a main diagnosis of schizophrenia from National Health Service mental illness hospitals and units in England are shown in the table for each year since 1977. The figures refer to discharges and cannot be related to individual patients; a patient may be readmitted more than once during the year.

Year	Discharges
1977	28,595
1978	25,695
1979	24,656
1980	25,280
1981	25,992
1982	24,594
1983	25,336
1984	25,934
1985	26,225
1986	26,077

Figures for Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are a matter for my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland and my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Wales and for Northern Ireland.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his latest estimate for the amount of money to be spent by his Department on research into schizophrenia in the current financial year.

Mrs. Currie: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Eddisbury (Mr. Goodlad) on 10 November 1987 at column 149.

Mentally Ill People

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many documented cases of abuse of mentally ill people in institutions covered by his Department there have been in the most recent period for which figures are available.

Mrs. Currie: Individual health authorities are responsible for monitoring their own services and dealing with all issues — including abuse — as appropriate. Such information is not routinely collected by the Department. Since 1 January 1986, there have been 80 complaints by patients in the special hospitals alleging ill-treatment. In one of these cases, the allegation was substantiated and a staff member was dismissed.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what estimate he has of the numbers of those caring for the mentally ill at home under the care in the community proposals who are subsequently certified as mentally ill.

Mr. Newton: We have no basis for making such an estimate.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are his Department's current figures for the number of homes funded by health authorities to provide sheltered accommodation for people who are mentally ill.

Mrs. Currie: If accommodation for people who are mentally ill is funded by a health authority it should form part of the in-patient accommodation the health authority provides, and so not figure separately in NHS statistics. Health authorities may also provide varying degrees of financial support to voluntary bodies which are providing sheltered accommodation, but we have no statistics of such payments.

Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bradford, South received on Tuesday 9 February, if he will list the 45 National Health Service hospital units, hostels and holiday homes for the mentally handicapped closed since 1984, stating in each case the changes of use for each site.

Mrs. Currie: I regret the delay in supplying the information originally requested. As I explained in my reply to the hon. Member on 18 January at column 579, it was necessary to make enquiries to bring the information held centrally up to date.

Listed are details of the National Health Service hospital units, hostels and holiday homes for mentally handicapped people which have closed since 1979, including 31 since 1984.

NHS hospitals units, hostels and holiday homes for mentally handicapped people closed since 1979

Region	District	Hospital	Closure date	Use made of sites
Northern RHA	—	None
Yorkshire RHA	Scunthorpe	Bubwith Hostel	1985	Part sold to GP practice and part to building firm
	York	Tadcaster Hostel	1987	To be demolished to provide new facilities for mentally handicapped people
	Harrogate	Bondgate Hostel	1987	To be marketed
Trent RHA	Southern Derbyshire	Retreat Hostel	1983-87	Sold for use as an old peoples home
	Leicestershire	Glengate Hospital	1987	Sold for use as training centre
	Leicestershire	Hillesden Hostel	1981-82	Sold privately. Use not known
	North Lincolnshire, Central	Tuxford Hostel	1983-84	Sold subject to contract
	Nottinghamshire	Victoria Hospital	1986	Demolished. 6 person bungalow for elderly people planned
	Rotherham	Aughton Court	1984	Part sold for use as a private nursing home
	Sheffield	Wales Court Hospital	1979-80	Sold privately. Use not known
	Sheffield	Scott Road Hostel	1985	Withdrawn from market
	Sheffield	Commonside Hostel	1985	Under consideration for day centre
East Anglian RHA	Norwich	Blofield Hall	1984	Sold for use as educational establishment
North West Thames RHA	North West Hertfordshire	Tenterdon House, St. Albans (part of Cell Barnes Hospital)	1986	Sale to be completed before end of March 1988
	North West Hertfordshire	Houndswood (part of Harperbury Hospital	1984	Sold to private developer
North East Thames RHA	North East Essex	Brunswick House	1987	Disposal option under review
	North East Essex	Essex Hall	1983	To be sold by tender
	North East Essex	Middlesex House	1986	Sold for residential development
	Barking, Havering and Brentwood	Little Warley Lodge	1987	Sold for use as nursing home
South East Thames RHA	Hastings	East Down House	1987	Sold possibly for residential development
	Canterbury	Lanthorne Houe	1987	Demolished to provide 4 bungalows for mentally handicapped people
South West Thames RHA	Merton and Surrey	Brook	1983	Sold for residential development
	North West Surrey	Murray House	1984	Sold for residential development
	South West Surrey	King George V Hospital	1986	Sold for residential development
Wessex RHA	Isle of Wight	Longford (Ryde)	1985	Awaiting outcome of planning application
	West Dorset	Elfadene Holiday Home	1983	Sold to Housing Association
	Winchester	Tichbourne Down	1986	Possible residential development
	Portsmouth	Sandy Point Hospital	1985	Residential development institutional use and nature reserve
	Bath	Winsley Centre	1985	Planning appeal for residential units rejected
Oxford RHA	West Berkshire	Style Acre Hospital	1985	Sold for use as private hospital
	Oxfordshire	Bradwell Grove Hospital, Burford	1986	Reverted to ground landlord on closure
South Western RHA	Frenchay	Leigh Court Hospital	1985	Sold for private mental handicap care
	Exeter	Hawkmoor Hospital	1987	Sale under consideration
	Cornwall	Elizabeth Barclay Home	1985	Sold to private sector
	Bath	Rock Hall House	1983	Sold to Housing Association
	Exeter	Starcross Hospital	1986	Sold to private sector
West Midlands RHA	North Warwickshire	Over Whitacre Hostel	1986	Sold for private nursing home
	Dudley	Part of — Prestwood Hospital	1986	Sold. Present use not known
North Western RHA	West Lancashire	Ormskirk Childrens' Hospital	1986	Closure being reviewed by Health Authority
Mersey RHA	Chester	Tabley Agricultural Hostel	1981	Sold to private developer
	Crewe	Wrenbury Hostel	1981	Sold to Trust for use as hostel for mentally handicapped people

Region	District	Hospital	Closure date	Use made of sites
	Macclesfield	Part of—Mary Dendy Hospital ie Warford Hall	1987	Not yet marketed
		Ancoats	1987	Not yet marketed

Health Authorities (Resources)

Dr. Moonie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make it his policy to allocate sufficient resources to health authorities in 1988-89 to meet the needs for services of elderly, mentally ill and mentally handicapped people, without reducing the level of acute services.

Mr. Newton: It is for regional and district health authorities to provide for the health care needs of the elderly, mentally ill and mentally handicapped, after taking account of other priorities, from within their total resources. The national resource allocation formula allows for the numbers of elderly people, mentally ill and mentally handicapped in regionally managed populations in arriving at target allocations.

Local Authorities (Health Charges)

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, on how many occasions in the last five years (a) he has agreed that a local authority may make charges under section 28(4) of the National Health Service Act 1977, (b) charges have been determined by arbitration; and if he will list the local authorities involved.

Mr. Newton: Charges by local authorities under section 28(4) of the National Health Service Act 1977 have never been agreed to my knowledge. The Department has recently reached a negotiated settlement of the bill presented by the London borough of Camden for the provision of hospital social workers.

Hospital Social Workers

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if he will publish a table showing the number of hospital social workers employed by each local authority social services department for the last available year;

(2) if he will publish a table showing the number of hospital social workers in each district health authority in England and Wales for the last available year.

Mr. Newton: I regret that this information is not available centrally.

Storm Damage

Dr. Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will make a further statement on the arrangements he has made to give financial assistance to health authorities for costs arising from the storm of 15-16 October 1987, where the costs arise from risks which were insurable but which were not insured.

Mr. Newton: I have nothing to add to my statement to the House on 16 December 1987 at columns 1093-94.

Advice Service

Mr. Ken Hargreaves: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if there are any plans to provide a social security advice service specifically for employers and the self-employed; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: Yes. A new free telephone inquiry service will become operational on 22 February 1988. The social security advice line for employers will provide expert advice on national insurance contributions and the payment of statutory sick pay and statutory maternity pay. The service will be useful to all employers and independent payrolling services, and particularly helpful for people starting up a new business, the self-employed and small businesses without a separate wages section. A free telephone call will enable them to check that they are following the correct procedures.

Dental Ailments (Lost Working Days)

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will estimate the number of working days lost as a result of dental ailments.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 15 February 1988]: This information has not been collected since the introduction of self-certification for days of absence. Time lost through dental disease was usually not long enough to be recorded under this system.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Avgas

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what revenue was raised through the duty on Avgas for each of the years 1979-80 to 1986-87.

Mr. Lilley: Estimates are as follows:

	£ million
1979-80	3·70
1980-81	6·85
1981-82	4·65
1982-83	2·60
1983-84	2·95
1984-85	2·85
1985-86	3·05
1986-87	2·55

Toxic Waste (Seaham)

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what provision is made for the checking of toxic waste which is landed at the port of Seaham, to ensure that the cargo manifest tallies with the materials offloaded.

Mr. Lilley: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Meirionnydd Nant Conwy (Dr. Thomas) on 8 February, at column 95. All imported goods, including toxic waste, have to be declared to Customs and Excise, which imposes checks to test the accuracy of the declaration and its supporting documents and to ensure that the goods are not subject to prohibition. There are no special provisions at Seaham to ensure the cargo manifest tallies with the material offloaded.

National Savings

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what compensating allowance has been made in the national savings index-linked products for the recently announced error in the retail prices index.

Mr. Lilley: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Daventry (Mr. Boswell) on 18 December, at column 846.

EC (Rebates)

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what rebate from the whole European Economic Community budget has been obtained for the years 1986 and 1987.

Mr. Brooke: The United Kingdom's payments to and receipts from the European Community budget in 1986 gave rise to an abatement of its VAT contributions in 1987 of 1,633 million ecu (some £1,150 million). The preliminary draft budget for 1988 provides for an upward correction of 244 million ecu (£170 million) to the abatement in respect of 1986, and for an abatement of 2,269 million ecu (£1,580 million) in respect of 1987.

Government Data Network

Ms. Gordon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what will be the lowest grade of civil servant able to grant permission to allow an authorised intradepartmental and interdepartmental transfer of data on the Government data network; and whether any transfer of data between Departments will be permitted without the consent or knowledge of the data subject.

Mr. Brooke: These will be operational matters for the Departments using the network. As data users, Departments will be responsible for compliance with the Data Protection Act 1984.

Ms. Gordon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what computers at the Department of Health and Social Security, Inland Revenue, Home Department and Customs and Excise will be connected to the Government data network; and what are the locations of these computers.

Mr. Brooke [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Departmental decisions on which computer systems and sites would be connected to the proposed GDN cannot be made until after the project is approved.

Ms. Gordon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the costings of the savings arising from the economies of scale referred to in the service requirements for a Government data network have been calculated.

Mr. Brooke [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Only when tenders are received will sufficient financial information be available to assess the savings to Government arising from the introduction of the proposed Government data network.

Confectionery and Biscuits

Mr. Aspinwall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he proposes to meet the president of the Biscuit, Cake, Chocolate and Confectionery Alliance to discuss the imposition of value added tax on confectionery and chocolate biscuits; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Changes in taxation are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer's Budget judgment. As my hon. Friend will appreciate, it is not possible for him to meet all those seeking to put their views beforehand. However, representations submitted by the president of the Biscuit, Cake, Chocolate and Confectionery Alliance have been carefully considered by Treasury Ministers.

THE ARTS

Art in Prisons

Mr. Butler: To ask the Minister for the Arts if he will make a statement on the Arts Council's initiatives to encourage art in prisons.

Mr. Luce: I am pleased to learn of the Arts Council's proposed initiatives to encourage art in prisons. This work is of great value, and I look forward to learning more about the scheme when firm plans have been drawn up.

Grants

Mr. Buchan: To ask the Minister for the Arts if he will list the grants made by the Arts Council to (a) the English National Opera, (b) the National Theatre, (c) the Royal Opera House and (d) the Royal Shakespeare Company for every year from 1977-78 to 1987-88 inclusive, and the grants proposed for them in 1988-89.

Mr. Luce: The information requested is as follows:

	English National Opera £	National Theatre £	Royal Opera House £	Royal Shakespeare Company £
1977-78	2,640,000	2,770,593	4,850,000	1,365,000
1978-79	3,665,000	3,401,500	5,475,000	1,838,486
1979-80	4,800,000	4,806,500	7,000,000	2,117,000
1980-81	5,475,000	5,188,000	7,805,000	2,535,934
1981-82	4,550,000	5,770,000	9,020,000	2,880,000
1982-83	5,440,000	6,550,000	10,379,682	4,075,000
1983-84	5,988,401	6,869,446	11,584,776	4,660,312
1984-85	5,918,250	7,005,870	12,386,891	5,286,000
1985-86	6,034,500	6,955,200	13,474,491	5,392,000

	English National Opera £	National Theatre £	Royal Opera House £	Royal Shakespeare Company £
1986-87	6,576,000	7,811,400	13,096,500	5,197,000
1987-88	6,748,000	7,811,400	13,226,960	5,197,000
1988-89	6,917,000	[1]7,811,400	13,491,270	5,326,500

[1] An additional sum of £105,600 is reserved for the National Theatre and may be made available on receipt of a three-year plan showing, inter alia, financial break-even.

I have increased the grant to the Arts Council in 1988-89 and subsequent years to enable it, in part, to provide more assistance for touring within the United Kingdom and overseas. The national companies may well receive increased funding on this account, and also from the incentive funding arrangements now being devised.

Mr. Buchan: To ask the Minister for the Arts if he will list the grants made by the Arts Council to each of the 12 English regional arts associations by the Arts Council for each year from 1977-78 to 1987-88, inclusive, and the grants proposed for them in 1988-89.

Mr. Luce: The information requested is as follows:

	Eastern £	East Midlands £	Greater London £	Lincs/ Humberside £	Merseyside £	Northern £
1977-78	242,099	216,023	470,913	202,305	189,067	729,309
1978-79	343,594	297,163	558,571	267,829	254,180	914,787
1979-80	419,398	428,033	652,301	335,893	338,147	1,088,960
1980-81	481,180	579,874	932,101	390,747	386,083	1,306,630
1981-82	541,045	699,754	1,209,972	460,691	444,877	1,456,051
1982-83	690,483	824,944	1,464,087	523,048	497,419	1,733,236
1983-84	728,305	927,160	1,487,240	556,740	535,158	1,819,020
1984-85	889,775	1,061,119	1,583,722	591,050	583,903	1,938,659
1985-86	1,144,871	1,627,406	1,791,430	782,836	656,000	2,086,802
1986-87	1,715,344	1,809,737	8,427,313	904,490	1,096,830	3,543,845
1987-88	1,774,026	1,873,783	8,127,248	962,235	1,094,270	3,556,920

	North West £	South East £	Southern £	South West £	West Midlands £	Yorkshire £	Total £
1977-78	337,281	190,675	305,935	360,229	416,634	255,974	3,916,444
1978-79	490,069	249,285	445,031	485,561	553,019	343,292	5,202,381
1979-80	578,474	318,807	525,050	535,794	696,735	444,425	6,362,017
1980-81	662,483	367,495	618,638	637,082	803,105	520,779	7,686,197
1981-82	751,055	431,274	708,620	702,175	896,095	586,900	8,888,509
1982-83	864,849	540,353	850,418	876,133	1,034,811	717,002	10,616,783
1983-84	932,393	581,659	884,447	883,678	1,100,434	737,914	11,174,148
1984-85	1,031,953	628,991	995,088	970,894	1,221,727	841,602	12,338,483
1985-86	1,493,749	1,085,773	1,172,470	1,225,052	1,558,134	1,338,899	15,963,422
1986-87	1,982,320	1,231,962	1,298,559	1,555,765	2,291,310	2,084,900	27,942,375
1987-88	1,996,480	1,303,970	1,369,191	1,685,317	2,315,020	2,117,070	28,175,530

I understand that the Arts Council will be notifying individual regional arts associations about their 1988-89 grants in the course of this week. I shall write to the hon. Member as soon as I am able to pass on these figures, and will place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Items in Lieu of Tax

Mr. Faulds: To ask the Minister for the Arts whether, pursuant to his written answer on 2 February, Official Report, columns 535-536, to the hon. Member for Banbury (Mr. Baldry), in connection with the change in the cash limits for the Office of Arts and Libraries, the figure of £7,329,000 on class XIII, vote 10, represents an actual payment of cash to the Inland Revenue in respect of acceptance of works of arts in lieu of tax; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Luce [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Subject to parliamentary approval, supplementary provision is being made so that the sum of £7,329,000 may be paid in due course to the Inland Revenue, in respect of three works of art accepted in lieu of tax in 1987-88. Two have already been accepted: Constable's "Stratford Mill" (tax satisfied £5·5 million), and Picasso's "Weeping Woman" (tax satisfied £1·2 million). The offer of a third item (which would be similarly funded) is in the final stages of agreement. Further details will be made available when the acceptance has been completed.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Student Grants

4. Mr. Bidwell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects to publish the report on the review of student financial support; and if he will make a statement.

35. Mr. Marlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he now anticipates publishing his proposals for student finance.

43. Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects the Review Body on Student Grants to complete its report.

Mr. Jackson: The Government hope to publish proposals for consideration by the middle of this year.

Science Budget

5. Mr. Lamble: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science for what reasons the Government are planning for a reduction of the science budget of 2 per cent. in real terms in 1990-91 relative to 1988-89, according to table 12.14 of "The Government's Expenditure Plans 1988-89—1990-91" (Cm. 288-II).

Mr. Jackson: The figures for 1988-89 and 1989-90 include special additions for AIDS research and research in the Antarctic which are not carried forward into 1990-91. Expenditure in 1990-91 in these and other areas of the science budget will be reviewed in this and next year's public expenditure surveys.

Dr. Bray: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what estimate he can make of the total size of his science budget relative to the increase of industry's funding of its own research and development needed to bring such industrial research and development up to the lowest level as a proportion of gross domestic product in Germany, Japan and the United States of America.

Mr. Jackson: The latest year for which we have a complete set of relevant statistics is 1985. The figures for industry's own funding of R and D as a percentage of GDP are as follows:

Country	Percentage
United Kingdom	1·0
Federal Republic of Germany	1·6
Japan	1·8
United States of America	1·3

If the science budget in 1985-86 were increased by 60 per cent., 80 per cent. and 30 per cent., the figures would be respectively £920 million, £1,035 million and £745 million. However, United Kingdom Government funding of civil R and D as a percentage of GDP, although lower than in the Federal Republic of Germany, was higher in 1985 than that in Japan and the United States of America:

Country	Percentage
United Kingdom	0·63
Federal Republic of Germany	1·0
Japan	0·57
United States of America	0·4

Source: OECD.

Special Schooling

15. Mr. Janner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he is prepared to make extra funds available for special schooling.

Mr. Dunn: The Government's plans, announced last November, for local authority spending on education for 1988-89 represents a cash increase of 7·9 per cent. over the 1987-88 plans. The plans for special education in 1988-89 are 8·3 per cent. higher than the 1987-88 plans. The increase should help local education authorities to pursue their policy priorities for special education.

Education Reform

16. Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what recent representations he has received about the assessing and testing proposals within the new school curriculum.

Mrs. Rumbold: A few representations have been received since the publication of the report of the task group on assessment and testing on 12 January. Some 14,000 individuals and organisations have written in response to the Government's consultation document on the national curriculum, published last July. Many of these have expressed a variety of views about the place of assessment and testing.

26. Dr. Michael Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received regarding the percentage of time proposed for foundation subjects in the Education Reform Bill; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Education Reform Bill makes no provision for the percentage of time to be spent on foundation subjects.

44. Mr. Hannam: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received asking him to take steps in the Education Reform Bill to provide improved education for handicapped children.

73. Mr. Ashley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received regarding the effect of the proposals in the Education Reform Bill on the education of disabled children; and what was the nature of his response.

Mr. Dunn: The statistical breakdown is available only in respect of responses to the national curriculum consultation document. Of the 13,800 responses, approximately 12,000 were from individuals and 1,800 from organisations. Some representations concerning children with special educational needs were made by 836 individuals and 213 organisations. My right hon. Friend is drawing the attention of the task group on assessment and testing and of the subject working groups to the implications of those representations which concerned the national curriculum. The Government believe that the proposals in the Education Reform Bill hold every prospect of improved educational provision for children with special educational needs.

47. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what assessment he has made of the effect of allowing boroughs in district councils to opt out of county local education authorities.

Mrs. Rumbold: The outer London boroughs have had responsibility for education for over 20 years, and under the proposals announced by my right hon. Friend on 4 February, at columns 1178-79, the inner London boroughs will assume similar responsibilities on 1 April 1990. The Government have no further plans to reorganise the arrangements for the administration of education.

52. Mr. Speller: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many inquiries or comments he has received from school governing bodies in the county of Devon relating to individual schools opting out of the local education authority system.

Mr. Dunn: All individual schools which have approached the Department about this proposal have done so on the basis that their interest will be treated in confidence.

61. Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what steps he intends to take, should the Education Reform Bill become law, to enforce the compulsory nature of the national test for seven-year-olds.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Education Reform Bill places duties on local education authorities, governing bodies and head teachers to secure implementation of the national curriculum, including assessment and testing arrangements. It also provides for regulations requiring information to be made available which will enable parents and the public to check on implementation; and for procedures to deal with complaints that statutory requirements are not being implemented. If necessary, the Secretary of State could use the powers under sections 68 or 99 of the 1944 Act to issue a direction in order to secure compliance.

69. Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he has had any representations from teachers or parents groups in Leicestershire about the Education Reform Bill.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Department has received about 60 representations from teachers' and parents' groups in Leicestershire in addition to many from individual teachers and parents.

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what is his latest estimate of the number of schools likely to opt out if the Education Reform Bill becomes law; what will be the earliest date for them to do so; and if he will make a statement.

67. Mr. Grocott: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what is his latest estimate of the number of schools that would opt out under the terms of the Education Reform Bill.

Mr. Dunn: Schools will be able to initiate the procedures leading to an application for grant-maintained status as soon as the Education Reform Bill has received Royal Assent. I expect the first few grant-maintained schools to come into being in September 1989, and anticipate a steady increase in their numbers thereafter.

32. Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how the proposals contained in the Education Reform Bill will help integrate pupils with special educational needs into the educational system.

Mr. Dunn: The changes proposed in the Bill will provide improved educational opportunities for all children and do not affect the integration principles established under the Education Act 1981. Pupils with special educational needs in ordinary schools will benefit from the new opportunities, whether the schools remain within LEA control or become grant-maintained.

First Division Association

19. Mr. Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he has any plans to meet representatives of the First Division Association branch in his Department.

Mrs. Rumbold: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier to the hon. Member for Durham, North-West (Ms. Armstrong).

Religious Instruction

20. Mr. Michael McNair-Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what discussions he has had with Church leaders and representatives of the teaching profession about improving the teaching of religious instruction.

Mrs. Rumbold: Since publication of the Government's proposals for a national curriculum my right hon. Friend and I have had meetings with representatives of the Church of England Board of Education, the Roman Catholic Bishops' Conference, the Religious Education Council, and with the Bishop of Newcastle. Discussion at all these meetings covered religious instruction in schools.

Children (Assessment Tests)

21. Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether it is the Government's intention to publish the results of tests for children aged seven years; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my right hon. Friend gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Halifax (Mrs. Mahon).

City Technology Colleges

22. Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a further statement on the progress in the growth in the number of city technology colleges.

Mrs. Rumbold: Sponsorship for five city technology colleges has now been announced. The Kingshurst CTC is to open in September and the Nottingham CTC in 1989. We are making good progress in discussions with a number of prospective sponsors and expect further announcements to be made soon.

25. Mrs. Maureen Hicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will report on the progress to date on the setting up of a city technology college in Wolverhampton.

Mrs. Rumbold: There has been some interest in the establishment of a city technology college in Wolverhampton but as yet we have received no firm proposals. If there is support in industry and in the local community for doing so, we would be pleased to consider any proposals which are put forward.

Inner London Education Authority

18. Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many representations he has received opposing the abolition of the Inner London education authority.

Mrs. Rumbold: Since my right hon. Friend announced on 4 February the Government's decision to amend the provisions currently in the Education Reform Bill, we have received rather fewer than 200 letters expressing support for the retention of ILEA.

23. Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what recent representations he has received about the future of the Inner London education authority; and if he will make a statement.

129. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what recent representations he has received regarding the future of the Inner London education authority.

Mrs. Rumbold: Since the introduction of the Education Reform Bill on 20 November, we have received some 1,200 letters concerning education in inner London.

34. Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he intends to announce his policy on the future of the Inner London education authority.

75. Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects to announce his decision about the future of the Inner London education authority.

Mrs. Rumbold: I refer the hon. Members to my right hon. Friend's statement on 4 February at columns 1178-79.

72. Mrs. Rosie Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what measures he will undertake to ensure that inner London boroughs provide a proper and adequate education service if the inner London education authority is abolished.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Government propose that in 1989 each inner London council should be required to publish a development plan, setting out the way in which it proposes to organise the transfer of education responsibility and the service it would propose to run when it becomes an LEA, subject to the full range of duties under the Education Acts. The Department will consider with the councils concerned whether formal or informal co-operative arrangements are necessary in respect of particular aspects of provision.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

24. Mr. Jack Thompson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he is satisfied with the progress of the implementation of the GCSE.

Mrs. Rumbold: My right hon. Friend is satisfied that teachers and others in the education service will secure the successful implementation of the GCSE. It will take time to reap the full benefits of the new examinations. Careful monitoring is taking place by HMI and reports of significant improvements in teaching and learning have been given.

28. Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what recent representations he has received about the GCSE.

54. Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received on the content of the new GCSE since September 1987; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: My right hon. Friend has received a range of representations from parents, teachers and others about the GCSE. Many have welcomed the new examination and the content of courses associated with it. My right hon. Friend is concerned to ensure that any concerns expressed in representations about the content of GCSE syllabuses are brought to the attention of the GCSE examining groups and the Secondary Examinations Council, which are responsible for keeping the GCSE national criteria and syllabuses under review.

Scottish Universities

27. Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he has any plans to meet the University Grants Committee to discuss the future of the Scottish universities; and if he will make a statement.

41. Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he has any plans to meet the University Grants Committee to discuss the future of Scottish universities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave on 19 January, at column 625, to the hon. Members for Fife, Central (Mr. McLeish) and Kirkaldy (Dr. Moonie).

33. Mr. Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science to what extent he has considered the impact of his new funding proposals on the Scottish universities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: Our policies for the universities, including the relevant provisions in the Education Reform Bill, apply to universities in Scotland is exactly the same way as to those in England and Wales.

42. Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he is satisfied that admission procedures to Scottish universities do not discriminate against (a) pupils from state schools and (b) disabled applicants.

Mr. Jackson: Universities are autonomous institutions. Matters relating to the admission of students are, within the law, entirely for them.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans he has to reverse the declining number of Scots-domiciled undergraduates entering Scottish universities.

Mr. Jackson: Universities are autonomous institutions. Matters relating to the admission of students are, within the law, entirely for them.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will list in the Official Report the numbers and countries of origin of undergraduates, other than Scots-domiciled undergraduates, who entered Scottish universities in each of the past five years.

Mr. Jackson: The maximum disaggregation of student domicile in Scottish universities from the available information is as follows:

Academic year	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87
Scotland	8,245	7,969	8,102	7,682	7,864
England and Wales	1,924	1,946	2,051	2,261	2,272
Northern Ireland	232	269	242	320	318
Overseas	998	1,299	1,341	1,802	1,857
Total	11,399	11,483	11,736	12,065	12,311

University of Aberdeen

29. Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will pay an official visit to the University of Aberdeen.

Mr. Jackson: I shall be visiting Aberdeen university on 27 April.

School Sports Facilities

30. Mr. Patnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will encourage more dual use to be made of the sports facilities in schools; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: With my hon. Friend the Minister with responsibility for sport, we are seeking to develop guidance which will further encourage the adoption of dual use schemes. Such guidance would build on the many initiatives which our Departments, the Sports Council and others have developed in recent years.

Further Education

31. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will take steps to ensure that further education students are informed about the true cost of the education they receive.

Mr. Jackson: The provisions on further education in the Education Reform Bill will require college budgets to be related to the number of students at each college. They will also require the publication of LEA funding and delegation schemes, and empower my right hon. Friend to require the publication of information about the operation of those schemes. This will promote awareness of funding methods and costs.

60. Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he has any plans to ensure a continued provision for students with special educational needs in colleges of further education; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: It is for the local education authorities to decide what provision to make for special educational needs in colleges of further education.

Clause 81 of the Education Reform Bill puts beyond doubt their duty to provide full-time education either in school or in FE for all who seek it up to the age of 19, including those with special educational needs. Provision for the adult population is a matter for the discretion of individual local education authorities.

Teachers (Pay and Conditions)

36. Mr. Flannery: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he has any plans to meet representatives of the teachers unions to discuss future arrangements for the determination of pay and conditions; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: Responses to the Green Paper entitled "Teachers' Pay and Conditions" are still being received in the Department. No meetings to discuss future arrangements with the teacher unions have yet been fixed.

45. Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received concerning the resources available to meet the next teachers pay settlement.

Mrs. Rumbold: The rate support grant settlement for 1988-89 allows fully for the cost of a teachers' pay settlement consistent with the remit which my right hon. Friend has given to the Interim Advisory Committee on school teachers' pay and conditions.

Nursery Education

37. Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he has any plans to increase the level of pre-school provision for children with special educational needs; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: It is for each LEA to determine its own policy in respect of pre-school provision. Each LEA makes its own decisions on pre-school provision for children with special educational needs in the light of any consultations leading up to statements of special educational need, and of the appropriateness of any pre-school provision available to them.

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he will list for Northumberland education authority the proportion of the total number of under fives in pre-school education represented by (a) three-year-olds and (b) four-year-olds; and how many vacancies there are.

Mr. Dunn: The proportions of the total number of pupils under five attending maintained nursery and primary schools in Northumberland in January 1987 who were aged three and four were 34 per cent. and 59 per cent. respectively.

Information on the number of vacant nursery or primary places is not collected centrally.

School Governors

38. Mr. Oppenheim: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans he has to give parents the right to elect parent governors to temporary school governing bodies.

Mr. Dunn: Schedule 2 to the Education (No 2) Act 1986 provides that the temporary parent governors for a new school will normally be appointed by the LEA, or in the case of an aided school by the promoters, from among parents of children likely to attend the school. The Government have no plans to change this. Once the school is established, parent governors will normally be elected under the new instrument of government.

Economic and Social Research Council

39. Mr. Cran: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects to announce the new location of the Economic and Social Research Council; why no site in Humberside is among those being considered; and what plans he has for the further relocation out of London of other research bodies.

Mr. Jackson: It is for each research council to decide on the location of its headquarters. I understand that the Economic and Social Research Council is expected to make an anouncement about its intentions in the near future. Humberside would not have met the criteria set by the council. The Agricultural and Food Research Council announced on 10 February that it would move to Swindon on the expiry of the lease on its present premises.

Universities Funding Council

40. Mr. Ernie Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether the directions he gives to the new Universities Funding Council will take account of the differences between the Scottish university system and the system in England and Wales, with particular reference to the length of courses and levels of funding.

Mr. Robert Jackson: The University Grants Committee makes no distinction between universities in Scotland and elsewhere in the application of its standard criteria for funding which, in particular, take account of different course lengths. The Universities Funding Council will doubtless want to maintain this general approach.

School Buildings

46. Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has on the state of school buildings in Northumberland; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: Information is not collected about individual schools, but my right hon. Friend is informed by his recent visit to Northumberland, by his officials and by HMI about the general situation in the county.

Children (Special Education Needs)

48. Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement on the assessment of children with special learning difficulties.

Mr. Dunn: Under the Education Act 1981 local education authorities are required to assess the needs of children in their areas who have learning difficulties and to ensure that suitable educational provision is made for them.

74. Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he has any plans to increase the staffing ratios for the teaching of children with special educational needs; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: Current guidance on the staffing of special schools and classes is set out in DES circular 4/73. The Government hope to consult on the draft of a revised circular during the year.

University Education (Wales)

49. Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement on the future of university education in Wales.

Mr. Jackson: Government policy towards the universities, set out in "Higher Education: Meeting the Challenge" (Cm. 114) and elsewhere, applies to Great Britain as a whole, and makes no distinctive provision as regards Wales.

Pupil-Teacher Ratios

50. Mr. Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement on current pupil to teacher ratios.

Mr. Dunn: The overall pupil to teacher ratio in maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools in England has fallen markedly in recent years, from 18·1:1 in 1983 to 17·3:1 in 1987. "The Government's Expenditure Plans" (Cm. 288) allow for some further reduction in the overall pupil to teacher ratio to 17·0:1 by 1989.

Universities (Independence)

51. Ms. Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans he has for safeguarding the independence of universities.

Mr. Jackson: The Government have no wish to see universities' proper freedoms eroded. Universities' substantial reliance on public funds means that the interests of the taxpayer have to be taken into account alongside desirable institutional autonomy. The right balance is being explored in debate during the Education Reform Bill's parliamentary passage.

Academic Freedom

53. Mr. Ashdown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received on the subject of academic freedom.

64. Mr. Wm Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received on securing academic freedom; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: We have received about 40 letters on the subject of academic freedom.

The Government believe wholeheartedly that academic freedom is fundamental to a healthy system of higher education. I refer the hon. Members to the detailed statements I made in reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Dorset, North (Mr. Baker) on November 1987 at columns 676-78 and the hon. Member from Glasgow, Hillhead (Mr. Galloway) on 13 January 1988 at columns 268-69.

Universities (Research Funds)

55. Mr. Allen McKay: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what proportion of Research Council funds goes to those universities which fall in the (a) top, (b) middle and (c) bottom third of research grant funds per student.

Mr. Jackson: The proportions are as follows:

(a) 68 per cent.
(b) 24 per cent.
(c) 8 per cent.

Sex Education

56. Mr. Andrew MacKay: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he has any further plans to encourage responsible sex education in secondary schools.

Mrs. Rumbold: The Department issued a circular to all maintained schools in England in September 1987 giving guidance on sex education at school. The circular made clear that sex education should be given in a factual and balanced manner and in accordance with section 46 of the Education (No. 2) Act 1986. There are no plans at present for any further guidance to be issued.

Pre-school Playgroups

57. Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will bring forward proposals to permit local education authorities to encourage parents to provide pre-school playgroup activities for children on school premises.

Mr. Dunn: No. My right hon. Friend is satisfied that there is no significant obstacle to local education authorities offering such encouragement.

Teachers Unions

58. Mr. Evennett: to ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he last met respresentatives of the teachers unions; and what was discussed.

Mrs. Rumbold: My right hon. Friend has had meetings since the last election with representatives of the National Association of Head Teachers, Secondary Heads Association of The National Union of Teachers, the National Association of Schoolmasters the Secondary Heads Association, the National Union of Teachers the National Association of Schoolmasters/Union of Women Teachers, the Assistant Masters and Mistresses Association and the Professional Association of Teachers. In each meeting matters of current concerns to the teacher association were discussed.

English Subject Working Group

59. Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he intends to set up the subject working group on English; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: My right hon. Friend intends to establish the national curriculum working group on English after Easter, following and building on the report, due next month, of the committee chaired by Sir John Kingman on the knowledge needed by teachers and pupils about the workings of the English language.

16-year-olds (Further Education)

62. Mr. Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans the Government have to increase the staying on rate at the age of 16 years; and if he will make a statement.

71. Mr. Harry Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans the Government have to increase the staying on rates at the age of 16 years; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rumbold: As stated in the 1988 public expenditure White Paper the Government wish to encourage greater participation in post 16 education and training. My right hon. Friend aims to raise the level of attainment of young people and to encourage a more positive attitude to continuing education and training. He considers that the examination reforms and new forms of provisions already introduced, together with the curriculum and other school reforms proposed in the Education Reform Bill will help to achieve this objective.

University Funding

63. Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received on his policy on university funding and control.

Mr. Jackson: We have received many representations about university funding and the university provisions in the Education Reform Bill.

Research and Development

65. Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has from the Advisory Board for the Research Councils on Government expenditure on civil academic and academically related research and development as a percentage of gross domestic product in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) France and (c) Germany.

Mr. Jackson: A study commissioned by the Advisory Board for the Research Councils (published in 1986) found that in 1982 Government spending on academic and academically related research amounted to:

	Percentage of GDP
United Kingdom	0·38
France	0·44
West Germany	0·49

The ABRC is currently supporting a further study to update this information.

Teaching Standards

66. Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what steps Her Majesty's Government are taking to ensure that standards of teaching are adequately assessed.

Mrs. Rumbold: The pilot work on teacher appraisal, which is expected to be completed in summer 1989, is being undertaken in six local education authorities under the direction of the national steering group. The intended outcome of the pilot work is a proven set of guidelines which will form the basis of an agreed national framework consistent with the June 1986 ACAS working group report. The implementation of that framework should lead to a system which will both enhance career development for teachers and raise standards of teaching in our schools.

School Discipline

68. Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will set up an inquiry to examine standards of discipline in schools.

Mrs. Rumbold: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Woolwich (Mr. Cartwright) on 29 January at column 399.

Schools (Examination Results)

70. Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether for the purposes of producing legislation he takes into account the O and A-level results obtained by individual schools in assessing the value of such schools.

Mr. Dunn: O and A-level examination results are one of the factors taken into consideration by my right hon. Friend in reaching decisions on proposals under sections 12 and 13 of the Education Act 1980.

School Uniforms

76. Sir John Farr: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will seek powers to enable him to obstruct the plans of some local education authorities which, despite the Education Act 1986, seek to prevent the wearing of school uniforms in schools which have freely opted so to do.

Mr. Dunn: My right hon. Friend has no plans to seek such powers. His own views, as expressed in circular 7/87 from his Department, is that the wearing of school uniform contributes significantly to the ethos of the school and the decision should normally rest with the governing body.

School Meals

77. Mr. Nellist: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has about the average daily charge by local educational authorities for a school meal and how many authorities charge more than the average.

Mr. Dunn: The information requested is included in the October 1986 school meals census, copies of which are available in the Library. The average fixed charge for primary schools was 61p. This sum was exceeded by 50 LEAs. It is not possible to provide equivalent data in respect of secondary schools as many authorities operate cash cafeterias.

"Strategy for Science"

78. Dr. Moonie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what representations he has received following the publication of the Advisory Body on Research Councils, report "Strategy for Science"; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: My right hon. Friend has received 250 representations about the Advisory Board for the Research Council's discussion document "A Strategy for the Science Base". He will be making a statement later this year on the Government's conclusions on policy for the science base, taking account of the ABRC's recommendations and the comments of the higher education and scientific communities.

Schools (Ministerial Visits)

79. Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many schools he has visited in the current year.

Mr. Dunn: One to date.

Day Release Courses

80. Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what consultations he has had with organisations representing employees in inner London concerning the pattern of day release courses in colleges of further education.

Mr. Jackson: None.

EC (Community Action Programme)

Mr. Hannam: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will give details of the extent of United Kingdom involvement in the programme established by the EEC on community action to promote the educational integration of disabled children and young people.

Mr. Dunn: Within the first four-year programme United Kingdom representatives have participated in study visits to schools and to education departments of local and central Government in many member states to develop knowledge and share expertise about the education of handicapped pupils. Participation continues in the field of computing and new technology involving data banks and communication aids for the disabled. There is official and HMI representation at the EC working group meetings which oversee this programme.

Pupil Costs

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how much was spent per pupil in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in (i) England and Wales and (ii) Cheshire in the most recent year for which figures are available; and what were the comparable figures in 1978-79, at constant prices.

Mr. Dunn: The available information is as follows:

Net institutional recurrent expenditure[1] per pupil
£ 1985-86 prices

	Primary schools	Secondary schools
England[2]
1978-79[3]	690	1,000
1985-86	815	1,175
Cheshire
1978-79[3]	670	985
1985-86	760	1,100

[1] Net institutional recurrent expenditure covers the cost of salaries and wages, premises and certain supplies and services. It does not include the cost of school meals, central administration and inspection, debt charges or revenue contributions to capital outlay.

[2] Information for Wales is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

[3] The cash prices for 1978-79 have been repriced to 1985-86 prices using the gross domestic product (market prices) deflator.

Pupil Statistics

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has as to the numbers of children in Northumberland education authority of compulsory school age entering the maintained sector from the private sector of education, over the most recent period for which figures are available.

Mr. Dunn: These figures are not available.

Rating Reform

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what account was taken in fixing the individual student grant award for 1988-89 of the inability of students in Scotland to pay the community charge in 1989-90.

Mr. Jackson: All prospective changes in students' financial circumstances are considered in determining the level of the student grant. In the Government's view, liability for the community charge at the discounted rate of 20 per cent. in the second half of academic year 1988-89 does not justify a higher rate of grant for students studying in Scotland. Rates of grant applicable in England, Wales and Scotland in academic year 1989-90 will be considered in due course.

Housing Benefit (Students)

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what account was taken in fixing the individual student grant award for 1988-89 of the loss of students' entitlement to housing benefit from 1 April.

Mr. Jackson: Students in circumstances which now entitle them to claim housing benefit will not lose that entitlement from 1 April. The reformed system of housing benefit, which will apply to all categories of claimant, was one of the many factors taken into account in the Government's decision to raise grant rates by 4 per cent. in September of this year.

Student Financial Support

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science when he expects to publish his proposals on student fiancial support; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Jackson: The work of the student support review is expected to be completed by the middle of this year.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Waste Disposal

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the effects of waste disposal in all of its forms upon marine life off the coast of Durham.

Mr. Gummer: My Department assesses the effects on marine life of disposals of waste which it licenses. The only significant effect of such disposals off the Durham coast relates to beach tipping of solid colliery waste where there is an identifiable alteration to the nature of the seabed and consequential change in the associated benthos. The area where this occurs is restricted to the foreshore and the offshore area immediately adjacent to the beach. This tipping predates statutory controls over dumping at sea by many years, but care is taken to ensure that the area affected is not extended.

Control of discharges of waste by pipeline is a matter for the Northumbrian water authority under the provisions of the Control of Pollution Act 1974.

EC (Surplus Food)

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received relating to the allocation of surplus European Community food.

Mr. Gummer: I have received a number of expressions of view on the arrangements announced by my right hon. Friend on 12 January, to which I am replying.

Alternative Land Use

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many hectares have been bought under the woodland scheme in the ALURE package (a) in the county of Durham and (b) in Easington district.

Mr. Gummer: None. The farm woodland scheme will not come into operation until later this year following the passage of the necessary legislation.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what are the objectives of the set-aside scheme; and if he will make a statement on Her Majesty's Government's policy on the scheme.

Mr. MacGregor [holding answer 15 February 1988]: The principal aim of the Community set-aside scheme is to reduce surplus production of crops and so reduce budget costs. The Government have pressed for set-aside to be adopted as a complement to stabilisers, not a substitute for them. We also envisage that the scheme can fulfil desirable objectives for the environment. Under the agreement reported to the House yesterday by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, the scheme can now go ahead on a basis that meets these objectives. I and my agriculture colleagues will proceed as quickly as possible to settle details of the arrangements to be applied in the United Kingdom, taking full account of the many responses we have received to our consultation document.

Cereals

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how the annual cost of the cereals regime, as shown in the annual review, breaks down into the costs of (a) intervention purchases, (b) transport, (c) storage, (d) subsidy on disposal, (e) administration and (f) other costs for each of the years from 1984-85 to 1987-88.

Mr. Donald Thompson: A breakdown of expenditure by the Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce on the cereals regime is set out in the table. Administration costs are not included in these figures and are not separately available.

£ million

	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87	[1]1987-88
Intervention purchases	242·0	543·1	121·6	4·8
Incidental costs[2]	30·4	81·4	79·3	54·4
Other expenditure[3]	95·5	29·5	−86·4	131·9
	367·9	654·0	114·5	191·1
Receipts from EAGGF for loss on sales	5·9	33·5	275·5	105·5

[1] Forecast.
[2] Includes storage, transport, intake and discharge costs which are not separately available.
[3] Includes export refunds and positive monetary compensatory amounts offset by proceeds of sales out of intervention, co-responsibility levy and negative monetary compensatory amounts.

European Community

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North, of 20 July 1987, Official Report, column 62, if he will update the details of the total value of agricultural production (a) for the European Economic Community and (b) for each European Economic Community country, to the latest date for which information is now available.

Mr. MacGregor: The latest information is shown in the table.

Total final agricultural production: 1986 (provisional)

	[1]million ecu
Belgium	5,507
Denmark	6,545
Germany	27,581
Greece	7,052
France	42,941
Ireland	3,676
Italy	34,819
Luxembourg	172
Netherlands	14,133
United Kingdom	17,420
Total EC10	159,846
Spain	[2]—
Portugal	[3]—

Source: Eurostat.
[1] At 1986 prices and exchange rates.
[2] The latest figure available is 20,215 million ecu for 1985.
[3] The latest figure available is 2,188 million ecu for 1981.

Food Surpluses

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his latest estimate of the cost to (a) the European Economic Community and (b) the United Kingdom of storing and exporting food surpluses produced in the United Kingdom.

Mr. MacGregor [holding answer 15 February 1988]: All the costs of operations in the United Kingdom under the CAP are ultimately borne by the United Kingdom, either directly or via our contribution to the EC budget. In 1986-87 the costs of storing and exporting surplus commodities (beef, cereals, milk products, sugar) produced in the United Kingdom were:

	£ million
Storage	129
Stock financing (notional)	77
Stock depreciation	45
Loss on sale	444
Export refunds (net of MCAs)	185
Total	880

A total of £813 million was transferred from the EC budget to the United Kingdom in respect of these operations.

During this period £406 million was spent by the Intervention Board on buying stock into intervention and £270 million was received for sales out of intervention.

Monofilament Nets

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he plans to undertake research into bird deaths caused by the use of monofilament gill nets.

Mr. Gummer [holding answer 11 February 1988]: My Department has no plans at present to undertake specific investigations of the effects of monofilament nets on sea bird populations, but we are keeping the situation under review.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what information he has on the recent effects on auk species, including razorbills, of fishermen fishing inshore due to bad weather, using monofilament gill nets off St. Just, Cornwall.

Mr. Gummer [holding answer 11 February 1988]: I have received a number of reports about unusually high mortalities of auks associated with the use of gill nets in St. Ives bay, but not off St. Just. This appears to have resulted from a combination of factors, including the adverse weather.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will introduce further limits, or codes of practice, on the use of monofilament gill nets so as to limit bird deaths in areas of seabird concentrations.

Mr. Gummer [holding answer 11 February 1988]: I have no such plans at present. The use of monofilament gill nets is regulated in a number of ways, including local sea fisheries committee byelaws. Where such nets are used as fixed engines they will be subject to new byelaws being prepared to regulate use of fixed engines in all local sea fisheries districts. In appropriate instances these byelaws will specify the minimum depth below the surface at which fixed gill nets may be set.

ENERGY

North-east Power Stations

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy when he intends to meet the chairman of the Central Electricity Generating Board to discuss the refurbishment of north-east power stations; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I meet the chairman of the Central Electricity Generating Board regularly to discuss a range of issues. The refurbishment of power stations is a matter for the board.

Nuclear Waste

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Newport, West (Mr. Flynn) Official Report, 1 February, column 472, he will place in the Library a copy of the contracts signed before 1976 between British Nuclear Fuels plc and Okg Aktiebolag for spent nuclear fuel and nuclear waste processing, with the specific financial arrangements covered by commercial confidentiality erased from the texts.

Mr. Michael Spicer: Details of contracts between BNF and its customers are a commercial matter for the parties concerned.

Italian Reactor

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Brent, East (Mr. Livingstone) Official Report, 1 February, column 473, if he has any information on why the Italian Latina Magnox reactor has been closed, and on whether this is a permanent closure.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The closure of the Latina Magnox reactor is a matter for the Italian authorities.

Nuclear Fuel

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Newport, West (Mr. Flynn) Official Report, 1 February, column 473, on the reprocessing of electricity board nuclear fuel, he will list as proportions of the annual throughput of nuclear fuel from electricity board reactors in each year from 1980 to 1986, the throughput in the period 15 December 1986 to 15 December 1987.

Mr. Michael Spicer: For the period April 1980 to March 1986, spent fuel deriving from the United Kingdom electricity boards' Magnox reactors accounted for some 90 per cent. of the civil spent fuel reprocessed at Sellafield. For the period April 1986 to March 1987, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to the hon. Member for Colne Valley (Mr. Riddick) on 16 December 1987 at column 516.

Fuel Plants

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will list the number of (a) nuclear power plants, (b) nuclear fuel cycle facilities, (c) fossil fuel plants, (d) fossil fuel processing facilities and (e) renewable energy production and conversion sites he has visited since he became Secretary of State.

Mr. Parkinson: I have visited the nuclear facilities at Dounreay and Sellafield, the Leman and Morecambe bay gas fields, the gas processing facilities at Bacton, and the Orkney wind generator.

My hon. Friends the Minister of State and Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State have visited Dungeness A and B power stations, the Capenhurst enrichment plant, the UKAEA at Harwell, Didcot coal-fired power station, British Alcan's coal-fired power station at Lynemouth, the Fort Dunlop CHP plant, the refuse driven plant at Byker, and the Islay wave power project.

Nuclear Power Plants (Safety Procedures)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if, in the light of the near accident involving two aircraft in airspace over the Dungeness A and B nuclear reactors in Kent on 6 February, he will review the integrity and safety procedures at nuclear power plants against aircraft crashing on (a) the reactor buildings, and (b) the spent nuclear fuel cooling ponds.

Mr. Michael Spicer: I understand that the air traffic incident referred to took place about 20 miles from the Dungeness power stations. At that distance there was no danger to the power stations. The HSE's nuclear installations inspectorate has been reviewing the overflying restrictions as part of its consideration of external hazards at nuclear installations and will make proposals for further restrictions if necessary.

Plutonium

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy how much plutonium, plutonium oxide or plutonium nitrate produced at the Sellafield reprocessing plant had been transported by air prior to December 1987; on what occasions; and whether to (a) overseas civil customers or (b) domestic civil customers.

Mr. Michael Spicer [holding answer 1 February 1988]: From May 1979 up to the end of December 1987, some 4·5 tonnes of plutonium oxide produced at Sellafield has been transported by air for civil purposes. Some 2·5 tonnes of this was despatched to Dounreay as mixed uranium-plutonium oxide for use in the fast reactor programme. The remainder was despatched overseas. Information relating to specific shipments is confidential for reasons of security and commercial sensitivity.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Voluntary Organisations (Grants)

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the grants made by the health and social services boards, the education and library boards, the probation board, the Arts Council, the Police Authority, the Tourist Board and district councils to voluntary organisations in each of the last two years, with the amount in each case and the name and address of the recipient organisations.

Mr. Stanley: Except as stated, the information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The Police Authority does not pay grants to voluntary bodies. Those paid by the probation board are as follows:

Voluntary Body	Grant paid 1986-87	Grant paid 1985-86
Extern Organisation	204,814	247,349
Save the Children Fund, Northern Ireland	176,962	158,726
NI Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders	166,105	173,159
Presbyterian Church in Ireland	56,304	58,357
Dismas House Hostel	21,958	21,154
Ulster Quakers Service Committee	20,151	12,070
Suffolk Adventure Group	20,000	—
Lower Falls 'New Start'	20,000	—
Laganvalley Auto Project	20,000	—
Newtownabbey Auto Project	15,000	5,000
Belfast Rape Crisis Centre	11,440	11,000
Twinbrook Tenants/Community Association	10,400	2,270
NI Victim Support Scheme	5,778	—
Citizens Advice Bureau	3,780	1,500
Inter Agency	3,475	3,367
Prison Fellowship	3,000	—
Edward Street Hostel	3,000	3,000
Joe Lindsay Memorial Group	3,000	3,261
Westrock/Whiterock Community Group	3,000	—
Cookstown Hostel (MUST)	3,000	—
Simon Community	3,000	—
Dunmurry Christian Community	1,100	—
Irish German Exhange Trip	1,000	—
Clonard Parent/Youth Support Group	1,000	—
Oliver Plunkett Education and Leisure Services	—	2,500
Horn Drive Parent Youth Group	—	1,500
Belfast Voluntary Welfare Society	—	1,250
Farset City Farm	—	1,000
Total	777,267	706,463

Maghaberry Prison

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) if he will make a statement on the reasons for the shortfall of prisoners in Maghaberry prison, in the light of general prison overcrowding;

(2) why Maghaberry prison will, by mid-February, after a build-up, have a shortfall of 332 prisoners.

Mr. Stanley: The overcrowding which occurs in many prisons in England and Wales is not a feature of Northern Ireland prisons. The current build-up of the prisoner population at Maghaberry began in November 1987 with the initial aim of having one of its four houses occupied with around 100 inmates by mid-February 1988. The build-up will continue, but because of the need to relocate staff and to give careful consideration to which prisoners should be transferred, full occupancy has to be phased in over a period.

Administration of Justice

Mr. McCusker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if, pursuant to his answer of 3 February, he will list in precise terms the concerns about the present arrangements for the administration of justice in Northern Ireland which have been made known to him by the Government of the Republic of Ireland.

Mr. Stanley: Joint statements issued after each meeting of the Intergovernmental Conference set out subjects discussed. As is customary with communications between Governments, it has not been our practice to make public further detail of the discussions.

Prisoners (Strip Searches)

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many strip searches were made of female prisoners in Her Majesty's prison, Maghaberry in January 1988, giving the number of persons involved and number of times each person was searched and if any prison contraband, smuggled item or illegal correspondence was discovered in any search indicating which items; in how many cases prisoners refused to be searched and had to be restrained while the search was being conducted; and what were the reasons for the search under each of the following headings: making a remand appearance at court, attending trial, inter-prison visit or other reasons.

Mr. Stanley: The information requested is as follows:

Number of Searches	Number
Total number of searches carried out	33
Total number of inmates searched	25
Number of prisoners searched once	17
Number of prisoners searched twice	8
Number of prisoners searched three times or more	—
Reasons for Search
First admission on remand/awaiting trial	11
First admission on sentence/final discharge	16
Attending Newry Remand Court	1
Going on or returning from home leave	2
Inter-prison visits	1
After a visit	2

No prohibited article was found during these searches and no prisoner refused to be searched.

Electricity Supplies

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is available to indicate the number of households by district which have no electricity supply.

Mr. Viggers: The best currently available information is contained in table 18 of the 1984 Northern Ireland "House Condition Survey", a copy of which is available in the Library, which shows by region and district the number of dwellings without an electricity supply.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is available to indicate how many households without electricity supply have made application for supply to Northern Ireland Electricity.

Mr. Viggers: None. In 1987 Northern Ireland Electricity received 18,111 applications regarding electricity supply, but its records do not show how many of these concerned existing households without supply.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is available to indicate the charges to the consumer for providing an electricity supply in (a) rural and (b) urban areas in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Viggers: Northern Ireland Electricity does not differentiate between urban and rural areas in determining its domestic connection charges. The basic position is that anyone seeking an electricity supply is required to pay 60 per cent. of the actual cost of connection. The cost can be reduced if spread over a number of households which are being connected simultaneously. In the case of new housing developments consisting of a group of 12 or more houses convenient to an existing mains supply, a fixed charge of £150 per house applies.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is available to indicate what proportion of houses without electricity supply in Northern Ireland, by district, are farm households.

Mr. Viggers: None.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is available to indicate the levels of social security dependency in households which have no electricity supply.

Mr. Needham: The information requested is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hume: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information is available to indicate the numbers of existing households in rural areas which have been supplied with electricity for the first time in the last five years.

Mr. Viggers: None. During the five-year period ending 31 December 1987 there was a net increase of 43,488 in the total number of households connected to the electricity supply system in Northern Ireland. However, Northern Ireland Electricity's records do not differentiate between urban and rural areas or existing and new houses.

Building Contractors (Attacks)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many attacks have been carried out upon building contractors or those employed by them in the last three years; how many deaths and injuries have resulted; and what information he has as to the groups responsible for each attack.

Mr. Stanley: Information about injuries is not readily available. The list shows the number of building contractors and their staff whom we are aware have been killed by terrorists in the last three years, together with the background of the groups believed to have been responsible.

	Murdered by Republican terrorists	Murdered by Loyalist terrorists
1985	—	1
1986	5	1
1987	1	1
1988 (to date)	—	1

Irish Republican Army

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his estimate of the sums obtained by the Irish Republican Army from extortion in the building industry in Northern Ireland in the last three years; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Stanley: Reliable estimates of sums obtained by extortion in the building industry by both Republican and Loyalist paramilitary organisations are not available. The problem of extortion in the building industry and elsewhere is, however, recognised to be serious and major efforts are being made to combat it.

Paramilitary Organisations (Fraud Convictions)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many convictions have been obtained in the last three years for which figures are available against members of paramilitary organisations who have defrauded the Inland Revenue; if he will give the figures divided between Republican and Protestant paramilitary groups; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Stanley: Since 1984, 114 convictions have been obtained against paramilitaries who had defrauded the Inland Revenue. All convictions were against those believed to belong to Republican groups. Convictions have been obtained against paramilitaries believed to belong to Loyalist groups for other types of racketeering offences.

Extortion

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement about the operation of the Northern Ireland Emergency Provisions Act 1987 as it applies to preventing the use of extortion rackets to fund paramilitary activities.

Mr. Stanley: Under part III of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1987 it became an offence, from 1 January 1988, to provide or to offer to provide security guard services for reward without a certificate issued by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State. My right hon. Friend may refuse to issue such a certificate, or may revoke one which is already in force, if he is satisfied that a proscribed organisation or an organisation closely associated with a proscribed organisation would be likely to benefit from the issue of the certificate.

To date 50 certificates have been issued. Although no applicant has been refused a certificate, a number of firms have not applied for one. Our understanding is that these companies have ceased trading as a result of the legislation. We believe therefore that the provisions are having their desired effect of inhibiting the exploitation of security requirements by paramilitary organisations.

Fair Employment Agency

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list for the past five years for which figures are available the bodies investigated by the Fair Employment Agency and the subsequent outcome.

Mr. Viggers [holding answer 15 February 1988]: In the five year period to 31 January 1988 the Fair Employment Agency published reports of 16 investigations. Copies of the relevant findings are available in the Library. The agency has recently completed a further two investigations, reports of which have still to be published, and a further 36 investigations are currently under way. Sectors or organisations investigated by the agency are as follows:

Sector-body investigated and outcome

1. *Employment patterns in the Belfast areas with particular reference to engineering — Report published September 1983.
2. *Employment patterns in the Londonderry area — Report published September 1983.
3. Belfast Telegraph Newspapers Ltd. — Report published September 1983.
4. The British Broadcasting Corporation in Northern Ireland—Report published November 1983.
5. The non-industrial Northern Ireland Civil Service — Report published December 1983.
6. The Fire Authority for Northern Ireland — Report published June 1984.
7. The Unipork Organisation — Report published February 1985.

8. Northern Ireland Housing Executive — Report published October 1985.
9. The ambulance services of the Health and Social Services in Northern Ireland. — Report published November 1985.
10. The Ulster museum.—Report published March 1986.
11. Nine building societies (Halifax, Woolwich, Abbey National, Gateway, Nationwide, Leicester, Leeds Permanent, Anglia and Progressive).—Report published March 1986.
12. The Southern Health and Social Services board. — Report published March 1986.
13. The principal banks in Northern Ireland (TSB, Northern Bank, Allied Irish Bank, Ulster Bank and Bank of Ireland).—Report published March 1986.
14. Eight insurance companies (Britannic, Pearl, Prudential, Refuge, United Friendly, Commercial Union, General Accident and Royal). — Report published November 1986.
15. Derby city council.—Report published September 1987.
16. Hyster (NI) Limited. — Report published November 1987.
17. Newry and Mourne district council. — Investigation completed. Report not yet published.
18. Northern Ireland Railways — Investigation completed. Report not yet published.
19. Moy Meats.—Investigation underway.
20. Ulster Bus/City Bus.—Investigation underway.
21. Queen's University of Belfast.—Investigation underway.
22. University of Belfast.—Investigation underway.
23. Western Health and Social Services Board — Investigation underway.
24. North Eastern Education and Library Board — Investigation underway.
25. Coleraine Borough Council—Investigation underway.
26. Dungannon District Council—Investigation underway.
27. Craigavon Borough Council—Investigation underway.
28. Limavady District Council—Investigation underway.
29. Ballymena Borough Council—Investigation underway.
30. Antrim Borough Council—Investigation underway.
31. Ballymoney Borough Council—Investigation underway.
32. Carrickfergus Borough Council — Investigation underway.
33. Banbridge District Council—Investigation underway.
34. Lisburn Borough Council—Investigation underway.
35. Magherafelt District Council—Investigation underway.
36. Ards Borough Council—Investigation underway.
37. Isaac Agnew—Investigation underway.
38. Irish Road Motors—Investigation underway.
39. Philips Motors—Investigation underway.
40. Prentice—Investigation underway.
41. Bairds Limited—Investigation underway.
42. J. E. Coulter Limited—Investigation underway.
43. Dencourt Motors—Investigation underway.
44. Desmond Motors—Investigation underway.
45. Lindsay Cars—Investigation underway.
46. James Eakin & Sons Limited—Investigation underway.
47. Dornan Service Station—Investigation underway.
48. Cars Limited—Investigation underway.
49. R. Kennedy and Company—Investigation underway.
50. Neville Johnston—Investigation underway.
51. Sidney Pentland—Investigation underway.
52. Charles Hurst—Investigation underway.
53. Blue Circle Industries Plc.—Investigation underway.
54. Dunmanbridge Creamery—Investigation underway.

* Employers investigated not named.

Written Answers to Questions

Wednesday 17 February 1988

WALES

Job Creation

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the number of jobs he estimates will be made available in the next four years (a) in Clwyd and (b) in Wales, as a result of the new system of grants; and what was the number of jobs projected under the regional development grant system.

Mr. Peter Walker: Under the regional development grant scheme, 22,500 jobs in Wales and 7,700 jobs in Clwyd are expected to be created as a result of projects already approved for grant. The number of jobs created under the new grants schemes will depend on the response from industry and on the number and size of individual projects for which assistance is sought. I am confident that the new schemes will have a very beneficial effect on employment in Wales as a result of the substantial increase in regional industrial expenditure planned over the next three years.

County Structure Plans

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the status of county structure plans; and what regard is given to them in deciding planning applications not in conformity with the structure plan.

Mr. Grist: In any area the structure plan forms part of the statutory development plan. A decision on an application for planning permission must have regard to the provisions of the development plan, so far as material to the application, and to any other material considerations. The latest central Government advice on these matters is set out in paragraphs 11 to 15 of planning policy guidance note No. 1 (PPG 1), dated January 1988, which was issued with Welsh Office circular No. 1/88, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House.

Pharmacies

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will supply figures for the number of pharmacies in each family practitioner committee area in Wales for each year since 1978 to the latest date for which figures are available.

Mr. Grist: The number of pharmaceutical chemists in family practitioner committee areas in Wales at 31 December of each year is given in the table:

Family Practitioner Committee Area	1978	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Clwyd	89	89	89	89	88	87	83	83	85
Dyfed	95	96	94	93	90	90	90	92	96
Gwent	92	94	93	93	91	90	90	90	90
Gwynedd	64	64	63	62	61	60	59	59	61
Mid Glamorgan	115	117	116	115	116	120	124	126	134
Powys	25	24	24	22	23	23	23	23	23
South Glamorgan	101	99	99	97	100	96	96	98	102
West Glamorgan	99	100	101	99	100	100	100	105	105
Wales	680	683	679	670	669	666	665	676	696

Appointments

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list all the appointments he has made to organisations in Wales since June 1987.

Mr. Peter Walker [holding answer 16 January 1988]: In the period from 13 June 1987 to 31 December 1987, I have made the following appointments to public bodies in Wales:

	Chairman	Deputy Chairman	Members
Agricultural Advisory Panel for Wales	—	—	4
Cardiff Bay Development Corporation	—	1	—
Committee on Agricultural Valuation for Wales	—	—	1
Committee for the Welsh Scheme for the Development of Health and Social Research	—	—	1
Court of University College, Bangor	—	—	1
Court of University College, Swansea	—	—	1
Community Health Council—Clwyd South	—	—	1
—Clwyd North	—	—	1
—South Gwent	—	—	1
—Ogwr	—	—	1
—Vale of Glamorgan	—	—	1
Cwmbran Development Corporation	—	—	1
District Health Authority—Mid Glamorgan	—	—	1
—Powys	—	—	2
—West Glamorgan	—	—	1
Family Practitioner Committee—Gwent	—	—	2
—Gwynedd	—	—	2

	Chairman	Deputy Chairman	Members
—Mid Glamorgan	—	—	1
—Powys	—	—	2
—West Glamorgan	—	—	1
Health Policy Board	—	—	1
Historic Buildings Council	—	—	2
Land Authority for Wales	—	1	5
Library and Information Services Council (Wales)	—	—	4
South Wales Sea Fisheries Committee	—	—	1
Wales Tourist Board	1	—	1
Welsh Committee on Drug Misuse	—	—	1
Welsh Development Agency	—	—	2
Welsh Health Common Services Authority	—	—	4
Welsh Industrial Development Advisory Board	—	—	1
Welsh National Board for Nursing, Midwifery and Health Visiting	—	—	1
Welsh Water Authority	—	—	4
	1	2	53

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many of the people he has appointed to public bodies since his appointment are normally resident outside Wales.

Mr. Peter Walker [holding answer 16 February 1988]: Of the 56 people I have appointed in the period from 13 June 1987 to 31 December 1987, 52 are normally resident within Wales. Of the remaining four, two are reappointments, one is Welsh by origin, and the other is a specialist in his field.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Assisted Places Scheme

Mr. Andrew Bowden: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science (1) if he will make a statement on the criteria and conditions required by state and public schools for acceptance on the assisted places scheme;

(2) if he will list those schools, both state and public, that have applied to join the assisted places scheme in the last 12 months; and when he expects to announce his decision as to whether or not they have been accepted.

Mr. Dunn: The assisted places scheme exists to give help with tuition fees at certain independent secondary schools to the parents of able children who might not otherwise attend these schools. The principal criteria for admission to the scheme cover overall and sixth form size, curricular breadth, examination success and general academic merit. In addition, the Secretary of State has regard to the desirability of securing an equitable distribution of assisted places both geographically and between boys and girls.

A total of 128 schools have within the last 12 months submitted formal applications to join the scheme. These are listed in the table. Careful consideration is now being given to these applications and my right hon. Friend will announce the outcome in due course.

Independent Schools which have submitted formal applications to join the Assisted Places Scheme

Abbotsholme School, Uttoxeter
Ackworth School, Pontefract
Ardingly College, Haywards Heath
Ashville College, Harrogate
Austin Friars, Carlisle
Barnard Castle School, Co. Durham
Bedstone College, Bucknell
Bentham School, Nr. Lancaster
Birkdale School, Sheffield
Bloxham School, Banbury
Bootham School, York
Box Hill School, Dorking
Bromsgrove School, Worcs.
Blue Coat School, Birmingham (Prep.)
Burgess Hill School for Girls
Cheltenham Ladies College
Christ's Hospital School, Horsham
City of London Freemans School, Ashstead
Claremont Fan Court School, Surrey
Clayesmore School, Dorset
Combe Bank School, Sevenoaks
Convent of Our Lady of Providence, Hants.
Croft House School, Dorset
Croham Hurst School, Croydon
Culcheth Hall School, Altrincham
Derby High School
Douai School, Reading
Dover College
Downe House School, Newbury
Durham School
Edgbaston C of E College for Girls
Ellerslie School, Worcs.
Ellesmere College
Elmslie Girls School
Felixstowe College
Fernhill Manor School, New Milton
Fulneck Boys School, Pudsey
Giggleswick School, Settle
Godolphin School, The, Salisbury
Guildford High School for Girls
Haileybury and Imperial Service College
Halliford School, Surrey
Headington School, Oxford
Heathfield School, Pinner
Hipperholme G S, Halifax
Hollygirt School, Nottingham
Holy Child School, Edgbaston
Holy Trinity Convent School, Bromley
Hurstpierpoint College, Hassocks
Huyton College, Liverpool
Kelly College, Devon
Kent College, Tunbridge Wells
Kimbolton School, Cambridgeshire
Kings School, Bruton
Kings School, Gloucester
Kingsley School The, Leamington Spa
Laxton School, Peterborough
Leicester G S
Leicester High School for Girls
Leighton Park School, Reading
Lubavitch House School, N16
Marist Convent Senior School, Ascot
Menorah G S, NW11
Moira House School, Eastbourne
Mount School The, NW7
Mount School, York
Mount Carmel School, Cheshire

Newcastle-upon-Tyne Church High School
Notre Dame Senior School, Cobham
Oakham School, Rutland
Oswestry School
Our Lady's Convent Senior School, Abingdon
Pangbourne College, Reading
Pierrepont School, Farnham
Polam Hall School, Darlington
Presentation College, Reading
Princethorpe College, Rugby
Prior Park College, Bath
Purcell School
Reading Blue Coat School
Reed's School, Cobham
Rendcomb College, Cirencester
Rickmansworth Masonic School, Hertfordshire
Rosemead School, Littlehampton
Royal Russell School, Croydon
Royal Walverhampton School
Ryde School, Isle of Wight
St. Anne's School, Windermere
St. Brandons School, Clevedon
St. Columba's College, St. Albans
St. Edmunds School, Canterbury
St. Edwards School, Cheltenham
St. Felix School, Southwold
St. Francis College, Letchworth
St. Georges School, Ascot
St. Hildas School, Whitby
St. Joseph's College, Stoke-on-Trent
St. Lawrence College, Ramsgate
St. Margaret's School, Bushey
St. Margaret's School, Exeter
St. Martin's School, Solihull
St. Mary's Convent, Folkestone
St. Mary's Convent, Worcester
St. Mary's Convent, Shaftsbury
St. Michael's School, Oxted
St. Nicholas School, Fleet
St. Teresa's Convent School, Dorking
St. Ursula's High School, Bristol
Sacred Heart College, Droitwich
Sacred Heart School, Tunbridge Wells
Scarisbrick Hall School, Lancashire
Scarborough College
Sevenoaks School
Shebbear College, Devon
Silcoats School, Wakefield
Solihull School
Stella Maris Convent School, Bideford
Stratford House School, Bromley
Surbiton High School
Tettenhall College, Wolverhampton
Tormead School, Guildford
Upper Tooting High School, Balham
Ursuline Convent School, Kent
Wentworth Milton Mount School, Bournemouth
Westonbirt School, Tetbury
Westwood House School, Peterborough
Worksop College, Nottinghamshire
Wrekin College, Telford

Higher Education (Allowances)

Mr. Ashdown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what would be the cost of providing each 16 to 19-year-old student attending higher or further education with an allowance equivalent to the pay of a youth training scheme trainee, on the assumption that there would be a 50 pe cent. take-up of places.

Mr. Jackson: If 50 per cent. of 16, 17 and 18-year-olds participated in full-time education and received an allowance equivalent to the youth training scheme allowance, the annual cost of those payments would be some £1,900 million. This figure is based on 50 per cent. of the total population of 16-year-olds in England receiving £28·50 per week — the youth training scheme allowance for that age — and 50 per cent. of 17 and 18-year-olds in England receiving £35 per week — the allowance for trainees in their second year.

The figure does not discount awards currently made by LEAs to students in this age group. Nor does it take account of child benefit payments to the parents of students in full-time education up to their 19th birthday.

Educational Assessments

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will provide the latest available figures of the number of children with statements under the Education Act 1981 in each local authority in England, Scotland and Wales.

Mr. Dunn: The number of pupils with statements of special educational need attending maintained primary, middle and secondary schools and special schools in each local education authority in England in January 1987 is given in the table. Information on the number of pupils with statements of special educational need in Scotland and Wales is the responsibility of my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Scotland and for Wales.

Pupils with statements in each LEA[1] January 1987

	Pupils
Barking	272
Barnet	531
Bexley	525
Brent	492
Bromley	761
Croydon	835
Ealing	597
Enfield	503
Haringey	431
Harrow	396
Havering	484
Hillingdon	558
Hounslow	721
Kingston upon Thames	324
Merton	316
Newham	680
Redbridge	499
Richmond upon Thames	237
Sutton	394
Waltham Forest	893
Inner London	8,386
Birmingham	3,673
Coventry	1,052
Dudley	694
Sandwell	1,022
Solihull	410
Walsall	760
Wolverhampton	736
Knowsley	654
Liverpool	1,974
St. Helens	557
Sefton	803
Wirral	1,170
Bolton	632
Bury	432
Manchester	2,024
Oldham	735
Rochdale	713
Salford	940
Stockport	1,024
Tameside	585
Trafford	673

	Pupils
Wigan	838
Barnsley	426
Doncaster	1,035
Rotherham	770
Sheffield	1,427
Bradford	1,388
Calderdale	411
Kirklees	1,003
Leeds	2,526
Wakefield	816
Gateshead	588
Newcastle-upon-Tyne	1,036
North Tyneside	659
South Tyneside	402
Sunderland	882
Isles of Scilly	0
Avon	4,450
Bedfordshire	1,298
Berkshire	2,186
Buckinghamshire	2,459
Cambridgeshire	1,753
Cheshire	3,476
Cleveland	2,287
Cornwall	1,173
Cumbria	1,306
Derbyshire	3,135
Devon	3,107
Dorset	1,777
Durham	1,381
East Sussex	1,964
Essex	4,371
Gloucestershire	1,409
Hampshire	4,836
Hereford and Worcester	1,880
Hertfordshire	3,294
Humberside	2,129
Isle of Wight	352
Kent	4,882
Lancashire	4,207
Leicestershire	1,734
Lincolnshire	1,736
Norfolk	1,729
North Yorkshire	1,726
Northamptonshire	1,856
Northumberland	774
Nottinghamshire	2,597
Oxfordshire	1,040
Shropshire	1,353
Somerset	1,398
Staffordshire	2,576
Suffolk	1,708
Surrey	3,361
Warwickshire	1,633
West Sussex	1,522
Wiltshire	1,852
England	141,962

[1] Excludes independent schools and nursery schools.

Middle Schools

Dr. Hampson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science how many middle schools of eight to 12 years and of nine to 13 years there are; and what are the approximate numbers of pupils in each category.

Mr. Dunn: The number of maintained middle schools of age eight to 12 and of nine to 13, and the number of pupils in these schools in January 1987 in England was as follows:

Middle schools with age range	Schools	Pupils
8 to 12	598	147,737
9 to 13	569	193,085

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Irish Republic

Mr. McCusker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if, pursuant to his answer of 9 February, Official Report, column 149, he will list in precise detail the views and proposals of the Government of the Irish Republic put forward by them at the meeting of the Anglo-Irish Inter-Government Council both in November 1985 and since that date; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Chalker: My right hon. and learned Friend cannot give details of specific proposals put forward in private by the Irish Government. Nonetheless, a detailed communiqué was issued after the meeting of the Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Council at Hillsborough in November 1985, and joint statements have been issued after each meeting of the Intergovernmental Conference held since.

Nuclear Power Stations (Attacks)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is Her Majesty's Government's policy towards the discussions in the conference on disarmament on banning attacks on nuclear power stations; and if he will take steps to strengthen the provisions of article 56 of protocol I of the 1977 additional protocols to the 1949 Geneva convention.

Mr. Mellor: The prevention of attacks on peaceful nuclear facilities is the subject of discussion by the conference on disarmament's ad hoc committee on radiological weapons. The United Kingdom plays a constructive role in these talks and is chairing the committee this year.

We do not believe that it would be appropriate to attempt to alter the text of the 1977 additional protocols, which were preceded by long and detailed negotiations.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

Food Aid

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has as to (a) the estimated value of emergency food relief contributions, by country, for the years 1985 to 1987-88, (b) whether these contributions are deducted from the overseas aid budget of such countries, and (c) the proportion of the overseas aid budgets of such countries these payments represent.

Mr. Patten: The table contains details of total food aid by donor country for 1985 and 1986 and the percentage of total official development assistance of each country that these figures represent. Information on the value of food aid used for emergency relief is not separately available. Nor is information readily available on the relationships between the overseas aid budget and expenditure on food aid in all the countries listed.

DAC donor countries—food aid 1985 and 1986

$ million

	1985 Food aid	1985 As percentage of oda	1986 Food aid	1986 As percentage of oda
Australia	51	6·8	84	11·2
Austria	8	3·2	3	1·5
Belgium	44	10·0	20	3·6
Canada	263	16·1	262	15·5
Denmark	25	5·7	27	3·9
Finland	12	5·7	21	6·7
France	127	3·2	122	2·4
Germany	204	6·9	227	5·9
Ireland	8	20·5	2	3·2
Italy	164	14·9	259	10·8
Japan	27	0·7	66	1·2
Netherlands	85	7·5	109	6·3
New Zealand	1	1·9	—	—
Norway	27	4·7	27	3·4
Sweden	38	4·5	35	3·2
Switzerland	29	9·6	30	7·1
United Kingdom	137	9·0	98	5·6
United States	1,859	19·8	1,518	15·9
Total DAC countries	3,113	10·6	2,912	7·9

Note: Total bilateral and multilateral food aid ie includes food aid by EEC according to member states shares of EC budget.
ODA = Official development assistance (net).
Source: Development assistance committee (DAC) of the OECD.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Motor Manufacturers (Components)

Mr. Bright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has as to which British-based motor manufacturers are in a position to fit (a) oxidation catalysts and (b) three-way catalysts to their products from 1 January 1989.

Mr. Atkins: Some United Kingdom motor manufacturers are currently producing three-way catalyst versions of certain of their models for export markets which enforce emissions standards requiring such equipment. However, these models are not necessarily produced in specifications designed for United Kingdom conditions. No United Kingdom manufacturers are presently supplying cars fitted with oxidation catalysts. The future model plans of the manufacturers are a commercial matter for the companies concerned.

Trade Statistics

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will update the information contained in his reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North on 10 February 1987, Official Report, column 164, regarding the crude balance of imports and exports of (a) cereals and cereal preparations, (b) motor vehicles and (c) electrical goods in 1979 and 1987 and the net overall position in 1979 and 1987; and if he will also show (A) total imports and (B) total exports of (i) cereals and cereal preparations, (ii) all agricultural products, (iii) all other imports and exports, (iv) motor vehicles, (v) electrical goods, (vi) steel and (vii) coal for 1979 and 1987, giving in each case, the difference between (A) and (B) in actual and percentage terms.

Mr. Alan Clark: The information is as follows:

Value : £ million

	1979				*1987
	(a) imports (cif)	(b) exports (fob)	Crude balance		(a) imports (cif)	(b) exports (fob)	Crude balance
			£ million	as a percentage of (a)			£ million	as a percentage of (a)
Total trade	48,423	42,802	−5,621	12	94,016	79,851	−14,165	15
of which:
(i) Cereals and cereal preparations	668	264	−404	60	741	831	+90	12
(ii) Agricultural products	6,264	1,814	−4,450	71	9,407	4,080	−5,327	57
(iii) Other	42,160	40,988	−1,172	3	84,609	75,771	−8,838	10
of which:
(iv) Motor vehicles	2,997	1,519	−1,479	49	5,692	2,452	−3,240	57
(v) Electrical goods	3,643	3,633	−9	0	13,529	10,246	−3,283	24
(vi) Steel	998	1,080	+83	8	1,603	1,874	+271	17
(vii) Coal	136	62	−74	54	368	78	−290	79

Sources: The following SITC/R2 data in the United Kingdom Overseas Trade Statistics: (i) Division 04, (ii) Sections 0 & 4 and Division 22, (iv) Groups 781, 782, 783 and Sub-group 784.1, (v) Divisions 75, 76, 77 and Group 716, (vi) Groups 672-675, Sub-groups 678.2, .3, .4 and 679.3 and Items 676.01 (part), .02 (part), 679.42 and 791.99 (part), (vii) Sub-groups 322.1 and 322.2.
Notes: (i) crude balance is United Kingdom exports (fob) less United Kingdom imports (cif). (ii) 0 signifies a value of less than 0.5. (iii) * 1987 figures are provisional.

Fertilisers

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of fertilisers, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark: The available information for the United Kingdom for the value of output for years up to 1985 is published in the "Business Monitor" series PA 1002, "Report on the Census of Production", summary volume (table 11); 1986 output data are available in "Business Monitor" PA 251 (table 8). The available information on United Kingdom export and import ratios is published in "Business Monitor" series MQ12, import penetration and export sales ratios for manufacturing industry. These publications are available in the Library. Similar information for the Federal Republic of Germany and Japan is not available.

Superconductivity

Sir David Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what measures he is taking to promote the application of the principles of superconductivity in British industry.

Mr. Butcher: On 21 January 1988, the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry announced a £16 million three-year programme to stimulate collaborative industrial research on superconductivity. The DTI will provide up to 50 per cent. of the programme cost and industry will find the balance. Work supported under the programme will include research into materials and device applications, as well as research aimed at producing superconductors that work at room temperature. The programme has been developed in consultation with the electronics and electrical engineering industries, and complements the Science and Engineering Research Council's programme of academic research in HEIs, including the first university research centre at Cambridge. The DTI and SERC have together established a National Committee for Superconductivity, announced in October 1987. Chaired by Sir Martin Wood, the national committee co-ordinates support for industrial and academic research and advises on national policy for superconductors.

Financial Services Act

Mr. Blair: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what representations he has received from interested bodies concerning applications to register with self-regulating organisations under the Financial Services Act.

Mr. Maude: I have received many representations about this and other aspects of the Financial Services Act.

Mr. Blair: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he has any estimate of the number of applications currently before the self-regulating organisations or the Securities and Investments Board.

Mr. Maude: I am informed by the Securities and Investments Board that the number of applications by investment businesses for authorisation by a recognised self-regulating organisation or the Securities and Investments Board which were either approved or in the course of consideration as at 12 February 1988 was approximately 9,800.

Mr. Blair: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what plans he has to advertise further the time limits for applications before self-regulating organisations or the Securities and Investments Board.

Mr. Maude: My Department will be issuing a further series of advertisements in both national and regional press drawing to the attention of investment businesses the need to apply for authorisation before 27 February. This follows two earlier series of advertisements which, regrettably, some investment businesses seem to have ignored.

Mr. Blair: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he is satisfied that the Securities and Investments Board and the self-regulating organisations have adequate staff and resources to deal with the applications before them; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Maude: The then Secretary of State concluded before proposing the transfer of functions to the SIB in May 1987 that the staff and resources available to it were sufficient for the time. I believe that still to be the case. Before recognising a self-regulating organisation under the Act, the SIB is required to satisfy itself as to a number of factors, including the adequacy of the organisation's resources. I see no reason to differ from SIB's judgment.

Wimbledon Citizens' Advice Bureau (Pamphlet)

Dr. Goodson-Wickes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will take steps to cease the distribution by the citizens' advice bureau in Wimbledon of the pamphlet "Sex", published by the Terrence Higgins Trust, in view of its explicit promotion of exclusively homosexual activities.

Mr. Butcher: Policy and day-to-day running of the citizens' advice bureaux are matters for the National Association of Citizens' Advice Bureaux (NACAB). I understand that NACAB circulates to bureaux a monthly information pack on AIDS publications which provides a comprehensive list of leaflets available on AIDS, including the Terrence Higgins Trust leaflet "Sex", which bureaux may choose to look at to decide whether they might be helpful to clients. The NACAB has informed me that, in its view, this leaflet is not suitable for public display and that it has not distributed it to bureaux. The NACAB has also informed me that the leaflet has not been stocked, distributed or displayed by the Wimbledon CAB.

Specialised Satellite Services

Mr. Forth: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he intends to liberalise the provision of specialised satellite services; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: The Government remain committed to the duopoly policy in telecommunications which was announced in November 1983. The Government made clear then that they did not intend to license operators other than BT and Mercury to provide the basic telecommunication service of conveying messages over fixed links whether cable, radio or satellite either domestically or internationally. This position will not be reviewed until November 1990.

The Government also made clear that they would give consideration to ways of introducing new specialised services by satellite. We are now proposing a degree of liberalisation in this area. Before settling the final details, we are allowing a six-week consultation period on how the following arrangements should be brought into practice.

Our present intention is to license up to another six operators to provide point to multi-point satellite-based third party services in the United Kingdom only. If more than six acceptable proposals are put to us in a one-month qualifying period after the consultation period has ended, we will ask the Director General of Telecommunications to advise us which of the applicants to license.

We are also intending to license receive-only terminals on users' permises. Users will be licensed to receive all kinds of satellite-delivered services within the scope of the Telecommunications Act 1984, whether national or international. A licence under that Act will be issued shortly after the end of the consultation period. The licence will not permit users to convey the signals received onwards beyond their own premises. An announcement about the implications of this decision for the licensing regime under the Wireless Telegraphy Act 1949 will be made shortly.

Chemicals

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what was the total output of chemicals, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987;

(2) what was the total output of chemicals, by value, the percentage exported and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 16 February 1988]: The available information is as follows:

Chemicals

	Sales (US $ million)			Export ratio (percentage)			Import penetration (percentage)
	United Kingdom	FRG	Japan	United Kingdom	FRG	Japan	United Kingdom	FRG	Japan
1965	5,675	8,471	5,506	22·0	29·1	9·9	14·6	16·8	7·6
1970	7,602	13,625	15,256	24·6	37·2	8·1	17·8	24·0	6·7
1975	15,093	30,283	34,845	31·3	38·6	11·1	22·3	23·6	6·2
1979	27,960	55,870	68,316	34·9	43·0	8·9	28·8	29·2	7·7
1980	31,772	59,324	79,461	37·4	43·9	8·6	27·8	30·5	7·9
1981	29,138	51,710	81,946	38·5	46·2	8·3	30·2	32·4	7·9
1982	26,438	48,516	74,097	40·2	47·2	8·6	32·9	33·8	9·1
1983	25,681	49,733	80,956	41·1	48·3	8·6	34·8	34·6	8·9
1984	25,193	49,418	84,881	43·9	50·8	9·0	38·2	36·6	9·7
1985	26,112	50,527	85,865	46·6	51·7	9·0	39·3	38·1	9·4
1986	30,499	64,544	115,674	46·8	51·4	8·2	40·1	37·6	8·4

Notes:
1. Information for 1958 and 1960 and 1987 is not readily available.
2. Figures for United Kingdom and Japan exclude man-made fibres, whilst for FRG they include man-made fibres.

Source: Basic International Chemical Industry Statistics 1963-1986 published by Chemical Industries Association.

Sub-postmasters (Annual Revisions)

Sir Ian Gilmour: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has as to how many sub-postmasters' annual revisions are awaiting checking at postal finance depot, Chesterfield; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Butcher [holding answer 16 February 1988]: This is an operational matter for the Post Office Board and I have therefore drawn my right hon. and learned Friend's question to the attention of the chairman of the Post Office.

Acrylics

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of acrylics, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 16 February 1988]: I regret that this information is not available. The only available information relates to the United Kingdom and is published in the "Business Monitor" PQ2514 (tables 2 and 5).

Videotape

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what was the total output of videotape, the percentage exported, and the proportion of the domestic market taken by imports in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) West Germany and (c) Japan, in 1958, 1960, 1965, 1970, 1975 and in each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 16 February 1988]: I regret that this information is not available. Information for the United Kingdom on output of videotapes is not published because the figures would disclose information about individual undertakings.

PRIME MINISTER

Brussels Council

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister what is the agreed limit on agricultural spending for the current year in consequence of the Brussels Council agreement; and what was the agreed limit for 1987.

The Prime Minister: As I indicated in my statement of 15 February the guideline base for 1988 has been set at 27·5 billion ecu (about £19 billion). The limit for 1987 was just under 23 billion ecu (about £16 billion).

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister what estimate she has made of the maximum expenditure which the European Economic Community would be entitled to undertake if the 1·2 gross national product formula agreed at the Brussels Council were applied in full; and what limit would have applied if the 1·4 limit had remained in force.

The Prime Minister: The 1·2 per cent. gross national product ceiling on the Community's own resources agreed at the European Council is equivalent in 1988 to some 46·5 billion ecu (£32·2 billion), whilst the current 1·4 per cent. value added tax ceiling this year is equivalent, on a comparable basis, to some 36·7 billion ecu (£25·4 billion).

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what percentage levy of gross national product for the current year was agreed at the Brussels Council;

(2) what voting system will apply, in consequence of the Brussels Councils agreement, to alterations in the gross national product levy; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: The level of the new gross national product-related contributions will be subject to the overall ceiling on all own resources equivalent to 1·2 per cent. of Community GNP and to any annual sub-ceilings which the Council may agree. These ceilings, once adopted, cannot be changed except by unanimity and following ratification in all member states. Within that constraint, the level of GNP-related contributions required to balance the budget in 1988 and later years will reflect the expenditure decisions taken by qualified majority voting in the annual budgetary process, just as the actual rate of value added tax contributions is determined under the present system.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister if there is any provision in the Brussels Council agreement to prevent the Commission underwriting spending levels in excess of legal limits in a manner similar to the metric year operated in 1987 when receipts were demanded one month in advance and receipts delayed for a month; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: The decision on budget discipline described in my statement of 15 February will be legally binding.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister why she agreed to the exceptional circumstances clause in the Brussels Council agreement; and by which voting system it will be operated.

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement I made on Monday 15 February on the outcome of the European Council. The monetary reserve which I referred to in my statement will operate on the basis I described and the question of voting does not therefore arise. There is no other provision for so-called exceptional circumstances.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister if the sum which is currently spent each week by the European Economic Community on dumping, storing and destroying food surpluses will change in consequence of the Brussels Council agreement; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: The sums spent each week on storage and disposal of surplus depend on the level of surpluses and the prices at which they can be sold. As I said in my statement on 15 February, the agreement on the agricultural stabilisers is intended to control both output and spending on surpluses.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister what representations Her Majesty's Government have received from the United States of America and other foreign governments about the Brussels Council agreement.

The Prime Minister: None.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister if the previous decision of the Finance Ministers' Council to transfer the responsibilities of financing the cost of butter dumping to member states, which was declared to be unlawful by the Court of Auditors, was discussed at the Brussels Council; and what changes were proposed in these arrangements following the increase in EEC resources.

The Prime Minister: The matter was not discussed and no changes are proposed.

Cereal Production

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister by what amount the 160 million ton ceiling for cereal production payment without price reduction exceeds or is less than actual cereal production in 1987; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: The 1987 cereals harvest was affected by exceptionally difficult weather conditions in many parts of the Community; the harvest is estimated at 153 million tonnes, which is well below the trend-line production figure for 1987 of 165 million tonnes.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Intestacy

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Attorney-General if he will introduce new regulations to simplify the settling of estates in intestacy cases.

The Attorney-General: No. I am not satisfied that there is any need to change the rules relating to the settlement and distribution, by personal representatives, of the estates of persons dying intestate. The rules are intended to enable the distribution of an intestate's estate in a manner that the intestate might have directed if he or she had left a valid will.

Cash Limits and Running Costs

Mr. Andy Stewart: To ask the Attorney-General whether any changes will be made to the 1987-88 cash limit and running costs limit for Class XX Vote 27 of covering the administration costs of the serious frauds office and the provision in Class XX Vote 28 covering the Department's prosecution costs.

The Attorney-General: Yes. The office will not, as earlier expected, take over the conduct of some cases from the Crown Prosecution Service before it becomes operational. Sections 1-3 of the Criminal Justice Act 1987 are likely to be brought into force in April 1988. The cash limit for Class XX, Vote 27 will be reduced by £570,000 from £2,000,000 to £1,430,000 and the running costs limit by £570,000 from £1,500,500 to £930,000. With a shortfall of £1 million on prosecution costs under Class XX, Vote 28, £1,570,000 will be surrendered to the Reserve.

DEFENCE

Weapons (Interoperability)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proposals exist for interoperability among NATO countries in (a) artillery barrels and (b) ammunition.

Mr. Sainsbury: Existing arrangements within NATO already provide a substantial measure of artillery barrel and ammunition interoperability. These include a quadrilateral ballistics memorandum of understanding, and a NATO sub-panel with responsibility for ammunition information exchange. The United Kingdom is also fully involved in discussions on the interoperability of future artillery systems.

TRANSPORT

Head Restraints

Mr. Gregory: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information he has on the number and percentage of vehicles registered in the United Kingdom that are fitted with head restraints; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The Department has no statistical information on this. The majority of new cars are now being provided with head restraints that meet European standards.

Public Service Vehicle Drivers

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, what legislation is (a) in force and (b) proposed concerning the maximum and minimum ages of licensed public service vehicle drivers.

Mr. David Mitchell: The Road Traffic Act 1972 and regulations made under the Act prescribe 21 years as the minimum age for driving public service vehicles with some closely defined exceptions where the minimum age may be reduced to 18 years. Drivers of these vehicles may continue to renew their licences until they fail to satisfy the traffic commissioners as to their fitness to hold a licence. There are no proposals to change these arrangements.

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what legislation is (a) in force and (b) proposed concerning the physical fitness, and medical examination, of licensed public service vehicle drivers.

Mr. David Mitchell: The Public Passenger Vehicles Act 1981 and the regulations made under the Act require all applicants for public service vehicles drivers' licences to satisfy the traffic commissioners that they are fit to hold the licence. A medical report is required on first application, on each five-year renewal when drivers reach 46 years of age and annually after 65. There is also a general requirement for all drivers to report any medical condition which could affect fitness to drive. Interested bodies are now being consulted on a proposal to require public service vehicle drivers to submit medical reports with licence renewals from the age of 45.

Greater London (Traffic Disruption)

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is the approximate proportion of traffic disruption or major delay in Greater London over the latest convenient annual period attributable to (a) road repair works, (b) road improvement schemes, (c) road works by statutory undertakers, (d) traffic signal failure, (e) road accidents, (f) flooding or burst water mains, (g) vehicle breakdowns, (h) shed loads, other than in accidents, (i) illegal parking, (j) state occasions, processions and demonstrations and (k) excess of traffic demand over road capacity.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Information is not collected in this form.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information he has concerning the amount of road traffic congestion in Greater London; from what sources he obtains such information; and what definitions he adopts of (a) congestion and (b) serious delay to traffic flow.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Road traffic congestion in London is monitored by its effect on traffic speeds. Results of regular surveys are published in statistics bulletins available from the House Library. We have not adopted a definition of congestion or serious delay to traffic flow. The Department is considering whether specific indicators would be useful.

M25

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information he has concerning the M25 in respect of (a) the number and distribution of major delays, (b) the causes of major delays, (c) the numbers, locations and causes of major accidents, (d) the times, places and degree of any excess of demand over effective road capacity and (e) hourly peak and minimum flows, expressed in passenger car units, in the most heavily and least used sections.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The information is not available in the form requested. The M25 is congested at certain times on some sections. Work has started to enable a fourth lane to be added to both carriageways between junctions 11 and 13. A study has been commissioned into the best way of adding a fourth lane between junctions 15 and 16.

We have recently invited proposals from consultants for a study of traffic patterns on the whole motorway which was announced in last year's roads White Paper. It will identify existing and potential problem areas and their causes, and suggest solutions. M25 traffic flows were set out in my answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Hendon, South (Mr. Marshall) on 9 November 1987, Official Report, columns 79-80.

Disabled People (Parking Concessions)

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if there are any reciprocal arrangements for parking concessions for disabled people between Her Majesty's Government and the Government of New Zealand; and if he will consult the Royal Association on Disability and Rehabilitation on this matter.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Reciprocal arrangements for parking concessions for people with disabilities are confined to Europe. We intend to raise with the disabled persons transport advisory committee the question of extending reciprocity to countries outside Europe.

French Minister of Transport

Mr. Adley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he last met his French counterpart; and what was discussed.

Mr. Channon: I met M. Douffiagues on 7 December at a meeting of the EC Transport Council. Matters discussed included international air services, road haulage permits and traffic through non-EC transit countries.

Coaches (Speed Governors)

Mr. Adley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the progress of the requirement to install speed governors in coaches.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I made regulations on 15 February which will be laid before the House shortly. These require new coaches to be fitted with a speed limiter from 1 April 1989, coaches first used on or after 1 April 1984, from 1 April 1990, and coaches first used on or after 1 April 1974, from 1 April 1991. Older coaches or those which have a maximum design speed no higher than 70 mph will not be affected by the regulations.

The limiters must comply with British Standard AU 217 and be set to a maximum speed of 70 mph. The regulations will be amended as necessary to refer to minor changes to this standard now under consideration.

Manchester Airport

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what action has been taken, following the meeting between the Minister responsible for aviation and directors of Manchester Airport plc held on 8 February, to communicate the Government's views on the issues which the Manchester Airport plc directors raised at the meeting concerning the serious implications of the Civil Aviation Authority's draft charging proposals for Manchester airport; if he will publish any letter sent to the Civil Aviation authority as a result of that meeting; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The issues are for the Civil Aviation Authority. As promised at the meeting, my noble Friend sent a short letter to the chairman of the authority mentioning the Government's oft-repeated White Paper commitment to the development of Manchester airport, and the provisions of section 39(2)(c) of the Airport Act 1986.

Motorway Accidents

Mr. Robert B. Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will set out in a table for each month of 1987 (a) the number of accidents that occurred on motorways, (b) the number of vehicles involved, (c) the number of goods vehicles with an unladen weight of more than 3 tonnes or vehicles drawing a trailer involved and (d) the number of coaches involved.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I will write to my hon. Friend.

Rear Seat Belts

Mr. Stern: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he intends to require that all self-drive hire cars are equipped with rear seat belts.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: All cars, including self-drive hire cars, first used from 1 April 1987 are required to be fitted with rear seat belts or child restraints. We have no plans to extend this requirement to any type of car registered before this date. We hope that all concerned—the car hire firms and their customers—will consider on a voluntary basis, the safety advantages of fitting and using rear seat belts.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Bill

Mr. Couchman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has placed in the Library a copy of the report by Mr. Aksel Frandsen, referred to in the Government response to the special report of the Select Committee on the Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Bill.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I did so yesterday.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints have been brought under the Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981; and how many were successful.

Mr. Renton: The available information, which may be incomplete, is given in the following table:

Defendants proceeded against and found guilty of offences under the Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981

England and Wales — Number of persons

Year	Total proceeded against	Total found guilty
1981[1]	—	—
1982	17	10
1983	20	18
1984	22	17
1985	24	24
1986	22	19

[1] The Act came into force on 27 October 1981

Arrest and Search

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will place in the Library a copy of his reply to the letter from the joint central committee of the Police Federation on specific powers of arrest and search of suspected carriers of knives or other sharply pointed articles; whether he proposes to meet Mr. Leslie Curtis, chairman of the Police Federation, to discuss this matter; and whether he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I have done so today. The chairman of the Police Federation has not requested a meeting to discuss the matter, but my right hon. Friend and I are always willing to discuss the matter with him and I have already met the Metropolitan branch of the federation.

Section 128 of the Criminal Justice Bill makes it an offence to have a bladed or sharply pointed article (other than a pocketknife) in a public place without good reason. The Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 increased police powers by making available to all constables a power to stop and search for offensive weapons and prohibited articles, and the Criminal Justice Bill will extend these powers to enable the police to stop and search those reasonably suspected of carrying articles covered by section 128. The "reasonable suspicion" requirement, which is the basis of the federation's concern, is not specific to the new offence, but applies generally to stop and search powers. A definition of "reasonable suspicion" is contained in the codes of practice made under PACE. A review of the codes has now been initiated, during which my right hon. Friend will be consulting the Police Federation and others.

Police (Computers)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether he will list the constabularies which will have computers connected to the upgraded police national computer network and those constabularies that have an existing mainframe computer linked to the police national computer;

(2) whether he will list mainframe computers belonging to constabularies and indicate whether they are for command and control or criminal information purpose.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The following police forces have a direct link to the police national computer through their own force computer system(s); this indicates whether these are command and control or criminal information systems.

Force	Command and Control	Criminal Information
Avon and Somerset	Yes	—
Bedfordshire	Yes	—
Cambridgeshire	Yes	—
Cleveland	Yes	—
Cumbria	Yes	—
Devon and Cornwall	Yes	—
Dorset	Yes	—
Durham	—	Yes
Essex	Yes	—
Hertfordshire	Yes	—
Humberside	—	Yes
Kent	—	Yes
Lincolnshire	—	Yes
Merseyside	Yes	—
Metropolitan	Yes	—
North Yorkshire	Yes	—
Northamptonshire	—	—
Nottinghamshire	—	—
South Wales	Yes	—
South Yorkshire	Yes	Yes
Staffordshire	Yes	Yes
Suffolk	Yes	Yes
Surrey	—	—
Sussex	Yes	—
Warwickshire	Yes	Yes
West Mercia	Yes	—
West Midlands	Yes	—
Wiltshire	Yes	—

Hampshire intends to implement a direct link to the police national computer within the next year.

It is intended that all forces in England, Scotland and Wales will eventually have a direct link to the police national computer through the proposed upgraded network. Further information about force computer systems is not held centrally in the form requested.

Local Development Agencies

Mr. Stern: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any plans to amend the processes by which central Government funds are channelled to local development agencies; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: The only central Government funds for local development agencies for which my right hon. Friend is responsible are those channelled through the experimental local development agencies development fund. We are at present awaiting the first progress report from the committee administering the fund and in the meantime have no plans to change it.

My right hon. Friend has recently amended the terms and conditions under which the fund is administered to permit him to require the committee to withhold or vary the conditions attached to a particular grant in those exceptional circumstances where such action is justified in the public interest.

This safeguard should not normally affect the day-to-day administration of the fund. We have, however, invited interested parties to make representations about the change and these are being considered.

Data Protection

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will indicate the measures taken to advise the general public of their right of access for data subjects in the Data Protection Act following the introduction of the measure on 11 December 1987.

Mr. Renton: I am informed by the Data Protection Registrar that after 11 November 1987, when the right of subject access came into force, he carried out an advertising campaign in the national press for about one month, to advise the general public of their rights. In addition 2 million advisory leaflets and posters were distributed to public libraries, citizens' advice bureaux and similar information points, and arrangements were made for the Post Office to frank approximately 90 million pieces of mail with a special mark drawing attention to the subject access right. The registrar undertook a public relations campaign involving the distribution of publicity material to regional newspapers and radio stations and he and his staff participated in more than 40 radio and television appearances and numerous press interviews. Copies of the registrar's advisory leaflet, together with the guidelines on the Data Protection Act, have been deposited in the Library.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will hold discussions with the Data Protection Registrar to produce a code of practice covering personal data held for the purpose of national security.

Mr. Renton: No. Under section 27(1) of the Data Protection Act 1984 it is for the Secretary of State concerned to determine, in the light of the particular circumstances, whether personal data should be exempt from the provisions of the Act for the purpose of safeguarding national security.

Prisons (Bibles)

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what is the annual budget within the prison service for the distribution of bibles to prisoners;

(2) how much of the annual budget within the prison service for the distribution of bibles to prisoners remained unspent at 1 January;

(3) if chaplains to Her Majesty's prisons are experiencing any difficulty in obtaining bibles to distribute to prisoners;

(4) whether the remainder of the annual budget within the prison service for the distribution of bibles to prisoners will be spent on the purposes for which it was originally allocated by 31 March.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The budget for the distribution of bibles to prisoners is reviewed annually. The amount allocated for this purpose in 1987-88 was £7,260. All of this was spent by 1 January 1988. It was hoped that a further sum could have been made available in the current financial year, but this was not possible because of other severe pressures on the prison Vote.

A small number of copies of the authorised version and the revised standard version (used by Roman Catholics) remain in stock, but all copies of the good news version of the bible have been distributed.

British Standard Time

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will consider seeking to reintroduce a British standard time to give people in Britain an extra hour of evening daylight.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The Government are aware of the interest in having extended daylight hours in the evenings and are considering how best to assess support for any change in the present arrangements.

Taxi Drivers (Assaults)

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many reported assaults there have been on licensed taxi drivers for each of the last five years in (a) the United Kingdom, and (b) the Basildon area;

(2) how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions were made for assaults on licensed taxi drivers in (i) the United Kingdom, and (ii) the Basildon area for each of the last five years, and if he will express the figures as a percentage of all prosecutions and convictions.

Mr. John Patten: The information requested is not available. It is not possible from the records held centrally to distinguish the occupation of victims of assault.

Police Manpower

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the ratio of police officers to (a) population and (b) crimes in (i) Northumberland police authority area and (ii) Northumberland county.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The information available is as follows:

	Northumbria police	Northumberland county
Police[1]/Population[2] ratio	1:413	1:694
Police[1]/Crime[3] ratio	1:47	—

[1] Police strength as at December 1987.
[2] As at mid 1986.
[3] Notifiable offences recorded by the police as produced in volume 3 of "Criminal Statistics England and Wales Supplementary Tables 1986". The force does not have those figures broken down for Northumberland county.

Miss A. A. Bergeman

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the scientific name of the anti-depressant given to Audrey Ann Bergeman on 23 July 1987 at Risley remand centre; what other medical treatment was given to Miss Bergeman while she was at the centre; whether she made any requests for medical treatment whilst she was at the centre; whether she made any statements about her medical condition while she was at the centre; and what was the assessment of the medical staff who examined her upon her admission to the centre.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Miss Bergeman was received at Risley remand centre on 20 July 1987. At the reception examination she was found to be in good general health except for a bronchial condition, for which medication was prescribed. She reported sick on 23 July and was prescribed small doses of amitriptyline. No other medical application was made and no other treatment was given.

AIDS

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures he is currently considering for the improved protection of prisoners from infection with the HIV virus.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: High priority continues to be given to preventive measures, which currently include systematic medical inquiry and examination at the reception stage, counselling of individual prisoners, precautionary regime restrictions at the discretion of the medical officer for prisoners identified as HIV antibody positive, and a strong emphasis on educational initiatives directed to all prisoners. A purpose-designed video film for prisoners is being developed. All aspects of the prevention strategy are kept under review.

"Sex"

Dr. Goodson-Wickes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will seek advice as to whether the pamphlet "Sex", published by the Terrence Higgins

Trust and distributed by Wimbledon citizens advice bureau, contravenes the provisions of the Obscene Publications Act.

Mr. Renton: Whether the publication of a particular article contravenes the Obscene Publications Act 1959 is a matter which only a court can determine. It is not a matter on which my right hon. Friend has any authority to offer advice.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Peachey Property plc (Investigation)

Mr. Page: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster why he has announced the appointment of inspectors to investigate possible contravention of the insider dealing legislation in relation to the securities of Peachey Property plc; and why when doing so he made reference to any transaction with which Mr. John Ritblat, chairman of British Land plc, may have been connected.

Mr. Maude: My right hon. and noble Friend decided that the appointment of inspectors in this case was necessary in the light of information provided. Such information is received from various sources including the stock exchange. It has been the practice for some time to announce such appointments where the fact that a particular person would be involved in an investigation might, if it became known, be likely to affect the share price of a company with which he is connected. The purpose — to which the stock exchange as the listing authority attaches importance — is to avoid a disorderly market in the shares of the company through such information becoming known only gradually and partially. The appointment of inspectors carries no implication of guilt, but only of the existence of circumstances needing investigation.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Housing Benefit

78. Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what are the responsibilities (a) of local authorities in relation to the administration of housing benefit locally and (b) of his Department in relation to the administration of housing benefit centrally; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: Local authorities are statutorily responsible for the administration of the housing benefit scheme which includes informing the public about the scheme, determining claims, making payments and reviewing decisions on appeal. It also includes making payments to householders who qualify for housing benefit because they are in receipt of supplementary benefit (from April 1988 income support). The detailed rules and benefit rates which determine entitlement are set out in regulations issued by the Department. The Department is responsible for issuing guidance on the regulations and determining the arrangements for reimbursing most of the costs of the scheme incurred by local authorities. Information is collected centrally both to enable subsidy payments to be made and to inform Ministers, Parliament and the public on the costs and operation of the scheme nationally.

Rating Reform

79. Mr. Nellist: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how much rebate from community charge he estimates a young person in Coventry with an annual income of £2,500 would be entitled to, following the abolition of the domestic rating system.

Mr. Scott: The details of the community charge rebate scheme have yet to be decided and benefit rates for 1990 are not yet known, so it is not yet possible to make such an estimate. Rebate entitlement will also depend on a claimant's circumstances and on the level of community charge set by the local authority.

Food Handlers

80. Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what provision he is making to ensure that local authorities are able to secure adequate training for all food handlers in retail and manufacturing outlets.

Mrs. Currie: On 30 October 1987 my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food announced that officials had been asked to review the proposals contained in the joint consultation document on food legislation, which was issued in December 1984, in the light of comments received from interested organisations. One of these proposals is that local authorities should be empowered to provide food hygiene training for food handlers.

Drugs

Mr. Wheeler: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the current annual cost of providing drugs in the National Health Service as a whole and to family practitioners; if he is satisfied with the control and accountability of these costs; and what measures he proposes to prevent fraud by the sale of drugs overseas by those who have received them at public expense.

Mr. Newton: The net cost of providing drugs in the National Health Service in England in 1986-87, including fees, remuneration and payments to hospital pharmacists[1] was £2,016 million. Of this £1,639 million was paid in the family practitioner services, including £120 million to dispensing doctors.

For proprietary medicines, pharmaceutical companies with sales to the NHS of £4 million or more provide audited financial returns each year covering their costs and capital. These returns are scrutinised under the terms of the pharmaceutical price regulation scheme. Companies with sales of between £0·5 million and £4 million also provide information annually, but of a more limited nature. For generic medicines, the prices reimbursed to chemists are shown in the drug tariff. In the main, the drug tariff reflects the competing prices in this market.

A patient may receive drugs at public expense only in exchange for a prescription form signed by a doctor. It is the doctor's responsibility to ensure that any drugs he prescribes are, in his judgment, needed by that patient. Once dispensed, the drugs become the patient's property. The clinical control expected of doctors militates against patients receiving drugs in large quantities, and there are special arrangements for drugs controlled by the Misuse of Drugs Act and its regulations. Any cases of suspected fraud are investigated by family practitioner committees or health authorities in the first instance.

[1]This information has recently become available.

Vaccination

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he has any new schemes to increase parental compliance with the need for increased vaccination against measles, whooping cough and polio.

Mrs. Currie: Levels of vaccination have risen in recent years to 67 per cent. for whooping cough, 86 per cent. for polio and 71 per cent. for measles (1986). We do not regard these figures as high enough to give adequate protection from these preventable diseases.

We announced on 17 December plans to introduce a triple vaccine for measles, mumps and rubella (MMR) from 1 October 1988. We intend that the introduction of MMR is preceded by a national and local publicity campaign aimed at parents and the health professions, which we hope will lead to a substantial increase in uptake levels. We are also considering how best to continue to promote the benefits of vaccination against whooping cough and polio.

Every district health authority has now appointed an immunisation co-ordinator who will have a very important part to play in securing our objective of improved uptake of the childhood immunisation.

Private Health Facilities (Operations Purchases)

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will gather and publish from each district health authority information regarding the number, kind and cost of operations which they have bought from privately owned health facilities; and what priority his Department attaches to such information in the carrying out of the review on the funding of the National Health Service.

Mr. Moore: An annual return is made of contractual arrangements between National Health Service hospitals and private hospitals and a copy of the most recent return (1986) has been placed in the Library. This information relates to the number of patients treated by specialty. Details of the number, type and cost of operations performed under these arrangements are not kept centrally. We have already indicated that our internal review of the NHS will be wide ranging and fundamental. In reaching conclusions, we will want to take into account all relevant information.

NHS Patients (Charges)

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his estimate of the effect on the percentage of the total funding available to the National Health Service taken by administrative costs of collecting "hotel charges" from patients.

Mr. Newton: Such an estimate could only realistically be made in relation to proposals for the introduction of such charges, which we do not have.

NHS Waiting Lists

Mr. Ken Hargreaves: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services by how much National Health Service waiting lists have changed between 1979 and 1987 in (a) the North West regional health authority, and (b) the Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley district health authority; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Newton: The requested information is given in the table.

In-patient waiting list in the National Health Service at 31 March 1979 and 1987.

	March 1979	March 1987	Change between 1979-1987
North Western RHA
Urgent	4,614	3,315	−1,299
Cases over one Month	3,130	1,824	−1,306
Non-urgent	72,754	60,566	−12,188
Cases over one year	21,667	15,056	−6,611
TOTAL	77,368	63,881	−13,487
Blackburn, Hyndburn, Ribble Valley DHA
Urgent	195	9	−186
Cases over one month	134	0	−134
Non-urgent	5,317	2,395	−2,922
Cases over one year	2,645	450	−2,195
TOTAL	5,512	2,404	−3,108

Nurses (Geriatric Training)

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what measures he proposes to increase the number of nurses working within the National Health Service with special skills related to geriatric nursing.

Mr. Newton: The measures referred to in my reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Swindon (Mr. Coombs) on 15 February at column 489 aimed at improving nurse recruitment and retention in all specialisms including geriatric nursing. In particular the recently agreed new clinical grading structure, for which the review body will recommend rates from 1 April 1988, will open up improved pay and career opportunities for those who wish to remain in clinical nursing. It will differentiate more clearly between levels of responsibility and competence and will recognise and reward additional skills and responsibility more appropriately.

The health departments' evidence to the review body suggests that the geriatric lead of £165 per annum should continue pending a review during 1988 by the Nursing and Midwifery Staffs Negotiating Council, the body responsible for negotiating nurses' terms and conditions of service. The council aims to agree recommendations to the review body in the autumn of 1988.

NHS (Staff Statistics)

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was the total number of (a) medical laboratory scientific officers, (b) pharmacists and (c) medical physicists employed in the National Health Service in each of the last 12 months, distinguishing between trainees and fully qualified staff.

Mr. Newton: Information in the form requested is not held centrally. Such information as is available is shown in the table (the data for 30 September 1986 are the latest available to this level of detail):

Staff in Post (England) 30 September 1986 (Whole-Time Equivalents)[1]

	Medical Laboratory Scientific Officers	Pharmacists	Medical Physics Technicians
Students	[2]3,530	355	114
Qualified	11,094	2,789	2,031
Total	14,624	3,144	2,144

[1] Figures are independently rounded to nearest whole-time equivalent.
[2] Includes all Junior A MLSOs and Junior B MLSOs. Some may not be in training, but none are qualified staff.

Patient Costs

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has on the average cost of (a) an operation, (b) an out-patient attendance and (c) a one-day attendance at all the hospitals in (i) England, (ii) Wales and (iii) Scotland in 1979 and 1986.

Mrs. Currie: The nearest available figure for the average cost of an operation is the average cost per inpatient case. These figures, together with those for out-patients and day cases are shown in the table.

	England		Wales		Scotland
	1979-80 £	1985-86 £	1979-80 £	1985-86 £	1979-80 £	1985-86 £
Inpatient case (acute hospitals)	466	718	433	712	535	849
Outpatient attendance	14	26	16	25	n.a.	12
Day Case attendance	36	66	25	56	n.a.	60

Note:
Comparison between the Scotland outpatient and day case figures and those for England and Wales is not valid because outpatient figures for England and Wales include day case and day patient attendances in respect of hospitals with less than 1,000 cases per year.
One of the factors leading to the higher cost per inpatient case in Scotland is that Scotland has a higher proportion of the United Kingdom's teaching hospital places and proportionately more patient care therefore takes place in the relatively more expensive teaching hospital environment.

District Health Authorities (Land Holdings)

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North on 26 November 1987, Official Report, columns 319-21, if he will list in league order, with the highest at the top, by acreage of land held, district health authority areas within the National Health Service in England, showing the valuation in each case (a) before the recent revaluation and (b) at the present valuation as decided by the district valuer.

Mrs. Currie: Returns from district valuers are currently being checked for completeness before being aggregated. It is likely to be several weeks before the information sought is available, when I will let my hon. Friend have a further reply.

Retirement and Pension Rights

Sir Dudley Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if, in the light of the recent European Court decision on women's retirement and pension rights, he will seek to introduce equalisation between the sexes of working and retirement benefits.

Mr. Scott: Equal treatment between men and women in respect of working conditions and state and occupational benefits is already the subject of three EC directives. EC directive 76/207 provides for equal treatment at work, and following the European Court's decision that the age of retirement from work fell within the scope of that directive, the necessary provisions have been introduced into British law in the Sex Discrimination Act 1986. EC directive 79/7 deals with equal treatment in social security benefits and has been in force since December 1984. Pension age and survivors' benefits are excluded from the scope of that directive. Equal treatment in occupational social security is required by directive 86/378, which is not yet in force and excludes pension age and survivors' benefits until equalisation is required in the state scheme. The steps we have taken to comply with these directives mean that equal treatment between men and women exists in most areas of working and retirement benefits; some further steps will be needed to comply with EC 86/378 and we are considering these. We have no immediate plans to introduce equal treatment in areas excluded from the directives, but changes in pension age in particular have been under consideration for some time.

Chlamydia

Sir Dudley Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what diagnostic services are available under the National Health Service for the detection of the disease Chlamydia; and what plans he has to extend these.

Mrs. Currie: Facilities to test for the presence of chlamydial infection are readily available at NHS laboratories. Research is proceeding to investigate the prevalance of chlamydial infection in patients attending ante-natal, genito-urinary medicine and family planning clinics, in order to determine at risk groups; and to establish whether there is any justification for screening pregnant women for this infection.

AIDS

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has on the mode by which two laboratory workers in the United States of America working with the AIDS virus were infected by it; and if he will make a statement regarding the implications for similar United Kingdom technicians.

Mr. Newton: The two laboratory workers in the United States of America found to be infected with HIV after working with it had both regularly handled large volumes of highly concentrated virus.

I am informed that in the first case it has been suggested that spillages of contaminated material not observed and adequately dealt with at the time, may have been a contributory factor. In the second case, in which a laboratory origin of infection has not been confirmed, infection may have been the consequence of accidental injury with a blunt needle.

Our laboratory safety guidlines for HIV remain entirely appropriate; it is important that they be observed scrupulously. No case of laboratory acquired infection has been reported in this country.

Supplementary Benefit

Mr. Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if he will supply details of the following on (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis, and (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde: the number of married or cohabitating men in receipt of invalid care allowance who have been successful in claiming the supplementary benefit long-term scale rate since married women were allowed to claim invalid care allowance;

(2) if he will list (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis, (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde, the number of married women in receipt of invalid care allowance who have been refused the supplementary benefits long-term scale rate because their husband is or has been unemployed and who has been deemed to be an alternative means of care;

(3) if he will give the criteria whereby someone is categorised by his Department as representing a alternative means of care under regulation 6*(b)*(ii) of the Supplementary Benefit (Conditions of Entitlement) Regulations 1981;

(4) if he will list (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis, and (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde, the number of times regulation 6*(b)*(ii) of Supplementary Benefit (Conditions of Entitlement) Regulations 1981 has been implemented against married or cohabiting men since married or cohabiting men were allowed to claim;

(5) if he will list (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis, and (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde, the number of married or cohabiting women in receipt of invalid care allowance who have been successful in claiming the supplementary benefit long-term scale rate since that section of the community were allowed to claim invalid care allowance;

(6) if he will list (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis, and (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde, the number of times regulation 6(b)(ii) of the Supplementary Benefit (Conditions of Entitlement) Regulations 1981 has been implemented against married or cohabiting women since they became eligible to claim;

(7) if he will list (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis, and (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde, the number of couples, one of whom is in receipt of invalid care allowance, who have been refused the right to transfer the role of claimant due to regulation 6(b)(ii) of the Supplementary Benefit (Conditions of Entitlement) Regulations 1981 because the husband is unemployed and thus deemed by his Department to be an alternative of care.

Mr. Scott: It is the independent adjudicating authorities rather than the Department who decide whether a claimant for supplementary benefit should be exempt from the requirement to be available for work by virtue of regulation 6(b) of the Supplementary Benefits (Conditions of Entitlement) Regulations 1981. The guidance relating to alternative means of caring issued by the Chief Adjudication Officer is that the adjudication officer should:

(1) have regard to medical opinion, the views of social workers and the wishes of the family;
(2) consider whether the severity of the disablement of itself means that temporary relief from such as a friend or neighbour is inadequate or inappropriate;
(3) consider whether there is anyone else in the household who could provide the necessary help or whether the disabled person is able to pay for professional assistance.

The statistical information requested is not collected and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Invalid Care Allowance

Mr. Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if he will list (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis and (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde constituency, the number of married or cohabiting men in receipt of invalid care allowance in each of the years 1981 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986;

(2) if he will list (a) on a national basis, (b) on a regional basis and (c) for Renfrew, West and Inverclyde constituency, the number of successful claims for invalid care allowance made by married or cohabiting men in each of the years 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986.

Mr. Scott: I regret that the requested information is not available. The information which is available is set out in the table.

Invalid care allowance awards
Men in Great Britain

(1) Year	(2) Number of awards made	(3) Awards in (2) where the disabled person was the claimant's spouse	(4) Number of awards current at 31 December
1981	[1]606	[1]333	3,442
1982	1,825	909	4,113
1983	1,975	958	4,776
1984	2,272	1,093	5,409
1985	3,433	1,089	5,989
1986	3,248	1,309	7,135

[1] Commencing 30 April 1981.

Eli Lilly

Mr. Ashley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will now take steps to prevent the National Health Service purchasing any of Eli Lilly's drugs except those which are not replaceable.

Mr. Newton: As I explained to the right hon. Member when we met earlier this week, I do not think it would be appropriate for the Government to take such action.

Breast Cancer

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if he will list the number of women diagnosed as having breast cancer in the Central Nottinghamshire health authority area, together with the percentage of the totals screened for the years 1979-87, inclusive;

(2) if he will list the numbers of women on whom breast cancer screening was carried out in the Central Nottinghamshire health authority area for the years 1979-87 inclusive;

(3) if he will list the number of women who sought breast cancer screening in the Central Nottinghamshire health authority area for the years 1979-87 inclusive;

(4) if he will list the funds made available for breast cancer screening in the Central Nottinghamshire health authority area for the years 1979-1987 inclusive.

Mrs. Currie: I regret that the information requested is not centrally available.

In 1979 the Government funded a seven-year, multi-centre, research trial in the United Kingdom to compare the effectiveness of different methods of early detection of breast cancer. The total financial support provided was £5 million. Nottingham was one of two centres testing the effectiveness of breast self-examination and women there were taught how to perform the examination and encouraged to report any abnormalities found. Diagnostic breast clinics were available for those who found abnormalities. The trial is not yet complete. A first report is expected later this year.

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if National Health Service breast cancer screening is available on demand to women who reside or work in the Central Nottinghamshire health authority area; and if he will make a statement;

(2) if he will list the facilities available for breast cancer screening in the Central Nottinghamshire health authority area;

(3) if he will list the facilities available for breast cancer screening in the Barnet health authority area;

(4) if he will list the facilities available for breast cancer screening in the Southern Derbyshire health authority area;

(5) if he will list the facilities available for breast cancer screening in the Leicester health authority area;

(6) if he will list the facilities available for breast cancer screening in the Croydon health authority area.

Mrs. Currie: The programme for the national breast cancer screening service envisages a nationwide network of some 100 centres, each serving a population of about 500,000. All women between 50 and 64 will be invited for screening by mammography every three years, using computerised call and recall system. Older women will be screened on request. The programme will also involve the provision of the necessary back-up facilities for assessment, diagnosis, treatment, counselling and aftercare.

Each regional health authority in England was allocated about one third of a million pounds in the current financial year to establish at least one centre by the end of March. The Government's cash plans include provision to meet the full, continuing estimated costs of the remaining centres to be set up by spring, 1990.

The first centre to be established in Trent regional health authority is located in Nottingham. It is one of four centres which will provide training for staff for the national programme and has received additional funds for this work. The first centre to be established in North West Thames regional health authority is located in Barnet. The population of Southern Derbyshire, Leicestershire and Croydon health authorities will be served by centres to be set up over the next two years.

More detailed information can be obtained from the Regional Health Authorities concerned.

Social Security Reform

Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether the effect of non-householders deduction for claimants under 26 years receiving income support contained in the housing benefit scheme from April, has been taken into account when estimating the number of losers under income support in the Government's publication "Impact of the Reformed Structure of Income Related Benefits".

Mr. Scott: Paragraph 11 of the preface to the "Impact of the Reformed Structure of Income Related Benefits" makes clear that the tables contained in it do not include the effect of changes to the structure of non-dependant deductions.

Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how the numbers of people requiring transitional additions relate to the numbers of losers estimated in the Government's report entitled "Impact of the Reformed Structure of Income Related Benefits".

Mr. Scott: Table 1B of the technical annex, "Impact of the Reformed Structure of Income Related Benefits" shows an estimated 1·66 million claimants to have a lower entitlement to income support than to supplementary benefit. This is calculated by comparing the current system, uprated to 1988-89 values, with income support. It is estimated that at the point of change, around 1·4 million claimants will have a lower entitlement to income support than their current entitlement to supplementary benefit and these people will receive transitional protection.

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services to what extent his calculations on the effect of the structural reform of social security benefits on sick and disabled people included (a) disabled pensions, (b) unemployed registered disabled people and (c) families with disabled children.

Mr. Scott [holding answer 1 February 1988]: I refer the hon. Member to "Impact of the Reformed Structure of Income Related Benefits" October 1987, a copy of which is in the Library. Within the category "pensioners aged 60-79" are 130,000 income support claimants who will qualify for the higher pensioner premium because they are disabled. Of these, about 100,000 will also be in receipt of housing benefit. The equivalent figure for housing benefit claimants not also in receipt of income support is 150,000. The 10,000 income support families expected to receive the disabled child's premium form part of the categories "Lone parents" and "Couples with children". There is no premium specific to unemployed registered disabled people; unemployed claimants who are blind or who receive mobility allowance or attendance allowance will qualify for the disability premium.

National Insurance Rates

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he has completed his review of national insurance contribution rates for 1988-89.

Mr. Portillo: I have reviewed the national insurance contribution rates paid by mariners and registered dockworkers. In the past, these groups paid a reduced rate of contribution to reflect the fact that the standard rate of class 1 contributions paid by other employees included the employment protection allocation paid into the redundancy fund, on which mariners and registered dockworkers could not normally draw. In the light of the decision that no employment protection allocation should be paid from class 1 national insurance contributions into the redundancy fund in 1988-89, which I announced on 3 November 1987 at columns 704-5, the special rates of national insurance contributions paid by some mariners and registered dockworkers, and their employers will be abolished with effect from 6 April 1988.

The special lower rates of national insurance contributions paid by employers of foreign-going mariners will remain unchanged in 1988-89.

The special rates of national insurance contributions paid by members of Her Majesty's forces will also be changed following a review by the Government Actuary. The rate of abatement will be reduced by 0·1 per cent. for both employees and employers to 0·8 per cent. and 0·85 per cent. respectively with effect from 6 April 1988.

The special class 2 contributions paid by sharefishermen, and volunteer development workers, will remain at £6·55 a week during the 1988-89 tax year.

Aspirin

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when the conclusions of Dr. Warlow's study on the use of aspirin to prevent stroke and myocardial infarction are expected.

Mr. Jackson: I have been asked to reply.

I understand from the Medical Research Council that the preliminary results of Professor Warlow's United Kingdom transient ischaemic attack aspirin trial, on the prevention of stroke and myocardial infarction, were published in the British Medical Journal on Friday 29 January 1988.

NHS (Expenditure)

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what was Government spending on the National Health Service per household as a proportion of the average household income in 1978-79 and 1986-87.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 11 February 1988]: Gross NHS expenditure per household in the United Kingdom represented 6·3 per cent. of average household income in 1978 and 6·7 per cent. in 1986. The figures for total health care expenditure are 6·9 per cent. and 7·5 per cent. respectively.

Eye Treatment (Waiting Lists)

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list the numbers in each district health authority waiting for eye treatment as (a) in-patients (i) urgent over one month and (ii) non-urgent over one year, and (b) out-patients.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 11 February 1988]: The available information is given in the table,

Numbers of patients awaiting treatment for Opthalmology by District Health Authority and Special Health Authority as at 31 March 1987

	Total cases	Urgent Cases		Non-urgent Cases
		All	On list more than one month	All	On list more than one year
Northern RHA
Hartlepool	0	0	0	0	0
North Tees	0	0	0	0	0
South Tees	612	23	12	589	188
East Cumbria	58	0	0	58	0
South Cumbria	77	0	0	77	1
West Cumbria	146	0	0	146	0
Darlington	348	0	0	348	1
Durham	90	0	0	90	0
North West Durham	0	0	0	0	0
South West Durham	0	0	0	0	0
Northumberland	0	0	0	0	0
Gateshead	0	0	0	0	0
Newcastle	1,486	103	11	1,383	192
North Tyneside	0	0	0	0	0
South Tyneside	0	0	0	0	0
Sunderland	918	6	0	912	61
Yorkshire RHA
Hull	375	0	0	375	21
East Yorkshire	0	0	0	0	0
Grimsby	187	0	0	187	4
Scunthorpe	488	0	0	488	210
Northallerton	0	0	0	0	0
York	531	4	0	527	61
Scarborough	399	1	0	398	23
Harrogate	157	3	0	154	8
Bradford	705	5	4	700	6
Airedale	0	0	0	0	0
Calderdale	96	2	0	94	0

	Total cases	Urgent Cases		Non-urgent Cases
		All	On list more than one month	All	On list more than one year
Huddersfield	211	0	0	211	2
Dewsbury	52	0	0	52	2
Leeds Western	446	12	8	434	55
Leeds Eastern	632	0	0	632	53
Wakefield	296	0	0	296	16
Pontefract	0	0	0	0	0
Trent RHA[1]
North Derbyshire	112	0	0	0	44
Southern Derbyshire	699	0	0	0	80
Leicestershire	727	0	0	0	29
North Lincolnshire	341	0	0	0	21
South Lincolnshire	176	0	0	0	14
Bassetlaw	0	0	0	0	0
Central Nottinghamshire	71	0	0	0	0
Nottingham	651	0	0	0	16
Barnsley	160	0	0	0	0
Doncaster	65	0	0	0	0
Rotherham	499	0	0	0	176
Sheffield	685	0	0	0	37
East Anglian RHA
Cambridge	201	26	7	175	2
Peterborough	381	0	0	381	23
West Suffolk	365	12	7	353	46
East Suffolk	498	0	0	498	42
Norwich	281	0	0	281	0
Great Yarmouth and Waveney	170	0	0	170	7
West Norfolk and Wisbech	101	0	0	101	0
Huntingdon	152	2	0	150	3
North West Thames RHA
North Bedfordshire	144	0	0	144	27
South Bedfordshire	410	0	0	410	27
North Hertfordshire	164	0	0	164	9
East Hertfordshire	0	0	0	0	0
North West Hertfordshire	210	0	0	210	59
South West Hertfordshire	170	4	4	166	36
Barnet	123	0	0	123	0
Harrow	0	0	0	0	0
Hillingdon	265	0	0	265	103
Hounslow and Spelthorne	586	0	0	586	0
Ealing	0	0	0	0	0
Brent	476	17	15	459	138
Paddington and North Kensington	414	0	0	414	0
Riverside	719	61	48	658	78
North East Thames RHA
Basildon and Thurrock	41	1	0	40	0
Mid Essex	326	1	1	325	41
North East Essex	282	0	0	282	7
West Essex	297	44	44	253	139
Southend	56	39	21	17	4
Barking, Havering and Brentwood	356	6	3	350	10
Hampstead[2]	—	—	—	—	—
Bloomsbury	0	0	0	0	0
Islington	0	0	0	0	0
City and Hackney	53	33	15	20	5
Newham	0	0	0	0	0
Tower Hamlets	11	3	3	8	6
Enfield	0	0	0	0	0
Haringey	278	1	0	277	50
Redbridge	5	0	0	5	0
Waltham Forest	366	7	0	359	0
South East Thames RHA
Brighton	148	9	0	139	4
Eastbourne	286	1	0	285	31
Hastings	128	7	0	121	10
South East Kent	331	0	0	331	16
Canterbury and Thanet	497	29	24	468	187
Dartford and Gravesham	0	0	0	0	0

	Total cases	Urgent Cases		Non-urgent Cases
		All	On list more than one month	All	On list more than one year
Maidstone	441	0	0	441	22
Medway	0	0	0	0	0
Tunbridge Wells	239	48	28	191	24
Bexley	508	0	0	508	0
Greenwich	279	0	0	279	4
Bromley	0	0	0	0	0
West Lambeth	647	49	1	598	12
Camberwell	166	6	4	160	1
Lewisham and North Southwark	67	3	3	64	6
South West Thames RHA
North West Surrey	67	3	0	64	1
West Surrey and North East Hants	1,028	183	180	845	353
South West Surrey	234	0	0	234	30
Mid Surrey	754	13	4	741	411
East Surrey	624	16	16	608	150
Chichester	66	3	0	63	0
Mid Downs	0	0	0	0	0
Worthing	555	44	34	511	84
Croydon	200	1	1	199	0
Kingston and Esher	375	78	47	297	44
Richmond, Twickenham and Roehampton	0	0	0	0	0
Wandsworth	238	0	0	238	4
Merton and Sutton	147	0	0	147	0
Wessex RHA
East Dorset	572	0	0	572	20
West Dorset	257	4	0	253	0
Portsmouth and South East Hampshire	899	0	0	899	137
Southampton and South West Hampshire	560	0	0	560	0
Winchester	357	7	3	350	63
Basingstoke and North Hampshire	184	4	1	180	48
Salisbury	572	12	0	560	0
Swindon	360	0	0	360	19
Bath	555	16	8	539	99
Isle of Wight	64	0	0	64	0
Oxford RHA
East Berkshire	763	6	3	757	286
West Berkshire	298	0	0	298	0
Aylesbury Vale	358	0	0	358	19
Wycombe	0	0	0	0	0
Milton Keynes	54	1	0	53	2
Kettering	8	0	0	8	0
Northampton	82	0	0	82	3
Oxfordshire	596	0	0	596	12
South Western RHA
Bristol and Weston	1,240	8	2	1,232	169
Frenchay	0	0	0	0	0
Southmead	0	0	0	0	0
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	597	21	11	576	89
Exeter	289	0	0	289	18
North Devon	56	0	0	56	2
Plymouth	554	0	0	554	179
Torbay	403	36	1	367	96
Cheltenham	178	0	0	178	0
Gloucester	507	6	0	501	105
Somerset	356	13	3	343	17
West Midlands RHA
Bromsgrove and Redditch	439	0	0	439	72
Herefordshire	251	0	0	251	0
Kidderminster and District	175	0	0	175	2
Worcester and District	269	0	0	269	37
Shropshire	813	0	0	813	286
Mid Staffordshire	0	0	0	0	0
North Staffordshire	642	5	2	637	168
South East Staffordshire	153	0	0	153	19

	Total cases	Urgent Cases		Non-urgent Cases
		All	On list more than one month	All	On list more than one year
Rugby	0	0	0	0	0
North Warwickshire	0	0	0	0	0
South Warwickshire	233	0	0	233	75
Central Birmingham	203	39	33	164	64
East Birmingham	651	52	41	599	332
North Birmingham	0	0	0	0	0
South Birmingham	463	20	20	443	47
West Birmingham	973	62	40	911	307
Coventry	1,000	12	2	988	273
Dudley	295	51	37	244	89
Sandwell	331	0	0	331	115
Solihull	0	0	0	0	0
Walsall	6	0	0	6	0
Wolverhampton	582	139	128	443	228
Mersey RHA
Chester	417	0	0	417	12
Crewe	219	0	0	219	48
Halton	0	0	0	0	0
Macclesfield	0	0	0	0	0
Warrington	185	0	0	185	18
Liverpool	631	12	7	619	16
St. Helens and Knowsley	89	3	1	86	0
Southport and Formby	419	0	0	419	140
South Sefton	26	0	0	26	4
Wirral	371	0	0	371	39
North Western RHA
Lancaster	177	0	0	177	34
Blackpool, Wyre and Fylde	665	50	44	615	162
Preston	453	0	0	453	27
Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley	365	0	0	365	29
Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale	146	9	6	137	29
West Lancashire	0	0	0	0	0
Chorley and South Ribble	0	0	0	0	0
Bolton	508	1	0	507	154
Bury	0	0	0	0	0
North Manchester	0	0	0	0	0
Central Manchester	2,003	0	0	2,003	246
South Manchester	0	0	0	0	0
Oldham	770	0	0	770	289
Rochdale	612	59	35	553	249
Salford	21	0	0	21	2
Stockport	491	1	1	490	59
Tameside and Glossop	19	0	0	19	2
Trafford	0	0	0	0	0
Wigan	928	5	0	923	426
All Special health authorities
The Hospitals for Sick Children	52	1	0	51	0
The National Hospitals for Nervous Diseases	0	0	0	0	0
Moorfields Eye Hospital	1,387	0	0	1,387	0
Bethlem Royal and Maudsley Hospitals	0	0	0	0	0
The National Heart and Chest Hospitals	0	0	0	0	0
The Royal Marsden Hospital	0	0	0	0	0
Hammersmith and Queen Charlotte's	0	0	0	0	0
The Eastman Dental Hospital	0	0	0	0	0

[1] Data not available. Imputed figures shown for Non-urgent cases on the waiting list for more than one year.
[2] Figures not available.

Mental Illness (North-West)

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what have been the levels of spending on the mentally ill in all the health authorities in the north-west region for each year from 1979 to 1987.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 12 February 1988]: Information on health authority expenditure by type of patient is not collected centrally. Hospital cost returns submitted to the Department show expenditure on hospitals of different types and costing returns in respect of community health services show expenditure relating to the areas of activity only.

Hospital cost returns submitted by district health authorities in the North Western region, since their establishment on 1 April 1982, show total current expenditure on hospitals categorised as mental illness as follows (Districts having no hospitals in this category have been excluded):

Health district	1982-83 £	1983-84 £	1984-85 £	1985-86 £	1986-87 £
Bolton	421,463	435,586	461,313	488,433	597,916
Central Manchester	—	—	—	[1]1,420,171	1,658,503
Lancaster	876,038	884,737	923,538	1,254,329	1,304,985
Preston	13,318,178	13,583,528	13,439,427	13,106,404	13,356,038
Rochdale	326,400	369,529	410,166	446,303	[2]84,626
Salford	13,955,531	14,784,169	15,343,857	15,970,384	17,632,609
Stockport	488,102	512,560	555,080	572,547	587,401

[1] Three units for mentally ill patients opened in 1985-86.
[2] The decrease in expenditure reflects reduced patient activity at Springfield Park Hospital in 1986-87.

Schizophrenics

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is his current estimate of the total number of people certified as schizophrenics.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 16 February 1988]: People have not been certified under mental health legislation since 1959. A proportion of the people detained annually under the Mental Health Act 1983 have a diagnosis of schizophrenia, but our statistics at present do not show the number with that diagnosis who are currently detained in hospital. New information systems in the NHS will provide such statistics as from 31 March 1988.

Health Statistics

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list by district health authority (a) the establishment figure of medical laboratory scientific officers for each year since 1979, (b) the number in post for each year since 1979, and (c) the number who have left the National Health Service in the last year.

Mr. Newton [pursuant to his reply, 2 February 1988 c. 591]: Establishment figures (a) and numbers of MLSOs leaving (c) are not available centrally. The table shows the number of medical laboratory scientific officers (including unqualified grades) employed by each district health authority at 30 September for the years 1982-1986. Comparable figures for 1979, 1980 and 1981 are not available.

NHS Medical Laboratory Scientific Officers at 30 September

Whole-time equivalent [1]

Health Authorities	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Northern Region
Hartlepool	30	30	30	30	31
North Tees	50	50	53	50	48
South Tees	72	76	75	73	75
East Cumbria	33	33	32	33	32
South Cumbria	29	30	31	29	29
West Cumbria	27	29	28	28	31
Darlington	33	34	34	32	31
Durham	35	35	34	36	35
North West Durham	24	24	25	26	24
South West Durham	21	23	22	24	25
Northumberland	37	38	39	40	41
Gateshead	42	43	44	45	48
Newcastle-Upon-Tyne (T)	268	277	282	279	273
North Tyneside	26	26	29	28	30
South Tyneside	33	34	36	36	39
Sunderland	69	71	71	76	77
RHA HA and HQ units	69	67	63	68	67
Regional Totals	897	918	926	931	934
Yorkshire Region
Hull	96	97	96	96	93
East Yorkshire	28	30	29	28	30

Health Authorities	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Grimsby	47	50	52	55	52
Scunthorpe	32	34	36	39	41
Northallerton	19	19	20	19	18
York	57	58	59	59	59
Scarborough	31	29	32	32	31
Harrogate	32	32	31	32	32
Bradford	93	88	92	93	89
Airedale	39	38	38	41	39
Calderdale	56	54	56	56	57
Huddersfield	58	56	56	56	57
Dewsbury	33	32	31	39	41
Leeds Western (T)	194	204	205	208	203
Leeds Eastern (T)	107	112	115	112	116
Wakefield	44	45	45	44	44
Pontefract	41	40	41	41	41
RHA HQ and HQ Units	44	45	44	50	49
Regional Totals	1,050	1,061	1,077	1,098	1,091
Trent Region
North Derbyshire	49	53	58	59	63
South Derbyshire	110	109	112	110	111
Leicestershire (T)	161	183	196	198	208
North Lincolnshire	41	45	45	49	48
South Lincolnshire	59	59	62	60	58
Bassetlaw	28	28	29	27	29
Central Nottinghamshire	70	72	71	70	69
Nottingham (T)	212	210	205	211	205
Barnsley	50	51	52	49	50
Doncaster	56	61	59	56	60
Rotherham	55	54	55	54	56
Sheffield (T)	224	229	232	230	232
RHA HQ and HQ Units	71	70	72	72	72
Regional Totals	1,187	1,222	1,245	1,244	1,261
East Anglia
Cambridge (T)	113	110	108	95	102
Peterborough	58	57	57	58	57
West Suffolk	38	36	35	52	53
East Suffolk	65	67	67	65	63
Norwich	74	118	114	81	83
Great Yarmouth and Waveney	50	52	54	55	54
West Norfolk and Wisbech	50	50	45	46	47
Huntingdon	28	40	47	51	50
RHA HQ and HQ Units	54	55	51	55	49
Regional Totals	530	584	577	557	559
North West Thames
North Bedfordshire	44	44	43	44	53
South Bedfordshire	28	30	30	33	33
North Hertfordshire	41	42	42	43	45
East Hertfordshire	36	37	35	38	36
North West Hertfordshire	54	66	65	67	65
South West Hertfordshire	39	49	47	47	46
Barnet	89	96	88	85	83
Harrow	84	80	75	77	74
Hillingdon	91	88	89	89	91
Hounslow and Spelthorne	89	89	88	56	89
Ealing	43	48	47	49	47
Brent	57	65	62	59	60
Paddington and North Kensington (T)	88	96	96	91	89
Riverside	184	191	175	180	180
RHA HQ and HQ Units	—	—	—	—	—
Blood Transfusion Centre	17	18	19	20	21
Regional Totals	993	1,039	1,001	1,008	1,013
North East Thames
Basildon and Thurrock	88	87	82	85	82
Mid Essex	60	63	62	61	68
North East Essex	73	71	72	75	69

Health Authorities	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
West Essex	64	62	56	53	55
Southend	72	71	64	64	65
Barking/Havering/Brentwood	154	158	59	164	164
Hampstead (T)	138	134	129	120	131
Bloomsbury (T)	103	120	125	131	128
Islington	71	75	71	73	68
City and Hackney (T)	196	205	192	184	190
Newham	64	64	63	59	60
Tower Hamlets (T)	131	129	127	118	123
Enfield	52	51	52	53	54
Haringey	96	91	87	74	76
Redbridge	50	51	47	50	46
Waltham Forest	74	76	76	74	71
RHA HQ and HQ Units	—	—	—	—	—
Regional Totals	1,486	1,507	1,463	1,437	1,451
South West Thames
North West Surrey	49	47	48	48	47
West Surrey and North East Hants	48	49	49	49	49
South West Surrey	49	52	51	52	53
Mid-Surrey	49	52	53	49	44
East Surrey	62	60	55	51	48
Chichester	46	46	44	44	45
Mid-Downs	35	43	60	65	71
Worthing	50	48	47	49	53
Croydon	59	55	55	56	55
Kingston and Esher	60	54	51	52	50
Richmond, Twickenham and Roehampton	39	46	45	45	50
Wandsworth (T)	67	62	58	55	50
Merton and Sutton	120	116	115	118	110
RHA HQ and HQ Units	60	54	57	62	66
Regional Totals	794	784	788	793	790
South East Thames
Brighton	66	65	67	68	73
Eastbourne	51	56	52	50	52
Hastings	38	36	37	37	39
South East Kent	62	58	61	55	59
Canterbury and Thanet	76	78	75	68	70
Dartford and Gravesham	46	46	46	47	47
Maidstone	30	32	38	39	42
Medway	46	50	50	53	54
Tunbridge Wells	52	54	58	51	52
Bexley	29	29	34	32	35
Greenwich	106	109	106	106	103
Bromley	90	90	89	87	83
West Lambeth (T)	177	175	172	168	169
Camberwell (T)	108	103	101	100	99
Lewisham and North Southwark (T)	198	201	197	183	171
RHA HQ and HQ Units	—	—	—	—	—
Regional Totals	1,174	1,181	1,182	1,144	1,149
Wessex
East Dorset	104	110	105	103	106
West Dorset	40	39	39	38	37
Portsmouth and South East Hampshire	105	98	114	112	115
Southampton and South West Hampshire (T)	204	211	212	216	200
Winchester	54	54	51	52	54
Basingstoke and North Hampshire	41	41	41	42	42
Salisbury	48	48	47	51	49
Swindon	57	57	56	56	59
Bath	73	69	69	67	70
Isle of Wight	31	31	32	34	33
RHA HQ and HQ Units	—	—	—	—	—
Regional Totals	762	757	765	771	764
Oxford
East Berkshire	85	74	71	68	71

Health Authorities	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
West Berkshire	77	76	78	76	78
Aylesbury Vale	67	69	67	65	63
Wycombe	58	57	54	56	60
Milton Keynes	—	—	33	39	38
Kettering	63	67	66	65	62
Northampton	95	94	93	95	86
Oxfordshire	194	205	204	201	203
RHA HQ and HQ Units	45	45	43	40	43
Regional Totals	684	686	709	706	704
South Western
Bristol and Weston (T)	122	113	110	110	114
Frenchay	50	43	42	43	44
Southmead	95	85	85	86	84
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly	54	57	56	60	58
Exeter	71	72	73	73	74
North Devon	33	36	34	35	33
Plymouth	73	73	76	79	79
Torbay	54	61	62	63	66
Cheltenham	49	50	51	56	58
Gloucester	66	58	58	59	60
Somerset	66	62	62	62	62
RHA HQ and HQ Units	60	62	47	46	50
Regional Totals	792	772	755	772	781
West Midlands
Bromsgrove and Redditch	36	34	36	34	38
Herefordshire	33	35	36	34	31
Kidderminister and District	23	24	20	24	24
Worcester and District	54	54	55	59	61
Shropshire	82	84	78	82	82
Mid-Staffordshire	41	44	42	42	42
North Staffordshire	115	114	105	110	106
South East Staffordshire	30	32	40	44	47
Rugby	21	22	22	23	24
North Warwickshire	32	32	32	39	40
South Warwickshire	33	36	34	33	40
Central Birmingham (T)	219	224	213	210	211
East Birmingham	102	104	104	101	103
North Birmingham	60	59	61	65	62
South Birmingham	66	67	65	63	62
West Birmingham	94	92	89	91	93
Coventry	117	115	112	109	109
Dudley	102	100	100	89	92
Sandwell	82	83	80	80	78
Solihull	51	49	47	49	50
Walsall	43	46	48	50	50
Wolverhampton	64	65	69	69	70
RHA HQ and HQ Units	96	93	87	94	96
Regional Totals	1,596	1,606	1,573	1,593	1,610
Mersey
Chester	42	44	42	43	38
Crewe	48	45	49	47	48
Halton	—	—	—	—	—
Macclesfield	36	36	38	37	39
Warrington	42	44	47	58	64
Liverpool (T)	263	282	273	262	289
St. Helens with Knowsley	65	61	63	61	61
Sefton North	23	21	22	23	23
Sefton South	98	101	100	101	104
Wirral	96	96	95	96	98
RHA HQ and HQ Units	45	44	42	43	49
Regional Totals	756	773	772	771	811
North Western
Lancaster	38	38	41	39	41
Blackpool Wyre and Fylde	65	64	66	67	69
Preston	74	74	77	76	83

Health Authorities	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Blackburn, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley	46	48	52	49	52
Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale	35	36	35	33	36
West Lancashire	31	31	29	29	30
Chorley and South Ribble	3	2	2	2	2
Bolton	61	59	64	63	63
Bury	38	41	38	39	36
North Manchester	116	113	116	117	112
Central Manchester (T)	157	165	164	164	164
South Manchester (T)	296	302	213	205	200
Oldham	58	59	59	65	65
Rochdale	43	40	39	39	36
Salford (T)	116	123	123	115	114
Stockport	56	56	57	57	57
Tameside and Glossop	36	37	37	37	36
Trafford	56	58	53	57	56
Wigan	61	63	61	66	67
RHA HQ and HQ Units	83	86	83	83	87
Regional Totals	1,467	1,493	1,407	1,400	1,406

[1] All figures are independently rounded to the nearest whole-time equivalent.
[2] —Indicates nil.
Source: DHSS Annual Census of NHS Non-Medical Manpower.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Stock Market Crash

Mr. Wells: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implications for economic stability of the growth in domestic demand since the stock market crash.

Mr. Lilley: The United Kingdom economy remains strong despite the stock market fall. My right hon. Friend the Chancellor will be publishing a new forecast at the time of the Budget.

Accountants

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many accountants who are qualified members of United Kingdom professional bodies were employed within the Civil Service in financial and accounting roles in 1974, 1979 and 1988.

Mr. Brooke: At 31 December 1987 there were in the Government accountancy service approximately 740 members of one of the professional bodies forming the Consultative Committee of Accountancy Bodies (CCAB) — that is, the Institutes of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales, of Scotland and in Ireland, the Chartered Association of Certified Accountants, the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants and the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy. About 90 per cent. were in financial or accounting roles. At the same time there were another 60 staff who had passed the final examination, but were not yet members and 500 staff studying for the examinations of one of these professional bodies.

In July 1982, when the Government accountancy service was set up on its present basis, there were on a comparable basis a little over 600 members and 250 trainees. Figures for earlier years are not available on a consistent basis but the indications are of a rise in numbers in the mid to late 1970s.

The figures exclude qualified accountants in certain departmental grades. There are currently about 80 professional accountants in the Inland Revenue tax inspectorate and the DTI insolvency service. The figures also exclude members of accountancy bodies outside the CCAB, or of specialised bodies such as the Institute of Internal Auditors.

Excise Duty

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representations he has received seeking changes in excise duty payable on non-alcoholic beers and lagers and dealcoholised wines.

Mr. Lilley: No excise duty is payable on non-alcoholic beers and lagers and dealcoholised wines. No recent representations have been received on this matter.

EC (Payments)

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will update the information in his reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk North of 22 April 1987, Official Report, columns 577-78, for each year since 1973, concerning (a) the overall payments by the Treasury to the European Economic Community, (b) the total payments and refunds made to the Treasury and (c) the net cost to the Treasury.

Mr. Brooke: The additional information required in respect of the United Kingdom's contribution to and receipts from the 1987 Community budget is as follows:

	£ million
Gross payments	5,202
Receipts other than negotiated refunds	2,336
Negotiated refunds	—
VAT abatements	1,153
Net total	1,713

The increase in the net total figure compared with the estimate of £1,347 million in the "statement on the 1987 Community budget" (Cm. 194) is mainly accounted for by higher than expected payments of levies and duties, the autumn supplementary budget for 1987 and the August 1987 VAT adjustment.

£1 Notes

Sir Geoffrey Finsberg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Bank of England £1 notes are still in circulation as at the latest convenient date; and how many were in circulation five years earlier.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 16 February 1988]: On 3 February 1988, some 108 million £1 notes remained in circulation, of which 69·9 million were series D £1 notes (those issued since 1978). There were 641 million £1 notes in circulation at the end of February 1983.

CIVIL SERVICE

Opposition Whips' Office

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Minister for the Civil Service how many civil servants are employed in the Opposition Whips' Office in the House of Commons; and what are their salaries.

Mr. Richard Luce: There are four, one chief clerk superintendent (salary scale £8,469 to £9,841) and three office assistants (salary scale £5,880 to £6,971). In addition, both grades receive inner London weighting (£1,527 per annum) and night duty allowance (£3,803 per annum).

SCOTLAND

Housing

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give details of new housing developments which have been planned to commence in the current year in Angus.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Angus district council's January 1986 housing plan sets out its general strategy for housing provision in its area. It is, however, for the council to deploy resources available for capital expenditure according to the priorities it determines on a year-to-year basis, and details of council projects programmed are not held centrally.

The Scottish Special Housing Association has no plans to commence any projects in the current year in Angus. The Housing Corporation in Scotland has implemented one scheme in the district, comprising 10 units, in the current year.

No detailed information is available centrally on private sector housing developments.

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give details of new housing developments which have been planned to commence in the current year in Perthshire.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Perth and Kinross district council's October 1986 housing plan sets out its general strategy for housing provision in its area in the current year. It is, however, for the council to deploy resources available for capital expenditure according to the priorities it determines on a year-to-year basis, and details of council projects programmed are not held centrally.

The Scottish Special Housing Association is currently providing 50 special needs in Perth. The Housing Corporation in Scotland has approved five housing association projects in Perthshire, comprising 40 houses, which have started or are expected to start in the current year.

No detailed information is available centrally on private sector housing developments.

Criminal Offenders (Tayside)

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether individuals charged with criminal offences by the Tayside police have their names put on public record, open for public inspection.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No.

Dunkeld Cathedral

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what provisions are made by him to make bell ringing possible in the part of Dunkeld cathedral which is run and controlled by him.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Arrangements can be made for teams of bell-ringers to ring the bells in the tower of Dunkeld cathedral which is in the care of the Secretary of State. A charge is payable to cover costs.

Infant Mortality

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the six health authorities in Scotland with the highest percentage of post neonatal deaths, for each year since 1975.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information is as follows:

Health Board Areas[1] with the highest post-neonatal mortality rates,[2] Scotland, 1975-86

Health Board Area	Rate per 1,000 live births
1975
Lanarkshire	8·1
Greater Glasgow	6·8
Fife	6·7
Dumfries and Galloway	6·3
Argyll and Clyde	6·2
Ayrshire and Arran	5·8
1976
Greater Glasgow	6·0
Ayrshire and Arran	5·5
Lothian	5·0
Dumfries and Galloway	5·0
Lanarkshire	4·5
Highland	4·5
1977
Fife	5·9
Ayrshire and Arran	5·8
Greater Glasgow	5·5
Highland	5·4
Lothian	5·2
Grampian	5·0
1978
Western Isles	7·2
Highland	5·8
Greater Glasgow	5·7
Tayside	4·4
Lothian	4·0
Orkney	3·9

Health Board Area	Rate per 1,000 live births
1979
Borders	7·9
Fife	6·0
Highland	5·7
Dumfries and Galloway	5·6
Shetland	5·5
Forth Valley	5·1
1980
Dumfries and Galloway	6·7
Highland	6·2
Ayrshire and Arran	6·1
Lothian	4·6
Greater Glasgow	4·6
Grampian	4·5
1981
Orkney	7·9
Borders	6·0
Forth Valley	5·4
Lanarkshire	5·0
Grampian	5·0
Greater Glasgow	4·9
1982
Orkney	8·5
Dumfries and Galloway	8·2
Shetland	5·8
Greater Glasgow	5·0
Lothian	4·5
Lanarkshire	4·5
1983
Shetland	12·7
Borders	7·2
Dumfries and Galloway	6·0
Argyll and Clyde	5·6
Highland	4·6
Lothian	4·6
1984
Grampian	5·7
Forth Valley	5·5
Dumfries and Galloway	5·1
Lanarkshire	4·6
Fife	4·3
Orkney	4·2
1985
Orkney	8·6
Shetland	6·5
Highland	6·1
Dumfries and Galloway	5·1
Greater Glasgow	4·6
Borders	4·3
1986
Orkney	9·0
Borders	5·6
Grampian	4·6
Dumfries and Galloway	4·2
Greater Glasgow	4·2
Lothian	4·0

Notes:

[1] Figures for the smaller health board areas, in particular Orkney, Shetland and Western Isles, are based on small numbers of live births and therefore rates vary considerably with small changes in the number of deaths.

[2] Deaths four weeks and over but under one year per 1,000 live births.

Fire Service Training School

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland to what extent the recommendations made by his Department's inspector for changes in procedures at the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane were based on the evidence received during his Department's inquiry into allegations about conduct at the school; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The recommendations made by Her Majesty's Inspector of Fire Services were based on views formed by the inspector during his inquiry taking into account the evidence given to him by recruits and instructors and the surrounding circumstances.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what evidence he has as to the veracity of complaints made by fire service recruits about practices at the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Complaints were received from one brigade only; I am satisfied that these have been properly investigated and that the conclusions reached by the independent inspector were reasonable.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when his Department published the report of the inquiry into allegations of malpractices at the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane; and when the report was made available to the Lothian and Borders fire brigade.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The report of the inquiry was not published nor was it made available to Lothian and Borders fire brigade, but a very full news release was issued on 16 September 1987, copies of which have been placed in the Library.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if a Fire Brigades Union representative was present at all interviews with recruits and other staff in connection with his Department's inquiry into complaints about the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The Fire Brigades Union was invited to be represented at all the 24 interviews. I understand that a local office bearer was present at 20 of these but elected not to attend the other four and further that he expressed himself satisfied with the way in which the interviews were conducted.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will explain the reason for changes in procedures at the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane which have been introduced following the recent inquiry into complaints about that establishment.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The changes in procedures were introduced following recommendations made by the inspector in his report.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the procedure used by a senior officer of the Strathclyde fire brigade to interview 12 recruits about allegations of humiliating and degrading treatment at the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No special procedures were used. The senior officer of Strathclyde fire brigade interviewed 13 recruits from his brigade, including one who has now left the service at Strathclyde's training establishment. None had any complaint to make nor had they seen anyone abused.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if any senior officers of the Lothian and Borders fire brigade were formally interviewed in connection with his Department's inquiry into complaints about the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The inspector interviewed the third officer of the brigade on 17 June 1987.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he is satisfied with the way in which the firemaster and staff of the Lothian and Borders fire brigade dealt with complaints about the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane; and if he will make a statement;

(2) if he will make a statement on the investigation carried out by the Lothian and Borders fire brigade into allegations of humiliating and degrading treatment of recruits at the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane; and if he is satisfied with the conduct of the brigade in relation to these complaints and the subsequent inquiries.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The inspector in his report commented on the handling of the matter, and these comments have been passed to the firemaster.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will provide the firemaster of the Lothian and Borders fire brigade with a copy of the report and associated evidence of his Department's inquiry into complaints about the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane; and if he will make a statement.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No. The report was private and contained information which was given to Her Majesty's Inspector of Fire Services on the understanding that confidentiality would be observed. However, the findings and recommendations of the report were contained in a very detailed Scottish Office news release published on 16 September 1987, copies of which have been placed in the Library. Subsequently, Lothian and Borders fire board was given a detailed resume of the inquiry and I met representatives of the board on 29 January 1988 to discuss the matter further.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what consideration was given to allegations about dangerous practices in his Department's recent investigation concerning the Scottish fire service training school at Gullane.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: I am unaware of any allegations of dangerous practices.

Parkhead Stadium

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he last made an official visit to a football match at Parkhead stadium; whether he has received any report from the Strathclyde police concerning crowd control arrangements at Parkhead; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: My right hon. and learned Friend has not been invited to the stadium. He has not received a report from Strathclyde police on crowd control arrangements there, nor does he see a need to ask for one.

Modern Languages

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what plans he has to implement the recommendations of European Community document 7706/84 on the teaching of modern languages in Scottish schools;

(2) if he has any plans to include the teaching of a foreign language in the core curriculum for S3 and S4;

(3) what future role he plans for the teaching of modern languages in Scottish secondary schools; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I refer the hon. Member to the reply which I gave to the hon. Member for Angus, East (Mr. Welsh) on 12 February at columns 369-70.

In Vitro Fertilisation

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list in the Official Report those hospitals which are equipped to offer in vitro fertilisation services.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: In vitro fertilisation (IVF) services are provided at centres approved by the Voluntary Licensing Authority. There are four such centres in Scotland. Clinical IVF services are provided at Ninewells hospital, Dundee, and at the Royal infirmary, Glasgow, and clinical IVF services in association with research work are provided at the Royal infirmary, Aberdeen, and the Simpson memorial maternity pavilion, Edinburgh.

Winter Mortality

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will publish tables in the manner of those in the answer to the hon. Member for Surrey, South-West (Mrs. Bottomley) of 9 February, Official Report, column 170, relating to excess winter mortality in Scotland.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information is as follows:

'Excess' winter mortality: Scotland, 1958-87

Year	Winter Deaths A	Summer Deaths B	Differences A-B	Percentage Excess $\frac{(A-B) \times 100}{B}$
1958	18,622	12,667	5,955	47·0
1959	21,048	12,900	8,148	63·2
1960	17,194	13,705	3,489	25·5
1961	18,752	13,514	5,238	38·8

Year	Winter Deaths A	Summer Deaths B	Differences A-B	Percentage Excess (A-B) x 100 / B
1962	18,516	13,460	5,056	37·6
1963	20,711	13,775	6,936	50·4
1964	16,510	13,644	2,866	21·0
1965	17,806	13,860	3,946	28·5
1966	19,471	13,655	5,816	42·6
1967	15,834	13,365	2,469	18·5
1968	19,264	13,482	5,782	42·9
1969	18,148	13,970	4,178	29·9
1970	19,271	14,157	5,114	36·1
1971	16,712	14,145	2,567	18·1
1972	19,108	14,349	4,759	33·2
1973	18,171	14,303	3,868	27·0
1974	17,093	14,490	2,603	18·0
1975	17,338	14,114	3,224	22·8
1976	19,780	14,071	5,709	40·6
1977	17,049	13,859	3,190	23·0
1978	19,112	14,433	4,679	32·4
1979	18,810	14,580	4,230	29·0
1980	17,304	14,246	3,058	21·5
1981	17,293	14,269	3,024	21·2
1982	19,364	14,165	5,199	36·7
1983	18,108	14,245	3,863	27·1
1984	17,225	13,831	3,394	24·5
1985	17,466	14,354	3,112	21·7
1986	18,456	14,273	4,183	29·3
1987[1]	16,878	14,088	2,790	19·8

[1] Provisional

Five Year Period	Percentage Excess Winter Mortality
1958-1962	42·1
1963-1967	32·3
1968-1972	32·0
1973-1977	26·2
1978-1982	28·2
1983-1987	24·5

Notes:

Winter: deaths registered in months January to March inclusive.
Summer: deaths registered in months July to September inclusive.

Catering and Domestic Services

Mr. Darling: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will place in the Library an account of the discussions of the seminar on 2 October 1987 addressed by representatives of the trade associations for catering and domestic services contractors, referred to in his letter from general managers of Scottish health boards in December 1987;

(2) if he will list the names and companies of participants in the seminar on 2 October 1987 addressed by representatives of the trade associations for catering and domestic services contractors, referred to in his letter dated December 1987 sent to general managers of Scottish health boards.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I refer the hon. Member to my replies of 19 January at columns 664-65, to the hon. Member for Strathkelvin and Bearsden (Mr. Galbraith).

Clydesdale (Population)

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give the population of each town and village in the Clydesdale constituency since the 1983 boundary change.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 10 February 1988 at column 142.

The term "Clydesdale constituency" was taken to mean the constituency following the 1983 boundary reorganisation, since there was no constituency of that name before then.

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give the population of each of the villages in the Clydesdale constituency with fewer than 500 people.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: 1981 census population figures are available for various predefined areas and for user-specified aggregations of postcode unit areas. Villages were not included in the former category because they did not have easily-defined boundaries.

D and C Operations

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what information he has concerning the total number of D and C operations performed in Scotland in each of the last 25 years for which figures are available.

Mr. Michael Forsyth [pursuant to his reply, 2 February 1988, c. 575]: The number of D and C operations performed in NHS hospitals in Scotland from 1961 to 1985 (the latest year for which information is held centrally) is given in the following table:

Year	Number of operations
1961	18,167
1962	19,218
1963	18,524
1964	19,464
1965	18,918
1966	20,271
1967	20,255
1968	20,210
[1]1969	19,000
[1]1970	19,300
1971	19,538
1972	15,380
1973	13,824
1974	13,836
1975	13,016
1976	13,540
1977	11,916
1978	11,757
1979	10,889
1980	15,281
1981	12,931
1982	10,841
1983	13,031
1984	12,828
1985	13,210

[1] Estimated figures.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Official Opposition

Mr. James Wallace: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will set out (a) the number of employees, (b) the machinery and equipment and (c) other benefits in kind which are provided to the official Opposition from public funds in addition to the assistance to Opposition parties, indicating the estimated annual value in each case.

Mr. Wakeham: The current annual cost to public funds of staff and benefits in kind provided to the official Opposition in addition to the moneys provided under the scheme for financial assistance to Opposition parties ('Short money') is estimated to be as follows:

	Estimated cost £
(i) Opposition Whips Office (House of Commons)
4 staff	[1]55,000
Office equipment (photocopier)	1,500
Postal services	[1]15,000
(ii) Opposition Whips Office (House of Lords)
Postal services	12,000
HMSO supplies	1,500

[1] Pay and Earnings Related National Insurance Contributions.

In addition, a car is available to the Leader of the Opposition from the Government car service. The cost of this in the current financial year is estimated to be about £36,000.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will list (a) the salary of the Leader of the Opposition, (b) the salaries of any Opposition Whips who receive a salary in excess of the salary of an ordinary hon. Member and (c) the annual cost to public funds of the use of the Government car service by the Leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Wakeham: The information is as follows:

		Salary at 1.1.1988 £ per annum
(a) (i)	Leader of the Opposition (Commons)	[1]48,148
(ii)	Leader of the Opposition (Lords)	28,688
(b) (i)	Chief Opposition Whip (Commons)	[1]40,798
	Assistant Opposition Whips (Commons)	[1]31,738
(ii)	Chief Opposition Whip (Lords)	25,618
(c)	The annual cost to public funds of the use of the Government car service by the Leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons is included in Class XX, Vote 1 and is estimated to be about £36,000 in the current financial year. The Leader of the Opposition in the House of Lords is not provided with the use of the Government car service.

[1] The salaries quoted for office holders in the House of Commons include a reduced parliamentary salary of £16,911 per annum.

Members' Pensions

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Lord President of the Council what Exchequer contribution will be payable to a personal pension scheme in respect of a right hon. or hon. Member who elects to withdraw from the parliamentary contributory pension fund; and what is the current Exchequer contribution to the parliamentary contributory pension fund.

Mr. Wakeham: In a written answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Hertfordshire, South-West (Mr. Page) on 4 December 1987, column 731, my right hon. Friend the Paymaster General explained that from July 1988 the Social Security Act 1986 will require employers to make a contribution for personal pension optants, as part of their national insurance contributions, at a rate no less than the contracted-out rebate (which currently stands at about 4 per cent. of the individual's salary). The Government consider that an employer's contribution at that level would be appropriate for public service employees opting for personal pensions, and that the same approach should be followed with the parliamentary pension scheme. The Exchequer currently makes a contribution of 13 per cent. of salary to the parliamentary contributory pension fund.

ENVIRONMENT

Residuary Bodies

15. Mr. Bernie Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he plans to take any action, in the light of the latest annual reports of the seven residuary bodies; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: The 1986-87 annual reports show that all seven residuary bodies are making good progress in discharging the functions they inherited from the former metropolitan county councils and the Greater London council. I congratulate all seven on their work.

Young People (Homelessness and Crime)

18. Mr. Parry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether his Department will conduct a study on the alleged link between homeless young people and crime, drug abuse and alcohol abuse.

Mr. Waldegrave: We published research in 1981 which suggested that only a very small percentage of young homeless people suffer from alcoholism and drug addiction.

Land Disposal

19. Mr. David Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the performance of local authorities in disposing of unused and underused land.

Mr. Trippier: By the end of 1987 local authorities had disposed of over 16,000 acres of the unused and underused land entered on the registers of such land which the Department maintains.

In its recent report on local authority property management the Audit Commission has drawn attention to the ways in which the management practices of local authorities can be improved, which I am now considering.

Rate Capping

20. Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received regarding the effectiveness of the rate capping of precepting authorities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: The Department has received numerous representations about rate and precept limitation, including a recent letter from the leader of the metropolitan borough of Solihull about the effectiveness of precept control in the west midlands next year to which we will be replying shortly.

72. Mr. Patnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he expects to be in a position to announce his final decisions on rate limits for authorities selected for rate limitation for 1988-89.

Mr. Chope: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Banbury (Mr. Baldry) on 12 February, at column 384.

Fulmer (Sewerage)

21. Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he next expects to meet the chairman of the Thames water authority to discuss mains sewerage in Fulmer.

Mr. Ridley: The provisions of mains sewerage in Fulmer is a matter for the Thames water authority and South Buckinghamshire district council.

Planning Policy

22. Mr. Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any proposals to increase the effectiveness of town and country planning laws relating to development commencing without the granting of permission, or in breach of conditions attached to permissions.

Mr. Waldegrave: Effective enforcement of planning control depends on the local planning authority's vigilance and resolution in using its statutory powers in the Town and Country Planning Act 1971. So far as enforcement appeals are concerned, we have recently completed an efficiency scrutiny, and an action plan, to achieve all-round improvements, will be published shortly.

34. Mr. Dykes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will investigate the practice in the outer London boroughs whereby estate developers demolish residential buildings to create large-scale development sites; and whether he will consider proposing changes in the planning laws in the light of this practice.

Mr. Waldegrave: No. My right hon. Friend is satisfied that no extension of control for this purpose is necessary. It is already necessary to obtain permission to demolish listed buildings of architectural or historic interest, and unlisted buildings in conservation areas; and redevelopment requires planning permission in the usual way.

35. Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what recent representations he has received about improving planning procedures.

Mr. Waldegrave: Hon. Members and others are rightly concerned about delays in reaching decisions on planning applications and appeals. We have recently urged local authorities to ensure that their procedures for dealing with planning applications operate efficiently and do not impose unwarranted delays. A substantial programme of measures is in hand to improve appeals procedures and to speed decision times.

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what steps he is taking to ensure that local planning authorities comply with the advice within circular 13/87 in general and paragraphs 11 and 12 in particular.

Mr. Waldegrave: The advice in my Department's circulars about town and country planning is not mandatory, but it is a material consideration in decisions about development proposals. An applicant may appeal from a local planning authority's decision and an authority which has acted unreasonably on a case which goes to appeal by inquiry may face an award of costs. We are monitoring the extent to which local authorities impose conditions on planning permissions so as to restrict the freedoms in the general development order and the use classes order.

Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he and his inspectors will award costs against local authorities on appeal when evidence is laid before him that local planning authorities frustrate the spirit of circular 13/87.

Mr. Waldegrave: The power, in section 250(5) of the Local Government Act 1972, for my right hon. Friend or a planning inspector to award a party's costs in appeal proceedings is discretionary in relation to the particular facts of any appeal and the parties' behaviour during the appeal proceedings. Paragraphs 7 and 13 of circular 2/87 make it clear, respectively, that if, without reasonable planning grounds, planning authorities fail to follow relevant advice given in departmental circulars, or they impose conditions which are unnecessary and unreasonable, an award of costs may be made against the planning authority when it is justified in the circumstances.

Homelessness

23. Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the Government's latest estimate of the number of people who are homeless as a result of mortgage defaults.

Mr. Waldegrave: In the year to September 1987 English local authorities accepted an estimated 10,300 households as homeless because of mortgage arrears.

25. Mr. Ashdown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give the total cost at 1986-87 prices to local authorities of housing homeless families in emergency accommodation (a) in 1986-87 and (b) in 1979-80.

Mr. Ridley: From information supplied by authorities in England and Wales and calculations made by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy, net expenditure on hostels and bed and breakfast, when expressed at 1986-87 prices, amounted to £1,697 and £472 per 1,000 population in 1986-87 and 1979-80 respectively.

40. Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to seek to amend the homeless persons legislation; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Roe: No.

52. Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what further steps he proposes to reduce levels of homelessness.

Mrs. Roe: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning gave to the hon. Member for Southwark and Bermondsey (Mr. Hughes) on 2 December 1987, at column 927.

60. Mr. Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he plans to publish and distribute the leaflet giving guidance on homelessness which was circulated for consultation purposes on 8 April 1987.

Mrs. Roe: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Hammersmith (Mr. Soley) on 8 February, at column 22.

66. Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give figures for the number of households accepted as homeless in England (a) in 1980 and (b) in 1987 or the latest year for which figures are available.

Mrs. Roe: English local authorities are estimated to have accepted responsibility under the homelessness provisions of the Housing Acts for finding accommodation for 62,900 households in 1980 and for 108,100 in the 12 months to September 1987. The estimate for 1980 is not strictly comparable with more recent figures, because of a change in the method of reporting.

Environmental Protection

24. Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any proposals to issue a revised planning circular to provide clearer protection of the environment of the communities affected by opencast mining and similar activities; and what further consideration has been given to this subject since the Government's response to the recommendations of the Energy Committee's report on the coal industry.

Mr. Trippier: The Department issued revised draft planning guidelines for opencast coal mining for consultation in April last year. We are currently considering all the representations received and propose to publish revised guidelines in the near future.

Farm Buildings

26. Mr. Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will take further steps to ensure that planning authorities respond positively and quickly to applications for the alternative use of redundant farm buildings.

Mr. Waldegrave: Our planning policy since 1980 has been that permission should be granted for the conversion of redundant farm buildings to alternative uses unless there are specific and convincing planning objections. We re-emphasised this most recently in two planning policy guidance notes entitled "Green Belts" and "Rural Enterprise and Development", issued on 20 January. We continue to urge planning authorities to process all planning applications as quickly as possible.

Peak Park Planning Board

27. Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to review the way in which members are appointed to the Peak Park planning board; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Waldegrave: My right hon. Friend has no plans for such a review.

Planning Appeals

28. Mr. Sean Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many planning appeals have been decided by himself since 1986; and how many have been determined on his behalf by inspectors.

Mr. Waldegrave: In 1987, 655 planning appeals were decided by the Secretary of State and 16,458 by inspectors acting on his behalf.

Housing Improvement Schemes

29. Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many housing improvement schemes involving Estate Action have been approved so far in the present financial year.

Mr. Waldegrave: With the schemes I have announced today, 112 new Estate Action schemes will have been approved in the current financial year. Substantial financial support has also been given to some 70 schemes which were started last year.

62. Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the potential for using Housing Corporation funds to support developments complementary to Estate Action programmes.

Mrs. Roe: There is considerable potential for housing associations to contribute to Estate Action programmes and this will be expanded by the provisions in the Housing Bill extending the power of registered associations to help with the regeneration of rundown areas and in providing services to other bodies such as tenants' groups. Decisions on whether to fund any particular association or project remain of course a matter for the Housing Corporation, but I am confident that its consultations with local authorities and associations will have alerted it to opportunities for funding association developments which will complement Estate Action programmes.

Rates Collection

30. Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to meet the leader of the London Boroughs Association to discuss rates collection; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: My right hon. Friend has not received any request from the leader of the London Boroughs Association for such a meeting.

Football (Membership Schemes)

31. Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will reconsider his policy on membership schemes for football clubs, in the light of representations made by senior officers of the Metropolitan police.

Mr. Ridley: I want to see football clubs make further progress on membership schemes, including where necessary by making appropriate structural alterations to their grounds. Representations from the Metropolitan police have largely been in respect of constraints imposed on membership schemes at individual clubs by the present configuration of their grounds.

Rating Reform

33. Mr. Squire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his latest estimate of the proportion of the adult population liable to pay the community charge who will pay the charge within due time.

Mr. Howard: All adults liable to the community charge will be invited to pay by 10 equal instalments each year, though collecting authorities will have discretion to agree other arrangements with chargepayers who prefer a different frequency.

I have every confidence that local authorities will collect the community charge from those liable as efficiently as they now collect domestic rates.

Bed-and-breakfast Accommodation

36. Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give the latest available figure of people in bed-and-breakfast accommodation in urban areas.

46. Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his latest estimate of the number of families in bed-and-breakfast accommodation in rural areas.

47. Mr. John Garrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give the latest available figure of people in bed-and-breakfast accommodation in non-urban areas and the figure for the previous year.

Mrs. Ree: The quarterly publication "Local Authorities' action under the homelessness provisions of the 1985 Housing Act: England, Supplementary tables" includes the numbers of households temporarily placed by authorities in bed-and-breakfast accommodation. The latest issue, with the results of the third quarter 1987, gives in table 4(a) estimates of the numbers being accommodated at the end of September 1987 and a year before, by London boroughs, by metropolitan district councils and by other councils.

38. Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he plans to meet representatives of Britain's local authorities to discuss the proposed community charge.

59. Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he last met the local authority associations to discuss the proposals in the Local Government Finance Bill.

69. Dr. Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he plans to meet representatives of Britain's local authorities to discuss the proposed community charge.

Mr. Howard: I refer to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State and Member for Southampton, Itchen (Mr. Chope) to the hon. Member for Glasgow, Pollok (Mr. Dunnachie) on 4 November 1987, at column 737.

53. Ms. Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will provide an up-to-date list of all those organisations supporting the community charge and uniform business rate proposals in the Local Government Finance Bill.

67. Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many local authorities have made submissions to him in support of the Local Government Finance Bill.

Mr. Howard: A summary of 1,271 responses, received by my Department before 31 October 1986, when the consultation period on the Green Paper ended, was placed in the Library on 15 December 1986. Since June 1987 my Department has received some 3,800 letters, including about 200 from local authorities and local authority associations. The letters contain a variety of comments on specific aspects of our proposals or requests for further information, and for this reason do not readily lend themselves to an analysis of correspondents' views.

64. Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received about the position of parish and town councils under the community charge proposals, in the light of their prospective loss of the proceeds of rates from commercial premises.

Mr. Howard: I received a large number of representations from parish and town councils to the effect that the proposals in the Green Paper "Paying for Local Government" would have deprived them of any benefit from business rate income. The introduction of the collection fund, whereby grant and redistributed non-domestic rates will be applied in support of the expenditure of all tiers of authority, should meet their concern.

70. Mr. McCrindle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what recent representations he has received on the uniform business rate from the Confederation of British Industry and the National Association of Chambers of Commerce.

Mr. Howard: The CBI has made representations about some aspects of the uniform business rate and has asked for a £1·8 billion reduction in the total burden of rates on businesses, but has stressed that it considers the Government's proposals a substantial improvement on the status quo. The Association of British Chambers of Commerce has expressed support for the uniform business rate, but has made representations seeking improved transitional arrangements and enhanced consultation arrangements between local authorities and business, which we are considering.

Basildon District Council

37. Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has yet received any request from Basildon district council for redetermination of his decision to rate cap the council; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: My right hon. Friend has received no request from Basildon district council for redetermination of his decision to rate-cap the council. He has, however, received representations from the council asking him to consider raising the rate limit proposed by him for 1988-89 and I met members and officials from the council on 27 January 1988 to consider the council's arguments for a higher rate limit in 1988-89.

The Secretary of State has considered all the information available to him and in an order laid before the House of Commons on 12 February he specified for Basildon district council a maximum rate of 49·68p confirming his original proposal made on 9 December.

Houses (Multiple Occupation)

39. Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received about the Government's policy towards houses in multiple occupation.

Mrs. Ree: My hon. Friend the Minister for Housing and Planning met a delegation from the Campaign for Bedsit Rights last December. Some representations have also been made to the Department, and to our environmental health adviser in the course of his visits to local authorities.

Nature Conservancy Council

41. Ms. Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he last met members of the Nature Conservancy Council; and what matters were discussed.

Mrs. Ree: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, East (Mr. Moynihan) to the hon. Member for Meironnydd Nant Conwy (Dr. Thomas) on Tuesday 9 February, at columns 128-29.

Development Corporations

42. Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the impact of the English urban development corporations since they were set up.

Mr. Trippier: London Docklands DC and Merseyside DC, which were both set up in 1981, have had a major impact on their areas. Information is contained in their annual reports, copies of which are laid before the House. The four English urban development corporations set up in 1987 have embarked on initial projects and have generated considerable interest in their areas.

54. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much money he has awarded to each of the urban development corporations he set up on 7 December 1987; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Trippier: My right hon. Friend announced on 7 December his intention to set up further urban development corporations. No decisions have been taken on financial allocations.

58. Mr. Grocott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he has any plans to meet the chairman of Telford development corporation to discuss the future of the corporation's assets.

Mrs. Ree: My right hon. Friend has no plans to do so at present.

75. Mr. Kirkhope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he will visit Leeds to discuss his proposals for a mini urban development corporation there.

Mr. Trippier: My right hon. Friend has no present plans to visit Leeds, but I visited the city on 18 January and discussed the UDC proposal with leading local figures.

76. Mr. Bart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he expects to be in a position to establish a new mini urban development corporation for central Manchester.

Mr. Trippier: The order establishing the UDC will be made after my right hon. Friend has received the consultants' advice on the boundary in March and the views of local interests on the proposed boundary.

45. Mr. Hayward: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what response there has been to his recent announcement of a proposed mini urban development corporation in Bristol.

Mr. Trippier: Generally welcoming.

Nuclear Waste

43. Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he has yet been informed by Nirex as to when he can expect a copy of its proposals for the disposal of intermediate nuclear waste; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Ree: My right hon. Friend expects UK Nirex Ltd. to submit its proposals for a deep dual-purpose disposal facility for low-level and intermediate-level radioactive waste within a year, after careful consideration has been given to the response to the discussion document "The Way Forward" and to other technical factors.

Anti-litter Strategy

44. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a further statement on plans to tidy up Britain.

Mrs. Ree: The Tidy Britain Group has prepared proposals for a fresh anti-litter strategy, which we are currently considering.

Sulphur Dioxide Emissions

48. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, in the light of the evidence contained in the report of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe about the increased emissions by Britain of sulphur dioxide compared with the year before, he will make a statement on what the Government is to do effectively to reduce such emissions.

Mrs. Roe: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my the Under-Secretary of State my hon. Friend the Member for Lewisham, East (Mr. Moynihan) to my hon. Friend the Member for Epping Forest (Sir J. Biggs-Davison) on 12 November 1987, at column 185.

Rent Arrears

49. Mr. Heddle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the current cumulative amount owed in rent arrears to all local authorities in England; and what further steps he is taking to reduce this amount.

Mr. Waldegrave: I refer my hon. Friend to the answers I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Leeds, North-East (Mr. Kirkhope) on 20 January, at columns 756-57, and to my hon. Friend the Member for Dover (Mr. Shaw) today.

Housing Defects

50. Sir John Biggs-Davison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will introduce legislation so as to amend the Housing Defects Act to attach grants for repairs to the property and not to its owner.

Mr. Waldegrave: We have no plans to do so. I am writing to my hon. Friend, setting out our reasons for this.

Mr. Gwilym Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what progress he has made in reviewing the national grant eligible expenditure limits under the housing defects legislation; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Waldegrave: I have decided that the national limits set in 1986 need revision, given that a year and a half has passed since they came into force and that we now have much more experience of actual repair costs. In the light of all the information available, we are proposing the following new limits:

House type	Proposed limit £	Present limit £
Local designations and any new designations	14,000	14,000
Cornish unit: 1 storey PRC	17,000	14,000
Dorran: 1 storey PRC	17,000	16,000
Gregory	17,000	14,000
Myton: 1 storey PRC	17,000	16,000
Newland: 1 storey PRC	17,000	16,000
Tarran: 1 storey PRC	17,000	14,000
Unity and Butterly: 1 storey PRC	17,000	20,000
Wessex: 1 storey PRC	17,000	24,000
Cornish unit: 2 storey PRC	23,000	16,000
Stent	23,000	20,000
Unity and Butterly: 2 storey PRC	23,000	20,000
Airey	27,000	16,000
Boswell	27,000	14,000
Dorran: 2 storey PRC	27,000	16,000
Dyke	27,000	24,000
Myton: 2 storey PRC	27,000	16,000
Newland: 2 storey PRC	27,000	16,000
Reema Hollow Panel	27,000	20,000
Schindler and Hawksley SGS	27,000	24,000
Smith	27,000	20,000
Stonecrete	27,000	16,000
Tarran: 2 storey PRC	27,000	14,000
Underdown	27,000	20,000
Waller	27,000	24,000
Wates	27,000	20,000
Winget	27,000	20,000
Boot	31,000	20,000
Orlit	31,000	24,000
Parkinson	31,000	20,000
Wessex: 2 storey PRC	31,000	24,000
Woolaway	31,000	20,000

These changes should help speed up the administration of the scheme. At present, local authorities often have to apply for individual higher eligible expenditure limits for particular properties: the new limits should reduce considerably the need for that. My officials will now be consulting the local authority associations, home owners groups, approved repairers and other interested bodies on these proposals. We hope to have all responses by early April and to reach a final decision soon after that. Bringing the new limits into force requires a negative resolution of the House of Commons. We hope to make such an order by May, so that new limits can be in operation by June.

Structure Plan (Berkshire)

51. Mr. Andrew MacKay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received on his proposed modifications to the management structure plan for central Berkshire.

Mr. Waldegrave: To date my right hon. Friend has received 10 representations to his proposed modifications to the replacement structure plan for Berkshire.

Berkshire county council is advertising the proposed modifications this week, specifying a six-week period, ending on 31 March, in which representations on the proposed modifications may be made to my right hon. Friend. All representations will be carefully considered.

HOTCHA Scheme

55. Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the operation of the HOTCHA scheme, which provides opportunities for house purchase for tenants of housing association properties.

Mr. Waldegrave: The home ownership scheme for tenants of charitable housing associations was introduced in September 1984 to help tenants who would have had the right to buy but for the charitable status of their landlords. Tenants assisted under the scheme receive discounts, funded by housing association grant, on the purchase of homes on the open market. Over 5,000 properties have been purchased at discounts totalling some £80 million. Because demand outstrips the resources available a waiting list has been in force since 1 October 1986. At the end of December 1987 2,645 applications were being held. A further £19 million has been allocated for the scheme for 1988-89 to cover outstanding purchases set in hand before 1 October 1986 and a proportion of the applications received since that date. Applications received up to 31 May 1987 will now be allowed to proceed.

Water Authorities

56. Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he last met the chairmen of the water authorities of England and Wales; and what subjects were discussed.

Mr. Ridley: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on Thursday 11 February, at column 298, to the hon. Member for Caernarfon (Mr. Wigley).

71. Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to meet the chairmen of the water authorities in England and Wales to discuss compliance with the relevant EEC directives.

Mr. Ridley: I meet the chairmen of water authorities regularly to discuss matters of current interest, including compliance with EC directives.

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was discussed at his meeting with the water authority chairmen on 19 January.

Mrs. Rae: I refer the hon. Member for the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State to the hon. Member for Caernarfon (Mr. Wigley) on 11 February, at column 298.

Planning Applications

57. Mr. Simon Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he is satisfied with the performance of local authorities in dealing with planning applications.

Mr. Waldegrave: No. I believe that local authorities should be able to deal with at least 80 per cent. of planning applications within eight weeks of receiving them. On 1 February we published figures which showed that in the three months January-March 1987 41 authorities achieved that, but on average during that quarter English local authorities decided only 59 per cent. of applications within eight weeks. I hope that all local authorities will examine their procedures for handling planning applications and introduce improvements where appropriate, to make the system work more efficiently.

Housing Associations

61. Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give an estimate of the percentage by which he expects housing association rents to increase in real terms (a) over the next two years and (b) over the next four years.

Mrs. Rae: I can give no such estimate. Existing housing association tenancies will remain subject to rents registered by rent officers. Rents on lettings which take place after commencement of the relevant provisions of the Housing Bill will be for the associations to determine, taking account of their costs and of the grant available to them.

UK 2000

63. Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much public money has been spent by UK 2000; what information he has as to how much private money has been spent; and what has been achieved.

Mr. Trippier: My right hon. Friend has paid grants to UK 2000 and its participating organisations totalling £600,000 in 1986-87 and £1·4 million in 1987-88. My right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland have also paid smaller grants. In 1986-87, £400,000 of private sector support, in cash and kind, was secured by UK 2000 and in 1987-88 this has risen to £1·4 million. At the end of 1987-88 UK 2000 will be supporting over 400 projects offering over 12,000 community programme places and involving over 12,000 volunteers.

Westminster Pier

65. Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if, in the light of the resolution of the Select Committee on House of Commons (Services) of 2 February, he will now reconsider his earlier decision not to call in the planning application for Westminster pier; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Waldegrave: No. In considering whether to call in the Thames water authority's planning application for a new Westminster pier my right hon. Friend gave very careful consideration to all the material issues involved, including the impact of the proposed structure on the Palace of Westminster and its environs. We have looked again at the matter, in the light of the resolution referred to, but see no reason to take the decision out of the hands of Westminster city council, which is the local planning authority.

Consultative Document (North Devon)

68. Mr. Speller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment upon what dates (a) the consultative documents on right to buy, deregulation of the private rented sector, housing action trusts, tenants' choice and home improvement policy were despatched to North Devon district council and (b) replies were required; and what length of time he treats as a resonable minimum for a local authority to receive, distribute, consider, discuss and provide reasoned comment on such papers.

Mr. Waldegrave: The table provides the information requested about each of the consultation and explanation documents.

	Issued	Comments invited by
Right to buy	2 October	30 October
Deregulation of the Private Rented Sector	2 October	30 October
Housing Action Trusts	8 October	6 November
Tenants' Choice	2 November	4 December
Home Improvement Policy	5 November	4 January 1988

In issuing these documents we thought it sensible to give respondents an indication as to when their comments would be most useful, as clearly the earlier the comments are made, the more helpful they are in developing policy. However, nothing absolute was intended about the target dates set for responses and all comments that we receive are being carefully considered. I am grateful to North Devon district council for the helpful comments it submitted on four of these documents.

It is not possible to generalise about the timetable for submitting comments on any other consultation and explanatory documents, since this will inevitably vary depending on the particular circumstances.

Derelict Land Grant

73. Mr. Dickens: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much his Department has spent on derelict land grant since 1979-80.

Mr. Trippier: Between 1 April 1979 and 31 December 1987 the total amount of derelict land grant paid by the Department was £416·73 million.

Local Authorities (Property Management)

74. Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what steps he takes to monitor the performance of local authorities in managing their property assets effectively.

Mr. Chope: The recent major report from the Audit Commission, to which I referred in my answer given earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Mr. Evans) sets out ways of making major improvements in property management. The local auditors will be following up and monitoring progress. Better property management can improve the performance of every local authority service, as well as generating increased capital receipts.

Nirex

77. Mr. Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he will next meet the chairman of the Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive; and what matters will be discussed.

Mrs. Rae: My right hon. Friend has had discussions with the chairman of Nirex from time to time about the disposal of radioactive waste, but he has at present no plans to meet him.

Fire Authorities (Competitive Tendering)

Mr. Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received seeking the exemption of fire authorities from competitive tendering for maintenance of fire tenders, under the Local Government Act; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: My right hon. Friend received a number of representations on this subject. The Government announced during proceedings on the Local Government Bill on 15 February that, while we were not willing to remove references to fire vehicle maintenance from the Bill, we had decided to use the order-making powers in the Bill to exempt that activity from compulsory competition when we make the first set of regulations and orders under the Bill.

Water Supplies

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the areas that have provided bottled water to mothers feeding young infants when ground water supplies have exceeded limits in European Economic Community directives.

Mrs. Rae: Water undertakers are not required to inform my right hon. Friend when bottled water is provided for infant feeding because of high nitrate levels in public water supplies. However, I understand that bottled water was supplied to nursing mothers in a village in Worcestershire until July 1987 and will continue to be supplied to a village in the Yorkshire water authority area until the supply is replaced later this year.

Green Belt

Mr. Goodlad: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was the area of designated green belt land in the Eddisbury constituency in (a) 1979 and (b) the latest year for which information is available.

Mr. Waldegrave: Green belt within the Eddisbury constituency was broadly defined in the Cheshire structure plan approved in July 1979. It fell to local plans to establish the precise areas and this has been done for the following areas:

(a) In Vale Royal District:
- Frodsham and Helsby local plan (adopted May 1981)
- Northwich local plan (adopted May 1981)
- Tarporley local plan (adopted June 1982).

(b) Chester District:
- Chester rural areas local plan (adopted October 1985).

For those parts of the constituency not yet covered by local plans the green belt remains as broadly defined in the structure plan.

Home Ownership Scheme

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he intends to make changes to the Housing Corporation's home ownership scheme for tenants of charitable housing associations in the light of his review of the operation and effectiveness of the scheme.

Mr. Waldegrave: I have no present plans to change the scheme.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the latest number of new home owners estimated to have been assisted by the Housing Corporation's home ownership scheme for tenants of charitable housing associations; and how many are now on the waiting list.

Mr. Waldegrave: Over 5,000 properties have been purchased through the home ownership scheme for tenants of charitable housing associations. At the end of December 1987 there were 2,645 applications on the waiting list.

Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what funds have been allocated for transferable discounts under the home ownership scheme for tenants of charitable housing associations for the financial year 1988-89.

Mr. Waldegrave: A further £19 million has been allocated for the home ownership scheme for tenants of charitable housing associations in the Housing Corporation's approved development programme for 1988-89.

Local Authority Services (Competitive Tendering)

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will issue draft regulations on the phasing-in of competitive tendering; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Chope: We are currently considering the responses to the Department's consultation paper on the implementation of the competitive tendering provisions in part I of the Local Government Bill. The necessary regulations and orders will be made as soon as possible after Royal Assent. I see no need to issue them in draft first.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what the overall response was to the Government's proposals for the phasing-in of competitive tendering from local authorities; and whether those will be published.

Mr. Chope: Some 210 responses to the English consultation paper have been received so far. In general respondents welcome the proposed phasing-in, although many authorities consider that the overall period is too short and that they should be given greater local flexibility.

Where the authors have agreed, copies of responses will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses of Parliament.

Urban Programme

Dr. Hampson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what the level of urban programme resource allocation has been for Leeds for each year since 1982-83; and if he will give the corresponding figures for Bradford.

Mr. Trippier: The initial allocations are in the following table:

£ million

	Leeds	Bradford
1982-83	4·98	4·92
1983-84	4·93	4·98
1984-85	4·13	4·58
1985-86	4·14	4·78
1986-87	4·13	4·58
1987-88	4·50	4·50
1988-89	4·40	4·50

In addition, the following urban development grant projects have been approved since 1983:

	Number of projects	Amount of grant £ million	Associated private investment £ million
Leeds	14	6·265	15·035
Bradford	4	1·829	5·016

Ancient Woodlands

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he has any plans to amend existing regulations on the protection of ancient woodlands; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Rae: There are no present plans to do so, but we shall keep the position under review, in relation to both ancient woodlands and the amenity value of woodlands generally.

Housing and Planning Act 1986

Mr. Kirkhope: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when the provisions in the Housing and Planning Act 1986, which would enable local housing authorities to pay home improvement grants for works to the common parts of buildings containing flats, are expected to come into force.

Mr. Waldegrave: The orders required to bring into operation the provisions of the Housing and Planning Act relating to common parts grants came into force today. This will be of considerable benefit to flat-dwellers as, for the first time, discretionary grants will be available to help with the costs of repairing and improving those parts of buildings containing flats, such as roofs and staircases, which lie outside the flats themselves. Local authorities will be able to give common parts grants for a wide range of buildings from large purpose-built mansion blocks to small scale conversions.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Royal Ulster Constabulary

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the function and composition of the Royal Ulster Constabulary special support unit.

Mr. Stanley [holding answer 12 February 1988]: There are no longer units in the Royal Ulster Constabulary called special support units. The RUC does have headquarters mobile support units (HMSUs). They are mobile sections of uniformed officers, under the command of an inspector, and comprise specially trained personnel who are readily available for flexible and sustained duties against terrorist and other serious criminal activities.

Ulster Security Liaison Committee

Mr. Livingstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the function and composition of the Ulster security liaison committee.

Mr. Stanley [holding answer 12 February 1988]: It is not the practice to comment on the security arrangements of the Northern Ireland Office.

Discrimination

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many companies or public bodies in Northern Ireland have suffered Government sanctions for failure to observe the code on fair employment;

(2) how many manufacturing service and commercial organisations, local councils and Government departments who have signed the fair employment undertaking have had Government sanctions taken against them for alleged discrimination in employment practice.

Mr. Viggers [holding answer 16 February 1988]: Government Departments in Northern Ireland and the major public bodies sponsored by them do not normally accept tenders from employers unless they are in possession of an equal opportunity certificate issued under section 7 of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1976, following the signature of a declaration of principle and intent. No central records are kept in respect of tenders not accepted.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Green Pound

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food by what estimated amount, to the nearest £100 million, British farmers' incomes have been depressed due to the discrepancy between the value of the green pound and the real pound sterling for the two years 1986 and 1987.

Mr. MacGregor: Farmers' incomes in 1986 and 1987 were affected by many factors. I regret that it is not possible to assess reliably what the aggregate income levels would have been in these years given that the changes in the green pound as envisaged could have affected many other decisions on support levels.

Intervention Stocks

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food by how much British farmers have benefited from intervention purchases over the past five years.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Over the five years up to 1 April 1987 the Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce spent £2,575 million buying surplus produce into intervention and received £870 million from sales out of intervention. During that period the board's costs of storing intervened produce, excluding financing charges, were £385 million.

Peanuts

Mr. Butler: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will introduce legislation to make mandatory the display of warning labels against human consumption upon peanuts sold in petshops; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Donald Thompson: I have no plans to introduce such legislation. I would have thought it self-evident to the public that feed sold in pet shops was not intended for human consumption.

Milk and Pigmeat

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food whether he will give the figures for the value of United Kingdom exports of (a) milk and milk products and (b) pork and pigmeat for each year since 1979.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The information requested on United Kingdom exports is as follows:

(a) Milk and milk products

Year	Exports to the world	Intra-Community	Exports to Third countries
		£ thousand	£ thousand
1979	187,147	141,671	45,476
1980	284,589	203,627	80,962
1981	315,695	203,039	112,656
1982	330,118	214,707	115,411
1983	301,284	175,684	125,600
1984	238,381	123,320	115,061
1985	273,459	161,082	112,377
1986	294,055	211,939	82,116
1987	274,010	184,217	89,793

Source: Eurostat.

(b) Pork and pigmeat

£ thousands

Year	Total	Intra-Community	Exports to Third countries
		£ thousand	£ thousand
1979	22,528	[2]19,595	2,933
1980	24,438	21,915	2,523
1981	26,726	22,637	4,089
1982	39,755	33,907	5,848
1983	58,050	50,216	7,834
1984	55,494	49,733	5,761
1985	66,315	56,922	9,393
1986	71,888	65,293	6,595
1987[1]	47,435	43,200	4,235

Source: Customs and Excise Overseas Trade Statistics.
[1] Figures to end of September.
[2] Spanish figures included in Third country total.

Milk

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what measures the Milk Marketing Board took to ensure the movement of milk and milk products during the trough months of milk production; and with what success.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The Milk Marketing Board collects milk from producers and arranges for its delivery to dairies and manufacturers: it is not responsible for the movement of milk products. The board allocates milk so that the important liquid market is given first priority. During the seasonal trough in milk production additional supplies to meet this priority market are normally drawn from milk allocated to butter and milk powder factories. However, last year's trough was unusually deep and prolonged, with the consequence that, for a period, some milk also had to be drawn from cheese manufacture, but this was kept to a minimum.

Butter

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the retail price of butter for each year since 1970, in actual prices and in constant prices, and also showing 1970 as 100.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The table below provides the information requested:

Average Retail Price of Butter[1]

	Current p/500 gm.	Constant[2] p/500 gm.	Constant[2] p/500 gm. (1970 = 100)
1970	18·9	18·9	100
1971	26·2	23·9	126
1972	29·3	25·0	132
1973	25·6	20·0	106
1974	26·5	17·8	94
1975	34·9	18·9	100
1976	48·3	22·5	119
1977	58·7	23·6	125
1978	66·1	24·5	130
1979	78·4	25·6	135
1980	85·5	23·7	125
1981	92·4	22·9	121
1982	99·4	22·7	120
1983	99·1	21·6	114
1984	100·5	20·9	111
1985	102·8	20·1	106
1986	104·0	19·7	104
1987	103·0	18·7	99

[1] Home-produced except for 1970-72 when no quotas were available and the price of New Zealand butter is used.
[2] Deflated by all items Retail Prices Index.

Grain Production

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the total quantity of grain produced in each of the European Economic Community countries in 1987 and also the total amount of co-responsibility levy paid by each member state, in pounds sterling.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Figures for production and co-responsibility levy revenue collected are only available for the 1986-87 cereals marketing year (July/June).

Member state[1]	Production million tonnes	Levy[3] £ million[2]
Belgium	2·3	13·3
Denmark	8·0	6·9
West Germany	25·6	50·0
Greece	5·2	2·6
Spain	16·0	17·6
France	50·1	57·3
Ireland	1·8	3·3
Italy	17·8	24·5
Luxembourg	0·1	0·2
Netherlands	1·3	11·7
United Kingdom	24·5	39·4

[1] Portugal does not yet implement the EC cereals regime.
[2] Converted at spot rates for 31 July 1987.
[3] Collected by 31 July 1987 for transactions to 30 June 1987.

Farm Rents

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will update the information in the reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North of 3 March 1987, Official Report, column 540, about average farm rents in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) England for each year since 1979.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The table gives average farm rents for (a) Great Britain and (b) England. Information cannot be provided for the United Kingdom because Northern Ireland's land tenure system is not generally comparable with that of Great Britain.

Average farm rents (£ per hectare)

Year	Great Britain	England[2]
1979	38·23	42·13
1980	45·27	50·01
1981	52·91	58·36
1982	60·39	66·14
1983	67·70	73·93
1984	74·37	81·27
1985	80·42	88·01
1986	86·52	95·11
[1]1987	89·21	97·84

[1] Provisional.
[2] The figures for England are due to be published in a Ministry statistics release on 24 February 1988.

Milk Imports

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will publish in the Official Report a table showing the monthly imports into the United Kingdom of fresh milk from European Economic Community member states for each year since such imports were first permitted.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Imports of UHT and sterilised milk have been allowed since November 1983. The latest data from Customs and Excise indicate that imports are running at about 500 tonnes a month, consisting mainly of skimmed milk from Belgium. More detailed information on this trade, and on Northern Ireland's imports of milk for processing, is given month by month in "Overseas Trade Statistics of the United Kingdom".

Bovine Somatotropin

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many licences have been issued for experimental injections of bovine somatotropin into cows; what is the number of cows covered by such licences and the length of period of licensing; and what proportion of British cows' milk is likely to originate from the farms licensed to use bovine somatotropin.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Animal test certificates authorising trials of bovine somatotropin have been issued under the Medicines Act 1968 to three companies. These certificates are normally issued for a period of two years and are renewable. The certificates currently granted permit the treatment of a maximum of 1,130 cows. However, the number of cows treated at any one time is likely to be less than this. Information relating to the proportion of milk originating from farms involved in the trials is not available.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what information he has as to which countries of the European Economic Community allow the experimental use of bovine somatotropin.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Information is not available for all member states of the EC as there is no requirement to notify the Commission of trials taking place. Nevertheless, it is understood that bovine somatotropin has been tested in Germany, Netherlands, France, Italy and Spain.

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what information he has as to whether artificial bovine somatotropin has been tested on humans and found to be safe.

Mr. Donald Thompson: Before the certificates for trials of BST were granted the applications were considered by the veterinary products committee which was satisfied that the use of this product in trials in milk cows would cause no risks to human health. No information has since become available which would cast any doubt on the evidence considered at that time.

Animal Medicines

Mr. Knapman: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food when he expects to receive the independent study carried out by the Mr. Peter Cuncliffe into the licensing of animal medicines; and when the results will be made known to the interested parties.

Mr. MacGregor: The study, which I announced on 3 July last year, has been completed. Mr. Cuncliffe presented his report to me earlier this month and I am placing a copy in the Library. The report makes 25 recommendations aimed at improving the efficiency and effectiveness of the animal medicines licensing operation. I am giving careful consideration to Mr. Cuncliffe's recommendations, and am most grateful to him for the work he has undertaken. Consultation will be undertaken as necessary and I will report further to the House.

Wheat

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will update the information in his reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North of 22 April 1987, Official Report, column 638, about the average price of wheat received by the producer in the United Kingdom, Germany, and France (a) in national currency and (b) converted to £ sterling at the market rates prevailing on the latest date for which this information is available.

Mr. Donald Thompson [holding answer 16 February 1988]: Producer prices are not available for the three countries. For the week ending 31 January 1988 market prices for milling wheat were as shown below:

	National currency per tonne	£ per tonne
Germany (Hamburg)	426·30 DM	143·50
France (La Pallice)	1,354·67 FF	135·20
United Kingdom (Hull)		144·20

Source: Commission of the European Community.

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will update the information in his reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North of 11 March 1987, Official Report, columns 228-29, about the average ex-farm price of wheat received by (a) British farmers, (b) French farmers and (c) German farmers, as well as the average intervention price for common wheat, in 1979, 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987, in £ sterling.

Mr. Donald Thompson [holding answer 16 February 1988]: The information requested by my hon. Friend is not yet available for the 1986-87 and 1987-88 marketing years. I set out in the table the information for the 1979-80 and 1983-84, 1984-85 and 1985-86 marketing years. Ex-farm prices for the European Community as a whole are not available.

Producer Prices for Wheat

[1]£/tonne

	1979-80	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86
United Kingdom	95·83	127·10	[3]112·00	110·15
West Germany	122·18	125·75	118·83	116·63
France	88·03	101·04	99·05	100·85
EC[2]	91·44	120·16	119·01	116·98

[1] Exchange rates based on average spot rate for marketing years except for EC prices which have been converted at the average UK green rate for the marketing years.
[2] Average intervention price for common wheat.
[3] Revised figure.
Source: "Agricultural Situation in the Community" 1981, 1986 and 1987 reports.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 18 February 1988

NORTHERN IRELAND

Human Rights (Report)

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he has recieved the 13th annual report of the Standing Advisory Commission on Human Rights; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Tom King: The report has been published today, and copies have been laid before Parliament. It covers the period 1 November 1986 to 31 October 1987.

The report deals with a wide range of matters which the commission has considered during the year under review. These include emergency legislation, the European convention on human rights, the European and United Nations conventions for the prevention of torture, the European social charter, compensation for victims of terrorism and community relations.

Copies of my response to the commission's report and of the report itself have been placed in the Library.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Education Reform

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science (1) what number of administrators he estimates will need to be added to the current administrations of the 12 proposed inner London local education authorities for the purpose of administering education in their own areas following the abolition of the Inner London education authority;

(2) how many administrators he estimates will be needed by the proposed 12 inner-London local education authorities for the administration of student award schemes for the 12 separate authorities after the abolition of the Inner London education authority;

(3) how many additional administrators he estimates will be needed by the proposed 12 inner-London local education authorities for the purpose of recoupment arrangements between each of these boroughs, after the abolition of the Inner London education authority.

Mr. Dunn: Each inner London council will be responsible for deciding on the appropriate staffing levels to fulfil its duties as a local education authority from 1 April 1990.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will list the additional duties which the Government intend to impose on the inner London borough councils, in the period 1 April 1989 to 31 March 1991, as a result of the abolition of the inner London education authority.

Mr. Dunn: As my right hon. Friend explained in his statement on 4 February, we propose that the inner London boroughs should become the local education authorities for their areas on 1 April 1990. During 1989 they will be required to produce development plans, setting out the service they propose to provide and the arrangements they envisage for the transfer, as a basis for local consultation.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans he has to ensure the maintenance and continuation of the innovation and research work undertaken by the Inner London education authority's research and statistics branch.

Mr. Dunn: Each inner London council will be required to produce, during 1989, a development plan setting out the service it proposes to provide. My right hon. Friend made it clear in his statement on 4 February, at columns 1178-79, that we will also be discussing with the boroughs which services, if any, might be provided on a co-operative basis.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what arrangements will be made by his Department to monitor and evaluate curriculum developments within the proposed new 12 inner London local education authorities, following the abolition of the Inner London education authority.

Mr. Dunn: The inner London education authorities will be covered by the requirements of the national curriculum as this is introduced, in the same way as all other education authorities in England. The information provisions will ensure that parents and others are kept fully informed about the curriculum offered to pupils and their achievements.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science why his statement to the House on the reorganisation of education in London did not define in detail which of the Inner London education authority's services are planned to be transferred to which successor bodies; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: As my right hon. Friend made clear in his statement, this will be a matter for discussion with the inner London councils.

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will indicate in detail what scope he envisages for the setting up of joint education boards under section 6 of and schedule 1 to the Education Act 1944 covering parts of the inner-London area following the abolition of the Inner London education authority; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Dunn: My right hon. Friend explained in his statement that each inner London council will become the local education authority for its area. We will be discussing with the councils which services, if any, might be provided on a co-operative basis. If necessary, powers under the Education Act 1944 enable the Secretary of State to require groups of boroughs to establish joint education committees in respect of certain services.

Professor Sigbert Prais

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will make a statement on the circumstances of the resignation of Professor Sigbert Prais from the mathematics working group for the new national curriculum.

Mrs. Rumbold: In his letter of resignation to my right hon. Friend Professor Prais explained that the calls that the mathematics working group had made on his time were affecting his other commitments. My right hon. Friend regrets that the working group will no longer have the benefit of Professor Prais' advice. However, he has asked the group to take into account in the further work the issues raised by Professor Prais in the note which Professor Prais submitted last November.

School Activities (Charges)

Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science whether he will now announce the outcome of his consultations on charging for school activities; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Kenneth Baker: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales and I undertook consultations about charges for school activities in response to requests from parents, schools and LEAs for clarification of the effect of section 61 of the 1944 Education Act. We together received some 480 responses; we have also had further discussions with the local authority associations and others. Respondents to the consultations have generally endorsed our objectives, which are to preserve the principle of free education, to clarify the law and to maintain valued provision.

The consultations made clear that our proposals can be substantially simplified while still achieving these aims. We therefore propose to introduce new clauses to the Education Reform Bill on the following lines:

(a) to establish clearly that schools may invite but not require parents to make voluntary contributions to the school's activities in order to enhance what is otherwise provided. Such contributions should benefit all pupils in a group whether or not their parents have contributed, and might cover for example class trips in school time, or the provision of additional computer equipment.

(b) to permit schools to charge for the additional costs of activities provided outside school hours. But charging will not be allowed where provision organised out of school hours is specifically required by an external examination syllabus or national curriculum legislation.

(c) Except in the following two cases, to prohibit charging for any activity undertaken within normal school hours; and also prohibit "charging in kind" for such activities—though schools will not be prevented from encouraging pupils to bring in their own materials on a voluntary basis where appropriate, for example for cookery classes.

(d) to permit charges for individual instrumental music tuition, taken with a parent's agreement, even when it is provided during normal school hours.

(e) to confirm that charges may be made for board and lodging for residential courses such as field trips, as allowed under the 1944 Act. But the proviso in that Act that charges must be remitted if suitable education cannot be provided on an alternative non-residential basis is rarely practicable and will not be repeated.

(f) to provide that the full cost of board and lodging must be remitted where children of parents receiving family credit or income support are required to go on a field trip; and that more generally schools may use their powers to remit charges in the light of their own published policies.

The legislation will not require any charges to be made. Where charges are allowed it will be for the provider of the service (generally the school, but in some cases the LEA) to determine whether they should be made.

We believe that these proposals will be widely welcomed as a practical solution to a long-standing problem which has become increasingly difficult in recent years, and which all concerned have urged us to tackle. Such legislation will reaffirm the basic principle of free school education, will ensure that parents, schools and LEAs know clearly what is and is not permitted, and will enable worthwhile enhancements to normal provision to be retained.

ENERGY

Opencast Coal Mining

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy (1) what steps he takes to ensure compliance with the law dealing with the scale of private opencast coal operations laid down in section 36 of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act 1946 as amended by section 46 of the Opencast Coal Act 1958;

(2) if he has any plans to seek to amend the current legal limit on the scale of private opencast coal operation in the light of evidence given by Sir Robert Haslam to the Select Committee on Energy on British Coal's practice as regards interpretation of the current rules.

Mr. Michael Spicer: As I explained during the debate on the coalfields communities on 20 November 1987, at column 1362, the Government are committed to the development of a prosperous private sector for coal and are considering whether to raise the statutory limits applied to the licensed sector. In the meantime, I have asked Sir Robert Haslam to consider what scope exists for greater flexibility within the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act as it stands. Under existing legislation the British Coal Corporation is responsible for the granting of licences for private opencast mining operations.

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy if he will list the locations and dates of licences granted since 1981 by British Coal to private operators of opencast coal workings to excavate single sites believed to contain 35,000 tonnes of coal or more and contiguous sites believed to contain a combined total of 50,000 tonnes of coal or more.

Mr. Michael Spicer: This is a matter for the British Coal Corporation and I have asked the chairman to write to the hon. Member.

Research Expenditure

Mr. David Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy what proportion of public expenditure for which he is responsible is spent on the research development, production and deployment of (a) nuclear energy and (b) other forms of energy.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The total amount of voted expenditure in 1986-87 for which the Secretary of State for Energy was directly responsible was £1,663·2 million. Of this, £188·3 million, or 11·3 per cent., was in connection with nuclear energy and £1,452·8 million, or 87·3 per cent., in connection with other forms of energy — the remainder being expenditure in relation to Departmental administrative costs. On the basis of our latest forecast outturn for 1987-88, the corresponding figures are: nuclear 12·3 per cent. and other forms of energy 86·1 per cent.

Electricity Supplies (Emergencies)

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Linlithgow

(Mr. Dalyell), Official Report, 8 February, column 62, what measures are in force physically to protect the Central Electricity Generating Board headquarters for the national grid control system in Southwark against malicious intruders; whether the Central Electricity Generating Board employs any security personnel at the site; what back-up system exists in the event of a total breakdown at Southwark; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Spicer: The threat of terrorism and malicious damage at all CEGB installations is recognised and appropriate measures are taken. It would not be appropriate for me to reveal the details. If national control in Southwark were lost for any reason, plans exist for its functions to be transferred to an emergency control centre.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

RUC (Prosecutions)

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Attorney-General what representations he has received about the decision not to initiate prosecutions against members of the Royal Ulster Constabulary.

The Attorney-General: I have received a number of letters from hon. Members, various groups and from the general public commenting on the statement I made on 25 January.

Extradition

Mr. John Morris: To ask the Attorney-General how many requests for extradition have been made to the Irish Government since December 1987.

The Attorney-General: A total of 20 warrants, issued in respect of six persons, have been submitted to the Irish authorities since the date of entry into force of the Irish Extradition (Amendment) Act 1987.

Seventeen of those 20 warrants, issued in respect of four of those six persons, are not covered by section 44A of the Irish Extradition Act 1965 (added by section 2(1) of the Extradition (Amendment) Act 1987), which relates to directions to be given by the Irish Attorney-General concerning the backing of warrants.

One warrant, covered by section 44A, is to be withdrawn, the person in respect of whom it was issued having returned of his own volition to the United Kingdom.

Mr. John Morris: To ask the Attorney-General what is his policy as regards the requirements for establishing a case for extradition and the conditions he has to comply with and what information he has as to the policy of the Attorney-General of the Republic of Ireland on those matters.

The Attorney-General: The requirements for the backing of warrants in the Republic of Ireland are laid down in part III of the Irish Extradition Act 1965, the Extradition (European Convention on the Suppression of Terrorism) Act 1987 and the Extradition (Amendment) Act 1987. Under the last mentioned Act, I understand that the Irish Attorney-General is required to give a direction that certain warrants for the arrest of a fugitive shall not be backed for execution by the Garda Siochana unless he is of the opinion that that there is a clear intention to prosecute or to continue the prosecution of the fugitive and such intention is founded on the existence of sufficient evidence. The Government have been concerned that these new provisions now inserted into the Irish Extradition Act 1965 would present impediments to extradition from the Irish Republic. (That Act before this amendment had effectively reciprocated the provisions of the relevant United Kingdom legislation, contained in the Backing of Warrants (Republic of Ireland) Act 1965.) The Government made those concerns known to the Irish Government when the terms of the amending legislation were first intimated. In particular, the Government were concerned that they might lead to a requirement that the Irish courts be furnished with the actual evidence supporting any warrant submitted for backing in the event of a challenge to the execution of such warrant. The Government considered, and still consider, that seriously damaging consequences for the intended criminal proceedings in the United Kingdom could follow if that were to occur.

I have notified my counterpart in the Irish Republic that I am entirely willing to provide him in each instance with a note from me confirming that the United Kingdom prosecuting authorities had considered the evidence, as they are required to do; that they were satisfied that it was sufficient to found a prosecution; and that there was a settled intention to prosecute accordingly. I have also agreed to his request that I provide him in each instance with a note setting out the relevant law.

I had hoped that these particulars would be sufficient to satisfy the requirements of the new Irish legislation, but the Irish Attorney-General has indicated that this is not the case. In these circumstances, I am considering with the Irish Attorney-General what practicable steps can yet be taken to secure the important mutual objective of enabling extradition between our two countries to proceed effectively.

WALES

Residential Homes

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many officers in each health authority area in Wales are appointed to inspect private and publicly owned residential homes (a) for the elderly, (b) for the mentally ill, (c) for mentally disabled people and (d) for physically disabled people; and if he will outline the training and guidance which such officers have received.

Mr. Grist: Information about the total numbers of local authority and health service staff engaged in this function in Wales is not held centrally. The training of such staff is the primary responsibility of the authorities concerned, but the Welsh Office has co-operated in the provision of suitable facilities and has issued general guidance from time to time.

Regional Assistance

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how his expenditure on regional aid in each of the next three years will be divided between (a) regional selective assistance, (b) regional development grant, and (c) the Welsh Development Agency, at constant prices.

Mr. Peter Walker [holding answer 15 February 1988]: Planned expenditure by my Department, as contained in the 1988 public expenditure White Paper and expressed at constant prices[1] is as follows:

£ million

	1988-89	1989-90	1990-91
Regional selective assistance	42·1	46·1	52·7
Regional development grants	58·3	37·2	23·8

Gross planned provision[2] for the Welsh Development Agency on the same price basis, excluding £1·5 million per annum transferred to the Development Board for Rural Wales amounts to:

	£ million
1988-89	103·7
1989-90	101·5
1990-91	101·2

Expenditure provision for 1989-90 and 1990-91 will of course be considered in the 1988 survey.

[1] Cash figures adjusted for general inflation as measued by the GDP deflator at market prices (1986-87 base year).
[2] A combination of the direct taxpayer contribution and the expected proceeds from rents, sales and services.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

Food Aid

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much food aid from European Community surplus stocks of cereals was sent abroad in the last three years; to which countries and in what amounts; what was the cost of transporting and administering the total amount of food aid; and what obstacles he sees to expanding food aid from European Community surpluses.

Mr. Chris Patten: The European Community has allocated over 1 million tonnes of cereals as food aid in each of the last three years; over 90 per cent. of it has been obtained from sources within the Community. Detailed statistics are included in the European Commission's annual report on food aid policy and management. The 1984 report was deposited with the Select Committee on European Legislation on 30 July 1987, and is available in the Library of the House. The 1985 and 1986 reports will be deposited shortly, when they are circulated by the Commission.

The European Commission has reported expenditure on the transport of food aid (not only cereals) in 1986 as £68 million. Figures for transporting cereals alone, and for the cost of administering food aid, are not separately recorded.

Provision of food aid from the EC is fully justified in famine situations. However, in the longer term food aid will not solve the problem of continuing food shortages in developing countries; production by local farmers must be encouraged. Food aid may increase demand for imported foodstuffs which can never be produced locally and hamper efforts to encourage local food production in recipient countries.

PRIME MINISTER

Little Lowford

Q43. Mr. Pawsey: To ask the Prime Minister if she has any plans to make an official visit to Little Lowford, North Rugby.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

Pensions

Q50. Mr. Harry Ewing: To ask the Prime Minister if she will make a statement on the under-calculation made in the cost of living increase due to be paid in 1987 to retired public sector pensioners; and how it is proposed to refund to such pensioners the shortfall in their pensions.

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Paymaster General to my hon. Friend the Member for Croydon, South (Sir W. Clark) on 18 December 1987, at columns 845-46. Details of the arrangements for making payments to charities are still being worked out and will be announced soon.

Scottish Schools and Colleges

Q72. Dr. Godman: To ask the Prime Minister if she intends to review other proposed closures of Scottish schools and colleges in the light of her intervention over the proposed closure of Paisley grammar school.

The Prime Minister: The Secretary of State for Scotland has made regulations which will ensure that any proposals to close a school which is operating at over 80 per cent. of its capacity will in future require his consent.

RAF Lakenheath

Q73. Mr. Cryer: To ask the Prime Minister when she next expects to visit RAF Lakenheath.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

Vacant Land

Q138. Mr. Steen: To ask the Prime Minister if she will pay an official visit to a publicly owned site of vacant land.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

European Council

Q144. Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister if she will make a statement on the outcome of the European Council in Brussels on 11 and 12 February.

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to the statement I made on Monday 15 February.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Prime Minister when the official communiqué of the European Council Heads of Government meeting was made available to Her Majesty's Government; at what time of which day it was placed in the Library; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: The official conclusions of the European Council will take the form of a single text which will be prepared once agreement is reached at the Foreign Affairs Council on the non-arable stabilisers package.

These conclusions will be placed in the Library of the House as soon as they have been circulated by the presidency. For the benefit of the House, two documents —the overall agreement (SN 517/88) and the detailed draft conclusions prepared by the German presidency before the European Council (SN 461/88)—were placed in the Library yesterday. As explained in the cover note, document SN 461/88 was agreed except in so far as it was modified by SN 517/88. It is those two documents which will form the basis of the single text which has still to be produced. As I said to the House yesterday, I apologise that the documents were not availabe before my statement.

European Commission (President)

Q155. Mr. Fallon: To ask the Prime Minister when she next expects to meet the President of the Commission of the European Communities.

The Prime Minister: I have at present no plans to do so.

EC (Agricultural Spending)

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister if she will make a further statement setting out precisely the exceptional circumstances which can be used to justify agricultural spending in excess of the guidelines under the Brussels agreement of 11 and 12 February, in the light of the publication since her statement of 15 February, Official Report, column 706, of annex V of the note from the presidency (EEC document SN 461/88).

The Prime Minister: Document SN 461/88 was a draft of conclusions circulated by the presidency before the European Council. It was overtaken by decisions taken at the Council in a number of important areas. The agreed outcome of the Council is recorded in document SN 517/88. This contains no reference to provision for exceptional circumstances, since I and a number of others strongly opposed any such reference, and no such provision was agreed.

Surplus Food Stocks

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister what estimate was made by the European Council of the cost of depreciating and disposing of existing surplus stocks which are to be financed outside the guideline, and which she referred to in her statement on 15 February, Official Report, column 706; and if she will further publish a table showing the amounts of stocks of each commodity which the Council agreed would be covered by these arrangements outside the guideline.

The Prime Minister: EEC document SN 461/88 states that amounts will be inscribed in title 8 of the budget for depreciation of existing excessive stocks (1988 prices) as follows:

1988	1,200 mecu
1989-91	1,400 mecu per year

These were based on overall figures provided by the Commission, which is now preparing a detailed breakdown between commodities.

Surplus Butter

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister if the special arrangements made in 1987 to transfer the cost of dumping butter surpluses from the European Economic Community to member states, which were covered by the report of the Court of Auditors to the Council of Finance Ministers, will continue following the Brussels agreement of 11 and 12 February; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: These arrangements are not affected by the agreement. Member states will receive reimbursement for the costs of disposal on the timetable previously agreed.

Cereals

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister on what basis the Council estimated that cereal production in the European Economic Community would reach the level of 168 million tonnes in the current year, as set out in her statement of 15 February, Official Report, column 705; and what information was supplied to the Council about actual cereal production in the European Economic Community in each of the previous four years, respectively.

The Prime Minister: The EC Commission provides all member states with details of Community cereals production for previous harvests and trend projections for future harvests.

The figures are as follows:

	million tonnes
1984	173·2
1985	160·5
1986	154·3
1987	[1]153·1
1988	[2]167·7
1989	[2]171·0
1990	[2]174·4
1991	[2]177·5

[1] Estimate
[2] Trend projection

Engagements

Mr. Cran: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Thursday 18 February.

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Thursday 18 February.

Mr. Stern: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Thursday 18 February.

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Thursday 18 February.

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Thursday 18 February.

Ms. Ruddock: To ask the Prime Minister if she will list her official engagements for Thursday 18 February.

The Prime Minister: This morning I presided at a meeting of the Cabinet and had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. In addition to my duties in the House I shall be having further meetings later today.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Immigration

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the current average waiting time for the determination of entry clearance applications from fiancées and spouses in Pakistan, India and Bangladesh.

Mr. Mellor: The average waiting time from submission of an entry clearance application to first interview for fiancé(e)s and spouses in India, Pakistan and Bangladesh is as follows:

	Fiancé(e)s	Spouses
	Time in months
New Delhi	7	3
Bombay	9	6
Islamabad	16	10
Karachi	10	5
Dhaka	8	8

Some applications are determined after first interview. No statistics are available on waiting times in cases where further information is required of applicants or where applications have to be referred to the Home Office.

Syrian Security Forces

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Syrian Government about allegations of torture by its security forces.

Mr. Mellor: None since October 1986 when we broke diplomatic relations with Syria.

Palestinian Refugees

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has as to (a) how many Palestinian refugees there were in 1958 and at the last available date, (b) how many Palestinian refugees have been provided with jobs and permanent housing by each of the Arab states since 1958, (c) how much financial assistance each of the Arab states gives to the Palestinian refugees and what this is as a percentage of their gross national product, (d) how many Palestinian refugee families have been provided with permanent housing by Israel since 1967 and (e) how the infant mortality rate in Gaza has altered since 1967 and what information he has about the rate in the Palestinian camps in other countries.

Mr. Mellor: (a) In 1950 just over 800,000 Palestinian refugees were registered with the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA); in October 1987 the total was approximately 2,218,000. Figures for 1958 are not available.

(b) This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

(c) Contributions to UNRWA are set out in the report of the Commissioner-General, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of the House.

(d) UNRWA estimate that around 5,000 Palestinian families have moved from refugee camps in Gaza to Israeli Government-sponsored housing projects. Housing construction costs are met by the families concerned.

(e) UNRWA's health programmes have helped to reduce the infant mortality rate in Palestinian refugee camps over the past decade; the rate remains higher in Gaza than elsewhere.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Northumberland Ambulance Service

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many staff have been employed by the Northumberland ambulance service for each year since 1979; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: Figures on a comparable basis are not held centrally for the years prior to 1982, due to the NHS reorganisation in that year. Such information as is available is given in the table.

NHS Ambulance Staff (including ambulance officers) employed at Northern Regional Health Authority Headquarters and Headquarters Units

At 30 September	Whole time equivalents[1]
1982	657
1983	661
1984	616
1985	591
1986	596

Source: DHSS annual census of NHS non-medical manpower.
Note:
[1] Figures are rounded to nearest whole-time equivalent.

District Health Authorities

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North on 26 November 1987, Official Report, columns 319-21, if he will list in league order, with the highest at the top, by acreage of land held, district health authority areas within the National Health Service in England, showing the valuation in each case (a) before the recent revaluation and (b) at the present valuation as decided by the district valuer.

Mrs. Currie: Returns from district valuers are currently being checked for completeness before being aggregated. It is likely to be several weeks before the information sought is available, when I let my hon. Friend have a further reply.

St. Andrew's Hospital, Thorpe St. Andrew

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the total acreage of (a) St. Andrew's hospital, Thorpe St. Andrew, Norwich (North) and (b) St. Andrew's hospital, Thorpe St. Andrew, Norwich (South); and if he will give details in each case of the valuation prior to the recent revaluation and present valuation as decided by the district valuer.

Mrs. Currie: The acreages are 123 and 32 respectively. Valuations of these sites were not provided by the district valuer in 1985. As the sale of one of the sites is now under active consideration, I am not prepared to prejudice effective marketing by disclosing the current valuation.

NHS Property (Norwich)

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list all National Health Service property within the Norwich health authority district, stating acreage and valuation in each case (a) before the recent revaluation and (b) at the present valuation as decided by the district valuer.

Mrs. Currie: The property with a site area of one acre or more, currently held by the Norwich health authority is listed with their acreage, and where available, the district valuer's open market valuation of 1985. For commercial reasons we are not prepared to disclose the current valuations of particular sites.

Property	Acreage	Valuation[1] £ million
Norfolk and Norwich Hospital	16·262	3·300
Whittingham Hospital	8·400	0·250
Wayland Hospital	9·708	0·150
Colman Hospital	5·983	1·200
West Norwich Hospital	20·912	1·900
Drayton Hall Maternity Home	8·271	—
Hellesden Hospital	64·877	—
David Rice Hospital	35·778	—
Bethel Hospital	1·213	—
Land at Vale Hospital	15·750	0·010
St. Andrews Hospital	155·120	—
Eaton Grange	1·296	0·200
Hales Hospital	10·112	—
Little Plumstead Hospital	125·420	0·570
Croiner and District Hospital	3·700	0·200
North Walsham War Memorial Hospital	6·900	0·280
St. Michaels' Hospital	17·760	0·330
Kelling Hospital	31·975	0·580
Pine Heath Hospital	11·760	—
Fletcher Hospital	6·229	0·245
Mundesley Hospital	24·180	0·250
Dereham Hospital	14·500	0·243
Wells and District Hospital	1·707	0·225
North Walsham Health Centre	1·150	—
Thorpe Health Centre	1·750	—
Wymondham Health Centre	1·662	—

[1] These are open market valuations prepared specifically for Performance Indicators.

Single Payments (Leicester)

Mr. Jim Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish a table showing the number of people in receipt of single payments and the total amount of single payments made in each of his Department's offices in the Leicester area in each of the years 1983 to 1987.

Mr. Portillo: Information concerning the number of people in receipt of single payments is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The total number and cost of single payments made by each of the Department's local offices in Leicestershire is given in the table.

Number and cost of single payments made by Department of Health and Social Security local offices in Leicestershire during the period April 1983 to December 1987

	Office
		Leicester
Year	Burleys Way	Lower Hill Street	Norton Street	Yeoman Street	Loughborough
April 1983 to April 1984
Number	3,138	5,438	4,630	6,137	3,100
Cost	£274,094	£614,589	£574,768	£683,905	£208,682
April 1984 to April 1985
Number	4,475	8,920	9,508	9,419	4,943
Cost	£314,323	£724,558	£780,380	£784,057	£382,439
April 1985 to April 1986
Number	6,825	11,032	12,969	12,168	6,291
Cost	£563,168	£904,285	£1,077,188	£1,042,317	£472,728
April 1986 to 7 April 1987[1]
Number	8,363	10,828	12,521	14,642	5,345
Cost	£653,618	£813,747	£1,028,279	£1,321,734	£383,897
8 April 1987 to 15 December 1987[1]
Number	2,327	3,358	3,836	4,728	1,708
Cost	£180,962	£224,912	£320,762	£375,584	£120,023

[1] The figures for April 1986–December 1987 are provisional and subject to amendment.

Benefit System (Data Protection)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what steps he has taken to satisfy himself that arrangements for the administration of the new benefit system are compatible with the requirements of the fourth and fifth data protection principles.

Mr. Portillo: The Department's standing instructions on data protection require that all computerised systems which contain personal data be identified and registered with the Data Protection Registrar. These instructions demand strict adherence to all the provisions of the Data Protection Act. Additionally, the Department has established a data protection unit whose responsibilities include monitoring to confirm compliance with all the data protection principles.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether he has had representations from local authorities concerning the difficulty of making arrangements for the processing of personal data in connection with the administration of the new benefit system; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Portillo: I am not aware of any representations arising from the use of personal data in the administration of rebates or allowances from April 1988. If the hon. Member is aware of any particular difficulty perhaps he could let me know.

1991 Census

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether his Department has studied the impact of community charge legislation for the accuracy of the 1991 census.

Mr. Scott: The Office of Population Censuses and Surveys is taking steps to ensure that the 1991 census will be as accurate as possible. The likely effect of all possible causes of inaccuracy will be considered and monitored, both before the census in tests and after the census in post-enumeration checks. As in earlier censuses, it will be stressed that information provided by the public on census forms will be used only in the preparation of statistics.

Students (Benefits)

Mr. Ashdown: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what would be the cost of restoring the benefits which students have lost since 1979, showing separately the costs in respect of (a) transport benefits, (b) housing benefits and (c) supplementary benefit.

Mr. Portillo: On the cost of restoring assistance with student transport costs to its 1979 level, I refer the hon. Member to the reply of my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Education and Science to the hon. Member for Denton and Reddish (Mr. Bennett) on 1 February 1988 at column 441. The cost of reversing changes to the social security benefit rules for students cannot be calculated precisely because of the many variables. The total estimated net reduction in benefit expenditure in a full year arising from the changes made in 1986 and 1987 was, at 1985-86 benefit rates, £3½ million in unemployment benefit, £3½ million in supplementary benefit and £17 million in housing benefit. This takes no account of the £8 million cost of the related special increase in the accommodation element of the student grant. Expenditure on social security benefits paid to students is higher in real terms than in 1979, as relatively few students received help with rent and rates before the introduction of housing benefit in 1982-83.

Dual Laser Beam Sorter

Mr. Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, pursuant to the reply of 25 January, which specialised laboratories in the United Kingdom have a dual laser beam sorter; and what plans there are to use such machines to test the radiation exposure of (a) workers, or former workers, in nuclear installations, (b) residents or former residents, of the areas around nuclear installations and (c) former members of the armed forces who served near nuclear bomb test sites.

Mrs. Currie: Of the laboratories in the United Kingdom with a dual laser beam sorter, we are aware of only one which is considering its use in estimating radiation exposure. I understand from the Medical Research Council, which receives its grant in aid through the Department of Education and Science, that is clinical and population cytogenetics unit at Edinburgh has built such a device and one of its principal aims is to develop the technology so that the device can be used to detect the effects of radiation exposure on people. It is hoped that this may eventually be of use in assessing occupational radiation exposures.

Residential Homes

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many officers are appointed to inspect private and publicly owned residential homes in each health authority area in England (a) for elderly people, (b) for mentally disabled people, (c) for mentally ill people and (d) for physically disabled people; and if he will outline the training and guidance which such officers have received.

Mr. Newton: Information about the number of local authority staff engaged on these functions is not held centrally. The Department has issued general guidance to authorities about residential care and the registration system. The Secretary of State has commended to them the code of practice for residential care, "Home Life". This spring the Department's social services inspectorate is running jointly with the Central Council for Education and Training in Social Work a series of workshops to support good registration and inspection practice and the handling of complaints. The Department is also arranging in conjunction with the Welsh Office the preparation of distance-learning material for the basic training of the staff of local authorities and health authorities engaged on the registration and inspection respectively of residential care homes and nursing homes.

Unemployment Benefit (Disqualifications)

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if, in the light of his recent proposals to increase benefit suspension times from 13 to 26 weeks, he will give the percentage of those people disqualified for unemployment benefit on the grounds of being voluntarily unemployed without just cause or through misconduct who have imposed on them the full 13 weeks suspension; and what guidance is given to adjudication officers on imposing shorter disqualification periods.

Mr. Portillo: Information is not collected on the length of disqualifications and it could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Adjudication officers are advised that when considering the length of disqualification to be imposed they should give regard to the individual circumstances of each case and should exercise their discretion accordingly. They do not automatically apply a disqualification of the maximum period.

Urgent Case Payments

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services whether urgent case payments will still be available to those denied unemployment and supplementary benefit on grounds of being unavailable for work after the proposed change in legislation on 11 April.

Mr. Portillo: At present the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987 make no provision for payment of income support to a person who is required to be available for work as a condition of receiving income support but is found by an adjudication officer to be not available.

However, the Government plan amendment of the regulations so that payment of income support at a reduced rate can be paid to such a person if hardship would otherwise be caused to that person or to a member of his or her family.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how, in view of his intention to substitute crisis loans for urgent case payments, he envisages such loans will be repaid; and if he will estimate the likely number of people who will be affected.

Mr. Scott: Where appropriate, social fund crisis loans will be recovered from future payments of certain social security benefits made to the recipient of the loan. Other arrangements for repayment will be made with recipients of crisis loans who are not in receipt of benefit. No firm estimates of numbers of crisis loans can be given in advance of experience.

Winter Mortality

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Sciences what information he has as to what research is currently taking place into winter mortality; how much of this is being funded by Her Majesty's Government; when the results of such research are expected; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: The excess of winter deaths among the elderly is a matter of concern to the Government and we are anxious that the many factors involved should be carefully investigated to enable appropriate preventive action to be taken. The Medical Research Council, which is the main Government agency for biomedical and related research and receives its grant-in-aid through the Department of Education and Science, is at present setting up a working group to advise the council's physiological systems and disorders board on what scientifically valid studies could be carried out to address the reasons for the excess of winter deaths in the United Kingdom.

Maternity Statistics

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services, pursuant to his reply to the hon. Member for Peckham (Ms. Harman) of 11 December 1987, Official Report, columns 295-96, if he will be able to provide the information requested after the new system for collecting maternity statistics, as set out by the steering group for health services information, comes into operation on 1 April.

Mrs. Currie: From 1 April 1988, information collected on all births, in NHS hospitals and elsewhere, will include: the method of delivery, the birth weight, the highest level of care received by the baby, the length of stay of the baby, the intended place of delivery, and the actual place of delivery.

Health Spending

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) if he will give the capital spending on the hospital and community health services for each National Health Service region and for the special health authorities (i) in cash terms, (ii) adjusted using the gross domestic product deflator and (iii) adjusted using the National Health Service pay and prices index;

(2) if he will give the capital spending on hospital and community services in net terms after deducting proceeds from land and property sales (i) in cash terms and (ii) adjusted using the gross domestic product deflator.

Mr. Newton: Captial expenditure figures for the latest year available are given in the table.

Gross capital expenditure 1986-87

Regional and Special Health Authorities	1986-87 (£000)
Northern	52,686
Yorkshire	69,981
Trent	77,478
East Anglian	32,529
North West Thames	66,543
North East Thames	75,904
South East Thames	76,517
South West Thames	54,172
Wessex	70,999
Oxford	33,539
South Western	68,403
West Midlands	115,259
Mersey	48,443
North Western	73,394
Post-Graduate Special Health Authorities	28,165
Total Gross Expenditure	944,012
Less Capital receipts	137,805
Total Net Expenditure	806,207

Source: Health authority summarised accounts.

Health Authorities (Monitoring)

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if, pursuant to the answer of 18 December 1987, Official Report, columns 936-37, he will indicate whether the routine monitoring of regional health authorities spending has now been fully introduced; and to what extent it and the National Health Service Management Board have revealed a continuing deficit for health authorities on revenue account for the current financial year.

Mr. Newton: The first routine monitoring of regional health authority spending on an income and expenditure basis will cover the period from 1 April to 30 June 1988. As I announced in the House on 16 December the review carried out by the National Health Service management board in the autumn led to an additional £75 million being made available to English health authorities in response to the problem identified in the current financial year.

Hartley Hospital, Colne

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he expects to announce his decision on proposals for closure of Hartley hospital, Colne.

Mrs. Currie: The regional health authority has decided that the transfer of out-patient services located at Hartley hospital and the future use of he building will be the subject of a public consultation exercise. A final decision on the proposals will be made by Ministers only if the community health council objects to them.

Camberwell Office (Post)

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish the figures for each successive month from January 1987 to the present for the amount of post at the Camberwell office of his Department not yet linked with files, outstanding postal claims, single payment claims and other assessment work.

Mr. Portillo: The information is not available in the form requested. The amount of unlinked post over two days old at the Camberwell DHSS office is as follows:

Items of unlinked post over two days old at Camberwell DHSS office

Date	Items
13 January 1987	983
10 February 1987	4,399
10 March 1987	4,544
7 April 1987	3,292
5 May 1987	2,592
2 June 1987	3,242
30 June 1987	2,241
28 July 1987	2,996
25 August 1987	3,923
22 September 1987	2,673
20 October 1987	3,090
17 November 1987	2,228
15 December 1987	1,863
12 January 1988	2,413

Source: Regional Statistical Returns.

Urgent Needs Payments

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish the figures for the number of urgent needs payments made in each successive month from January 1987 to the present, at the Camberwell office of his Department and the percentage which those figures represent of the total number of urgent needs payments made in the region.

Mr. Portillo: The information requested is as follows:

Date	Number of urgent need payments		Camberwell's totals as a per-centage of the region's
	Camberwell	Region
13 January 1987	60	2,895	2·1
10 February 1987	103	3,843	2·7
10 March 1987	232	3,588	6·5
7 April 1987	245	3,447	7·1
5 May 1987	259	3,163	8·2
2 June 1987	648	3,520	18·4
30 June 1987	529	3,650	14·5
28 July 1987	482	3,919	12·3
25 August 1987	545	4,100	13·3
22 September 1987	576	4,233	13·6
20 October 1987	605	3,884	15·6
17 November 1987	435	3,827	11·4
15 December 1987	376	3,353	11·2
12 January 1988	371	3,305	11·2

Source: Monthly Statistical Returns.

Southend General Hospital (Radiotherapy)

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he is now in a position to announce his decision on the appeal by the Southend community health council regarding the proposal by the North East Thames regional health authority to close the radiotherapy unit at Southend general hospital; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie: We hope to announce our decision very soon.

Single Payments

Mr. Robin Cook: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list the supplementary benefit single payment expenditure (a) for each local office and (b) nationally, for the 32-week period ended on 7 April 1987.

Mr. Portillo [holding answer 11 February 1988]: The supplementary benefit single payment expenditure nationally for the period for the 32 week period ending on 7 April 1987 was £167,385,633. This figure is provisional and subject to amendment. The information for each local office has now been placed in the Library.

Birmingham Children's Hospital

Ms. Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) how many scheduled heart operations at Birmingham children's hospital were cancelled between 8 February and 19 February; and if he will make a statement;

(2) how many children are on the waiting list for heart surgery in the west midlands; how many scheduled operations have been cancelled and how many emergency heart operations have been performed over the last 12 months at Birmingham children's hospital; and if he will make a statement;

(3) what is (a) the minimum number of intensive care unit beds recommended for the Birmingham children's hospital, (b) the minimum number of beds designated for heart operations and (c) the number of beds actually available in the week beginning 7 February for scheduled non-emergency operations; and if he will make a statement.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 15 February 1988]: This detailed information is not held centrally. However, in 1987 a total of 288 cardiac operations were carried out at the Birmingham children's hospital compared with 155 in 1978 which represents an 86 per cent. increase. The total revenue allocation to the hospital under the supra-regional services arrangements for neonatal and infant cardiac surgery in 1988-89 will be £1·032 million compared with £0·988 million this year. Decisions on the level of provision of beds are a matter for health authorities and the hon. Member may therefore wish to write to the chairman of the West Midlands regional health authority for the further information she seeks.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Drug Traffickers

13. Mr. Andrew MacKay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to put in place bilateral international arrangements for the confiscation of assets of convicted drug traffickers.

33. Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the progress of discussions with foreign Governments about introducing reciprocal legislation to provide for the confiscation of all assets of drug traffickers.

Mr. Hurd: On 9 February my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and I signed the first such agreement with the United States of America. We expect to conclude further agreements in the course of this year.

Dr. Frank Skuse

14. Mr. Wall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any plans to reinstate Dr. Frank Skuse in the light of the recent judgment of the Court of Appeal in the case of the Birmingham pub bombings.

16. Ms. Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if, in the light of the evidence of Dr. Frank Skuse at the Birmingham pub bombings Appeal Court hearing, he will order an inquiry into the Home Office forensic laboratory at Chorley; and if he will make a statement.

30. Mr. Rees: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will order an inquiry into the Home Office forensic laboratory at Chorley; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: No.

Prisoners (Welsh Language)

15. Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines he has issued to prison governors in England and Wales concerning the rights of convicted prisoners and prisoners on remand to speak Welsh with visitors, to receive correspondence and printed matter in Welsh, and to send letters in Welsh; and whether these guidelines have been revised during the past year.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Prison standing orders provide that prisoners may speak the language of their choice at visits; and prisoners are free to send letters and to receive letters and publications in any language. The position, which has not changed recently, is the same for both unconvicted and convicted prisoners.

Chelmsford Prison (Staff)

17. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the current levels of prison officers at Her Majesty's young offenders prison, Chelmsford.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: On 9 February, there were 147 officers of grades VI to VIII at Her Majesty's Prison Chelmsford. We plan to post a further 17 officers there during March.

Crime Prevention

18. Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will visit the Nottingham, North constituency to discuss crime prevention with local electors; and if he will make a report.

Mr. John Patten: My right hon. Friend has at present no plans to do so; but I hope to visit Nottingham, when an opportunity arises, to talk to those concerned with a wide range of local crime prevention activity. This includes a commendable increase in the number of neighbourhood watch schemes, the involvement of the private sector in local crime prevention initiatives through the local chamber of commerce, and last November's knives amnesty during which some 470 knives and other weapons were handed over to the police.

36. Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made by his Department in developing or stimulating crime prevention measures, particularly in the private sector.

Mr. John Patten: Good progress has been made on an increasingly wide range of crime prevention initiatives at local and national level. Home Office funding of the five local projects at Bolton, Croydon, Wellingborough, Swansea and north Tyneside has now ceased, but the projects will continue with funding from other sources. We have encouraged professional bodies and other groups and organisations to identify their crime prevention potential and to act. A great deal can be achieved through the dissemination of good practice, and bodies such as the Royal Institute of British Architects and the National House Building Corporation have arranged conferences or produced sound practical advice for architects and builders. The other way in which the private sector can help in the development and stimulation of crime prevention measures is through sponsorship. Recent examples include Rolls-Royce, which will be funding a local crime prevention project in Crewe, Barclays bank, which is meeting the salary cost of a project co-ordinator at Knowsley, and National Westminster bank, which has met the costs of providing domestic security equipment for schemes running in Avon and Birmingham.

British Broadcasting Corporation

19. Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received regarding the future of the BBC.

Mr. Renton: In recent months we have received many representations about the future of broadcasting, including that of the BBC. A number have suggested new methods of financing the BBC. On this our policy remains that we accept the view of the Peacock committee that the television licence fee should remain for the time being the principal means of financing the BBC, with the fee indexed to the retail prices index to encourage the BBC to use its resources efficiently and to determine priorities in carrying out its duties under its charter.

Police Cells

20. Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will invite the Chief Inspector of Prisons to submit a report on the situation in police cells used to house prisoners on remand; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to his question on 15 February at column 437.

50. Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of people being held in police cells on 1 February.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: On 1 February 1988, 758 prisoners were held in police cells in England and Wales.

Television (Programme Content)

21. Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any plans to have any further discussions with the BBC and the independent television companies about the effectiveness of their self-imposed regulation of the content of programmes shown before 9 pm and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Renton: We shall keep in close touch with the broadcasting authorities over the next few months on a wide range of issues including their responsibility for enforcing programme standards. The Government recognise the need for stronger and more effective oversight of standards relating to the portrayal of violence and sex on television. My right hon. Friend has announced our intention to set up the Broadcasting Standards Council which will provide a focus for public concern about these matters.

Prevention of Terrorism

22. Mr. Yeo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to announce his response to Lord Colville's report on the Prevention of Terrorism Act.

41. Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any plans to seek to amend the Prevention of Terrorism Act 1984 in order to assist in combating terrorism.

Mr. Hurd: I refer my hon. Friends to what I said during the debate on the renewal of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984.

47. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions during 1987 he employed his powers to authorise an extension of detention under the Prevention of Terrorism Act 1984.

Mr. Hurd: In 1987 I authorised 41 extensions of detention under the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984.

Charities

23. Mr. McCrindle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has any plans to introduce amending legislation on charities.

Mr. John Patten: My right hon. Friend announced on 21 January, at column 1089, in reply to a question from the hon. Member for Yeovil (Mr. Ashdown), that the Government intend to bring forward legislation to implement the recommendations of Sir Philip Woodfield's efficiency scrutiny for the supervision of charities.

27. Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he proposes to seek to make any changes to the way in which the Charity Commission adjudges whether a purportedly religious organisation should be granted charitable status; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: This is a matter of common, rather than statute, law. The Government propose to improve the supervision and monitoring of all charities, in line with the recent efficiency scrutiny report by Sir Philip Woodfield. We are considering the scope of this legislation.

Prisons (Crown Immunity)

24. Mr. Ashley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department has estimated the cost of removing Crown immunity from prisons with regard to health and safety and kitchen hygiene legislation.

Mr. Hogg: We are satisfied that existing arrangements are effective and can see no justification for the removal of Crown immunity from prisons with regard to kitchen hygiene legislation. The cost of removing Crown immunity has not been estimated.

Prisons (Private Sector Involvement)

25. Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions he has had regarding the involvement of the private sector in the building and management of prisons.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to a question from my hon. Friend the Member for Darlington (Mr. Fallon) on 12 February at column 363.

Police Manpower

26. Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to how many non-white police officers are currently employed on uniform duties in London, Birmingham, Manchester and Liverpool, respectively; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The information requested is in the table:

Number of non-white police officers employed on uniform duties

Force[1]	As at 31 January 1988
Metropolitan police	390
West Midlands police	[2]138
Greater Manchester police	78
Merseyside police	30

[1] The information is only available on a force basis.
[2] This is the total west midlands figure. Separate figures for uniformed officers are not available.

55. Mr. Latham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will make a statement on his response to the report of the review of police manpower in Leicestershire, a copy of which has been sent to him.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: On the basis of the review, the Leicestershire police authority has sought approval for an increase of establishment of 45 posts in 1988-89, 33 posts in 1989-90, and 13 posts in 1990-91. The application will be considered in the light of advice from Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary along with applications which have been received from other police authorities.

Alcohol Abuse

28. Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he last met the licensed trade to discuss the recommendations of the Government's ministerial working group on alcohol abuse.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: My right hon. Friend has not recently had an opportunity to do so; I met representatives of the licensed trade to discuss these matters on 26 January.

Trial Verdicts (Review)

29. Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will implement the recommendation of the Home Affairs Select Committee in its report on "Miscarriages of Justice" to the effect that an independent review body be set up to review cases of alleged miscarriage of justice; and if he will make a statement.

51. Mr. Cryer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will implement the recommendation of the Home Affairs Committee's report on "Miscarriages of Justice" that an independent review tribunal be set up to examine alleged miscarriages of justice; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: No. The Government's response to this recommendation was set out in paragraphs 7 to 16 of our reply to the Home Affairs Committee (Cmnd. 8856).

34. Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the recommendations of the Home Affairs Select Committee report on "Miscarriages of Justice" which have been implemented.

Mr. John Patten: The Select Committee's recommendation for the establishment of a public prosecution service was implemented in the Prosecution of Offences Act 1985. The other principal recommendations concerning an independent review body have not been accepted, for reasons given in the Government's reply to the report (Cmnd. 8856), to which I refer the hon. Member for further details.

42. Mrs. Wise: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he proposes to refer any further cases of alleged miscarriages of justice to the Court of Appeal; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: My right hon. Friend will continue to exercise the power given him by section 17 of the Criminal Appeal Act 1968 in accordance with established practice where he is satisfied that there is some new evidence or other new consideration of substance which has not previously been taken into account by a court and which the Court of Appeal can properly consider.

Birmingham Pub Bombings

31. Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will refer the case of the six men convicted of the Birmingham pub bombings to an independent review body of the sort recommended by the House Select Committee on Home Affairs report on "Miscarriages of Justice".

35. Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will set up an independent review body to examine evidence that the persons responsible for the Birmingham pub bombings are living in Ireland; and if he will make a statement.

38. Mr. John Garrett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will establish an independent review tribunal to examine evidence in relation to the Birmingham pub bombings that was not admissible before the Court of Appeal.

44. Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will set up an independent review body, along the lines recommended by Lord Devlin and the Home Affairs Select Committee, to review evidence by the hon. Member for Sunderland, South (Mr. Mullin) that he has traced and interviewed the four persons solely responsible for the Birmingham pub bombings and that they are all in Ireland.

57. Ms. Short: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will refer the case of the Birmingham pub bombings to an independent tribunal; and if he will make a statement.

58. Sir John Farr: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will refer the case of the Birmingham pub bombings to an independent review body.

Mr. John Patten: I refer hon. Members to the reply given to a question from the hon. Member for Deptford and Lewisham (Ms. Ruddock) on 15 February at column 437.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will establish an independent review body to consider evidence that the persons actually responsible for the Birmingham pub bombings are not in custody; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. John Patten: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to a question from the hon. Member for Deptford and Lewisham (Ms. Ruddock) on 15 February at column 437.

I understand that on application by the six men convicted of the Birmingham pub bombings the Court of Appeal has certified that there has been raised a point of law of general public importance. I understand further that the court has refused the six men leave to appeal to the House of Lords, but that it is now open to them to apply to the House of Lords for leave to pursue the point. Consequently, the matter is now sub-judice.

Deportation Orders

32. Mr. Parry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons are subject to deportation orders in Liverpool at the latest date.

Mr. Renton: Information on deportation orders is not readily available by area or city.

Criminal Injuries Compensation Board

37. Mr. Holt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the working of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board.

Mr. John Patten: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given to the hon. Member for Edinburgh, Central (Mr. Darling) on 20 November 1987 at columns 716-17. Further information is contained in the board's latest annual report (Cm. 265), a copy of which is in the Library.

Mr. Ground: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to reduce the backlog of cases awaiting resolution by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board.

Mr. John Patten: The Government provided £77 million for the criminal injuries compensation scheme in the Estimates for this financial year—an increase of £33 million over previously planned provision—and plans to make available £81 million in 1988-89 and £89 million in 1989-90. This increased provision will finance an increase in the number of compensation payments and has enabled the board to recruit 90 additional staff at its new office in Glasgow who will help to deal with the backlog of claims.

Passports

39. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he is satisfied with the speed and manner in which passport applications and renewals are currently being processed.

Mr. Renton: With the exception of the London passport office, where continuing heavy demand is causing some abnormal delays, the passport offices are processing straightforward, non-urgent passport applications for all types well within the four-week minimum period of notice specified on passport application forms. Urgent applications are given priority.

Computerisation of the passport issuing system, which is due to commence at the Glasgow passport office in the late summer of this year, extending to all offices by the end of 1989, should speed up the passport-issuing process and reduce delays.

Television Licences

40. Mr. Speller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will seek to widen the provisions of residential care licences to permit the reduced television fee to be charged in all warden-controlled accommodation, in addition to those premises housing people of pensionable age with physical disabilities or mental disorders; and if he will also seek powers, to provide lower prices and free television licences for those with no other resources than the basic retirement pension.

Mr. Renton: There are no plans to do so.

Charitable Trusts

43. Mr. Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has plans to seek to amend the law on charitable trusts.

Mr. John Patten: The Government have already announced their intention to propose legislation to strengthen the powers of the Charity Commission and improve the supervision and monitoring of charities. We are considering the scope of this legislation.

Independent Radio

45. Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to safeguard the opportunities for drama and live music under the new regulations which will govern the expansion of radio.

Mr. Renton: The extent to which independent stations' programmes include drama and live music will be for the stations themselves to determine when applying for a licence to the radio authority. When making their applications they will no doubt have regard to the criteria which the authority will apply and to their obligation to maintain their promise of performance. The best safeguard for these opportunities will lie in the expansion of radio itself which the Government propose to make possible.

DNA Testing

46. Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what further discussions he has had on DNA testing in immigration control.

Mr. Renton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to a question from the hon. Member for Bradford, West (Mr. Madden) on 5 February at column 781.

Parole

48. Mr. Michael McNair-Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has any plans to change the working of the parole system.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The parole system is being reviewed by a committee under the chairmanship of Lord Carlisle. The terms of reference of the review were announced by my right hon. Friend on 16 July 1987 at column 1294.

Game Licences Act 1860

49. Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the level of compliance with the Game Licences Act 1860; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my hon. Friend gave to a previous question from the hon. Member on 25 January, at column 2, giving details of the convictions for offences under the Game Licences Act 1860.

The level of compliance is of course very difficult to ascertain with precision. However, the Government are concerned that poaching offences should be pursued with all posible vigour, and we believe that the police share this concern.

Basildon (Ministerial Visit)

52. Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the recent visit to Basildon by the Minister of State, the hon. Member for Oxford, West and Abingdon (Mr. Patten).

Mr. John Patten: I visited Basildon on Tuesday 2 February to open a crime prevention exhibition organised by Allders department stores. The exhibition showed a range of security equipment and provided an opportunity for the police and the local crime prevention panel to give advice and information on crime prevention matters. The exhibition was due to run at Basildon until Saturday 13 February, and then to be transferred to other parts of the country. The Allders initiative is an excellent example of the way in which the private sector can contribute to crime prevention.

Young Persons (Non-custodial Treatment)

53. Mr. Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what initiatives he is supporting that are aimed at replacing custody for 17 to 19-year-olds.

Mr. John Patten: Our policy is to encourage the use of non-custodial measures whenever they are suitable. The Government have recently offered grants to the National Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders and the National Children's Home for work on alternatives to custody for 17 to 20-year-olds. This is part of our wider consideration of punishment in the community for offenders over 17.

Immigration (Primary Purpose Rule)

54. Ms. Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consideration he has given to abolishing the primary purpose rule.

Mr. Renton: The primary purpose requirement is kept under continuing review but there are at present no plans to amend the relevant provisions of the immigration rules.

West Mercia Constabulary

56. Mr. Colin Shepherd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to how many people are currently employed by the West Mercia constabulary; and how many of these are police officers.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: As at 31 December 1987, there were 1,949 police officers and 746 civilians (counting part-time staff as half) working for the West Mercia constabulary.

Independent Television Network

59. Mr. Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he next plans to meet the chairman of the Independent Broadcasting Authority to discuss the future structure of the Independent Television network.

Mr. Renton: My right hon. Friend meets the chairman of the IBA from time to time to discuss matters of current interest, which include the structure and operation of the ITV network.

Prison System (USA)

60. Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consultations he has held following his noble Friend, the Earl of Caithness's visit to America to study the prison system there.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: Both before and since my noble Friend's visit to America, there have been extensive discussions at official level with private companies which have expressed an interest in the design and building of prisons or the provision of management or other services.

Metropolitan Police

61. Mr. Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement about manpower and police recruiting in the Metropolitan police area.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The strength of the Metropolitan police on 18 January was 27,488; the highest ever. This is about 250 short of establishment. Recruitment is buoyant, although it continues to be offset to a great extent by wastage. Intakes of about 200 recruits take place every five weeks at the Hendon training school and there will be an additional intake at the Wanstead centre in the spring. The Metropolitan police have also taken special initiatives to encourage recruits from the ethnic minorities.

Immigration

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received from Tower Hamlets council concerning immigration matters; and what account he took of these representations when formulating his policy on immigration.

Mr. Renton: When my right hon. Friend visited Tower Hamlets in December 1986, the local council made representations to him about the problem of housing people who had been temporarily admitted to the United Kingdom while their claims were examined. The pressure on services in areas such as Tower Hamlets was one of the factors which we took into account in bringing forward clause 3 of the Immigration Bill which makes universal the requirement that those claiming the right of abode here should establish their claims before coming here.

Dr. Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has received any representations regarding the right of hon. Members to intervene in immigration cases.

Mr. Renton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given earlier today to a question from the hon. Member for Glasgow, Pollok (Mr. Dunnachie).

Under-age Drinking

Sir Dudley Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many young people under the age of 18 years have been prosecuted for obtaining or attempting to obtain alcoholic drink over the past 10 years up to the latest date for which figures are available.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The information held centrally, which may be incomplete, is given in the following table. Data for the years prior to 1979 are not available.

Persons found guilty of offences under Section 169(2) of the Licensing Act 1964—England and Wales

Year	Total found guilty
1979	4,091
1980	3,954
1981	2,647
1982	1,862

Year	Total found guilty
1983	1,577
1984	1,095
1985	744
1986	538

Settlers

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what information he has as to how many people from Northern Ireland settled in each local authority area in England in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over;

(2) what information he has as to how many people from the Republic of Ireland settled in each local authority area in England in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over;

(3) what information he has as to how many people from Northern Ireland settled in each local authority area in Scotland in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 and 25 years and over;

(4) what information he has as to how many people from the Republic of Ireland settled in each local authority area in Wales in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 and 25 years and over;

(5) what information he has as to how many people from Northern Ireland settled in each local authority area in Wales in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over;

(6) what information he has as to how many people from the Republic of Ireland settled in each local authority area in Scotland in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over.

Mr. Renton: The information requested is not available.

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what estimates exist for the numbers of people from the Republic of Ireland who will settle in England, Scotland and Wales in each year for the next five years, and for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over;

(2) what estimates exist for the numbers of people from Northern Ireland who will settle in England, Scotland and Wales in each year for the next five years, and for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over.

Mr. Renton: No such estimates exist.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he will publish an estimate of the staffing and financial consequences for the monitoring and approval of bids under section 11 of the Local Government Act 1966 submitted by inner London boroughs after the proposed transfer of education responsibilities to them following the abolition of the Inner London education authority.

Mr. Hurd: Details of the administrative arrangements for section 11 posts following the proposed abolition of ILEA have not yet been settled. I do not expect any significant staffing or financial consequences for the Home Office. Boroughs which take responsibility for existing ILEA posts funded under section 11 would take over responsibility for satisfying the Home Office of the effectiveness of those posts. They would be eligible to apply for section 11 grant for further posts, as they now do for posts in other services.

"Some Mother's Son"

Mr. Nicholas Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will raise at his next meeting with the chairman of the Independent Broadcasting Authority the circumstances in which the film "Some Mother's Son", containing deception and misleading assertions about the British Army's activities in Ulster, was shown on Channel 4.

Mr. Renton: The Independent Broadcasting Authority has the statutory responsibility for ensuring that the programmes it broadcasts maintain a high general standard in all respects and in particular in respect of their content and quality. I am sure the authority will have taken due note of the lessons of this unfortunate incident, for which Channel 4 has already apologised publicly.

Work Permits

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has any plans to introduce legal sanctions against employers who offer jobs to people without authorisation to work.

Mr. Renton: We have no present plans to do so.

Murder (Convictions)

Mr. Bowis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will give, for each year since 1979, the figures for (a) the number of people convicted of murder, (b) the number of people given life sentences, (c) the number of people serving life sentences who were released from prison having served less than 10 years in prison and (d) the number of people given life sentences having already served a life sentence.

Mr. John Patten [holding answer 4 February 1988]: The information requested is given in the following table. More detailed information about life sentence prisoners is given annually in "Prison Statistics, England and Wales" (table 1*(f)* of the latest issue for 1986 Cm. 210) and in "Criminal Statistics, England and Wales", (Supplementary tables section 2.1(A) and section 2.4 of the latest issue for 1986). Copies of both publications are in the Library.

England and Wales

Number of persons

	1979	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Persons convicted of murder:	136	169	126	184	132	150	173	179
Persons given life sentences[1]:	183	203	175	245	167	184	208	241
Life sentence prisoners[1] released from Prison Department Establishments having spent less than 10 years in such establishments under sentence[2]
By type and date of release:
On licence	49	24	38	50	52	40	29	17
Other[3]	35	39	39	43	32	40	44	49
Persons released from Prison Department Establishments on life licence who were later given a further life sentence:
By year if further sentence:	1	1	4[4]	1	2[4]	—	3	2

[1] Including custody for life and detention during Her Majesty's pleasure or for life under section 53 of the Children and Young Persons Act 1933.
[2] Excluding any time spent on remand in custody, in non-Prison Department establishments or following any subsequent recall.
[3] Including successful appeals, deaths and transfers to psychiatric hospitals or outside England and Wales.
[4] Including one person given life sentence in Scotland.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Bottles

Mr. Irving: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what action he is taking to encourage distributors of glass and plastic bottles and containers to mark each with a deposit charge, to be returnable, to reduce litter, broken glass and waste.

Mr. Butcher: The Government consider that the use of deposit schemes should be decided by producers and distributors in the light of their assessment of the market implications. The Government welcome schemes such as bottle banks for the collection and recycling of consumer waste. As a direct result of a commitment conference I chaired on glass recycling, the glass industry and local authorities gave an undertaking to double the number of bottle banks in the five years from 1986.

House of Fraser

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he now expects to receive the inspector's report into the House of Fraser.

Mr. Maude: The inspector's interim report on the membership of the House of Fraser plc was published on 9 August 1984. His investigation under section 172 of the Companies Act 1948 is concluded, and no further report will be published.

The investigation into the affairs of Fraser Holdings plc under section 432(2) Companies Act 1985 continues and I am unable to say when a report will be received.

Departmental Computer System

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster why, when his Department's Minstrel 1 computer system was replaced the manufacturers of Minstrel 4 were not invited to tender for its replacement.

Mr. Butcher: There was no simple replacement of the Department's Minstrel 1 computer system. Its correspondence management functions were subsumed within a wider networked system for all DTI Ministers designed to provide additional facilities, including engagements management, word processing and links into ICL-Mail (on which the Department's electronic mail service is based).

Arms Sales

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list those countries on which Her Majesty's Government have imposed trade restrictions on the sale of arms.

Mr. Alan Clark: Arms and other military equipment described in group 1 of part II of schedule I to the Export of Goods (Control) Order 1987 (SI 1987 No. 2070) require a licence for export to any destination except as provided in article 4 of that order.

EC (Trade Policy)

Mr. Forth: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will make a statement on the suspension of the tariff concessions enjoyed by the Republic of Korea under the generalised scheme of preference.

Mr. Alan Clark: The European Community suspended Korea's GSP benefits following the Korean Government's decision not to extend to EC member states the same concessions on intellectual property rights as those given to the United States. Despite lengthy and concerted protests from EC member states that this discrimination was unacceptable, the Korean Government have still not extended the same concessions to countries other than the United States.

Following the failure to reach agreement, the Community, fully supported by the British Government, decided to suspend Korea's GSP benefits. In the context of negotiations with Korea it was necessary for the Community to take immediate decisions. The suspension was approved by the Council of Ministers on 18 December and came into effect from 1 January 1988.

Differences between the European Economic Community and the European Coal and Steel Community mean that the procedural steps are not the same and the ECSC suspension will take effect from 15 February.

I would like to take this opportunity to express the hope that the House understands the special reasons why the Government agreed to these measures before it was possible for the House to complete its scrutiny of the proposals.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will publish a list detailing the various measures approved by the EEC Council and implemented by the Commission which had the effect of removing or suspending trade concessions to foreign nations or otherwise restricting imports in each of the past three years.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I am writing to my hon. Friend and will place a copy of the reply in the Library of the House.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster why he agreed in January to the EEC Commission suspending the tariff concessions enjoyed by the Republic of Korea under the general system of preferences; what will be the effect of this suspension on the price of imported goods from Korea; what action the Commission is calling upon the Republic to undertake so that the suspension can be terminated; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 8 February 1988]: The suspension of Korea's benefits under the European Community's GSP scheme was made in response to the Korean Government's decision not to extend to EC member states the same concessions given to the United States in the field of intellectual property rights.

New Korean legislation giving better protection for intellectual property came into effect from 1 July 1987. However, the Korean Government entered into a bilateral arrangement with the United States Government which gave United States firms certain special concessions related to the implementation of the legislation. These concessions were not intended to be made available to Community firms. Despite lengthy and concerted protests from EC member states that such discriminatory action was unacceptable, the Korean Government have still not extended the same concessions to countries other than the United States.

Following the failure to reach satisfactory agreement, the Community, fully supported by the British Government, decided to suspend Korea's GSP benefits. The Council regulation stated that it would not be appropriate for Korea to benefit from GSP as long as it discriminated against the Community in this way.

The Government's support for the measure took into account the likely effect of suspension both on United Kingdom manufacturers and on United Kingdom consumers, importers, and distributors. Import prices remain a commercial matter for the companies concerned and include many elements beside import duties. The suspension was approved by the Council of Ministers on 18 December and came into effect from 1 January 1988.

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster why he has agreed to support a further measure to suspend Korean tariff concessions under the general system of preferences concerning steel products; what will be the effect of the suspension on import prices; what action the Commission is calling upon the Republic to undertake so that the suspension can be terminated; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Alan Clark [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to his earlier question today.

The Commission published its proposal to suspend European Coal and Steel Community GSP benefits for Korea at the same time and for the same reason as the proposal to suspend European Economic Community GSP benefits. Differences between the two Communities mean the procedural steps are not the same and the ECSC suspension took effect from 15 February.

Earnings

Mr. Wray: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what are the average wages or salaries of (a) female and (b) male workers in (i) the industrial, (ii) the services and (iii) the agricultural sectors.

Mr. Lee: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested, relating to April 1987, is provided in the table.

Average gross weekly earnings of full-time employees on adult rates whose earnings were not affected by absence—Great Britain

	Males £	Females £
Manufacturing industries (SIC 2-4)	222·3	133·4
Service industries (SIC 6-9)	227·6	151·9
Agriculture, forestry and fishing (SIC 0)	145·1	122·3

Mr. Wray: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information he has for each year since 1975 on the average wage increases in percentage terms for women (i) manual workers and (ii) non-manual workers in (a) Belgium, (b) France, (c) the Federal Republic of Germany, (d) Italy, (e) the Netherlands, (f) the United States of America and (g) the United Kingdom.

Mr. Lee: I have been asked to reply.

The following table sets out the available information published by the International Labour Office covering average hourly wages of females in manufacturing industry. These are mainly manual workers as salaried employees are excluded. Separate information for non-manual workers is not available. Italy and the United States of America do not provide separate figures for females.

Average hourly wages of female employees in manufacturing industry[1]

	Belgium		France		Federal Republic of Germany		Netherlands		United Kingdom
	Francs[2]	Percentage increase	Francs[2]	Percentage increase	Deutschmarks[2]	Percentage increase	Guilders[2]	Percentage increase	£[3,4]	Percentage increase
1975	111·06	17·9	[5]9·84	15·8	7·51	8·8	8·39	15·6	0·930	27·9
1976	121·85	9·7	11·33	..	8·01	6·7	9·11	8·6	1·094	17·6

	Belgium		France		Federal Republic of Germany		Netherlands		United Kingdom
	Francs[2]	Percentage increase	Francs[3]	Percentage increase	Deutschmarks[3]	Percentage increase	Guilders[3]	Percentage increase	£[3,4]	Percentage increase
1977	133·39	9·5	12·80	13·0	8·62	7·6	10·02	10·0	1·195	9·2
1978	140·92	5·6	14·50	13·3	9·13	5·9	10·63	6·1	1·346	12·6
1979	151·68	7·6	16·26	12·1	9·62	5·4	11·13	4·7	[5,6]1·571	16·7
1980	164·61	8·5	18·78	15·5	10·25	6·5	11·71	5·2	1·834	17·0
1981	188·31	14·4	21·88	16·5	10·84	5·8	12·23	4·4	2·019	10·1
1982	201·26	6·9	24·73	13·0	11·36	4·8	13·03	6·5	2·200	9·0
1983	213·80	6·2	28·09	13·6	11·70	3·0	13·22	1·5	2·372	7·8
1984	223·25	4·4	[5]29·86	6·3	12·00	2·6	13·41	1·4	2·529	6·6
1985	232·25	4·0	31·78	..	12·54	4·5	13·53	0·9	2·710	7·2
1986	..	..	33·02	3·9	13·03	3·9	..	..	2·897	6·9

[1] Average gross earnings per hour of women of all ages (except salaried employees) unless otherwise indicated. See notes for each country. Figures relate to annual averages unless otherwise indicated.
[2] October of each year.
[3] Includes family allowance paid directly by employer.
[4] Full time female manual workers on adult rates of pay—includes all adults prior to 1980.
[5] Change in coverage of series.
[6] On a basis consistent with 1980, the 1979 figure was £1·567.
.. Not available.

Source: International Labour Office:
'Year Book of Labour Statistics 1986'
'Bulletin of Labour Statistics 1987-8'.

EMPLOYMENT

YTS

Mr. Sims: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) how many requests have been made by youth training scheme trainees for communications support under the communication service for the deaf;

(2) what information he has as to the number of youth training scheme trainees who have been provided with communication support under the communication service for the deaf.

Mr. Cope: Since the communication service for the deaf was introduced in April 1986, a total of 172 trainees have been provided with communication support. I am not aware of any application for such support having been refused.

Mr. Sims: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how much money has been allocated by his Department to fund the communication service for the deaf on the youth training scheme since it was established; and how much of this has actually been spent.

Mr. Cope: The communication service for the deaf was introduced in April 1986 and in the first year of its operation £248,000 was allocated to the service and £73,588 was spent. In the current financial year, £254,000 was allocated and £160,884 had been spent up to the end of January 1988.

Youth Training

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) how many people from the Republic of Ireland took up places on community programmes, YTS and other young persons programmes in England, Scotland and Wales in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over;

(2) what information he has as to how many people from Northern Ireland took up places on community programmes, YTS and other young persons programmes in England, Scotland and Wales in each year from 1982 to 1987, inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over.

Mr. Lee: I regret that the information requested is not available. The Manpower Services Commission which runs the community programme, YTS and other programmes does not collect information on the number of participants who come from the Republic of Ireland or Northern Ireland.

Labour Statistics

Mr. McNamara: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) what information he has as to how many people from the Republic of Ireland took up full-time or part-time employment in England, Scotland and Wales in each year from 1982 to 1987 inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over;

(2) what information he has as to how many people from Northern Ireland took up full-time or part-time employment in England, Scotland and Wales in each year from 1982 to 1987 inclusive, for each of the age groups 16 to 18 years, 18 to 25 years and 25 years and over.

Mr. Lee: I regret that the information requested is not available.

Women

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the present proportion of women workers in the total working population of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Lee: Women in work are estimated to represent 38 per cent. of the working population of the United Kingdom in September 1987, the latest date for which figures are available.

ENVIRONMENT

Planning Appeals

Sir Anthony Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the average length of time it has taken him to decide an appeal against local planning authorities decisions in each of the last three years; what steps he is taking to speed the process; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. William Waldegrave: The median time from receipt to decision for all appeals in each of the last three years is as follows:

	weeks
1985	20
1986	21
1987	24

The number of planning appeals received has been increasing in the past three years at about 11 per cent. per year. A total of 21,548 were received in 1987. The increased number of appeals has meant that processing times have not improved as planned. The following steps have been taken, or are in hand to remedy this:

—regulations setting a timetable for the variable stages of the written representations procedure and offering the opportunity of a simplified process, if appropriate, were made in May 1987;

—additional resources have been allocated to the planning inspectorate (more inspectors and administrative staff) in order to deal with the additional work;

—the Department has invested in information technology in order to speed up the preparation of decision letters; and

— revised inquiries procedure rules will soon be introduced, which will, inter alia, contain timetabling provisions to speed up the process of fixing inquiries and which will help the inspectorate to make better use of existing resources.

There has been a reduction to 22 weeks in the overall median time from receipt to decision of those appeals decided in December 1987.

Home Improvements

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what progress he has made with consultations on the paper "Home Improvement Policy" of November 1987; when he expects to bring forward legislation to implement his proposals; and why no legislative action in this regard has taken place since the publication of the Green Paper "Home Improvements—a New Approach" (Cmnd. 9513) in May 1985.

Mrs. Rae: Aspects of the Green Paper were reconsidered in the light of the comments received and revised proposals were published in the housing White Paper (Cmnd. 214) and subsequent consultation paper on home improvement policy. We are now considering the responses to these with a view to legislation at the next practicable opportunity.

Urban Regeneration Grants

Mr. Latham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he will make a further statement on the payments to date of urban regeneration grants.

Mr. Trippier: Since urban regeneration grant was introduced, five offers of grant totalling £9·85 million have been made for projects in Manchester, Dudley and Liverpool. This grant is expected to attract £42·3 million of private investment into these areas. Approval in principle has been given to a project in Blackburn.

Heveningham Hall

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what conditions were attached to the sale of Heveningham hall; if these have been complied with; what information he has as to how often Heveningham hall has been open to the public since July 1981; and if he will make a repair order on Heveningham hall.

Mrs. Rae: The following three conditions were attached to the conveyance of Heveningham hall to permit public access to the principal rooms and to the gardens on at least 30 days each year unless prevented by circumstance outside the owner's control; to complete within five years the restoration of the orangery; and to use best endeavours to complete a tree planting scheme recommended by Dame Sylvia Crowe in 1975. In addition, the owner entered into a hiring agreement whereby certain items of furniture in the house which remained in the Secretary of State's ownership were to be hired to him for a nominal rent, subject to conditions relating to their care.

Restoration of the orangery was completed in 1985, but the tree planting scheme remains to be done. Most of the furniture covered by the hiring agreement is currently in store, under the custody of English Heritage. Precise records of opening times are not available, but I understand that the position has been as follows:

1982 house and gardens open for 30 days
1983 gardens only open, because of building work
1984-6 house open by appointment only to bona fide visitors, again because of building work.
1987 house and gardens open throughout August

Despite the regrettable delay, my right hon. Friend has no reason on present information to doubt the owner's intention to complete the outstanding repairs. Should there be serious doubts about this we would have to consider serving a repairs notice.

PSA (Civil Accommodation Vote)

Mr. Hind: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he has any plans to increase the cash limit on the Property Services Agency civil accommodation vote during the current financial year.

Mr. Chope: Further to my reply on 2 February Official Report, column 551, the cash limit on PSA's civil accommodation Vote, Class XX, Vote 19, in 1987-88 should now be increased by £67,699,000 from £230,377,000 to £298,076,000 subject to approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimate. The increase will be charged to the Reserve and will not therefore add to the planned total of public expenditure. The increase is to enable PSA to purchase additional freehold office accommodation.

NATIONAL FINANCE

Pensions

Mr. Maxwell-Hyslop: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what tax yield he estimates would be lost in the financial year 1988-89 if the limit set by the Inland Revenue on pension policies whose contributions qualify for tax remission were increased to (a) 75 per cent. and (b) 80 per cent. of final salary or pay in the year of retirement.

Mr. Norman Lamont: I regret that this information is not available.

Corporation Tax

Mr. Robert B. Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he will set out in tabular form, for each year since 1978-79, corporation tax receipts (a) in cash terms, (b) in constant price terms and (c) as a percentage of total tax receipts.

Mr. Norman Lamont: The information is as follows:

Net receipts of corporation tax[1]

	Cash terms £ million	At constant (1978-79) prices[2] £ million	As percentage of total taxes and royalties Per cent.
1978-79	3,940	3,940	8·1
1979-80	4,646	3,980	7·6
1980-81	4,645	3,350	6·5
1981-82	4,930	3,240	5·7
1982-83	5,679	3,480	6·2
1983-84	6,184	3,620	6·4
1984-85	8,341	4,680	7·8
1985-86	10,708	5,670	9·4
1986-87	13,495	6,940	11·3

[1] Including advance corporation tax.
[2] By reference to movements in the GDP deflator.

Covenants

Mr. Ashdown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of tax revenue forgone as a result of covenants made out to students.

Mr. Norman Lamont: Tax revenue forgone as a result of covenants to students is estimated to be about £150 million annually.

Government Data Network

Ms. Gordon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the specifications concerning the throughput on the Government data network in terms of packets per second or Baud rate, have been calculated in the absence of centrally held information concerning the annual rate of inter and intra-departmental data transfer at the Department of Health and Social Security, the Inland Revenue, the Home Department and Her Majesty's Customs and Excise.

Mr. Brooke: The four Departments each provided information on their potential use of the Government data network. This has allowed prospective suppliers to determine the shape and capacity of the network design each has proposed. This information had not previously been held centrally.

The four Departments' current requirements for GDN as set out in the statement of service requirement do not involve any data transfers between them. There is thus no information on such data to hold centrally.

Police National Computer

Ms. Gordon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the estimated increase in throughput specifications in terms of packets per second or Baud rate that will be required if the police national computer is connected to the Government data network.

Mr. Brooke: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department is considering the suitability of the Government data network for the police national computer. The PNC requirements are being defined and, if GDN were to be used, suppliers would need to take account of these in their enhancement plans.

The GDN is being designed to allow for expansion and resilience.

Public Expenditure (Private Finance)

Mr. Squire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he will make available the paper on the role of private finance in public expenditure which was recently sent to the National Economic Development Office.

Mr. Major: I am arranging for copies of the paper, "Private Finance in Public Expenditure", to be placed in the Library of the House.

Taxation

Ms. Harman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the sum paid in tax per year of a person on average earnings.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 11 February 1988]: A married man on average earnings of £11,950 per annum pays £2,202 per year in income tax under the 1987-88 tax regime. A single person on the same earnings pays £2,572 per year. Average earnings are those for full time men in all occupations paid at adult rates whose pay is unaffected by absence. The calculations assume that the taxpayer has no reliefs or allowances other than the appropriate personal allowance.

Benefits (RPI Error)

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the special payments being made to social security beneficiaries on account of the miscalculations of the retail prices index are being treated as exempt from tax.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 15 February 1988]: These special ex-gratia payments are not taxable.

Agriculture (Tax Concessions)

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what tax concessions are made to agriculture which are not available to manufacturing industry; and what is his estimate of the annual value of such concessions.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 15 February 1988]: There is one statutory tax relief applying to agriculture which is not broadly mirrored by an equivalent relief for manufacturing industry. This is section 28 of the Finance Act 1978, which allows farmers to average their profits over two years for tax purposes, in certain circumstances. The estimated cost of this relief for 1987-88 is £10 million. There are also several extra-statutory concessions affecting agriculture; the cost of most of these cannot be reliably estimated, but is likely to be very small.

Building Industry (Tax Exemption Certificates)

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will review the operation of the 715 tax exemption certificate in the building industry in the light of reports that it enables paramilitary groups to defraud the Revenue; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 16 February 1988]: The operation of the special tax regime for the construction industry, including its effectiveness in deterring and detecting tax evasion, is kept under regular review.

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what checks are made on building companies before they are allowed to obtain tax exemption certificates from the Inland Revenue; and how many such certificates have been issued in London in the last three years.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 16 February 1988]: The Inland Revenue should satisfy itself—from its own records, from information provided by the applicant or through other appropriate enquiry—that the applicant meets the requirements of section 70 and parts I and IV of schedule 12 to the Finance (No. 2) Act 1975.

The figures requested by the hon. Member are not readily available. However, on the basis of a sampling exercise, the number of companies holding 714P or 714C exemption certificates whose tax affairs are dealt with by tax offices in the London regions are roughly:

	Number
January 1986	16,500
January 1987	17,300
January 1988	17,600

Many construction firms undertake work outside the immediate area of their tax office.

Irish Republican Army

Rev. Martin Smyth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his Department's estimate as to the sums lost to the Revenue through Irish Republican Army and other paramilitary extortion rackets in the last three years; what efforts have been made to ensure co-ordination between the Revenue, the Royal Ulster Constabulary and other police forces; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Norman Lamont [holding answer 16 February 1988]: I can make no reliable estimate of such sums. The Inland Revenue co-operates with police forces investigating suspected tax offences.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Gastropods

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) what research is planned into the use of carnivorous slugs, beetles, glow-worms, frogs and microbes as environmentally acceptable methods of controlling gastropods;

(2) if any alternative research is planned by his Department to continue the work recently stopped at Cleppa Park, Newport, Gwent, into the search for a less toxic substitute to metaldehyde for the control of gastropods;

(3) what evidence he has of changes in the level of resistance of gastropods to the toxic effects of metaldehyde; and what evidence he has of subsequent changes in the use of (a) metaldehyde and (b) the more toxic methiocarb;

(4) what information has he of research, currently being undertaken or planned, in the private sector to provide an environmentally benign alternative to the chemical substances now used to control gastropods;

(5) what information he has on research in France of the effect of an increased use of metaldehyde and methiocarb in controlling gastropods on plant growth;

(6) if he is considering introducing legislation to restrict the use of metaldehyde as a control agent for gastropods because of the danger to children and to wildlife;

(7) if he is encouraging research into alternatives to metaldehyde for use in the control of gastropods.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The use of pesticides, including those based on the active ingredient metaldehyde, is subject to detailed statutory controls under part III of the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985. Under these arrangements, the effects of pesticides on human safety and that of wildlife and the environment are all carefully considered by independent experts before any approvals for use are granted by Ministers.

In the case of slug pellets based on metaldehyde, the potential risks to children and animals are well understood. Product labels are required to draw attention to these risks and formulations contain repellants and dyes to make them less attractive to mammals and birds. Reports of accidents are also carefully monitored and do not justify the introduction of new controls at present.

Nevertheless, it is the Government's policy to reduce pesticide use to the minimum consistent with efficient food production. The main Government-funded research work on slug control is taking place at the Institute of Arable Crops Research, Long Ashton. This includes the prediction of slug damage in crops and the effects of cultivation methods on control. There is also research into biological control, though this is concentrating on the pathogens which specifically attack slugs rather than on the use of natural predators such as slow worms or hedgehogs.

My Department's own laboratories at Slough are investigating the effects of metaldehyde on wildlife and I am aware of industry-funded work at Rothamsted into the production of alternative and more specific molluscicides. I believe that there is also some industry-funded work at Long Ashton on the potential for microbial control, but I do not have details of this.

I am also aware of similar work in France but do not have any information about results in relation to plant growth.

We have no evidence of resistance to metaldehyde in land molluscs and particularly slugs. However, its efficiency as a molluscicide is very dependent on weather conditions at the time of baiting, with humidity likely to reduce mortality. Pesticide usage data for 1983 (latest available data) show use on cereals, arable crops and horticulture of 600,000 ha and 94,000 ha respectively for methiocarb and metaldehyde. The survey of pesticide usage in arable crops scheduled for this year will give an indication of recent changes in usage.

Food Prices

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will show the average price to the consumer of (a) a pint of milk, (b) a 2lb loaf of bread and (c) a pint of beer in 1960, 1970, 1980 and 1987; and what was the percentage increase between 1980 and 1987 in each case.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The information requested is as follows:

	Milk[1] per pint	Bread[2] per loaf	Beer per pint
Average Prices
1960	3·3	4·8	8·8
1970	5·0	9·1	12·9
1980	16·5	33·7	43·4
1987	25·3	43·7	81·2
Percentage change 1980-87	53	30	87

[1] Whole pasteurised
[2] Large white sliced loaf.

Chemicals

Mr. Flynn : To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what controls he will introduce to prevent the more intensive use of chemicals to increase production on the reducing areas of cultivated land produced by the 'set-aside' proposals.

Mr. MacGregor: I have received views on this and other related points in response to the consultation document issued on 8 December. In the light of these and of the eventual Community legislation, the Government will be taking decisions on the details of the United Kingdom scheme, including the controls applying to participating farmers.

Milk Quota

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food by how many million litres his Department estimates the 1987-88 national United Kingdom milk quota will be exceeded.

Mr. Donald Thompson: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given on Tuesday 2 February 1988, at column 566, to my hon. Friend the Member for Pembroke (Mr. Bennett).

Wheat

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will update the information contained in the reply to the hon. Member for Norfolk, North of 26 of February 1987, Official Report, column 368, about the average ex-farm selling price of wheat in the United Kingdom for each of the years 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984, 1985, 1986 and 1987 and also at constant prices, showing the 1979 price as 100.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The information is as follows:

	Ex-farm price of home-grown wheat[1] (£ per tonne)	Price index in real terms[2] (1979 = 100)
1979	95·92	100
1980	99·30	86·5
1981	108·92	85·1
1982	113·74	82·2
1983	124·80	86·2
1984	114·58	76·1
1985	112·25	70·4
1986	111·18	67·2
1987	112·35 (forecast)	65·0

Notes:
[1] weighted average price at first point of sale. (Source: Annual Review of Agriculture.)
[2] deflated by price deflator of CDP at market prices.

Battery Hens

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if, following the implementation of Council directive 86/113/EEC under S.I. 1987, No. 2020, on the welfare of battery hens, he will estimate (a) the percentage of battery farmers who are currently producing under the new regulations; (b) the percentage of battery farmers who are currently producing using old-style cages before the final enforcement date in 1995 and (c) his Department's current figure of the number of battery farmers found to be producing illegally.

Mr. Donald Thompson: The Welfare of Battery Hens Regulations lay down various specific requirements on cage design, which do not apply to existing cages until 1995. There is also a schedule of further requirements which applied from 1 January. All the provisions of the regulations apply immediately to new cages. My staff will continue to visit battery units to check that farmers are complying with the regulations and to advise on any necessary changes.

Common Agricultural Policy

Mr. Teddy Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if, pursuant to the remarks of the Minister of State, the right hon. Member for Suffolk, Coastal (Mr. Gummer) on 15 February, Official Report, column 796, he will identify the section of the last agreement on budgetary restraint of 4 December or any previous Community agreement, which gave the Council the same powers as are set out in annex V to the note from the presidency (EEC document SN 461/88) to increase agricultural expenditure in excess of the agreed guideline; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. MacGregor: This annex refers to existing provisions in the treaty and does not confer any new powers on the Council.

Food Labelling

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is his policy towards nutrition labelling, in the light of the recent report of the Coronary Prevention Group entitled "European Community An Analysis of the United Kingdom Government's Position on Nutrition Labelling".

Mr. Donald Thompson: Officials from my Department have met representatives of the CPG and their legal advisers. My officials explained that it is the EC food labelling directive (79/112) rather than the treaty of Rome which is directly relevant in this case. The ability of a member state to act unilaterally on grounds of public health is restricted to non-harmonised food labelling provisions. What may alone be required to appear on a food label is harmonised and this does not include nutrition information. Whilst therefore it is possible for the United Kingdom to set up a system of voluntary nutrition labelling, it is not open to it under Community law to make the giving of fat or nutrition information on labels a statutory requirement without the consent of the other member states. Thus we continue to seek with the European Commission a solution to our proposals for fat labelling regulations within the context of Community law. I believe that the Coronary Prevention Group now understands better the legal position held by the Government on this issue. This position also results from discussions with the legal services of the European Commission.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Beverages (Saccharine)

Mr. Kaufman: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will take steps to ensure that no beverages containing saccharine are on sale in refreshment rooms in the curtilage of the House, and that those currently on sale are withdrawn; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Wakeham: No. I do not consider such action to be necessary. The use of saccharin in foods is permitted by the Sweeteners in Food Regulations 1983 following advice on need, by the Government's Food Advisory Committee, and on safety, by the Committee on Toxicity of Chemicals in Food, Consumer Protection and the Environment (COT).

SCOTLAND

Job Creation

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give details of any public initiatives which are planned to improve work and job prospects in north Angus, Scotland.

Mr. Lang: The Government's policies to keep inflation down, to stimulate enterprise, to restore competitiveness to industry and to establish a strong private sector have resulted in a significant fall in the unemployment levels in north Angus, as over Scotland as a whole, during the past year.

In north Angus, as throughout Scotland, the full range of Government training and employment programmes, including a rural job club, are continuing to assist the unemployed to find jobs and to start new businesses; and both indigenous and incoming firms benefit from the range of Government assistance to help industry create and improve job opportunities.

"Cabinet"

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, pursuant to his reply of 27 January, Official Report, columns 294-5, who in the Government the BBC consulted before deciding not to show the programme entitled "Cabinet."

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: I understand that the BBC did not seek advice from the Government about that programme.

Police (Computers)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he will list the constabularies which will have computers connected to the upgraded police national computer network, and those constabularies that have an existing mainframe computer linked to the police national computer.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The eight Scottish police forces have access to the police national computer and it will be maintained once the PNC network has been upgraded.

The mainframe computer of Lothian and Borders police has an interface with the PNC which will also be maintained with the upgraded PNC network.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he will list mainframe computers belonging to constabularies, indicating whether they are for command and control or criminal information purposes.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: One Scottish force, Lothian and Borders police, has a mainframe computer (this term being taken as excluding mini and micro computers). It is used for criminal information purposes, and has no command and control functions.

School Closures

Mr. Michael J. Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will take steps to prevent Colstor secondary school, Springburn, from closing;

(2) if he will take steps to prevent Elmvale primary school, Springburn, from closing.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Decisions about the closure of schools are primarily for education authorities and they require my right hon. and learned Friend's consent only in the circumstances prescribed under the Education (Scotland) Act 1980.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will take steps to prevent St. Bede's primary school, Balornock, from closing.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Decisions about school closure are primarily a matter for the relevant education authority subject to my right hon. and learned Friend's consent in prescribed circumstances. Because St. Bede's is a denominational school, his consent would be required if the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church were to object to any decision to close it.

Fishing Stock Licences

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the current total number of fishing stock licences held in Scotland by (a) individuals, (b) share/joint owners and (c) companies; and if he will give comparative totals for each year for which such statistics are available.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Numbers of pressure stock and non-pressure stock licence holders in Scotland are available for 1987 and 1988. Details are shown in the table.

	Individuals		Joint owners		Companies
	PSL	Non PSL	PSL	Non PSL	PSL	Non PSL
1988	262	78	865	25	48	2
1987	268	78	885	25	44	2

Where companies, for example fish selling companies, hold a minor share in a vessel, together with an individual or individuals, such licences are shown under joint ownership.

It should also be noted that, in a few cases, the company holding the licence is composed entirely of the crew of the vessel or of the skipper and family.

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the average current cost of purchasing a stock licence for a fishing vessel of (a) an under 40 ft boat and (b) an under 80 ft boat; and what have the comparative figures been in each of the last five years.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: There are a number of conditions that have to be fulfilled before a fisherman can obtain licences to catch certain fish stocks. If my officials, and those of other fisheries Departments, are content that these conditions have been met, appropriate licences are issued without cost to the fisherman concerned.

Residential Homes

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many officers in each health authority area in Scotland are appointed to inspect private and publicly owned residential homes (a) for elderly people, (b) for mentally disabled people, (c) for mentally ill people and (d) for physically disabled people; and if he will outline the training and guidance which such officers have received.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The registration and inspection of residential homes is the responsibility of local authorities, and health boards have no supervisory functions in relation to such homes. Information on the number of local authority staff engaged on these functions is not held centrally.

Hospital and Ward Closures

Mr. Norman Hogg: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give figures showing the numbers of (a) hospital closures and (b) ward closures in Scotland for each year since 1979; and if he will also provide a breakdown of these figures for each health board.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information for complete hospital closures is set out in the table. Records on partial closures and ward closures are not held centrally. In the same period, 51 major new hospital developments providing some 5,770 beds have been opened.

	Number of hospitals
Year
1979	7
1980	3
1981	3
1982	3
1983	4
1984	4
1985	3
1986	8
1987	3
Health Board
Argyll and Clyde	12
Ayrshire and Arran	3
Borders	2
Fife	2
Forth Valley	2
Grampian	1
Greater Glasgow	5
Highland	1
Lanarkshire	2
Lothian	1
Shetland	2
Tayside	5

Salmon Farming

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if his Department is at present assessing the efficacy of the sonic seal scarer used on some marine salmonid farms; if he has any plans to curtail, modify or extend the predator control research programme; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The Department of Agriculture and Fisheries for Scotland is currently assessing the efficacy of the sonar seal scarer used on some marine salmonid farms. Several sonar scarers designed by the Department's scientists are presently on trial. There are no plans to curtail, modify or extend the current research programme but this is kept under review.

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if his Department has recently commissioned a survey, or research, into the efficacy and design of predator nets used to protect the stock at marine salmonid fish farms; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The Department of Agriculture and Fisheries for Scotland has not commissioned or done any such research which is seen as more appropriate for the fish farming industry itself to undertake.

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent advice has been given by his officials to the owners and managers of marine salmonid farms, on the subject of predators; and if he will place copies of such memoranda in the Library.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The Department of Agriculture and Fisheries for Scotland has not produced any specific written information or advice on this subject. Advice is however given on an ad hoc basis to reflect particular circumstances.

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if his Department has any recent information regarding the effect of predators on the incidence of disease, levels of stress and the overall productivity at marine salmonid farms.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The Department of Agriculture and Fisheries for Scotland has no recent information on this subject.

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he has any plans to commission further surveys of the economic cost of predation in marine salmonid fish farming, including birds, mink and otters; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: My right hon. and learned Friend has no such plans.

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he has any plans to devote extra resources to the research of production methods, design of equipment, protection against predators and the health and safety of those employed in the salmonid fish farming industry; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: My right hon. and learned Friend has no plans to devote extra resources to such research.

Seals

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he has any plans to change the current licensing scheme for the shooting of seals; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: My right hon. and learned Friend has no plans to do so.

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he is in a position to give the approximate number of seals killed, either by shooting or entanglement in nets, at marine salmonid fish farms in each year since 1979.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: This information is not collected. The numbers of seals killed under licence are reported to the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries for Scotland. Outwith the close season, however, licences to shoot seals and returns to the Department of seals shot are not required.

Community Education

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what amount within the total rate support grant settlement for each local authority is provided for community education, including expenditure on youth service, in respect of the year 1987-88 and for 1988-89.

Mr. Lang: Rate support grant is paid in support of authorities' income generally. It is not attributed to particular services.

Shetland Islands (Housing)

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what representations he has received from the Shetland Islands council about the proposed transfer of ownership of Scottish Special Housing Association houses in the Shetland Islands; and what is his policy towards the transfer of all or any of those houses to the Shetland Islands council at the request of tenants concerned.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Shetland Islands council has recently written to the Scottish Development Department indicating that it wishes to discuss whether appropriate arrangements could be made for the transfer to it of Scottish Special Housing Association houses in the Shetland Islands. I wish to give full consideration to the particular circumstances of this request and to the views of all the interests concerned, including the SSHA as owners and the tenants. I am not, therefore, in a position to indicate our likely response to the inquiry from Shetland Islands council.

Eye Tests

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many representations he has now received concerning the Government's proposals to introduce charges for opticians' eye tests: and how many of them have been supportive.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: To date my right hon. and learned Friend has received 81 representations expressing concern about the introduction of charges for sight tests. No one has written to my right hon. and learned Friend specifically to support the introduction of such charges, but a number of representations have been generally supportive of the Government's plans as set out in the White Paper, "Promoting Beter Health" for developing and improving the primary health care services.

Dyslexia

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secetary of State for Scotland how many schoolchildren in Scotland have been indentified as affected by dyslexia.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: This information is not held centrally.

Tayside Crime Prevention Panel

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give detail of the composition of the Tayside crime prevention panel; how the individuals are selected for appointment; and whether they have been vetted with regard to criminal charges and for written warnings from procurators fiscal.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: There are three separate panels covering the Angus, Dundee, and Perth and Kinross districts of Tayside region. I will invite the chief constable of Tayside police to let my hon. Friend have details of the membership. Each currently has between 12 and 14 members, all appointed by the chief constable. Individuals are usually invited by him to serve either directly, or following nomination. In respect of proven criminal charges much would depend upon the nature of the offence, when it took place, and the provisions of the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974. Written warnings are confidential to the procurator fiscal.

Women Workers

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which economic sector in Scotland has the highest percentage of women workers; and what information he has as to its wages and salaries level in respect of other sectors of the economy.

Mr. Lang: The latest available estimates of employees in employment in Scotland are for September 1987. Of the five main industry sectors, the service sector is the one in which women account for the highest percentage of employees.

Information from the new earnings survey, which covers a 1 per cent. sample of employees who are members of PAYE schemes, is provided in the table.

Average gross weekly earnings (including overtime) of full-time employees on adult rates

Scotland, April 1987	Services £ per week	All industries £ per week
Men
Manual	161·2	179·7
Non-manual	245·7	256·4
Women
Manual	104·1	111·7
Non-manual	150·3	149·0

Labour Statistics

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many (a) female and (b) male workers are in the (i) agricultural, (ii) industrial and (iii) services sectors in Scotland.

Mr. Lang: The table gives the available information.

Number of employees in employment in Scotland: September 1987

1980 SIC		Thousands Male	Female
0	Agriculture, forestry and fishing	25	5
2-4	Manufacturing	266	128
6-9	Services	545	728

These figures are provisional estimates, and subject to revision when further information becomes available. The number of employees in employment includes both manual and non-manual employees.

Parliamentary Constituencies

Mr. Allan Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether the Boundary Commission for Scotland intends to conduct any interim reviews of parliamentary constituencies; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Rifkind: The Boundary Commission for Scotland has informed me that it intends to conduct interim reviews of 16 parliamentary constituencies under section 3 of the Parliamentary Constituencies Act 1986. The constituencies are as follows:

Carrick, Cumnock and Doon Valley CC and Galloway and Upper Nithsdale CC;
Central, Fife CC, Dunfermline, East CC, Fife, North-East CC, and Perth and Kinross CC;
Clydesdale CC, East Kilbride CC and Glasgow, Cathcart BC;
East Lothian CC, Midlothian CC and Edinburgh, East BC;
Monklands, East BC and Falkirk, East CC;
Strathkelvin and Bearsden CC and Glasgow, Maryhill BC.

In each case, I understand that the review has been occasioned by alterations to local authority boundaries so that they no longer follow exactly those of the parliamentary constituencies concerned.

Wages

Mr. Hood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give, for each year since 1975, figures for the average wages for agricultural, industrial and services workers respectively in Scotland; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Lang [holding answer 9 February 1988]: Information from the Department of Employment's new earnings survey, which covers a 1 per cent. sample of employees who are members of PAYE schemes, is provided in the table.

Average gross weekly earnings (including overtime) of adult[1] full-time manual employees[2]

Scotland £ per week

April	Males Industry group[3] Agriculture forestry and fishing	Manufacturing industries	Service industries	Females Industry group[3] Agriculture forestry and fishing	Manufacturing industries	Service industries
1975	42·7	58·2	52·7	..	32·9	31·1
1976	53·9	68·2	61·3	..	40·8	37·9
1977	61·4	75·0	66·8	..	46·4	40·5
1978	67·6	86·2	72·5	..	52·8	46·2
1979	74·9	99·2	84·6	..	59·1	48·7
1980	85·4	117·5	102·8	..	70·1	62·1
1981	93·3	130·0	114·4	..	77·4	69·1
1982*(a)*	102·2	144·4	124·6	..	85·7	73·0
1982*(b)*	101·7	143·0	125·1	..	85·3	73·0
1983	107·1	151·0	132·1	..	92·1	78·2
1984	114·8	163·7	138·8	..	97·6	84·7
1985	121·9	176·3	145·3	..	107·4	90·9
1986	133·2	186·1	153·2	..	110·9	95·9
1987	132·6	194·0	161·2	..	119·6	104·1

.. indicates that the sample cannot provide a reliable estimate.
[1] for 1983 and earlier, males aged 21 and over and females aged 18 and over; for 1984 and later, those on adult rates.

[2] those whose earnings for the survey pay period were not affected by absence.
[3] figures for 1975 to 1982*(a)* are based on the 1968 Standard Industrial Classification (SIC); those for 1982*(b)* to 1987 are based on the 1980 SIC.

DEFENCE

YTS

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many YTS places are currently on offer with Her Majesty's forces; how many have been taken up; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Freeman: In the present financial year (1987-88) there are 1,769 places available on the scheme. Between April and the end of December 1987 we received 1,746 applications of which 585 were accepted and 526 young people were admitted for training during that period.

Applicants are offered places only on condition that they meet successfully both the MSC YTS eligibility criteria and the normal service recruiting standards.

Frigates

Mr. Bright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the number of Royal Navy frigates currently deployed on seagoing duties.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Dunfermline, West (Mr. Douglas) on 26 January 1988 at column 189. The number of ships actually at sea at any one time constantly fluctuates.

Inner-city Task Forces

Mr. Latham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what action is being taken by the Army to encourage liaison between Army cadet forces and inner-city task forces; and whether he will make a statement.

Mr. Freeman: Last month, with the support of my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster I asked TAVR associations with inner city responsibilities to liaise with local inner city task forces to determine the scope for local community or commercial assistance towards the expansion of the Army Cadet Force within their respective areas, and to submit proposals. Reports are awaited shortly and will be given urgent and sympathetic attention.

Royal Naval Stores Depot, Llangennech

Mr. Denzil Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what studies his Department has in hand for the future military use of the whole or part of the royal naval stores depot of Llangennech.

Mr. Freeman: A number of options are being studied for the future use of part or all of the RNSD site at Llangennech, including the possibility of the location of forms and publications storage operations. These are all at a very early stage of consideration and it is too soon to say whether any will be adopted.

Nuclear Submarines

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what incidents have been reported in the past five years involving nuclear submarines from Faslane and the Holy Loch.

Mr. Ian Stewart: As with any other equipment, nuclear submarines suffer occasional defects. However, maintenance, operating and safety standards are exacting. As a consequence, there have been no incidents involving nuclear submarines at Faslane or Holy Loch over the last five years where there was any radiological hazard to service men, base personnel or members of the public.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements there are for informing the public in the west of Scotland, in the event of danger arising from an incident involving a nuclear submarine in the Clyde.

Mr. Ian Stewart: The public notification procedures to be followed in the unlikely event of any accident in the Clyde which might lead to a radiation hazard are detailed in the Clyde area public safety scheme. Similarly, the Scottish special safety scheme details procedures for other nuclear submarine berths on the west coast of Scotland.

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether any of the reactor cladding was damaged on HMS Resolution during 1988;

(2) if any of Her Majesty's submarines departed from the Clyde submarine base at a time later than their scheduled departure date during January.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: It is not our policy to comment on matters affecting the operation or operational movements of Her Majesty's submarines.

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he intends to make amendments to the Clyde public safety scheme in order to make provisions in the event of any radioactive leak arising from accidents to nuclear submarines in the River Clyde or nearby waters.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: The Clyde area public safety scheme already makes provision for any such accidents in the River Clyde and nearby waters.

HMS Resolution

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what action he proposes to take as a result of the recent incident involving HMS Resolution.

Mr. Ian Stewart: The electrical malfunction which occurred on board HMS Resolution on 26 January posed no danger to the submarine's reactor, its crew or the public. It will therefore be the subject of a routine technical report which will investigate the causes of the malfunction and make any necessary recommendations.

Falkland Islands (Exercise)

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements he is making for overseas observers to attend the exercise in the Falkland Islands in March; and which countries he expects to be included.

Mr. Ian Stewart: Foreign observers will not be invited to attend Exercise Fire Focus.

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the purpose, nature and extent of the exercise to be held in the Falkland Islands from 7 to 31 March 1988; what vessels, aircraft and land forces will be involved; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ian Stewart: Exercise Fire Focus will practise the United Kingdom's ability to reinforce the Falkland Islands rapidly in case of emergency. The exercise will involve the deployment to the islands of RAF Phantom air defence aircraft, Nimrod maritime patrol aircraft, and a significant number of troops, mainly from the Light Infantry, but with support from the Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers and other land force units. Following the reinforcement phase, there will be some unit exercises to take advantage of the excellent training facilities in the islands.

Nuclear-powered Vessels (Clyde)

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the locations of all holding berths certified to handle nuclear-powered vessels in the Clyde area.

Mr. Ian Stewart: There is one holding berth in the Clyde area, at the Clyde submarine base, Faslane.

Category X Berths (Clyde)

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the locations of all category X berths in the Clyde area.

Mr. Ian Stewart: There are five category X berths in the Clyde area, all within the Clyde submarine base at Faslane.

Clyde Submarine Base

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether there has been a Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation team employed at the Clyde submarine base during the current year.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: No Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation teams have been activated at the Clyde submarine base in 1988.

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any civilian or naval personnel have been contaminated with radiation at Clyde submarine base in the course of January.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: No.

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what detailed information is available to the Clyde local liaison committee on the consequences of an accident involving a nuclear reactor on the nuclear-powered submarines based at the Clyde submarine base.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: The possible consequences of a nuclear submarine accident involving the Clyde submarine base are detailed in part 1 of the Clyde area public safety scheme, which is available to the Clyde local liaison committee.

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements exist for the disposal of nuclear material arising from an accident to a nuclear submarine in or around the Clyde submarine base.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: It is not our policy to discuss such arrangements in detail. However, depending on the severity of the incident, there would be a range of options, all of which would take full account of the interests of public safety.

Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where in Scotland the Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation is based; whether it was on active deployment during January; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: The Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation (Scotland) is based at the Clyde submarine base. It has not been actively deployed during 1988.

Clyde Local Liaison Committee

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements exist for the evacuation of the population both in and beyond the area covered by the Clyde local liaison committee.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: Evacuation of the civilian population in the unlikely event of a nuclear reactor accident is addressed in the Clyde area public safety scheme. There is little likelihood of evacuation being required beyond the area of the Clyde local liaison committee; but the scheme provides the framework on which the response to an accident with more widespread effects would be based.

Clyde Public Safety Scheme

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy to revise the procedures contained in the Clyde public safety scheme.

Mr. Ian Stewart [holding answer 17 February 1988]: The Clyde area public safety scheme is kept under constant review and amendments are issued as necessary.

Fitness Enhancing Courses

Mr. Marlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will consider introducing a system of income-generating fitness enhancing courses of up to four weeks' duration for civilian executives and others, run by the services and financed by the private sector; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 4 February 1988]: There are at present no plans for such a system which would not be an appropriate use for Defence manpower. I would be happy, however, to consult private sector companies involved in the provision of fitness training in order to establish what advice and facilities, if any, they believe the armed forces might have to offer in this field. I should also emphasise that personnel regularly leave the services with experience in both fitness and adventurous training activities. The service resettlement branches would be pleased to hear from civilian organisations which may wish to avail themselves of the skills which these personnel have acquired during their service.

Air-Sea Search and Rescue

Mrs. Margaret Ewing: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate has been made of the total annual cost to the Royal Air Force of air-sea search and rescue services over each of the past 10 years.

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 10 February 1988]: The figures requested do not fall naturally out of normal Ministry of Defence costings, and could be produced only with disproportionate effort. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the then Member for Ynys Môn, Mr. Best, on 14 July 1986, at column 425, giving the full costs of the military SAR service in the financial year 1985-86. The full costs of the military SAR service in 1987-88 are approximately £57·7 million.

TRANSPORT

Dangerous Substances (Harbours)

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will amend the 1987 regulations covering dangerous substances in harbour areas, so that in future the berthing of ships at harbour facilities are subject to the Notification of Installations Handling Hazardous Substances Regulations and the Town and Country Planning General Development (Amendment) Act 1983.

Mr. David Mitchell: My right hon. Friend has no plans to do so.

Merseyside Passenger Transport Authority

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what will be the total cost of the penalties that the Government will impose on the Merseyside passenger transport authority for the operation of the Mersey ferries and tunnels in 1988-89; and what is the projected accumulation of penalties over the next 10 years.

Mr. David Mitchell: The precept limit of 27p recently set for Merseyside passenger transport authority for 1988-89 takes into account the need for expenditure on the Mersey ferries and tunnels in that year. The limit is 1·49p lower than that for 1987-88. For spending at its revised expenditure level (EL), Merseyside PTA would have a grant entitlement for 1988-89 of £19·8 million, — significantly higher than for 1987-88.

It is not possible to apportion grant entitlement between particular services, nor is it possible to project future years' grant entitlement.

Anti-oil Pollution Patrols

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what aircraft were considered for use on anti-oil pollution patrols; why each was rejected; and why a foreign aircraft was chosen.

Mr. David Mitchell: The aircraft to be used on anti-pollution patrols is one of a number being provided and operated by a firm which has been contracted to undertake a varied package of aerial counter-pollution work, including patrolling and dispersant spraying. The choice of contractor was made, after full competitive tendering, on the basis of competence, ability to meet a performance specification, and the cost of the total service. No stipulation was made of the make of aircraft to be provided except insofar as they should be capable of meeting the specified performance criteria. The company awarded the contract is British and of the eight aircraft committed to the overall contract five are of British manufacture.

Mersey Tunnels

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his policy with regard to the capitalisation of the interest on the debt on the Mersey tunnels.

Mr. David Mitchell: As my right hon. Friend announced in reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Leeds, North-East (Mr. Kirkhope) on 18 December 1987, he has decided to extend the current power to capitalise interest charges to 30 September 1988 and this was notified to the Merseyside passenger transport authority. My right hon. Friend is awaiting information from the PTA on long-term projections of revenue and expenditure with a view to discussing with them ways of dealing with the problem of accumulated debt.

British Rail

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he next expects to meet the chairman of British Rail to discuss British Rail's policy on sales of its land; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: I have no immediate plans to do so. Our policy is for the railways board to dispose of all its surplus land and property as rapidly as possible at a proper commercial price. I discussed progress with the chairman of the British Rail Property Board in December.

PSV Drivers

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, for the last five years for which figures are available, he will give the number of public service vehicle drivers taken ill on duty, whether or not an accident resulted.

Mr. David Mitchell: This information is not available.

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he will seek to provide medical examination of public service vehicle drivers every two years after the age of 50 years, and yearly beyond the age of 60 years; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: No. We have no reason to believe the present arrangements are not effective in identifying drivers whose medical condition makes them unfit to hold a licence. I shall be glad to hear from the hon. Member if he has evidence to the contrary.

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the regulations which govern the form and content of the training course and examination which precede the issue of a public service vehicle licence.

Mr. David Mitchell: The requirements of the public service vehicle driving test are set out in the Public Service Vehicles (Drivers' Licences) Regulations 1985. The form and content of training courses are not prescribed in regulations.

Public Service Vehicles (Inspections)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give the numbers of public service vehicle examinations conducted under the auspices of a bus or coach operating company, as opposed to one of his Department's inspectors, in the last year for which figures are available.

Mr. David Mitchell: All public service vehicle annual test examinations are conducted by the Department's vehicle examiners. In 1986-87, 20,684 examinations (70 per cent.) were done at operators' premises, 47,692 (30 per cent.) at the Department's heavy goods vehicle test stations.

Long-distance Buses (Seat Strength)

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the progress of international consultations on seat strengths for long-distance buses.

Mr. David Mitchell: International discussions in the Economic Commission for Europe on a standard for the strength of coach seats were successfully concluded last year.

As soon as the United Nations secretariat publishes an ECE regulation incorporating the standard we will consult interested parties on a national regulation to make it mandatory for new British-registered coaches.

Channel Tunnel Workings (Waste Disposal)

Mr. Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many drums of soil contaminated by polychlorinated biphenyl from the Channel tunnel workings in Kent have been stored by his Department at the Royal Army Ordnance Corps depot at Moreton-on-Lugg; where these drums will be removed for incineration; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: A total of 2,990 drums of soil contaminated by polychlorinated biphenyls are currently stored at the RAOC depot, Moreton-on-Lugg, Herefordshire. The material is being analysed to determine whether any of it is suitable for landfill at a licensed waste disposal site. Soil which is contaminated above the maximum level which is acceptable for landfill will be destroyed by high temperature incineration. The destruction contract, which has been let to Rechem International Ltd. of Pontypool, requires the incineration programme to be completed by 15 January 1989.

Motorway Traffic

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimates have been made of the likely growth in motorway traffic in the next 10 years; and what percentage of motorways it is estimated will have to carry more traffic than their design capacity in 1988.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The national road traffic forecasts, published in 1984, provide a range for total traffic growth nationally. They do not distinguish between traffic on motorways and that using other roads. Since the forecasts were produced, actual traffic growth has been at the upper end of the forecast range. If it continues in that way some sections of motorway will become congested. In our regular reviews of the national road programme we assess what additional capacity is needed to cater for future growth. The White Paper published last April added 12 motorway widening and improvement schemes to the programme.

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which sections of the M25 already carry a greater volume of traffic than their design capacity; what forecasts have been made of future traffic flows on the M25; and when he expects to make a decision on the proposal by private developers to augment the capacity of the M25.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Traffic flows on some sections of the M25 are very heavy and congestion occurs. Last year's roads White Paper announced a review of the whole of the M25 and details are to be announced shortly. This will assess future traffic levels, identify potential problem areas, and suggestion solutions. Costains recently published in outline a scheme for a second tier on the M25. We have not yet received firm proposals.

War Risks Insurance

Mr. Forth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what agreements he proposes to enter into with British war risks insurance associations.

Mr. Channon: I have today entered into separate agreements with 10 British mutual war risks insurance associations under the Marine and Aviation Insurance (War Risks) Act 1952, to provide reinsurance against war risks to shipping. They replace agreements entered into in 1954 and 1959, and provide similar cover for the reinsurance of British-owned ships against war risks arising from hostilities involving the United Kingdom.

They include, however, an important new provision that ships on foreign registers may be covered when I give my consent. This will allow the benefits of government reinsurance for war risks to shipping to be extended to shipping beneficially owned by British interests and registered in foreign states. The new agreements are in line with the new rules that the associations have adopted this year; the rules and the agreements both reflecting the changes that have in recent years taken place in the marine insurance market. They are, though, more closely integrated with the rules and considerably simpler than those they replace.

M20

Mr. Speed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he now expects to place the main contract for the building of the M20 Holfingbourne to Ashford motorway.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: Subject to the satisfactory completion of the remaining statutory procedures, we plan to let two contracts in the summer and autumn this year, for completion at about the same time in late 1990.

Arundel Bypass

Mr. Michael Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations he has received since 1 October 1987 regarding commencement of work on the Crossbush section of the A27 Arundel bypass; and what responses he has made to these representations other than interim postcard acknowledgements.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I have received representations from my hon. Friend, the chairman of the Lyminster parish council and the local district councillor.

I wrote to my hon. Friend in December to explain that the case for building the Crossbush section of the bypass in advance was still being examined. I have written to the chairman of the parish council, with a copy to my hon. Friend, to say that I will visit Crossbush during my visit to West Sussex on 2 March. We will make an announcement on the representations as soon as possible.

London Regional Passengers Committee

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many members of the London regional passengers committee he has appointed; and if he will list their names and the organisations they represent.

Mr. Butcher: I have been asked to reply.

Membership of the London regional passenger committee currently stands at 28 and their names are as follows:

Dr. E. C. Midwinter (Chairman)
Mr. S. J. Beavan
Mr. S. Bradshaw
Mrs. B. E. Carroll-Brown
Mr. R. J. Caton
Mrs. D. Chaney
Mrs. H. M. Fogg
Mr. R. P. Govindia
Miss J. Harvey
Mr. C. S. Heaps
Mr. M. J. Kilker
Miss. F. C. Lawson
Mr. L. A. Mack
Mrs. D. Manley
Mrs. S. C. May
Mrs. J. Phillips
Mrs. F. M. P. Rea
Mr. M. J. Seddon
Mr. D. J. H. Senior OBE
Mr. G. P. Theobald
Mrs. J. Williams
Ms. M. Winterbotham
Mrs. K. Wood

Membership of the committee is drawn from a wide range of bodies and organisations, but members are appointed as individuals and not to represent the interests of the body which nominated them.

Written Answers to Questions

Friday 19 February 1988

WALES

Education Expenditure

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what, in constant prices, was the level of spending per pupil in Wales in (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools in 1978-79 and in the latest year for which figures are available.

Mr. Wyn Roberts: The information is as follows:

Net recurrent institutional costs[1] at 1986-87 prices[2]

	Pounds per pupil
	Primary	Secondary
1978-79	749	1,036
1986-87[3]	909	1,320

[1] Net recurrent institutional costs exclude expenditure on school meals and milk, school transport and pupil support.
[2] Figures have been expressed at 1986-87 prices, using the GDP deflator.
[3] Provisional.

Hospital Charges

Mr. Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what sums were collected by each of the Welsh area health authorities from non-United Kingdom residents for hospital charges in 1985-86 and 1986-87; and what is the estimated net sum after deduction of costs of administration.

Mr. Grist: The income collected from charges to overseas visitors by each district health authority in Wales in the past two years was as follows:

£ Thousand

District Health Authority	1985-86	1986-87
Clwyd	5·2	−2·9
East Dyfed	6·6	2·0
Gwent	19·7	9·3
Gwynedd	12·0	2·4
Mid Glamorgan	0·0	0·0
Pembrokeshire	3·8	0·2
Powys	0·4	0·0
South Glamorgan	17·6	−0·4
West Glamorgan	−0·1	0·1
Wales	65·2	10·6

Source: Health Authorities' Annual Accounts.
Notes:
1. Figures may not add up due to roundings.
2. Figures relate to charges authorised by regulations made under Section 121 of the National Health Service Act 1977 (which provides for the recovery of charges in respect of services provided to persons not ordinarily resident in Great Britain.

The structure of the health authorities' annual accounts does not allow the associated administration costs to be estimated.

Welsh Grand Committee

Mr. Ray Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make it his policy to invite all the members of the Welsh Grand Committee to attend the press conferences organised by himself or his officials and held during the sittings of the Grand Committee on the subject being discussed by the Grand Committee.

Mr. Peter Walker: I will continue to have the courtesy to speak to any person who wishes to question me on a speech I have made, as I am sure the hon. Gentleman would if he had ever been asked.

TRANSPORT

Airports (Noise)

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, in view of his Department's undertaking to bring about a progressive improvement in noise climate around airports, he will list the exceptions granted to foreign airlines, enabling them to continue to operate non-noise certificated subsonic jet aircraft to and from United Kingdom airports after the date from which such aircraft were banned, as detailed in the 1985 airports White Paper; and if he will give his reasons for doing so.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The exemptions are as listed in the table. Foreign-registered non noise-certificated subsonic jet aeroplanes have been banned from the United Kingdom 1 January under the Air Navigation (Noise Certification) Order 1987. Exemptions under article 16 of the order are made by the Civil Aviation Authority in consultation with my right hon. Friend. All exemptions are limited to day time operations. So far, 44 applications for exemption have been turned down.

Under the terms of EC directives 80/51 and 83/206 exemptions have been granted by the CAA where a non noise-certificated aeroplane is to be replaced by one meeting the stringent Chapter 3 ICAO noise certification standard. (The period of exemption is dependent on the delivery date of chapter 3 replacement aeroplanes. The exemption for each aeroplane expires on 31 December 1988 or when the replacement aeroplane is delivered, whichever is the sooner).

Country	Airline	Aircraft type	Period of exemption
Cyprus	Cyprus Airways	1 Boeing 707	31 December 1988
Portugal	TAP	1 Boeing 707	31 December 1988
Sudan	Sudan Airways	3 Boeing 707s	31 March 1988 (2 flights)
Belgium	Trans European Airways	1 Boeing 707	31 December 1988
Netherlands	KLM	11 McDonnell Douglas DC9s	31 December 1988
France	Minerve	1 Caravelle	6 February 1988

Exemptions have been granted in exceptional circumstances beyond the airlines' immediate control. Such circumstances include the late delivery of hush-kits or hush-kit parts, the unavailability of a compliant aeroplane for technical reasons and cases where passengers would otherwise suffer serious hardships. In additions two flights by the Saudi royal flight and one flight by the royal Brunei executive were exempted for diplomatic reasons in January and early February.

Country	Airline	Aircraft type	Period	Reason
Lebanon	Middle East Airlines	2 Boeing 707s	11 January 1988 (4 flights)	Hush-kit delays
Nigeria	Flash Airlines	1 McDonnell Douglas DC8	31 January 1988 (5 flights)	Hush-kit delays
Uganda	Uganda Airlines	1 Boeing 707	1 January 1988 (1 flight)	Flight delay. Hardship to passengers
Saudi Arabia	Prince Talol	1 BAe 1-11 (1 flight)	3 January 1988	Picking up hush-kit parts, en route for hush-kit fitment
Zimbabwe	Air Zimbabwe	5 Boeing 707s	3 to 7 February 1 to 10 June 1 to 20 June	Hush-kits being fitted pending delivery of Chapter 3 aircraft
Lebanon	Middle East	1 Boeing 707	26-27 January (1 flight)	Noise compliant aircraft grounded due to technical problems
Kenya	Kenya Airways	1 Boeing 707	27-28 January (1 flight)	Noise compliant aeroplane grounded due to engine damage
Switzerland	Jet Aviation Business Jets	1 BAe 1-11	29 January 1988-31 March 1988 (9 flights)	Hush-kit delays
Saudi Arabia	Aviation Management Consortium	1 BAe 1-11	11 February 1988-30 June 1988	Hush-kit delays
Lebanon	Middle East Airlines	1 Boeing 707	23-26 January (2 flights)	En route hush-kitting
Zambia	Zambia Airways	1 Boeing 707	29 February-5 March (2 flights)	Compliant aeroplane being maintained
Gambia	Gamair	1 McDonnell Douglas	12 February-25 March (6 flights)	Hush-kits
Lebanon	Middle East Airlines	1 Boeing 720	1 February 1988	Compliant aeroplane unavailable due to technical problems

Exemptions have been granted for flights to and from the United Kingdom specifically for maintenance purposes. Such exemptions stipulate that the aeroplane is flown empty, in both directions, to reduce its environmental impact to a minimum. A total of 19 maintenance flights have been exempted involving 13 airlines and 15 aircraft—eight B707, five BAel-11 and two DC8.

Transport Studies

Mr. Cartwright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will list all transport studies relating to London and the south-east (a) proposed, (b) under way or (c) completed within the last year by or on behalf of his Department, British Rail and London Regional Transport; and if he will give details of each inquiry of the estimated time scale, the estimated cost and the names of any consultant firms involved;

(2) if the will list all transport studies relating to London and the south-east (a) proposed, (b) under way or (c) completed within the last year by or on behalf of his Department or the London Docklands Development Corporation; and if he will give details for each inquiry of the estimated time scale, the estimated cost and the names of any consultant firms involved.

Mr. David Mitchell: It would not be practicable to list the many studies relating to transport in London and the south-east in which my Department is involved by reason of its day-to-day responsibilities. Studies conducted by LDDC, BR and LRT are matters for the managements of those organisations.

A6 Disley High Lane Bypass

Mr. Tom Arnold: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the representations which he had received about the line of route of the proposed A6 Disley high lane bypass before he recommended his preferred choice.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: We consulted local councils and public bodies before announcing the preferred route choice. There was general support for a bypass and most authorities supported the proposed option.

M62-M1 Link

Mr. Waller: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to announce the outcome of the study he has commissioned on a possible new link between the M62 in the area of junction 25 and the M1 in the area of junction 40.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: The feasibility study into a possible trunk road link between junction 38 or 39 on the M1 and the M62 in west Yorkshire is now being examined. This scheme will be considered for inclusion in the national trunk road programme at the next major review.

Passenger Transport Authorities (Financing)

Mr. Alfred Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many replies his Department has received to its consultation paper on financing passenger transport authorities; how many of the replies support his Department's proposals; if he will now reconsider the proposals in the light of the comments received; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. David Mitchell: As of 18 February 1988, my Department had received 20 responses to the consultation paper, containing a number of comments on the proposal. I will of course take all these comments into account in coming to a decision on the proposal.

Tyre Treads (EC Directive)

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he now intends to introduce legislation to bring into effect the European Community directive on the introduction of a minimum tread depth regulation of 1·6 mm over the entire tread surface of tyres.

Mr. Peter Bottomley: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Cambridgeshire, South-West (Sir A. Grant) on 15 January Official Report, columns 457-8.

London Buses (Colour)

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he has any proposals to introduce legislation for the control of the colour of London buses.

Mr. David Mitchell: No.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fair Employment Commission

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will describe the likely staffing procedure for the proposed Fair Employment Commission; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Viggers: Final decisions have not yet been taken on new measures to promote equality of opportunity in employment. My right hon. Friend intends to make an announcement shortly on the Government's proposals.

Fishing

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been employed in the fishing industry in the ports of Ardglass and Kilkeel in each of the last 10 years.

Mr. Viggers: The information is as follows:

	Full-time	Part-time	Total
Ardglass
1978	n/a	n/a	n/a
1979	162	58	220
1980	n/a	n/a	n/a
1981	205	61	266
1982	219	58	277
1983	215	57	272
1984	224	49	273
1985	257	60	317
1986	265	58	323
1987	259	54	313
Kilkeel
1978	n/a	n/a	n/a
1979	587	226	813
1980	n/a	n/a	n/a
1981	656	168	824
1982	729	220	949
1983	932	216	1,148
1984	928	256	1,184
1985	855	232	1,087
1986	848	220	1,068
1987	996	210	1,206

No records are held for 1978 or 1980 as their compilation did not become a regular annual exercise until 1981.

Electricity (Installations)

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what rate of interest Northern Ireland Electricity charges on extended credit for installation costs.

Mr. Viggers: The current rate of interest is 34 per cent. APR: the facility is available only to domestic consumers.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of electricity installation charges are on average attributable to (a) labour, (b) material and (c) other costs.

Mr. Viggers: This information is not readily available and could only be provided by Northern Ireland Electricity at a disproportionate cost. The proportions sought vary widely depending on the nature of the installation and an average figure would therefore have little meaning.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will give the basis on which charges for electricity installation are made by Northern Ireland Electricity.

Mr. Viggers: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply I gave to the hon. Gentleman, the Member for Foyle (Mr. Hume) on 16 February 1988 at column 595.

PRIME MINISTER

Kurt Waldheim

Mr. Rhodes James: To ask the Prime Minister whether she will instruct Her Majesty's ambassador to the United States to seek access to any American copies of records relating to the alleged interrogation of British service men in the Balkans by Lieutenant Kurt Waldheim: with a view to making a statement on them to the House.

The Prime Minister: We now have a copy of the relevant file from the United States authorities, and are examining it.

Mr. Rhodes James: To ask the Prime Minister whether, in the course of the Government's review of the fate of the captured British service men in the Balkans, allegedly interrogated by the then Leiutenant Kurt Waldheim, she or her representatives will meet Professor Gerald Fleming, the British member of the historian's commission established by the Austrian Government.

The Prime Minister: Arrangements are in hand for Government research staff to meet Professor Fleming.

Mr. Rhodes James: To ask the Prime Minister whether she will institute an inquiry into the reasons for the destruction in 1978 of British Foreign and Commonwealth Office files relating to the alleged interrogation of British service men in the Balkans by the then Lieutenant Kurt Waldheim.

The Prime Minister: No. The files were destroyed in accordance with the guidelines for the preservation and destruction of public records.

Mr. Rhodes James: To ask the Prime Minister whether she will instigate inquiries into the information available to Her Majesty's Government in 1971 concerning the war record of President Kurt Waldheim prior to the decision to support his candidature for Secretary General of the United Nations; and if she will make a statement.

The Prime Minister: No. It has been the practice of successive Governments not to reveal how they voted in secret ballots in the United Nations, or why they voted as they did. I am informed that at the time of Dr. Waldheim's election as United Nations Secretary-General no doubts were raised about his wartime record.

Forestry Commission

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Prime Minister if she will make a statement on the present division of ministerial responsibility for the Forestry Commission as between the Scottish Office and the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food.

The Prime Minister: The Secretary of State for Scotland and the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food exercise their responsibilities for the Forestry Commission's territorial activities in relation to Scotland and England respectively. General policy and other matters affecting Great Britain as a whole are dealt with by the two Ministers and the Secretary of State for Wales, acting jointly, with the Secretary of State for Scotland taking the lead.

"Security and Counter Intelligence"

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Prime Minister when she intends to announce her decision on the approval for publication of the book "Security and Counter Intelligence," by Mr. Anthony Simkins.

The Prime Minister: No decision has made been with regard to publication of "Security and Counter Intelligence."

ENVIRONMENT

Water Authorities

Mr. Boyes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish a table in the Official Report showing the external financing limits for each water authority for each year from 1978-79 to the latest available date; and, if he will also give the same information in real terms using 100 as a base for 1978-79.

Mrs. Roe: The information requested by the hon. Member is contained in the table.

External finance limits for water authorities: 1979-80 to 1988-89

	1979-80	1980-81	1981-82	1982-83	1983-84	1984-85	1985-86	1986-87	1987-88	1988-89
Northumbrian
Cash	33·9	41·0	48·5	35·8	20·0	20·0	22·0	18·2	2·0	3·0
Real	100·0	104·0	110·4	76·0	40·6	38·6	40·1	32·2	3·4	4·8
North-West
Cash	52·6	72·0	86·9	84·0	79·0	87·0	84·5	58·0	49·4	44·0
Real	100·0	117·7	127·5	114·9	103·3	108·3	99·3	66·1	53·8	45·9
Severn-Trent
Cash	55·3	49·4	67·3	61·9	66·3	40·0	55·2	7·9	−7·5	−11·5
Real	100·0	76·8	93·9	80·6	82·5	47·4	61·7	8·6	−7·8	−27·8
Yorkshire
Cash	34·7	40·0	42·5	53·4	30·0	34·0	31·0	32·8	20·0	15·0
Real	100·0	99·1	94·5	110·8	59·5	64·2	55·2	56·6	33·0	23·7
Anglian
Cash	69·5	70·0	74·9	87·4	85·0	60·0	46·0	45·7	34·0	23·5
Real	100·0	86·6	83·2	90·5	84·1	56·5	40·9	39·4	28·1	18·6
Thames
Cash	18·1	22·0	6·0	−3·0	−10·5	−34·0	−60·0	−82·0	−95·0	−100·0
Real	100·0	104·5	25·6	−11·9	−39·9	−123·0	−205·0	−271·5	−300·9	−303·1
Southern
Cash	37·4	45·0	52·0	40·7	33·5	23·0	11·0	2·0	−5·0	−13·5
Real	100·0	103·4	107·3	78·3	61·6	40·3	18·2	3·2	−7·7	−19·8
Wessex
Cash	13·8	13·3	16·0	21·7	27·3	16·0	21·0	26·8	23·0	19·5
Real	100·0	82·9	89·5	113·2	136·1	75·9	94·1	116·4	95·6	77·5
South-West
Cash	9·4	11·0	13·0	13·8	12·5	11·0	4·9	4·7	0·7	2·0
Real	100·0	100·6	106·8	105·7	91·5	76·6	32·2	30·0	4·3	5·8
Wales
Cash	29·3	24·0	29·0	25·2	23·0	22·6	21·0	17·3	13·3	9·1
Real	100·0	60·9	66·0	53·5	46·7	43·7	38·3	30·6	22·5	14·7

Notes:

1. Cash figures are in £ million.
2. Real figures are in index form: 1979-80 = 100·0
3. The inflation index used is RPI.
4. EFLs were introduced for most authorities in 1979-80.

Woolwich Polytechnic Lower School

Mr. Cartwright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he expects to reach a decision on any request from the Inner London education authority for assistance towards the cost of rebuilding the boundary wall at the Woolwich polytechnic lower school under the inner urban programme for 1988-89.

Mr. Trippier: This project was not included in the inner area programme for 1988-89 submitted by the London borough of Greenwich.

Rural Areas (Assistance)

Mr. Amos: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish figures on assistance through the Development Commission or its equivalents for rural areas on a per capita basis for (a) England, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales.

Mrs. Roe: I regret that it is not possible to do this, because accurate information for England, Scotland and Wales is not available on a comparable basis.

Nuclear Waste Management

Dr. Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what progress has been made in each of the six tasks and three projects being developed in nuclear waste management under the European Council decision of 12 March 1985, programme number 85 199 Euratom.

Mrs. Roe: Work on the six tasks has been proceeding and will continue until the end of the current research programme in 1989. Projects 1 and 2 are also proceeding, but no progress has been made in project 3. As a result the programme for tasks 1-6 is being extended slightly in 1988 and 1989.

Metropolitan Residuary Bodies

Mr. Patnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he will make a statement on metropolitan residuary body appointments.

Mr. Chope: The following have been reappointed to the metropolitan residuary bodies for the period 1 April 1988 to 31 March 1990 or until dissolution of the body, whichever is sooner:

Greater Manchester Residuary Body
Chairman: J. P. B. Hadfield, JP, DL
Members: K. J. Alford, OBE
Councillor A. B. Coyle, JP
B. Scholes, OBE, DL
C. H. Singleton, OBE
R. M. Willan

Merseyside Residuary Body
Chairman: N. G. Brodrick
Members: P. D. Carter, CBE
J. D. M. Forbes
W. C. W. Hughes
L. O. Jones
Councillor J. R. Lloyd
G. B. Marsh

South Yorkshire Residuary Body
Chairman: B. E. Cotton, CBE
Members: Councillor R. Rigby
M. C. Simpson
The Hon. Neil Turner
P. I. Wolf

Tyne and Wear Residuary Body
Chairman: A. S. Robertson
Members: K. Douglas
Councillor V. Fitzpatrick, JP
W. H. Foakes
R. A. S. Sisterson
R. C. Spoor

West Midlands Residuary Body
Chairman: Dr. M. D. Skillicorn
Members: Councillor J. Adams, OBE
G. N. Jackson, CBE
J. P. Meering
W. S. Page, CBE
K. Williams

West Yorkshire Residuary Body
Chairman: T. McDonald, OBE
Members: K. J. Bridge
D. Hanson
F. A. Mallet, CBE
Councillor G. E. Mudie
R. W. Suddards, CBE

These reappointments reflect my right hon. Friend's satisfaction with the impressive progress made so far by the residuary bodies and his confidence in members' ability to maintain the momentum towards the bodies' eventual wind up.

The financial benefits resulting from the removal of an unnecessary tier of local government are now being realised. Within three years of abolition of the Greater London council and the metropolitan county councils successor boroughs and districts can expect to receive from the residuary bodies some £240 million in revenue balances that can be directly applied to reduce the rates, and approximately £305 million in capital receipts from property that can be used to enhance capital programmes. Taken together with the estimated annual long-term savings of £100 million resulting from staff savings, this brings direct benefits to the ratepayers of London and the metropolitan areas.

Rate Support Grant

Mr. David Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he will make a statement about the status of the Rate Support Grant Supplementary Report (England) (No. 4) 1983-84.

Mr. Ridley: I laid the fourth supplementary report for 1983-84 before the House on 5 February (HC 252). It emerged, however, that a number of figures in appendix I to annex IV had been wrongly printed. I therefore withdrew the report on 15 February, and I have today laid before the House a new report.

I have taken the opportunity to incorporate a revised rateable value for block grant purposes for one rating authority, and as a result the national grant-related poundage (GRP) for spending at GRE has increased by 0·0004p. GRPs at GRE for all classes of authority have been adjusted accordingly and the abatement multipliers of four authorities have been slightly altered as a consequence. Otherwise all the determinations remain as they were in the report which was withdrawn.

The supplementary report requires the approval of the House of Commons. Subject to that, I plan to make the revisions to grant payments to reflect this report and two others approved by the House on Wednesday 17 February early in April.

Copies of the report and tables showing revised grant entitlements are being sent to local authority associations and to each authority.

Asbestos (Housing Estates)

Ms. Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will establish special funds for councils undertaking removal of asbestos from housing estates where the health of tenants is threatened; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Waldegrave: No. Local authorities have the opportunity to draw any special needs to the attention of the Department in their annual housing investment programme submissions and meetings. Funds are not made available specifically for asbestos removal programmes, but rate support grant is paid in support of local authorities revenue expenditure generally, including expenditure on asbestos. It is for local authorities themselves to determine their own priorities for expenditure within the resources available.

DEFENCE

Military Equipment (United States Procurement)

Mr. Dykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will meet the United States Secretary of Defence to discuss the scope for an increase in United States procurement of British military equipment, including within the NATO procurement framework; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: No. My right hon. Friend already has frequent discussions with the United States Secretary of Defence on a wide range of issues including procurement.

Nuclear Weapons

Ms. Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether it is planned that a nuclear warhead will be developed for the multiple launch rocket system.

Mr. Sainsbury: I understand that this is an option being considered by the United States Government.

Bullying

Mr. John M. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what response he has received following his announcement of measures to counter bullying in the Army.

Mr. Freeman: The measures I announced on 26 January to combat bullying in the Army have been well received in the Army and have been welcomed by Members of this House. The media and public response has also recognised the value of these measures.

Irish Republic (Rescues)

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what charges are made to the Government of the Irish Republic for rescues effected (a) of Irish citizens and (b) in Irish waters by British military search and rescue units; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Freeman: Charges for civil search and rescue incidents are the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport. The Ministry of Defence recovers costs from the Department of Transport for the search and rescue services which it provides, but does not make charges to other Governments or individuals.

Armilla Patrol

Mr. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he intends to reply to the letter of the hon. Member for Hamilton dated 29 December 1987, regarding policy on the Armilla patrol, addressed to the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and passed on to him on 11 January.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I have written to the hon. Member.

Clyde Nuclear Emergency Monitoring Team

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what purpose the Clyde nuclear emergency monitoring team was called out on 26 January; and for what period of time personnel from the team were deployed at the scene of the incident.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I refer the hon. Member to my replies to the hon. Member for Dumbarton (Mr. McFall) on 18 February at columns 739-40.

HMS Resolution

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the cause of the emergency on board HMS Resolution on 26 January; and what steps have been taken to prevent a repetition of this type of incident.

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he will make a statement about the incident affecting the cooling system of the nuclear reactor of the submarine HMS Resolution on 26 January.

Mr. Ian Stewart: I refer the hon. Members to my reply to the hon. Member for Carrick, Cumnock and Doon Valley (Mr. Foulkes) on 18 February at column 738.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) military personnel and (b) civilian employees were exposed to levels of radioactivity greater than the permitted dose as a result of the emergency on board HMS Resolution on 26 January; and how many of these were suspended from duty as a result.

Mr. Ian Stewart: None.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any release of radioactivity occurred (a) within the vessel, (b) into the atmosphere, and (c) into the sea as a result of the incident on board HMS Resolution on 26 January.

Mr. Ian Stewart: No.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what notification was given to (a) the local liaison committee, (b) the civil police and (c) the civil fire service concerning the incident on board HMS Resolution on 26 January.

Mr. Ian Stewart: The electrical malfunction which occurred on board HMS Resolution on 26 January posed no danger to the submarine's reactor, its crew or the public. There was therefore no occasion to notify the local liaison committee or emergency services under the terms of the Clyde area public safety scheme.

Soldiers and Horses (Molestation)

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many cases have been reported of the molestation of soldiers and horses on duty outside palaces and other public buildings; what steps he is taking to prevent this; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Freeman: There have been no complaints recorded of cases of molestation of soldiers or horses whilst on duty outside palaces or public buildings. If such an occurrence were to take place, adequate arrangements exist to enable the sentry to summon assistance.

Nuclear Tests

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he takes to monitor the research activities and findings of individuals looking into the consequence of the nuclear tests conducted on Christmas island in the 1950s; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 28 January to a question from my hon. Friend the Member for Salisbury (Mr. Key) at column 309 concerning the study carried out by the National Radiological Protection Board into the mortality and cancer incidence in UK participants in the British nuclear test programme. The study was carried out by the National Radiological Protection Board under contract from the Ministry of Defence. The conduct and form of the study was, however, entirely a matter for the NRPB, with the advice of its medical and epidemiological consultants.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in how many cases claims for compensation or additional pension rights have been made in connection with the 1950s, nuclear tests; and in how many cases payments have been made.

Mr. Sainsbury: Full records are not available but any such claims from members of the armed forces would be barred by section 10 of the Crown Proceedings Act 1947. A small number of claims have been received from civilians who participated in the tests, but no payments have been made. Claims for war pensions are a matter for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Social Services.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what diseases the National Radiological Protection Board considered in the course of preparation of its report on nuclear test veterans; what criteria it used in deciding which diseases or conditions to exclude; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: The responsibility for deciding which diseases would be considered in the course of the National Radiological Protection Board study was entirely a matter for the National Radiological Protection Board, with the advice of its medical and epidemiological consultants.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many questionnaires on the medical effects of nuclear tests were sent in 1956 to ex-service men; how those ex-service men to whom it was sent were selected; how many returned a completed questionnaire; what representations he had received from ex-service men present at nuclear tests who did not receive a questionnaire; what response he has made; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury: Questionnaires on the medical effects of nuclear tests were not sent to service men or ex-service men, in 1956 or at any other time.

Mine Countermeasure Vessels

Mr. Patrick Thompson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the United Kingdom's mine countermeasure vessels capability in the Gulf area.

Mr. Ian Stewart: We have been reviewing the size of our MCMV force in the Gulf. In the light of our experience to date in operations to clear mine danger areas both in the Gulf of Oman and off Qatar, we have concluded that in the present circumstances the mine clearance task can be met satisfactorily by retaining three MCMVs and associated afloat support in the Gulf area to operate in support of the Armilla patrol. To this end Her Majesty's ships Dulverton, Middleton and Atherstone are in the course of taking over the mine counter-measures task in the Gulf hitherto fulfilled by Her Majesty's ships Hurworth, Bicester, Brocklesby and Brecon. The support vessel HMS Abdiel is also returning to the United Kingdom, and is due to be paid off in about six months' time. HMS Abdiel's support role in the Gulf is now being carried out by HMS Herald.

Equipment

Sir Ian Gilmour: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what degree of lateral stability was called for in the DROPS statement of requirement for the medium mobility vehicle; and if he will make a statement;

(2) what lateral stability was achieved by the validation model DROPS medium mobility trucks on their tilt test at the Royal Armaments Research and Development Establishment; and if he will make a statement;

(3) to what tests DROPS vehicles were submitted subsequent to tilt tests, with the test weights turned upside down; what effect this had on the centre of gravity; what stability was achieved; and if he will make a statement;

(4) what stability is expected once the DROPS vehicle has been fitted with small tyres; and if he will make a statement;

(5) whether the DROPS vehicle, once fitted with small tyres, will comply with the statement requirements in respect of the maximum ground pressure; and if he will make a statement;

(6) what was the stated minimum stability requirement for low mobility, road-use only, vehicles; and if he will make a statement;

(7) why, after the first round of trialling, it was considered desirable to subject DROPS RTE to a second round of full open competition to determine best value for money; why this course of action was considered undesirable in respect of DROPS itself; whether it was considered desirable to submit simplified RTE equipment to a second round of full open competition; and if he will make a statement;

(8) what was the difference between RTE/CLOTS equipment and Simple RTE/Simple CLOTS equipment; and if he will make a statement;

(9) which company was selected in 1983 to provide Simple RTE; which other companies were selected in 1985; and if he will make a statement;

(10) whether RTE (rail transfer equipment) supplied by EKA Ltd., was selected for trials in 1983; and if he will make a statement;

(11) whether (a) the 1982 or (b) the 1986 specification required the rail transfer equipment to operate at different step heights; to what extent this requirement was deemed essential in stating the 1986 requirement; whether any of the equipments tendered in 1986 met this essential requirement; and if he will make a statement;

(12) what have been the changes in operational circumstances that have made rail transfer equipment operation under power cables and at different step heights essential at the time of stating the requirements and dispensable at the time of selecting equipment against those requirements; and if he will make a statement;

(13) which of the requirements of the 1986 rail transfer equipment specification are not met by the ordered equipment; and if he will make a statement;

(14) whether the equipment ordered for rail transfer equipment is an existing commercially available design; and if he will make a statement;

(15) what are the factors that led to the attempt to enhance the mobility of a DROPS vehicle by fitting large wheels; and if he will make a statement;

(16) whether the original DROPS trials equipment achieved medium mobility; whether cross-country mobility is still required; and if he will make a statement;

(17) whether the DROPS medium mobility vehicle is required to be used off-road; whether it was ever intended to have suitable mobility for off-road use; and if he will make a statement;

(18) in precisely what respects the performance requirements called for in respect of the current procurement of 209 DROPS trailers differ from the performance requirements called for in respect of the 295 trailers ordered pursuant to the original DROPS 1982 statement of requirement; where in the 1982 statement of requirement these performance requirements were stated; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Sainsbury [holding answer 16 February 1988]: I will write to my right hon. Friend shortly.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Devon and Cornwall Investment Bureau

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many industrial companies new to Devon and Cornwall have commenced investment projects as a result of the work of the Devon and Cornwall Investment Bureau in the years 1985-86 and 1986-87; and what is the estimated figure for 1987-88.

Mr. Atkins: My Department provides grant-aid to the Devon and Cornwall Development Bureau (DCDB) to promote the region as a location for investment by overseas companies. I am advised that in the years specified, the number of start-ups by overseas companies new to Devon and Cornwall with which the DCDB has been actively involved is as follows:

	Number
1985-86	1
1986-87	4
1987-88	[1]6

[1] Estimate.

These projects are expected to create around 1,000 new jobs.

In addition, the DCDB assists overseas companies with their plans to expand in Devon and Cornwall, and can claim to have been actively involved with 11 such successful projects over the period in question. These projects are expected to create a further 600 new jobs.

My Department's contribution to the DCDB does not cover work to encourage United Kingdom companies to relocate within Devon and Cornwall, and I have no information on the level of this activity.

Structural Funds

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) whether he will publish in the Official Report a table showing the United Kingdom share of the structural funds in the past three years, the forecast for this year and the forecast under the new arrangements; and if he will give the figures in percentages at European currency unit and sterling;

(2) pursuant to the statement on the meeting of the European Council, Official Report, 15 February, columns 705-17, whether he will publish in the Official Report a table showing the United Kingdom's share of the structural funds in the past three years, the forecast outturn for 1987-88 and the forecast under the new arrangements; and if he will give the figures both as percentages and in European currency unit and £ sterling.

Mr. Alan Clark: The figures for the United Kingdom share of the structural funds for the past three years are given in the table. The drop in our percentage shares between 1985 and 1986 followed the accession of Spain and Portugal to the European Community.

It is not possible to forecast our share of the funds for this or future years. However, as the Prime Minister said in her statement on the outcome of the European Council at Brussels, we hope to increase our payment receipts from the funds to about £1,000 million in 1992.

United Kingdom share of the commitments of the structural funds

	1985	1986	[1]1987
Mecu	1,223	1,014	1,244
£ Million	722	714	[2]896
per cent.	22·7	15·6	16·7

[1] Estimate.
[2] Equivalent to about £750 million in payments.

Securities Association

Mr. Richard Page: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if a decision has been reached on whether to give leave for the recognition under the Financial Services Act of the Securities Association.

Mr. Maude: In accordance with the procedures laid down in the Financial Services Act, the Director General of Fair Trading has submitted to my right hon. and noble Friend a report on the rules and guidance submitted by TSA to the SIB. Having considered the Director General's report, my right hon. and noble Friend has concluded that on the basis of the information presently available to him he does not consider TSA's rules and guidance have, or are intended or are likely to have, to any significant extent, the effect of restricting, distorting or preventing competition. He has, therefore, today given his leave to the SIB for the recognition of TSA.

Patent Office

Mr. Page: I ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether his plans have advanced for the relocation of the Patent Office.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: As I told the House on 10 December 1987 Official Report, column 239, I have been examining the possibility of relocating the Patent Office to Cardiff or Newport. In consultation with my colleagues, the Secretaries of State for Wales and for the Environment I have decided that Newport should be the preferred location, on a site already occupied there by the business statistics office, which is a division of my Department. The trade marks branch of the Patent Office opened an examining group on the Newport site on 3 February, as the first phase of the relocation. The move of the rest of the office, except for a modest public office which will remain in London, will take about three years and I estimate that at least 500 jobs will be created locally.

Insolvency Service

Mr. Page: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether he intends that any staff in the insolvency service of his Department who are currently based in London will be relocated elsewhere; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: I have decided that 148 London-based insolvency service staff will be relocated in Birmingham in 1989. The decision to relocate these staff follows a thorough review of my Department's scope for moving staff to locations other than London, where the cost of accommodation is very high. The type of work carried out by the staff concerned does not require their location in any particular area. The proposed move will improve the cost-effectiveness of my Department in our use of public funds for staff accommodation.

I also believe that moving these important Civil Service posts to Birmingham will make a worthwhile contribution to the strong revival of the local economy in the west midlands that is now under way. The insolvency service already has a considerable presence in Birmingham in terms of staff numbers, including one of its major official receiver's offices.

EDUCATION AND SCIENCE

Horniman Museum

Mr. Cartwright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what plans he has for the continued operation of the Horniman museum after the abolition of the Inner London education authority.

Mr. Dunn: The Government wish to ensure a secure future for the museum, and are considering what arrangements would best achieve that objective.

University Places

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will publish the number of places offered by each United Kingdom university for each of the past 10 years (a) in total, (b) by degree course subject and (c) by country of origin of student, Scotland, England, Wales, Northern Ireland and others.

Mr. Jackson: The available information for full-time undergraduate new entrants to universities in 1986 is shown in the table. It is taken from "University statistics, 1986-87, volume one (students and staff)", published by the Universities Statistical Record. Information for earlier years is published in previous editions. Figures by subject for 1986 relate to the new subject classification, which is not directly comparable with the classification used prior to 1985. Readily available unpublished information for country of domicile for 1986 entrants is also shown.

Full-time undergraduate new entrants to universities: United Kingdom 1986

	Number
Aston	1,001
Bath	946
Birmingham	2,615
Bradford	1,106
Bristol	2,012
Brunel	671
Cambridge	3,317
City	817
Durham	1,460
East Anglia	1,190
Essex	932
Exeter	1,430
Hull	1,423
Keele	817
Kent	1,37
Lancaster	1,547
Leeds	2,724
Leicester	1,255
Liverpool	2,060
London Business School	—
London	9,583
Loughborough	1,428
Manchester Business School	—
Manchester	2,883
Manchester Institute of Science and Technology	1,108
Newcastle	2,130
Nottingham	1,983
Oxford	3,080
Reading	1,531
Salford	1,083
Sheffield	2,208
Southampton	1,832
Surrey	911
Sussex	1,334
Warwick	1,774
York	1,051
Total England	62,629
Aberystwyth University College	915
Bangor University College	818
Cardiff University College	1,695
St. David's, Lampeter	242
Swansea University College	1,404
University of Wales College of Medicine	76
University of Wales Institute of Science and Technology	672
Total Wales	5,822
Total England and Wales	68,451
Aberdeen	1,491
Dundee	835
Edinburgh	2,505
Glasgow	2,694
Heriot-Watt	1,060
St. Andrews	989
Stirling	899
Strathclyde	1,838
Total Scotland	12,311

	Number
Total Great Britain	80,762
Queen's University Belfast	1,887
University of Ulster	2,760
Total Northern Ireland	4,647
Total United Kingdom	85,409

Full-time undergraduates new entrants to universities in Great Britain, 1986—by subject

	Number
1. Medicine and dentistry
Medicine	4,054
Dentistry	861
Total medicine and dentistry	4,915
2. Studies allied to medicine
Anatomy and physiology	267
Pharmacology	187
Pharmacy	688
Ophthalmics	237
Nursing	369
Other and combined studies allied to medicine	317
Total studies allied to medicine	2,065
3. Biological sciences
Biology	1,688
Botany	129
Zoology	346
Genetics	102
Microbiology	323
Biochemistry	1,129
Psychology	954
Other and combined biological sciences	484
Total biological sciences	5,155
4. Veterinary science, agriculture and related studies
Veterinary science	337
Agriculture	510
Forestry	81
Food science	191
Other and combined agricultural sciences	187
Total veterinary science, agriculture and related studies	1,306
5. Physical sciences
Chemistry	2,289
Physics	2,320
Astronomy	64
Geology	792
Geography	469
Other and combined environmental and physical sciences	579
Total physical sciences	6,513
6. Mathematical sciences
Mathematics	2,463
Statistics	165
Computer studies	1,652
Other and combined mathematical sciences	524
Total mathematical sciences	4,804
7. Engineering and technology
General engineering	922
Civil engineering	1,520
Mechanical engineering	1,988
Aeronautical engineering	461
Electrical engineering	397
Electronic engineering	1,748
Production engineering	263
Chemical engineering	825
Minerals technology	173
Metallurgy	106
Other materials technology	170
Maritime technology	109
Biotechnology	62
Other and combined studies in engineering and technology	2,068
Total engineering and technology	10,812
8. Architecture and related studies
Architecture	552
Building	227
Town and country planning	151
Other related studies including combinations	43
Total architecture and related studies	1,023
9. Social sciences
Economics	2,499
Sociology	707
Social policy and administration	282
Applied social work	116
Anthropology	147
Psychology	583
Geography	1,516
Politics	910
Law	3,869
Other and combined social services	1,429
Total social sciences	12,068
10. Business and financial studies
Business and management studies	1,450
Financial management	234
Accountancy	700
Institutional management	224
Land and property management	216
Other and combined business and financial studies	525
Total business and financial studies	3,349
11. Librarianship and information science
Librarianship	33
Other related studies including combinations	48
Total librarianship and information science	81
12. Languages and related studies
Linguistics	151
English	2,812
American studies	182
Classical studies	401
French	1,037
German	362
Hispanic studies	156
Russian	144
Other European languages	321
Chinese	76
Other Oriental/Asian/African languages	94
Other and combined languages and related studies	2,804
Total languages and related studies	8,540
13. Humanities
History	2,813
History of art	337
Archaeology	263
Philosophy	430

	Number
Theology and religious studies	696
Other and combined humanities	278
Total humanities	4,817
14. Creative arts
Fine art	151
Design studies	135
Music	588
Drama	252
Other and combined creative arts	151
Total creative arts	1,277
15. Education
Teacher training	490
Academic studies in education	302
Other and combined education studies	282
Total education	1,074
16. Multi-disciplinary studies
Combinations of groups 2, 3 and 4	132
Combinations of groups 2-4 with 5 and 6	323
Combinations of groups 5 and 6	351
Combinations of groups 2-6 with 7 and 8 and 7 with 8	608
Combined or general science	1,515
Combinations of groups 9, 10 and 11	764
Combined or general social science	1,479
Combinations of group 12 with 13-15	1,297
Combinations of groups 13, 14 and 15	45
Combined or general arts	662
Combinations of groups 5 and 6 with 9-11	838
Combinations of groups 2-4, 7 and 8 with 9-11	394
Combinations of groups 5 and 6 with 12-15	250
Combinations of groups 2-4, 7 and 8 with 12-15	127
Combinations of groups 9-11 with 12	968
Combinations of groups 9-11 with 13-15	1,238
Other general and combinations	1,982
Total multi-disciplinary studies	12,973
All subjects	80,762

Full-time undergraduate new entrants by domicile, 1986

	Number
Universities in Great Britain	80,762 of which domiciled in
Scotland	8,588
England	57,385
Wales	3,645
Northern Ireland	1,109
Others	10,035

Universities (Wales and Northern Ireland)

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will republish a table, in the manner of his answer of 12 February, Official Report, columns 375-6, showing the numbers and percentages of (a) Welsh and (b) Northern Irish students and relating to (i) Welsh and (ii) Northern Irish universities.

Mr. Jackson: The complete cross classification of country of location by country of domicile is shown in the following table:

Full-time students in 1986

	Universities in
	England	Wales	Scotland	Northern Ireland	United Kingdom
Total	233,538	20,556	47,230	14,966	316,290
Numbers domiciled in
England	188,316	11,789	9,073	675	209,853
Wales	7,019	5,624	243	28	12,914
Scotland	2,938	129	30,449	125	33,641
Northern Ireland	2,356	199	1,177	12,110	15,842
Other[1]	32,909	2,815	6,288	2,028	44,040
Total	100	100	100	100	100
Percentages domiciled in
England	81	57	19	5	66
Wales	3	27	1	0	4
Scotland	1	1	64	1	11
Northern Ireland	1	1	2	81	5
Other[1]	14	14	13	14	14

Percentages may not sum due to rounding

[1] Includes those domiciled in other United Kingdom and overseas.

Independent Schools

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science what information he has for each of the past five years as to what percentage of those school pupils whose principal address is in an inner London borough attended an independent school; and as to what is the percentage of the pupil population of (a) outer London, (b) south-east England and (c) England who attend independent schools.

Mr. Dunn: Information on pupils' home addresses is not held centrally. The number of pupils in independent schools as a percentage of all pupils in school in each of the last five years in the following areas was:

Pupils in independent schools as a percentage of all pupils in the Inner London Education Authority, Outer London, Other South East and England in January of each year

	1983	1984	1985	1986	1987
ILEA	10·7	11·2	11·6	12·0	12·4
Outer London	7·3	7·4	7·6	7·7	8·1
Other South East	9·5	9·7	9·9	10·1	10·4
England	6·2	6·4	6·5	6·6	6·9

University Funding

Mr. Bowis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Science if he will give details of any revised cash limits for his Department's votes in respect of university funding in 1987-88.

Mr. Kenneth Baker: Subject to parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimate, the cash limit on class XII, vote 3 is being increased by a total of £7·583 million to facilitate the creation of a new university institution in Cardiff. The effect of this change is as follows:

Class, Vote and Description of Expenditure

	£'000
XII 3 Universities, etc
Current cash limit	1,706,618
Revision	+7,583
Revised cash limit	1,714,201

The Supplementary Estimate will include provision for a repayable grant of £4·402 million (of which £4·279 million will be charged to the Reserve, after taking account of offsetting savings), with repayments benefiting the Reserve in future years. The remainder, £3·304 million, will be funded by a transfer of £1·652 million from Welsh Office provision (class XVII, vote 5) and £1·652 million from the Reserve. The increase will not add to the public expenditure planning total.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Taxi Drivers (Assaults)

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many deaths have resulted for each of the last five years as a consequence of attacks on licensed taxi drivers.

Mr. John Patten: In the period 1982-86, in England and Wales, five licensed taxi drivers are known to have been victims of homicide.

Written Question (Cost)

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will estimate the cost in time and money of the preparation of the answer to the written question from the hon. Member for Nottingham, East (Mr. Knowles) answered on 29 January, Official Report, column 395.

Mr. Hurd: About one hour at a cost of about £30.

Dog Fighting

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has as to the extent of foreign involvement in the promotion of and betting upon dog fighting; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: None, although we are, of course, aware of the recent allegations of such involvement. The police work closely with officials of the RSPCA in the investigation of alleged offences relating to dog fighting.

European Parliamentary Constituencies

Sir Anthony Meyer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Boundary Commission for Wales intends to conduct any supplementary review of European parliamentary constituencies.

Mr. Hurd: The commission has informed me of its intention to consider the making of a supplementary report on three European parliamentary constituencies in Wales. These are Mid and West Wales, South East Wales and South Wales.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Boundary Commission intends to conduct any supplementary reviews of European Parliamentary constituencies in England.

Mr. Hurd: The commission has informed me that it intends to consider the making of a supplementary report on the following 34 European parliamentary constituencies in England:

Durham
Cleveland and Yorkshire North
York
Humberside
Lancashire Central
Lancashire East
Yorkshire West
Cheshire West
Cheshire East
Derbyshire
Cambridge and Bedfordshire North
Suffolk
Oxford and Buckinghamshire
Bedfordshire South
Hertfordshire
Essex South West
Essex North East
Bristol
Wiltshire
Cornwall and Plymouth
Sheffield
Nottingham
Lincolnshire
Shropshire and Stafford
Staffordshire East
Midlands Central
Leicester
Devon
Somerset and Dorset West
Dorset East and Hampshire West
Hampshire Central
Wight and Hampshire East
Kent West
Kent East

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Christmas Island (Nuclear Tests)

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Attorney-General for what reasons certain records relating to the nuclear tests conducted on Christmas Island during the 1950s have been held back from release under the Public Records Act for 75 years.

The Solicitor-General: It has not been possible, from the information given, to identify the records referred to in the hon. Member's question. In so far as any such records have been withheld from release, they have been so withheld under section 3(4) of section 5(1) of the Public Records Act 1958.

Bona Vacantia Department

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Attorney-General if he will introduce new regulations for the distribution of intestacy proceeds from the Bona Vacantia Department to pass to charities in untraceable cases.

Mr. Brooke: I have been asked to reply.

No. The Treasury Solicitor is already authorised by the Treasury to make payments from Bona Vacantia to those for whom a person dying intestate might reasonablly have been expected to provide. A charity will therefore benefit from an estate where it has helped the deceased, or where it is clear that the deceased intended it to benefit. There is no intention to extend these principles to benefit charities in any other circumstances.

Intestacy

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Attorney-General if he will introduce legislation to provide new ways to enable companies and organisations to allocate or distribute long-standing funds where intestacy has resulted in an inability to trace claimants.

Mr. Brooke: I have been asked to reply.

No. The distribution of the property of persons dying intestate is a matter for their personal representatives. Where there is no one entitled following an intestacy, the matter should be referred to the Treasury Solicitor as Bona Vacantia.

THE ARTS

Asian Artists

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Minister for the Arts how many Asian artists and companies received financial support from the Arts Council in each of the past five years.

Mr Luce: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brent, South (Mr. Boateng) on Mouday 15 February, at columns 698-99.

NATIONAL FINANCE

VAT (United States Forces)

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what administrative arrangements are in place for the offsetting of value added tax payments for United Kingdom traders by United States forces not having to pay value added tax under special agreement.

Mr. Lilley: There are no offsetting arrangements. Traders do not charge VAT when supplying United States forces authorities under the special agreements.

Outturn Expenditure

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his latest estimate of outturn expenditure for 1987-88; and what are the figures for each Department.

Mr. Major: I refer the hon. Member to table 1·8 of volume I of the 1988 public expenditure White Paper (Cm. 288).

Value Added Tax

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what invitations to respond to the proposals of the Commissioner of the European Community for harmonisation of value added tax and excise duties was contained in the global communications from the Commission to Her Majesty's Government; and if he will publish in the Official Report its text, together with any response.

Mr. Lilley [holding answer 18 February 1988]: The global communication contained no specific invitations to respond; member states were invited only to evaluate the Commission's tax approximation proposals. The Economic and Financial Affairs Council (ECOFIN) has referred the proposals to the Economic Policy Committee (EPC) for economic analysis and will discuss them in the light of EPC's report, which is expected in the spring. The Commission should be in little doubt about the Government's view on United Kingdom zero rating. A copy of the global communication, together with a copy of each of the Commission's proposals, has been placed in the Library.

EMPLOYMENT

Dock Workers (Dismissals)

Mr. Gregory: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many permanent registered dock workers in the Liverpool local dock board area in each year from 1980 to 1986 have been dismissed by their employer for an offence justifying summary dismissal under the disciplinary provisions of the dock labour scheme; and how many of these men have been reinstated by order of the local dock labour board and appeal tribunals.

Mr. Nicholls: The figures requested are as follows:

	1980	1981	1982	1983	1984	1985	1986
Brought forward from previous year	—	6	—	—	—	—	—
Permanent workers dismissed for offence justifying summary dismissal	12	5	5	6	2	2	2
Reinstated by order of Liverpool Dock Labour Board and appeal tribunals	6	5	5	6	2	2	2
Dismissal upheld by Liverpool Dock Labour Board and appeal tribunals	—	6	—	—	—	—	—
Carried forward to following year	6	—	—	—	—	—	—

Radiation Exposure

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will make a statement on his policy towards acceptable levels of radiation exposure, following the most recent report of the National Radiological Protection Board.

Mr. Nicholls: I am awaiting the advice of the Health and Safety Commission. The commission has set up a working group on ionising radiations which met for the first time on 9 December 1987. The working group is considering the recent guidance from the National Radiological Protection Board as part of its remit and will advise the commission on an appropriate course of action. I am content to await any subsequent recommendations.

Workers and the public are currently protected by the Ionising Radiations 1985, which require doses to be kept not only below specified dose limits but beyond that to be kept as low as reasonably practicable.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Green Pound

Mr. Michael Morris: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the average discrepancy between the value of the green pound and the real pound sterling for the years 1985, 1986 and 1987.

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the average percentage difference between the value of the pound sterling and the green rate for the £ sterling for each six month period since January 1979.

Mr. MacGregor: The information is not available in the form requested and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Monetary compensatory amounts reflect the difference between sterling's market rate and green rates. The table shows the MCA percentages for beef and cereals during the first week in each six-month period since 1979 as well as the latest figures available:

Date (week commencing)	MCA (percentage) Beef	Cereals
1 January 1979	−27·0	−27·0
2 July 1979	− 6·0	−17·6
7 January 1980	− 3·5	− 9·0
7 July 1980	+ 1·7	− 1·0
5 January 1981	+12·1	+12·1
6 July 1981	+12·3	+12·3
4 January 1982	+ 8·0	+ 8·0
3 July 1982	+ 9·6	+ 9·6
3 January 1983	+ 1·4	+ 1·4
4 July 1983	+ 5·2	+ 5·2
2 January 1984	+ 7·6	+ 7·6
2 July 1984	+ 1·0	+ 3·9
6 January 1985	− 1·9	− 1·9
1 July 1985	+ 3·6	+ 3·6
6 January 1986	− 3·5	− 3·5
7 July 1986	− 7·7	− 8·9
5 January 1987	−18·4	−26·3
1 July 1987	−10·6	−19·9
4 January 1988	− 8·4	−17·5
15 February 1988	− 8·4	−17·5

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Health and Safety

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will introduce legislation to extend to the House of Commons the requirements of the health and safety Acts.

Mr. Wakeham: No. I have no such proposals. The authorities of the House seek to ensure that the provisions of these Acts are met wherever possible. It has been the practice of inspectors of the Health and Safety Executive to visit the House at the request of the House authorities.

SCOTLAND

Drug Abusers

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many intravenous drug abusers he estimates there are in (a) Glasgow and (b) Edinburgh.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Because of the nature of the activity it is very difficult to make precise estimates of the numbers of intravenous drug misusers. The current estimate is as follows:

	Estimate
West Scotland (mainly Glasgow)	5,000-7,500
South East Scotland (mainly Edinburgh)	2,000-3,000

Cervical Smear Tests

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many laboratories in Scotland are equipped to deal with cervical smear tests; and what are their locations.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 27 October 1987.

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the average period of time which each laboratory in Scotland takes to send the results of cervical smear tests back to patients.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many women were tested for cervical cancer in each year since 1975.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The information is as follows:

Year	Number of women tested
1975	253,461
1976	235,582
1977	239,572
1978	253,270
1979	252,896
1980	282,510
1981	293,870
1982	285,105
1983	315,044
1984	322,484
1985	356,747
1986	361,626

Figures for 1987 are not yet available.

Invasive Carcinoma

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many women are suffering from invasive carcinoma in (a) Scotland, (b) Strathclyde and (c) Glasgow.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: This information is not available in precisely the form requested. In 1985 (the latest year for which complete cancer registration data are available) 14,264 females with malignant neoplasms were registered for the first time in Scotland. The comparable figure for the West of Scotland cancer registry, which includes Strathclyde, Dumfries and Galloway and Central regions, was 6,741.

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which socio-economic group is most affected by invasive carcinoma in Scotland.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The latest information relating to incidence of cancer by socio-economic grouping is given in the publication, "Atlas of Cancer in Scotland: Incidence and Epidemiological Perspective (ed. I Kemp et al), IARC Scentific Publication No. 72", a copy of which is available in the Library.

Outturn Expenditure

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is his latest estimate of outturn expenditure for his Department; and if he will express it as a proportion of expenditure originally allocated for the year.

Mr. Rifkind: The information is:

	Estimated Outturn 1987-88 £ million	As proportion of planned expenditure 1987-88
Total expenditure within the Secretary of State for Scotland's responsibility	8,212	1·032

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the latest figures for outturn spending for each of the departmental responsibilities listed in table 3.16 of the public expenditure White Paper.

Mr. Rifkind: The latest figures for outturn spending on each of the programmes within my responsibility are shown on page 13 of "Public Expenditure to 1990-91: A Commentary on the Scotland Programme", a copy of which has been supplied to the hon. Member and other hon. Members representing Scottish constituencies. Copies were also placed in the Library.

Leukaemia (Fife)

Mr. Gordon Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will fund a study examining an potential link between leukaemia and radiation in the Fife area.

Mr. Michael Forsyth: No. I see no merit in funding ad hoc studies before the Government have received the advice of the Committee on Medical Aspects of Radiation in the Environment on the further investigation of leukaemia in the vicinity of nuclear establishments.

Housing Corporation

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give the capital allocation in cash and real terms to the Housing Corporation in Scotland, including the provisional estimates for 1988-89, for each year since 1974.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is as follows:

Year	Gross Allocation £ million	Gross Allocation in real terms £ million
1974-75	[1]4·50	16·408
1975-76	[1]10·60	30·761
1976-77	[1]16·30	41·791
1977-78	[1]27·10	61·004
1978-79	[1]31·40	63·852
1979-80	[1]48·60	84·558
1980-81	[1]65·70	96·414
1981-82	85·00	113·583
1982-83	108·50	135·197
1983-84	109·60	130·473
1984-85	101·30	115·442
1985-86	104·20	112·062
1986-87	113·80	118·636
1987-88	123·20	[2]123·200
1988-89	131·74	126·068

[1] Actual expenditure. In these years expenditure was controlled on basis of housing units to be provided rather than budget allocation.
[2] Base Year.

Electoral Register

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he will list, for each Scottish constituency for each year since 1983 (a) the total number of people on the electoral register, (b) the number of young people on the register due to reach the age of 18 years during the currency of the register and the annual percentage increase or decrease for (a) and (b).

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: I refer the hon. Member to table 1·5 in the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys series EL Nos 10-13 for the years 1983-1986, respectively, and to table 2 in the monitor EL 87/1 for 1987, from which the annual percentage increase or decrease for (a) and (b) may be derived. Copies of these publications are in the Library. Similar information for 1988 is not yet available.

Coniferous Afforestation

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the Government's policy with regard to coniferous afforestation in areas of outstanding national beauty.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The Government's policy is that applications for grant aid towards planting conifers in such areas should each be considered on their merits with any views expressed under the Forestry Commission's consultation arrangements being taken into account.

Forest Damage

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list in the Official Report the research studies currently being undertaken by the Forestry Commission into forest damage in the United Kingdom.

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The commission's research division undertakes a wide range of studies on damage to forest, landscape and amenity trees throughout Great Britain. On the assumption that the hon. Member is interested in the possible effects of air pollution in particular, the following studies are in hand at present:

- survey of the crown condition of Scots pine, Norway spruce, Sitka spruce, oak and beech
- grid survey (in accordance with EEC Regulation 3528/86) of crown condition of species located at grid intersection points
- study of extension growth of beech over several decades across Southern England
- study of the occurrence of crown dieback of hedgerow ash in England in relation to adjacent agricultural land use
- study of reduced growth Sitka spruce in the South Wales Coalfield
- survey jointly commissioned with the Nature Conservancy Council of beech crown condition and Scots pine growth in Southern England
- studies of the growth and physiology of seedling and clonal stock of major tree species in large open-top chamber experiments at two sites in England and one in Scotland
- study of responses of 6 biomonitors (4 trees, 2 herbaceous species) to ambient pollutants at 62 sites in Southern England

Student Grants

Mr. Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland why students are not to be compensated for their loss of housing benefit.

Mr. Portillo: I have been asked to reply.

The new housing benefit scheme and the other social security changes which will come into operation in April 1988 will affect a large number of claimants including students. Transitional protection is being provided only for those on supplementary benefit consistent with the Government's approach to direct help to those most in need. Furthermore, many claimants will see some reduction in their housing benefit as a result of increased entitlement to other benefits.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Mozambique (Security Advisers)

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has as to the number of Cuban, Soviet and East German security advisers stationed in Mozambique.

Mr. Mellor: Precise information is not available. However, it is believed that there is still some East German involvement in security matters in Mozambique.

Irish Air Space

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has as to proposals by the Irish Government to charge the British Government for military aircraft overflying Irish air space; and if he will make a statement.

Sir Geoffrey Howe: I am not aware of any such proposals.

SOCIAL SERVICES

Mental Nurses (Northumberland)

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many registered mental nurses are employed in Northumberland health authority; what was the number in 1979; and what has been the percentage change.

Mrs. Currie: Such information as is available is shown in the table. Staff with the registered mental nurse qualification cannot be separately identified. The staff-in-post figures are for all state registered nurses employed in the mental illness area of work.

Because of the 1982 NHS reorganisation, figures on a consistent basis are not centrally available for the years prior to 1982.

Nursing staff in mental illness area of work[1] Northumberland district health authority at 30 September

Whole-time equivalent[2]		Percentage change[3]
1982	1986	1982-86
490	520	+6·2

Source: DHSS Annual Census of NHS Non-Medical Manpower.

[1] Includes learners.

[2] Figures are independently rounded to nearest whole time equivalent.

[3] Percentage change calculated on unrounded figures.

AIDS

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has regarding the proportion of hospital beds in New York city occupied by AIDS patients; and if he will make a statement regarding the implications for hospital bed use policy in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Newton: The Department is aware of reported studies in the American scientific press of the percentage of beds used in the treatment of AIDS in New York city. However because of the considerable difference between the numbers with AIDS or infected with HIV in the United Kingdom and the USA, and because of the wide differences in systems for delivering health care in the two countries, it is difficult to make direct comparisions between the current situation in New York and the future situation in the United Kingdom. The Department will continue to monitor developments in this new disease carefully, and to take any appropriate action which is indicated.

Child Benefit

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will indicate the loss of weekly income in 1988-89 for a two-child family as a result of the failure to maintain child benefit in line with the retail price index in the recent uprating and in the 1985 uprating; and if he will show for the same family, assuming they pay £30 rent and £13 rates per week, that both children are at primary school and that there is one fulk-time wage earner on £100 gross wages, the effect on their weekly income of (a) the changes in housing benefit, (b) the switch from family income supplement to family credit and (c) the abolition of free schools meals.

Mr. Scott: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Barnsley, West and Penistone (Mr. McKay) on 17 December 1987 at column 707. The relevant figures for this question are as follows:

	£ per week Gain (+)/ Loss (−)
Child benefit—full uprating November 1984 to September 1987	0
Replacing Family Income Supplement (cash and kind) by Family Credit	+5·95
Rent rebate changes	−8·90
Rate rebate changes	−4·19

Private Health Organisations

Mr. Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people have joined private health organisations over the past 22 years.

Mrs. Currie: The table sets out the number of subscribers in the United Kingdom to private medical insurance and the number of people insured for each year from 1966 to 1986.

Private Medical Insurance United Kingdom

Year	Total subscribers (millions)	Total number of people insured (millions)
1966	0·73	1·57
1967	0·78	1·67
1968	0·83	1·77
1969	0·89	1·89
1970	0·93	1·98
1971	0·98	2·10
1972	1·02	2·18
1973	1·06	2·27
1974	1·09	2·33
1975	1·09	2·32
1976	1·06	2·25
1977	1·06	2·23
1978	1·12	2·37
1979	1·30	2·75
1980	1·64	3·60
1981	1·86	4·12
1982	1·92	4·23
1983	1·95	4·25
1984	2·28	4·37
1985	2·33	5.04
1986	[1]2·45	5·25

[1] latest available.

Note:—1966 to 1983 data are available only for the major private medical insurers. Data from 1984 covers private medical insurance from all sources.

NHS (Finance)

Mr. Fearn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what has been the national insurance contribution percentage apportioned to the National Health Service, the total money so apportioned each year, and the income per annum from chemists, dentists and opticians from National Health Service charges, from 1979 to the latest year the figures are available.

Mr. Portillo: The information requested is as follows:

National insurance contributions allocations to NHS

Year	Class 1		Class 2	Class 3	Class 4
	Employer	Employee
1979-80	0·6	0·40	8·0	8·0	0·60
1980-81	0·6	0·40	8·0	8·0	0·60
1981-82	0·6	0·65	11·5	11·5	0·85
1982-83	0·6	0·75	11·5	11·5	0·95
1983-84	0·6	0·75	11·5	11·5	0·95
1984-85	0·6	0·75	11·5	11·5	0·95
1985-86	0·6	0·75	11·5	11·5	0·95
1986-87	0·6	0·75	11·5	11·5	0·95
1987-88	0·7	0·85	15·5	15·5	1·15

1. The figures for Class 1 and 4 represent the percentage of NI reckonable earnings allocated to the NHS.
2. The figures for Class 2 and 3 represents the percentage of contributions allocated to the NHS.

Total money raised from national insurance contributions allocated to NHS

	£ million
1979-80	881·5
1980-81	1,023·0
1981-82	1,337·3
1982-83	1,629·0
1983-84	1,706·0
1984-85	1,817·7
1985-86	2,024·0
1986-87	2,233·0
1987-88	2,726·0

All figures are net of refunds of national insurance contributions. Figures for 1984-85, 1985-86 and 1986-87 are provisional: the figure for 1987-88 is an estimate provided by the Government Actuary.

NHS (Costs)

Mr. Michael McNair-Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the average cost of an operation performed within the National Heath Service; what is the cost of a day's stay in hospital; and what is the average cost of a kidney dialysis treatment.

Mrs. Currie: The nearest available figure for the average cost of an operation is the average cost per in-patient case in acute hospitals in England. In 1985-86 (the latest year available) the figure was £718. This includes the cost of treatment and the cost of a stay in hospital. The cost of the hospital stay only cannot be quantified, but the average cost of a day's hospital treatment in 1985-86 was £101.

The cost of kidney dialysis will depend on a number of factors. On the basis of a study carried out by the Department in 1981, approximate average costs for the first year's treatment (revalued to 1986-87 prices) were as follows: routine hospital dialysis £16,500; home dialysis £13,200; continuous ambulatory peritoneal dialysis £14,000. The costs for treatment in subsequent years are likely to be less than those in the first year. These revalued figures do not take account of the changes in methods of treatment and case mix since the completion of the study. They therefore provide only a broad indication of present costs.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what steps are taken by his Department to ensure that a recipient of housing benefit resides at the address for which benefit is claimed;

(2) what steps are taken by his Department to ensure that the declarations regarding the rent payable by applicants for housing benefit are correct;

(3) what communication takes place with landlords of tenants applying for or in receipt of housing benefit.

Mr. Portillo: Although the Department has responsibility for the overall structure of the housing benefit scheme, local authorities have full statutory responsibility for its day-to-day administration. It is for authorities to ensure that as far as possible claims for housing benefit are proper and correct, although detailed guidance on fraud and abuse is issued to authorities by the Department. If there is any doubt about the accuracy of the details of a claim authorities should take action as necessary to satisfy themselves that the claim is correct. Information is not collected centrally on the methods of verification used by individual local authorities. Direct contact with a landlord is established where housing benefit is being paid directly to that landlord for example because the claimant is in arrears with his rent. In these cases the authority should notify the landlord of how much housing benefit will be payable, when payments will commence and how they will be made. When direct payments cease the authority should also advise the landlord of the date of and reason for cessation.

Retail Prices Index (Error)

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services how many people he estimates are suffering under compensation for the loss of benefit incurred due to the retail prices index error and the fact that their benefits are embodied in only one order book; if he will reconsider his decision not to compensate fully all those people; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Scott: Of those receiving special payments, it is estimated that about 175,000 are not fully compensated for the error in the retail prices index because they have two or more benefits combined in one order book. About 99 per cent. of those with combined order books are fully compensated or overcompensated. We do not propose to make any extensions to this aspect of the special payments exercise, which has combined as far as was possible fairness with speed of payment.

Office of Population, Censuses and Surveys

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will take steps to restore public access to the library of the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys.

Mr. Portillo: The services provided by the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys library are being reviewed and an announcement about future public access will be made in due course.

Doctors (Employment Details)

Mr. Amos: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services on what basis he has come to the conclusion that the wish of some individuals not to have details of their employment made publicly available should be respected in the case of doctors carrying out abortions in the private sector.

Mr. Newton: It seems to me to be entirely reasonable not to publicise details of an individual's employment in this or any other field without that individual's consent. My hon. Friend is of course free to approach individual approved places direct to inquire about the doctors who operate at those places.

Medical Equipment (Maintenance)

Mr. Bermingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for St. Helens, South of 10 November 1987 about the report on the in-house maintenance of medical equipment which was completed almost a year ago, but never published.

Mrs. Currie: I replied to the hon. Member on 17 February.

Rating Reform

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will publish a table listing the approximate income levels at which people will become eligible for community charge rebates for each local authority in Scotland.

Mr. Scott: The community charge rebate scheme will be based as far as is practicable on the arrangements for rebating rates set out in the Housing Benefit (General) Regulations 1987. However it is not yet possible to provide the information required by the hon. Member since certain essential elements of the rebate scheme have yet to be finalised, and since neither the benefit rates on which calculations of rebate entitlement will be based nor the local authority community charge levels that will apply in April 1989 have yet been set.

I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Copeland (Dr. Cunningham) on 16 December 1987 at column 584 in which illustrative rebate entitlements based on a number of specified assumptions are set out. The levels of personal community charge that are quoted are exclusive of liability for community water charges. These will not be within the scope of the rebate scheme, but help with water charges will be reflected in the income support rates and in the amounts which will be used to determine rebate entitlements.

Westminster Children's Hospital (Break-in)

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has concerning the break-in at Westminster children's hospital paedriatic research laboratory on the night of 6 and 7 February and removal from the computer of the names and addresses of members of the Campaign for the Defence of Riverside Hospitals.

Mrs. Currie: The paediatric research laboratory referred to in the question is not the responsibility of the Westminster children's hospital or of Riverside health authority, but of the Westminster and Charing Cross medical school. The hon. Member may wish to approach the dean of the medical school if he seeks information about the laboratory.

Deaf Persons (Telephone Exchange)

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he is yet in a position to make a statement on the future of the Royal National Institute for the Deaf's telephone exchange for the deaf.

Mr. Scott: I am pleased to announce the award of a grant of £28,500 for 1987-88 and £30,500 for 1988-89 to the Royal National Institute for the Deaf to assist with the running costs of its telephone exchange for the deaf (TED).

This grant is being given in response to the RNID's request for assistance under the Government's concerned technology programme. Assistance has also been made available by the Department of Trade and Industry, the Manpower Services Commission and British Telecom.

We recognise that a vital need of all deaf and hearing impaired people is to be able to communicate with hearing people. TED is a worldwide leader in solving this problem for many deaf people. We have decided to make a contribution to its running costs for this limited period so that long-term arrangements for providing this service can be worked out.

Radiotherapy Services

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will list those hospitals in each health region which provide radiotherapy services, showing how many patients were treated by each of those units; which units have been closed; and which new units have been opened, in each of the last three years.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 11 January 1988]: The available information is given in the table for those hospitals which in 1983 reported having radiotherapy equipment. No such treatment centres are known to have opened or closed since that date. The numbers of patients are taken from the "NHS Hospital Activity Returns SH3 return part EDP6G".

NHS Hospitals having radiotherapy equipment

Health Authority and Hospital	New patients attending the radiotheray department
	In patients			Out-patients
	1984	1985	1986	1984	1985	1986
Northern Regional Health Authority
East Cumbria, Cumberland Infirmary	56	151	241	131	241	295
Newcastle, Royal Victoria Infirmary	8	10	8	512	359	367
Newcastle, Newcastle General Hospital	845	653	628	2,032	2,093	2,206
South Tees, South Cleveland Hospital	1,080	1,026	1,198	1,697	1,849	1,670
Yorkshire Regional Health Authority
Hull, Princess Royal Hospital	370	355	307	821	910	971
Leeds West, Cookridge Hospital	2,088	1,820	1,754	2,877	3,380	3,043
Trent Regional Health Authority
Leicestershire, The Leicester Royal Infirmary	271	362	377	584	898	1,083
North Lincolnshire, St. Georges Hospital	646	690	663	689	775	758
Nottingham, Nottingham General Hospital	1,331	713	606	1,780	1,149	1,433
Sheffield, Weston Park Hospital	1,184	1,164	1,226	1,579	1,775	1,824
Southern Derbyshire, Derbyshire Royal Infirmary	245	233	223	708	693	524
East Anglian Regional Health Authority
Cambridge, Addenbrookes Hospital	632	656	549	2,324	2,280	2,213
East Suffolk, Ipswich Hospital, Anglesea Road Wing	205	167	169	854	829	966
Norwich, Norfolk an Norwich Hospital	367	317	463	1,246	1,290	1,339
Peterborough, Peterborough District Hospital	56	64	79	226	253	229
North West Thames Regional Health Authority
Hillingdon, Mount Vernon Hospital	903	821	743	2,852	2,971	2,877
Paddington and North Kensington, St. Marys Hospital	133	94	102	196	189	230
Riverside, Charing Cross Hospital	470	401	494	1,609	1,592	1,477
Riverside, Westminster Hospital	481	411	458	1,196	1,170	1,055
North East Thames Regional Health Authority
Barking, Havering and Brentwood, Old Church Hospital	321	405	389	1,353	1,491	1,708

Health Authority and Hospital	New patients attending the radiotherapy department
	In patients			Out-patients
	1984	1985	1986	1984	1985	1986
Bloomsbury, University College Hospital	365	323	80	805	750	180
Bloomsbury, Middlesex Hospital	536	497	355	1,355	1,437	985
City and Hackney, St. Bartholomews Hospital	490	546	414	947	1,117	861
Hampstead, Royal Free Hospital	703	847	634	646	613	608
Haringey, North Middlesx Hospital	309	255	182	1,378	1,252	899
North East Essex, Essex County Hospital	302	398	367	3,176	2,820	3,041
Southend, Southend General Hospital	500	470	405	1,610	1,829	1,859
Tower Hamlets, London Hospital Whitechapel	332	367	336	1,919	1,953	1,519
South East Thames Regional Health Authority
Brighton, Royal Sussex County Hospital	109	92	74	1,718	1,716	1,988
Camberwell, King's College Hospital	190	177	213	837	618‡	509
Canterbury and Thanet, Kent and Canterbury Hospital	241	216	284	1,380	1,740	1,838
Lewisham and North Southwark, Guy's Hospital	435	404	331	1,373	1,262	1,080
Medway, St. Williams Hospital	219	262	258	1,006	858	901
Tunbridge Wells, Penbury Hospital	45	89	104	804	750	830
West Lambeth, St. Thomas Hospital	371	287	340	1,079	1,418	1,876
South West Thames Regional Health Authority
South West Surrey, St. Lukes Hospital	662	606	621	3,542	3,736	3,561
Wessex Regional Health Authority
Bath, Royal United Hospitals	81	114	116	244	286	247
East Dorset, Poole General Hospital	205	168	164	1,054	1,136	1,216
Portsmouth, St. Mary's General Hospital	243	248	191	1,185	1,260	1,275
South West Hants and Southampton, Royal South Hampshire Hospital	516	478	512	2,008	1,610	1,685
Oxford Regional Health Authority
Northampton, Northampton General Hospital	523	631	376	268	202	396
Oxfordshire, Churchill Hospital	424	404	430	1,071	1,059	1,144
West Berkshire, Royal Berkshire Hospital	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
South Western Regional Health Authority
Bristol and Weston, Radiotherapy Centre, Horsfield Road, Bristol	935	898	988	2,012	1,956	1,867
Cheltenham, Cheltenham General Hospital	1,782	1,708	1,714	10,843	11,201	10,579
Cornwall and Isles of Scilly, Royal Cornwall Hospital (Treliske)	34	53	55	256	263	253
Exeter, Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital, Wonford	179	152	125	626	528	602
Plymouth, Plymouth General, Freedom Fields	303	285	276	521	548	575
West Midlands Regional Health Authority
Central Birmingham, Queen Elizabeth Hospital	1,173	817	869	4,492	5,221	5,359
Coventry, Coventry and Warwickshire Hospital	143	227	199	1,272	1,274	1,270
North Staffordshire, North Staffordshire Royal Infirmary	239	360	324	1,438	1,491	1,925
Shropshire, Royal Shrewsbury Hospital	165	145	146	546	520	520
Wolverhampton, The Royal Hospital	99	94	95	1,150	1,333	1,376
Mersey Regional Health Authority
Wirral, Clatterbridge Hospital	2,649	2,680	2,409	1,915	2,320	2,779
North Western Regional Health Authority
South Manchester, Christie Hospital and Holt Radium Institute	3,560	3,381	3,374	3,226	3,352	3,109
Special Health Authorities
Hammersmith and Queen Charlottes, Hammersmith Hospital	193	375	408	820	1,339	1,163
The Royal Marsden Hospitals, The Royal Marsden Hospital, Fulham Road	689	706	701	1,154	1,218	1,225
The Royal Marsden Hospitals, The Royal Marsden Hospital, Sutton Surrey	659	648	533	2,272	2,275	2,603

n/a = information not available

Departmental Report (Breach of Confidentiality)

Mr. Eastham: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what information he has about the unauthorised use by a commercial manufacturer of information contained in a report of his Department's supplies divisions at the international meeting on thrombosis and haemostasis in Brussels in July 1987; and what action he proposed to deal with this breach of confidentiality.

Mrs. Currie [holding answer 8 February 1988]: Despite extensive inquiries I have been unable to identify the incident to which the hon. Member refers. If he cares to supply more details I will investigate further.

Student Nurses

Mr. Nicholas Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services (1) what percentage of the annual cohort of 18-year-olds has been recruited as student nurses in each of the past 10 years; and if he is satisfied that sufficient recruits of suitable calibre will be recruited in future years, in the light of the fall in the birth rate and proposals in Project 2000;

(2) if he will give the total number of student nurses employed in the National Health Service in each year since 1958, together with the annual rate of wastage caused as a result of nurses failing to complete their training; and if he will make a statement on measures taken to reduce this wastage.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 8 February 1988]: I regret that information in the form requested is not available centrally. The table shows the numbers entering registered and enrolled nurse training in England for each of the last 10 years, expressed as a percentage of the population aged 18. About 40 per cent. of entrants to nurse training are aged 18, and 90 per cent. are female. All but a tiny minority of these will have entered training with the National Health Service.

Numbers entering basic nurse training and estimated population aged 18: 1978 to 1987—England

Year	Number entering basic nurse training			Estimated population aged 18 (thousands)			Percentage of population entering training
	Total	Registered	Enrolled	Total	Male	Female
1978	30,200	18,990	11,210	712·5	362·7	349·8	4·2
1979	35,370	22,600	12,770	741·5	376·8	364·7	4·8
1980	32,580	20,500	12,080	759·7	386·7	373·0	4·3
1981	30,920	19,630	11,290	773·3	395·3	378·0	4·0
1982	31,810	20,200	11,610	796·0	409·6	386·4	4·0
1983	29,840	18,950	10,890	802·8	413·0	389·8	3·7
1984	24,980	17,680	7,300	778·3	398·0	380·3	3·2
1985	25,523	19,206	6,317	768·1	394·3	373·8	3·3
1986	23,705	18,600	5,105	743·8	380·5	363·3	3·2
1987	22,825	18,434	4,391	n/a	n/a	n/a	—

Notes:
1. Figures relate to year ended 31 March. Figures prior to 1985 have been estimated as 95 per cent. of England and Wales total.
2. Office of Population Censuses and Surveys mid-year population estimates.
n/a = Not yet available.

The basic academic entry qualification for registered nurse training is five O-levels or better; the number of female school leavers available for employment with this level of academic attainment will, it is estimated, decline from 36,500 in 1987 to 29,800 in 1994. This is one of the factors to be taken into account in the Government's response to the Project 2000 proposals for the reform of nurse education. We hope to be in a position to make a statement on Project 2000 by Easter.

On wastage, there has been a reduction in the number of nurse learners discontinuing training as a proportion of the average number in training from nearly 9 per cent. in the year ended 31 March 1980 to 6·3 per cent. in the year ended 31 March 1987. The effect on wastage is another factor we will need to consider in our response to Project 2000.

HIV Infection (Pregnant Women)

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services if he will estimate the cost, in a full year, of screening all pregnant women for HIV infection.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 9 Februarry 1988]: Using the latest estimated number of conceptions, the cost of providing a test to all pregnant women in England to screen for HIV infection would probably be about £4 million a year. Actual costs will depend on a number of factors including the additional costs for counselling and whether the blood taken was used for other tests.

Social Security Reform

Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the simple scaling used to uprate supplementary benefit as outlined in paragraph 2(ii) on page one of the document "Impact of the Reformed Structure of Income Related Benefits".

Mr. Scott [holding answer 17 February 1988]: Supplementary benefit rates were updated to April 1988 by the movement in the retail prices index, excluding housing costs, from September 1986 to September 1987. Payments for additional requirements were uprated by the rise in the general retail prices index over the same period.

Mr. Dunnachie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Services what is the reason for the change in layout, structure and composition of the tables in the technical annex to the White Paper, entitled "The Reform of Social Security", as compared with the document entitled "Impact of the Reformed Structure of Income Related Benefits"; and what are the differences in the methodology used in each case.

Mr. Scott [holding answer 17 February 1988]: There are no major changes in layout, structure and composition apart from the omission of tables 1 to 9. These tables are no longer relevant because a decision was taken that all ratepayers receiving income support or housing benefit should pay a minimum of 20 per cent. of their domestic rates bill. The tables are simply updated and revised versions of tables 10 to 17 published in the technical annex to the White Paper "Reform of Social Security" (Cmnd. 9691).

INDEX TO THE

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

OFFICIAL REPORT

SIXTH SERIES VOLUME 127

SESSION 1987–88

8th February–19th February 1988

SCOPE OF THE INDEX, ARRANGEMENT AND ABBREVIATIONS

This index is derived from the House of Commons Library's Parliamentary On-Line Information System (POLIS), and the subject terms used are based on those used in POLIS. There are often changes in column numbering, etc., between the daily part or weekly Hansard (which simply collects together the daily parts without revision) and the bound volume. The index for the bound volume is revised to take account of these changes.

Scope and arrangement of the Index

Oral and Written Parliamentary Questions are indexed under subject headings and the names of Members asking and Ministers replying to them. Questions are not listed under the names of Departments replying. Departmental listings can be arrived at indirectly by looking under the names of the Minister(s) of that Department. There are, however, the headings 'Northern Ireland', 'Scotland', and 'Wales' under which one can find not only most Questions answered by the Northern Ireland Office, Scottish Office, Welsh Office but also Questions about these areas of the United Kingdom which are answered by other Departments. Ministerial statements are indexed under subject headings, under 'Ministerial statements' and the names of Ministers making them and Members speaking on them. General debates are indexed under broad subject headings and under the names of all Members and Ministers taking part. Debates on legislation (Bills, Orders, Regulations etc.) are indexed under the name of the Bill, Statutory Instrument etc., under subject headings and under the names of those taking part.

Rulings and Statements by Mr Speaker and his deputies are brought together under the heading Speaker's rulings and statements.

Other contributions by Mr Speaker and his deputies appear under the heading Speaker.

Opposition Day Debates, Estimates Day Debates and Standing Order No. 10 applications are listed under those respective headings and under subject headings too.

The date of each item except Parliamentary Questions is inserted immediately before the reference.

Members' names are given in the form by which they prefer to be known and are printed in bold italics. Under their names, entries are arranged under one of the two headings Debates etc (to include interventions on statements, points of order and so on) or Questions.

Abbreviations

Bills 1R=first reading, 2R=second reading, Money res=money resolution, Com=Committee stage, Rep=Report stage, 3R=third reading, amendt/amendts=amendment/amendments, *=matter taken formally, without debate.

Column numbers followed by the letter W refer to Written Questions. These appear at the end of each daily part or volume with their own sequence of column numbers printed in italics.

A6 748w

A27
Road construction 742-3w

A74
Road works 477w, 540w

Abbott, Ms Diane
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 910-3
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1039-41
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1177, 1187, 1202-4
Questions
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Civil service manpower 351w
Immigration rules 709w
NHS finance, Regional health authorities 181w
Social security reform, Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 351-2w

Aberdeen University
Official engagements 577w

Abernant Colliery
Coal mine closures 9, (18:02:88) 1253-8

Abolition of Domestic Rates etc (Scotland) Act 1987
Debates etc.
(10:02:88) 477
Questions
478w

Abortion
Clinics 191-2w
Costs 269-70w
Disclosure of information 111w, 351w
Employment 780w
Hospitals 191-2w
NHS 173, 269-70w
Private health services 780w
Rape 111w

Abortion (Treatment of Non Resident Women) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 675

ABRC see Advisory Board for the Research Councils

Abseiling
Women 131w

Academic freedom 580-1w
Universities 159-60w

Access to Medical Reports Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R (12:02:88) 657-67

Access to Parliament 449-50w

Accident & emergency departments 115-6w
Costs 408w
Wales 123w

Accountability
Council for Licensed Conveyancers 366w

Accountants
Civil service manpower 647-8w
Enterprise counsellors 148w
Professional qualifications 647-8w

Accounting
Public bodies 420w
Public corporations 420w

ACOST see Advisory Council on Science & Technology

ACPO see Association of Chief Police Officers

ACPO(S) see Association of Chief Police Officers (Scotland)

Acute beds 502w, 539-40w, 565w
Health services 270w

Adams, Mr Allen
Questions
"Family Fortunes" 175w

ADAS see Agricultural Development & Advisory Service

Adjournment debates
Speaker's rulings & statements (09:02:88) 330

Adley, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 364
Questions
British Rail, Capital investment 241-2w
Channel tunnel, Investment 502
Channel tunnel, Railway network 246w
France, Official engagements 615w
Manchester Airport, Speed limits 615w
Wales Railway Centre 12
Winter Warmth Line, Advisory services 170

Administration of estates
Intestacy 612w

Administration of justice
Northern Ireland 149w, 591w

Administration of Justice Act 1985
Questions
365-6w

Administrative costs
Northern Regional Health Authority 172w
Private patients 623w

Administrative delays
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board 707w
House of Commons publications 388w
Immigration & Nationality Division 136w
Medical treatments 199-200w
Passports 707w
Planning appeals 288w, 719w
Planning permission 669w
Prosthetics 200w
Social security appeals tribunals 178w
Social security claims 186w

Adoption (17:02:88) 997-9

Adult training centres
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 105-7w

Advertising
Electricity supply industry 508w
Expenditure 295w

Advice & Assistance (Scotland) Regulations 1987
Questions
477w

Advisory Board for the Research Councils 47w

Advisory Council on Science & Technology
Official engagements 519w

Advisory services
Elderly 170
Gaming machines 304w
Prisoners 542w
Social security 566w
Winter Warmth Line 170

Aerospace industry 252w

Afghanistan
Arms exports 391w

Age
Breathalysers 215w
Examinations 816-8
House renovation grants 457w

Age addition
Retirement pensions 98-9w

Age allowances
Pensioners 266w
War widows' pensions 494-5w

Age Concern 170

Age Concern Scotland 65w

Agency nurses
Expenditure 405-6w
Merseyside 205w

Agricultural chemicals
Essington 328w
Set-aside schemes 725w
Testing 237-8w

Agricultural Development & Advisory Service 328w

Agricultural land
Cereals 465-6w
Land use 156w

Agricultural production
Cereals 690w
EC countries 587w
Organic farming 329w

Agricultural research
Agriculture 464w
Radioactivity 62w, 465w

Agricultural stabilisers (15:02:88) 755-98

Agricultural subsidies
Expenditure 156w, 464-5w

Agriculture
Agricultural research 464w
EC budget 726-7w
Employment 76w
GATT 155w
Tax allowances 723w

AIDS
Armed forces recruitment 135-6w
Blood donors 367w
Blood tests 199w
Contraceptives 557-8w
Edinburgh 367w
Expenditure 499-500w
Government assistance 168w
Hospital beds 776w
Immigration 546w
Laboratories 64-5w, 79-80w, 110-1w, 327w
New York 776w
Northern Ireland 327w
Personal social services 168w
Pregnancy 785w
Prisoners 620w
Scotland 64-5w
Technicians 489w, 626-7w
Wales 79-80w

Aids for handicapped
Handicapped workers 227-8w

AIDS Monitoring & Surveillance Committee 167w

Air accidents
Nuclear power stations 590w
Standing Order No 20 applications (08:02:88) 38

Air force (11:02:88) 524-98
Rescue services 238-9w, (11:02:88) 524-98

Air force bases
F16 aircraft 538w
Spain 538w

Air pollution control
Power stations 689

Air routes
Air safety 22
Stansted Airport 410w

Air safety 23
Air routes 22
Air traffic control 21-4, 244w
Inquiries 357-8w

National Air Traffic Services 22
Near misses 21-2, 244w, 357w
Transport of radioactive materials 23

Air traffic
Heathrow Airport 453w

Air traffic control
Air safety 21-4, 244w
English language 244w
Isle of Wight 551w

Air travel
Smoking 2w, 351w

Airbus Industrie
Subsidies 444w

Airbuses
Government assistance to industry 444w

Aircraft
Exports 305w
Oil pollution control 739-40w

Aircraft noise
Jet aircraft 746-8w
Night flying 245-6w

Akhtar, Naseem
Immigration applications 149-50w

Al-Fayed Investment Holdings 262w

Alcoholic drinks
Football 965
Young people 37w, 710-1w

Alcoholic drinks duties
Non-alcoholic drinks 648w

Alcoholism 705w

Alexander, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1154
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 621
Questions
EC internal trade, Trade barriers 256w
NHS finance, Bassetlaw Health Authority 213w

Alison, Rt Hon Michael, Second Church Estates Commissioner
Questions
Redundant churches 15
Redundant churches, Church Commissioners 14-5
Teachers, Mathematics education 160w

Allen, Mr Graham
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 44-135 passim
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 380-4, 394, 402
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 267, 268, 272
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 929, 935
Questions
Access to Parliament 449-50w
Civil servants, Social security reform 703
Crime prevention, Nottingham 702w
Medical profession, Nottingham Health Authority 486w
Written questions, Knowles, Michael 767w

Alternative Land Use in the Rural Environment 586w

Alternatives to prison
Youth custody 709w

Alton, Mr David
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 314-7, 325
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1223-7
Questions
Abortion, Rape 111w
Fair Employment Commission, Northern Ireland 749w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 26
Maghaberry Prison, Prison population 591w
Merseyside Passenger Transport Executive, Rate precepts 739w

Altonjet
Defence procurement 82w

Alyn & Deeside
Housing 462-3w

Ambulance services 348w
Basingstoke Hospital 109-10w
Coatbridge 141w
Greater London 111-2w
NHS finance 502w
Northumberland 692w
Safety standards 409w
Voluntary organisations 413w

Amery, Rt Hon Julian
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 241-3
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 985

Ames, Mr David
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1232-5
Taxis, Crimes of violence (15:02:88) 799-801, 804
Questions
Crimes of violence, Taxis 619-20w
Employment schemes, Basildon 547-8w
Ministers' domestic visits, Basildon 708-9w
Prisoners, Road traffic offences 439-40w
Rate limitation, Basildon District Council 665w
Special education 579-80w
Taxis, Basildon 552w
Taxis, Homicide 767w
Taxis, Licensing 551-2w
VAT zero rated goods, Hospital radio 342w

Amos, Mr Alan
Questions
Abortion, Disclosure of information 111w, 351w
Abortion, Private health services 780w
Air travel, Smoking 2w
Rural areas, Development Commission 753w
Rural areas, Government assistance 461w
Smoking, Air travel 351w

Amphibious vehicles
Exercise Teamwork 88 239w

Analgesics
Heart diseases 631-2w
Medical research 631-2w

Anderson, Mr Donald
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1155
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1289-93, 1303-6
Questions
Multiple occupation, Housing policy 8-9
NHS charges, Foreign patients 745-6w

Anderton, James 216w

Anglo-Irish Agreement 149w, 499-500
Standing Order No 20 applications (15:02:88) 718

Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference
Expenditure 328w
Republic of Ireland 149w, 328w, 604w

Angus
EC grants & loans 476w
Housing construction 649w
Tourism 476w

Animal breeding
Pigs 58-62w

Animal experiments
Chemical weapons 538w

Animal feed
Health warnings 675w
Import duties 155w

Animal housing 726w

Animal husbandry
Dairy farming 237w

Animal welfare
Battery hens 726w

Annual reports
Residuary bodies 658w

Anonymous letters (12:02:88) 607-25, 31-56

Appeals
Army Board 449w
Employment discrimination 440-2w

APS
Drugs 271w

Archaeology 302w

Archer, Rt Hon Peter
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 993

Ardglass
Fisheries 749-50w

Areas of outstanding natural beauty
Forestry 775w

Armed conflict
Manufacturing industries 135w
Marine insurance 742w
Nuclear power stations 604w

Armed forces
Electoral register 84w, 136w
Horses 757w
VAT 770w
Youth training scheme 735w

Armed forces cadets
Inner cities initiative 735w

Armed forces deployment
Diego Garcia 445-6w
Frigates 735w
USA 418w

Armed forces officers
Ethnic groups 82w

Armed forces pensions
Nuclear weapons tests 758w

Armed forces recruitment
AIDS 135-6w

Armed forces storage depots 741w
Navy 735w

Armed forces training
Health 738w
Isle of Wight 386w

Armed services youth training scheme
Take-up 735w

Armilla patrol
Members' correspondence 756w
Merchant ships 446w, 448-9w

Armoured fighting vehicles
Exports 236w
Turkey 236w, 317w

Arms control
British Nuclear Fuels 240w
Civil service manpower 240w
Defence industries 292w

Arms Control & Disarmament (Privileges & Immunities) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
Royal assent (09:02:88) 169

Arms embargoes 714w

Arms exports
Afghanistan 391w
Turkey 317-8w

Armstrong, Ms Hilary
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1021
Training (16:02:88) 835
Questions
First Division Association, Official engagements 812
Income tax 493-4
Public sector borrowing requirement 335w
Regional aid 346

Army
Clergy 85w
Clinical depression 445w
Intimidation 755w
Resignations 83w

Army Board
Appeals 449w

Army in Northern Ireland
Holroyd, Fred 41w
Television programmes 712w

Arnold, Mr Jacques
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 903
Self-employed (15:02:88) 753-4
Training (16:02:88) 834
Questions
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 172

Arnold, Mr Tom
Questions
Disley bypass, Road construction 748w
Higher civil servants, Treasury 91w
Local government staff, Greater Manchester 6-20w

Arrests
Football 434w

Art education 468w

Art works
Obscenity 468w

Artificial Limb & Appliance Centres Review 203w

Artificial sweeteners
House of Commons catering 727w

Arts 698
Curriculum 466w, 697
Homosexuality 698
Inner city areas 281w
Pensioners 467w
UNESCO 697-8
Wales 11

Arts Council 568-70w, 697-9, 769w
Arts finance 152w, 698

Arts Council grants 568-70w
Ethnic minorities 698-9, 769w
National Theatre 699-700
Regional arts associations 570w

Arts finance 468w, 699
Arts Council 152w, 698
Museums & galleries 467w

"Arts in Inner Cities" 281w

Arts sponsorship
Business sponsorship incentive scheme 151w

Asbestos
Housing estates 755w

Ashbourne bypass
Road construction 452w

Ashby, Mr David
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 937-8
Questions
Furniture, Fire regulations 343
South Africa, Refugees 236w

Ashdown, Mr Paddy
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1088
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 468, (17:02:88) 1001, 1022, 1055-8, 1063, 1072
Questions
Academic freedom 580-1w
Community charge, Overseas students 456w
Education allowances, Costs 601-2w
Examinations 817
Homelessness, Bed & breakfast accommodation 661w
Social security benefits, Students 695w
Tax yields, Deeds of covenant 721w
Universities 810

Ashford 312w

Ashley, Rt Hon Jack
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 359
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 203, 239-41
Questions
Drugs, Eli Lilley 628w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171
Handicapped pupils, Special education 572w
North Staffordshire Health Authority, Construction 189w
Prisons, Crown immunity 704w
Pupil records, Disclosure of information 309-10w

Ashton, Mr Joseph
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 199-204, 219, 264-5
Questions
NHS finance, Capital investment 97w
Smoking, Public houses 190w

Aspinwall, Mr Jack
Questions
VAT, Confectionery 568w

Assisted areas 256w

Assisted places scheme 599-601w

Associated British Ports (No 2) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

Associations of British Chambers of Commerce
Official engagements 251w
Uniform business rate 664-5w

Association of Chief Police Officers 305w
Official engagements 1133

Association of Chief Police Officers (Scotland) 305w

Aston University 82w

Atkins, Mr Robert, Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 540, 541
Questions
Airbus Industrie, Subsidies 444w
Airbuses, Government assistance to industry 444w
Assisted areas 256w
Austin Rover, Cars 251w
Austin Rover, Privatisation 251-2w
British Steel Corporation 341
British Steel Corporation, House of Commons questions 444w
British Steel Corporation, Privatisation 147-8w, 341-2
Cars, Retail trade 255-6w
Devon & Cornwall Development Bureau, Industrial investment 759-60w
EC internal trade, Trade barriers 256w
English Industrial Estates Corporation, Expenditure 257w
Enterprise & Deregulation Unit, Business 532w
Enterprise counsellors, Accountants 148w
European Regional Development Fund, EC grants & loans 146-7w
Factory closures, Canning Town Glass 259-60w
Foreign investment in UK, Japan 255w
Government assistance to industry, Lancashire 148-9w
Industrial development, Castleford 532-3w
Innovation, Government assistance to industry 260w
Iron & steel, Production 258-9w
Iron & steel industry, Redundancy 533w
Leyland Trucks, Profitability 255w
London city action team 441-2w
Manufacturing industries, Productivity 262-4w
Metal industries, Industrial production 341
Mining, Equipment 261w
Motor industry 250w
Motor industry, Exhaust emission controls 605-6w
Official engagements, European Regional Development Fund 254w
Paper industry, Industrial energy prices 345
Paper industry, Industrial production 344-5
Paper industry, Patent Office 345
Printing industry, Production 248w
Publishing 350
Publishing, Industrial production 350
Regional aid, Bridgend 352
Regional aid, European Regional Development Fund 253w
Regional aid, Regional selective assistance 533-6w
Regional aid, York 534w
Regional selective assistance 252w
Rover Group, Positive vetting 305w, 444w
Textile industry 251w

Atkinson, Mr David
Debates etc.
Self-employed (15:02:88) 751-2
Questions
Badgers, Nature conservation 379w
Firearms, Import controls 1137
Hong Kong, Civil service pensions 391w
HOTOL 257w
NHS finance, Inquiries 176w
Skiing, Death 458w

Atomic Weapons Research Establishment
Defence research 82-3w
Manpower 444-5w
Trident 537w

Attorney-General 223w, 325w
Cash limits 613w
Sexual harassment 291w

Audio equipment
Production 531w

Audio recordings 344

Austin Rover
Cars 251w
Privatisation 251-2w

Australia
Intelligence services 46w
Parliamentary gifts (09:02:88) 169

Availability for work
Invalid care allowances 627-8w
Social security benefits disqualification 696-7w

Average earnings 716w
Income tax 87-8w, 722w
Managers 316-8w
Manual workers 316-8w
Manufacturing industries 232-4w
Women 716-8w

Avgas 566w

Aviation fuels
Excise duties 566w

AWRE see Atomic Weapons Research Establishment

Axle weights
Road damage 245w

Bacteria
Food hygiene 198-9w

Badgers
Nature conservation 379w

Baker, Rt Hon Kenneth, Secretary of State for Education & Science
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1083-4
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 453-7, (17:02:88) 1000-8, 1012-3, 1015
Questions
Curriculum, Teachers 815
Edinburgh University, Higher education admission 815-6
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Bradford 814-5
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Educational finance 814
Educational finance 50-4w, 815
Examinations 816-7
Examinations, Age 816-8
Examinations, Curriculum 817
Extracurricular activities, Fees & charges 683-4w
Ideal Homes Exhibition, Dept of Education & Science 219-20w
Inner London Education Authority, Educational standards 219w
School administration, Educational finance 815
Schools, Fees & charges 808-9
Schools, Parental contributions 808-9
University finance, Cash limits 767w

Baker, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1265, 1275, 1280, 1297-300
Questions
Barnsley, Official engagements 519w
Community charge, Parish councils 664w
EC Agriculture Council 154-5w
Lychett Minster, Official engagements 134w
Maintenance 291w
Official engagements, East Stow 294w
Personal equity plans 340w
Planning permission, Illuminated signs 21w
Play groups 581w
Rights of way, Land ownership & tenure 19w
Social services finance, Voluntary organisations 180w
Television programmes, Army in Northern Ireland 712w
West Dorset Health Authority, NHS administration 1147

Balance of payments 335w, 348, 373-6w

Balance of trade 606w
Electronic equipment 33-4w
Japan 256-7w
Manufactured goods 34w, 249-50w, 495
Unemployment 349
USA 260w

Baldry, Mr Tony
Questions
Local government services, Direct labour departments 461w
Management, Education 248w
Oxfordshire Health Authority, Hospital patients 169w
Privatisation 337w
Rate limitation 382w
School administration, Educational finance 815
Youth custody, Alternatives to prison 709w

Bank notes 649w

Bank services
Codes of practice 262w

Bankruptcy 492-3

Banks
Developing countries 152w
Tax allowances 338w

Banks, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Business questions intervention (11:02:88) 513
Business statements (18:02:88) 1162
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1084, 1087, 1093, 1096, 1098-103, 1106-8
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 202-3, 206, 219, 236, 258, 259-60, 276, 281
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1001, 1004-5, 1022, 1043, 1073
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1222, 1225, 1228-9, 1241, 1245
Questions
Arts, Homosexuality 698
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Bus stops, Parking 451w
Business statements 510-1
Civil servants, Ministers 700
Curriculum, Inner London boroughs 682w
Economic League, Dept of the Environment 297w
Economic League, Dept of Transport 358w
Economic League, Ministry of Defence 318w
Education, Immigrants 711-2w
Educational administration, Inner London boroughs 681-2w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 27
Hong Kong, Nature conservation 292-3w
Inner London Education Authority 47w, 575w
Inner London Education Authority, Research 682w
London Ambulance Service, Manpower 185-6w
London Docklands Development Corporation 968
National insurance contributions, Tax evasion 353-4w
National insurance credits, Expenditure 354w
Official cars, Costs 131w
PAYE, Tax evasion 422w
Percentage for Arts schemes 467w
Police, London City Airport 41w
Redundant churches 15
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Prosecutions 685w
White fronted geese, Islay 72-3w

Barnes, Mr Harry
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 445-7
Questions
School leaving, Further education 582w

Barnes, Mrs Rosie
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1033-6
Questions
Education, Inner London boroughs 433w
Hospices, District health authorities 274-6w
Hospital closures, Brook Hospital 273w
Inner London Education Authority, Educational standards 575w
Student grants, Medical students 217-8w

Barnet Health Authority 629-30w
Nurses 190w

Barnsley
Community care 381-2w
Crime 361w
Official engagements 519w
Police 362w
Schools 373w

Barron, Mr Kevin
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 149

Barrow in Furness
Unemployment 473w

Basildon
Employment schemes 547-8w
Ministers' domestic visits 708-9w
Taxis 552w

Basildon District Council
Rate limitation 665w

Basingstoke
Official engagements 293w

Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority
Adult training centres 105-7w
Capital investment 105-6w
Expenditure 99-102w
Geriatric patients 102-4w
Health service staff 108-10w
Health visitors 105-6w
Hospital beds 102-4w
Hospital patients 101-4w
Hospital waiting lists 278-80w
Mental health services 107w
Mental patients 107-8w
NHS finance 99-100w, 279w
Pay 100w
Supplementary benefits 108w
Surgery 101-4w

Basingstoke Hospital
Ambulance services 109-10w

Bassetlaw Health Authority
NHS finance 213w

BASW see British Association of Social Workers

Batiste, Mr Spencer
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 447
Questions
Health insurance 269w
Health insurance, Northern Ireland 284w
Health insurance, Scotland 143w
Health insurance, Wales 318-9w

Battered wives
Community charge 478w

Battery hens
Animal welfare 726w
Orders & regulations 726w

Battle, Mr John
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 153-4
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1193-5
Questions
Family doctors, Leeds 264w
Homelessness, Departmental leaflets 661w
School leaving, Further education 582w

BBC 144-5w, 233w, 702-3w
"Secret Society" 728w

BBC external services
Government grants 233w

Beaumont-Dark, Mr Anthony
Questions
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 692
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 26
Metal industries, Industrial production 341
Skuse, Frank 1139

Beckett, Mrs Margaret
Debates etc.
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1169-75, 1203
Questions
Social security payments 177

Bed & breakfast accommodation
Homelessness 661w, 663w
Northern Ireland 166w

Beggs, Mr Roy
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1153
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 992
Questions
Ministers, Immigration controls 529w

Beggs, Roy
Members' imprisonment (15:02:88) 685

Begum, Saleena
Immigration applications 1136-7

Beith, Mr A J
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1151
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 358
Questions
Concessionary television licences, Pensioners 1141
Diets, Supplementary benefits 182w
House of Commons Refreshment Department, Conditions of employment 449w
House of Commons staff, Conditions of employment 449w
Housing associations, Northumberland 520-1w
Housing associations, Rent increases 669w
NHS finance 489
Prices 340w

Belfast
Gypsies 396w

Belgium
Hooliganism 438w
Legal aid 426w

Bell, Mr Stuart
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 716
Questions
Middlesbrough Borough Council 974

Bellingham, Mr Henry
Debates etc.
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1111-2
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 994
Questions
Litter, Waste disposal 666w
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 703w
Privatisation 337w
Schools, Rural areas 819

Bellringing
Dunkeld Cathedral 650w

Benn, Rt Hon Tony
Debates etc.
Bombings, Birmingham (16:02:88) 956-8
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 224-5, 251-4

Bennett, Mr Andrew F
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1083-4, 1093-5
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 454, 457-9, 464, 472-3, (17:02:88) 1001
Questions
Degrees, Educational finance 810
Further education, Young people 46w
Local government services, Fees & charges 31w
Public inquiries, Judges 364w
Science & technology research, Research finance 814
Teachers, Degrees 371w
Tree planting, Tax allowances 490-1
Tuition fees, Part-time education 216w

Bennett, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 530
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 208, 211, 232, 266
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1006
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1219-20, 1225-6, 1240-2
Questions
Abseiling, Women 131w
Accident & emergency departments, Costs 408w
Accident & emergency departments, Wales 123w
Armed forces, Electoral register 84w, 136w
Community charge, Caravan sites 13
Craft industries, Wales 517w
D & C operations 213-4w
Dept of the Environment, Cash limits 128-9w
Education, Expenditure 745w
Examinations 816
Export credit guarantees, Contracts 442-3w
Family doctors, Costs 115w
Family doctors, Wales 123w
General Certificate of Secondary Education 576w
Hospital catering, Wales 123-4w
Hospital consultants, Contracts of employment 490w
Hospital patients, Costs 408-9w
Hospital waiting lists, Wales 81w, 123-4w
Housing benefits, Social security benefits rules 779w
Income tax, Average earnings 87-8w
NHS, Expenditure 18
NHS charges, Income 401-2w
Nuclear power stations, Testing 510w
Nurses, Shift work 116w
Nurses' training, Student wastage 785-6w
Oldchurch Hospital 115-6w
Operating theatres, NHS 401w
Private education, Pupils 765-8w
Rates & rating 455-6w
Republic of Ireland, Military aircraft 776w
Rescue services, Republic of Ireland 755-6w
Structure plans, Wales 598w
Stun guns 1138
Surgery, Scotland 656-7w
Teacher training, Wales 224w

Benyon, Mr W
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 992
Questions
Business statements 508-9

Bergeman, Audrey Ann 620w

Berkshire
Structure plans (11:02:88) 599-606, 668w

Berkshire County Council 1w

Bermingham, Mr Gerald
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 311, 316, 320-1
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 936, 941, 943, 945
Prime Minister's questions, NHS (09:02:88) 188
Questions
Business statements 513
Crown Prosecution Service, Manpower 42-4w
Medical equipment, Members' correspondence 780w

Bethell, Lord 1140-1

Bevan, Mr David Gilroy
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 156-7

Bexley Health Authority
NHS finance 173w

BGC see British Gas Corporation

Bibles
Prisons 619w

Bidwell, Mr Sydney
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 900-2
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1211, 1220, 1223, 1238-40
Questions
District health authorities, Resignations 168-9w
Student Awards Review Committee 571w

Biggs-Davison, Sir John
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 982
Questions
Anglo-Irish Agreement 499-500
Defective housing, House renovation grants 667w

Birds
Monofilament gill nets 588w
Poisons 61w

Birmingham (16:02:88) 950-8
Bombings 436-7w, 706w
Industrial development 969

Birmingham Children's Hospital
Heart diseases 497-8w, 626-8, 700-1w
Hospital waiting lists 626
Standing Order No 20 applications (11:02:88) 519-20

Birmingham University 82w

Biscuit Cake Chocolate & Confectionery Alliance 568w

Bishopbriggs
Resettlement units 98w

BL see Rover Group

Blackburn, Dr John G
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 154
Questions
Compliance cost assessments 263w
EC trade, EC action 147w

Blackburn Hyndburn & Ribble Valley Health Authority
Hospital waiting lists 623-4w
Patients 558-60w

Blair, Mr Tony
Questions
Enterprise initiative 347
Exceptional needs payments, North East region 500-2w
Financial Services Act 1986 338-9
Financial Services Act 1986, Self-regulating organisations 607-8w
Insider trading 536w
Personal tax allowances 333w
Supplementary benefits, Cleveland 114w
Supplementary benefits, Darlington 113-4w

Blaker, Rt Hon Sir Peter
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 356-7
Questions
Hong Kong, Government 236w

Blin-Stoyle Committee see National Curriculum Mathematics Working Group

Blind
Optical charges exemptions (12:02:88) 668-9

Blood donors
AIDS 367w

Blood tests
AIDS 199w
Costs 199w
Genetics 362w, 1137

Blunkett, Mr David
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 104
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 278
Questions
Community charge, Local authorities 664w
Examinations 573w
NHS finance, District health authorities 177w
Nurses, Lost working days 555w
Regional health authorities, Expenditure 698w

Blyth valley
Handicap benefits 554w
Unemployment 472w

BM see British Museum

BNFL see British Nuclear Fuels

Board & lodging charges
Social security recipients 113w
Wales 113w

Board of Inland Revenue see Inland Revenue

Boateng, Mr Paul
Questions
Arts Council grants, Ethnic minorities 698-9
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 184w

Body searches
Durham Prison 544w
Maghaberry Prison 592w
Risley Remand Centre 544-5w

Bombings
Birmingham 436-7w, 706w
Criminal appeals (16:02:88) 950-8
Criminal investigation 538-9w
La Belle discotheque 538-9w

Bonsor, Sir Nicholas
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 944

Bophuthatswana 236w
Foreign policy 56w, 424w
Overseas aid 33w, 428-9w

Borders Region
Forests 480w

Borwell, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 770
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1186-8, 1190
Questions
Ambulance services 348w
Ambulance services, NHS finance 502w
Austin Rover, Cars 251w
Cereals, Co-responsibility levy 329w
Examinations, Curriculum 371w
Family credit, Disclosure of information 176w
Food labelling, EC action 727w
Game, Licensing 303w, 708w
Pesticides, Safety standards 329-30w
Public sector assets, Overseas investment 336w
Sheep premiums, Judgments 330w
Tax allowances, Social security benefits 722w

Bottles 713w

Bottomley, Mr Peter, Under-Secretary of State for Transport
Questions
A27, Road construction 742-3w
Air safety, Air traffic control 244w
Air safety, Inquiries 357-8w
Air safety, Near misses 244w, 357w
Air traffic control, English language 244w
Air traffic control, Isle of Wight 551w
Air travel, Smoking 2w
Aircraft noise, Jet aircraft 746-8w
Ashbourne bypass, Road construction 452w
Axle weights, Road damage 245w
Bus stops, Parking 451w
Buses, Road accidents 410-1w
Buses, Safety belts 411w
Buses, Speed limits 411w
Bypasses, Road construction 451w
Car ownership, Road traffic 357w
Cars, Motor vehicle safety 551w
Cycling, Road accidents 412-3w
Dartford Thurrock Crossing Bill 1987/88 616w
Dartford Thurrock Crossing Bill 1987/88, Government responses 551-3w
Disley bypass, Road construction 748w
Drinking & driving, Non-alcoholic drinks 133-4w
Driving tests 411-2w
Economic League, Dept of Transport 358w
Handicapped drivers, Parking 615w
Heathrow Airport, Air traffic 453w
Leisure drives, Cheshire 452w
M3-M27 link, Public inquiries 356w
M6, Elevated sections of motorways 454w
M20, Road construction 742w
M25, Road traffic 614-5w, 742w
M62, Road construction 748w
Manchester Airport, Fees & charges 615-6w
Manchester Airport, Speed limits 615w
Motor vehicle safety 246-7w
Motor vehicles, Head restraints 613w
Motorways 409w
Motorways, Road accidents 616w
Motorways, Road traffic 741-2w
Rear seat belts, Car hire 616w
Rights of way, Local government expenditure 450-1w
Road construction, Contracts 2-4w
Road finance, Capital investment 358-60w
Road finance, Local government expenditure 358w
Road safety 242-3w
Road tax, Tax evasion 452-3w
Road traffic, Greater London 614w
Roads, Privatisation 243w
Severn bridge, Road tolls 450w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Transport 1-2w
Transport of radioactive materials, Road accidents 241w
Tyre tread depths, EC action 410w, 749w
Vehicles, Lighting 410w
Winchester bypass, Road accidents 356w

Bottomley, Mrs Virginia
Questions
Advisory Council on Science & Technology, Official engagements 519w
Death rate 169-70w
Offenders, Electronic surveillance 139-40w
Teachers, Industrial disputes 371w

Boundary Commission for England 768-9w

Boundary Commission for Scotland 734w

Boundary Commission for Wales 768w

Bovine somatotropin 156-7w
EC countries 678w
Licensing 678w
Testing 678w

Bowden, Mr Andrew
Questions
Age allowances, Pensioners 266w
Assisted places scheme 599-601w
Retirement pensions, Age addition 98-9w
Social security benefits, Voluntary organisations 266w
Unemployment benefits, Occupational pensions 191w

Bowden, Mr Gerald
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 470, (17:02:88) 1058-60
Questions
Pensioners, Personal income 171w
Stalker, John, Prosecutions 291w

Bowis, Mr John
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 463-5
Training (16:02:88) 828
Questions
Arts finance 698
Companies 337w
Homicide, Life imprisonment 712-4w

New businesses, Consultants 254w
School admission, Greater London 53-6w
University finance, Cash limits 767w
USSR, Chernobilsky, Boris 149w

Boxing
Safety 287w

Boyes, Mr Roland
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 159
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 946
Questions
Armoured fighting vehicles, Turkey 317w
Arms exports, Turkey 317-8w
Civil service, Inquiries 294w
Civil service, Prime Minister's Efficiency Unit 294-5w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Resignations 180-2w
Drinking & driving, Non-alcoholic drinks 133-4w
Literacy, Educational finance 807
London Docklands Development Corporation, Resignations 127-8w
National Museum of Photography 467w
NHS finance, Expenditure 488
Official engagements 45w
Police, Northumberland 1133
Prime Minister's Efficiency Unit 295w
Property Services Agency, Civil service manpower 967-8
Property Services Agency, Efficiency scrutinies 299-302w
Special education 580w
Unemployment, Houghton 475w
Water authorities, External financing limits 752-3w
Water authorities, Official engagements 669w
Water charges 128w
Water supply industry, Privatisation 461w

Boyson, Rt Hon Sir Rhodes
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1041-4

BP see British Petroleum

BPA see British Paediatric Association

Bradford
Education Reform Bill 1987/88 814-5
Property Services Agency 967
Urban programme 673w
Water supply 127w

Bradley, Mr Keith
Questions
Community charge 455w
Homelessness, Mortgage defaulters 660-1w

Braine, Rt Hon Sir Bernard
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 213-7
Questions
Business statements 504-5

Brandon-Bravo, Mr Martin M
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 433-4
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 294
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1216-7, 1220, 1226, 1236-8
Questions
Industrial production 333w
Nottingham Development Enterprise 968-9

"Brass Tacks" 346w

Bray, Dr Jeremy
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 362
Trident submarines, Mull of Galloway (10:02:88) 366
Questions
British Steel Corporation 351
Science budget 571w

Bray District Council
Contracts 166w

Brazier, Mr Julian
Questions
Aerospace industry 252w
Business statements 512

Bread
Food prices 725w

Breast cancer
Central Nottinghamshire Health Authority 628-9w
Scotland 483w
Screening 556w, 628-30w

Breathalysers
Age 215w

Brewers' Society 133-4w

Bridgend
Regional aid 352

Bright, Mr Graham
Debates etc.
Self-employed (15:02:88) 728-32
Questions
Frigates, Armed forces deployment 735w
Motor industry, Exhaust emission controls 605-6w
Railway travel, South East region 355-6w

Brighton & Preston Cemetery Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R* (18:02:88) 1131

Bristol
Homelessness 972
Urban development corporations 666w

Bristol City Council
Council housing finance 972

British Aerospace 257w, 444w

British Airways 21, 415w

British Association of Social Workers 214w

British Bakeries
Takeovers 354

British Boxing Board of Control 287w

British Broadcasting Corporation see BBC

British citizenship
Departmental correspondence 546-7w

British Coal Corporation 63w, 133w, 224-5w, 415w, (10:02:88) 478-84, 507w, 511-2w, 684w, 687, 695
Capital investment 509w
Coal mining 511w
North East region 509w
Nottinghamshire 512w
Official engagements 20, 508w, 511w, 693
Privatisation 509w, 512w

British Gas Corporation 92w, 415w

British Industry Committee on South Africa 233w

British Land 621w

British Leyland see Rover Group

British merchant fleet 414w

British Museum
Museums & galleries 466w

British Nuclear Fuels 226w, 461-2w, 515-6w, 589w
Arms control 240w
Exhibitions 226w
Sellafield 509w

British Paediatric Association
Upper waiting hall 264w

British Petroleum 34w
Kuwait (08:02:88) 37
Standing Order No 20 applications (08:02:88) 37

British Rail 246w, 355-7w, 415w, 747w
Capital investment 241-2w
External financing limits 454w
Land acquisition 740w

British Railways Board 355-6w

British Railways (No 2) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

British residents abroad
Legal aid 416w

British Shipbuilders 415w

British Steel Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
1R (11:02:88) 523

British Steel Corporation 341, 351, 415w, (11:02:88) 523
House of Commons questions 444w
Privatisation 147-8w, 341-2, 351-2

British strategic nuclear force
Labour Party 1145-6
USSR 822

British Telecom 92w, (09:02:88) 329-36, 415w
Computer privacy 254w
Disclosure of information 443w

British Veterinary Association 221w

Britoil 92w
Government shareholding 486
North Sea oil 690
Takeovers 34w

Brittan, Rt Hon Leon
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 709-10
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 248-51

Brixton Prison
Prison staff 1140

Broadcast journalism
Radio 40w

Broadcasting controls
Radio 362w
Television 703w

Brook Hospital
Hospital closures 273w

Brooke, Rt Hon Peter, Paymaster General
Questions
Accountants, Civil service manpower 647-8w
Bankruptcy 492-3
Cider, Tax yields 490
Civil service, London allowance 92w
Civil service dispersal, Costs 339w
Civil service manpower 416-7w
Companies 336-7w
Debts, Developing countries 332w
EC budget 152-4w
EC budget, UK contributions 152w, 387-8w
EC budget, UK repayments 567w, 648w
Government data network, Computer privacy 247w, 567w

Government data network, Computers in Government departments 567-8w, 721-2w
Government data network, Cost effectiveness 568w
Government data network, Government contracts 247w
Government data network, Police national computer 721w
Higher civil servants, Treasury 91w
House of Commons publications, Administrative delays 388w
House of Commons publications, House of Commons Standing Committees 388w
Imports 495
Inflation 331w
Intestacy, Charities 769w
Intestacy, Companies 769w
Manufactured goods, Balance of trade 495
New businesses 492
New businesses, North East region 493
Paper, Recycling 537w
Productivity 494-5
Profitability 330w
Sexual harassment, Treasury 92w
Tax & price index 331w
VAT zero rated goods, European Court of Justice 332-3w

Brown, Mr Gordon
Questions
Hospital beds, NHS & private practice 407-8w
Income support scheme, Rates & rating 489-90w
Income tax, Average earnings 88w
Income tax, Low incomes 89-90w
Income tax, Tax rates & bands 90w, 417-8w
Ionizing radiation, Radiation protection 771w
Leukaemia, Fife 774w
National insurance contributions, Employees' contributions 205w
NHS, Expenditure 278w
NHS finance 489-90
Pensioners, Social security benefits 203-4w
Personal income 93-4w
Public expenditure, Government departments 770w
Public expenditure, Scotland 773-4w
Retirement pensions, Retail price index 272w
Social Fund, Debts written off 490w
Social Fund, Expenditure 401w
Tax allowances, Enterprise zones 421w
Tax allowances, Tax rates & bands 93-5w
Tax evasion 421w, 425w
Tax evasion, Prosecutions 421w
Unpaid taxes 422w

Brown, Mr Nicholas
Questions
Rolls-Royce Aeroengines, Privatisation 487

Brown, Mr Ron
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1163
Training (16:02:88) 835-6
Questions
Company liquidations 337
Edinburgh University, Higher education admission 815

Bruce, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 827
Questions
British strategic nuclear force, USSR 822
National income 338w
Social security benefits, Young people 189-90w

Bruce, Mr Malcolm
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1089
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 127, 131-3
Self-employed (15:02:88) 724-8, 740
Training (16:02:88) 829
Questions
Aberdeen University, Official engagements 577w
Exports, COCOM 305w
Handicapped workers, Aids for handicapped 227-8w
Higher civil servants, Inland Revenue 92w
Intelligence services, National security 500
Paper industry, Industrial energy prices 345
Pension funds, Company investigations 90w
Tax allowances, Pension funds 90w

Brucellosis
Scotland 223w

BSC see British Steel Corporation

BT see British Telecom

BTEC see Business & Technician Education Council

Buchan, Mr Norman
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1159
Questions
Arts Council grants 568-70w
Arts Council grants, Regional arts associations 570w

Buck, Sir Antony
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 532, 552

Budgen, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 714-5
Questions
Business statements 509-10
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 492

Budget 90w, 496
EC Finance Council 419w
Tobacco duties 419-20w
Unemployment 342w

Building industry
Extortion 593w
London Docklands 126w
Tax exemption certificates 723w

Building repairs
Woolwich Polytechnic 753w

Building workers
Northern Ireland 593w
Terrorism 593w

Burglary
Westminster Children's Hospital 781w

Burns, Mr Simon
Debates etc.
National Health Service (National Lottery) Bill, Motion to introduce Bill negatived (16:02:88) 841
Questions
Charitable donations 153w
Chelmsford Prison, Prison staff 702w
Consumer credit, Disclosure of information 443w
Hospital patients 169w
Income tax, Tax burden 333w
NHS 174
Ordnance Survey 129w
Planning permission, Administrative delays 669w
Skoal Bandits 197w
Unemployment 1148

Burntwood
Primary education 811-2

Burt, Mr Alistair
Debates etc.
Smoke Detectors in Houses Bill, 1R (09:02:88) 189-91
Questions
Industrial investment, Manufacturing industries 491
Urban development corporations, Manchester 666w

Bury
Official engagements 13

Bus crews
Information 413w
Public service vehicles 740w
Smoking 413w

Bus services
London Regional Transport 452w
Wales 77w

Bus services subsidies
Shropshire County Council 1w

Bus stops
Parking 451w

Buses
Crime 413-4w
Crimes of violence 412w
Greater London 749w
Motor vehicle safety 741w
Road accidents 410-1w
Safety belts 411w
Speed limits 411w

Business
Company law 353
Consultants 346-7
Enterprise & Deregulation Unit 532w
Lancaster 354

Business & Technician Education Council 48w

Business education
Health service staff 556w

Business in the Community
Employment schemes 314-5w

Business motions (19:02:88) 1322

Business sponsorship incentive scheme
Arts sponsorship 151w

Business statements 503-18, (18:02:88) 1157-68

Butane gas
Death 397-8w

Butcher, Mr John, Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry
Debates etc.
Patent Office, Civil service dispersal (17:02:88) 1126-30
Talkabout service (09:02:88) 330, 331-6
Questions
Bank services, Codes of practice 262w
Bottles 713w
British Telecom, Computer privacy 254w
British Telecom, Disclosure of information 443w
Bury, Official engagements 13
Child safety, EC action 261w
Computer aided design, Government assistance 250w
Computers in Government departments, Dept of Trade & Industry 713-4w
Consumer protection, Food 306-7w
Copyright, Reprography 145w
Crown copyright 305-6w
Dept of Trade & Industry, Disclosure of information 35w
Dept of Trade & Industry, Television advertising 256w
EC transport policy, EC Consumer Affairs Council 360w
Empty housing, Duchy of Lancaster 33w
Estate Agents Act 1979 307w
Furniture, Fire regulations 342-3
London Regional Passengers' Committee 454w

London Regional Passengers' Committee, Public appointments 743-4w
Manchester City Council, Redundancy 14
Official engagements, Consumers' Association 251w
Patent Office 145-6w
Peel, Robert 14
Pens, Consumer protection 340-1
Retail trade 442w
Safety standards, EC action 260w
Science & technology research, Education & industry 254-5w
Science & technology research, Expenditure 255w
"Sex", Terrence Higgins Trust 608w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Trade & Industry 33w
Sub post offices, Finance 609w
Superconductivity, Industry 607w
Telecommunications cables, Optical fibres 145w
Telecommunications industry, Competition 349-50
Telecommunications industry, Europe 340
Telecommunications industry, Retail trade 339
Telephone directories, Exports 339-40
Telephones, Equipment 350
Telephones, Pornography 350

Butler, Mr Chris
Debates etc.
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 615-7, 620, 634
Questions
AIDS, New York 776w
AIDS, Technicians 489w, 626-7w
Animal feed, Health warnings 675w
Armed forces recruitment, AIDS 135-6w
Arts Council, Arts finance 152w
Arts finance 699
Blood donors, AIDS 367w
Civil Service College, Private sector 703
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board, Police 544w
Drug abuse, Glasgow 772w
Erskine bridge, Toll bridges 320w
European Security Conference, Romania 233w
Falkland Islands, Fisheries 425w
M6, Elevated sections of motorways 454w
Mersey Regional Health Authority, Expenditure 192-4w
Mersey tunnel, Debts 740w
Mozambique, Security 775-6w
NHS administration, Costs 166w
NHS administration, Manpower 11-2
Prisons, Privatisation 704w
Publishing, Industrial production 350
School leaving, Literacy 807
Severn bridge, Road tolls 450w
South Bank, Shops 468w
Tax allowances, Health insurance 90w
Visual arts, Prisons 568w
Wormwood Scrubs, Prison medical services 302w

Butler-Sloss Committee see Child Abuse in Cleveland Judicial Inquiry

Butter
European Council 612w
Intervention stocks 689-90w
Retail prices 676-7w

Butterfill, Mr John
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1209, 1219, 1223, 1225, 1228, 1233
Questions
South Africa, Overseas investment 233w

Byford, Lawrence 216w

Bypasses
Road construction 451w
Wales 77w

CA see Consumers' Association

CAA see Civil Aviation Authority

Caerphilly Hospital 5

Caesarian sections
Childbirth 177-8w

Callaghan, Mr Jim
Questions
Dental charges, Dental health 184w

Calling of Members
Speaker's rulings & statements (10:02:88) 358, 363, (11:02:88) 522-3, (15:02:88) 709, 716, (17:02:88) 992, 996, (19:02:88) 1259-60

Camberwell
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 698-700w
Exceptional needs payments 700w

Campaign for the Defence of Riverside Hospitals 781w

Campbell, Mr Menzies
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 548-50
Business statements (18:02:88) 1161-2
Questions
Arts, UNESCO 697-8
Firearms, Imports 1138
Football 965
Radio, Drama 708w

Campbell, Mr Ronnie
Questions
Ambulance services, Northumberland 692w
Cervical cancer, Northern region 493w
Child benefit, Family income 777w
Government shareholding 334w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 554w
Northumberland Health Authority, Dogs 493w
Nurses, Northumberland Health Authority 776w
Police, Manpower 620w
Pre-school education, Northumberland 578w
Private education, Northumberland 585w
School buildings, Northumberland 579w
Unemployment, Blyth valley 472w

Campbell-Savours, Mr D N
Debates etc.
British Petroleum, Standing Order No 20 applications (08:02:88) 37
Business statements (18:02:88) 1164
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 760-1
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 192, 224, 246-8
Oral question time intervention (09:02:88) 186
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 994
Training (16:02:88) 832
Questions
Defence procurement, Altonjet 82w
Defence procurement, Moores Wallisdown 82w
House of Commons Library, "Spycatcher" 17
Inner city areas, "Faith in the City" 962
Nuclear industry Radioactive Waste Executive, Radioactive waste disposal 666w
Police, West Yorkshire 1134
Police misconduct, Stalker, John 216w
Royal prerogative, Intelligence services 39w
Secondary education, Cumbria 813
"Security & Counter Intelligence" 752w
Sellafield, Testing 7
Telephones, Equipment 350
VAT, Newspaper press 496

Canada
Milk 157w

Canavan, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 935
Questions
Budget 90w
Community charge 975
Electoral register, Scotland 774w
Furniture, Fire regulations 342-3
Health service staff, Pay settlements 115w
HMS Resolution, Nuclear submarines 756w
Metropolitan Police, Demonstrations 1143-4
Student grants 159w

Cancer
Scotland 773w
Screening 75w
Social class 773w
Women 773w

Cancer hazards
Engine oil 97-8w

Canning Town Glass
Factory closures 259-60w

Capenhurst 226w, 240w

Capital
Stock market 249w

Capital gains tax
Investment 87w
Tax yields 87w

Capital investment
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 105-6w
British Coal Corporation 509w
British Rail 241-2w
Coal mining 392w
Community health services 697-8w
Educational finance 159w
NHS finance 97w
Road finance 358-60w
Scotland 143-4w

Capital movements
EC Finance Council 420w

Capital rules 177

Car hire
Rear seat belts 616w

Car ownership
Road traffic 357w

Car tax
Tax harmonisation 343-4w

Caravan sites
Community charge 13
Local authorities 458-60w

Caravans
Parking offences 539w
Tayside 539w

Cardiff 18-9

Cardiff Bay Barrage Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

Care proceedings
Scotland 143w

Carlile, Mr Alex
Debates etc.
Anglo-Irish Agreement, Standing Order No 20 applications (15:02:88) 718
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 362
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 936-7

Questions
Charities, Religious sects 704w
Craft industries, Wales 11
Developing countries, Family planning 428w
House of Commons Library, "Spycatcher" 17
Interest rates 331w
Sports facilities, Wales 16
Universities, Wales 580w

Carlisle, Mr John
Debates etc.
Self-employed (15:02:88) 731
Questions
Police, Injuries 136w

Carrington, Mr Matthew
Debates etc.
Access to Medical Reports Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 660-3
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1046-9
Questions
Disposable income 335-6w
EC Finance Council, Capital movements 420w
Telecommunications cables, Optical fibres 145w
Youth training scheme 317w

Cars
Austin Rover 251w
Imports 284w
Motor vehicle safety 551w
Northern Ireland 165w, 284w
Retail trade 255-6w

Cartwright, Mr John
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 851-2
Questions
City of London Polytechnic, Metalworking 216-7w
Disabled Persons (Employment) Act 1944, Handicapped workers 150w
Horniman Museum 761-2w
Service Children's Education Authority, Pay 383w
Transport, Inquiries 747w
Woolwich Polytechnic, Building repairs 753w

"Case for Change" 65w

Cash, Mr William
Debates etc.
Access to Medical Reports Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 666-7
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 616, 619, 621-2, 624, 632-4, 639, 642-9, 654
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 932, 942-3
Questions
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 628
Crime prevention, Codes of practice 1143
Public sector assets, Overseas investment 336w
Sporting events, Hooliganism 501

Cash limits
Attorney-General 613w
Dept of the Environment 128-9w
Housing Corporation 298-9w
Office of Arts & Libraries 569-70w
Property Services Agency 720w
University finance 767w

Castleford
Industrial development 532-3w

Category A prisoners 544w

CBI see Confederation of British Industry

CEGB see Central Electricity Generating Board

Census
Community charge 263w

Census of population
Community charge 695w
Ethnic groups 559w

Central Electricity Generating Board 62-3w, 461-2w, 507-8w, 512w, 515-6w, 589w, 684-5w, 687
Coal fired power stations 509w
Official engagements 511w

Central Nottinghamshire Health Authority 629-30w
Breast cancer 628-9w

Cereals
Agricultural land 465-6w
Agricultural production 690w
Co-responsibility levy 329w
EC countries 677w
Food aid from EC 687w
Intervention Board 586-8w
Production quotas 612w

Certification Office for Trade Union & Employers' Association see Certification Officer

Certification Officer (08:02:88) 39-139

Cervical cancer
Death 195w
Hospital waiting lists 518w
Northern region 493w
Scotland 772-3w
Screening 772-3w
Wales 12
Women 773w

Chairman of Committee of the Whole House
Debates etc.
Amendments & new clauses (12:02:88) 671

Chalker, Rt Hon Lynda, Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs
Questions
Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference, Republic of Ireland 604w
Bophuthatswana, Foreign policy 56w, 424w
EC law, Plain language 57w
Frontiers, EC countries 425w
Republic of Ireland, Royal Ulster Constabulary 391w
South Africa, Economic sanctions 425w
South Africa, Overseas investment 233w
South Africa, Refugees 236w
Turkey, Armoured fighting vehicles 236w
USA, Northern Ireland 426w

Chancellor of the Exchequer see Treasury

Channel ferries
Hazardous wastes 5w

Channel Four 712w

Channel tunnel
Employment services 312w
Investment 502
Railway network 246w
Waste disposal 741w

Channon, Rt Hon Paul, Secretary of State for Transport
Questions
Air safety 23
Air safety, Air routes 22
Air safety, Air traffic control 21-4
Air safety, National Air Traffic Services 22
Air safety, Near misses 21-2
Air safety, Transport of radioactive materials 23
British Rail, External financing limits 454w
France, Official engagements 615w
Marine insurance, Armed conflict 742w
Night flying, Aircraft noise 245-6w
Railway travel, South East region 355-6w
Stansted Airport, Air routes 410w

Chapelcross power station
Tritium 240w

Chapman, Mr Sydney
Questions
Arts finance 468w
Barnet Health Authority, Nurses 190w
Inner city areas, Departmental coordination 258w
Metropolitan Police, Manpower 710w
Overseas investment 498
Schools, Fees & charges 809
Town & country planning 659w
Tree planting, Tax allowances 491

Charitable donations 153w

Charities
Intestacy 769w
Law reform 436w, 704w, 707-8w
Legislation 138-9w
Religious sects 704w
Unification Church 42w, 125-6w, 416w

Charity Commission 704w

Chelmsford Prison
Prison staff 702w

Chelsea Football Club
Planning inquiries 298w
Planning permission 962-3

Chemical weapons
Animal experiments 538w
NATO 448w
USA 448w

Chemicals
Fish farming 464w
Production 610w

Chernobilsky, Boris
USSR 149w

Cheshire
Cost per pupil 584-5w
Enterprise allowance scheme 547-50w
Family doctors 268-9w
Job training scheme 230w
Leisure drives 452w
Restart programme 150w
Self-employed 229w
Tourist industry 229-30w
Unemployment 230-2w
Youth employment 231w

Cheshire County Council
Local government services 521-2w
Local government staff 520w

Chester
Empty housing 297w
Minimum wage 74w

Chester Health Authority 268-9w

Child Abuse in Cleveland Judicial Inquiry 364w

Child benefit
Family income 777w
Social security benefits uprating 346-7w

Child Benefit (Uprating) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 670

Child care (17:02:88) 997-9

Child Care Law in Scotland Review Group 143w

Child safety
EC action 261w

Childbirth 697w
Caesarian sections 177-8w

Children
Cycling 412-3w
Homicide 434w
Sexual offences 169w
Social security reform 176-7

Children in care 172w

Chile
Human rights 292w
Referenda 292w

Chlamydia
Diagnosis 626w

Chope, Mr Christopher, Under-Secretary of State for the Environment
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1246
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1119-21
Questions
Cheshire County Council, Local government services 521-2w
Cheshire County Council, Local government staff 520w
Community care, Barnsley 381-2w
Community charge 975-6
Coopers & Lybrand Associates, Disclosure of information 21w
Crown Suppliers, Privatisation 126w
Fire services, Contracts for services 671w
Leicestershire County Council, Employment discrimination 521w
Local authorities, Contract compliance 971
Local authorities, Racial discrimination 971-2
Local authorities, Sex discrimination 972
Local authority powers, Handicapped 290w
Local government expenditure, Lancashire County Council 382-4w
Local government land, Management 671w
Local government services, Fees & charges 31w
Local government services, Tenders 672-3w
Local government staff, Greater Manchester 6-20w
London Residuary Body, Offices 381w
New Parliamentary building, House of Commons accommodation 522-3w
Official cars, Costs 131w
Property Services Agency, Bradford 967
Property Services Agency, Cash limits 720w
Property Services Agency, Civil service manpower 967-8
Property Services Agency, Efficiency scrutinies 299-302w
Property Services Agency, Privatisation 967
Rate limitation 659w
Rate limitation, Basildon District Council 665w
Rates & rating, Farm buildings 462w
Rates & rating, London Boroughs Association 663w
Residuary bodies, Annual reports 658w
Residuary bodies, Public appointments 753-4w

Christianity
Unification Church 42w

Christmas Island 757w
Nuclear weapons tests 769w

Chronically Sick & Disabled Persons Act 1970
Questions
191w

Church Commissioners
Redundant churches 14-5

Church of England
Church schools 216w
Ethics 821

Church of England (Legal Aid & Miscellaneous Provisions) Measure 1988
Debates etc.
Royal assent (09:02:88) 169

Church schools
Church of England 216w

Churchill, Mr Winston
Questions
Exservicemen, Nuclear weapons tests 83-4w
Motorways 409w
NHS, Expenditure 276w

Cider
Tax yields 490

Citizens' Advice Bureaux
Homosexuality 608w
Obscene Publications Act 1959 620-1w

City of London Polytechnic
Metalworking 216-7w

City of London (Spitalfields Market) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

City technology colleges
Wolverhampton 574w

Civil Aviation Authority 2w, 244w, 453w, 615-6w

Civil servants
Codes of practice 465w
Communication skills 700-1
Conditions of employment 416-7w
Ministers 700
Performance reviews 702-3
Positive vetting 86w
Social security reform 703

Civil service 701-2
Inquiries 294w
London allowance 92w
Ministerial statements (18:02:88) 1149-56
Prime Minister's Efficiency Unit 294-5w

Civil service agencies (18:02:88) 1149-56

Civil Service College
Private sector 703

Civil service dispersal 701
Costs 339w
Dept of the Environment 287w
Dept of Trade & Industry 257w
Home Office 303w
Patent Office (17:02:88) 1122-30
Wales 10-1

Civil service manpower 416-7w
Accountants 647-8w
Arms control 240w
Dairy farming 328w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 180-1, 351w
Fraud 469w
Immigration & Nationality Division 137w
Information technology 174w
Ministry of Defence 446w
Mobility allowance 327w
Opposition Whips' Office 649w
Property Services Agency 967-8

Civil service pensions
Hong Kong 391w

Civil service recruitment 391-2w

Clark, Mr Alan, Minister of State for Trade and Industry
Questions
Aerospace industry 252w
Arms embargoes 714w
Balance of payments 348, 373-6w
Balance of trade 606w
Balance of trade, Japan 256-7w
Balance of trade, Unemployment 349
Balance of trade, USA 260w
Corporation tax 349
Data processing, Production 248w
EC grants & loans 760w
EC internal trade, Conferences 536-7w
EC internal trade, Employment 537w
EC internal trade, Trade barriers 256w, 259w
EC trade, EC action 147w
Electronic equipment, Retail trade 33-4w
Electronics industry, Production 250w
Export credit guarantees, Contracts 442-3w
Export licensing, Communication engineering 306w
Export licensing, Palestine Liberation Organisation 306w
Export prices, Dollar 342
Exports, COCOM 305w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 348
Generalised system of preferences, South Korea 714-6w
Manufactured goods, Balance of trade 34w, 249-50w
Manufactured goods, Prices 249w
Manufactured imports, Manufactured exports 250w
Overseas trade 34w
Palestine Liberation Organisation, Exports 305w
Production, Audio equipment 531w
Production, Chemicals 610w
Production, Computer software 535-6w
Production, Fertilisers 607w
Production, Microelectronics industry 535w
Production, Office equipment 530-1w
Production, Recording equipment 532w
Production, Synthetic fibres 609-10w
Production, Tape recorders 532w
Production, Video equipment 531w, 610w
Synthetic fibres, Turkey 148-9w, 253w
Textiles 348-9
Textiles, West Bank 377-8w
Trade agreements, EC action 715w
Trade competitiveness 342

Clark, Dr David
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 765-73, 775-6, 794-5
Questions
Agricultural research, Radioactivity 62w
Agricultural subsidies, Expenditure 156w
Agriculture, Agricultural research 464w
Bacteria, Food hygiene 198-9w
Cereals, Co-responsibility levy 329w
Employment, Agriculture 76w
Food contamination, Emergency planning 157w
Forestry Commission, Ministerial duties 751-2w
Forests, Pollution 775w
Land drainage, Drainage rates 158w
Milk, Production 61w
Organic farming, Agricultural production 329w
Radioactivity, Agricultural research 465w
Radioactivity, Land pollution 465w
Rain, Radiation hazards 238w
Sheep, Radioactivity 369w
Sheep, Slaughterhouses 156w

Clark, Dr Michael
Questions
Computer aided design, Government assistance 250w
Curriculum 572w
Electricity tariffs, Industrial energy prices 691
Public expenditure, Per capita costs 339w
Southend Hospital, Radiotherapy 175w

Clark, Sir William
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1151-2
Questions
NHS finance 488-9

Clarke, Rt Hon Kenneth, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster
Debates etc.
British Steel Bill, 1R (11:02:88) 523
Questions
British Steel Corporation 351
British Steel Corporation, Privatisation 351-2
Business, Company law 353
Business, Lancaster 354
Companies, Consultants 257-8w
Consultants, Business 346-7
Consultants, Small businesses 346
Dept of Trade & Industry, Civil service dispersal 257w
"DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper", West Midlands 253w
Enterprise initiative 345-8
Factories, Management 259w
HOTOL 257w
Inner city areas, Departmental coordination 258w
Inner city areas, Private sector 258w
Insolvency Service, Office dispersal 761w
Management, Education 248w
New businesses, Consultants 254w
North Peckham task force, Government grants 253-4w
Official engagements, Association of British Chambers of Commerce 251w
Patent Office, Office dispersal 761w
Post Office, Monopoly 248w
Rate increases, Cleveland County Council 347
Regional aid 346
Regional aid, "DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 252w
Regional selective assistance 252-3w
Regional selective assistance, Employment opportunities 306w
Satellite communications, Competition 608-10w
Space technology, Science & technology research 248-9w
Sub post offices 306w
Trade unions 353-4

Clarke, Sarah 437-8w

Clarke, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 273-5
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 944
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1180, 1197-201
Questions
Ambulance services, Coatbridge 141w
Government shareholding 334w
Social Fund, Social workers 214w
Standard of living 497-8

Clay, Mr Bob
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 40, 61-6, 68, 71
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 385-6, 425, 430
Training (16:02:88) 834
Questions
Manufactured goods, Balance of trade 249w
Skuse, Frank, Evidence 439w, 547w

Clelland, Mr David
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 48-51, 60, 98, 101-3, 130
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 210

Clergy
Army 85w

Cleveland
Supplementary benefits 114w

Cleveland County Council
Rate increases 347

Clift, Alan
Forensic science 439w

Climbing
Rescue services 238w

Clinical depression
Army 445w

Clinical psychologists 266-8w

Clinics
Abortion 191-2w

Clwyd
Education 463w
Health services 518w
Opencast mining (10:02:88) 478-84

Clwyd, Mrs Ann
Questions
Arts, Curriculum 697
Educational finance 812
Examinations, Age 817-8
NHS, Abortion 173
Nurses' training, Expenditure 176w

Clyde Submarine Base 756w
Diesel fuel (08:02:88) 162-8
HMS Resolution 736w
Ionizing radiation 737w
Naval bases 737w
Nuclear accidents 737w
Nuclear submarines 736w

Clydebank
Scottish Development Agency 480w

Clydesdale
Population 142w, 656w
Schools 63-4w

Coal
Imports 63w, 687, 694-5
International trade 225w
South of Scotland Electricity Board 694

Coal fired power stations 225w
Central Electricity Generating Board 509w

Coal Industry Nationalisation Act 1946
Questions
684w

Coal mine closures 346w, 507w
Abernant Colliery 9, (18:02:88) 1253-8
South Wales 5-6

Coal mining 688
British Coal Corporation 511w
Capital investment 392w
Coal reserves 392w
Costs 511-2w
Dismissal 695
Employment 76w
Equipment 512w
Government assistance to nationalised industries 696
Government grants 344w
Industrial disputes 695-6
Industrial relations 693
Pay 695-6
Productivity 693-4
Subsidence 393w
Wales 4

Coal Mining Subsidence (Damage & Arbitration) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 670

Coal Mining Subsidence (Prevention & Public Awareness) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
1R (09:02.88) 186
2R order read (12:02:88) 676

Coal prices 687-8
Dollar 696
Electricity tariffs 688
Productivity 687

Coal reserves
Coal mining 392w

Coastal areas
Electricity generation 688

Coatbridge
Ambulance services 141w

COCOM
Exports 305w

Codes of practice
Bank services 262w
Civil servants 465w
Crime prevention 1143
Listed buildings 521w

Cohen, Mr Harry
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 531, 561, 585-7
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1244-6
Questions
Armed forces deployment, USA 418w
Atomic Weapons Research Establishment, Manpower 444-5w
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Cancer hazards, Engine oil 97-8w
Census, Community charge 263w
Census of population, Community charge 695w
Census of population, Ethnic groups 559w
Chemical weapons, NATO 448w
Chemical weapons, USA 448w
Community charges register, Disclosure of information 63w
Community charges register, Scotland 63w
Computer privacy, National security 619w
Defence, USA 383-4w
Defence research, London University 537-8w
F16 aircraft, Air force bases 538w
Frontiers, EC countries 425w
House of Commons Refreshment Department, Conditions of employment 449w
House of Commons staff, Conditions of employment 449w
Mental health services, NHS finance 822-3
Ministry of Defence, Thames house Millbank 446w
National Health Service Royal Commission, NHS charges 172-3
NATO 538w
NATO, Defence equipment 613w
Nuclear power stations, Fire services 436w, 512w
Nuclear weapons deployment, Western Europe 538w
Parental leave, EC countries 469-70w
Police, Computers 728w
Police national computer 35w, 617-8w
Police national computer, Scotland 728w
Prisoners, AIDS 620w
Social security benefits, Computer privacy 693-4w
Social security benefits, Personal records 694-5w
VAT, Tax allowances 770w

Cohen, Harry
Members' suspension (18:02:88) 1246

Coleman, Mr Donald
Debates etc.
Coal mine closures, Abernant Colliery (18:02:88) 1253-5
Questions
Abernant Colliery, Coal mine closures 9
AIDS, Laboratories 64-5w, 79-80w, 110-1w, 327w
Hospital beds, Wales 18
Industrial accidents, West Glamorgan 74w

Collard, Paul 281w

Collections
Museums & galleries 151-2w

Collins, Gerry 391w

Colston School Springburn 728-9w

Colville of Culross, Viscount (16:02:88) 925-49

Colvin, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 526, 551-7
Training (16:02:88) 831
Questions
Alcoholism 705w
Aviation fuels, Excise duties 566w
Business sponsorship incentive scheme, Arts sponsorship 151w
Coal, Imports 694-5
Dairy farming, Animal husbandry 237w
Dairy farming, Food inspection 328w
Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1987/88, Police 1137-8
Hinkley Point C, Public inquiries 686
Milk, Imports 677-8w
Milk, Production 726w
NHS finance, Inquiries 176w

COMA see Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy

Combined heat & power
Edinburgh 346w

Commission of the European Communities see European Commission

Commissioner for the Rights of Trade Union Members (08:02:88) 39-139, (10:02:88) 371-452

Committee of Vice Chancellors & Principals
Official engagements 809

Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy
Infant foods 276w

Common agricultural policy 498-9, (15:02:88) 755-98
EC budget 689w, (15:02:88) 705-17
European Council 611w
Wales 16

Common farm prices
Wheat 679-80w

Communication engineering
Export licensing 306w

Communication skills
Civil servants 700-1
Higher civil servants 700

Community care 183w, 485w
Barnsley 381-2w
Government grants to local authorities 282-4w
NHS finance 183w, 196w

Community Care Review 183w, 196w

Community charge 455w, 663-4w, 961, 975-6
Battered wives 478w
Caravan sites 13
Census 263w
Census of population 695w
Death 540w
Departmental correspondence 960-1
Government grants to local authorities 456w
Households 528-9w
Local authorities 664w
Mobile homes 81w
Overseas students 456w
Parish councils 664w
Public petitions (10:02:88) 477
Remand in custody 1133
Scotland 478w, 585w
Student grants 369w, 585w
Wales 13

Community charge rebates
Scotland 780-1w
Young people 622w

Community charges register 478w, 540w
Disclosure of information 63w
Electoral register 961
Scotland 63w
Tax evasion 975
Voting rights 823-4

Community education
Scotland 731w

Community health services
Capital investment 697-8w
Expenditure 349-50w
NHS finance 116-8w
Wales 518w

Community hospitals
Gwynedd 19-20

Community programme 383w

Compact discs
Copyright 344
Retail trade 344

Companies 336-7w
Consultants 257-8w
Finance Act 1984 419-20w
Intestacy 769w
Local government services 289-90w

Companies Act 1985
Questions
262w

Companies Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 670

Company investigations
Guinness 261w
House of Fraser 262w, 713w
Insider trading 621w
Pension funds 90w

Company law
Business 353
Small businesses 353

Company liquidations 337

Competition 254w, 354
EC Consumer Affairs Council 306-7w
Electricity tariffs 506-7w
Satellite communications 608-10w
Telecommunications industry 349-50

Complaints
Mental patients 562w
Scottish Fire Service Training School 652-3w

Complaints against police
Ethnic monitoring 303w

Compliance cost assessments 263w

Comptroller & Auditor General see National Audit Office

Computer aided design
Government assistance 250w

Computer applications
Police 617-8w

Computer privacy
British Telecom 254w
Government data network 247w, 567w
National security 619w
Police 305w
Publicity 618-9w
Social security benefits 693-4w

Computer software
Production 535-6w

Computers
HMSO 388w
Police 728w
Production 530-1w

Computers in Government departments
Dept of Health & Social Security 191w
Dept of Trade & Industry 713-4w
Government data network 567-8w, 721-2w

Computers in National Health Service 175w

Concessionary television licences
Pensioners 1141-2

Conditions of employment
Civil servants 416-7w
House of Commons Refreshment Department 449w
House of Commons staff 449w
Teachers 53w

Confectionery
VAT 231w, 343w, 568w

Confederation of British Industry
Official engagements 337-8w
Uniform business rate 664-5w

Conference on Security & Cooperation in Europe see European Security Conference

Conferences
EC internal trade 536-7w

Congenital abnormalities
Heart diseases 463w
Wales 463w

Construction
Hinkley Point C 509-10w
Hospitals 183w
North Staffordshire Health Authority 189w
Severn bridge 10, 20

Consultants
Business 346-7
Companies 257-8w
New businesses 254w
Small businesses 346

Consumer Arbitration Agreements Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
Com (12:02:88) 671-5

Consumer credit (10:02:88) 368-70
Disclosure of information 443w

Consumer Credit Act 1974
Questions
443w

Consumer protection (12:02:88) 671-5
Food 306-7w
Pens 340-1

Consumers' Association
Official engagements 251w

Consumers in the European Community Group 57w

Contact lenses 167w

Contraceptives
AIDS 557-8w

Contract compliance
Local authorities 971

Contracts
Bray District Council 166w
Export credit guarantees 442-3w
Republic of Ireland 166w
Road construction 2-4w
Road works 65w, 119-20w

Contracts for services
Fire services 671w
Hospital catering 655w

Contracts of employment
Hospital consultants 204w, 490w, 556w

Control of Industrial Major Accident Hazards Regulations 1984
Questions
74w, 150-1w

Conveyancing Standing Committee 364-5w

Conway, Mr Derek
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 197
Questions
Furniture, Fire regulations 343
Special constables 1133-4

Cook, Mr Frank
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 551, 577, 580-3, 589, 592
Clyde Submarine Base, Fraud (08:02:88) 162-4, 166
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 787
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 98
Questions
Business statements 508
Environment protection, Disclosure of information 462w
Firearms, EC action 1137
Mergers, Monopolies & Mergers Commission 257w
Nuclear reactors, Testing 510-1w
Radioactive waste disposal, European Commission 461-2w
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 416w

Cook, Mr Robin
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 772
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1177
Questions
Childbirth 697w
Exceptional needs payments, Expenditure 116w, 699w
Hospital finance 697-8w
Hospitals, NHS finance 116-8w
NHS 176, 407w
NHS, Per capita costs 632w
NHS finance 349-50w
Private patients 503w
Social Fund, Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 181
Supplementary benefits, Social security recipients 348w

Cook-chill catering
Hospital catering 180w

Coombs, Mr Anthony
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 835
Questions
"DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper", West Midlands 253w
Homicide, Children 434w
NHS, Abortion 269-70w
NHS finance, District health authorities 180w
Prisoners on remand, Remand in custody 1132
Teachers, Educational standards 582-3w
UK contributions to EC budget 387-8w
Urban development corporations, Inner city areas 968

Coombs, Mr Simon
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1218, 1228-30, 1244
Training (16:02:88) 836
Questions
Compact discs, Retail trade 344
Economic growth 336w
Family credit, Poverty trap 176w
Nurses, Employment 487w
Pupils, Swimming 158-9w
Schools, Swimming 159w
Schools, Water safety 158w
Swimming, Handicapped 126-7w
Swimming, Health education 267w
Swimming, Training 20-1w
Swimming pools, Local education authorities 47w

Coopers & Lybrand Associates
Disclosure of information 21w

Cope, Mr John, Minister of State for Employment
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 115-7
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 392-3, 397-8, 435-6, 448
Self-employed (15:02:88) 735-41
Questions
Community programme 383w
Employment schemes, Basildon 547-8w
Employment schemes, Business in the Community 314-5w
Employment schemes, Northwich 468-9w
Enterprise allowance scheme, Cheshire 547-50w
Job training scheme, Cheshire 230w
Job training scheme, Professional qualifications 151w
London Docklands, Manpower Services Commission 73w
Small businesses, Northern region 227w
Youth training scheme, Deaf 717w

Copyright
Compact discs 344
Crown copyright 305-6w
Reprography 145w

Copyright Designs & Patents Bill (HL) 1987/88
Questions
145w

Corbett, Mr Robin
Debates etc.
Access to Medical Reports Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 663-4
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 141, 145-8
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 609, 611, 618, 632, 637-9
Private notice question intervention (12:02:88) 628
Questions
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 626
Furs, Farms 297w
Rover Group, Positive vetting 305w

Corbyn, Mr Jeremy
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1096-7, 1099, 1101-8
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 898
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 454-5, 464-5, (17:02:88) 1002, 1010, 1023, 1048, 1053-5
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 945
Questions
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 170-1
Hospital waiting lists, District health authorities 503-6w
Medical laboratory scientific officers, Manpower 640-8w
Nurses, Manpower 207-11w
Prisoners, Marriage 437-8w

Co-responsibility levy
Cereals 329w
EC countries 677w

Cormack, Jim
Nuclear submarines (08:02:88) 162-8

Cormack, Mr Patrick
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 195, 212, 223, 227, 255, 258, 269-71
Questions
Archaeology 302w
Business statements 514

Cornwall
Monofilament gill nets 588w

Coronary Prevention Group
Nutrition labelling 727w

Corporation tax 349
Tax yields 722w

Cost effectiveness
Dept of Health & Social Security special investigators 492w
Government data network 568w

Cost improvement programme 100w

Cost per pupil
Cheshire 584-5w
Primary education 811

Cot deaths 270-1w
Hampshire 270-1w

Couchman, Mr James
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1155-6
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 358
Questions
Dartford Thurrock Crossing Bill 1987/88 616w
Vehicles, Lighting 410w

Council for Licensed Conveyancers 365-6w
Accountability 366w
Travelling expenses 366w

Council house rents
London boroughs 524w
Middlesbrough Borough Council 974
Oldham 974
Rent arrears 973

Council house sales
Discounts 462w
Lambeth (19:02:88) 1323-30
Right to buy 296w

Council house waiting lists 22-4w
London boroughs 22w

Council housing 974-5
Empty housing 22-4w
Housing improvement 527w
Shared ownership schemes 973

Council housing finance
Bristol City Council 972

County hall 381w

Court of appeal
Miscarriages of justice 705w

Cousins, Mr Jim
Questions
Bovine somatotropin, EC countries 678w
Bovine somatotropin, Licensing 678w
Bovine somatotropin, Testing 678w
Community charge, Households 528-9w
Companies, Consultants 257-8w
Electronic equipment, Retail trade 33-4w
Food aid, OECD countries 604-5w
Health service staff, Manpower 624-5w
Household surveys, Family income 529w
Household surveys, Personal income 527-8w
Inheritance tax 340w
Lasers, Radioactivity 695-6w
Nuclear fuels, Nuclear safeguards 393w
Supplementary benefits, Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 493w

Covenants 143-4w

Cox, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1044-6
Questions
House renovation grants, Age 457w
Police custody 703w
Prisoners on remand, Magistrates' courts 36w
Remand in custody, Magistrates' courts 36-7w

Cox Committee see National Curriculum English Working Group

Craft industries
Wales 11, 517w

Craigavon Borough Council
Local government audit 397w

Cran, Mr James
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 837
Questions
Civil service, London allowance 92w
Civil service dispersal, Costs 339w
Civil service dispersal, Home Office 303w
Dept of Health & Social Security, Office dispersal 179w
Dept of the Environment, Civil service dispersal 287w
Dept of Trade & Industry, Civil service dispersal 257w
Economic & Social Research Council, Office dispersal 579w
European fighter aircraft, Official engagements 134w
Office dispersal, Dept of Energy 511w
Official engagements 520w, 690w

Credit agreements
Electricity supply industry 750w

Credit (Control) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
1R (10:02:88) 368-70

Crewe Health Authority 268-9w
Health service staff 399-401w

Crime
Barnsley 361w
Buses 413-4w
Disclosure of information 650w
Seaham 361w
Tayside 650w

Crime prevention 1143
Codes of practice 1143
Nottingham 702w
Police & Criminal Evidence Act 1984 1142
Private sector 702w
Tayside 732w

Crimes of violence
Buses 412w
Local government social services 197w
Taxis 619-20w, (15:02:88) 799-805

Criminal appeals
Bombings (16:02:88) 950-8
Evidence 1144

Criminal injuries compensation
Punishment attacks 86w

Criminal Injuries Compensation Board 543w, 707w
Administrative delays 707w
Police 544w

Criminal investigation
Bombings 538-9w

Criminal records
Scotland 539w

Crisis loans 697w

Crowd control
Football 663w

Crown copyright 305-6w

Crown immunity
Prisons 704w

Crown Prosecution Service
Manpower 42-4w

Crown Suppliers 21w
Inquiries 299-302w
Privatisation 126w

Crowther, Mr Stan
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 210
Questions
British Steel Corporation 341

Cryer, Mr Bob
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1168
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 63, 67-72, 96, 111-5, 128, 135
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 144-5
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 286, 295-8, 302, 303
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1180, 1186
Written questions, Administrative delays (09:02:88) 187
Questions
Arms control, Civil service manpower 240w
British Nuclear Fuels, Arms control 240w
EC countries, Nuclear safeguards 235w
EC Energy Council, Nuclear safeguards 235w
EURATOM, Nuclear safeguards 235w
International Atomic Energy Agency, Nuclear safeguards 226w, 234w
International Atomic Energy Agency, UK contributions 226-7w
Iron & steel industry, Redundancy 533w
Mental health community care, Hospital closures 562-6w
Mental hospitals, Hospital closures 196w
Miscarriages of justice, Home Affairs Select Committee 705w
Nuclear accidents, Greenland 240-1w
Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty 234w
Nuclear power, Public sector assets 226w
Nuclear power stations 225w
Nuclear test ban, UN disarmament 235w
Official engagements, RAF Lakenheath 688w
Official secrets, Public records 241w
Property Services Agency, Bradford 967
Radiation hazards, Safety standards 225w
Radioactive wastes, European Commission 287w
Radioactive wastes, European Parliament 286-7w
Radioactive wastes, Sellafield 287w
School leaving certificates 583w
Sudan, Nuclear fuels 236w
Telephone tapping, Judicial review 303w
Trade unions 353-4
Transport of radioactive materials 225-6w
Tritium, Chapelcross power station 240w
United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority, Disclosure of information 240w

CSCE see European Security Conference

Cumbria
Radioactivity 62w
Secondary education 813

Cumbria County Council
Educational finance 813

Cunningham, Mr John
Questions
Agricultural chemicals, Easington 328w
BBC external services, Government grants 233w
British Coal Corporation, Capital investment 509w
British Coal Corporation, Privatisation 509w
Coal mining, Costs 511-2w
Coal mining, Equipment 512w
Crime, Seaham 361w
Dept of Health & Social Security special investigators, Cost effectiveness 492w
Dept of Health & Social Security special investigators, Seaham 402w
EC free food scheme 586w
Farm woodland scheme, Easington 586w
Fire services, Contracts for services 671w
Fraud, Civil service manpower 469w
Government shareholding 334w
Hazardous materials, Durham 150-1w
Hazardous wastes, Seaham 379w, 566-7w
Power stations 589w
Public footpaths 295w
Radioactive waste disposal, Seas & oceans 286w
Retirement pensions, Married women 99w
Rights of way, Local government expenditure 450-1w
Schools, Easington 48w
Social security benefits, Peterlee 186-8w
Social security recipients, Seaham 269w
Tax collection offices, Durham 419w
Waste disposal, Dawdon 133w
Waste disposal, Dawdon Colliery 237w
Waste disposal, Durham 585-6w

Cunningham, Dr John
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1209, 1214-20
Questions
District health authorities, Storms 565w
Local authorities, Sex discrimination 972
Local government expenditure 525-6w
Nature reserves 959-60
Planning permission, Chelsea Football Club 962-3
Rate limitation 524-5w
Rate limitation, Local government expenditure 526-8w
Reading Borough Council, Training 315-6w

Curriculum 572w
Arts 466w, 697
Examinations 371w, 572w, 817
Inner London boroughs 682w
Teachers 815

Currie, Mrs Edwina, Under-Secretary of State for Health & Social Security
Questions
Accident & emergency departments, Costs 408w
Ambulance services 348w
Ambulance services, Greater London 111-2w
Ambulance services, NHS finance 502w

Ambulance services, Northumberland 692w
Ambulance services, Safety standards 409w
Bacteria, Food hygiene 198-9w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Adult training centres 105-7w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Capital investment 105-6w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Expenditure 99-102w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Geriatric patients 102-4w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Health service staff 108-10w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Health visitors 105-6w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Hospital beds 102-4w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Hospital patients 101-4w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Mental health services 107w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Mental patients 107-8w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, NHS finance 99-100w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Pay 100w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Supplementary benefits 108w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Surgery 101-4w
Basingstoke Hospital, Ambulance services 109-10w
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 497-8w, 700-1w
Blackburn Hyndburn & Ribble Valley Health Authority, Patients 558-60w
Breast cancer, Screening 556w, 628-30w
British Paediatric Association, Upper waiting hall 264w
Butane gas, Death 397-8w
Cancer hazards, Engine oil 97-8w
Census, Community charge 263w
Census of population, Ethnic groups 559w
Cervical cancer, Death 195w
Cervical cancer, Northern region 493w
Childbirth 697w
Childbirth, Caesarian sections 177-8w
Children in care 172w
Chlamydia, Diagnosis 626w
Computers in National Health Service 175w
Cot deaths 270-1w
D & C operations 213-4w
Death, Elderly 697w
Death rate 169-70w
Dental charges, Dental health 181-2, 184w
Dental charges, Dental services 349w
Dental health, Lost working days 566w
District health authorities, Land ownership & tenure 625w
District health authorities, Land values 692w
District health authorities, Public appointments 167w
Family doctors, Mersey Regional Health Authority 268-9w
Food hygiene, Local authorities 622w
Government grants, Lancashire County Council 211w
Grimsby Health Authority, Hospital beds 491w
Grimsby Health Authority, Hospital consultants 490-1w
Grimsby Health Authority, Housing 490w
Grimsby Health Authority, Nurses 491w
Grimsby Health Authority, Public appointments 491w
Grimsby Health Authority, Special duty allowances 492w
Hartley Hospital, Hospital closures 698w
Health insurance 269w, 777-8w
Health service staff, Crewe Health Authority 399-401w
Hospices, District health authorities 274-6w
Hospital beds, Leicestershire Health Authority 196-8w
Hospital beds, NHS 502w
Hospital beds, NHS & private practice 407-8w
Hospital catering, Wakefield Health Authority 180w
Hospital closures, Brook Hospital 273w
Hospital patients 169w
Hospital patients, Costs 408-9w
Hospital patients, Per capita costs 487w
Hospital patients, Regional health authorities 272-4w
Hospitals, Construction 183w
Hospitals, Land values 692w
Infant foods, Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy 276w
Infant mortality 554w
Kidney patients, Surgery 779w
Lasers, Radioactivity 695-6w
London Ambulance Service, Manpower 185-6w
London Ambulance Service, Official engagements 184w
Maudsley Hospital, Nervous system disorders 168w
Medical equipment, Members' correspondence 780w
Meningitis, North West Hertfordshire Health Authority 269w
Mental health community care, Hospital closures 562-6w
Mental health community care, South Tyneside Health Authority 409w
Mental health services, NHS finance 117-8w
Mental health services, North Western Regional Health Authority 639-40w
Mental hospitals, Hospital closures 196w
Mental hospitals, Hostels 97w
Mental patients, Complaints 562w
Mental patients, St James' Hospital Portsmouth 270w
Mental patients, Salford Health Authority 406-7w
Mental patients, Schizophrenia 639w
Mentally ill, Sheltered housing 562w
Mersey Regional Health Authority, Expenditure 192-4w
Neonatal mortality, Intensive care 558w
NHS, Expenditure 496w
NHS, Gynaecology 270w
NHS, Performance indicators 191w
NHS charges, Income 401-2w
NHS finance, Bassetlaw Health Authority 213w
NHS finance, Regional health authorities 179w, 181w
North Staffordshire Health Authority, Construction 189w
Northern Regional Health Authority, Administrative costs 172w
Northumberland Health Authority, Dogs 493w
Norwich Health Authority, Land values 692-4w
Nurses, Leicestershire Health Authority 203w
Nurses, Northumberland Health Authority 776w
Old people's homes, Disciplinary proceedings 98w
Oldchurch Hospital 115-6w
Operating theatres, NHS 401w
Oxfordshire Health Authority, Hospital patients 169w
Pharmacies, Family practitioner committees 200-2w
Pharmacies, Population 201-2w
Plymouth Health Authority 184w
Pontefract Health Authority, Hospital beds 560w
Pontefract Health Authority, Hospital consultants 559-60w
Pontefract Health Authority, Nurses 560-1w
Pontefract Health Authority, Public appointments 561w
Private health services, France 187w
Private patients 503w
Radiotherapy 782-4w
Research, Publishing 350w
Schizophrenia, Expenditure 561-2w
Schizophrenia, Hospital discharges 561w
Sickle cell disease, NHS 172w
Skoal Bandits 197w
Smoking, Air travel 351w
Smoking, Public houses 190w
Social services finance, Voluntary organisations 180w
Southend Hospital, Radiotherapy 174-5w, 496-7w, 699w
Spectacles 167w
Surgery, Costs 182w
Surgery, NHS 400w
Surgery, Per capita costs 626w
Swimming, Health education 267w
Thrombosis, International conferences 783-5w
Vaccination 623w
Westminster Children's Hospital, Burglary 781w
Worth house, Inquiries 494w
York District Hospital, Costs 190w

Curry, Mr David
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 715
Questions
Industrial production 333w
National insurance contributions 630-1w

Customs & Excise 566-8w, 721-2w
Hazardous wastes 95w

CVCP see Committee of Vice Chancellors & Principals

Cycling
Children 412-3w
Road accidents 412-3w

Cyprus
Educational aid 125w
Overseas aid 125w

D & C operations 213-4w

D notices 384-6w

DAF 255w

Dairy farming
Animal husbandry 237w
Civil service manpower 328w
Food inspection 328w

Dalyell, Mr Tam
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1165-6
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 201-2, 220
Trident submarines, Mull of Galloway (10:02:88) 364, 366
Questions
Academic freedom, Universities 159-60w
Afghanistan, Arms exports 391w
Air safety, Air traffic control 22-3
Bombings, Criminal investigation 538-9w
Civil servants, Codes of practice 465w
Coopers & Lybrand Associates, Disclosure of information 21w
Crown copyright 305-6w
D notices 384-6w
Defence contracts, Shipping accidents 446-7w
Dept of Trade & Industry, Disclosure of information 35w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Universities 49-50w
Electricity supply industry, Emergency planning 62w
HMS Conqueror, Log books 318w, 387w
House of Commons Library, Procurement 17
National Curriculum Mathematics Working Group, Resignations 682-3w
Publishing 350
Research, Publishing 350w
Trident submarines, Sea transport 448w

Trident submarines, Shipping accidents 447-8w
War crimes, Inquiries 304w

Darling, Mr Alistair
Questions
British Telecom, Computer privacy 254w
Business statements 516-7
Committee of Vice Chancellors & Principals, Official engagements 809
Community charge, Death 540w
Criminal records, Scotland 539w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 170-1w
Hospital catering, Scotland 655w
NHS 272w
NHS, Scotland 221w
Student grants 585w
Student grants, Community charge 585w
Student grants, Housing benefits 585w
Tax allowances, Personal equity plans 87-9w
Tax allowances, Share option scheme 89w
Tax allowances, Shares 89w
Tax yields 333w
Telephone directories, Exports 339-40
Water supply, Lead 540w

Darlington
Supplementary benefits 113-4w

Dartford Thurrock Crossing Bill 1987/88
Questions
616w
Government responses 551-3w

Dartford tunnel 551-3w

Data processing
Production 248w

Data Protection Act 1984
Questions
618-9w

Data Protection Registrar 619w

Davies, Rt Hon Denzil
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 534-5, 576-7, 594
Questions
Navy, Armed forces storage depots 735w

Davies, Mr Quentin
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 769
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 248
Questions
Companies 336-7w
Dartford Thurrock Crossing Bill 1987/88, Government responses 552-3w
Local government land, Management 671w

Davies, Mr Ron
Questions
Agricultural chemicals, Testing 237-8w
Bovine somatotropin 156-7w
Forestry, Scotland 775w
Public expenditure, NHS 341w
Sites of Special Scientific Interest, Nature Conservancy Council 296w
South Wales, Government assistance 5
Teachers, Retirement 310w

Davis, Mr David
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 272-3

Davis, Mr Terry
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1161
Questions
Civil service 701
Overseas aid, Population 430w

Dawdon
Waste disposal 133w

Dawdon Colliery
Waste disposal 237w

Day release 584w

DCDB see Devon & Cornwall Development Bureau

Deaf
Telephone exchanges 214w, 781-2w
Youth training scheme 717w

Death
Butane gas 397-8w
Cervical cancer 195w
Community charge 540w
Elderly 697w
Northern Ireland 500
Scotland 654-6w
Skiing 458w

Death rate 169-70w

Debt collection
Northern Ireland 393-5w

Debts 335w
Developing countries 332w
Mersey tunnel 740w
Northern Ireland 394w
Southern Africa 429-30w

Debts written off
Social Fund 490w

Dec85/199/EURATOM 753w

Decriminalisation
Scotland 64w

Deeds of covenant
Tax yields 721w

Deeside 3-4

Deeside industrial park 3-4

Defective housing
House renovation grants 667w
Local government expenditure 667-8w

Defence
USA 383-4w

Defence contracts
Shipping accidents 446-7w
Trident 239w

Defence equipment
DROPS 758-9w
NATO 613w
Palestine Liberation Organisation 425-6w

Defence industries
Arms control 292w

Defence land
Horse riding 384w

Defence procurement
Altoujet 82w
Moores Walliadown 82w
Trident 239w
USA 755w

Defence research
Atomic Weapons Research Establishment 82-3w
Educational institutions 82w
London University 537-8w

Defence Systems
Mozambique 529-30w

Degrees
Educational finance 810
Teachers 371w

Demolition
Property development 660w

Demonstrations
Metropolitan Police 1143-4
NHS 1143-4

Dental charges 349w
Dental health 181-2, 184w
EC countries 349w
Wales 464w

Dental health
Dental charges 181-2, 184w
Lost working days 566w

Dental services
Dental charges 349w

Dentistry
Wales 464w

Dentists
Disciplinary proceedings 177-8w
Pay 135w

Dept of Education & Science 50-4w, 812
First Division Association 574w
Ideal Homes Exhibition 219-20w
Press releases 373w
Sexual harassment 158w

Dept of Employment 469w
Sexual harassment 73-4w
Youth training scheme 470w

Dept of Energy 515-6w
Office dispersal 511w

Dept of Health & Social Security 188-9w, 350w, 567-8w, 721-2w, 783-5w
Computers in Government departments 191w
Housing benefits 621w
Information technology 174w
Office dispersal 179w
Sexual harassment 554w

Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 184w
Camberwell 698-700w
Civil service manpower 180-1, 351w
Greater London 351w
Greenock 404w
Resignations 180-2w
Social Fund 181
Social security reform 351-2w
Strathclyde 404w
Supplementary benefits 493w

Dept of Health & Social Security special investigators
Cost effectiveness 492w
Seaham 402w

Dept of the Environment 521w
Cash limits 128-9w
Civil service dispersal 287w
Economic League 297w
Sexual harassment 20w

Dept of Trade & Industry 761w
Civil service dispersal 257w
Computers in Government departments 713-4w
Disclosure of information 35w
Sexual harassment 33w
Teesside 345-6
Television advertising 256w

Dept of Transport
Economic League 358w
Sexual harassment 1-2w

Departmental circulars
Greenbelt 285w

Departmental coordination
Inner city areas 258w

Departmental correspondence 37-8w, 49-50w
British citizenship 546-7w
Community charge 960-1
Intelligence services 85w
National Union of Mineworkers 344w
Tower Hamlets 437w

Departmental forms
Income tax 342-3w

Departmental leaflets
Homelessness 22w, 661w
Profit sharing 387w

Departmental publications
Housing action trusts 670w
Right to buy 670w

Departmental responsibility 45w, 621w, 775-6w

Deportation
Liverpool 706w

Derbyshire
Educational finance 430-1w
Unemployment 229w
Vacancies 229w

Derelict land grants 129-31w
Public expenditure 671w

DES see Dept of Education & Science

Developing countries
Banks 152w
Debts 332w
Family planning 428w

Development Commission 461w
Rural areas 288w, 753w

Development Commission for Rural England see Development Commission

"Development of Representative Government" (10:02:88) 355-64

Devlin, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 837
Questions
Art education 468w
Companies 337w
Enterprise initiative 345-6
Information technology, Dept of Health & Social Security 174w
New businesses, North East region 493
Offshore suppliers 510w

Devon
School administration 573w

Devon & Cornwall Development Bureau
Industrial investment 759-60w

Dewar, Mr Donald
Questions
A74, Road works 477w, 540w

Dewi Jones 21w

DHSS see Dept of Health & Social Security

Diabetes
Diets 182w

Diagnosis
Chlamydia 626w

Dickens, Mr Geoffrey
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 422-3
Skinner, Dennis, Members' conduct (09:02:88) 187-8
Talkabout service (09:02:88) 329-30
Questions
Derelict land grants, Public expenditure 671w
Social security reform 181

Dicks, Mr Terry
Questions
Air safety, Near misses 21
Night flying, Aircraft noise 245-6w

Diego Garcia
Armed forces deployment 445-6w

Diesel fuel
Clyde Submarine Base (08:02:88) 162-8

Diets
Diabetes 182w
Supplementary benefits 182w

DIG see Disablement Income Group

Diplomatic service
Kensington & Chelsea 55w

Dir/90/51/EEC 746-8w

Dir/83/286/EEC 746-8w

Dir/85/337/EEC 344-5w

Dir/86/113/EEC 726w

Dir/87/216/EEC 74w

Direct labour departments
Local government services 461w

Direct taxation
NHS finance 556-8w

Director of Public Prosecutions for Northern Ireland 223w

Disabled Persons (Employment) Act 1944
Questions
Handicapped workers 150w

Disablement Income Group 170-1

Disablement Services Authority 199-200w, 203w

Disadvantaged
Food surpluses 157-8w

Disciplinary Procedures Joint Working Party 177-8w

Disciplinary proceedings
Dentists 177-8w
Dock workers 770-2w
Hospital doctors 177-8w
Old people's homes 98w

Disclosure of information
Abortion 111w, 351w
British Telecom 443w
Community charges register 63w
Consumer credit 443w
Coopers & Lybrand Associates 21w
Crime 650w
Dept of Trade & Industry 35w
Environment protection 462w
Family credit 176w
Foreign policy 291w
Government data network 247w
Medical records (12:02:88) 657-67
Ministers' correspondence 45w
Nuclear weapons tests 769w
Pupil records 309-10w
Scottish Fire Service Training School 653w
Trade unions 305w
United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority 240w

Discounts
Council house sales 462w

Discrimination
Handicapped 188-9w
Higher education admission 576w

Disease control 620w

Disley bypass
Road construction 748w

Dismissal
Coal mining 695
Forensic science 1138

Disposable income 335-6w, 497

District councils 143-4w

District health authorities
Hospices 274-6w
Hospital waiting lists 503-6w
Land ownership & tenure 625w
Land values 692w

NHS finance 177w, 180w
Public appointments 167w
Resignations 168-9w
Storms 565w

Dixon, Mr Don
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 55-6
Questions
Mental health community care, South Tyneside Health Authority 409w

Dobson, Mr Frank
Debates etc.
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Standing Order No 20 applications (11:02:88) 520-1
Business statements (18:02:88) 1158
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1084-7, 1088
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 208-13
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 457, 468, (17:02:88) 1002, 1010, 1025, 1031
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1211-2
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988, Calling of Members (19:02:88) 1259-60
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1310-5
Questions
Business statements 503-4
Education, Inner London boroughs 162w
Inner London Education Authority, Sports 162w

Dock labour scheme 454-5w, 770-2w

Dock workers
Disciplinary proceedings 770-2w
Liverpool Dock Labour Board 770-2w
Manpower 455w

Doctors
Negligence 187w
Pay 135w
Telephones 70-1w

Doctors' & Dentists' Remuneration Review Body 135w

DOE see Dept of the Environment

Dog fighting 768w

Dogs
Northumberland Health Authority 493w

Dollar
Coal prices 696
Export prices 342

Domestic rates 960
Rates & rating 70w

Domestic rents
Housing associations 966

Domestic violence
Police 65w
Scotland 65w

Doran, Mr Frank
Questions
Chronically Sick & Disabled Persons Act 1970 191w
Tax yields 333w

Douglas, Mr Dick
Questions
Balance of payments 373-6w

Douglas-Hamilton, Lord James, Under-Secretary of State for Scotland
Questions
BBC, "Secret Society" 728w
Capital investment, Scotland 143-4w
Caravans, Parking offences 539w
Crime, Tayside 650w
Crime prevention, Tayside 732w

Criminal records, Scotland 539w
Decriminalisation, Scotland 64w
Domestic violence, Police 65w
Dunkeld Cathedral, Bellringing 650w
Electoral register, Scotland 774w
Erskine bridge, Toll bridges 320w
Fine defaulters, Prisons 71w
Forestry, Scotland 775w
Forests 480w
Forests, Northumberland 480w
Forests, Pollution 775w
Gaming machines, Scotland 476w
Homelessness, Housing capital allocations 66w
Homelessness, Mortgage defaulters 65-6w
Homelessness, Scotland 68-70w
Housing, Shetland 732w
Housing construction, Angus 649w
Housing construction, Perth 649w
Housing Corporation, Scotland 774w
Housing finance, Scotland 144w
Legal aid, Scotland 477w
Planning appeals, Scotland 320w
Police, Computers 728w
Police national computer, Scotland 728w
Prison population, Scotland 71w
Prison population, Young offenders 71w
Road works, Contracts 65w
School violence, Prosecutions 66w
Scottish Fire Service Training School, Complaints 652-3w
Scottish Fire Service Training School, Inquiries 652-3w
Scottish Fire Service Training School, Interviews 652-3w
Scottish Special Housing Association 321w
Structure plans, Strathclyde 64w
Television programmes, National security 144-5w
White fronted geese, Islay 72w
Young offenders, Tayside 479w

Drainage rates
Land drainage 158w

Drama
Radio 708w

Drinking & driving
Non-alcholic drinks 133-4w

Driving licences
Public service vehicles 613-4w, 740w

Driving tests 411-2w

DROPS
Defence equipment 758-9w

Drug abuse
Edinburgh 772w
Glasgow 772w

Drug crimes
Proceeds of crime 541w, 701w

Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986
Questions
541w

Drug Trafficking Offences (Enforcement in England & Wales) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(10:02:88) 367

Drugs
APS 271w
Costs 109w
Eli Lilley 628w
Expenditure 557w
Hospitals 198w
Licensing 271w

DTI see Dept of Trade & Industry

"DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper"
Financial institutions 259w
Regional aid 252w
West Midlands 253w

DTp see Dept of Transport

Duchy of Lancaster
Empty housing 33w

Duffy, Mr A E P
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 994

Dundee 75w, 479w
Rate rebates 70w
Regional aid 483-4w
School violence 66w
Supplementary benefits 495-6w
Unemployment 65-6w, 75w
Vacancies 540-2w
Welfare milk 65w
Youth training scheme 478-9w

Dungeness A power station 590w

Dungeness B power station 590w

Dunkeld Cathedral
Bellringing 650w

Dunn, Mr Bob, Under-Secretary of State for Education and Science
Questions
Assisted places scheme 599-601w
Church schools, Church of England 216w
Cost per pupil, Cheshire 584-5w
Curriculum, Inner London boroughs 682w
Education, Inner London boroughs 160-2w, 433w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Special education 573-4w
Educational administration, Inner London boroughs 681-2w
Educational finance 812
Educational finance, Capital investment 159w
Educational finance, Derbyshire 430-1w
Educational finance, Inner London boroughs 161w
Free school meals, Inner London Education Authority 162w
Further education, Inner London boroughs 161w
Further education, Young people 46w
Grant maintained schools 573w
Handicapped pupils, Special education 572w
Horniman Museum 761-2w
Inner London Education Authority 47w
Inner London Education Authority, Educational standards 161-2w
Inner London Education Authority, Expenditure 812
Inner London Education Authority, Research 682w
Middle schools 603-4w
Play groups 581w
Pre-school education, Northumberland 578w
Pre-school education, Special education 578w
Primary education, Burntwood 811-2
Primary education, Cost per pupil 811
Private education, Northumberland 585w
Private education, Pupils 765-8w
Pupils, Inner London boroughs 162w
Pupil-teacher ratios 580w
School administration, Devon 573w
School admission, Greater London 53-6w
School buildings, Northumberland 579w
School closures, Pilgrim School Bedford 310w
School governors 579w
School leaving certificates 583w
School meals, Fees & charges 583w
School uniforms 583w
Schools, Barnsley 373w
Schools, Easington 48w
Schools, Official engagements 584w
Schools, Official visits 219w
Schools, Pedestrian crossings 46-7w
Schools, Sports facilities 577w
Secondary education, Cumbria 813
Secondary education, School admission 47-8w
Special education 572w, 579-80w
Special education, EC action 584w
Special education, Grant maintained schools 819-20
Special educational needs, Local education authorities 603-3w
Special educational needs, Northern Ireland 818
Special educational needs, Teachers 818
Staffordshire County Council 811
Swimming pools, Local education authorities 47w

Dunnachie, Mr Jimmy
Questions
Community charge 664w
Electricity supply industry, Advertising 508w
Gaming machines, Scotland 476w
Immigration, Members 1135
Income support scheme, Housing benefits 630w
Income support scheme, Social security reform 630w
Mental health services, NHS finance 117-8w
Social security reform 786-7w
Supplementary benefits, Social security benefits uprating 786w

Dunwoody, Mrs Gwyneth
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 360
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 31
Questions
Bus services subsidies, Shropshire County Council 1w

Durham
Hazardous materials 150-1w
Tax collection offices 419w
Waste disposal 585-6w

Durham Prison
Body searches 544w

Dykes, Mr Hugh
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 716
Questions
Community charge 976
Defence procurement, USA 755w
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 508w
Employment schemes, Business in the Community 314-5w
Official secrets, Law reform 1140-1
Planning permission, Property development 660w

Dyslexia
Scotland 732w

Eadie, Mr Alexander
Questions
Coal, South of Scotland Electricity Board 694
Coal mining, British Coal Corporation 511w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w
National Union of Mineworkers, Departmental correspondence 344w
Official engagements, Trade unions 46w, 294w
Power stations, Public inquiries 686
Union of Democratic Mineworkers, Official engagements 344w

EAEC see EURATOM

EAGGF see European Agricultural Guidance & Guarantee Fund

Easington
Agricultural chemicals 328w
Farm woodland scheme 586w
Schools 48w

East London river crossing 551-3w

East Stow
Official engagements 294w

Eastham, Mr Ken
Questions
Hypermarkets 970
Junior hospital doctors, Overtime 172w
Prison education services, Local education authorities 40-1w
Regional selective assistance, Employment opportunities 306w
Thrombosis, International conferences 783-5w

EC action
Child safety 261w
EC trade 147w
Firearms 1137
Food labelling 727w
Radioactive wastes 753w
Safety standards 260w
Special education 584w
Trade agreements 715w
Tyres 410w

EC Agriculture Council 154-5w

EC budget 152-4w
Agriculture 726-7w
Common agricultural policy 689w, (15:02:88) 705-17
European Council 294w, 611-2w, 726-7w
National income 611w
UK repayments from EC budget 567w

EC Commission see European Commission

EC Consumer Affairs Council
Competition 306-7w
EC transport policy 360w

EC countries
Agricultural production 587w
Bovine somatotropin 678w
Cereals 677w
Co-responsibility levy 677w
Dental charges 349w
Frontiers 425w
Health services finance 174w, 177-8, 204-6w, 402-4w
Labour costs 312-4w
Light dues 241-2w
Nuclear safeguards 235w
Optical charges 349w
Parental leave 469-70w
Shipping 414w

EC Economic & Finance Council see EC Finance Council

EC Energy Council
Nuclear safeguards 235w

EC Finance Council 612w
Budget 419w
Capital movements 420w

EC free food scheme 586w

EC grants & loans 760w
Angus 476w
European Regional Development Fund 146-7w

EC Internal Market Council 147w

EC internal trade
Conferences 536-7w
Employment 537w
Insurance 259w
Trade barriers 256w, 259w

EC law
Plain language 57w
Water pollution 380-1w

EC nationals (16:02:88) 847-924

EC trade
EC action 147w

EC Transport Council 615w

EC transport policy
EC Consumer Affairs Council 360w

ECGD see Export Credits Guarantee Department

ECOFIN see EC Finance Council

Economic agreements
European Council 688-9w

Economic & Social Research Council
Office dispersal 579w

Economic growth 336w, 388w
Unemployment 336w

Economic League 444w
Dept of the Environment 297w
Dept of Transport 358w
Employment schemes 415w
Ministry of Defence 318w
Nationalised industries 415w

Economic sanctions
South Africa 425w

Economic situation
Shares 647w
Wales 4-5

ECOTEC Research & Consulting 288w

ECSC see European Coal & Steel Community

Eddisbury
Greenbelt 672w

EDF see Electricite de France

Edinburgh
AIDS 367w
Combined heat & power 346w
Drug abuse 772w
Water supply 540w

Edinburgh University 49-50w
Higher education admission 815-6

EDU see Enterprise & Deregulation Unit

Education
Clwyd 463w
Expenditure 745w
Gypsies 324-5w
Immigrants 711-2w
Inner London boroughs 160-2w, 433w
Management 248w
Public expenditure 342w
Schools & parents 820-1
Wales 745w

Education Act 1944
Questions
682w

Education allowances
Costs 601-2w

Education & industry
Science & technology research 254-5w

Education Reform Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1083-108
Questions
186, 217w, 371-2w, 572-3w, 582w, 683-4w
Bradford 814-5
Educational finance 814
Leicestershire 573w
Special education 573-4w
Universities 49-50w

Education (School Records) Regulations 1988
Questions
309-10w

Educational administration
Inner London boroughs 371-2w, 681-2w, 711-2w
Local education authorities 572-3w

Educational aid
Cyprus 125w

Educational finance 50-4w, 812, 815
Capital investment 159w
Cumbria County Council 813
Degrees 810
Derbyshire 430-1w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88 814
Expenditure 481w
Higher education colleges 370w
Inner London boroughs 161w
Literacy 807
School administration 815

Educational institutions
Defence research 82w

Educational maintenance allowance
Northern Ireland 396-7w

Educational standards
Inner London Education Authority 161-2w, 219w, 575w
Teachers 582-3w

EEC see European Economic Community

Efficiency scrutinies (18:02:88) 1149-56
Property Services Agency 299-302w

EFTA see European Free Trade Association

EIB see European Investment Bank

Ejoh, Orkocharkwu Emmanuel
Immigrant detainees 138w

El Salvador
Mercenaries 529w

Elderly
Advisory services 170
Death 697w
Heating 187-8w
Residential care 65w

Election offences
Prosecutions 361w

Electoral register
Armed forces 84w, 136w
Community charges register 961
Scotland 774w

Electorate
Rates & rating 369w

Electricite de France
Profitability 513w

Electricity Council
Public appointments 509w

Electricity generation
Coastal areas 688
Fawley A 512w
Nuclear power 510w

Electricity supply industry 688-9
Advertising 508w
Credit agreements 750w
Emergency planning 62w
France 62w
Northern Ireland 592-3w, 750w
Privatisation 507-8w
Security 684-5w

Electricity tariffs
Coal prices 688
Competition 506-7w
Employment 470w
Industrial energy prices 691
Industry 507w
Inflation 338w
Pensioners 691-2
Price increases 690-3
South Western Electricity Board 691

Electronic equipment
Balance of trade 33-4w
Retail trade 33-4w

Electronic surveillance
Offenders 139-40w

Electronics industry
Exports 250w
Production 250w

Elevated sections of motorways
M6 454w

Eli Lilley
Drugs 628w
NHS 628w

Elmvale School Springburn 728-9w

Emergency planning
Electricity supply industry 62w
Food contamination 157w
NHS finance 197w

Emergency powers
Northern Ireland 165-6w, (16:02:88) 925-49

Emery, Sir Peter
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1158-9
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 222

Employees' contributions
National insurance contributions 205w

Employers' contributions
Members' pensions 658w

Employment 228-9w
Abortion 780w
Agriculture 76w
Coal mining 76w
EC internal trade 537w
Electricity tariffs 470w
Northern region 231w
Nurses 487w
Wales 81w

Employment Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
Rep (08:02:88) 39-139
Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 371-452

Employment by sector
Scotland 733-4w
Women 733w

Employment discrimination
Appeals 440-2w
Leicestershire County Council 521w
Northern Ireland 440-2w, 594-6w, 674w

Employment opportunities 334w
North Angus 728w
Regional selective assistance 306w
Wales 597w

Employment schemes
Basildon 547-8w
Business in the Community 314-5w
Economic League 415w
Northwich 468-9w

Employment Service (16:02:88) 825-38

Employment services
Channel tunnel 312w
Sizewell B 312w

Employment training 383w

Empty housing
Chester 297w
Council housing 22-4w
Duchy of Lancaster 33w
Vale Royal 297w

Energy conservation
Palace of Westminster 58w

Energy consumption
Industry 513-4w

Energy research
Nuclear power 684w

Energy Select Committee 684w

Engine oil
Cancer hazards 97-8w

Engineering industries
Graduates 814

English education 581-2w

English Estates see English Industrial Estates Corporation

English Industrial Estates Corporation
Expenditure 257w

English language
Air traffic control 244w

English National Opera 568-70w

English Working Group see National Curriculum English Working Group

ENO see English National Opera

Enterprise allowance scheme
Cheshire 547-50w

Enterprise & Deregulation Unit
Business 532w

Enterprise counsellors
Accountants 148w

Enterprise initiative 345-8

Enterprise zones
Tax allowances 421w

Entry clearances
Immigrants' fiancees 690-1w
Immigration controls 40w

Environment protection
Disclosure of information 462w
European Year of the Environment 523-4w
Nuclear power stations 344-5w
Opencast mining 661w

Environmental health
Gypsies 396w

Environmental impact assessment 344-5w

Epilepsy
Scotland 70w

Equal opportunities
Handicapped 283w

Equipment
Coal mining 512w
Mining 261w
Telephones 350

Erskine bridge
Toll bridges 320w

ESRC see Economic & Social Research Council

Estate Action 662w
Housing improvement 662w

Estate Agents Act 1979
Questions
307w

Ethics 185
Church of England 821

Ethnic groups
Armed forces officers 82w
Census of population 559w
Immigrant detainees 39w

Ethnic minorities
Arts Council grants 698-9, 769w
Industrial tribunals 383w
Job centres 469-70w
Police 704w

Ethnic monitoring
Complaints against police 303w
Haringey 559w

EURATOM 57w, 235w, 416w, 461-2w, 519w, 530w, 753w
Nuclear safeguards 235w

Europe
Motor vehicle safety 551w
NATO 424w
Telecommunications industry 340

European Agricultural Guidance & Guarantee Fund 760w

European Assembly see European Parliament

European Assembly constituencies 768-9w
Wales 768w

European Atomic Energy Community see EURATOM

European Coal & Steel Community 716w

European Commission 57w, 254w, 294w, 770w
Official engagements 689w
Radioactive waste disposal 461-2w
Radioactive wastes 287w

European Council 340w, 612w, 688-90w, (15:02:88) 755-98
Butter 612w
Common agricultural policy 611w
EC budget 294w, 611-2w, 726-7w
Economic agreements 688-9w
Foreign relations 612w
Ministerial statements (15:02:88) 705-17

European Court of Justice 330w
VAT zero rated goods 332-3w

European Economic Community 34w, 152-4w, 373-6w

European fighter aircraft 84w, (11:02:88) 524-98
F18 aircraft 84w
Official engagements 134w
West Germany 84w

European Free Trade Association 147w

European Investment Bank 760w

European Parliament 235w, 346w, 768-9w
Radioactive wastes 286-7w

European Patent Office (17:02:88) 1122-30

European Regional Development Fund 760w
EC grants & loans 146-7w
Official engagements 254w
Regional aid 253w
Wales 75-6w

European Research into Consumer Affairs 57w

European Security Conference
Romania 233w

European Social Fund 760w

European Space Agency 248-9w

European Year of the Environment
Environment protection 523-4w

Evans, Mr David
Questions
Confederation of British Industry, Official engagements 337-8w
Football, Arrests 434w
Football, Hooliganism 965

Housing construction, Housing finance 456-7w
Local government land, Property transfer 659w
Planning appeals, Administrative delays 288w
Rate support grants 754-5w

Evennett, Mr David
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1011, 1062-4
Questions
Bexley Health Authority, NHS finance 173w
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 507w
London Regional Passengers' Committee 454w
London Regional Passengers' Committee, Public appointments 743-4w
London Regional Transport, Bus services 452w
London Regional Transport Act 1984, Law reform 451-2w
Passports, Administrative delays 707w
Teachers, Greater London 183
Teachers, Trade unions 581w

Evidence
Criminal appeals 1144
Skuse, Frank 438-9w, 547w, 1138-9

Ewing, Mr Harry
Questions
Public service pensions, Retail price index 688w

Ewing, Mrs Margaret
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1154
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 755, 790-1
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 205
Questions
Air force, Sea rescue 238-9w
Brucellosis, Scotland 223w
Death, Scotland 654-6w
Decriminalisation, Scotland 64w
Domestic violence, Police 65w
Fisheries, Scotland 729w
Handicap benefits, Social security payments 348w
Languages education, Scotland 654w
North Sea oil, Offshore suppliers 690
Rescue services, Climbing 238w
Rescue services, Costs 739w
Scotland, Universities 576-8w
Social security benefits, Retail price index 247-8w, 349w
Syrian Arab Republic, Torture 691w
Test tube babies, Scotland 654w
Veterinary services, Scotland 221-2w

Examinations 573-4w, 816-7
Age 816-8
Curriculum 371w, 572w, 817
General Certificate of Secondary Education 163w
Licensed conveyancers 366w

Exceptional needs payments
Camberwell 700w
Expenditure 116w, 699w
Leicester 694w
North East region 500-2w
Rotherham 175w
Social security recipients 205-6w

Excise duties
Aviation fuels 566w

Exercise Fire Focus 736w

Exercise Teamwork 88
Amphibious vehicles 239w

Exhaust emission controls
Motor industry 605-6w

Exhaust emissions 381w

Exhibitions
British Nuclear Fuels 226w

Expert evidence
Forensic science (16:02:88) 950-8

Export credit guarantees
Contracts 442-3w

Export Credits Guarantee Department 442-3w

Export licensing
Communication engineering 306w
Palestine Liberation Organisation 306w

Export prices
Dollar 342

Exports
Aircraft 305w
Armoured fighting vehicles 236w
COCOM 305w
Electronics industry 250w
Milk 675-6w
Nuclear fuels 225-6w
Palestine Liberation Organisation 305w
Pigmeat 675-6w
Telecommunications industry 339
Telephone directories 339-40

Exservicemen
Nuclear weapons tests 83-4w, 757-8w

External financing limits
British Rail 454w
Water authorities 752-3w

Extortion
Building industry 593w
IRA 545w, 593w
Northern Ireland 519w, 594w
Tax yields 723-4w
Terrorism 519w, 594w

Extracurricular activities
Fees & charges 683-4w
University finance 372w

Extradition
Republic of Ireland 164-5w, 685-6w

Eye disorders
Hospital waiting lists 632-8w

Eye tests 349w, 463w
NHS 112w
NHS charges 732w
Optical charges 195w, 349w
Scotland 732w

F16 aircraft
Air force bases 538w

F18 aircraft
European fighter aircraft 84w

Factories
Management 259w

Factory closures
Canning Town Glass 259-60w

Fair Employment Agency for Northern Ireland 594-6w

Fair Employment Commission
Northern Ireland 749w

Fairbairn, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1159

"Faith in the City"
Inner city areas 962

Falkland Islands
Fisheries 56-7w, 425w
Military exercises 736-7w

Fallon, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 833
Questions
Educational administration, Local education authorities 572-3w
European Commission, Official engagements 689w
New Zealand, Official engagements 338w
Northern Regional Health Authority, Administrative costs 172w
Prisons, Privatisation 361w
Small businesses, Northern region 227w
Teesside Development Corporation, Official engagements 518w

Falmouth Container Terminal Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

Family credit
Disclosure of information 176w
Poverty trap 176w

Family doctors
Cheshire 268-9w
Costs 115w
Generic prescribing 352w
Leeds 264w
Medical education 353w
Mersey Regional Health Authority 268-9w
Northern Ireland 284-6w
Prescriptions 555w
South Wales 8
Training 284-6w
Wales 123w

"Family Fortunes" 175w

Family income 175w, 399w
Child benefit 777w
Household surveys 529w
Social security reform 777w

Family planning
Developing countries 428w

Family practitioner committees
Pharmacies 200-2w

FAO see Food & Agriculture Organisation

Farm buildings
Planning permission 662w
Rates & rating 462w

Farm incomes
Green pound 674-5w

Farm rents 677w

Farm woodland scheme
Easington 586w

Farmers
Manpower 464w

Farms
Furs 297w

Farr, Sir John
Debates etc.
Protection of Animals (Amendment) Bill, House of Commons Standing Committees (17:02:88) 996
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 993-4
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1276-9
Questions
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Evidence, Criminal appeals 1144
Leicestershire County Council, Employment discrimination 521w
Nature reserves 959
School uniforms 583w
Shipping 340w

Fashoda
Nuclear submarines 735-6w

Fast reactors
Science & technology research 507w

Fatchett, Mr Derek
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1095
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1064-8, 1069, 1070-1
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 141
Questions
Arts, Curriculum 466w
Educational finance 815
Hospital waiting lists, Leeds Eastern Health Authority 280w
Public expenditure, Education 342w
Schools, Parental contributions 808-9

Faulds, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 363
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 209, 234, 257-61, 265
Questions
Business statements 518
Cyprus, Educational aid 125w
Cyprus, Overseas aid 125w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w
Objects in lieu of tax, Office of Arts & Libraries 569-70w

Favell, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 57-8
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 144, 148-9
Questions
Bypasses, Road construction 451w
Drug crimes, Proceeds of crime 541w
Drugs, Hospitals 198w
Hospital patients, Regional health authorities 272-4w
Immigration, Members 1136
Manchester City Council, Redundancy 14
NHS, Performance indicators 191w
Nuclear power, Republic of Ireland 512w
Social security reform 181

Fawley A
Electricity generation 512w

FCO see Foreign & Commonwealth Office

FDA see First Division Association

Fearn, Mr Ronnie
Debates etc.
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1183-6
Questions
Agency nurses, Expenditure 405-6w
Child benefit, Social security benefits uprating 346-7w
Family doctors, Medical education 353w
Health service staff, Pay settlements 497w
Multiple occupation 665w
NHS finance, Direct taxation 556-8w
NHS finance, National insurance contributions 778w
Nurses, Recruitment 167w
Official engagements, Association of British Chambers of Commerce 251w
Pharmacies, Family practitioner committees 200-2w
Pharmacies, Population 201-2w
Pharmacies, Wales 598w
Schools, Fees & charges 808
Severe weather payments 170

Fees & charges
Extracurricular activities 683-4w
Local government services 31w
Manchester Airport 615-6w
Police custody 138w
School meals 583w
Schools 808-9

Fermanagh
Homicide 441-2w

Fertilisers
Production 607w

Field, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 529
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1119
Questions
Air traffic control, Isle of Wight 551w
Oil pollution control, Aircraft 739-40w
Parkhurst Prison, Prison accommodation 1140
Police community liaison committees 434w
Police community liaison committees, Isle of Wight 434w
Rural areas, Development Commission 288w
Storms, Government grants to local authorities 522w
Tax & price index 331w

Field, Mr Frank
Debates etc.
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1175, 1180-3, 1202-3
Questions
AIDS, Pregnancy 785w
AIDS Monitoring & Surveillance Committee 167w
Blood tests, AIDS 199w
Blood tests, Costs 199w
Means tested benefits, Social security recipients 185-6w

Fields, Mr Terry
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 313-4
Questions
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 170-1w

Fife
Leukaemia 774w

Film
Voluntary organisations 500

Finance Act 1984
Questions
Companies 419-20w

Financial institutions
"DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 259w

Financial services
Securities Association 760-1w

Financial Services Act 1986
Questions
255w, 337-9
Self-regulating organisations 607-8w

Fine defaulters
Prisons 71w
Scotland 71w

Finsberg, Sir Geoffrey
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1087-9
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 620, 622, 633, 636, 638-42
Questions
Bank notes 649w
Hospital waiting lists 629-30

Fire certificates
Heathrow central station 412w
London Underground 412w

Fire engines 671w

Fire escapes
Multiple occupation 321-2w

Fire prevention
Houses (09:02:88) 189-91

Fire regulations
Furniture 342-3

Fire services
Contracts for services 671w
Nuclear power stations 436w, 512w
Rate precepts (08:02:88) 140-61

Firearms 38w
EC action 1137
Import controls 1137
Imports 1138
Ryan, Michael 304w

Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1987/88
Questions
302w
Police 1137-8

First Division Association 465w
Dept of Education & Science 574w
Official engagements 812

Fish farming
Chemicals 464w
Salmon 730-1w
Seals 731w

Fisher, Mr Mark
Questions
Arts, Inner city areas 281w
National Theatre, Arts Council grants 699-700
Office of Population Censuses & Surveys, Libraries 780w
Radio, Broadcast journalism 40w
Radio, Broadcasting controls 362w
Radio, Radio frequencies 40w
Radio, Rural areas 39w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 165w
Special educational needs, Teachers 818
Staffordshire County Council 811

Fisheries
Ardglass 749-50w
Falkland Islands 56-7w, 425w
Licensing 729w
Scotland 729w

Fishery protection
Salmon 325-6w

Flannery, Mr Martin
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1011, 1066
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 941-2
Self-employed (15:02:88) 731
Questions
Examinations 816-7
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 502
Shops, Urban areas 970
Teachers, Trade unions 578w

Flats
House renovation grants 673-4w

Fleming, Gerald 750w

Flynn, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 654
Patent Office, Civil service dispersal (17:02:88) 1123-4
Water, Wales (12:02:88) 677-80
Questions
Agricultural chemicals, Set-aside schemes 725w
Alcoholic drinks duties, Non-alcoholic drinks 648w
Ambulance services, Voluntary organisations 413w
Breast cancer, Screening 556w
Budget, Tobacco duties 419-20w
Civil service dispersal, Wales 10-1

Dept of Trade & Industry, Television advertising 256w
Gastropods, Pest control 724-5w
Inheritance tax 340w
Patent Office 145w
Ports, Hazardous materials 739w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 165w
Social security benefits, Retail price index 1146
Sports facilities, Local government services 15-6
Sulphur dioxide, Pollution control 666-7w
Summertime 619w
Television licences, Students 38w
Transnuklear 519w
Wales, Official engagements 134w

Food
Consumer protection 306-7w

Food aid
OECD countries 604-5w

Food aid from EC
Cereals 687w

Food & Agriculture Organisation
USA 293w

Food contamination
Emergency planning 157w

Food hygiene
Bacteria 198-9w
Local authorities 622w

Food inspection
Dairy farming 328w

Food labelling
EC action 727w

Food prices
Bread 725w
Milk 725w

Food surpluses
Disadvantaged 157-8w
Expenditure 587-8w, 612w
Intervention stocks 689w
Local authorities 158w

Fookes, Miss Janet
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 233-5

Foot, Rt Hon Michael
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1159-60
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1152
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 51-3, 60, 81-5, 130-1
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 398-401, 414-5
Questions
Coal mining, Wales 4
Peel, Robert 14

Football 965
Alcoholic drinks 965
Arrests 434w
Crowd control 663w
Hooliganism 416w, 426w, 438w, 964-5

Football League 964-5

Ford Motor Company
Industrial disputes 25-7, 184, 348, 492

Foreign & Commonwealth Office 291w
Sexual harassment 55w

Foreign Enlistment Act 1870
Questions
529w

Foreign investment in UK
Japan 255w

Foreign patients
NHS charges 745-6w

Foreign policy
Bophuthatswana 56w, 424w
Disclosure of information 291w

Foreign relations
European Council 612w
USSR 424w

Forensic science
Clift, Alan 439w
Dismissal 1138
Expert evidence (16:02:88) 950-8
Labour Party 1138

Forestry
Areas of outstanding natural beauty 775w
Scotland 775w
Tax allowances 95w, 339w, 490-1
Taxation 339w

Forestry Commission 775w
Ministerial duties 751-2w

Forests 480w
Borders Region 480w
Northumberland 480w
Pollution 775w

Forman, Mr Nigel
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1153

Forsyth, Mr Michael, Under-Secretary of State for Scotland
Questions
AIDS, Laboratories 64-5w
Ambulance services, Coatbridge 141w
Blood donors, AIDS 367w
Brucellosis, Scotland 223w
Cancer, Scotland 773w
Care proceedings, Scotland 143w
Cervical cancer, Scotland 772-3w
Cervical cancer, Women 773w
Child Care Law in Scotland Review Group 143w
Death, Scotland 654-6w
Doctors, Telephones 70-1w
Drug abuse, Glasgow 772w
Dyslexia, Scotland 732w
Educational finance, Expenditure 481w
Epilepsy, Scotland 70w
Eye tests, NHS charges 732w
Fisheries, Scotland 729w
Free school meals, Tayside 65w
Health insurance, Scotland 143w
Health service staff, NHS administration 141-2w
Higher education colleges, Educational finance 370w
Hospital beds, Scotland 320w, 482-4w
Hospital catering, Scotland 655w
Hospital closures, Scottish health boards 730w
Hospital staff, Lanarkshire Health Board 220-2w
Hospital waiting lists, Hip replacements 482w
Hospital waiting lists, Scotland 482w
Hospitals, Scotland 482w
Languages education, Scotland 367-8w, 477w, 654w
Leukaemia, Fife 774w
Neonatal mortality, Scottish health boards 650-1w
NHS, Scotland 139-40w, 221w
NHS finance, Scotland 322-4w, 479w, 539-40w
Nurses, Scotland 480w
Parkhead Stadium, Public order policing 653w
Population, Clydesdale 142w, 656w
Pre-school education, Scotland 71w
Primary education, Scotland 481w
Residential care, Scotland 729-30w
Salmon, Fish farming 730-1w
School closures, St Bede's School Balornock 729w
School closures, Scotland 728-9w
School nurses, Scotland 142-3w
School population, Scotland 481w
School violence, Scotland 66w
Schools, Clydesdale 63-4w
Schools, Government grants to local authorities 69-70w
Seals, Fish farming 731w
Seals, Scotland 731w
Sheep, Radioactivity 369w
Student grants 476-7w
Student grants, Community charge 369w
Student grants, Housing benefits 369w
Student grants, Index linking 475-6w
Student grants, Scotland 369w
Surgery, Scotland 656-7w
Tayside Health Board, Health service staff 370-1w
Test tube babies, Scotland 654w
Veterinary services, Scotland 221-2w
Water supply, Lead 540w
White fronted geese, Islay 72-3w

Forth, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 194, 215, 223, 286
Questions
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 627
Community charge 975-6
Electricity generation, Nuclear power 510w
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 693
Electronics industry, Production 250w
Employment opportunities 334w
Generalised system of preferences, South Korea 714-5w
Marine insurance, Armed conflict 742w
Satellite communications, Competition 608-10w

Foulkes, Mr George
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1071
Questions
Arms control, Defence industries 292w
Business statements 517-8
Chile, Human rights 292w
Chile, Referenda 292w
EC law, Plain language 57w
El Salvador, Mercenaries 529w
Falkland Islands, Fisheries 56-7w
Falkland Islands, Military exercises 736-7w
Hong Kong, Official visits 427-8w
Military vehicles, Lighting 81w
Mozambique, Defence Systems 529-30w
Nuclear submarines, Faslane 735-6w
Nuclear submarines, HMS Resolution 736w
Nuclear submarines, River Clyde 736w
Official engagements, Consumers' Association 251w
Sudbury-Colchester railway 453w
Trident submarines, Shipping accidents 539w
Westminster pier, Planning permission 670w

Fowler, Rt Hon Norman, Secretary of State for Employment
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 85-9
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 412-8, 433, 440-1
Training, Ministerial statements (16:02:88) 825-38
Questions
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 25-7
Youth training scheme 317w

France
Electricity supply industry 62w
Official engagements 615w
Private health services 187w
Research finance 582w

Frandsen, Aksel 616w

Fraser, Mr John
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 852-5
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 469-70
Questions
Community charge 664w
Housing benefits, Lambeth 559w
Maudsley Hospital, Nervous system disorders 168w

Fraud
Civil service manpower 469w
Prescriptions 622-3w
Seaham 469w

Free school meals
Inner London Education Authority 162w
Tayside 65w

Freeman, Mr Roger, Under-Secretary of State for the Armed Forces
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 590-8
Questions
Air force, Rescue services 238-9w
Armed forces, Electoral register 84w, 136w
Armed forces, Horses 757w
Armed forces cadets, Inner cities initiative 735w
Armed forces officers, Ethnic groups 82w
Armed forces recruitment, AIDS 135-6w
Armed forces training, Health 738w
Armed forces training, Isle of Wight 386w
Armed services youth training scheme, Take-up 735w
Army, Clergy 85w
Army, Clinical depression 445w
Army, Intimidation 755w
Army, Resignations 83w
Army Board, Appeals 449w
Bombings, Criminal investigation 538-9w
Defence land, Horse riding 384w
Departmental correspondence, Intelligence services 85w
Intelligence services, Northern Ireland 83w
Military vehicles, Lighting 81w
Ministry of Defence, Thames house Millbank 446w
Navy, Armed forces storage depots 735w
Official secrets, Public records 241w
Rescue services, Climbing 238w
Rescue services, Costs 739w
Rescue services, Helicopters 387w
Rescue services, Republic of Ireland 755-6w
Royal Observer Corps 440w
United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority, Disclosure of information 240w

Freight transport
Herald of Free Enterprise 4-5w

French, Mr Douglas
Questions
Council house sales, Discounts 462w
Employment opportunities 334w

Frigates
Armed forces deployment 735w

Frontiers
EC countries 425w

Fulmer
Sewers 659w

Furniture
Fire regulations 342-3

Furs
Farms 297w

Further education
Inner London boroughs 161w
School leaving 582w
Students 577w
Young people 46w

Further education colleges 217w
National Association of Teachers in Further & Higher Education 217w
Special education 577w

Fyfe, Mrs Maria
Questions
Business statements 508
Community charge, Battered wives 478w
Community charge, Scotland 478w
Community charges register 478w
Disclosure of information, Trade unions 305w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w
Income tax, Tax burden 334w
Intelligence services, Australia 46w
Pre-school education, Scotland 71w
Student grants, Community charge 369w
Student grants, Housing benefits 369w
Student grants, Scotland 369w

Galbraith, Mr Sam
Questions
BBC, "Secret Society" 728w
Childbirth, Caesarian sections 178w
Health service staff, NHS administration 141-2w
Hospital beds, NHS 502w
Hospital beds, Scotland 320w
Ministry of Defence, Civil service manpower 446w
NHS, Expenditure 496w
NHS finance 175
NHS finance, Scotland 322-4w, 479w
Planning appeals, Scotland 320w
Prescriptions, Family doctors 555w
Public expenditure 341w
Resettlement units, Bishopbriggs 98w
Shaw Medical Centre, Scottish Development Agency 320-1w
Structure plans, Strathclyde 64w
Tax allowances, Luncheon vouchers 90w
Television programmes, National security 144-5w
Universities, Scotland 576w

Gale, Mr Roger
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 231-2, 276-9
Questions
European Assembly constituencies 768-9w
Remand in custody 1132
Worth house, Inquiries 494w

Galloway, Mr George
Questions
Tax allowances, Forestry 339w

Game
Licensing 303w, 708w

Game Licences Act 1860
Questions
708w

Gaming machines
Advisory services 304w
Scotland 476w

Garcia, Ronald J 303-4w

Garel-Jones, Mr Tristan, Vice-Chamberlain of Her Majesty's Household
Debates etc.
Parliamentary gifts, Australia (09:02:88) 169
Parliamentary gifts, St Christopher & Nevis (09:02:88) 169

Garrett, Mr John
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1155
Questions
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Britoil, North Sea oil 690
Homelessness, Bed & breakfast accommodation 663w

Garrett, Mr Ted
Questions
Privatisation 486
Public libraries 465-6w

Gastropods
Pest control 724-5w
Pesticides 724-5w

GATT 155w
Agriculture 155w

Gatwick Airport 245-6w, 545-6w

Gaza Strip 691w

General Agreement on Tariffs & Trade see GATT

General Certificate of Secondary Education 575-6w
Examinations 163w

General Medical Council 187w

Generalised system of preferences
South Korea 714-6w

Generic prescribing
Family doctors 352w
Proprietary drugs 555w

Genetics
Blood tests 362w, 1137
Immigration controls 708w

George, Mr Bruce
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 157-9
Questions
Stock market, Capital 249w

Geriatric patients
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 102-4w

Geriatrics
Nurses 624w

Germany
Private health services 187w

Gill, Mr Christopher
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 788
Self-employed (15:02:88) 745-6
Questions
Hospital catering, Privatisation 173w
Pigmeat, Monetary compensatory amounts 820
Privatisation 487

Gilmour, Rt Hon Sir Ian
Questions
DROPS, Defence equipment 758-9w
Sub post offices, Finance 609w

Glasgow 773w
Drug abuse 772w

GLC see Greater London Council

Glendevon Carpets 337

Global Communication
VAT 770w

Glyn, Dr Alan
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1167
Structure plans, Berkshire (11:02:88) 603

Godman, Dr Norman A
Questions
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Greenock 404w
Electorate, Rates & rating 369w
Income support scheme, Scotland 404w
Newbattle Abbey College, Finance 519w
Regional aid, Strathclyde 368w
Salmon, Fish farming 730-1w
School closures, Scotland 688w
Seals, Fish farming 731w
Seals, Scotland 731w
Supplementary benefits, Scotland 502-4w

Golding, Mrs Llin
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 91-2
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 383-4, 426-7
Questions
Junior hospital doctors, Overtime 172w

Goodhart, Sir Philip
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 237-9

Goodlad, Mr Alastair
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 364
Questions
Cheshire County Council, Local government services 521-2w
Cheshire County Council, Local government staff 520w
Cost per pupil, Cheshire 584-5w
Employment schemes, Northwich 468-9w
Empty housing, Vale Royal 297w
Enterprise allowance scheme, Cheshire 547-50w
Factories, Management 259w
Family doctors, Mersey Regional Health Authority 268-9w
Greenbelt, Eddisbury 672w
Health service staff, Crewe Health Authority 399-401w
Job training scheme, Cheshire 230w
Leisure drives, Cheshire 452w
Mental health community care 267-8w
Minimum wage, North West region 470w
Restart programme, Cheshire 150w
Self-employed, Cheshire 229w
Service industries, Northwich 313-4w
Tourist industry, Cheshire 229-30w
Unemployed, Mental illness 231-2w
Unemployment, Cheshire 230-2w
Unemployment, Northwich 471-2w
Vacancies, Northwich 313-4w
Wages Inspectorate, Northunnel 74w
Youth employment, Cheshire 231w

Goodson-Wickes, Dr Charles
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 854
Questions
"Sex", Terrence Higgins Trust 608w, 620-1w

Gordon, Ms Mildred
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 471-2
Questions
Government data network, Computer privacy 567w
Government data network, Computers in Government departments 567-8w, 721-2w
Government data network, Cost effectiveness 568w
Government data network, Police national computer 721w

Gorman, Mrs Teresa
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1160
Questions
Old people's homes, Disciplinary proceedings 98w

Gorst, Mr John
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 198, 204, 254
Questions
Road tax, Tax evasion 452-3w

Gould, Mr Bryan
Questions
British Steel Corporation, Privatisation 341-2
Trade competitiveness 342

Government
Hong Kong 236w, (10:02:88) 355-64

Government assistance
AIDS 168w
Computer aided design 250w
Liverpool 969
Rural areas 461w
South Wales 5
Wind power 689

Government assistance to industry
Airbuses 444w
Innovation 260w
Lancashire 148-9w
Manufacturing industries 18-9
Wales 18-9

Government assistance to nationalised industries
Coal mining 696

Government contracts
Government data network 247w

Government data network
Computer privacy 247w, 567w
Computers in Government departments 567-8w, 721-2w
Cost effectiveness 568w
Government contracts 247w
Police national computer 721w

Government departments
Northern Ireland 821
Paper 537w
Public expenditure 770w

Government grants
BBC external services 233w
Coal mining 344w
Lancashire County Council 211w
London Regional Transport 242w
North Peckham task force 253-4w
Railway freight transport 453w
South West Housing Society 5-6w
Urban development corporations 666w

Government grants to local authorities
Community care 282-4w
Community charge 456w
Schools 69-70w
Storms 522w

Government responses
Dartford Thurrock Crossing Bill 1987/88 551-3w

Government shareholding 334w
Britoil 486

Gow, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 993
Questions
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 27
Property Services Agency, Privatisation 967

Gower, Sir Raymond
Questions
Bus services, Wales 77w
Bypasses, Wales 77w
Common agricultural policy, Wales 16
Community charge, Caravan sites 13
Severn bridge, Construction 10

Graduates
Engineering industries 814

Graham, Mr Thomas
Questions
Housing benefits, Social security reform 775w
Invalid care allowances, Availability for work 627-8w
Invalid care allowances, Social security recipients 628w
Student grants 476-7w

Graham Committee see National Curriculum Mathematics Working Group

Grandparents (17:02:88) 997-9

Grandparents (Adoption of Children) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
1R (17:02:88) 997-9

Grant, Sir Anthony
Questions
Business statements 505-6
Cycling, Road accidents 412-3w
Doctors, Negligence 187w
Planning appeals, Administrative delays 719w

Grant, Mr Bernie
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 455
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1230, 1234, 1242-3
Questions
Armed forces officers, Ethnic groups 82w
Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1987/88 302w
Immigrant detainees, Ethnic groups 39w
NHS, Gynaecology 270w
NHS finance, Expenditure 488
Official engagements, South Africa 46w
Residuary bodies, Annual reports 658w
Social security claims, Administrative delays 186w

Grant maintained schools 573w
Special education 819-20

Greater London
Ambulance services 111-2w
Buses 749w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 351w
Homelessness 296-7w
NHS finance 211-3w
Night flying 245-6w
Offensive weapons 38w
Road traffic 614w
Road traffic offences 542w
School admission 53-6w
Social security reform 351-2w
Teachers 183
Traffic wardens 542-3w

Greater London Council 242w

Greater Manchester
Local government staff 6-20w

Greater Manchester (Light Rapid Transit System) Bill (HL) 1984/85
Debates etc.
Royal assent (09:02:88) 169

Greater Manchester (Light Rapid Transit System) (No 2) Bill (HL) 1984/85
Debates etc.
Royal assent (09:02:88) 169

Greater Manchester Passenger Transport Executive
Rate precepts (09:02:88) 287-307

Green pound
Farm incomes 674-5w
Sterling 771-2w

Greenbelt
Departmental circulars 285w
Eddisbury 672w
Hertfordshire 21w
Hypermarkets 970

Greenland
Nuclear accidents 240-1w

Greenock
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 404w
Regional selective assistance 368w

Greenway, Mr Harry
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1161
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1085-6
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 193
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1034-5, 1043
Questions
Aircraft noise, Jet aircraft 746-8w
Armed forces, Horses 757w
Armed services youth training scheme, Take-up 735w
Art works, Obscenity 468w
Axle weights, Road damage 245w
British Rail, Land acquisition 740w
Business & Technician Education Council 48w
Business statements 512-3
Charities, Law reform 436w
Coal mining, Pay 695-6
Competition 354
Computers in National Health Service 175w
Curriculum, Teachers 815
Dog fighting 768w
Football, Alcoholic drinks 965
Grant maintained schools 573w
Medical treatments, Lost working days 554-5w
National Theatre, Arts Council grants 700
Official engagements 135w, 294w, 520w
Rates & rating, London Boroughs Association 663w
Schools, Fees & charges 808
Tax allowances, Sports administration 423w
Tax & price index 331w

Greenway, Mr John
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 780
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1300-3, 1313-4
Questions
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Educational finance 814
Opera, Official engagements 467w
Schools, Pedestrian crossings 46-7w

Greenwich
Thamesmead Town 21w

Greenwich Hospital
Hospital closures 273w

Gregory, Mr Conal
Questions
Dock workers, Liverpool Dock Labour Board 770-2w
Motor vehicles, Head restraints 613w
York District Hospital, Costs 190w

Griffiths, Sir Eldon
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 934-6
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 989-90
Questions
Police, Personal records 137-8w

Griffiths, Mr Nigel
Questions
Community charge rebates, Scotland 780-1w
Housing benefits, Social security reform 177
Housing Corporation, Scotland 774w
Student numbers, Wales 766w
Students, Universities 373-4w
Universities, Student numbers 762-6w

Griffiths, Mr Win
Questions
Academic freedom 580-1w
Coal fired power stations, Central Electricity Generating Board 509w
Employment, Wales 81w
Income support scheme, Handicap benefits 630w
Privatisation 95w
Regional aid, Bridgend 352
Resettlement units, Homelessness 182w
Student Awards Review Committee 432w
Student grants 432-3w
Water authorities, Water pollution 669w

Griffiths Committee see Community Care Review

Grimsby
Severe weather payments 492w

Grimsby Health Authority
Hospital beds 491w
Hospital consultants 490-1w
Housing 490w
Nurses 491w
Public appointments 491w
Special duty allowances 492w

Grist, Mr Ian, Under-Secretary of State for Wales
Debates etc.
Opencast mining, Clwyd (10:02:88) 482-4
Water, Wales (12:02:88) 680-4
Questions
Accident & emergency departments, Wales 123w
AIDS, Laboratories 79-80w
Cancer, Screening 75w
Cervical cancer, Wales 12
Community charge, Caravan sites 13
Community charge, Mobile homes 81w
Community health services, Wales 518w
Congenital abnormalities, Heart diseases 463w
Dental charges, Wales 464w
Family doctors, Wales 123w
Gwynedd Health Authority, Official engagements 81w
Health insurance, Wales 318-9w
Health services, Clwyd 518w
Homelessness, Wales 120-4w
Hospital beds, Wales 18
Hospital catering, Wales 123-4w
Hospital waiting lists, Cervical cancer 518w
Hospital waiting lists, Hip replacements 15
Hospital waiting lists, Wales 81w, 123-4w
Housing, Alyn & Deeside 462-3w
Multiple occupation, Housing policy 8-9
Multiple occupation, Wales 9
NHS, Expenditure 18, 223-4w
NHS administration, Manpower 11-2
NHS charges, Foreign patients 745-6w
Obstetrics, Wales 79w
Ophthalmic services, Waiting lists 463w
Paediatrics, South Wales 319w
Pharmacies, Wales 598w
Primary health care, Gwent 8
Residential care, Wales 686w
Speech therapy, Wales 518w
Sports facilities, Local government services 15-6
Sports facilities, Wales 16
Structure plans, Wales 598w
Surgery, North Wales 15
Vaccination, Wales 77-80w

Grocott, Mr Bruce
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 224
Questions
Election offences, Prosecutions 361w
Grant maintained schools 573w
Independent Broadcasting Authority, Official engagements 709w
Overtime 548w
Urban development corporations, Telford 666w

Ground, Mr Patrick
Questions
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board 543w
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board, Administrative delays 707w

Grylls, Mr Michael
Questions
Consultants, Small businesses 346

Guaranteed prices
Wool 328w

Guillotine (17:02:88) 1083-108

Guinness
Company investigations 261w

Gummer, Rt Hon John Selwyn, Minister of State for Agriculture, Fisheries & Food
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 775, 778, 794-8
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1274-5, 1293
Questions
Agriculture, GATT 155w
Animal feed, Import duties 155w
EC free food scheme 586w
Farm woodland scheme, Easington 586w
Food surpluses, Disadvantaged 157-8w
Food surpluses, Local authorities 158w
Land drainage, Drainage rates 158w
Monofilament gill nets, Birds 588w
Waste disposal, Dawdon Colliery 133w, 237w
Waste disposal, Durham 585-6w

Gwent
Primary health care 8

Gwynedd
Community hospitals 19-20

Gwynedd Health Authority
Official engagements 81w

Gynaecology
NHS 270w
Surgery 213-4w

Gypsies
Belfast 396w
Education 324-5w
Environmental health 396w
Northern Ireland 324-5w, 395-6w

Hamilton, Mr Neil
Questions
Crown Suppliers, Privatisation 126w
Hospital waiting lists, Macclesfield Health Authority 96w
Opencast mining 697

Hampshire
Cot deaths 270-1w
Police 435-6w

Hampshire (Lyndhurst Bypass) Bill (HL) 1986/87
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

Hampson, Dr Keith
Questions
Examinations, Curriculum 817
Middle schools 603-4w
Urban programme, Leeds 673w

Handicap benefits
Blyth valley 554w
Income support scheme 630w
Social security payments 348w
Social security reform 170, 170w, 171, 171w, 172, 179-80, 554w

Handicapped
Discrimination 188-9w
Equal opportunities 283w
Local authority powers 290w
Ministerial duties 45w, 110w
Northern Ireland 281-3w
Swimming 126-7w
Unemployed 281-2w
Unemployment 281-2w
Wheelchairs 290w

Handicapped drivers
New Zealand 615w
Parking 615w

Handicapped pupils
Special education 572w

Handicapped workers
Aids for handicapped 227-8w
Disabled Persons (Employment) Act 1944 150w

Hanley, Mr Jeremy
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 277
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 849-904 passim
Questions
Immigration, Members 1135
Inner city areas, Private sector 258w
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Acts 165-6w
Social security benefits uprating 176-7

Hannam, Mr John
Questions
Electricity tariffs, South Western Electricity Board 691
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171
Handicapped pupils, Special education 572w
Special education, EC action 584w

Hardy, Mr Peter
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 772
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 143-4, 159
Questions
British Coal Corporation, Official engagements 508w
Coal mining, Industrial disputes 696
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 691
Factory closures, Canning Town Glass 259-60w
Rotherham, Exceptional needs payments 175w

Hargreaves, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 913-4
Questions
Gaming machines, Advisory services 304w

Hargreaves, Mr Ken
Questions
Blackburn Hyndburn & Ribble Valley Health Authority, Patients 558-60w
Hospital waiting lists, North Western Regional Health Authority 623-4w
Science & technology research, Research finance 163w
Social security, Advisory services 566w
University finance, University Grants Committee 311-2w

Haringey
Ethnic monitoring 559w

Harman, Ms Harriet
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1056-7
Questions
Ambulance services, Safety standards 409w
Asbestos, Housing estates 755w
Childbirth, Caesarian sections 177-8w
Dental charges 349w
Dental charges, Dental services 349w
Dental charges, EC countries 349w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Camberwell 698-700w
Exceptional needs payments, Camberwell 700w
Eye disorders, Hospital waiting lists 632-8w
Generic prescribing, Family doctors 352w
Health services, Management consultants 352-3w
Health services finance, EC countries 402-4w
Hospital consultants, Contracts of employment 204w
Income tax, Average earnings 722w
Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981, Prosecutions 616w
Infant mortality 554w
National insurance contributions 354w
NHS charges 174
NHS charges, Local authorities 565w
Optical charges, Eye tests 349w
Prisons, Bibles 619w
Proprietary drugs, Hospital doctors 352w
Social workers, Hospitals 565w

Harris, Mr David
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 529, 562
Questions
English Industrial Estates Corporation, Expenditure 257w

Hartley Hospital
Hospital closures 698w

Harvest Chewy bars
VAT 343w

Haselhurst, Mr Alan
Questions
Housing compensation 1146
School admission, Rural areas 819
Stansted Airport, Air routes 410w

Haslam, Robert 684w

Hattersley, Rt Hon Roy
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1149-50, 1156
European Council (15:02:88) 707-9
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 874-6, 883
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 29
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 931-5, 943-4
Questions
Education, Schools & parents 820-1
NHS finance 1145
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 499

Hayes, Brian 35w

Hayes, Mr Jerry
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 991
Questions
Economic growth, Unemployment 336w
Health services, Acute beds 270w
Hospital waiting lists, Regional health authorities 489w
Intestacy, Administration of estates 612w
Intestacy, Charities 769w
Intestacy, Companies 769w
Police & Criminal Evidence Act 1984 1142-3

Haynes, Mr Frank
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 41, 57-61, 129
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 386-7
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1209
Self-employed (15:02:88) 750-1
Questions
Business statements 509
Coal mining 688
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 508w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 170-1w
Public libraries, Nottinghamshire 151w

Hayward, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 526
Questions
Arts Council grants, Ethnic minorities 699
Urban development corporations, Bristol 666w

Hazardous materials
Durham 150-1w
Ports 739w

Hazardous wastes
Channel ferries 5w
Customs & Excise 95w
Herald of Free Enterprise 42w, 57w
Import licensing 24w
Imports 24w
Seaham 379w, 566-7w
Waste disposal 297w

HC see House of Commons

Head restraints
Motor vehicles 613w

Health 175
Armed forces training 738w
Teachers 310w

Health & Safety Commission see Health & Safety Executive

Health & Safety Executive 232w, 345w, 383w, 468w

Health education
Swimming 267w

Health insurance 269w, 777-8w
Health services finance 263-4w
Northern Ireland 284w
Scotland 143w
Tax allowances 90w
Wales 318-9w

Health service staff
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 108-10w
Business education 556w
Crewe Health Authority 399-401w
Liverpool Health Authority 354-6w
Manpower 488-9w, 624-5w
NHS administration 141-2w, 265w
NHS finance 195w
Office workers 265w
Pay settlements 115w, 497w
Scotland 141-2w
Tayside Health Board 370-1w
Temporary staff 109w

Health services
Acute beds 270w
Clwyd 518w
Expenditure 264-6w
Management consultants 352-3w

Health services finance
EC countries 174w, 177-8, 204-6w, 402-4w
Health insurance 263-4w

OECD countries 179

Health visitors
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 105-6w

Health warnings
Animal feed 675w

Heart diseases
Analgesics 631-2w
Birmingham Children's Hospital 497-8w, 626-8, 700-1w
Congenital abnormalities 463w
South Glamorgan Health Authority 319w

Heathcoat-Amory, Mr David
Questions
Business statements 511
Further education, Students 577w
Hinkley Point C, Construction 509-10w
Hinkley Point C, Public inquiries 687
Museums & galleries, Collections 151-2w
NHS 173
Official engagements, European Regional Development Fund 254w
Prescription charges, Income 174w
Property Services Agency, Civil service manpower 967

Heathrow Airport 245-6w
Air traffic 453w
Metropolitan Police 37w

Heathrow central station
Fire certificates 412w

Heating
Elderly 187-8w

Heddle, Mr John
Questions
Computer privacy, Publicity 618-9w
Estate Agents Act 1979 307w
Foreign investment in UK, Japan 255w
Hospital waiting lists, NHS & private practice 485-6w
Listed buildings, Codes of practice 521w
Planning appeals, Planning authorities 660w
Rent arrears 667w
Town & country planning, Planning authorities 660w
Urban regeneration grants 521w
Waste disposal, Hazardous wastes 297w

Heffer, Mr Eric S
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 525, 528
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 99-101
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 372, 378-80, 388
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 194, 203, 212, 228, 235, 271-2
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 856-7, 912
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1226, 1235-6
Self-employed (15:02:88) 720, 732-5, 738
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1178
Standing Order No 20 applications (10:02:88) 367
Training (16:02:88) 830
Questions
Belgium, Legal aid 426w
Football, Hooliganism 438w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 26
Government assistance, Liverpool 969
Legal aid, British residents abroad 416w
Protest, Ministry of Defence 1144

Helicopters
Rescue services 387w

Help the Aged 170

Henderson, Mr Doug
Questions
Balance of trade, Japan 256-7w
Public investment 332w
Tree planting, Tax allowances 491
Water authorities, Official engagements 669w

Herald of Free Enterprise
Freight transport 4-5w
Hazardous wastes 42w, 57w

Hermon, John 165w, 216w

Hertfordshire
Greenbelt 21w

Heseltine, Rt Hon Michael
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1153
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1009, 1020-6

Hetherington Committee see War Crimes Inquiry

Heunis, Annette 236w

Heveningham hall
Property transfer 720w

Heysel stadium 416w, 426w, 438w

Hicks, Mrs Maureen
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 254-7
Questions
City technology colleges, Wolverhampton 574w
Invalid care allowances, Pensioners 493w
Pay, Married men 332w

Hicks, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 713
Questions
Police, Computer privacy 305w
Textiles, West Bank 377-8w

Higgins, Rt Hon Terence L
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1151
Questions
Air safety, Air routes 22
Armed forces training, Isle of Wight 386w
Planning appeals, Worthing Borough Council 19-20w
VAT 821

High technology
Science & technology research (19:02:88) 1321-2

Higher civil servants
Communication skills 700
Inland Revenue 92w
Performance related pay 812-3
Treasury 91w

Higher education 809-10
Research 47w

Higher education admission
Discrimination 576w
Edinburgh University 815-6

Higher education colleges
Educational finance 370w
Scotland 370w

Hill, Mr James
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 360
Questions
Business statements 507
Land Registry Office 964
NATO, Europe 424w
Persian Gulf, Western European Union 423w
Universities 810-1
USSR, Foreign relations 424w
Western European Union 183

Hill, Paul 437-8w

Hinchliffe, Mr David
Questions
Exservicemen, Nuclear weapons tests 757-8w
Further education colleges, Special education 577w
Hospital catering, Wakefield Health Authority 180w
House of Commons, Industrial health & safety 772w
Housing benefits, Wakefield District Council 347w
Local government social services, Crimes of violence 197w
Nuclear weapons tests, Christmas Island 769w
Railway land, Trespass 357w
Social workers' training 347w
Waste disposal, West Yorkshire 296w

Hind, Mr Kenneth
Debates etc.
Coal mine closures, Abernant Colliery (18:02:88) 1253
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 940-1
Questions
Government assistance to industry, Lancashire 148-9w
Property Services Agency, Cash limits 720w

Hinkley Point B
Public inquiries 345w

Hinkley Point C 686
Construction 509-10w
Public inquiries 686-7

Hip replacements 182w
Hospital waiting lists 15, 482w

Historic buildings
Romania 425w

HM Chief Inspector of Prisons see HM Inspectorate of Prisons

HM Inspectorate of Prisons 435w

HM Inspectorate of Schools 219w

HM Land Registry see Land Registry Office

HMI see HM Inspectorate of Schools

HMS Conqueror
Log books 318w, 387w

HMS Resolution
Clyde Submarine Base 736w
Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation 756w
Nuclear submarines 736w, 756w
Radiation hazards 756-7w

HMSO
Computers 388w

Hogg, Mr Douglas, Under-Secretary of State at the Home Office
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 944
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 37w, 710-1w
Alcoholism 705w
Body searches, Durham Prison 544w
Body searches, Risley Remand Centre 544-5w
Breathalysers, Age 215w
Chelmsford Prison, Prison staff 702w

Clift, Alan, Forensic science 439w
Complaints against police, Ethnic monitoring 303w
Dog fighting 768w
Drug crimes, Proceeds of crime 541w
Election offences, Prosecutions 361w
Firearms 38w
Firearms, EC action 1137
Firearms, Import controls 1137
Firearms, Imports 1138
Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1987/88 302w
Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1987/88, Police 1137-8
Football, Arrests 434w
Game, Licensing 303w, 708w
Metropolitan Police 1144
Metropolitan Police, Demonstrations 1143-4
Metropolitan Police, Heathrow Airport 37w
Metropolitan Police, Manpower 710w
Metropolitan Police, Privatisation 436w
Metropolitan Police, Sick leave 35-6w
Parole 708w
Police, Barnsley 362w
Police, Ethnic minorities 704w
Police, Hampshire 435-6w
Police, Injuries 136w
Police, Leicestershire 705w
Police, London City Airport 41w
Police, Manpower 620w
Police, Personal records 137-8w
Police community liaison committees 434w
Police community liaison committees, Isle of Wight 434w
Police custody 703w
Police custody, Fees & charges 138w
Police custody, Prisoners on remand 703w
Police national computer 35w, 617-8w
Police right of search, Offensive weapons 617w
Police stations 37-8w
Prison education services, Local education authorities 40-1w
Prison overcrowding 438w
Prison population, Mentally ill 546w
Prisoners, Advisory services 542w
Prisoners, AIDS 620w
Prisoners, Marriage 437-8w
Prisoners, Road traffic offences 439-40w
Prisoners, USA 709-10w
Prisoners, Welsh language 701w
Prisoners on remand, Magistrates' courts 36w
Prisoners on remand, Police custody 435w
Prisoners' release, Mentally ill 546w
Prisons, Bibles 619w
Prisons, Crown immunity 704w
Prisons, Privatisation 361w, 704w, 1134
Prisons, Speech therapy 541-2w
Remand in custody, Magistrates' courts 36-7w
Remand in custody, Prison accommodation 362w
Risley Remand Centre, Medical treatments 620w
Ryan, Michael, Firearms 304w
Stun guns 1138
Summertime 619w
Traffic wardens, Greater London 542-3w
West Mercia Police, Manpower 709w
Wormwood Scrubs, Prison medical services 302w
Young people, Police custody 434-5w

Hogg, Mr Norman
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1156
Questions
Hospital beds, Scotland 482-4w
Hospital closures, Scottish health boards 730w
Hospital waiting lists, Hip replacements 482w
Hospital waiting lists, Scotland 482w
Hospitals, Scotland 482w

Holland, Mr Stuart
Debates etc.
Council house sales, Lambeth (19:02:88) 1326
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 868, 876-8, 881
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1002-3, 1022, 1035-7, 1046-7, 1060-2, 1072
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1210, 1218, 1237
Questions
Banks, Tax allowances 338w
Industrial investment 492

Holroyd, Fred 83w
Army in Northern Ireland 41w

Holt, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 236-7, 261, 281
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1113-4
Training (16:02:88) 832
Questions
Civil service dispersal 701
Council house rents, Middlesbrough Borough Council 974
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board 707w
Economic growth, Unemployment 336w
Rate increases, Cleveland County Council 347
Road traffic offences, Greater London 542w
Social security appeals tribunals, Administrative delays 178w
Traffic wardens, Greater London 542-3w

Holy Loch 735-6w

Home Affairs Select Committee 1134, 1144
Miscarriages of justice 705w

"Home Improvement Policy Consultation Paper" 719w

Home Office 567-8w, 721-2w, 767w
Civil service dispersal 303w
Leicester 437w
Members 37-8w
Sexual harassment 302w

Home Robertson, Mr John
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 766
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1071
Questions
Business statements 517
Doctors, Telephones 70-1w
Housing, Shetland 732w
Nurses, Scotland 480w
Research finance, France 582w
Scottish Fire Service Training School, Complaints 652-3w
Scottish Fire Service Training School, Inquiries 652-3w
Scottish Fire Service Training School, Interviews 652-3w

Homelessness 661w
Bed & breakfast accommodation 661w, 663w
Bristol 972
Departmental leaflets 22w, 661w
Greater London 296-7w
Households 661w
Housing capital allocations 66w
Mortgage defaulters 65-6w, 660-1w
Northern Ireland 325-6w
Resettlement units 182w
Scotland 65-6w, 68-70w
Temporary accommodation 325-6w
Wales 120-4w
Young people 658-9w

Homes Insulation Grants Order 1987
Debates etc.
(10:02:88) 367

Homicide
Children 434w
Fermanagh 441-2w
Life imprisonment 712-4w
Northern Ireland 441w
Taxis 767w

Homosexuality
Arts 698
Citizens' Advice Bureaux 608w

Hong Kong
Civil service pensions 391w
Government 236w, (10:02:88) 355-64
Ministerial statements (10:02:88) 355-64
Nature conservation 292-3w
Official visits 427-8w

"Hong Kong Government White Paper" (10:02:88) 355-64

Hong Kong Legislative Council (10:02:88) 355-64

Hood, Mr Jimmy
Questions
Dyslexia, Scotland 732w
Educational finance, Expenditure 481w
Environment protection, Opencast mining 661w
Fine defaulters, Prisons 71w
Forensic science, Dismissal 1138
Hospital staff, Lanarkshire Health Board 220-2w
Hydroelectric power, North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board 319-20w
LAW Mining Company, Licensing 63w
Ministers' visits abroad, Scottish Office 221w
Nuclear weapons, Transport of radioactive materials 136w
Pay, Scotland 734-6w
Population, Clydesdale 142w, 656w
Primary education, Scotland 481w
Prison population, Scotland 71w
Prison population, Young offenders 71w
School population, Scotland 481w
Schools, Clydesdale 63-4w
Tax allowances, Forestry 339w

Hooliganism 541w
Belgium 438w
Football 416w, 426w, 438w, 964-5
Sporting events 501

Hordern, Sir Peter
Questions
Capital gains tax, Tax yields 87w
Income tax, Tax rates & bands 417w
Metropolitan Police, Heathrow Airport 37w
Mortgage relief 87w
NHS 176
Public Accounts Commission, Expenditure 44w
Surgery, NHS 400w

Hormone growth promoters 156-7w, 678w

Horniman Museum 761-2w

Horse riding
Defence land 384w

Horses
Armed forces 757w

Hospices
District health authorities 274-6w

Hospital beds 173-4
AIDS 776w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 102-4w
Grimsby Health Authority 491w
Leicestershire Health Authority 196-8w
NHS 502w
NHS & private practice 407-8w

Pontefract Health Authority 560w
Scotland 320w, 482-4w
Wales 18

Hospital catering
Contracts for services 655w
Cook-chill catering 180w
Privatisation 173w
Scotland 655w
Wakefield Health Authority 180w
Wales 123-4w

Hospital closures
Brook Hospital 273w
Greenwich Hospital 273w
Hartley Hospital 698w
Mental health community care 553w, 562-6w
Mental hospitals 196w
St Mary's Hospital Manchester 501
Scottish health boards 730w

Hospital consultants
Contracts of employment 204w, 490w, 556w
Grimsby Health Authority 490-1w
Pontefract Health Authority 559-60w
Regional health authorities 272-4w

Hospital discharges 272-4w, 503w
Schizophrenia 561w

Hospital doctors
Disciplinary proceedings 177-8w
Proprietary drugs 352w

Hospital finance 697-8w

Hospital patients 169w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 101-4w
Costs 408-9w
Oxfordshire Health Authority 169w
Per capita costs 487w
Regional health authorities 272-4w

Hospital radio
VAT zero rated goods 342w

Hospital staff
Lanarkshire Health Board 220-2w

Hospital waiting lists 277-8w, 629-30
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 278-80w
Birmingham Children's Hospital 626
Blackburn Hyndburn & Ribble Valley Health Authority 623-4w
Cervical cancer 518w
District health authorities 503-6w
Eye disorders 632-8w
Hip replacements 15, 482w
Leeds Eastern Health Authority 280w
Leeds Western Health Authority 280w
Macclesfield Health Authority 96w
NHS & private practice 485-6w
North Western Regional Health Authority 623-4w
Regional health authorities 489w
Scotland 482w
Sheffield Health Authority 96w
Singleton Hospital 518w
Wales 15, 81w, 123-4w

Hospitals
Abortion 191-2w
Construction 183w
Drugs 198w
Land values 692w
NHS finance 116-8w
Public expenditure 341w
Scotland 482w
Social workers 565w
Standards enforcement 188w
Test tube babies 654w
West Midlands 628-9

Hostels
Mental hospitals 97w

HOTOL 257w

Houghton
Unemployment 475w

House of Commons 517w
Industrial health & safety 772w

House of Commons accommodation
New Parliamentary building 522-3w

House of Commons broadcasting
Television 183, (09:02:88) 192-286

House of Commons catering
Artificial sweeteners 727w
Non-alcoholic drinks 517w

House of Commons chamber
Speaker's rulings & statements (12:02:88) 619

House of Commons debates
Speaker's rulings & statements (08:02:88) 143-4

House of Commons galleries
Speaker's rulings & statements (10:02:88) 344

House of Commons Library
"Spycatcher" 17-8

House of Commons publications
Administrative delays 388w
House of Commons Standing Committees 388w

House of Commons questions
British Steel Corporation 444w
Costs 295w

House of Commons Refreshment Department
Conditions of employment 449w

House of Commons Select Committees
Speaker's rulings & statements (09:02:88) 286

House of Commons staff
Conditions of employment 449w

House of Commons Standing Committees
House of Commons publications 388w
Speaker's rulings & statements (17:02:88) 996

House of Fraser
Company investigations 262w, 713w
Lonrho 262w

House prices
Owner occupied housing 963

House purchase
Housing 973
Housing associations 668w, 672w
Owner occupied housing 963

House renovation grants
Age 457w
Defective housing 667w
Flats 673-4w

Household surveys
Family income 529w
Personal income 527-8w

Households
Community charge 528-9w
Homelessness 661w

Houses
Fire prevention (09:02:88) 189-91

Housing 964
Alyn & Deeside 462-3w
Grimsby Health Authority 490w
House purchase 973
Shetland 732w

Housing action trusts
Departmental publications 670w

Housing associations 966
Domestic rents 966
Finance 379w
House purchase 668w, 672w
Northumberland 520-1w
Rent increases 669w

Housing benefits
Dept of Health & Social Security 621w
Income support scheme 630w
Lambeth 559w
Local government social services 621w
Private rented housing 347w
Social security benefits rules 779w
Social security reform 177, 775w
Student grants 369w, 585w
Thamesmead Town 110w
Wakefield District Council 347w

Housing Bill 1987/88
Questions
379w

Housing capital allocations
Homelessness 66w

Housing compensation 1146

Housing construction
Angus 649w
Housing finance 456-7w
Perth 649w

Housing Corporation 144w, 672w, 966-7
Cash limits 298-9w
Housing improvement 662w
Official engagements 966
Scotland 774w

Housing Defects Act 1984
Questions
667w

Housing estates
Asbestos 755w

Housing finance
Housing construction 456-7w
Scotland 144w

Housing (Houses in Multiple Occupation) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 670

Housing improvement
Council housing 527w
Estate Action 662w
Housing Corporation 662w

Housing policy
Multiple occupation 8-9

Housing revenue accounts 66w

Housing subsidies
Rent increases 527w

Housing tenure 963-4

Howard, Mr Michael, Minister of State for Local Government
Debates etc.
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1109-12
Questions
Community charge 455w, 663-4w
Community charge, Government grants to local authorities 456w
Community charge, Households 528-9w
Community charge, Local authorities 664w
Community charge, Overseas students 456w
Community charge, Parish councils 664w
Household surveys, Family income 529w
Household surveys, Personal income 527-8w
Rates & rating 455-6w
Uniform business rate, Confederation of British Industry 664-5w

Uniform business rate, Rate increases 457-8w

Howarth, Mr George
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 317-8, 324, 325
Questions
Housing improvement, Housing Corporation 662w
Manufactured imports, Manufactured exports 250w

Howarth, Mr Gerald
Questions
Dental health, Lost working days 566w
Industrial production 333w
Primary education, Burntwood 811-2
Prisoners, USA 709-10w
VAT, Harvest Chewy bars 343w

Howe, Rt Hon Sir Geoffrey, Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs
Debates etc.
Hong Kong, Ministerial statements (10:02:88) 355-64
Questions
Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference, Republic of Ireland 149w
Hong Kong, Government 236w
Republic of Ireland, Military aircraft 776w

Howell, Rt Hon David
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1152
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 357

Howell, Mr Ralph
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 761-2, 768, 773-7
Questions
Agricultural land, Cereals 465-6w
Agricultural production, EC countries 587w
Balance of trade 606w
Butter, Retail prices 676-7w
Cereals, EC countries 677w
District health authorities, Land ownership & tenure 625w
District health authorities, Land values 692w
Farm rents 677w
Food prices, Milk 725w
Green pound, Sterling 771-2w
Health insurance 777-8w
Health service staff, NHS administration 265w
Hospitals, Land values 692w
Norwich Health Authority, Land values 692-4w
Pay, Married men 332w
Price increases, Manufacturing industries 548w
Public corporations 415w
Tax thresholds 497
UK contributions to EC budget, UK repayments from EC budget 648w
Wheat, Common farm prices 679w
Wheat, Intervention prices 680w
Wheat, Prices 726w

Howells, Mr Geraint
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 777-80
Questions
Cancer, Screening 75w
Regional selective assistance 252w
Wind power, Government assistance 689
Wool, Guaranteed prices 328w

Hoyle, Mr Doug
Questions
Business statements 515
Immigrant detainees 215-6w
Risley Remand Centre, Medical treatments 620w
Westminster Children's Hospital, Burglary 781w

HSE see Health & Safety Executive

Hughes, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 288, 289-91, 302, 322-3
Questions
Air safety, Air traffic control 24

Hughes, Mr Robert G
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 361
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 200
Questions
Bus crews, Information 413w
Bus crews, Smoking 413w
Buses, Crime 413-4w
Council housing, Housing improvement 527w
Deaf, Telephone exchanges 214w
Higher civil servants, Communication skills 700
Housing subsidies, Rent increases 527w
Pay, Married men 332w
Speech therapists, Pay 266-8w
Television, Broadcasting controls 703w

Hughes, Mr Roy
Questions
Economic situation, Wales 4-5
Paediatrics, South Wales 319w
Pay, Juries 350w
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 7-8
Unemployment, Newport 9

Hughes, Mr Sean
Questions
Army, Clergy 85w
Army, Resignations 83w
Income support scheme, Social security recipients 113w
Planning appeals 662w

Hughes, Mr Simon
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 457, 465-7, (17:02:88) 1006, 1036
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1209, 1211-2
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1109, 1116-8, 1120
Questions
Birds, Poisons 61w
Buses, Greater London 749w
Chemical weapons, USA 448w
Council house rents, London boroughs 524w
Council house waiting lists, London boroughs 22w
Educational administration, Inner London boroughs 371-2w
Homelessness, Greater London 296-7w
Housing benefits, Local government social services 621w
Housing benefits, Private rented housing 347w
Housing Corporation 966-7
Medical treatments, Administrative delays 199-200w
NHS finance, Greater London 211-3w
NHS finance, Health service staff 195w
NHS finance, Regional health authorities 181w
North Peckham task force, Government grants 253-4w
Police, Ethnic minorities 704w
Prosthetics, Administrative delays 200w
Shared ownership schemes, Council housing 973
Tree conservation 673w
Human rights 681w
Chile 292w

Hume, Mr John
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 984
Questions
Educational maintenance allowance, Northern Ireland 396-7w
Electricity supply industry, Northern Ireland 392-3w
Family doctors, Northern Ireland 284-6w
Homelessness, Temporary accommodation 325-6w
Local government audit, Craigavon Borough Council 397w
Mobility allowance, Civil service manpower 327w
Mobility allowance, Northern Ireland 326-7w
Mobility allowance, Social security appeals 163-4w, 326-7w
Mobility allowance, Social security claims 327w
Punishment attacks, Criminal injuries compensation 86w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 1146-7
Rural areas, Northern Ireland 592w
Student grants, Northern Ireland 286w, 396w

Hunter, Mr Andrew
Questions
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Adult training centres 105-7w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Capital investment 105-6w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Expenditure 99-102w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Geriatric patients 102-4w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Health service staff 108-10w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Health visitors 105-6w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Hospital beds 102-4w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Hospital patients 101-4w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Hospital waiting lists 278-80w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Mental health services 107w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Mental patients 107-8w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, NHS finance 99-100w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Pay 100w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Supplementary benefits 108w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority, Surgery 101-4w
Basingstoke Hospital, Ambulance services 109-10w
Bophuthatswana, Foreign policy 56w, 424w
Drugs, Costs 109w
EC internal trade, Trade barriers 259w
General Certificate of Secondary Education 576w
Health service staff, Temporary staff 109w
Income tax 335w
NHS, Industrial relations 173-4w
Official engagements, Basingstoke 293w
Planning permission, Farm buildings 662w
Police, Hampshire 435-6w

Hurd, Rt Hon Douglas, Secretary of State for the Home Department
Debates etc.
Nazi war crimes, Offenders (08:02:88) 28-36
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 925-31

Questions
Association of Chief Police Officers, Official engagements 1133
Bombings, Birmingham 436-7w
Brixton Prison, Prison staff 1140
Civil service dispersal, Home Office 303w
Crime prevention 1143
Crime prevention, Codes of practice 1143
Departmental correspondence, Tower Hamlets 437w
Drug crimes, Proceeds of crime 701w
Education, Immigrants 711-2w
European Assembly constituencies 768-9w
European Assembly constituencies, Wales 768w
Home Office, Members 37-8w
IRA, Extortion 545w
Metropolitan Police, Expenditure 547w
Official secrets, Law reform 1140-1
Parkhurst Prison, Prison accommodation 1140
Police, Computer privacy 305w
Police, Northumberland 1133
Police, West Yorkshire 1134
Police & Criminal Evidence Act 1984 1142-3
Police & Criminal Evidence Act 1984, Crime prevention 1142
Police misconduct, Stalker, John 216w
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 41w, 703w, 705w
Prison riots, Costs 1139-40
Royal prerogative, Intelligence services 39w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 394w
Sexual harassment, Home Office 302w
Special constables 1133-4
Telephone tapping, Judicial review 303w
War crimes, Inquiries 304w
Written questions, Knowles, Michael 767w

Hydroelectric power
North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board 319-20w

Hypermarkets 970
Greenbelt 970
Planning inquiries 969-70

IAEA see International Atomic Energy Agency

IBA see Independent Broadcasting Authority

Ibbs, Robin 294-5w

Ideal Homes Exhibition
Dept of Education & Science 219-20w
Expenditure 812

ILEA see Inner London Education Authority

Illsley, Mr Eric
Questions
Community programme 383w
Local government services, Tenders 672-3w

Illuminated signs
Planning permission 21w

ILO see International Labour Organisation

Immigrant detainees 215-6w
Ejoh, Orkechurkwu Emmanuel 138w
Ethnic groups 39w

Immigrants
Education 711-2w

Immigrants' fiancees
Entry clearances 690-1w

Immigration
AIDS 546w
Members 710w, 1135-6
Republic of Ireland 711w
Tower Hamlets Borough Council 710w

Immigration & Nationality Division (16:02:88) 847-924
Administrative delays 136w
Civil service manpower 137w
Languages 543w
Overtime 543-4w

Immigration appeals 438w

Immigration applications 215w
Akhtar, Nasreen 149-50w
Begum, Salema 1136-7
Temporary immigrants 137w
Visas 140w

Immigration Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 847-924

Immigration controls
Entry clearances 40w
Genetics 708w
Meyer, Gene 545-6w
Ministers 529w

Immigration officers (16:02:88) 847-924

Immigration rules 709w

Import controls
Firearms 1137

Import duties
Animal feed 155w

Import licensing
Hazardous wastes 24w

Imports 495
Cars 284w
Coal 63w, 687, 694-5
Firearms 1138
Hazardous wastes 24w
Milk 157w, 677-8w
Synthetic fibres 148-9w
Textiles 377-8w

"Improving Management in Government" (18:02:88) 1149-56

Income
NHS charges 401-2w
Prescription charges 174w

Income & Corporation Taxes Bill (HL) 1987/88
Debates etc.
Royal assent (09:02:88) 169

Income support scheme
Handicap benefits 630w
Housing benefits 630w
Rates & rating 489-90w
Scotland 404w
Social security recipients 113w
Social security reform 630w

Income tax 335w, 342w, 493-4
Average earnings 87-8w, 722w
Departmental forms 342-3w
Low incomes 89-90w
Personal tax allowances 493
Tax burden 247w, 333-4w
Tax rates & bands 90w, 417-8w, 423w, 496
Taxpayers 247w

Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981
Questions
Prosecutions 616w

Independent Broadcasting Authority 39w, 712w
Official engagements 709w

Index linking
Student grants 372w, 475-6w

India
Ministers' visits abroad 215w

Industrial accidents 74w
London Docklands 383w
Small businesses 74w
West Glamorgan 74w

Industrial development
Birmingham 969
Castleford 532-3w

Industrial disputes
Coal mining 695-6
Ford Motor Company 25-7, 184, 348, 492
Teachers 371w

Industrial energy prices
Electricity tariffs 691
Paper industry 345

Industrial health & safety 232w
House of Commons 772w
Technicians 626-7w

Industrial investment 491-2
Devon & Cornwall Development Bureau 759-60w
Manufacturing industries 491

Industrial production 333w
Metal industries 341
Paper industry 344-5
Publishing 350

Industrial relations (08:02:88) 39-139
Coal mining 693
NHS 173-4w

Industrial tribunals
Ethnic minorities 383w

Industries
Profits 388-92w

Industry
Electricity tariffs 507w
Energy consumption 513-4w
Superconductivity 607w

Infant foods
Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy 276w
Nitrates 571-2w
Water 571-2w

Infant mortality 554w

Inflation 331w
Electricity tariffs 338w
NHS finance 331-2w
Public expenditure 331-2w

Information
Bus crews 413w
Insider trading 255w
Wallace, Colin 41w

Information technology
Civil service manpower 174w
Dept of Health & Social Security 174w

Ingram, Mr Adam
Questions
Epilepsy, Scotland 70w
Space technology, Science & technology research 248-9w

Inheritance tax 340w

Injuries
Police 136w

Inland Revenue 567-70w, 593-4w, 701, (15:02:88) 719-54, 721-4w
Higher civil servants 92w

Inner cities initiative
Armed forces cadets 735w

Inner city areas
Arts 281w
Departmental coordination 258w
"Faith in the City" 962
Private sector 258w
Urban development corporations 968

Inner London boroughs
Curriculum 682w
Education 160-2w, 433w

Educational administration 371-2w, 681-2w, 711-2w
Educational finance 161w
Further education 161w
NHS finance 211-3w
Pupils 162w

Inner London Education Authority 47w, 308w, 433w, 488, 525-6w, 575w, 681-2w, 711-2w, 753w, 761-2w, (17:02:88) 1000-82
Educational standards 161-2w, 219w, 575w
Expenditure 218-20w, 812
Free school meals 162w
Public appointments 308-9w
Rate precepts (10:02:88) 453-76
Rate support grants 308w
Research 682w
Sports 162w

Innovation
Government assistance to industry 260w

Inquiries
Air safety 357-8w
Civil service 294w
Crown Suppliers 299-302w
NHS finance 176w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 46w, 165w, 394w, 499, 502, (17:02:88) 977-96, 1146-7
Scottish Fire Service Training School 652-3w
Transport 747w
War crimes 304w
Worth house 494w

Insider trading 536w
Company investigations 621w
Information 255w
Peachey Property 621w

Insolvency Service
Office dispersal 761w

Insurance
EC internal trade 259w
Kidnapping 545w

Intelligence services 45w
Australia 46w
Departmental correspondence 85w
National security 500
Northern Ireland 83w
Royal prerogative 39w

Intensive care
Neonatal mortality 558w

Inter-American Development Bank
USA 293w

Interest rates 331w

International Atomic Energy Agency 345w, 510-1w, 530w
Nuclear safeguards 226w, 234w
UK contributions 226-7w

International conferences
Thrombosis 783-5w

International Labour Office see International Labour Organisation

International Labour Organisation 232w

International trade
Coal 225w

Intervention Board 329w
Cereals 586-8w

Intervention Board for Agricultural Produce see Intervention Board

Intervention prices
Wheat 680w

Intervention stocks 674-5w
Butter 689-90w
Food surpluses 689w

Interviews
Northern Ireland 283w
Restart programme 470w

Scottish Fire Service Training School 652-3w
Travelling expenses 283w

Intestacy
Administration of estates 612w
Charities 769w
Companies 769w

Intimidation
Army 755w

Invalid care allowances
Availability for work 627-8w
Pensioners 493w
Social security recipients 406w, 628w
Supplementary Benefits (Conditions of Entitlement) Regulations 1981 627-8w

Inverclyde
Local government elections 369w

Investment
Capital gains tax 87w
Channel tunnel 502

Investment income
Pensioners 188w

Ionizing radiation
Clyde Submarine Base 737w
Leukaemia 774w
Radiation protection 771w

IRA
Extortion 545w, 593w

Iran-Iraq war 423-4w

Irish Sea 539w

Iron & steel
Production 258-9w

Iron & steel industry
Redundancy 533w

Irvine, Mr Michael
Questions
National income 338w
North Sea oil, Petroleum exploration 689-90

Irving, Mr Charles
Questions
Bottles 713w
Community care 485w
Community care, NHS finance 196w
Mental health community care, Hospital closures 553w
Mental health community care, Planning 97w
Mental hospitals, Hostels 97w
Mental patients, Per capita costs 95-6w
Mentally ill, Mental health services 486w
National insurance contributions, NHS 398-400w
Paper, Recycling 537w
Science & technology research, Education & industry 254-5w

Islay
White fronted geese 72-3w

Isle of Wight
Air traffic control 551w
Armed forces training 386w
Police community liaison committees 434w

Italy
Magnox reactors 589w

Jack, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 539, 541, 583-5
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 69
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 897-900
Questions
British Rail, External financing limits 454w
Coal mining, Industrial disputes 696
Elderly, Heating 187-8w

Enterprise initiative 347-8
European fighter aircraft 84w
European fighter aircraft, F18 aircraft 84w
European fighter aircraft, West Germany 84w
Government grants, Lancashire County Council 211w
Leyland Trucks, Profitability 255w
Local government expenditure, Lancashire County Council 382-4w
NHS, Performance indicators 353w

Jackson, Mr Robert, Under-Secretary of State for Education and Science
Questions
Aberdeen University, Official engagements 577w
Academic freedom 580-1w
Academic freedom, Universities 159-60w
Business & Technician Education Council 48w
City of London Polytechnic, Metalworking 216-7w
Committee of Vice Chancellors & Principals, Official engagements 809
Day release 584w
Degrees, Educational finance 810
Economic & Social Research Council, Office dispersal 579w
Education allowances, Costs 601-2w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Universities 49-50w
Extracurricular activities, University finance 372w
Further education, Students 577w
Further education colleges 217w
Further education colleges, Special education 577w
Graduates, Engineering industries 814
Higher education 809-10
Higher education, Research 47w
Higher education admission, Discrimination 576w
Inner London Education Authority, Public appointments 308-9w
Medical research, Analgesics 631-2w
Medical students, Parental contributions 372w
Medical students, Student grants 372w
Medical students, Student numbers 431w
National Association of Teachers in Further & Higher Education, Further education colleges 217w
Polytechnics & Colleges Funding Council, Public appointments 309w
Postgraduate students, Student numbers 813
Research finance, France 582w
Science & technology research, Research finance 163w, 814
Science budget 571w
Scotland, Universities 576-8w
"Strategy for the Science Base" 583-4w
Student Awards Review Committee 432w, 571w
Student grants 159w, 432-3w, 585w
Student grants, Community charge 585w
Student grants, Housing benefits 585w
Student grants, Index linking 372w
Student grants, Medical students 217-8w
Student numbers, Wales 766w
Students, Universities 373-4w
Tuition fees, Part-time education 216w
Universities 580w, 810-1
Universities, Research councils 581w
Universities, Scotland 576w
Universities, Student numbers 762-6w
Universities, Wales 580w
Universities Funding Council, Public appointments 217w
Universities Funding Council, Scotland 579w
University finance 431-2w, 582w, 810
University finance, Scotland 576w
University finance, Special educational needs 373w
University finance, University Grants Committee 311-2w

Janman, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 444-5
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 645, 647-8
Questions
Dartford Thurrock Crossing Bill 1987/88, Government responses 551-2w
Manufacturing industries 337w
Official engagements, Thurrock 294w

Janner, Mr Greville
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 859, 861
Questions
British Coal Corporation, Official engagements 508w
Business statements 510
Butane gas, Death 397-8w
Export licensing, Communication engineering 306w
Export licensing, Palestine Liberation Organisation 306w
Official engagements 135w
Palace of Westminster, Energy conservation 58w
Palestine Liberation Organisation, Defence equipment 305w, 425-6w
Palestine Liberation Organisation, Training 437w
Pens, Consumer protection 340-1
Special education 572w

Japan
Balance of trade 256-7w
Foreign investment in UK 255w
Nuclear fuels 530w
Nuclear power 57w

Jenkins of Hillhead, Rt Hon Lord 496-7

Jessel, Mr Toby
Questions
Arts, Curriculum 697
Hospital beds 173-4

Jet aircraft
Aircraft noise 746-8w

Job centres
Ethnic minorities 469-70w

Job training scheme
Cheshire 230w
Professional qualifications 151w

John, Mr Brynmor
Questions
Multiple occupation, Wales 9

John Howard School Bedford 310w

Johnson Smith, Sir Geoffrey
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 767, 780-3

Johnston, Sir Russell
Questions
Stalker, John, Publishing 824

Jones, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
Opencast mining, Clwyd (10:02:88) 478-81
Training (16:02:88) 831
Questions
Balance of payments 335w
Coal prices, Dollar 696
Education, Clwyd 463w
Health services, Clwyd 518w
Housing, Alyn & Deeside 462-3w
Imports 495
Pigmeat, Wales 463w
Schools, Official engagements 584w
Unemployment, Wales 3-4

Jones, Mr Gwilym
Questions
Defective housing, Local government expenditure 667-8w
Private investment, Wales 3
Severn bridge, Construction 20
Unemployment, Wales 4

Jones, Mr Ieuan Wyn
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 832
Questions
Community Care Review 196w
Gwynedd Health Authority, Official engagements 81w
Housing Corporation, Official engagements 966
Interest rates 331w
National Association of Teachers in Further & Higher Education, Further education colleges 217w
Nuclear safety 63w
Official engagements 135w, 520w, 690w
Remand in custody, Prison accommodation 362w
Tyre tread depths, EC action 749w

Jones, Mr Martyn
Questions
Civil service manpower 416-7w
Employment opportunities, Wales 597w
Milk, Canada 157w
Public expenditure, Pay 341w
Regional selective assistance, Wales 517w
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 510w

Jones, Philip 509w

Jones, Mr Robert B
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1211
Self-employed (15:02:88) 719-24, 726, 731-3, 754
Questions
Civil servants, Communication skills 700-1
Corporation tax, Tax yields 722w
Electronics industry, Production 250w
Greenbelt, Hertfordshire 21w
Meningitis, North West Hertfordshire Health Authority 269w
Motorways, Road accidents 616w
Power stations, Air pollution control 689
Productivity 335w
Secondary education, School admission 47-8w

Jopling, Rt Hon Michael
Debates etc.
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1270-2

Judges
Public inquiries 364w

Judgments
Sheep premiums 330w

Judicial review
Telephone tapping 303w

Junior hospital doctors
Overtime 172w

Juries
Pay 350w

Kaufman, Rt Hon Gerald
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 709
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 355-6
Questions
House of Commons catering, Artificial sweeteners 727w

Kemi Mansi Services 529w

Kellett-Bowman, Dame Elaine
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1167
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 759, 765
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 128
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 372-3, 375-6
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 200
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 920
Oral question time intervention (10:02:88) 337
Questions
Business, Lancaster 354
New businesses 337
Textile industry 251w
University finance 810

Kennedy, Mr Charles
Questions
Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive, Official engagements 671w
Offshore suppliers 510w
University finance, Scotland 576w

Kensington & Chelsea
Diplomatic service 55w

Key, Mr Robert
Questions
Housing improvement, Estate Action 662w
Income tax, Tax rates 4 bands 423w
Museums & galleries, Official engagements 468w
New businesses 492
Roads, Privatisation 243w
Social security reform, Means tested benefits 177w

Kidnapping
Insurance 545w

Kidney patients
Surgery 779w

Kilfedder, Mr James
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 714
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 987

Killingbeck Hospital (10:02:88) 365

King, Mr Roger
Questions
Graduates, Engineering industries 814
Hospitals, Standards enforcement 188w
Profitability 342w

King, Rt Hon Tom, Secretary of State for Northern Ireland
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Ministerial statements (17:02:88) 977-96
Questions
Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference, Expenditure 328w
Human rights 681w
Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Acts 165-6w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 165w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Ministerial statements 325w

King's College 537-8w

Kinnock, Rt Hon Neil
Questions
House of Commons broadcasting, Television 183

Kirkhope, Mr Timothy
Questions
House renovation grants, Flats 673-4w
Urban development corporations, Leeds 666w

Kirkwood, Mr Archy
Debates etc.
Access to Medical Reports Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 657-60

Questions
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 627-8
Health service staff, Manpower 488-9w
Higher education admission, Discrimination 576w
Housing associations, House purchase 672w
Mental patients, Special hospitals 553-4w
NHS finance, National income 487-8w
Nurses, Northern Ireland 283-4w
Nurses' training 176-7w
Overseas aid, Warships 32w
Regional selective assistance 252-3w
School nurses, Scotland 142-3w
Taxation 495-6

KMS see Keeni Meeni Services

Knapman, Mr Roger
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 384-5
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1306-7
Self-employed (15:02:88) 748-50
Questions
Data processing, Production 248w
Disposable income 336w
Veterinary drugs, Licensing 678-9w

Knight, Mr Greg
Debates etc.
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 608-55 passim
Questions
Audio recordings 344
Chemical weapons, Animal experiments 538w
Crime prevention, Private sector 702w
Income tax 342w
NHS finance 630
Rolls-Royce Aeroengines, Privatisation 486

Knight, Dame Jill
Questions
NHS 175

Knowles, Michael
Written questions 767w

Knox, Mr David
Questions
Coal mining, Productivity 694
European Council 340w
European Regional Development Fund, Wales 76w
Peak Park Joint Planning Board, Local government elections 970-1
Primary education, Cost per pupil 811

Kuwait
British Petroleum (08:02:88) 37

La Belle discotheque
Bombings 538-9w

Laboratories
AIDS 64-5w, 79-80w, 110-1w, 327w

Labour costs
EC countries 312-4w

Labour Party 184, 973, 976
British strategic nuclear force 1145-6
Forensic science 1138

Lambeth
Council house sales (19:02:88) 1323-30
Housing benefits 559w

Lambie, Mr David
Questions
Science budget 571w

Lamond, Mr James
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 714
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 356
Optical Appliances (Blind & Partially Sighted Persons) Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 668-9
Questions
Begum, Saleena, Immigration applications 1136-7
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 628
Business statements 509
Council house rents, Oldham 974
Nature reserves, Land ownership & tenure 959
Oldham Hospital, NHS finance 184-5
Spectacles 167w
Synthetic fibres, Turkey 253w
Textiles 348-9

Lamont, Rt Hon Norman, Financial Secretary to the Treasury
Questions
Armed forces deployment, USA 418w
Banks, Developing countries 152w
Banks, Tax allowances 338w
Budget 90w
Budget, EC Finance Council 419w
Budget, Unemployment 342w
Capital gains tax, Investment 87w
Capital gains tax, Tax yields 87w
Charitable donations 153w
Corporation tax, Tax yields 722w
Finance Act 1984, Companies 419-20w
Government shareholding 334w
Higher civil servants, Inland Revenue 92w
Income tax 335w, 342w, 493-4
Income tax, Average earnings 87-8w, 722w
Income tax, Departmental forms 342-3w
Income tax, Low incomes 89-90w
Income tax, Personal tax allowances 493
Income tax, Tax burden 333-4w
Income tax, Tax rates & bands 90w, 417-8w, 423w, 496
Inheritance tax 340w
Interest rates 331w
Mortgage relief 87w, 334w
Mortgage relief, Costs 418w
Pay, Married men 332w
PAYE, Tax evasion 422w
Pension funds, Company investigations 90w
Personal equity plans 340w
Personal income 93-4w
Personal tax allowances 333w
Privatisation 95w, 337w, 486
Privatisation, Tenders 92w
Public bodies, Accounting 420w
Rolls-Royce Aeroengines, Privatisation 486-7
Rolls-Royce Aeroengines, Shares 486
Shipping 340w
Tax allowances, Agriculture 723w
Tax allowances, Enterprise zones 421w
Tax allowances, Forestry 95w, 339w
Tax allowances, Health insurance 90w
Tax allowances, Luncheon vouchers 90w
Tax allowances, Pension funds 90w
Tax allowances, Personal equity plans 87-9w
Tax allowances, Share option scheme 89w
Tax allowances, Shares 89w
Tax allowances, Social security benefits 722w
Tax allowances, Sports administration 423w
Tax allowances, Tax rates & bands 93-5w
Tax burden 342w
Tax burden, Low pay 418-9w
Tax collection offices, Durham 419w
Tax evasion 421w, 425w
Tax evasion, Prosecutions 421w
Tax exemption certificates, Building industry 723w
Tax yields 333w, 343w
Tax yields, Deeds of covenant 721w
Tax yields, Extortion 723-4w
Tax yields, Pensions 720-1w
Tax yields, Tax rates & bands 494
Taxation 495-6
Taxation, Forestry 339w
Taxpayers, Income tax 247w
Tree planting, Tax allowances 490-1
Unpaid taxes 422w
VAT, Newspaper press 496

Lanarkshire Health Board
Hospital staff 220-2w

Lancashire
Government assistance to industry 148-9w

Lancashire County Council
Government grants 211w
Local government expenditure 382-4w

Lancashire Enterprises 148-9w

Lancaster
Business 354

Land acquisition
British Rail 740w

Land drainage
Drainage rates 158w

Land ownership & tenure
District health authorities 625w
Nature reserves 24-32w, 959
Rights of way 19w

Land pollution
Polychlorinated biphenyl 741w
Radioactivity 465w

Land Registry see Land Registry Office

Land Registry Office 964

Land use
Agricultural land 156w
Set-aside schemes 586w

Land values
District health authorities 692w
Hospitals 692w
Norwich Health Authority 692-4w

Landlord & tenant
Private rented housing 501-2

Lang, Mr Ian, Minister of State for Scotland
Questions
Community charge, Battered wives 478w
Community charge, Death 540w
Community charge, Scotland 478w
Community charges register 478w
Community charges register, Disclosure of information 63w
Community charges register, Scotland 63w
Domestic rates, Rates & rating 70w
EC grants & loans, Angus 476w
Electorate, Rates & rating 369w
Employment by sector, Scotland 733-4w
Employment opportunities, North Angus 728w
Hydroelectric power, North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board 319-20w
Pay, Scotland 734-6w
Rate support grants, Scotland 731w
Regional aid, Dundee 483-4w
Regional aid, Strathclyde 368w
Regional development grants, Scotland 483w
Scottish Development Agency, Clydebank 480w
Shaw Medical Centre, Scottish Development Agency 320-1w
Tourism, Angus 476w
Unemployment, Dundee 65-6w
Vacancies, Dundee 540-2w
Women's employment, Scotland 733w
Youth training scheme, Dundee 478-9w
Youth training scheme, Scotland 479w

Languages
Immigration & Nationality Division 543w

Languages education
Scotland 367-8w, 477w, 654w

Lasers
Radioactivity 695-6w

Latham, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 210
Questions
Armed forces cadets, Inner cities initiative 735w
Business statements 507-8
Concessionary television licences, Pensioners 1141
Domestic rates 960
Hospitals, Construction 183w
Police, Leicestershire 705w
Urban regeneration grants 719-20w

Laundries
Privatisation 173w

Law Commission 364-5w, (12:02:88) 607-25, 31-56

"Law Commission Report, 147" (12:02:88) 607-25, 31-56

LAW Mining Company
Licensing 63w

Law reform
Charities 436w, 704w, 707-8w
London Regional Transport Act 1984 451-2w
Official secrets 1140-1
Work permits 712w

Lawrence, Mr Ivan
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 363
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 648-55
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 31
Questions
Forensic science, Labour Party 1138
Hospitals, West Midlands 628-9

Lawson, Rt Hon Nigel, Chancellor of the Exchequer
Questions
Balance of payments 335w
Disposable income 497
EC Finance Council, Capital movements 420w
Jenkins of Hillhead, Rt Hon Lord 496-7
NHS finance 497
Privatisation 487-8
Profit sharing, Departmental leaflets 387w
Public sector borrowing requirement 496
Standard of living 497-8
Tax thresholds 497

LBA see London Boroughs Association

LDDC see London Docklands Development Corporation

Lead pollution
Water supply 540w

Leader of the Opposition
Official cars 657-8w
Pay 657-8w

Lee, Mr John, Under-Secretary of State for Employment
Questions
Average earnings 716w
Average earnings, Manual workers 316-8w
Average earnings, Manufacturing industries 232-4w
Average earnings, Women 716-8w
Disabled Persons (Employment) Act 1944, Handicapped workers 150w
Electricity tariffs, Employment 470w
Employment 228-9w
Employment, Agriculture 76w
Employment, Northern region 231w
Employment services, Sizewell B 312w
Fraud, Civil service manpower 469w
Handicapped workers, Aids for handicapped 227-8w
Job centres, Ethnic minorities 469-70w
Labour costs, EC countries 312-4w
Overtime 548w
Price increases, Manufacturing industries 548w
Restart programme, Cheshire 150w
Restart programme, Interviews 470w
Self-employed, Cheshire 229w
Service industries, Northwich 313-4w
Take-up of employment, Republic of Ireland 718w
Tourist industry, Cheshire 229-30w
Unemployed, Mental illness 231-2w
Unemployment, Barrow in Furness 473w
Unemployment, Blyth valley 472w
Unemployment, Cheshire 230-2w
Unemployment, Derbyshire 229w
Unemployment, Dundee 75w
Unemployment, Houghton 475w
Unemployment, Lincoln 474w
Unemployment, Northwich 471-2w
Unemployment, Preston 474-5w
Unemployment, Stafford 473-4w
Unemployment, Sudbury 549-50w
Unemployment, York 471-2w
Unemployment benefits, Scotland 471w
Vacancies, Northwich 313-4w
Women's employment 718w
Youth employment, Cheshire 231w
Youth employment schemes, Republic of Ireland 717-8w
Youth training scheme, Dept of Employment 470w

Leeds
Family doctors 264w
Urban development corporations 666w
Urban programme 673w

Leeds-Bradford Airport
Public inquiries 31-2w, 132w

Leeds Eastern Health Authority
Hospital waiting lists 280w

Leeds Western Health Authority
Hospital waiting lists 280w

Legal aid
Belgium 426w
British residents abroad 416w
Scotland 477w

Legislation
Charities 138-9w

Leicester
Exceptional needs payments 694w
Home Office 437w

Leicestershire
Education Reform Bill 1987/88 573w
Police 705w

Leicestershire County Council
Employment discrimination 521w

Leicestershire Health Authority
Hospital beds 196-8w
Nurses 203w

Leigh, Mr Edward
Questions
Association of Chief Police Officers, Official engagements 1133
Doctors, Pay 135w
Income tax, Tax rates & bands 496
Privatisation 337w
Pupil-teacher ratios 580w

Leighton, Mr Ron
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 88, 101, 103-6
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 423-6
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 268-9
Training (16:02:88) 828
Questions
Advertising, Expenditure 295w
Agriculture, GATT 155w
Animal feed, Import duties 155w
Civil service recruitment 391-2w
Employment services, Sizewell B 312w
Industrial tribunals, Ethnic minorities 383w
Job centres, Ethnic minorities 469-70w
Labour costs, EC countries 312-4w
London city action team 441-2w
London Docklands, Building industry 126w
London Docklands, Manpower Services Commission 73w
Metropolitan Police, Privatisation 436w
NHS finance, Regional health authorities 179w
Official Report 58w
Restart programme, Interviews 470w
Youth training scheme, Dept of Employment 470w

Leisure drives
Cheshire 452w

Lestor, Miss Joan
Questions
Children, Sexual offences 169w
Mental health services, North Western Regional Health Authority 639-40w
Mental patients, Salford Health Authority 406-7w
Royal ordnance factories, Privatisation 498
Southern Africa, Debts 429-30w

Leukaemia
Fife 774w
Ionizing radiation 774w

Lewis, Mr Terry
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1164
Talkabout service (09:02:88) 330-1
Questions
First Division Association, Official engagements 574w
Telephones, Pornography 350

Leyland Trucks
Profitability 255w

Liberal Party
Wind power 689

Libraries
Office of Population Censuses & Surveys 780w

Licensed conveyancers 365-6w
Examinations 366w
Public appointments 365w

Licensing
Bovine somatotropin 678w
Drugs 271w
Fisheries 729w
Game 303w, 708w
LAW Mining Company 63w
Seals 731w
Veterinary drugs 678-9w

Life imprisonment
Homicide 712-4w

"Lifting the Burden White Paper" (15:02:88) 719-54

Light dues
EC countries 241-2w

Lightbown, Mr David, A Lord Commissioner
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 376

Lighting
Military vehicles 81w
Vehicles 410w

Lilley, Mr Peter, Economic Secretary to the Treasury
Questions
Alcoholic drinks duties, Non-alcoholic drinks 648w
Aviation fuels, Excise duties 566w
Bank notes 649w
Budget, Tobacco duties 419-20w
Customs & Excise, Hazardous wastes 95w
Debts 335w
Economic growth 336w
Economic situation, Shares 647w
European Council 340w
Hazardous wastes, Seaham 566-7w
Inflation 331w
Interest rates 331w
Money supply 153-4w
New Zealand, Official engagements 338w
Public sector borrowing 247w
Retail price index, National savings 567w
Tax & price index 331w
Tax harmonisation, Car tax 343-4w
VAT, Confectionery 343w, 568w
VAT, Harvest Chewy bars 343w
VAT, Tax allowances 770w
VAT, Tax harmonisation 770w
VAT zero rated goods, Hospital radio 342w

Lincoln
Unemployment 474w

Listed buildings
Codes of practice 521w

Literacy
Educational finance 807
School leaving 807

Litherland, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 250

Litter
Waste disposal 666w

Little Lowford
Official engagements 688w

Liverpool
Deportation 706w
Government assistance 969

Liverpool Dock Labour Board
Dock workers 770-2w

Liverpool Exchange Bill (HL) 1986/87
Debates etc.
2R* (09:02:88) 169

Liverpool Health Authority 204w
Health service staff 354-6w

Livingstone, Mr Ken
Questions
Army Board, Appeals 449w
Civil servants, Positive vetting 86w
Departmental correspondence, Intelligence services 85w
Holroyd, Fred, Army in Northern Ireland 41w
Intelligence services 45w
Intelligence services, Northern Ireland 83w
Military aircraft, Republic of Ireland 318w
Ministers' correspondence, Disclosure of information 45w
Politicians, USA 85-6w
Privy council, Periodicals 58w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 46w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Manpower 674w
Security, Northern Ireland office 674w
UK 2000, Public expenditure 669-70w
USA, Northern Ireland 426w
Wallace, Colin, Information 41w

Livsey, Mr Richard
Questions
Assisted areas 256w
Hospital waiting lists, Hip replacements 15
Regional aid, Wales 2-3
Rural transport innovation grant scheme 307w

Lloyd, Sir Ian
Questions
Income tax 493

Lloyd, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 299-301, 310-2
Questions
Breathalysers, Age 215w
British Museum, Museums & galleries 466w
Industrial accidents 74w
Industrial accidents, Small businesses 74w
Light dues, EC countries 241-2w
London Regional Transport, Government grants 242w
Motor vehicle safety 246-7w
Nurses, Pay 1147-8
Owner occupied housing, House purchase 963
Road finance, Capital investment 358-60w
Road safety 242-3w
Sickle cell disease, NHS 172w
Transport of radioactive materials, Road accidents 241w

Loans
Social Fund 697w

Local authorities 974
Caravan sites 458-60w
Community charge 664w
Contract compliance 971
Food hygiene 622w
Food surpluses 158w
NHS charges 565w
Racial discrimination 971-2
Rent arrears 973
Sex discrimination 972

Local authority powers
Handicapped 290w

Local Development Agencies Development Fund
Finance 618w

Local education authorities
Educational administration 572-3w
Prison education services 40-1w
Special educational needs 602-3w
Swimming pools 47w

Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988
Debates etc.
(08:02:88) 140-61

Local government audit
Craigavon Borough Council 397w

Local Government Bill 1987/88
Questions
289-90w

Local government elections
Inverclyde 369w
Peak Park Joint Planning Board 970-1

Local government expenditure 525-6w
Defective housing 667-8w
Lancashire County Council 382-4w
Rate limitation 526-8w
Rights of way 450-1w
Road finance 358-60w

Local government land
Management 671w
Property transfer 659w

Local government services
Cheshire County Council 521-2w
Companies 289-90w
Direct labour departments 461w
Fees & charges 31w
Privatisation 289-90w
Sports facilities 15-6
Tenders 672-3w

Local government social services
Crimes of violence 197w
Housing benefits 621w

Local government staff
Cheshire County Council 520w
Greater Manchester 6-20w
Residential care 696w

Lofthouse, Mr Geoffrey
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 154
Questions
Coal mine closures 507w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w
Industrial development, Castleford 532-3w
Pontefract Health Authority, Hospital beds 560w
Pontefract Health Authority, Hospital consultants 559-60w
Pontefract Health Authority, Nurses 560-1w
Pontefract Health Authority, Public appointments 561w

Log books
HMS Conqueror 318w, 387w

London allowance
Civil service 92w
Expenditure 92w

London Ambulance Service 111-2w
Manpower 185-6w
Official engagements 184w

London boroughs
Council house rents 524w
Council house waiting lists 22w

London Boroughs Association
Rates & rating 663w

London city action team 441-2w

London City Airport
Police 41w

London Docklands
Building industry 126w
Industrial accidents 383w
Manpower Services Commission 73w

London Docklands Development Corporation 126w, 747w, 968
Resignations 127-8w

London Fire Brigade 412w

London Regional Passengers' Committee 454w
Public appointments 743-4w

London Regional Transport 451-2w, 747w
Bus services 452w
Government grants 242w
Official engagements 452w

London Regional Transport Act 1984
Questions
452w
Law reform 451-2w

London Regional Transport Bill 1986/87
Debates etc.
Order for resuming adjourned debate on consideration read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

London Residuary Body 21w
Offices 381w

London Underground
Fire certificates 412w
Manpower 412w
Railway stations 3w

London University
Defence research 537-8w

Long Lartin Prison 437-8w

Lonrho
House of Fraser 262w
Subsidiary companies 262w

Lord, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 774, 783, 786
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 613-5, 619

Lord Chancellor 291w

Lord Chancellor's Office see Lord Chancellor

Lost working days
Dental health 566w
Medical treatments 554-5w
Nurses 555w

Lotteries
NHS finance (16:02:88) 841-6

Loughborough University
Science & technology research 32-3w

Low incomes
Income tax 89-90w

Low pay
Tax burden 418-9w

Lowry, David
Nuclear power 392w

LRT see London Regional Transport

Luce, Rt Hon Richard, Minister of State Privy Council Office (Minister for the Arts)
Questions
Art education 468w
Art works, Obscenity 468w
Arts, Curriculum 466w, 697
Arts, Homosexuality 698
Arts, Inner city areas 281w
Arts, Pensioners 467w
Arts, UNESCO 697-8
Arts Council, Arts finance 152w
Arts Council grants 568-70w
Arts Council grants, Ethnic minorities 698-9, 769w
Arts Council grants, Regional arts associations 570w
Arts finance 468w, 698-9
British Museum, Museums & galleries 466w
Business sponsorship incentive scheme, Arts sponsorship 151w
Civil servants, Codes of practice 465w
Civil servants, Communication skills 700-1
Civil servants, Ministers 700
Civil servants, Performance reviews 702-3
Civil servants, Social security reform 703
Civil service 701-2
Civil Service College, Private sector 703
Civil service dispersal 701
Civil service recruitment 391-2w
Higher civil servants, Communication skills 700
Museums & galleries 466w
Museums & galleries, Arts finance 467w
Museums & galleries, Collections 151-2w
Museums & galleries, Official engagements 468w
National Museum of Photography 467w
National Theatre, Arts Council grants 699-700
Objects in lieu of tax, Office of Arts & Libraries 569-70w
Opera, Official engagements 467w
Opposition Whips' Office, Civil service manpower 649w
Percentage for Arts schemes 466-7w
Public libraries 465-6w
Public libraries, Nottinghamshire 151w
South Bank, Shops 468w
Visual arts, Prisons 568w

Lunar house 136-7w, 543-4w, (16:02:88) 847-924

Luncheon vouchers
Tax allowances 90w

Lychett Minster
Official engagements 134w

Lyell, Lord 164w

Lyell, Sir Nicholas, Solicitor-General
Questions
Nuclear weapons tests, Christmas Island 769w

M1 748w

M3 356w

M3-M27 link
Public inquiries 356w

M6
Elevated sections of motorways 454w

M20 (08:02:88) 161
Road construction 742w

M25
Road traffic 614-5w, 742w

M62
Road construction 748w

McAllion, Mr John
Debates etc.
Community charge, Public petitions (10:02:88) 477
Training (16:02:88) 836
Questions
British Telecom, Disclosure of information 443w
Domestic rates, Rates & rating 70w
Electricity tariffs, Pensioners 691-2
Eye tests, NHS charges 732w
Free school meals, Tayside 65w
Homelessness, Housing capital allocations 66w
Homelessness, Mortgage defaulters 65-6w
Homelessness, Scotland 68-70w
Local authorities, Contract compliance 971
Overseas trade 34w
Regional aid, Dundee 483-4w
School violence, Prosecutions 66w
School violence, Scotland 66w
Schools, Government grants to local authorities 69-70w
Social security claims, Take-up 75w
Supplementary benefits, Dundee 495-6w
Tax burden, Low pay 418-9w
Unemployment, Dundee 65-6w, 75w
University finance 582w
Vacancies, Dundee 540-2w
War widows' pensions, Age allowances 494-5w
Work permits, Law reform 712w
Young offenders, Tayside 479w
Young people, Social security recipients 115w
Youth training scheme, Dundee 478-9w
Youth training scheme, Scotland 479w

McAvoy, Mr Thomas
Questions
National income 339w

McCartney, Mr Ian
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 141-2, 155-6
Questions
Health services finance, EC countries 174w
Homelessness, Bed & breakfast accommodation 663w
Manufactured goods, Prices 249w
Planning appeals 455w
Private rented housing, Landlord & tenant 501-2
Skuse, Frank, Evidence 1138-9
Tax yields 343w

Macclesfield Health Authority
Hospital waiting lists 96w

McColl Committee see Artificial Limb & Appliance Centres Review

McCrea, Rev William
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 92
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 988

McCrindle, Mr Robert
Questions
Air safety 23
Air safety, Air traffic control 244w
Air safety, Near misses 244w
Air traffic control, English language 244w
Charities, Law reform 704w
Financial Services Act 1986 338
Housing tenure 963-4
Nurses, Pay 189w
Uniform business rate, Confederation of British Industry 664-5w

McCusker, Mr Harold
Debates etc.
Members, Northern Ireland (16:02:88) 839
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 990-1
Questions
Administration of justice, Northern Ireland 591w
Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference, Republic of Ireland 149w, 604w
Business statements 507
Teacher training, Northern Ireland 323w

Macdonald, Mr Calum
Questions
Taxation, Forestry 339w

McFall, Mr John
Questions
Banks, Tax allowances 338w
Clyde Submarine Base, Ionizing radiation 737w
Clyde Submarine Base, Naval bases 737w
Clyde Submarine Base, Nuclear accidents 737w
Clyde Submarine Base, Nuclear submarines 736w
Manufactured goods, Balance of trade 495
Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation, Nuclear accidents 738w
Nuclear submarines, River Clyde 736w, 738w
Regional aid, "DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 252w
Universities, Scotland 576w

McGrady, Mr Eddie
Questions
Community care, Government grants to local authorities 282-4w
Electricity supply industry, Credit agreements 750w
Electricity supply industry, Northern Ireland 750w
Fisheries, Ardglass 749-50w
Handicapped, Northern Ireland 281-3w

MacGregor, Rt Hon John, Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 755-65, 770
Questions
Agricultural chemicals, Set-aside schemes 725w
Agricultural land, Land use 156w
Agricultural production, EC countries 587w
Agricultural subsidies, Expenditure 156w, 464-5w
Agriculture, EC budget 726-7w
EC Agriculture Council 154-5w
Food surpluses, Expenditure 587-8w
Green pound, Farm incomes 674-5w
Green pound, Sterling 771-2w
Set-aside schemes, Land use 586w
Veterinary drugs, Licensing 678-9w

McKay, Mr Allen
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 781-2
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 149-51
Questions
Boxing, Safety 287w
Electricity Council, Public appointments 509w
Food surpluses, Disadvantaged 157-8w
Food surpluses, Local authorities 158w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 179-80
NHS finance 629
Regional aid, "DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 252w
Social security benefits, Retail price index 114-5w
Universities, Research councils 581w

MacKay, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Structure plans, Berkshire (11:02:88) 602
Questions
Business statements 509
Drug crimes, Proceeds of crime 701w
EC internal trade, Insurance 259w
Examinations, Age 818
Inflation 331w
NHS finance 489
Sex education, Secondary education 581w
Structure plans, Berkshire 668w

McKelvey, Mr William
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1164

McLachlan, Charles (17:02:88) 977-96

McLeish, Mr Henry
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 53-4
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 417-22
Training (16:02:88) 830-1
Questions
Public sector borrowing requirement 335w
Unemployment benefits, Scotland 471w

Maclennan, Mr Robert
Questions
Breast cancer, Scotland 483w
British merchant fleet 414w
Rescue services, Helicopters 387w

McLoughlin, Mr Patrick
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 381
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1115-6
Questions
Ashbourne bypass, Road construction 452w
British Nuclear Fuels, Sellafield 509w
Iron & steel, Production 258-9w
National parks, Planning authorities 971
National parks, Public appointments 133w
Peak Park Joint Planning Board, Public appointments 132-4w, 662w
Pensioners, Investment income 188w

McNair-Wilson, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 560-5, 589
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 196-7
Structure plans, Berkshire (11:02:88) 601-2
Questions
District health authorities, Public appointments 167w
Income tax, Departmental forms 342-3w
Kidney patients, Surgery 779w
NHS Management Board, Public appointments 206-7w
Parole 708w
Religious education 574w
Trident, Atomic Weapons Research Establishment 537w

McNamara, Mr Kevin
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 980-1
Questions
Body searches, Durham Prison 544w
Body searches, Risley Remand Centre 544-5w
McNamara, Kevin, Members' correspondence 223w
Maghaberry Prison, Body searches 592w
Migration, Northern Ireland 711w
Ministerial statements, Northern Ireland 223w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Ministerial statements 325w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Prosecutions 223w
Take-up of employment, Republic of Ireland 718w
Youth employment schemes, Republic of Ireland 717-8w

McNamara, Kevin
Members' correspondence 223w

Macrete Ireland 166w

Madden, Mr Max
Debates etc.
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Standing Order No 20 applications (11:02:88) 520, 522
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 195
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 848, 855-6, 860, 862, 883, 890-1, 903
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 291-3, 301
Questions
Akhtar, Nasreen, Immigration applications 149-50w
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 626-7
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Business statements 511-2
Concessionary television licences, Pensioners 1141
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Bradford 814-5
Ejoh, Orkocharkwu Emmanuel, Immigrant detainees 138w
Homelessness, Bed & breakfast accommodation 663w
NHS finance 178
Ryan, Michael, Firearms 304w
Synthetic fibres, Turkey 148-9w, 253w
Water supply, Bradford 127w
Water supply, Water charges 288w
Water supply disconnections 288w

Madel, Mr David
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 374, 377-8
Questions
Austin Rover, Privatisation 251-2w
Combined heat & power, Edinburgh 346w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 26-7, 348

MAFF see Ministry of Agriculture

Maghaberry Prison
Body searches 592w
Prison population 591w

Maginnis, Mr Ken
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 991-2
Questions
Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference, Expenditure 328w

Magistrates' courts
Prisoners on remand 36w
Remand in custody 36-7w

Magnox reactors
Italy 589w
Nuclear safety 345-6w

Mahon, Mrs Alice
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 293-4, 297-8
Standing Order No 20 applications, Pullen, Jason (10:02:88) 365
Questions
Children in care 172w
Community charge, Departmental correspondence 960
Examinations, Age 816
London Underground, Manpower 412w
Manufactured goods, Balance of trade 250w

Maintenance 291w

Major, Rt Hon John, Chief Secretary to the Treasury
Questions
Balance of payments 335w
Confederation of British Industry, Official engagements 337-8w
Disposable income 335-6w
Economic growth 388w
Economic growth, Unemployment 336w
Employment opportunities 334w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 492
Industrial investment 491-2
Industrial investment, Manufacturing industries 491
Industrial production 333w
Inflation, Electricity tariffs 338w
Inflation, NHS finance 331-2w
Manufacturing industries 337w
National income 338-9w
NHS finance 488-90
NHS finance, Expenditure 488
Nurses, Pay 340w
Overseas investment 498
Prices 340w
Productivity 335w
Profitability 342w
Profits, Industries 388-92w
Public expenditure 341w, 489
Public expenditure, Education 342w
Public expenditure, Government departments 770w
Public expenditure, Hospitals 341w
Public expenditure, NHS 341w
Public expenditure, Pay 341w, 343w
Public expenditure, Per capita costs 339w
Public expenditure, Private investment 722w
Public investment 332w, 338-9w, 343w
Public sector assets, Overseas investment 336w

Public sector borrowing requirement 335w

Malicious Communications Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R (12:02:88) 607-25, 631-56

Malins, Mr Humfrey
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 865

Mallon, Mr Seamus
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 938-40, 943
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 989
Questions
Death, Northern Ireland 500

Management consultants
Health services 352-3w

Managers
Average earnings 316-8w

Managing agents (16:02:88) 825-38

Manchester
Urban development corporations 666w

Manchester Airport
Fees & charges 615-6w
Speed limits 615w

Manchester City Council
Redundancy 14

Manpower Services Commission 227-8w, (10:02:88) 371-452, 468-9w, (16:02:88) 825-38
London Docklands 73w

Mans, Mr Keith
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 533, 537, 540, 568-72, 588
Questions
Economic growth 336w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 184
Hospital catering, Privatisation 173w

Manual workers
Average earnings 316-8w

Manufactured exports
Manufactured imports 250w

Manufactured goods
Balance of trade 34w, 249-50w, 495
Prices 249w

Manufactured imports
Manufactured exports 250w

Manufacturing industries 337w
Armed conflict 135w
Average earnings 232-4w
Government assistance to industry 18-9
Industrial investment 491
Northwich 313-4w
Price increases 548w
Productivity 262-4w
Tax allowances 723w

Maples, Mr John
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1009, 1030-3

Marek, Dr John
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 357
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1288-94
Questions
Civil service 702
Coal prices 687-8
Falkland Islands, Fisheries 57w
Income tax 494
Monuments, Millbank Gardens 31w
Railway freight transport, Government grants 453w
Railway stations, Trains 453-4w
School meals, Wales 6

Margam mine 10, 20

Marine insurance
Armed conflict 742w

Marland, Mr Paul
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 766, 775, 787-90

Marlow, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Standing Order No 20 applications (11:02:88) 521
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1010, 1014
Questions
Armed forces training, Health 738w
Community charge, Departmental correspondence 961
House of Commons Library, Procurement 17
Local authorities, Racial discrimination 971-2
Student Awards Review Committee 571w

Marmosets 538w

Marriage
Prisoners 437-8w

Married men
Pay 332w

Married women
Retirement pensions 99w

Marshall, Mr Jim
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1091-3, 1100
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 995
Questions
Debt collection, Northern Ireland 393-5w
Debts, Northern Ireland 394w
Exceptional needs payments, Leicester 694w
Gypsies, Belfast 396w
Gypsies, Education 324-5w
Gypsies, Environmental health 396w
Gypsies, Northern Ireland 395w
Pre-school education, Special education 578w
Tax burden 342w
Voluntary organisations, Northern Ireland 590-1w

Marshall, Mr John
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1012, 1014, 1039
Questions
Bank services, Codes of practice 262w
City technology colleges 574w
Computers in Government departments, Dept of Trade & Industry 713-4w
Council house sales, Right to buy 296w
Hevenigham hall, Property transfer 720w
House of Fraser, Company investigations 713w
Inner London Education Authority, Expenditure 812
Local authorities 974
Local government services, Privatisation 289-90w
London Regional Transport, Official engagements 452w
M25, Road traffic 742w
Mortgage relief, Costs 418w
Motorways, Road traffic 741-2w
Palestine, Refugees 691w
Profitability 330w
Wind power, Liberal Party 689

Marshall, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 362
Questions
A27, Road construction 742-3w
Telecommunications industry, Europe 340

Martin, Mr David
Questions
Cot deaths 270-1w
Economic growth, Unemployment 336w
Energy research, Nuclear power 684w
Mental patients, St James' Hospital Portsmouth 270w
Social security reform, Means tested benefits 177w

Martin, Mr Michael J
Questions
Childbirth, Caesarian sections 177-8w
School closures, Scotland 728-9w
School closures, St Bede's School Balornock 729w

Martlew, Mr Eric
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 785-7, 797
Questions
Export prices, Dollar 342
Public expenditure, Hospitals 341w
Special education, Grant maintained schools 819-20

Mathematics education
Teachers 160w

Mathematics Working Group see National Curriculum Mathematics Working Group

Maude, Mr Francis, Under-Secretary of State for Corporate and Consumer Affairs
Questions
Audio recordings 344
Britoil, Takeovers 34w
Compact discs, Retail trade 344
Company investigations, House of Fraser 262w
Company liquidations 337
Competition 254w, 354
Compliance cost assessments 263w
Consumer credit, Disclosure of information 443w
EC internal trade, Insurance 259w
Financial institutions, "DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 259w
Financial Services Act 1986 337-9
Financial Services Act 1986, Self-regulating organisations 607-8w
Guinness, Company investigations 261w
House of Fraser, Company investigations 713w
Insider trading 536w
Insider trading, Company investigations 621w
Insider trading, Information 255w
Lonrho, House of Fraser 262w
Lonrho, Subsidiary companies 262w
Mergers, Monopolies & Mergers Commission 257w
Securities Association, Financial services 760-1w
Stock market, Capital 249w

Maudsley Hospital
Nervous system disorders 168w

Mawhinney, Dr Brian, Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland
Questions
Community care, Government grants to local authorities 282-4w
Educational maintenance allowance, Northern Ireland 396-7w
Gypsies, Education 324-5w
Student grants, Northern Ireland 286w, 396w

Teacher training, Northern Ireland 323w

Maxton, Mr John
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1071
Questions
Postgraduate students, Student numbers 813

Maxwell-Hyslop, Mr Robin
Debates etc.
Air accidents, Standing Order No 20 applications (08:02:88) 38
Questions
Air safety, Inquiries 357-8w
Air safety, Near misses 357w
Tax yields, Pensions 720-1w
Visas, Philippines 303-4w

Mayhew, Rt Hon Sir Patrick, Attorney-General
Questions
Cash limits, Attorney-General 613w
Conveyancing Standing Committee 364-5w
Council for Licensed Conveyancers 366w
Crown Prosecution Service, Manpower 42-4w
Extradition, Republic of Ireland 685-6w
Herald of Free Enterprise, Hazardous wastes 42w
Holroyd, Fred, Army in Northern Ireland 41w
Intestacy, Administration of estates 612w
Legal aid, British residents abroad 416w
Licensed conveyancers 365-6w
Licensed conveyancers, Examinations 366w
Licensed conveyancers, Public appointments 365w
McNamara, Kevin, Members' correspondence 223w
Maintenance 291w
Ministerial statements, Northern Ireland 223w
Public inquiries, Judges 364w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Prosecutions 223w, 685w
Sexual harassment, Attorney-General 291w
Stalker, John, Prosecutions 291w
Unification Church, Charities 42w, 125-6w, 416w
Unification Church, Christianity 42w
Wallace, Colin, Information 41w

Meacher, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 39-43, 45, 47, 73-5
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 371-5, 407-12, 416-7, 441-4
Training (16:02:88) 826-7
Questions
Average earnings, Manual workers 316-8w
Coal mine closures 346w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 25-6
Profits, Industries 388-92w

Meale, Mr Alan
Debates etc.
Coal Mining Subsidence (Prevention & Public Awareness) Bill, 1R (09:02:88) 186
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 653
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1301
Questions
Breast cancer, Screening 628-30w
British Coal Corporation, Privatisation 512w
Coal, Imports 63w
Miscarriages of justice, Home Affairs Select Committee 705w
NHS administration, Costs 166w

Means tested benefits
Social security recipients 185-6w
Social security reform 177w

Medical appeal tribunals 163-4w, 178w, 326w

Medical education
Family doctors 353w

Medical equipment
Members' correspondence 780w

Medical laboratory scientific officers 624-5w
Manpower 640-8w

Medical malpractice
Trent Regional Health Authority 276-8w

Medical profession
NHS administration 486w
Nottingham Health Authority 486w

Medical records
Disclosure of information (12:02:88) 657-67

Medical research
Analgesics 631-2w

Medical Research Council 558w

Medical students
Parental contributions 372w
Student grants 217-8w, 372w
Student numbers 431w

Medical treatments
Administrative delays 199-200w
Lost working days 554-5w
Risley Remand Centre 620w

Mellor, Mr David, Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs
Questions
Afghanistan, Arms exports 391w
Akhtar, Nasreen, Immigration applications 149-50w
Armed conflict, Nuclear power stations 604w
Arms control, Defence industries 292w
BBC external services, Government grants 233w
Belgium, Legal aid 426w
Chile, Human rights 292w
Chile, Referenda 292w
Diplomatic service, Kensington & Chelsea 55w
EC countries, Nuclear safeguards 235w
EC Energy Council, Nuclear safeguards 235w
El Salvador, Mercenaries 529w
Entry clearances, Immigrants' fiancees 690-1w
EURATOM, Nuclear safeguards 235w
European Security Conference, Romania 233w
Falkland Islands, Fisheries 56-7w, 425w
Foreign policy, Disclosure of information 291w
Herald of Free Enterprise, Hazardous materials 57w
Hong Kong, Civil service pensions 391w
Hong Kong, Nature conservation 292-3w
Hong Kong, Official visits 427-8w
International Atomic Energy Agency, Nuclear safeguards 234w
Japan, Nuclear fuels 530w
Japan, Nuclear power 57w
Ministers, Immigration controls 529w
Mozambique, Defence Systems 529-30w
Mozambique, Security 775-6w
NATO, Europe 424w
Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty 234w
Nuclear test ban, UN disarmament 235w
Palestine, Refugees 691w
Palestine Liberation Organisation, Defence equipment 425-6w
Persian Gulf, Merchant ships 423-4w
Persian Gulf, Western European Union 423w

Plutonium, Nuclear safeguards 530w
Romania, Historic buildings 425w
Sexual harassment, Foreign & Commonwealth Office 55w
Sudan, Nuclear fuels 236w
Syrian Arab Republic, Torture 691w
USSR, Chernobilsky, Boris 149w
USSR, Foreign relations 424w

Members
Home Office 37-8w
Immigration 710w, 1135-6
Speaker's rulings & statements (16:02:88) 839

Members' conduct
Speaker's rulings & statements (08:02:88) 129, (09:02:88) 188, (10:02:88) 454-5, 465, 470-3, (11:02:88) 501, (15:02:88) 795, (16:02:88) 913, (18:02:88) 1253

Members' correspondence
Armilla patrol 756w
McNamara, Kevin 223w
Medical equipment 780w

Members' imprisonment
Beggs, Roy (15:02:88) 685
Speaker's rulings & statements (15:02:88) 685

Members' interventions
Speaker's rulings & statements (09:02:88) 203, 223, 280, 330, (10:02:88) 433, (12:02:88) 648-9, (15:02:88) 717, (16:02:88) 854, 857, 944-5, (17:02:88) 1021, 1041, 1043, 1069, 1071-3, 1084, 1085, (18:02:88) 1161

Members' pensions
Employers' contributions 658w
Personal pensions 658w

Members' speeches
Speaker's rulings & statements (08:02:88) 128, 151, (09:02:88) 192, 237, (11:02:88) 490, (12:02:88) 655, (15:02:88) 780, 785, (17:02:88) 1020, 1025, 1049, (18:02:88) 1193, 1230, 1236, (19:02:88) 1294

Members' suspension
Cohen, Harry (18:02:88) 1246
Speaker's rulings & statements (18:02:88) 1253

MENCAP see Royal Society for Mentally Handicapped Children & Adults

Meningitis
North West Hertfordshire Health Authority 269w

Mental health community care 267-8w, 562w
Hospital closures 553w, 562-6w
Planning 97w
South Tyneside Health Authority 409w

Mental health services
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 107w
Mentally ill 486w
NHS finance 117-8w, 822-3
North Western Regional Health Authority 639-40w

Mental hospitals
Hospital closures 196w
Hostels 97w

Mental illness
Nurses 776w
Unemployed 231-2w

Mental patients
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 107-8w
Complaints 562w
Money 272w
Per capita costs 95-6w
St James' Hospital Portsmouth 270w

Salford Health Authority 406-7w
Schizophrenia 639w
Special hospitals 553-4w

Mentally handicapped
Social security reform 170-1

Mentally ill
Mental health services 486w
Prison population 546w
Prisoners' release 546w
Sheltered housing 562w

Mercenaries
El Salvador 529w

Merchant ships
Armilla patrol 446w, 448-9w
Persian Gulf 423-4w

Mergers
Monopolies & Mergers Commission 257w

Merrison Committee see National Health Service Royal Commission

Mersey Regional Health Authority
Expenditure 192-4w
Family doctors 268-9w
Nurses 204w

Mersey tunnel (09:02:88) 308-28, 739w
Debts 740w

Merseyside
Agency nurses 205w

Merseyside Passenger Transport Executive
Rate precepts (09:02:88) 308-28, 739w

Metal industries
Industrial production 341

Metaldehyde 724-5w

Metalworking
City of London Polytechnic 216-7w

Methiocarb 724-5w

Metropolitan Police 38w, 542-3w, 704w, 1144
Demonstrations 1143-4
Expenditure 547w
Heathrow Airport 37w
Manpower 710w
Privatisation 436w
Sick leave 35-6w

Meyer, Gene
Immigration controls 545-6w

Meyer, Sir Anthony
Questions
European Assembly constituencies, Wales 768w
Multiple occupation, Wales 9
Surgery, North Wales 15

Michael, Mr Alun
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 917-9
Questions
Immigration appeals 438w
Inflation, NHS finance 331-2w
Insider trading, Information 255w
Manufacturing industries, Government assistance to industry 18-9
Public expenditure, Hospitals 341w
Wales Railway Centre, Unemployment 12

Michie, Mr Bill
Debates etc.
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1188-90
Training (16:02:88) 833-4
Questions
Museums & galleries, Arts finance 467w

Michie, Mrs Ray
Debates etc.
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1272-6
Questions
Homelessness 661w
Regional selective assistance 252w

Microelectronics industry
Production 535w

Mid Wales Development 2-3

Middle schools 603-4w

Middlesbrough Borough Council 974
Council house rents 974

Migration
Northern Ireland 711w

Military aircraft
Republic of Ireland 318w, 776w

Military exercises
Falkland Islands 736-7w

Military vehicles
Lighting 81w

Milk
Canada 157w
Exports 675-6w
Food prices 725w
Imports 157w, 677-8w
Milk Marketing Board 676w
Production 61w, 726w
Production quotas 726w

Milk Marketing Board
Milk 676w

Millan, Rt Hon Bruce
Questions
Britoil, Government shareholding 486
Britoil, Takeovers 34w
Business statements 506-7
Residential care, Elderly 65w

Millbank Gardens
Monuments 31w

Miller, Mr Hal
Questions
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 626
NHS charges, Private patients 498-500w

Mills, Mr Iain
Questions
Cars, Motor vehicle safety 551w
Tyre tread depths, EC action 410w

Minesweepers
Persian Gulf 758w

Minimum wage
Chester 74w
North West region 470w

Mining
Equipment 261w

Mining equipment
Productivity 224-5w

Ministerial duties
Forestry Commission 751-2w
Handicapped 45w, 110w

Ministerial statements
Civil service (18:02:88) 1149-56
European Council (15:02:88) 705-17
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 355-64
Northern Ireland 223w
Republic of Ireland 325w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 325w, (17:02:88) 977-96
Speaker's rulings & statements (08:02:88) 31, (15:02:88) 706, 709, 712, 714, 716, (17:02:88) 977, 981, 987, (18:02:88) 1151
Training (16:02:88) 825-38

Ministers
Civil servants 700
Immigration controls 529w
Stalker, John 394w

Ministers' correspondence 199-200w
Disclosure of information 45w

Ministers' domestic visits
Basildon 708-9w
Nuclear power stations 589w

Ministers' visits abroad
Costs 215w
India 215w
Scottish Office 221w
West Germany 164w

Ministry of Agriculture 751-2w
Sexual harassment 61w

Ministry of Agriculture Fisheries & Food see Ministry of Agriculture

Ministry of Defence 240w, 448w
Civil service manpower 446w
Economic League 318w
Protest 1144
Sexual harassment 317w
Thames house Millbank 446w

Miscarriages of justice
Court of appeal 705w
Home Affairs Select Committee 705w

Mitchell, Mr Andrew
Questions
AIDS, Personal social services 168w
Coal mining, Productivity 693-4
Human rights 681w
Infant foods, Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy 276w
Motor industry 250w
New businesses 337
Productivity 494-5

Mitchell, Mr Austin
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 201, 203, 227, 255, 258, 262-6
Questions
Agricultural land, Land use 156w
Balance of trade, Unemployment 349
British Steel Corporation, House of Commons questions 444w
British Steel Corporation, Privatisation 147-8w, 351-2
Child safety, EC action 261w
Consumer protection, Food 306-7w
Conveyancing Standing Committee 364-5w
Council for Licensed Conveyancers 366w
EC grants & loans 760w
EC transport policy, EC Consumer Affairs Council 360w
Economic growth 388w
Employment 228-9w
Grimsby Health Authority, Hospital beds 491w
Grimsby Health Authority, Hospital consultants 490-1w
Grimsby Health Authority, Housing 490w
Grimsby Health Authority, Nurses 491w
Grimsby Health Authority, Public appointments 491w
Grimsby Health Authority, Special duty allowances 492w
Licensed conveyancers 365-6w
Licensed conveyancers, Examinations 366w
Licensed conveyancers, Public appointments 365w
Manufacturing industries, Armed conflict 135w
Money supply 153-4w
Plutonium, Transport of radioactive materials 590w
Privatisation, Tenders 92w
Production, Audio equipment 531w
Production, Chemicals 610w
Production, Computer software 535-6w
Production, Fertilisers 607w
Production, Microelectronics industry 535w

Production, Office equipment 530-1w
Production, Recording equipment 532w
Production, Synthetic fibres 609-10w
Production, Tape recorders 532w
Production, Video equipment 531w, 610w
Productivity, Pay 151w
Public sector borrowing 247w
Regional aid, Regional selective assistance 533-6w
Regional aid, York 534w
Safety standards, EC action 260w
Secretarial staff, Pay 134-5w
Severe weather payments, Grimsby 492w
UK contributions to EC budget 152w
Unemployment, Barrow in Furness 473w
Unemployment, Lincoln 474w
Unemployment, Preston 474-5w
Unemployment, Stafford 473-4w
Unemployment, Sudbury 549-50w
Unemployment, York 471-2w

Mitchell, Mr David, Minister of State for Transport
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 287-9, 291, 298, 301-4, 308-10, 324-6
Taxis, Crimes of violence (15:02:88) 802-5
Questions
Ambulance services, Voluntary organisations 413w
British merchant fleet 414w
British Rail, Capital investment 241-2w
British Rail, Land acquisition 740w
Bus crews, Information 413w
Bus crews, Smoking 413w
Bus services subsidies, Shropshire County Council 1w
Buses, Crime 413-4w
Buses, Crimes of violence 412w
Buses, Greater London 749w
Buses, Motor vehicle safety 741w
Channel ferries, Hazardous wastes 5w
Channel tunnel, Railway network 246w
Channel tunnel, Waste disposal 741w
Heathrow central station, Fire certificates 412w
Herald of Free Enterprise, Freight transport 4-5w
Light dues, EC countries 241-2w
London Regional Transport, Bus services 452w
London Regional Transport, Government grants 242w
London Regional Transport, Official engagements 452w
London Regional Transport Act 1984, Law reform 451-2w
London Underground, Fire certificates 412w
London Underground, Manpower 412w
London Underground, Railway stations 3w
Mersey tunnel, Debts 740w
Merseyside Passenger Transport Executive, Rate precepts 739w
Oil pollution control, Aircraft 739-40w
Passenger transport executives, Finance 748-9w
Ports, Hazardous materials 739w
Public service vehicles, Bus crews 740w
Public service vehicles, Driving licences 613-4w
Public service vehicles, Motor vehicle testing 741w
Railway freight transport, Government grants 453w
Railway Inspectorate, Railway safety 244w
Railway land, Trespass 357w
Railway stations, Trains 453-4w
Rural transport innovation grant scheme 307w
Sudbury-Colchester railway 453w
Taxis 551-2w
Taxis, Basildon 552w
Transport, Inquiries 747w

Mobile homes
Community charge 81w

Mobility allowance
Civil service manpower 327w
Northern Ireland 163-4w, 326-7w
Social security appeals 163-4w, 326-7w
Social security appeals tribunals 178w
Social security claims 327w

Mobility of disabled
Taxis (15:02:88) 799-805

MOD see Ministry of Defence

Molyneaux, Rt Hon James
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 925
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 983

Monetary compensatory amounts 771-2w
Pigmeat 820

Money
Mental patients 272w

Money supply 153-4w

Monofilament gill nets
Birds 588w
Cornwall 588w

Monopolies & Mergers Commission 34w, 355-6w
Mergers 257w

Monopoly
Post Office 248w

Montgomery, Sir Fergus
Questions
Enterprise & Deregulation Unit, Business 532w
Prisons, Privatisation 1134

Monuments
Millbank Gardens 31w

Moonie, Dr Lewis
Questions
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 170-1
NHS finance 565w
NHS finance, Scotland 539-40w
"Strategy for the Science Base" 583-4w

Moore, Rt Hon John, Secretary of State for Social Services
Questions
Dept of Health & Social Security, Office dispersal 179w
Health 175
Health services finance, EC countries 177-8
Health services finance, OECD countries 179
National insurance contributions, NHS 398-400w
NHS 174-6, 178, 272w, 407w
NHS administration, Costs 166w
NHS & private practice 175
NHS finance 175, 178, 350w
Surgery, NHS & private practice 623w

Moores Wallinstown
Defence procurement 82w

Morgan, Mr Rhodri
Debates etc.
Patent Office, Civil service dispersal (17:02:88) 1120
Questions
Devon & Cornwall Development Bureau, Industrial investment 739-60w
Greenbelt, Departmental circulars 285w
Inflation, Electricity tariffs 338w
Power stations, Public inquiries 686
Regional aid, Wales 1-2
Regional development grants, Wales 75-6w, 364w
Regional selective assistance, Wales 76-7w
Rented housing, Skilled workers 456w

Morley, Mr Elliot
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 783-4
Credit (Control) Bill, 1R (10:02:88) 368-70
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1015
Questions
British Steel Corporation, Privatisation 351
Examinations 574w
Monofilament gill nets, Birds 588w
Museums & galleries 466w
Nature reserves, Privatisation 127-8w
Public expenditure, NHS 341w

Morris, Rt Hon Alfred
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1160
Questions
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w, 172, 180
Handicapped drivers, Parking 615w
Manchester Airport, Fees & charges 615-6w
Members' pensions, Employers' contributions 658w
Ministerial duties, Handicapped 45w, 110w
Passenger transport executives, Finance 748-9w

Morris, Rt Hon John
Questions
Extradition, Republic of Ireland 685-6w

Morris, Mr Michael
Questions
British Nuclear Fuels, Exhibitions 226w
Cereals, Intervention Board 586-8w
EC budget, UK repayments 567w
Green pound, Farm incomes 674-5w
Green pound, Sterling 771-2w
Intervention stocks 674-5w
Medical students, Student numbers 431w
Retail price index, National savings 567w

Morrison, Sir Charles
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 712

Morrison, Mr Peter, Minister of State for Energy
Questions
Britoil, North Sea oil 690
Combined heat & power, Edinburgh 346w
North Sea oil, Offshore suppliers 690
North Sea oil, Petroleum exploration 689-90
Offshore suppliers 510w

Mortgage defaulters
Homelessness 65-6w, 660-1w

Mortgage relief 87w, 334w
Costs 418w

Moss, Mr Malcolm
Debates etc.
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1261-70, 1320
Questions
Paper industry, Industrial production 344-5

Motor industry 250w, 341
Exhaust emission controls 605-6w

Motor vehicle safety 246-7w
Buses 741w
Cars 551w
Europe 551w

Motor vehicle testing
Public service vehicles 741w

Motor vehicles
Head restraints 613w

Motorway service areas
Public petitions (08:02:88) 161

Motorways 409w
Road accidents 616w
Road traffic 741-2w

Mowlam, Ms Marjorie
Debates etc.
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1190-2
Questions
Balance of payments 348
Community charge 664w
Nuclear weapons 755w
Public investment 343w

Moynihan, Mr Colin, Under-Secretary of State for the Environment (Sport)
Questions
Abseiling, Women 131w
Archaeology 302w
Hazardous wastes, Import licensing 24w
Hazardous wastes, Imports 24w
Monuments, Millbank Gardens 31w
National parks, Public appointments 133w
Nature Conservancy Council, Official engagements 128w
Nature reserves, Land ownership & tenure 24-32w
Nature reserves, Privatisation 127-8w
Ordnance Survey 129w
Peak Park Joint Planning Board, Public appointments 132-4w
Rights of way, Land ownership & tenure 19w
Swimming, Handicapped 126-7w
Swimming, Training 20-1w
Water charges 128w
Water supply, Bradford 127w
Water supply, Nitrates 127-8w

Mozambique
Defence Systems 529-30w
Security 775-6w

MRC see Medical Research Council

MSC see Manpower Services Commission

Mudd, Mr David
Questions
Road construction, Contracts 2-4w
Road works, Contracts 65w, 119-20w

Mull of Galloway 447-8w

Mullin, Mr Chris
Debates etc.
Bombings, Birmingham (16:02:88) 950-4
Questions
Armed forces deployment, Diego Garcia 445-6w
Business statements 514-5
Clift, Alan, Forensic science 439w
Miscarriages of justice, Home Affairs Select Committee 705w
Skuse, Frank 1139
Skuse, Frank, Evidence 438w

Multiple occupation 665w
Fire escapes 321-2w
Housing policy 8-9
Scotland 321-2w
Wales 8-9

Murphy, Mr Paul
Questions
Channel tunnel, Waste disposal 741w
Primary health care, Gwent 8

Museums & galleries 466w
Arts grants 467w
British Museum 466w
Collections 151-2w
Official engagements 468w

NACODS 695-6

Namibia
Official engagements 46w

NAO see National Audit Office

NATFHE see National Association of Teachers in Further & Higher Education

National Air Traffic Services
Air safety 22

National Association of Teachers in Further & Higher Education
Further education colleges 217w

National Audit Office 486

National Coal Board see British Coal Corporation

National Curriculum English Working Group 581-2w

National Curriculum Mathematics Working Group
Resignations 682-3w

National finance see Treasury

National Health Service (National Lottery) Bill 1987/88 (proposed)
Debates etc.
Motion to introduce Bill negatived (16:02:88) 841-6

National Health Service Royal Commission 214w
NHS charges 172-3

National income 338-9w
EC budget 611w
NHS finance 487-8w

National insurance contributions 354w, 630-1w
Employees' contributions 205w
NHS 398-400w
NHS finance 778w
Tax evasion 353-4w

National insurance credits
Expenditure 354w

National Museum of Photography 467w

National parks
Planning authorities 971
Public appointments 133w

National Radiological Protection Board 83-4w, 757w, 771w

National savings
Retail price index 567w

National security
Computer privacy 619w
Intelligence services 500
Television programmes 144-5w, 728w

National Theatre 568-70w
Arts Council grants 699-700

National Union of Mineworkers 511w
Departmental correspondence 344w

National Utility Services 506-7w

Nationalised industries
Economic League 415w

NATO (11:02:88) 524-98, 538w, 755w
Chemical weapons 448w
Defence equipment 613w
Europe 424w
Western European Union 424w

Nature Conservancy Council 24-32w, 72-3w
Official engagements 128w, 665w
Sites of Special Scientific Interest 296w

Nature conservation
Badgers 379w
Hong Kong 292-3w

Nature reserves 959-60
Land ownership & tenure 24-32w, 959
Privatisation 127-8w

Naval bases
Clyde Submarine Base 737w
Nuclear submarines 737w
River Clyde 737w

Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation
HMS Resolution 756w
Nuclear accidents 738w

Navy
Armed forces storage depots 735w

Nazi war crimes
Offenders (08:02:88) 28-36
Waldheim, Kurt 519-20w, 750w

NCB see British Coal Corporation

Near misses (08:02:88) 38, 244w, 357-8w, 551w, 590w
Air safety 21-2, 244w, 357w

Needham, Mr Richard, Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland
Questions
AIDS, Laboratories 327w
Bed & breakfast accommodation, Northern Ireland 166w
Cars, Northern Ireland 165w, 284w
Electricity supply industry, Northern Ireland 593w
Family doctors, Northern Ireland 284-6w
Gypsies, Belfast 396w
Gypsies, Environmental health 396w
Gypsies, Northern Ireland 395w
Health insurance, Northern Ireland 284w
Homelessness, Temporary accommodation 325-6w
Local government audit, Craigavon Borough Council 397w
Mobility allowance, Civil service manpower 327w
Mobility allowance, Northern Ireland 326-7w
Mobility allowance, Social security appeals 163-4w, 326-7w
Mobility allowance, Social security claims 327w
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 324w
Nurses, Northern Ireland 283-4w

Negligence
Doctors 187w

Nellist, Mr Dave
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1163
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 889
National Health Service (National Lottery) Bill, Motion to introduce Bill negatived (16:02:88) 841-4
Questions
British citizenship, Departmental correspondence 546-7w
Budget, Unemployment 342w
Community charge rebates, Young people 622w
NHS finance 183-4
Post Office, Monopoly 248w
Rover Group, Positive vetting 444w
School meals, Fees & charges 583w
Unemployment benefits, Social security benefits disqualification 183-4w

Nelson, Mr Anthony
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 192-9, 207, 240
Questions
Business statements 508

Neonatal mortality
Intensive care 558w
Scottish health boards 650-1w

Nervous system disorders
Maudsley Hospital 168w

Network SouthEast 355-6w

New businesses 337, 492
Consultants 254w
North East region 493

New clauses
Speaker's rulings & statements (16:02:88) 848

New Parliamentary building
House of Commons accommodation 522-3w

New York
AIDS 776w

New Zealand
Handicapped drivers 615w
Official engagements 338w

Newcastle Abbey College
Finance 519w

Newbigin, Paul 387w

Newport
Unemployment 9

Newspaper press
VAT 496

Newton, Rt Hon Tony, Minister of State for Health
Questions
Abortion, Disclosure of information 111w, 351w
Abortion, Hospitals 191-2w
Abortion, Private health services 780w
Abortion, Rape 111w
Agency nurses, Expenditure 405-6w
Agency nurses, Merseyside 205w
AIDS, Contraceptives 557-8w
AIDS, Expenditure 499-500w
AIDS, Laboratories 110-1w
AIDS, New York 776w
AIDS, Personal social services 168w
AIDS, Pregnancy 785w
AIDS, Technicians 489w, 626-7w
AIDS Monitoring & Surveillance Committee 167w
Barnet Health Authority, Nurses 190w
Bexley Health Authority, NHS finance 173w
Blood tests, AIDS 199w
Blood tests, Costs 199w
Children, Sexual offences 169w
Community care 183w, 485w
Community care, NHS finance 183w, 196w
Community Care Review 196w
Dental charges 349w
Dental charges, EC countries 349w
District health authorities, Resignations 168-9w
District health authorities, Storms 565w
Doctors, Negligence 187w
Drugs, APS 271w
Drugs, Costs 109w
Drugs, Eli Lilley 628w
Drugs, Expenditure 557w
Drugs, Hospitals 198w
Drugs, Licensing 271w
Eye disorders, Hospital waiting lists 632-8w
Eye tests, NHS 112w
Eye tests, Optical charges 195w
Family credit, Poverty trap 176w
Family doctors, Costs 115w
Family doctors, Leeds 264w
Family doctors, Medical education 353w
Generic prescribing, Family doctors 352w
Health service staff, Business education 556w
Health service staff, Liverpool Health Authority 354-6w
Health service staff, Manpower 488-9w, 624-5w
Health service staff, NHS administration 265w
Health service staff, Pay settlements 115w, 497w
Health service staff, Temporary staff 109w
Health services, Acute beds 270w
Health services, Expenditure 264-6w
Health services, Management consultants 352-3w
Health services finance, EC countries 174w, 204-6w, 402-4w
Health services finance, Health insurance 263-4w
Hospital beds 173-4
Hospital catering, Privatisation 173w
Hospital consultants, Contracts of employment 204w, 490w, 556w
Hospital doctors, Disciplinary proceedings 177-8w
Hospital finance 497-8w
Hospital waiting lists 277-8w
Hospital waiting lists, Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 278-80w
Hospital waiting lists, District health authorities 503-6w
Hospital waiting lists, Leeds Eastern Health Authority 280w
Hospital waiting lists, Macclesfield Health Authority 96w
Hospital waiting lists, NHS & private practice 485-6w
Hospital waiting lists, North Western Regional Health Authority 623-4w
Hospital waiting lists, Regional health authorities 489w
Hospital waiting lists, Sheffield Health Authority 96w
Hospitals, NHS finance 116-8w
Hospitals, Standards enforcement 188w
Junior hospital doctors, Overtime 172w
Local government social services, Crimes of violence 197w
Medical laboratory scientific officers, Manpower 640-8w
Medical malpractice, Trent Regional Health Authority 276-8w
Medical profession, Nottingham Health Authority 486w
Medical treatments, Lost working days 554-5w
Mental health community care 267-8w, 562w
Mental health community care, Hospital closures 553w
Mental health community care, Planning 97w
Mental patients, Money 272w
Mental patients, Per capita costs 95-6w
Mental patients, Special hospitals 553-4w
Mentally ill, Mental health services 486w
National Health Service Royal Commission 214w
National Health Service Royal Commission, NHS charges 172-3
NHS 173-4
NHS, Abortion 173, 269-70w
NHS, Expenditure 276w, 278w
NHS, Industrial relations 173-4w
NHS, Per capita costs 632w
NHS, Performance indicators 353w, 403w
NHS charges 174
NHS charges, Local authorities 565w
NHS charges, Private patients 498-500w
NHS finance 176w, 349-50w, 556w, 565w
NHS finance, Capital investment 97w
NHS finance, Direct taxation 556-8w
NHS finance, District health authorities 177w, 180w
NHS finance, Emergency planning 197w
NHS finance, Greater London 211-3w
NHS finance, Health service staff 195w
NHS finance, Inquiries 176w
NHS finance, National income 487-8w
NHS finance, Regional health authorities 181w
NHS finance, South East region 213w
NHS Management Board 403w
NHS Management Board, Public appointments 206-7w
North Western Regional Health Authority, Official engagements 179w
Nurses, Employment 487w
Nurses, Geriatrics 624w
Nurses, Lost working days 555w
Nurses, Manpower 207-11w
Nurses, Mersey Regional Health Authority 204w
Nurses, Pay 189w
Nurses, Recruitment 167w
Nurses, Shift work 116w
Nurses' training 176-7w
Nurses' training, Expenditure 176w
Nurses' training, Student wastage 785-6w
Nursing Staff & Professions Allied to Medicine Review Body 184w
Optical charges, Eye tests 349w
Prescription charges, Income 174w
Prescriptions, Costs 622-3w
Prescriptions, Family doctors 555w
Private patients, Administrative costs 625w
Proprietary drugs, Hospital doctors 352w
Regional health authorities, Expenditure 698w
Residential care, Local government staff 696w
Social workers, Hospitals 565w
Social workers' training 347w
Speech therapists, Pay 266-8w

"Next Steps" 294-5w

NHS 173-6, 178, 272w, 407w
Abortion 173, 269-70w
Demonstrations 1143-4
Eli Lilley 628w
Expenditure 18, 276w, 278w, 496w
Eye tests 112w
Gynaecology 270w
Hospital beds 502w
Industrial relations 173-4w
National insurance contributions 398-400w
Nurses 207-11w
Operating theatres 401w
Per capita costs 632w
Performance indicators 191w, 353w, 403w
Public expenditure 341w
Scotland 139-40w, 221w
Sickle cell disease 172w
Surgery 490w
Wales 18, 223-4w

NHS administration
Costs 166w
Health service staff 141-2w, 265w
Manpower 11-2
Medical profession 486w
Wales 11-2
West Dorset Health Authority 1147

NHS & private practice 174-5
Hospital beds 407-8w
Hospital waiting lists 485-6w
Surgery 623w

NHS charges 174
Eye tests 732w
Foreign patients 745-6w
Income 401-2w
Local authorities 565w
National Health Service Royal Commission 172-3
Private patients 498-500w
Wales 745-6w

NHS finance 45w, 175, 176w, 177-8, 183-4, 276w, 278w, 349-50w, 488-90, 493, 497, 556w, 565w, 629-30, 1145
Ambulance services 502w
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 99-100w, 279w
Bassetlaw Health Authority 213w
Bexley Health Authority 173w

Capital investment 97w
Community care 183w, 196w
Community health services 116-8w
Direct taxation 556-8w
District health authorities 177w, 180w
Emergency planning 197w
Expenditure 488
Greater London 211-3w
Health service staff 195w
Hospitals 116-8w
Inflation 331-2w
Inner London boroughs 211-3w
Inquiries 176w
Lotteries (16:02:88) 841-6
Mental health services 117-8w, 822-3
National income 487-8w
National insurance contributions 778w
Northern Ireland 324w
Oldham Hospital 184-5
Prime Minister's questions 182
Private health services 623w
Regional health authorities 179-81w
Scotland 322-4w, 479w, 539-40w
South East region 213w
South Wales 5
Wales 19-20

NHS Management Board 403w
Public appointments 206-7w

NI Office see Northern Ireland Office

Nicaragua
Overseas aid 428w

Nicholls, Mr Patrick, Under-Secretary of State for Employment
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 44-8, 72-3, 78, 121-3, 133-5
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 387-9, 407, 433
Questions
Dock labour scheme 454-5w
Dock workers, Liverpool Dock Labour Board 770-2w
Dock workers, Manpower 455w
Hazardous materials, Durham 150-1w
Industrial accidents 74w
Industrial accidents, London Docklands 383w
Industrial accidents, Small businesses 74w
Industrial accidents, West Glamorgan 74w
Industrial health & safety 232w
Industrial tribunals, Ethnic minorities 383w
Ionizing radiation, Radiation protection 771w
Minimum wage, North West region 470w
Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, Manpower 468w
Parental leave, EC countries 469-70w
Productivity, Pay 151w
Reading Borough Council, Training 315-6w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Employment 73-4w
Wages Inspectorate, Northumbria 74w

Nicholson, Mr David
Debates etc.
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1279-84
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 37w
Drug crimes, Proceeds of crime 701w
Enterprise counsellors, Accountants 148w
Eye tests, Optical charges 195w
Food aid from EC, Cereals 687w
"Home Improvement Policy Consultation Paper" 719w
Milk, Exports 675-6w
Milk, Milk Marketing Board 676w
Police right of search, Offensive weapons 617w
Road finance, Local government expenditure 358w
Romania, Historic buildings 425w
Telecommunications industry, Competition 349-50

Nicholson, Miss Emma
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 211, 244, 261-2
Questions
Educational finance, Capital investment 159w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w
Urban development corporations 665w

Night flying
Aircraft noise 245-6w
Greater London 245-6w

NIREX see Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive

Nitrates
Infant foods 571-2w
Water supply 127-8w

Non-alcoholic drinks
Alcoholic drinks duties 648w
Drinking & driving 133-4w
House of Commons catering 517w

North Angus
Employment opportunities 728w

North Atlantic Treaty Organisation see NATO

North Devon District Council 670w

North East region 180-2w
British Coal Corporation 509w
Exceptional needs payments 500-2w
New businesses 493

North East Thames Regional Health Authority 174-5w, 213w, 496-7w

North Killingholme Cargo Terminal Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

North of Scotland Hydro-Electric Board
Hydroelectric power 319-20w

North Peckham task force
Government grants 253-4w

North Sea oil
Britoil 690
Offshore suppliers 690
Petroleum exploration 689-90

North Staffordshire Health Authority
Construction 189w

North Wales
Surgery 15

North West Hertfordshire Health Authority
Meningitis 269w

North West region
Minimum wage 470w

North West Thames Regional Health Authority 213w

North Western Regional Health Authority
Hospital waiting lists 623-4w
Mental health services 639-40w
Official engagements 179w

Northern Ireland
Administration of justice 149w, 591w
AIDS 327w
Bed & breakfast accommodation 166w
Building workers 593w
Cars 165w, 284w
Death 500
Debt collection 393-5w
Debts 394w
Educational maintenance allowance 396-7w
Electricity supply industry 592-3w, 750w
Emergency powers 165-6w, (16:02:88) 925-49
Employment discrimination 440-2w, 594-6w, 674w
Extortion 519w, 594w
Fair Employment Commission 749w
Family doctors 284-6w
Government departments 821
Gypsies 324-5w, 395-6w
Handicapped 281-3w
Health insurance 284w
Homelessness 325-6w
Homicide 441w
Intelligence services 83w
Interviews 283w
Migration 711w
Ministerial statements 223w
Mobility allowance 163-4w, 326-7w
NHS finance 324w
Nurses 283-4w
Official visits 85-6w
Personal social services 324w
Positive vetting 86w
Punishment attacks 86w
Rural areas 592w
Salmon 325-6w
Special educational needs 818
Student grants 286w, 396w
Student numbers 766w
Take-up of employment 718w
Tax evasion 593-4w
Teacher training 323w
Terrorism (16:02:88) 925-49
USA 426w
Voluntary organisations 590-1w
Youth employment schemes 717-8w

Northern Ireland Dept of Health & Social Services 324w

Northern Ireland Education & Library Boards 286w, 396w

Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1987
Questions
594w

Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Acts
Questions
165-6w

Northern Ireland Office
Security 674w
Sexual harassment 323-4w

Northern region
Cervical cancer 493w
Employment 231w
Small businesses 227w

Northern Regional Assembly Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 676

Northern Regional Health Authority
Administrative costs 172w

Northumberland
Ambulance services 692w
Forests 480w
Housing associations 520-1w
Police 620w, 1133
Pre-school education 578w
Private education 585w
School buildings 579w

Northumberland Health Authority 409w
Dogs 493w
Nurses 776w

Northumbria
Wages Inspectorate 74w

Northwich
Employment schemes 468-9w
Manufacturing industries 313-4w
Service industries 313-4w
Unemployment 471-2w
Vacancies 313-4w

Norwich Health Authority
Land values 692-4w

Nottingham
Crime prevention 702w

Nottingham Development Enterprise 968-9

Nottingham Health Authority
Medical profession 486w

Nottinghamshire
British Coal Corporation 512w
Public libraries 151w

NRPB see National Radiological Protection Board

NSRB see Nursing Staff & Professions Allied to Medicine Review Body

Nuclear accidents
Clyde Submarine Base 737w
Greenland 240-1w
Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation 738w
Nuclear submarines 735-8w

Nuclear fuel reprocessing 589-90w
Okg Aktiebolag 589w

Nuclear fuels 515-6w
Exports 225-6w
Japan 530w
Nuclear safeguards 393w
Sudan 236w

Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive
Official engagements 671w
Radioactive waste disposal 666w

Nuclear Installations Inspectorate 509-10w
Manpower 468w

Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty 234w

Nuclear power
Electricity generation 510w
Energy research 684w
Japan 57w
Lowry, David 392w
Privatisation 507-8w
Public sector assets 226w
Republic of Ireland 512w
Television programmes 346w

Nuclear power stations 225w
Air accidents 590w
Armed conflict 604w
Environment protection 344-5w
Fire services 436w, 512w
Ministers' domestic visits 589w
Opinion polls 345w
Testing 392w, 510w
Wylfa power station 510w

Nuclear reactors
Testing 510-1w

Nuclear safeguards
EC countries 235w
EC Energy Council 235w
EURATOM 235w
International Atomic Energy Agency 226w, 234w
Nuclear fuels 393w
Plutonium 530w

Nuclear safety 63w
Magnox reactors 345-6w

Nuclear submarines 737-8w, 756-7w
Clyde Submarine Base 736w
Cormack, Jim (08:02:88) 162-8
Faslane 735-6w
HMS Resolution 736w, 756w
Naval bases 737w
Nuclear accidents 735-8w
River Clyde 736-8w

Nuclear test ban
UN disarmament 235w

Nuclear weapons 735w
Transport of radioactive materials 136w
Treaties 383-4w

Nuclear weapons deployment
Western Europe 538w

Nuclear weapons tests
Armed forces pensions 758w
Christmas Island 709w
Disclosure of information 769w
Exservicemen 83-4w, 757-8w

NUM see National Union of Mineworkers

Nurses 500-1
Barnet Health Authority 190w
Employment 487w
Geriatrics 624w
Grimsby Health Authority 491w
Leicestershire Health Authority 203w
Lost working days 555w
Manpower 190w, 207-11w
Mental illness 776w
Mersey Regional Health Authority 204w
NHS 207-11w
Northern Ireland 283-4w
Northumberland Health Authority 776w
Pay 134-5w, 189w, 340w, 1147-8
Pay settlements 185-6
Pontefract Health Authority 560-1w
Recruitment 167w
Schools 283-4w
Scotland 480w
Shift work 116w
Special duty allowances 492w
Voluntary redundancy 480w

Nurses' homes 490w

Nurses' training 176-7w
Expenditure 176w
Student wastage 785-6w

Nursing homes
Scotland 65w

Nursing Staff & Professions Allied to Medicine Review Body 184w

Nutrition & health
School meals 6

Nutrition labelling
Coronary Prevention Group 727w

OAL see Office of Arts & Libraries

Objects in lieu of tax
Office of Arts & Libraries 569-70w

O'Brien, Mr William
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 140
Questions
Banks, Tax allowances 338w

Obscene Publications Act 1959
Questions
Citizens' Advice Bureaux 620-1w

Obscenity
Art works 468w

Obstetrics
Wales 79w

Occupational pensions
Unemployment benefits 191w

OECD countries
Food aid 604-5w
Health services finance 179

Offenders
Electronic surveillance 139-40w
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 28-36

Offensive weapons
Greater London 38w
Police right of search 617w

Office dispersal
Dept of Energy 511w
Dept of Health & Social Security 179w
Economic & Social Research Council 579w
Insolvency Service 761w
Patent Office 761w

Office equipment
Production 530-1w

Office of Arts & Libraries
Cash limits 569-70w
Objects in lieu of tax 569-70w

Office of Fair Trading 34w, 307w

Office of Population Censuses & Surveys
Libraries 780w

Office of Telecommunications (09:02:88) 329-36, 443w

Office of the Social Security Commissioners see Social Security Commissioners

Office workers
Health service staff 265w

Offices
London Residuary Body 381w

Official cars
Costs 131w
Leader of the Opposition 657-8w

Official engagements 45w, 135w, 294w, 520w, 690w
Aberdeen University 577w
Advisory Council on Science & Technology 519w
Association of British Chambers of Commerce 251w
Association of Chief Police Officers 1133
Barnsley 519w
Basingstoke 293w
British Coal Corporation 20, 508w, 511w, 693
Bury 13
Central Electricity Generating Board 511w
Committee of Vice Chancellors & Principals 809
Confederation of British Industry 337-8w
Consumers' Association 251w
East Stow 294w
European Commission 689w
European fighter aircraft 134w
European Regional Development Fund 254w
First Division Association 574w, 812
France 615w
Gwynedd Health Authority 81w
Housing Corporation 966
Independent Broadcasting Authority 709w
Little Lowfield 688w
London Ambulance Service 184w
London Regional Transport 452w
Lychett Minster 134w
Museums & galleries 468w
Namibia 46w
Nature Conservancy Council 128w, 665w
New Zealand 338w
North Western Regional Health Authority 179w
Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive 671w
Opera 467w
RAF Lakenheath 688w
Schools 584w
South Africa 46w
Teesside Development Corporation 518w
Thurrock 294w
Trade unions 46w, 294w
Union of Democratic Mineworkers 344w
Vacant land 688w
Wales 134w

Water authorities 296w, 669w
Welsh Arts Council 11
Wolston 518w

Official Report 58w

Official secrets
Law reform 1140-1
Public records 241w

Official Secrets Act 1911
Questions
1140-1

Official visits
Hong Kong 427-8w
Northern Ireland 85-6w
Schools 219w

Offshore suppliers 510w
North Sea oil 690

OFT see Office of Fair Trading

Oftel see Office of Telecommunications

Ogwr valley
Valleys initiative 10

Oil pollution control
Aircraft 739-40w

Olg Aktieboleg
Nuclear fuel reprocessing 589w

Old people's homes
Disciplinary proceedings 98w
Prosecutions 98w

Oldchurch Hospital 115-6w

Oldham
Council house rents 974

Oldham Hospital
NHS finance 184-5

O'Neill, Mr Martin
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 530-1, 541

Onslow, Rt Hon Cranley
Questions
Immigration applications 215w

OPCS see Office of Population Censuses & Surveys

Opencast Coal Act 1958
Questions
684w

Opencast Executive (10:02:88) 478-84

Opencast mining 697
Clwyd (10:02:88) 478-84
Environment protection 661w
Privately owned mines 684w

Opera
Official engagements 467w

Operating theatres
NHS 401w

Ophthalmic services
Waiting lists 463w
Wales 463w

Opinion polls
Nuclear power stations 345w

Oppenheim, Mr Phillip
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 830
Questions
Balance of trade, USA 280w
Central Electricity Generating Board, Official engagements 511w
Educational finance, Derbyshire 430-1w
School governors 579w
Unemployment, Derbyshire 229w

Opposition parties
Public expenditure 657w

Opposition Whips' Office 657w
Civil service manpower 649w
Pay 649w

Optical Appliances (Blind & Partially Sighted Persons) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R (12:02:88) 668-9

Optical charges 349w
EC countries 349w
Eye tests 195w, 349w

Optical charges exemptions
Blind (12:02:88) 668-9

Optical fibres
Telecommunications cables 145w

Order paper (09:02:88) 286, 388w

Orders & regulations
Battery hens 726w
Speaker's rulings & statements (18:02:88) 1168

Ordnance Survey 129w

Organic farming
Agricultural production 329w

Orme, Rt Hon Stanley
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 714, 716

Out-patient clinics
Per capita costs 626w

Out-patients 169w

Overseas aid
Bophuthatswana 33w, 428-9w
Cyprus 125w
Nicaragua 428w
Population 430w
Warships 32w

Overseas Aid (Assistance to the Poorest) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 670

Overseas development see Foreign & Commonwealth Office

Overseas investment 498
Public sector assets 336w
South Africa 233w

Overseas students
Community charge 456w

Overseas trade 34w

Overtime 548w
Immigration & Nationality Division 543-4w
Junior hospital doctors 172w

Owen, Rt Hon David
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 715
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 31

Own resources (15:02:88) 705-17

Owner occupied housing
House prices 963
House purchase 963

Oxfordshire Health Authority
Hospital patients 169w

Paediatrics
South Wales 319w

Page, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
Self-employed (15:02:88) 722
Questions
Business, Company law 353
Corporation tax 349
Insider trading, Company investigations 621w

Insolvency Service, Office dispersal 761w
Patent Office, Office dispersal 761w
Police custody, Fees & charges 138w
Private health services, France 187w
Public sector assets, Overseas investment 336w
Securities Association, Financial services 760-1w

Paice, Mr James
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 828-9

Paisley Grammar School 688w

Paisley, Rev Ian
Debates etc.
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 983-4
Questions
Homicide, Fermanagh 441-2w
Homicide, Northern Ireland 441w

Palace of Westminster
Energy conservation 58w

Palestine
Refugees 691w

Palestine Liberation Organisation
Defence equipment 425-6w
Export licensing 306w
Exports 305w
Training 437w

Paper
Government departments 537w
Recycling 537w

Paper industry
Industrial energy prices 345
Industrial production 344-5
Patent Office 345

Paramilitary forces
Tax evasion 593-4w

Parental contributions
Medical students 372w
Schools 808-9

Parental leave
EC countries 469-70w

Parish councils
Community charge 664w

Parkhead stadium
Public order policing 653w

Parkhurst Prison
Prison accommodation 1140

Parking
Bus stops 451w
Handicapped drivers 615w

Parking offences
Caravans 539w

Parkinson, Rt Hon Cecil, Secretary of State for Energy
Questions
British Coal Corporation, Official engagements 508w, 511w, 693
Coal, South of Scotland Electricity Board 694
Coal fired power stations, Central Electricity Generating Board 509w
Coal mining, Industrial disputes 696
Coal mining, Pay 695-6
Coal mining, Productivity 693-4
Electricity Council, Public appointments 509w
Electricity generation, Coastal areas 688
Electricity supply industry 688-9
Electricity supply industry, Advertising 508w
Electricity supply industry, Emergency planning 62w
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 507-8w

Fast reactors, Science & technology research 507w
Hinkley Point C, Public inquiries 686-7
Lowry, David, Nuclear power 392w
National Union of Mineworkers, Departmental correspondence 344w
Nuclear power, Republic of Ireland 512w
Nuclear power, Television programmes 346w
Nuclear power stations, Ministers' domestic visits 589w
Office dispersal, Dept of Energy 511w
Power stations, Air pollution control 689
Power stations, Public inquiries 686
Union of Democratic Mineworkers, Official engagements 344w

Parliamentary constituencies
Scotland 734w

Parliamentary gifts
Australia (09:02:88) 169
St Christopher & Nevis (09:02:88) 169

Parliamentary privilege
Speaker's rulings & statements (09:02:88) 286

Parole 708w

Parry, Mr Robert
Debates etc.
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 939
Questions
Deportation, Liverpool 706w
Homelessness, Young people 658-9w

Part-time education
Tuition fees 216w

Passenger transport executives
Finance 748-9w

Passports
Administrative delays 707w

Patchett, Mr Terry
Questions
British Coal Corporation, Official engagements 511w
Coal mining, Capital investment 392w
Coal mining, Subsidence 393w
Coal reserves, Coal mining 392w
Community care, Barnsley 381-2w
Crime, Barnsley 361w
Hospital doctors, Disciplinary proceedings 177-8w
Job training scheme, Professional qualifications 151w
Medical malpractice, Trent Regional Health Authority 276-8w
Police, Barnsley 362w
Schools, Barnsley 373w

Patent Office 145-6w
Civil service dispersal (17:02:88) 1122-30
Office dispersal 761w
Paper industry 345

Patients
Blackburn Hyndburn & Ribble Valley Health Authority 558-60w

Patnick, Mr Irvine
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 153
Questions
Hospital catering, Privatisation 173w
Hospital waiting lists, Sheffield Health Authority 96w
Productivity 494
Rate limitation 659w
Residuary bodies, Public appointments 753-4w
Schools, Sports facilities 577w

Patten, Mr Chris, Minister of State for Overseas Development
Questions
Bophuthatswana, Overseas aid 33w, 428-9w
Cyprus, Educational aid 125w
Cyprus, Overseas aid 125w
Developing countries, Family planning 428w
Food aid, OECD countries 604-5w
Food aid from EC, Cereals 687w
Food & Agriculture Organisation, USA 293w
Nicaragua, Overseas aid 428w
Overseas aid, Population 430w
Overseas aid, Warships 32w
Science & technology research, Loughborough University 32-3w
Science & technology research, York University 32w
Southern Africa, Debts 429-30w

Patten, Mr John, Minister of State at the Home Office
Debates etc.
Bombings, Birmingham (16:02:88) 954-8
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 141-5, 147, 150, 152
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 609, 617, 622-5, 631-8
Questions
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Charities, Law reform 436w, 704w, 707-8w
Charities, Legislation 138-9w
Charities, Religious sects 704w
Crime, Barnsley 361w
Crime, Seaham 361w
Crime prevention, Nottingham 702w
Crime prevention, Private sector 702w
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board 543w, 707w
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board, Administrative delays 707w
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board, Police 544w
Disclosure of information, Trade unions 305w
Football, Hooliganism 438w
Forensic science, Dismissal 1138
Forensic science, Labour Party 1138
Gaming machines, Advisory services 304w
Homicide, Children 434w
Homicide, Life imprisonment 712-4w
Kidnapping, Insurance 545w
Local Development Agencies Development Fund, Finance 618w
Ministers' domestic visits, Basildon 708-9w
Miscarriages of justice, Court of appeal 705w
Miscarriages of justice, Home Affairs Select Committee 705w
Nuclear power stations, Fire services 436w
Offenders, Electronic surveillance 139-40w
Offensive weapons, Greater London 38w
Prisoners on remand, Remand in custody 1132
Public order offences 541w
Remand in custody 1132
Remand in custody, Community charge 1133
Road traffic offences, Greater London 542w
Skuse, Frank 701w, 1139
Skuse, Frank, Evidence 438-9w, 547w, 1138-9
Taxis, Crimes of violence 619-20w
Taxis, Homicide 767w
Youth custody, Alternatives to prison 709w

Pawsey, Mr James
Debates etc.
Consumer Arbitration Agreements Bill, Com (12:02:88) 671

Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1084
Questions
Cars, Retail trade 255-6w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88 186
Extracurricular activities, Fees & charges 683-4w
Inflation 331w
Official engagements, Little Lowford 688w
School discipline 583w, 808
Wolston, Official engagements 518w

Pay
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 100w
Coal mining 695-6
Dentists 135w
Doctors 135w
Juries 350w
Leader of the Opposition 657-8w
Married men 332w
Nurses 134-5w, 189w, 340w, 1147-8
Opposition Whips' Office 649w
Pharmacists 266-8w
Productivity 151w
Public expenditure 341w, 343w
Scotland 734-6w
Secretarial staff 134-5w
Service Children's Education Authority 383w
Speech therapists 266-8w
Teachers 578w

Pay settlements
Health service staff 115w, 497w
Nurses 185-6

PAYE
Tax evasion 422w

"Paying for Local Government Consultation Paper" 527-9w

Payments for Debt (Emergency Provisions) Act (Northern Ireland) 1971
Questions
393-5w

Peachey Property
Insider trading 621w

Peacock, Mrs Elizabeth
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 140, 142, 151
Questions
Community charges register, Voting rights 823-4
Drugs, APS 271w
Drugs, Licensing 271w
Entry clearances, Immigration controls 40w
Leeds-Bradford Airport, Public inquiries 31-2w, 132w
Management, Education 248w
Social security recipients 177

Peak Park Joint Planning Board
Local government elections 970-1
Public appointments 132-4w, 662w

Pedestrian crossings
Schools 46-7w

Peel, Robert 13-4

Pendry, Mr Tom
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 235-7
Questions
Chelsea Football Club, Planning inquiries 298w
Football, Hooliganism 964-5

Pens
Consumer protection 340-1

Pension funds
Company investigations 90w
Tax allowances 90w

Pensioners
Age allowances 266w
Arts 467w
Concessionary television licences 1141-2
Electricity tariffs 691-2
Invalid care allowances 493w
Investment income 188w
Personal income 171w, 180w
Population 179-80w
Social security benefits 203-4w
Television licences 303w, 707w

Pensions
Tax yields 720-1w
Women 625-6w

Per capita costs
Hospital patients 487w
Mental patients 95-6w
NHS 632w
Out-patient clinics 626w
Public expenditure 339w
Surgery 626w

Percentage for Arts schemes 466-7w

Performance indicators
NHS 191w, 353w, 403w

Performance related pay
Higher civil servants 812-3

Performance reviews
Civil servants 702-3

Periodicals
Privy council 58w

Persian Gulf
Merchant ships 423-4w
Minesweepers 758w
Western European Union 423w

Personal equity plans 340w
Tax allowances 87-9w

Personal income 93-4w
Household surveys 527-8w
Pensioners 171w, 180w

Personal pensions 168w
Members' pensions 658w

Personal records
Police 137-8w
Social security benefits 694-5w

Personal social services
AIDS 168w
Expenditure 264-6w
Northern Ireland 324w
Scotland 139-40w
Wales 223-4w

Personal tax allowances 333w
Income tax 493
Tax yields 417w

Perth
Housing construction 649w

Pest control
Gastropods 724-5w

Pesticides
Gastropods 724-5w
Safety standards 329-30w

Peterloo 361w
Social security benefits 186-8w
Social security recipients 269w

Petroleum exploration
North Sea oil 689-90

Pharmacies
Family practitioner committees 200-2w
Population 201-2w
Wales 598w

Pharmacists
Manpower 624-5w
Pay 266-8w

Philippines
Visas 303-4w

Photographic equipment
Production 531w

Pigmeat
Exports 675-6w
Monetary compensatory amounts 820
Wales 463w

Pigs
Animal breeding 58-62w

Pike, Mr Peter L
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1232
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1114-5
Questions
BBC 702-3w
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 690-1
European Regional Development Fund, EC grants & loans 146-7w
Hartley Hospital, Hospital closures 698w
Hospital consultants, Contracts of employment 556w
NHS finance 556w
NHS finance, Emergency planning 197w
Nurses, Geriatrics 624w
Official engagements 135w
Private patients, Administrative costs 623w
Public expenditure, Pay 343w
Remand in custody, Community charge 1133
St Mary's Hospital Manchester, Hospital closures 501
South Africa, Economic sanctions 425w
Sportsgrounds, Public order policing 663w
Student Awards Review Committee 571w
Surgery, NHS & private practice 623w

Pilgrim School Bedford
School closures 310w

Plain language
EC law 57w

Planning
Mental health community care 97w

Planning appeals 455w, 660w, 662w
Administrative delays 288w, 719w
Planning authorities 660w
Scotland 320w
Worthing Borough Council 19-20w

Planning authorities
National parks 971
Planning appeals 660w
Town & country planning 660w

Planning inquiries
Chelsea Football Club 298w
Hypermarkets 969-70

Planning permission 660w
Administrative delays 669w
Chelsea Football Club 962-3
Farm buildings 662w
Illuminated signs 21w
Property development 660w
Urban planning 961-2
Westminster pier 670w

Play groups 581w

Plutonium
Nuclear safeguards 530w
Transport of radioactive materials 590w

Plymouth Health Authority 184w

Points of order
Speaker's rulings & statements (08:02:88) 24, (10:02:88) 364, 366-7, 373, 473, (16:02:88) 827, 839-40, 925, 935-6, 944-6, (17:02:88) 1124

Poison pen letters (12:02:88) 607-25, 31-56

Poisons
Birds 61w

Police
Barnsley 362w
Computer applications 617-8w
Computer privacy 305w
Computers 728w
Criminal Injuries Compensation Board 544w
Domestic violence 65w
Ethnic minorities 704w
Firearms (Amendment) Bill 1987/88 1137-8
Hampshire 435-6w
Injuries 136w
Leicestershire 705w
London City Airport 41w
Manpower 620w, 1133
Northumberland 620w, 1133
Personal records 137-8w
Scotland 728w
West Yorkshire 1134

Police & Criminal Evidence Act 1984
Questions
1142-3
Crime prevention 1142

Police authorities
Rate precepts (08:02:88) 140-61

Police Authority for Northern Ireland (17:02:88) 977-96

Police community liaison committees
Isle of Wight 434w

Police Complaints Authority 303w

Police custody 703w
Fees & charges 138w
Prisoners on remand 435w, 703w
Young people 434-5w

Police detention (16:02:88) 925-49

Police Federation see Police Federation of England & Wales

Police Federation of England & Wales 617w

Police misconduct
Stalker, John 216w

Police national computer 35w, 617-8w
Government data network 721w
Scotland 728w

Police right of search
Offensive weapons 617w

Police stations 37-8w

Politicians
USA 85-6w

Pollution
Forests 775w

Pollution control
Sulphur dioxide 666-7w

Polychlorinated biphenyl
Land pollution 741w

Polytechnics & Colleges Funding Council 308-9w
Public appointments 309w

Pontefract Health Authority
Hospital beds 560w
Hospital consultants 559-60w
Nurses 560-1w
Public appointments 561w

Population
Clydesdale 142w, 656w
Overseas aid 430w

Pensioners 179-80w
Pharmacies 201-2w

Pornography
Telephones 350

Porter, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 299, 309, 311-2, 316, 321-2

Porter, Mr David
Questions
Pensioners, Population 179-80w

Portillo, Mr Michael, Under-Secretary of State for Health and Social Security
Debates etc.
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1201-4
Questions
Availability for work, Social security benefits disqualification 696-7w
Board & lodging charges, Social security recipients 113w
Capital rules 177
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Camberwell 698-700w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Civil service manpower 351w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Greenock 404w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices, Resignations 180-2w
Dept of Health & Social Security special investigators, Cost effectiveness 492w
Dept of Health & Social Security special investigators, Seaham 402w
Exceptional needs payments, Camberwell 700w
Exceptional needs payments, Expenditure 116w, 699w
Exceptional needs payments, Leicester 694w
Exceptional needs payments, North East region 500-2w
Exceptional needs payments, Social security recipients 205-6w
Family income 399w
Housing benefits, Lambeth 559w
Housing benefits, Local government social services 621w
Housing benefits, Private rented housing 347w
Housing benefits, Social security benefits rules 779w
Housing benefits, Social security reform 177, 775w
Housing benefits, Thamesmead Town 110w
Housing benefits, Wakefield District Council 347w
Means tested benefits, Social security recipients 185-6w
National insurance contributions 354w, 630-1w
National insurance contributions, Tax evasion 353-4w
National insurance credits, Expenditure 354w
NHS finance, National insurance contributions 778w
Office of Population Censuses & Surveys, Libraries 780w
Pay, Juries 350w
Resettlement units, Bishopbriggs 98w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Health & Social Security 554w
Social Fund, Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 181
Social security, Advisory services 566w
Social security benefits, Computer privacy 693-4w
Social security benefits, Personal records 694-5w
Social security benefits, Peterlee 186-8w
Social security benefits, Students 695w
Social security benefits uprating 176-7
Social security claims, Take-up 75w
Social security payments 177
Social security recipients 177
Social security recipients, Seaham 269w
Social security reform 180-1
Social security reform, Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 351-2w
Supplementary benefits, Cleveland 114w
Supplementary benefits, Darlington 113-4w
Supplementary benefits, Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 493w
Supplementary benefits, Dundee 495-6w
Supplementary benefits, Scotland 302-4w
Supplementary benefits, Social security recipients 348w
Unemployment benefits, Social security benefits disqualification 696w
War widows' pensions, Age allowances 494-5w

Ports
Hazardous materials 739w

Positive vetting
Civil servants 86w
Northern Ireland 86w
Rover Group 305w, 444w

Post Office 306w, 415w
Monopoly 248w

Postgraduate students
Student numbers 813

Poverty trap
Family credit 176w

Powell, Mr Ray
Debates etc.
Grandparents (Adoption of Children) Bill, 1R (17:02:88) 997-9
Questions
British Coal Corporation, Official engagements 20
Coal prices 687
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 170-1w
Valleys initiative, Ogwr valley 10
Welsh Grand Committee, Press conferences 746w

Powell, Mr William
Questions
British Steel Corporation, Privatisation 351
Economic growth 336w

Power station closures 589w

Power stations 589w
Air pollution control 689
Public inquiries 686

Prais, Sigbert 682-3w

Precept Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Greater Manchester Transport Authority) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(09:02:88) 287-307

Precept Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Inner London Education Authority) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(10:02:88) 453-76

Precept Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Merseyside Passenger Transport Authority) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(09:02:88) 308-28

Precept Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (West Yorkshire Passenger Transport Authority) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(09:02:88) 287-307

Pregnancy
AIDS 785w

Pre-school education
Northumberland 578w
Scotland 71w
Special education 578w

Prescott, Mr John
Questions
Electricity supply industry 688-9
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 508w
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 692-3

Prescription charges
Income 174w

Prescriptions
Costs 622-3w
Family doctors 555w
Fraud 622-3w

Press conferences
Welsh Grand Committee 746w

Press releases
Dept of Education & Science 373w

Preston
Unemployment 474-5w

Prestwich
Shopping centres 969-70

Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984
Questions
41w, 703w, 705w

Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(16:02:88) 925-49

Price, Sir David
Questions
Fawley A, Electricity generation 512w
Superconductivity, Industry 607w

Price increases
Electricity tariffs 690-3
Manufacturing industries 548w

Prices 340w
Manufactured goods 249w
Wheat 726w

Primarolo, Ms Dawn
Questions
"Family Fortunes" 175w
Financial institutions, "DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 259w
Homelessness, Bristol 972
Skuse, Frank 701w

Primary education
Burntwood 811-2
Cost per pupil 811
Scotland 481w

Primary health care
Gwent 8

Prime Minister 134-5w, 182

Prime Minister's Efficiency Unit 295w
Civil service 294-5w

Prime Minister's questions
NHS finance 182
Speaker's rulings & statements (09:02:88) 187, 188, (16:02:88) 822, 823, (18:02:88) 1145

Printing industry
Production 248w

Prison accommodation
Parkhurst Prison 1140
Remand in custody 362w

Prison education services
Local education authorities 40-1w

Prison medical services
Wormwood Scrubs 302w

Prison overcrowding 438w

Prison population
Maghaberry Prison 591w
Mentally ill 546w
Scotland 71w
Young offenders 71w

Prison riots
Costs 1139-40

Prison staff
Brixton Prison 1140
Chelmsford Prison 702w

Prisoners
Advisory services 542w
AIDS 620w
Marriage 437-8w
Road traffic offences 439-40w
USA 709-10w
Welsh language 701w

Prisoners on remand
Magistrates' courts 36w
Police custody 435w, 703w
Remand in custody 1132

Prisoners' release
Mentally ill 546w

Prisons
Bibles 619w
Crown immunity 704w
Fine defaulters 71w
Privatisation 361w, 704w, 1134
Speech therapy 541-2w
Visual arts 568w

Prisons Inspectorate see HM Inspectorate of Prisons

Private education
Northumberland 585w
Pupils 765-8w
South East region 765-8w

Private health services
Abortion 780w
France 187w
Germany 187w
NHS finance 623w
Wales 318-9w

Private investment
Public expenditure 722w
UK 2000 669-70w
Wales 3

Private Members' Bills (09:02:88) 186
Speaker's rulings & statements (12:02:88) 675

Private Members' motions (17:02:88) 996
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1261-320

Private patients 503w
Administrative costs 623w
NHS charges 498-500w

Private rented housing
Housing benefits 347w
Landlord & tenant 501-2

Private sector
Civil Service College 703
Crime prevention 702w
Inner city areas 258w

Privately owned mines
Opencast mining 684w

Privatisation 95w, 337w, 486-8
Austin Rover 251-2w
British Coal Corporation 509w, 512w
British Steel Corporation 147-8w, 341-2, 351-2
Crown Suppliers 126w
Electricity supply industry 507-8w
Hospital catering 173w
Laundries 173w
Local government services 289-90w
Metropolitan Police 436w
Nature reserves 127-8w
Nuclear power 507-8w
Prisons 361w, 704w, 1134
Property Services Agency 967
Roads 243w
Rolls-Royce Aeroengines 486-7
Royal ordnance factories 498
Tenders 92w
Water supply industry 461w

Privy council
Periodicals 58w

Proceeds of crime
Drug crimes 541w, 701w

Procurators fiscal
Sexual offences 321-2w
Tayside 321-2w

Procurement
House of Commons Library 17

Production quotas
Cereals 612w
Milk 726w

Productivity 335w, 494-5
Coal mining 693-4
Coal prices 687
Manufacturing industries 262-4w
Mining equipment 224-5w
Pay 151w

Professional qualifications
Accountants 647-8w
Job training scheme 151w

Profit sharing
Departmental leaflets 387w

Profitability 330w, 342w
Electricite de France 513w
Leyland Trucks 255w

"Project 2000" 176-7w

Property development
Demolition 660w
Planning permission 660w

Property Services Agency
Bradford 967
Cash limits 720w
Civil service manpower 967-8
Efficiency scrutinies 299-302w
Privatisation 967
Trading funds 967

Property transfer (11:02:88) 523
Heveningham hall 720w
Local government land 659w
Thamesmead Town 21w

Proprietary drugs
Generic prescribing 555w
Hospital doctors 352w

Prosecutions
Election offences 361w
Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981 616w
Old people's homes 98w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 223w, 685w
School violence 66w
Stalker, John 291w
Tax evasion 421w

Prosthetics
Administrative delays 200w

Protest
Ministry of Defence 1144

PSA see Property Services Agency

Public access 720w, 780w

Public Accounts Commission
Expenditure 44w

Public appointments
District health authorities 167w
Electricity Council 509w
Grimsby Health Authority 491w
Inner London Education Authority 308-9w
Licensed conveyancers 365w
London Regional Passengers' Committee 743-4w
National parks 133w
NHS Management Board 206-7w
Peak Park Joint Planning Board 132-4w, 662w
Polytechnics & Colleges Funding Council 309w
Pontefract Health Authority 561w
Regional health authorities 167w
Residuary bodies 753-4w
Universities Funding Council 217w
Wales 597-600w

Public bodies
Accounting 420w

Public corporations 415w
Accounting 420w

Public expenditure 341w, 489
Derelict land grants 671w
Education 342w
Government departments 770w
Hospitals 341w
Inflation 331-2w
NHS 341w
Opposition parties 657w
Pay 341w, 343w
Per capita costs 339w
Private investment 722w
Scotland 773-4w
UK 2000 669-70w
Wales 319w

"Public Expenditure White Paper" 773-4w

Public footpaths 295w

Public houses
Smoking 190w

Public inquiries
Hinkley Point B 345w
Hinkley Point C 686-7
Judges 364w
Leeds-Bradford Airport 31-2w, 132w
M3-M27 link 356w
Power stations 686

Public investment 332w, 338-9w, 343w

Public libraries 465-6w
Nottinghamshire 151w

Public order offences 541w

Public order policing
Parkhead stadium 653w
Sportsgrounds 663w

Public petitions
Community charge (10:02:88) 477
Motorway service areas (08:02:88) 161

Public records
Official secrets 241w
Waldheim, Kurt 750w

Public sector assets
Nuclear power 226w
Overseas investment 336w

Public sector borrowing 247w

Public sector borrowing requirement 335w, 496

Public service pensions
Retail price index 688w

Public service vehicles
Bus crews 740w
Driving licences 613-4w, 740w
Motor vehicle testing 741w

Publicity
Computer privacy 618-9w

Publishing 350
Industrial production 350
Research 350w
Stalker, John 824

Pullen, Jason
Standing Order No 20 applications (10:02:88) 365

Punishment attacks
Criminal injuries compensation 86w
Northern Ireland 86w

Pupil records
Disclosure of information 309-10w

Pupil-teacher ratios 580w

Pupils
Inner London boroughs 162w
Private education 765-8w
Swimming 158-9w

Purbeck
Unemployment 10

Quin, Ms Joyce
Questions
Electricity tariffs, Competition 506-7w
Forests 480w
Forests, Northumberland 480w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w
Nature Conservancy Council, Official engagements 665w
Tax allowances, Forestry 95w
Universities 580w

Racal Tacticom 305w, 425-6w, 437w

Racial discrimination
Local authorities 971-2

Radiation hazards
HMS Resolution 756-7w
Rain 238w
Safety standards 225w

Radiation protection
Ionizing radiation 771w

Radice, Mr Giles
Questions
Business statements 506

Radio
Broadcast journalism 40w
Broadcasting controls 362w
Drama 708w
Radio frequencies 40w
Rural areas 39w

Radio Authority 39-40w

Radio frequencies
Radio 40w

Radioactive waste disposal
European Commission 461-2w
Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive 666w
Seas & oceans 286w

Radioactive wastes
EC action 753w
European Commission 287w
European Parliament 286-7w
Sellafield 287w
Transport of hazardous materials 286-7w

Radioactivity
Agricultural research 62w, 465w
Cumbria 62w
Land pollution 465w
Lasers 695-6w
Sheep 369w

Radiotherapy 782-4w
Southend Hospital 174-5w, 496-7w, 699w

RAF see Air force

RAF Lakenheath
Official engagements 688w

Raffan, Mr Keith
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 831
Questions
Community charge, Mobile homes 81w
Regional aid, Wales 2
School meals, Wales 6-7

Railway freight transport
Government grants 453w

Railway Inspectorate 412w
Railway safety 244w

Railway land
Trespass 357w

Railway network
Channel tunnel 246w

Railway safety
Railway Inspectorate 244w

Railway stations
London Underground 3w
Trains 453-4w

Railway travel
South East region 355-6w

Rain
Radiation hazards 238w
West Yorkshire 238w

Raison, Rt Hon Timothy
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1051-5
Questions
Capital rules 177

Ramsden, Michael 384-6w

Randall, Mr Stuart
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 849-51, 859, 863-7, 888, 892-7
Questions
Genetics, Blood tests 1137
Immigration, Members 1136
Immigration controls, Genetics 708w

Rape
Abortion 111w

Rate increases
Cleveland County Council 347
Uniform business rate 457-8w

Rate limitation 382w, 524-5w, 659w
Basildon District Council 665w
Local government expenditure 526-8w

Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximums) (Rates) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(18:02:88) 1208-52

Rate precepts 218-20w
Fire services (08:02:88) 140-61
Greater Manchester Passenger Transport Executive (09:02:88) 287-307
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 453-76
Merseyside Passenger Transport Executive (09:02:88) 308-28, 739w
Police authorities (08:02:88) 140-61
West Yorkshire Passenger Transport Executive (09:02:88) 287-307

Rate rebates
Dundee 70w

"Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary (No 3) Report 1986/87" (17:02:88) 1109-21

"Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary (No 4) Report 1983/84" 754-5w

"Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary (No 4) Report 1984/85" (17:02:88) 1109-21

Rate support grants 754-5w
Inner London Education Authority 308w
Scotland 731w

Rates & rating 455-6w
Domestic rates 70w
Electorate 369w
Farm buildings 462w
Income support scheme 489-90w
London Boroughs Association 663w

Rathbone, Mr Tim
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1156
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 361
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 275

Reading Borough Council
Training 315-6w

Rear seat belts
Car hire 616w

Recording equipment
Production 532w

Recruitment
Nurses 167w

Recycling
Paper 537w

Redmond, Mr Martin
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 116-7
Questions
Health 175
Royal Observer Corps 440w

Redundancy
Iron & steel industry 533w
Manchester City Council 14

Redundant churches 15
Church Commissioners 14-5

Redwood, Mr John
Debates etc.
Structure plans, Berkshire (11:02:88) 599-601
Questions
Disposable income 497
Town & country planning 963

Rees, Rt Hon Merlyn
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1161
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 279-82
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 30
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 987-8
Questions
Community charges register, Electoral register 961
Skuse, Frank 701w

Referenda
Chile 292w

"Reform of Social Security White Paper" 786-7w

Refugees
Palestine 691w
South Africa 236w

Regional aid 346
Bridgend 352
"DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 252w
Dundee 483-4w
European Regional Development Fund 253w
Regional selective assistance 533-6w
Strathclyde 368w
Tayside 483-4w
Wales 1-3, 6, 352, 686-7w
York 534w

Regional arts associations
Arts Council grants 570w

Regional development grants
Scotland 483w
Wales 75-6w, 363-4w

Regional health authorities
Expenditure 698w
Hospital consultants 272-4w
Hospital patients 272-4w
Hospital waiting lists 489w
NHS finance 179-81w
Public appointments 167w

Regional selective assistance 1-2, 252-3w, 363w, 534w, 686-7w
Employment opportunities 306w
Greenock 368w
Regional aid 533-6w
Wales 76-7w, 517w

Reid, Dr John
Debates etc.
Bombings, Birmingham (16:02:88) 955
Business statements (18:02:88) 1162-3
Questions
Community charge 664w
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 508w
Hospital waiting lists 277-8w
Immigration, Members 710w
Nurses, Pay settlements 185-6
Public investment 338-9w

Religious education 574w

Religious sects
Charities 704w

Relocation of employees
Wales 76-7w

Remand in custody 1132, 1134
Community charge 1133
Magistrates' courts 36-7w
Prison accommodation 362w
Prisoners on remand 1132

Rent arrears 667w
Council house rents 973
Local authorities 973

Rent control
Thamesmead Town 22w

Rent increases
Housing associations 669w
Housing subsidies 527w

Rented housing
Skilled workers 456w

Renton, Mr Tim, Minister of State at the Home Office
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 847-921 passim
Questions
AIDS, Immigration 546w
BBC 702-3w
Begum, Salema, Immigration applications 1136-7
British citizenship, Departmental correspondence 546-7w
Computer privacy, National security 619w
Computer privacy, Publicity 618-9w
Concessionary television licences, Pensioners 1141-2
Deportation, Liverpool 706w
Ejoh, Orkechurkwu Emmanuel, Immigrant detainees 138w
Entry clearances, Immigration controls 40w
Genetics, Blood tests 362w, 1137
Immigrant detainees 215-6w
Immigrant detainees, Ethnic groups 39w
Immigration, Members 710w, 1135-6
Immigration, Tower Hamlets Borough Council 710w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Administrative delays 136w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Civil service manpower 137w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Languages 543w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Overtime 543-4w
Immigration appeals 438w
Immigration applications 215w
Immigration controls, Genetics 708w
Immigration rules 709w
Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981, Prosecutions 616w
Independent Broadcasting Authority, Official engagements 709w
Leicester, Home Office 437w
Meyer, Gene, Immigration controls 545-6w
Migration, Northern Ireland 711w
Ministers' visits abroad, Costs 215w
Palestine Liberation Organisation, Training 437w
Passports, Administrative delays 707w
Radio, Broadcast journalism 40w
Radio, Broadcasting controls 362w
Radio, Drama 708w
Radio, Radio frequencies 40w
Radio, Rural areas 39w
"Sex", Terrence Higgins Trust 620-1w
Television, Broadcasting controls 703w
Television licences, Pensioners 303w, 707w
Television licences, Students 38w
Television programmes, Army in Northern Ireland 712w
Temporary immigrants, Immigration applications 137w
Visas, Immigration applications 140w
Visas, Philippines 303-4w
Work permits, Law reform 712w

Representation of the People Act 1983
Questions
361w

Reprography
Copyright 145w

Republic of Ireland
Anglo-Irish Intergovernmental Conference 149w, 328w, 604w
Contracts 166w
Extradition 164-5w, 685-6w
Immigration 711w
Military aircraft 318w, 776w
Ministerial statements 325w
Nuclear power 512w
Rescue services 755-6w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 391w
Take-up of employment 718w
Youth employment schemes 717-8w

Rescue services
Air force 238-9w, (11:02:88) 524-98
Costs 739w
Helicopters 387w
Republic of Ireland 755-6w

Research
Higher education 47w
Inner London Education Authority 682w
Publishing 350w

Research councils
Universities 581w

Research finance
France 582w
Science & technology research 163w, 813-4
West Germany 582w

Resettlement Review Advisory Steering Group 182w

Resettlement units
Bishopbriggs 98w
Homelessness 182w

Residential care
Elderly 65w
Local government staff 696w
Scotland 729-30w
Wales 6886w

Residuary bodies
Annual reports 658w
Public appointments 753-4w

Resignations
Army 83w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 180-2w
District health authorities 168-9w
London Docklands Development Corporation 127-8w
National Curriculum Mathematics Working Group 682-3w

Restart programme
Cheshire 150w
Interviews 470w

Restrictive labour practices 204w

Retail price index
National savings 567w
Public service pensions 688w
Retirement pensions 272w
Social security benefits 114-5w, 247-8w, 272w, 349w, 722w, 779-80w, 821-2, 1146
Social security payments 494w
Voluntary organisations 266w

Retail prices
Butter 676-7w

Retail trade 442w
Cars 255-6w
Compact discs 344
Electronic equipment 33-4w
Telecommunications industry 339

Retirement
Teachers 310w

Retirement age
Women 625-6w

Retirement pensions 173w
Age addition 98-9w
Married women 99w
Retail price index 272w

Rhodes James, Mr Robert
Questions
Business statements 506
Higher education 809-10
Waldheim, Kurt, Nazi war crimes 519-20w, 750w
Waldheim, Kurt, Public records 750w
Waldheim, Kurt, United Nations 750-1w

Rhys Williams, Sir Brandon
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 460-1
Questions
Budget, EC Finance Council 419w
Diplomatic service, Kensington & Chelsea 55w
Family income 399w
Health services, Expenditure 264-6w
NHS, Scotland 139-40w
NHS, Wales 223-4w
NHS finance, Northern Ireland 324w
Uniform business rate, Rate increases 457-8w

Urban programme 129-31w

Richardson, Ms Jo
Questions
Sexual harassment, Attorney-General 291w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Education & Science 158w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Employment 73-4w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Health & Social Security 554w
Sexual harassment, Dept of the Environment 20w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Trade & Industry 33w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Transport 1-2w
Sexual harassment, Foreign & Commonwealth Office 55w
Sexual harassment, Home Office 302w
Sexual harassment, Ministry of Agriculture 61w
Sexual harassment, Ministry of Defence 317w
Sexual harassment, Northern Ireland Office 323-4w
Sexual harassment, Scottish Office 320w
Sexual harassment, Treasury 92w

Richmond house 522-3w

Riddick, Mr Graham
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 834
Questions
Community charge, Government grants to local authorities 456w
EC internal trade, Trade barriers 256w
Margam mine 10
Privatisation 337w
Urban planning, Planning permission 961-2

Ridley, Rt Hon Nicholas, Secretary of State for the Environment
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1208-14, 1216, 1218-9, 1242
Questions
Boxing, Safety 287w
Community charge 961, 976
Community charge, Departmental correspondence 960-1
Community charges register, Electoral register 961
Dept of the Environment, Cash limits 128-9w
Dept of the Environment, Civil service dispersal 287w
Domestic rates 960
Economic League, Dept of the Environment 297w
Football 965
Football, Alcoholic drinks 965
Football, Hooliganism 964-5
Homelessness, Bed & breakfast accommodation 661w
Homelessness, Bristol 972
Housing Corporation 966-7
Local government expenditure 525-6w
Local government services, Direct labour departments 461w
Local government services, Privatisation 289-90w
National parks, Planning authorities 971
Nature reserves 959-60
Nature reserves, Land ownership & tenure 959
Peak Park Joint Planning Board, Local government elections 970-1
Rate limitation 382w, 524-5w
Rate limitation, Local government expenditure 526-8w
Rate support grants 754-5w
Sewers, Fulmer 659w
Sexual harassment, Dept of the Environment 20w

Skiing, Death 458w
Sportsgrounds, Public order policing 663w
Storms, Government grants to local authorities 522w
Water authorities, Official engagements 296w, 669w
Water authorities, Water pollution 669w

Rifkind, Rt Hon Malcolm, Secretary of State for Scotland
Questions
A74, Road works 477w, 540w
Breast cancer, Scotland 483w
Ministers' visits abroad, Scottish Office 221w
Multiple occupation, Fire escapes 321-2w
Parliamentary constituencies, Scotland 734w
Procurators fiscal, Sexual offences 321-2w
Public expenditure, Scotland 773-4w
Residential care, Elderly 65w
Sexual harassment, Scottish Office 320w

Right of Privacy Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 676

Right to buy
Council house sales 296w
Departmental publications 670w

Rights of way
Land ownership & tenure 19w
Local government expenditure 450-1w

Risley Remand Centre
Body searches 544-5w
Medical treatments 620w

Ritblat, John 621w

River Clyde
Naval bases 737w
Nuclear submarines 736-8w

River Mersey 739w

Road accidents
Buses 410-1w
Cycling 412-3w
Motorways 616w
Transport of radioactive materials 241w
Winchester bypass 356w

Road construction
A27 742-3w
Ashbourne bypass 452w
Bypasses 451w
Contracts 2-4w
Disley bypass 748w
M20 742w
M62 748w

Road damage
Axle weights 245w

Road finance
Capital investment 358-60w
Local government expenditure 358-60w

Road safety 242-3w

Road tax
Tax evasion 452-3w

Road tolls
Severn bridge 9, 450w

Road traffic
Car ownership 357w
Greater London 614w
M25 614-5w, 742w
Motorways 741-2w
Surrey 357w

Road traffic offences
Greater London 542w
Prisoners 439-40w

Road works
A74 477w, 540w
Contracts 65w, 119-20w
Scotland 65w
Wales 119-20w

Roads
Privatisation 243w

Roberts, Mr Allan
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 209, 215, 216
Questions
Defence land, Horse riding 384w
Exhaust emissions 381w
Housing associations 966
NHS administration, Costs 166w
Public expenditure, Pay 341w
Water pollution, EC law 380-1w
Water pollution, Yorkshire Water Authority 379-80w

Roberts, Mr Wyn, Minister of State for Wales
Questions
Bus services, Wales 77w
Bypasses, Wales 77w
Education, Clwyd 463w
Education, Expenditure 745w
Road works, Contracts 119-20w
School meals, Wales 6-7
Teacher training, Wales 224w
Welsh Arts Council, Official engagements 11

Robertson, Mr George
Questions
Armilla patrol, Members' correspondence 756w
Armilla patrol, Merchant ships 446w, 448-9w
EC internal trade, Conferences 536-7w
EC internal trade, Employment 537w
Income tax, Personal tax allowances 493
Persian Gulf, Merchant ships 423-4w
Scottish Special Housing Association 321w

Roe, Mrs Marion, Under-Secretary of State for the Environment
Debates etc.
Structure plans, Berkshire (11:02:88) 603-6
Questions
Badgers, Nature conservation 379w
Caravan sites, Local authorities 458-60w
Council house rents, London boroughs 524w
Council house waiting lists 22-4w
Council house waiting lists, London boroughs 22w
Empty housing, Vale Royal 297w
Environment protection, Disclosure of information 462w
European Year of the Environment, Environment protection 523-4w
Hazardous wastes, Seaham 379w
Heveningham hall, Property transfer 720w
"Home Improvement Policy Consultation Paper" 719w
Homelessness 661w
Homelessness, Bed & breakfast accommodation 663w
Homelessness, Departmental leaflets 22w, 661w
Homelessness, Greater London 296-7w
Homelessness, Households 661w
House renovation grants, Age 457w
Housing associations, Finance 379w
Housing associations, Northumberland 520-1w
Housing associations, Rent increases 669w
Housing construction, Housing finance 456-7w
Housing improvement, Housing Corporation 662w
Listed buildings, Codes of practice 521w
Litter, Waste disposal 666w
Multiple occupation 665w
Nature Conservancy Council, Official engagements 665w
Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive, Official engagements 671w

Nuclear Industry Radioactive Waste Executive, Radioactive waste disposal 666w
Public footpaths 295w
Radioactive waste disposal, European Commission 461-2w
Radioactive waste disposal, Seas & oceans 286w
Radioactive wastes, EC action 753w
Radioactive wastes, European Commission 287w
Radioactive wastes, European Parliament 286-7w
Radioactive wastes, Sellafield 287w
Rented housing, Skilled workers 456w
Rural areas, Development Commission 753w
Rural areas, Government assistance 461w
Sites of Special Scientific Interest, Nature Conservancy Council 296w
South West Housing Society, Government grants 5-6w
Sulphur dioxide, Pollution control 666-7w
Thamesmead Town, Greenwich 21w
Thamesmead Town, Property transfer 21w
Thamesmead Town, Rent control 22w
Thamesmead Town, Tenants' rights 22w
Tree conservation 673w
Urban development corporations, Telford 666w
Waste disposal, Hazardous wastes 297w
Waste disposal, West Yorkshire 296w
Water, Infant foods 571-2w
Water authorities, External financing limits 752-3w
Water authorities, Official engagements 669w
Water pollution, EC law 380-1w
Water pollution, Yorkshire Water Authority 379-80w
Water supply, Water charges 288w
Water supply disconnections 288w
Water supply industry, Privatisation 461w
Water supply industry, Sewers 459-61w

Rogers, Mr Allan
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 530, 536-43, 551, 555, 563, 570, 587-90, 592
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 945
Private notice question point of order (08:02:88) 24
Questions
Coal mine closures, South Wales 5-6

Rolls-Royce Aeroengines 257w
Privatisation 486-7
Shares 486

Romania
European Security Conference 233w
Historic buildings 425w

Rooker, Mr Jeff
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1243-5
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1112-3
Questions
Community charge 961
Finance Act 1984, Companies 419-20w
Industrial development, Birmingham 969
Social security benefits, Retail price index 115w

Ross, Mr Ernie
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 833
Questions
Universities Funding Council, Scotland 579w

Ross, Mr William
Questions
Cars, Northern Ireland 165w, 284w
Extradition, Republic of Ireland 164-5w
Salmon, Fishery protection 325-6w

Rost, Mr Peter
Questions
Copyright, Reprography 145w
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 508w
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 692

Rotherham
Exceptional needs payments 175w

Rougier, Jeremy 127-8w

Rover Group
Positive vetting 305w, 444w

Rowe, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 104
Public petitions, Motorway service areas (08:02:88) 161
Self-employed (15:02:88) 725, 740, 744, 752-3
Training (16:02:88) 829
Questions
Film, Voluntary organisations 500
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 180
Teachers, Conditions of employment 53w

Rowlands, Mr Ted
Questions
South Wales, Government assistance 5
WINvest 363-4w

Royal Association for Disability & Rehabilitation 615w

Royal College of General Practitioners 353w

Royal Observer Corps 440w

Royal Opera House 568-70w

Royal ordnance factories
Privatisation 498

Royal prerogative
Intelligence services 39w

Royal Shakespeare Company 568-70w

Royal Society for Mentally Handicapped Children & Adults 170-1

Royal Ulster Constabulary 83w, 216w, 723-4w, 824, 1146-7
Inquiries 46w, 165w, 394w, 499, 502, (17:02:88) 977-96, 1146-7
Manpower 674w
Ministerial statements 325w, (17:02:88) 977-96
Prosecutions 223w, 685w
Republic of Ireland 391w
Sick leave 85-6w

RSC see Royal Shakespeare Company

RUC see Royal Ulster Constabulary

Ruddock, Mrs Joan
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1049-51
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1212
Questions
AIDS, Immigration 546w
Bombings, Birmingham 436-7w
Buses, Crimes of violence 412w
Community care, NHS finance 183w
Housing associations, Finance 379w
Inner London Education Authority 575w
Meyer, Gene, Immigration controls 545-6w
NHS finance, South East region 213w
Official engagements 690w

Rumbold, Mrs Angela, Minister of State for Education & Science
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1095-6, 1098
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 472, (17:02:88) 1068-73
Questions
City technology colleges 574w
City technology colleges, Wolverhampton 574w
Curriculum 572w
Dept of Education & Science, Press releases 373w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Leicestershire 573w
Educational administration, Inner London boroughs 371-2w
Educational administration, Local education authorities 572-3w
English education 581-2w
Examinations 573-4w
Examinations, Curriculum 371w, 572w
First Division Association, Official engagements 574w, 812
General Certificate of Secondary Education 575-6w
General Certificate of Secondary Education, Examinations 163w
Higher civil servants, Performance related pay 812-3
Inner London Education Authority 308w, 575w
Inner London Education Authority, Educational standards 575w
Inner London Education Authority, Expenditure 218-20w
Inner London Education Authority, Rate support grants 308w
Inner London Education Authority, Sports 162w
Literacy, Educational finance 807
National Curriculum Mathematics Working Group, Resignations 682-3w
Pupil records, Disclosure of information 309-10w
Pupils, Swimming 158-9w
Religious education 574w
School admission, Rural areas 819
School discipline 583w, 808
School leaving, Further education 582w
School leaving, Literacy 807
Schools, Rural areas 819
Schools, Swimming 159w
Schools, Water safety 158w
Sex education, Secondary education 581w
Sexual harassment, Dept of Education & Science 158w
Teachers, Conditions of employment 53w
Teachers, Degrees 371w
Teachers, Educational standards 582-3w
Teachers, Industrial disputes 371w
Teachers, Mathematics education 160w
Teachers, Pay 578w
Teachers, Retirement 310w
Teachers, Trade union membership 371w
Teachers, Trade unions 578w, 581w

Run of the river schemes 319-20w

Runcorn 74w

Rural areas
Development Commission 288w, 753w
Government assistance 461w
Northern Ireland 592w
Private Members' motions (19:02:88) 1261-320
Radio 39w
School admission 819
Schools 819

Rural development 288w, 461w, (19:02:88) 1261-320

Rural transport innovation grant scheme 307w

Ryan, Michael
Firearms 304w

Sackville, Mr Tom
Questions
Coal prices, Electricity tariffs 688
Nuclear Installations Inspectorate, Manpower 468w

Safety
Boxing 287w

Safety belts
Buses 411w

Safety standards
Ambulance services 409w
EC action 260w
Pesticides 329-30w
Radiation hazards 225w
Tyre tread depths 749w

Sainsbury, Mr Tim, Under-Secretary of State for Defence Procurement
Debates etc.
Clyde Submarine Base, Fraud (08:02:88) 163-8
Questions
Armoured fighting vehicles, Turkey 317w
Arms exports, Turkey 317-8w
Atomic Weapons Research Establishment, Defence research 82-3w
Atomic Weapons Research Establishment, Manpower 444-5w
British Nuclear Fuels, Arms control 240w
Chemical weapons, Animal experiments 538w
Defence, USA 383-4w
Defence contracts, Shipping accidents 446-7w
Defence procurement, Altonjet 82w
Defence procurement, Moores Wallisdown 82w
Defence procurement, USA 755w
Defence research, Educational institutions 82w
Defence research, London University 537-8w
DROPS, Defence equipment 758-9w
Economic League, Ministry of Defence 318w
European fighter aircraft 84w
European fighter aircraft, F18 aircraft 84w
European fighter aircraft, West Germany 84w
Exservicemen, Nuclear weapons tests 83-4w, 757-8w
Ministry of Defence, Civil service manpower 446w
NATO, Defence equipment 613w
Nuclear weapons 755w
Service Children's Education Authority, Pay 383w
Sexual harassment, Ministry of Defence 317w
Trident, Atomic Weapons Research Establishment 537w
Trident, Defence contracts 239w
Trident, Defence procurement 239w
Trident submarines, Sea transport 448w
Trident submarines, Shipping accidents 447-8w, 539w
Tritium, Chapelcross power station 240w

St Andrew's Hospital Norwich 692w

St Bede's School Balornock
School closures 729w

St Boniface Down 551w

St Christopher & Nevis
Parliamentary gifts (09:02:88) 169

St George's Hill Weybridge Estate Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

St James' Hospital Portsmouth
Mental patients 270w

St Mary's Hospital Manchester
Hospital closures 501

St Peter's Gaelic Athletics Association Club 397w

St Tydfil's Hospital 5

St Vincent House 381w

Salford Health Authority
Mental patients 406-7w

Salmon
Fish farming 730-1w
Fishery protection 325-6w
Northern Ireland 325-6w
Scotland 730-1w
Seals 731w

Salmond, Mr Alex
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1166
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 256, 260
Questions
Business statements 512
Coal, South of Scotland Electricity Board 694
Consultants, Business 346-7
Edinburgh University, Higher education admission 816
Jenkins of Hillhead, Rt Hon Lord 496-7
Student Awards Review Committee 432w
Student grants 432w
University finance 431-2w

Sampson, Colin 165w, (17:02:88) 977-96

Satellite communications
Competition 608-10w

Sayeed, Mr Jonathan
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 528, 533, 537, 538, 542
Questions
Immigration, Members 1136
Nurses 500-1
Public expenditure 489
South West Housing Society, Government grants 5-6w

Schedule D income tax (15:02:88) 719-54

Schizophrenia
Expenditure 561-2w
Hospital discharges 561w
Mental patients 639w

School administration
Devon 573w
Educational finance 815

School admission
Greater London 53-6w
Rural areas 819
Secondary education 47-8w

School buildings
Northumberland 579w
Scotland 69-70w

School closures
Pilgrim School Bedford 310w
St Bede's School Balornock 729w
Scotland 688w, 728-9w

School discipline 583w, 808

School governors 579w

School leaving
Further education 582w
Literacy 807
Take-up of employment 231w

School leaving certificates 583w

School libraries 160-1w

School meals
Fees & charges 583w
Nutrition & health 6
Wales 6-7

School nurses
Scotland 142-3w

School population
Scotland 481w

School uniforms 583w

School violence
Dundee 66w
Prosecutions 66w
Scotland 66w

Schools
Barnsley 373w
Clydesdale 63-4w
Easington 48w
Fees & charges 808-9
Government grants to local authorities 69-70w
Nurses 283-4w
Official engagements 584w
Official visits 219w
Parental contributions 808-9
Pedestrian crossings 46-7w
Rural areas 819
Sports facilities 577w
Swimming 159w
Water safety 158w

Schools & parents
Education 820-1

Science & technology research
Education & industry 254-5w
Expenditure 255w
Fast reactors 507w
High technology (19:02:88) 1321-2
Loughborough University 32-3w
Research finance 163w, 813-4
Space technology 248-9w
York University 32w

Science budget 571w

Science Museum 467w

Scope of debate
Speaker's rulings & statements (08:02:88) 47, 51, 55-9, 69, 83, 127, (09:02:88) 323, (12:02:88) 639, (15:02:88) 760, (16:02:88) 890, 908, (17:02:88) 1102, 1105, 1116-7, (18:02:88) 1234, 1238, 1242

Scotland
AIDS 64-5w
Breast cancer 483w
Brucellosis 223w
Cancer 773w
Capital investment 143-4w
Care proceedings 143w
Cervical cancer 772-3w
Community charge 478w, 585w
Community charge rebates 780-1w
Community charges register 63w
Community education 731w
Criminal records 539w
Death 654-6w
Decriminalisation 64w
Domestic violence 65w
Dyslexia 732w
Electoral register 774w
Employment by sector 733-4w
Epilepsy 70w
Eye tests 732w
Fine defaulters 71w
Fisheries 729w
Forestry 775w
Gaming machines 476w
Health insurance 143w
Health service staff 141-2w
Higher education colleges 370w
Homelessness 65-6w, 68-70w
Hospital beds 320w, 482-4w
Hospital catering 655w
Hospital waiting lists 482w
Hospitals 482w
Housing Corporation 774w
Housing finance 144w
Income support scheme 404w
Languages education 367-8w, 477w, 654w

Legal aid 477w
Multiple occupation 321-2w
NHS 139-40w, 221w
NHS finance 322-4w, 479w, 539-40w
Nurses 480w
Nursing homes 65w
Parliamentary constituencies 734w
Pay 734-6w
Personal social services 139-40w
Planning appeals 320w
Police 728w
Police national computer 728w
Pre-school education 71w
Primary education 481w
Prison population 71w
Public expenditure 773-4w
Rate support grants 731w
Regional development grants 483w
Residential care 729-30w
Road works 65w
Salmon 730-1w
School buildings 69-70w
School closures 688w, 728-9w
School nurses 142-3w
School population 481w
School violence 66w
Seals 731w
Sheep 369w
Social security claims 75w
Student grants 369w
Students 373-4w
Supplementary benefits 502-4w
Surgery 656-7w
Teachers 481w
Telephones 70-1w
Test tube babies 654w
Unemployment 75w
Unemployment benefits 471w
Universities 576-8w
Universities Funding Council 579w
University finance 576w, 809
Veterinary services 221-2w
Women's employment 733w
Youth training scheme 479w

Scott, Mr Nicholas, Minister of State for Social Security and the Disabled
Debates etc.
Access to Medical Reports Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 664-6
Optical Appliances (Blind & Partially Sighted Persons) Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 669
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1175-80
Questions
Age allowances, Pensioners 266w
Artificial Limb & Appliance Centres Review 203w
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 626-8
Census of population, Community charge 695w
Child benefit, Family income 777w
Child benefit, Social security benefits uprating 346-7w
Chronically Sick & Disabled Persons Act 1970 191w
Community charge rebates, Scotland 780-1w
Community charge rebates, Young people 622w
Deaf, Telephone exchanges 214w, 781-2w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 184w
Diets, Supplementary benefits 182w
Elderly, Heating 187-8w
Family credit, Disclosure of information 176w
"Family Fortunes" 175w
Handicap benefits, Social security payments 348w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 170, 170w, 171, 171w, 172, 179-80, 554w
Handicapped, Discrimination 188-9w
Hospital waiting lists 629-30
Hospitals, West Midlands 628-9
Income support scheme, Handicap benefits 630w
Income support scheme, Housing benefits 630w
Income support scheme, Rates & rating 489-90w
Income support scheme, Scotland 404w
Income support scheme, Social security recipients 113w
Income support scheme, Social security reform 630w
Information technology, Dept of Health & Social Security 174w
Invalid care allowances, Availability for work 627-8w
Invalid care allowances, Pensioners 493w
Invalid care allowances, Social security recipients 406w, 628w
Medical treatments, Administrative delays 199-200w
Ministerial duties, Handicapped 110w
National insurance contributions, Employees' contributions 205w
NHS finance 629-30
Pensioners, Investment income 188w
Pensioners, Personal income 171w, 180w
Pensioners, Population 179-80w
Pensioners, Social security benefits 203-4w
Personal pensions 168w
Prosthetics, Administrative delays 200w
Resettlement units, Homelessness 182w
Retirement age, Women 625-6w
Retirement pensions 173w
Retirement pensions, Age addition 98-9w
Retirement pensions, Married women 99w
Retirement pensions, Retail price index 272w
Rotherham, Exceptional needs payments 175w
Severe weather payments 170
Severe weather payments, Grimsby 492w
Social Fund, Debts written off 490w
Social Fund, Expenditure 401w
Social Fund, Loans 697w
Social Fund, Social workers 214w
Social Security Act 1986 179w
Social security appeals tribunals, Administrative delays 178w
Social security benefits, Retail price index 114-5w, 247-8w, 349w, 779-80w
Social security benefits, Social security claims 174w
Social security benefits, Voluntary organisations 266w
Social security benefits, Young people 189-90w
Social security claims, Administrative delays 186w
Social Security Management Board 403-4w
Social security payments, Retail price index 494w
Social security reform 786-7w
Social security reform, Means tested benefits 177w
Supplementary benefits, Social security benefits uprating 786w
Unemployment benefits, Occupational pensions 191w
Unemployment benefits, Social security benefits disqualification 183-4w
Winter Warmth Line, Advisory services 170
Young people, Social security recipients 115w

Scottish Development Agency
Clydebank 480w
Shaw Medical Centre 320-1w

Scottish Education Department 71w

Scottish Education Dept see Scottish Education Department

Scottish Fire Service Training School
Complaints 652-3w
Inquiries 652-3w
Interviews 652-3w

Scottish health boards
Hospital closures 730w
Neonatal mortality 650-1w

Scottish Office 751-2w
Ministers' visits abroad 221w
Sexual harassment 320w

Scottish Special Housing Association 144w, 321w, 732w

Screening
Breast cancer 556w, 628-30w
Cancer 75w
Cervical cancer 772-3w
Wales 75w

SDA see Scottish Development Agency

Sea rescue 238-9w, 739w

Sea transport
Trident submarines 448w

Seabees
Crime 361w
Dept of Health & Social Security special investigators 402w
Fraud 469w
Hazardous wastes 379w, 566-7w
Social security benefits 186-8w
Social security recipients 269w

Seals
Fish farming 731w
Licensing 731w
Salmon 731w
Scotland 731w

Seas & oceans
Radioactive waste disposal 286w

Secondary education
Cumbria 813
School admission 47-8w
Sex education 581w

"Secret Society" 144-5w
BBC 728w

Secretarial staff
Pay 134-5w

Securities & Investments Board 608w, 760-1w

Securities Association
Financial services 760-1w

Security
Electricity supply industry 684-5w
Mozambique 775-6w
Northern Ireland Office 674w

"Security & Counter Intelligence" 752w

SED see Scottish Education Department

Sedgemore, Mr Brian
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 461-3
Questions
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Higher education, Research 47w
Inner London Education Authority 575w
Inner London Education Authority, Public appointments 308-9w
Inner London Education Authority, Rate support grants 308w
NHS administration, Costs 166w
Percentage for Arts schemes 466-7w
Polytechnics & Colleges Funding Council, Public appointments 309w

Select Committee reports 1134, 1144

Self-employed
Cheshire 229w

Self-regulating organisations
Financial Services Act 1986 607-8w

Sellafield 226w, 240w, 590w
British Nuclear Fuels 509w
Radioactive wastes 287w
Testing 7

Service Children's Education Authority
Pay 383w

Service industries
Northwich 313-4w

Set-aside schemes (15:02:88) 705-17, 755-98
Agricultural chemicals 725w
Land use 586w

Severe weather payments 170, 401w
Grimsby 492w

Severn bridge
Construction 10, 20
Road tolls 9, 450w

Severn
Fulmer 659w
Water supply industry 459-61w

"Sex"
Terrence Higgins Trust 606w, 620-1w

Sex discrimination
Local authorities 972

Sex education
Secondary education 581w

Sexual harassment
Attorney-General 291w
Dept of Education & Science 158w
Dept of Employment 73-4w
Dept of Health & Social Security 554w
Dept of the Environment 20w
Dept of Trade & Industry 33w
Dept of Transport 1-2w
Foreign & Commonwealth Office 55w
Home Office 302w
Ministry of Agriculture 61w
Ministry of Defence 317w
Northern Ireland Office 323-4w
Scottish Office 320w
Treasury 92w

Sexual offences
Children 169w
Procurators fiscal 321-2w

Share option scheme
Tax allowances 89w

Shared ownership schemes 973
Council housing 973

Shares
Economic situation 647w
Rolls-Royce Aeroengines 486
Tax allowances 89w

Shaw, Mr David
Questions
Accountants, Civil service manpower 647-8w
Business statements 513
Council house rents, Rent arrears 973
Employment opportunities 334w
Health service staff, Business education 556w
House of Commons catering, Non-alcoholic drinks 517w
Housing Corporation, Cash limits 298-9w
Public bodies, Accounting 420w
Surgery, Per capita costs 626w
Tax yields, Tax rates & bands 494

Shaw, Sir Giles
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 142-3
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 937

Shaw Medical Centre
Scottish Development Agency 320-1w

Sheep
Radioactivity 369w
Scotland 369w

Slaughterhouses 156w

Sheep premiums
Judgments 330w

Sheerman, Mr Barry
Debates etc.
Self-employed (15:02:88) 720, 741-5
Questions
British Paediatric Association, Upper waiting hall 264w
New Parliamentary building, House of Commons accommodation 522-3w

Sheffield
Training allowances 533w

Sheffield Health Authority
Hospital waiting lists 96w

Sheldon, Rt Hon Robert
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 537
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1153-4
Questions
Civil service 701-2
Industrial investment 491

Sheltered housing
Mentally ill 562w

Shelton, Mr William
Debates etc.
Council house sales, Lambeth (19:02:88) 1323-5
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1036-9

Shephard, Mrs Gillian
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 791-2

Shepherd, Mr Colin
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 759
Questions
Cider, Tax yields 490
Surgery, Costs 182w
West Mercia Police, Manpower 709w

Shepherd, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 273
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 994

Shersby, Mr Michael
Debates etc.
Civil service, Management (18:02:88) 1155
Questions
Employment, Northern region 231w
Eye tests, NHS 112w
House of Commons publications, Administrative delays 388w
House of Commons publications, House of Commons Standing Committees 388w
Offensive weapons, Greater London 38w
VAT, Confectionery 343w

Shetland
Housing 732w

Shetland Islands Council 732w

Shift work
Nurses 116w

Shipping 340w
EC countries 414w

Shipping accidents
Defence contracts 446-7w
Trident submarines 447-8w, 539w

Shopping centres
Prestwich 969-70

Shops
South Bank 468w
Urban areas 970

Shore, Rt Hon Peter
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 711, 716-7
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 229-33
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1026-30
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1213, 1230-2

Short, Ms Clare
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 47, 58, 64-5, 106
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 384-5, 414, 417-8, 428, 431-6
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 927, 930, 940
Training (16:02:88) 838
Questions
Bombings, Birmingham 706w
Health services finance, EC countries 177-8

Short Brothers 317w

Shropshire County Council
Bus services subsidies 1w

Sick leave
Metropolitan Police 35-6w
Royal Ulster Constabulary 85-6w

Sickle cell disease
NHS 172w

Simkins, Anthony 752w

Sims, Mr Roger
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 359
Questions
Ethics 185
Hypermarkets, Greenbelt 970
NHS & private practice 175
Youth training scheme, Deaf 717w

Sinclair Committee see Child Care Law in Scotland Review Group

Singleton Hospital
Hospital waiting lists 518w

Sites of Special Scientific Interest
Nature Conservancy Council 296w

Sizewell B
Employment services 312w

Skeet, Sir Trevor
Questions
School closures, Pilgrim School Bedford 310w

Skiing
Death 458w

Skilled workers
Rented housing 456w

Skinner, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Standing Order No 20 applications (11:02:88) 520-1
Business questions intervention (11:02:88) 507
Business statements (18:02:88) 1159, 1163-4
Coal mine closures, Abernant Colliery (18:02:88) 1256
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1099-100
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 40, 42, 99-100, 107-11, 113-4
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 361

House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 200, 202, 209, 215
Oral question time intervention (10:02:88) 341, (15:02:88) 691, 696
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1174-5
Trident submarines, Mull of Galloway (10:02:88) 366-7
Questions
Bankruptcy 492-3
Business statements 514
Coal mining, Dismissal 695
Debts 335w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 27
House of Commons Library, "Spycatcher" 18
Prime Minister's questions, NHS finance 182
Retirement pensions 173w
Social security benefits, Retail price index 821-2

Skoal Bandits 197w

Skuse, Frank 701w, (16:02:88) 950-8, 1138-9
Evidence 438-9w, 547w, 1138-9

Slaughter of Deer Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
Order for resumed 2R read (12:02:88) 676

Slaughterhouses
Sheep 156w

Small businesses
Company law 353
Consultants 346
Industrial accidents 74w
Northern region 227w

Smith, Mr Andrew
Questions
Arms embargoes 714w
Availability for work, Social security benefits disqualification 696-7w
Battery hens, Animal welfare 726w
English education 581-2w
Entry clearances, Immigrants' fiancees 690-1w
Exceptional needs payments, Social security recipients 205-6w
Homelessness 661w
Mental health community care 562w
Mental patients, Complaints 562w
Mental patients, Schizophrenia 639w
Mentally ill, Sheltered housing 562w
Prison population, Mentally ill 546w
Prisoners' release, Mentally ill 546w
Schizophrenia, Expenditure 561-2w
Schizophrenia, Hospital discharges 561w
Social Fund, Loans 697w
Social security benefits, Social security claims 174w
Tax harmonisation, Car tax 343-4w
Taxpayers, Income tax 247w
Unemployment benefits, Social security benefits disqualification 696w

Smith, Mr Chris
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1089-91
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 464, (17:02:88) 1031
Questions
AIDS, Expenditure 499-500w
Privatisation 487

Smith, David 159-60w

Smith, Sir Dudley
Questions
Alcoholic drinks, Young people 710-1w
Chlamydia, Diagnosis 626w
Retirement age, Women 625-6w

Smith, Rt Hon John
Questions
NHS finance 497
Productivity 495

Smith, Mr Tim
Questions
Company investigations, House of Fraser 262w
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 508w
Financial Services Act 1986 337-8
Guinness, Company investigations 261w
Inner London Education Authority 575w
Lonrho, House of Fraser 262w
Lonrho, Subsidiary companies 262w
NHS, Performance indicators 403w
NHS Management Board 403w
Nursing Staff & Professions Allied to Medicine Review Body 184w
Official engagements 690w
Public sector borrowing requirement 496
Rolls-Royce Aeroengines, Shares 486
Sewers, Fulmer 659w
Social Security Management Board 403-4w

Smith Committee see AIDS Monitoring & Surveillance Committee

Smoke detection (09:02:88) 189-91

Smoke Detectors in Houses Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
1R (09:02:88) 189-91

Smoking
Air travel 2w, 351w
Bus crews 413w
Public houses 190w

Smyth, Rev Martin
Debates etc.
Calling of Members, Oral questions (11:02:88) 522-3
Questions
Bed & breakfast accommodation, Northern Ireland 166w
Bophuthatswana, Overseas aid 33w, 428-9w
Building workers, Terrorism 593w
Cervical cancer, Death 195w
Community care 183w
Employment discrimination, Appeals 440-2w
Employment discrimination, Northern Ireland 674w
Extortion, Building industry 593w
Extortion, Terrorism 519w, 594w
Fair Employment Agency for Northern Ireland 594-6w
Interviews, Northern Ireland 283w
IRA, Extortion 545w
Kidnapping, Insurance 545w
Metropolitan Police, Sick leave 35-6w
Northern Ireland, Government departments 821
Paramilitary forces, Tax evasion 593-4w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Sick leave 85-6w
Special educational needs, Northern Ireland 818
Tax exemption certificates, Building industry 723w
Tax yields, Extortion 723-4w

Snape, Mr Peter
Questions
Heathrow central station, Fire certificates 412w
London Underground, Fire certificates 412w
Railway Inspectorate, Railway safety 244w

Soames, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1102
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 362
Questions
Civil service 702
Prisons, Privatisation 1134
Visas, Immigration applications 140w

Social class
Cancer 773w

Social Fund
Debts written off 490w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 181
Expenditure 401w
Loans 697w
Social workers 214w

Social Fund (Application for Review) Regulations 1988
Debates etc.
(18:02:88) 1169-207

Social Fund Maternity & Funeral Expenses (General) Amendment Regulations 1988
Debates etc.
(18:02:88) 1169-207

Social Fund (Recovery by Deductions from Benefits) Regulations 1988
Debates etc.
(18:02:88) 1169-207

Social security
Advisory services 566w

Social Security Act 1986
Questions
179w, 180-1

Social security appeals
Mobility allowance 163-4w, 326-7w

Social security appeals tribunals
Administrative delays 178w
Mobility allowance 178w

Social security benefits
Computer privacy 693-4w
Pensioners 203-4w
Personal records 694-5w
Peterlee 186-8w
Retail price index 114-5w, 247-8w, 272w, 349w, 722w, 779-80w, 821-2, 1146
Seaham 186-8w
Social security claims 174w
Students 695w
Tax allowances 722w
Voluntary organisations 266w
Young people 189-90w

Social security benefits disqualification
Availability for work 696-7w
Unemployment benefits 183-4w, 696w

Social security benefits rules
Housing benefits 779w

Social security benefits uprating 176-7
Child benefit 346-7w
Supplementary benefits 786w

Social security claims
Administrative delays 186w
Mobility allowance 327w
Scotland 75w
Social security benefits 174w
Take-up 75w

Social Security Commissioners 163-4w

Social Security Management Board 403-4w

Social security payments 177
Handicap benefits 348w
Retail price index 494w

Social security recipients 177
Board & lodging charges 113w
Exceptional needs payments 205-6w
Income support scheme 113w
Invalid care allowances 406w, 628w
Means tested benefits 185-6w
Peterlee 269w
Seaham 269w
Supplementary benefits 348w
Young people 115w

Social security reform 180-1, 786-7w
Children 176-7
Civil servants 703
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 351-2w
Family income 777w
Greater London 351-2w
Handicap benefits 170, 170w, 171, 171w, 172, 179-80, 554w
Housing benefits 177, 775w
Income support scheme 630w
Means tested benefits 177w
Mentally handicapped 170-1

Social services finance
Voluntary organisations 180w

Social Services Inspectorate 494w

Social Services Select Committee 485w

Social workers
Hospitals 565w
Social Fund 214w

Social workers' training 347w

Soley, Mr Clive
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 473
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 (Continuance) Order 1988 (16:02:88) 928
Questions
Council housing 974-5
Government data network, Computer privacy 247w
Government data network, Government contracts 247w
Homelessness, Departmental leaflets 22w
Housing 964
Housing benefits, Thamesmead Town 110w
Thamesmead Town, Greenwich 21w
Thamesmead Town, Property transfer 21w
Thamesmead Town, Rent control 22w
Thamesmead Town, Tenants' rights 22w

"Some Mother's Son" 712w

South Africa
Economic sanctions 425w
Official engagements 46w
Overseas investment 233w
Refugees 236w

South Bank
Shops 468w

South East region
NHS finance 213w
Private education 765-8w
Railway travel 355-6w
Transport 747w

South East Thames Regional Health Authority 213w

South Glamorgan Health Authority
Heart diseases 319w

South Korea
Generalised system of preferences 714-6w

South of Scotland Electricity Board 461-2w
Coal 694

South Tyneside Health Authority
Mental health community care 409w

South Wales 6, 10
Coal mine closures 5-6
Family doctors 8
Government assistance 5
NHS finance 5
Paediatrics 319w

South West Housing Society
Government grants 5-6w

South Western Electricity Board
Electricity tariffs 691

Southampton University 82w

Southend Hospital
Radiotherapy 174-5w, 496-7w, 699w

Southern Africa
Debts 429-30w

Southern African Development Coordination Conference 429-30w

Southern Derbyshire Health Authority 629-30w

Southern Water Authority
Water pollution 379-80w

Southern Water Authority Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

Space technology
Science & technology research 248-9w

Spain
Air force bases 538w

Speaker and his deputies, For rulings & statements see separate heading
Speaker's rulings & statements
Debates etc.
Amendments & new clauses (08:02:88) 121, (10:02:88) 393, 407, (17:02:88) 1000
Disallowed questions (08:02:88) 7, (10:02:88) 337, (11:02:88) 486, (18:02:88) 1144
Members' suspension, Cohen, Harry (18:02:88) 1246
Orders & regulations motions (10:02:88) 367, (18:02:88) 1169
Private Members' Bills, 2R order read (12:02:88) 670, 675-6
Procedure (08:02:88) 27, 141, (09:02:88) 184, 267, 287, (10:02:88) 337, 354, (11:02:88) 490, 500, 513, 514, (17:02:88) 962, 1103, (18:02:88) 1139, 1167, 1180
Standing Order No 20 applications, Anglo-Irish Agreement (15:02:88) 718
Standing Order No 20 applications, British Petroleum (08:02:88) 37
Standing Order No 20 applications, Pullen, Jason (10:02:88) 365
Standing Order No 20 applications, Wise, Claire (11:02:88) 519-20
Questions
Britoil, Government shareholding 486
Protest, Ministry of Defence 1144
Sellafield, Testing 7

Speaker's chair (09:02:88) 169

Speaker's rulings & statements
Adjournment debates (09:02:88) 330
Calling of Members (10:02:88) 358, 363, (11:02:88) 522-3, (15:02:88) 709, 716, (17:02:88) 992, 996, (19:02:88) 1259-60
House of Commons chamber (12:02:88) 619
House of Commons debates (08:02:88) 143-4
House of Commons galleries (10:02:88) 344
House of Commons Select Committees (09:02:88) 286
House of Commons Standing Committees (17:02:88) 996
Members (16:02:88) 839
Members' conduct (08:02:88) 129, (09:02:88) 188, (10:02:88) 454-5, 465, 470-3, (11:02:88) 501, (15:02:88) 795, (16:02:88) 913, (18:02:88) 1253
Members' imprisonment (15:02:88) 685
Members' interventions (09:02:88) 203, 223, 280, 330, (10:02:88) 433, (12:02:88) 648-9, (15:02:88) 717, (16:02:88) 854, 857, 944-5, (17:02:88) 1021, 1041, 1043, 1069, 1071-3, 1084, 1085, (18:02:88) 1161
Members' speeches (08:02:88) 128, 151, (09:02:88) 192, 237, (11:02:88) 490, (12:02:88) 655, (15:02:88) 780, 785, (17:02:88) 1020, 1025, 1049, (18:02:88) 1193, 1230, 1236, (19:02:88) 1294
Members' suspension (18:02:88) 1253
Ministerial statements (08:02:88) 31, (15:02:88) 706, 709, 712, 714, 716, (17:02:88) 977, 981, 987, (18:02:88) 1151
New clauses (16:02:88) 848
Orders & regulations (18:02:88) 1168
Parliamentary privilege (09:02:88) 286
Points of order (08:02:88) 24, (10:02:88) 364, 366-7, 373, 473, (16:02:88) 827, 839-40, 925, 935-6, 944-6, (17:02:88) 1124
Prime Minister's questions (09:02:88) 187, 188, (16:02:88) 822, 823, (18:02:88) 1145
Private Members' Bills (12:02:88) 675
Scope of debate (08:02:88) 47, 51, 55-9, 69, 83, 127, (09:02:88) 323, (12:02:88) 639, (15:02:88) 760, (16:02:88) 890, 908, (17:02:88) 1102, 1105, 1116-7, (18:02:88) 1234, 1238, 1242
Standing Order No 20 applications (10:02:88) 366-7, (11:02:88) 520
Statutory Instruments Select Committee (09:02:88) 286
Supplementary questions (08:02:88) 2, (10:02:88) 345
Ten minutes rule (19:02:88) 1259-60
Unparliamentary expressions (10:02:88) 402, (11:02:88) 499, (16:02:88) 835-6, 957-8, (17:02:88) 1102-3
Written questions (09:02:88) 188

Spearing, Mr Nigel
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 760, 770
European Council (15:02:88) 713
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 463, (17:02:88) 1005, 1038, 1048
Questions
Air safety, National Air Traffic Services 22
Ambulance services, Greater London 111-2w
Day release 584w
EC budget 152-4w
Education, Inner London boroughs 160-1w
Educational finance, Inner London boroughs 161w
European Council, Economic agreements 688-9w
Free school meals, Inner London Education Authority 162w
Further education, Inner London boroughs 161w
Higher civil servants, Performance related pay 812-3
Industrial accidents, London Docklands 383w
Inner London Education Authority 308w
Inner London Education Authority, Educational standards 161-2w
Inner London Education Authority, Expenditure 218-20w
London Ambulance Service, Official engagements 184w
London Underground, Railway stations 3w
M25, Road traffic 614-5w
NHS finance 45w
Pupils, Inner London boroughs 162w
Road traffic, Greater London 614w
Schools, Official visits 219w
VAT, Tax harmonisation 770w

Special aids to employment scheme 227-8w

Special constables 1133-4

Special duty allowances
Grimsby Health Authority 492w
Nurses 492w

Special education 572w, 579-80w
EC action 584w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88 573-4w
Further education colleges 577w
Grant maintained schools 819-20
Handicapped pupils 572w
Pre-school education 578w

Special educational needs 46w, 433w
Local education authorities 602-3w
Northern Ireland 818
Teachers 818
University finance 373w

Special hospitals
Mental patients 553-4w

Spectacles 167w

Speech therapists
Pay 266-8w

Speech therapy
Prisons 541-2w
Wales 518w

Speed, Mr Keith
Questions
M20, Road construction 742w

Speed limits
Buses 411w
Manchester Airport 615w

Speller, Mr Tony
Questions
Housing action trusts, Departmental publications 670w
School administration, Devon 573w
Television licences, Pensioners 707w

Spicer, Sir Jim
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 756

Spicer, Mr Michael, Under-Secretary of State for Energy
Debates etc.
Coal mine closures, Abernant Colliery (18:02:88) 1256-8
Questions
British Coal Corporation, Capital investment 509w
British Coal Corporation, Privatisation 509w, 512w
British Nuclear Fuels, Exhibitions 226w
British Nuclear Fuels, Sellafield 509w
Central Electricity Generating Board, Official engagements 511w
Coal, Imports 63w, 694-5
Coal, International trade 225w
Coal, South of Scotland Electricity Board 694
Coal fired power stations 225w
Coal mine closures 346w, 507w
Coal mining 688
Coal mining, British Coal Corporation 511w
Coal mining, Capital investment 392w
Coal mining, Costs 511-2w
Coal mining, Dismissal 695
Coal mining, Equipment 512w
Coal mining, Government grants 344w
Coal mining, Productivity 694
Coal mining, Subsidence 393w
Coal prices 687-8
Coal prices, Dollar 696
Coal prices, Electricity tariffs 688
Coal prices, Productivity 687
Coal reserves, Coal mining 392w
Electricite de France, Profitability 513w
Electricity generation, Nuclear power 510w
Electricity supply industry, France 62w
Electricity supply industry, Security 684-5w
Electricity tariffs, Competition 506-7w
Electricity tariffs, Industrial energy prices 691
Electricity tariffs, Industry 507w
Electricity tariffs, Pensioners 691-2
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 690-3
Electricity tariffs, South Western Electricity Board 691
Energy consumption, Industry 513-4w
Energy research, Nuclear power 684w
Fawley A, Electricity generation 512w
Hinkley Point B, Public inquiries 345w
Hinkley Point C, Construction 509-10w
International Atomic Energy Agency, Nuclear safeguards 226w
International Atomic Energy Agency, UK contributions 226-7w
LAW Mining Company, Licensing 63w
Magnox reactors, Italy 589w
Mining equipment, Productivity 224-5w
Nuclear fuel reprocessing 589-90w
Nuclear fuel reprocessing, Okg Aktiebolag 589w
Nuclear fuels 515-6w
Nuclear fuels, Nuclear safeguards 393w
Nuclear power, Public sector assets 226w
Nuclear power stations 225w
Nuclear power stations, Air accidents 590w
Nuclear power stations, Environment protection 344-5w
Nuclear power stations, Fire services 512w
Nuclear power stations, Opinion polls 345w
Nuclear power stations, Testing 392w, 510w
Nuclear reactors, Testing 510-1w
Nuclear safety 63w
Nuclear safety, Magnox reactors 345-6w
Opencast mining 697
Opencast mining, Privately owned mines 684w
Plutonium, Transport of radioactive materials 590w
Power stations 589w
Radiation hazards, Safety standards 225w
Transport of radioactive materials 225-6w
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 510w
United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority, Finance 513-6w
Wind power, Government assistance 689
Wind power, Liberal Party 689

Sporting events
Hooliganism 501

Sports
Inner London Education Authority 162w

Sports administration
Tax allowances 423w

Sports facilities
Local government services 15-6
Schools 577w
Wales 15-6

Sportsgrounds
Public order policing 663w

Springfields 226w

"Spycatcher"
House of Commons Library 17-8

Squire, Mr Robin
Questions
Community charge 663w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 26
Housing associations 966
Public expenditure, Private investment 722w
Tax allowances, Sports administration 423w

SSEB see South of Scotland Electricity Board

SSHA see Scottish Special Housing Association

Stafford
Unemployment 473-4w

Staffordshire County Council 811

"Stalker" 291w, 824

Stalker, John 165w, (17:02:88) 977-96
Ministers 394w
Police misconduct 216w
Prosecutions 291w
Publishing 824

Stanbrook, Mr Ivor
Debates etc.
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 29

Standard of living 497-8

Standards enforcement
Hospitals 188w

Standing Advisory Commission on Human Rights 681w

"Standing Advisory Commission on Human Rights Annual Report, 1986/87" 681w

Standing charges 173w

Standing Order No 20 applications
Air accidents (08:02:88) 38
Anglo-Irish Agreement (15:02:88) 718
Birmingham Children's Hospital (11:02:88) 519-20
British Petroleum (08:02:88) 37
Pullen, Jason (10:02:88) 365
Speaker's rulings & statements (10:02:88) 366-7, (11:02:88) 520

Stanley, Rt Hon John, Minister of State for Northern Ireland
Questions
Administration of justice, Northern Ireland 591w
Building workers, Terrorism 593w
Civil servants, Positive vetting 86w
Debt collection, Northern Ireland 393-5w
Debts, Northern Ireland 394w
Extortion, Building industry 593w
Extortion, Terrorism 594w
Extradition, Republic of Ireland 164-5w
Homicide, Fermanagh 441-2w
Homicide, Northern Ireland 441w
Maghaberry Prison, Body searches 592w
Maghaberry Prison, Prison population 591w
Paramilitary forces, Tax evasion 593-4w
Politicians, USA 85-6w
Punishment attacks, Criminal injuries compensation 86w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Manpower 674w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Sick leave 85-6w
Security, Northern Ireland office 674w
Sexual harassment, Northern Ireland Office 323-4w
Voluntary organisations, Northern Ireland 590-1w

Stansted Airport
Air routes 410w

Stationery Office see HMSO

Statistics of Trade & Employment (Northern Ireland) Order 1988
Debates etc.
(10:02:88) 367

Statutory Instruments Select Committee
Speaker's rulings & statements (09:02:88) 286

Steel, Rt Hon David
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 710
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries (17:02:88) 985-6
Questions
Air safety, Air traffic control 21
Business statements 505
Profit sharing, Departmental leaflets 387w

Steen, Mr Anthony
Questions
EC internal trade, Trade barriers 256w
Plymouth Health Authority 184w
Urban development corporations, Government grants 666w
Vacant land, Official engagements 688w

Steinberg, Mr Gerry
Questions
Army, Clinical depression 445w
Buses, Motor vehicle safety 741w
Buses, Road accidents 410-1w
Buses, Safety belts 411w
Buses, Speed limits 411w
Dept of Education & Science, Press releases 373w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Special education 573-4w
Government shareholding 334w
NHS finance 630
Opencast mining, Privately owned mines 684w
Prisoners, Advisory services 542w
Prisons, Speech therapy 541-2w
Public service vehicles, Bus crews 740w
Public service vehicles, Driving licences 613-4w
Public service vehicles, Motor vehicle testing 741w
Remand in custody 1132

Sterling
Green pound 771-2w

Stern, Mr Michael
Questions
Artificial Limb & Appliance Centres Review 203w
Electricity generation, Coastal areas 688
Local Development Agencies Development Fund, Finance 618w
Official engagements 135w, 520w, 690w
Rear seat belts, Car hire 616w
Shared ownership schemes 973
Teachers, Trade union membership 371w

Stevens, Mr Lewis
Questions
Personal pensions 168w

Stewart, Mr Allan
Questions
Higher education colleges, Educational finance 370w
Manufacturing industries 337w
Parliamentary constituencies, Scotland 734w

Stewart, Mr Andy
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 766
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 607-9, 635, 647, 655-6
Questions
Cash limits, Attorney-General 613w
Coal prices, Productivity 687
Inflation 331w

Stewart, Mr Ian, Minister of State for Defence
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 524-36
Questions
Armed forces deployment, Diego Garcia 445-6w
Armilla patrol, Members' correspondence 756w
Armilla patrol, Merchant ships 446w, 448-9w
Arms control, Civil service manpower 240w
Chemical weapons, NATO 448w
Chemical weapons, USA 448w
Clyde Submarine Base, Ionizing radiation 737w
Clyde Submarine Base, Naval bases 737w
Clyde Submarine Base, Nuclear accidents 737w
Clyde Submarine Base, Nuclear submarines 736w
Exercise Teamwork 88, Amphibious vehicles 239w
F16 aircraft, Air force bases 538w
Falkland Islands, Military exercises 736-7w
Frigates, Armed forces deployment 735w
HMS Conqueror, Log books 318w, 387w
HMS Resolution, Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation 756w
HMS Resolution, Nuclear submarines 756w
HMS Resolution, Radiation hazards 756-7w
Military aircraft, Republic of Ireland 318w
Minesweepers, Persian Gulf 758w
NATO 538w
Naval bases, River Clyde 737w
Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation, Nuclear accidents 738w
Nuclear accidents, Greenland 240-1w
Nuclear submarines, Faslane 735-6w
Nuclear submarines, HMS Resolution 736w
Nuclear submarines, River Clyde 736-8w
Nuclear weapons, Transport of radioactive materials 136w
Nuclear weapons deployment, Western Europe 538w

Stock market
Capital 249w

Stoke-on-Trent
Water supply 127-8w

Stokes, Mr John
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 233-4, 244-6
Questions
Church of England, Ethics 821
Official secrets, Law reform 1141

Storms
District health authorities 565w
Government grants to local authorities 522w

Stott, Mr Roger
Questions
Coal, International trade 225w
Coal fired power stations 225w
Mining, Equipment 261w
Mining equipment, Productivity 224-5w
Science & technology research, Expenditure 255w

Strang, Mr Gavin
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 78-82, 117, 121, 123-5, 135-6
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 392-7, 402-3, 407, 447

"Strategy for the Science Base" 583-4w

Strathclyde
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 404w
Regional aid 368w
Structure plans 64w

Straw, Mr Jack
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1002, 1008-21, 1064, 1069
Questions
Educational finance 50-4w
Ideal Homes Exhibition, Dept of Education & Science 219-20w
Inner London Education Authority, Educational standards 219w

Structure plans
Berkshire (11:02:88) 599-606, 668w
Strathclyde 64w
Wales 598w

Stubbs, William 308-9w

Student Awards Review Committee 432w, 571w, 585w

Student grants 159w, 432-3w, 476-7w, 585w
Community charge 369w, 585w
Housing benefits 369w, 585w
Index linking 372w, 475-6w
Medical students 217-8w, 372w
Northern Ireland 286w, 396w
Scotland 369w

Student numbers
Medical students 431w
Northern Ireland 766w
Postgraduate students 813
Universities 762-6w
Wales 766w

Student wastage
Nurses' training 785-6w

Students
Further education 577w
Scotland 373-4w
Social security benefits 695w
Television licences 38w
Universities 373-4w

Stun guns 1138

Sub post offices 306w
Finance 609w

Subsidence (09:02:88) 186
Coal mining 393w

Subsidiary companies
Lonrho 262w

Subsidies
Airbus Industrie 444w

Sudan
Nuclear fuels 236w

Sudbury
Unemployment 549-50w

Sudbury-Colchester railway 453w

Sulphur dioxide
Pollution control 666-7w

Sumberg, Mr David
Questions
Bury, Official engagements 13
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 27
Hypermarkets, Planning inquiries 969-70
Mortgage relief 334w
North Western Regional Health Authority, Official engagements 179w

Summerson, Mr Hugo
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 148
Malicious Communications Bill, 2R (12:02:88) 611, 617-22, 632, 640-1
Questions
British strategic nuclear force, Labour Party 1145-6
Civil servants, Performance reviews 702-3
Pensioners, Personal income 180w

Summertime 619w

Superconductivity
Industry 607w

Supplementary benefits
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 108w
Cleveland 114w
Darlington 113-4w
Dept of Health & Social Security local offices 493w
Diets 182w
Dundee 495-6w

Scotland 502-4w
Social security benefits uprating 786w
Social security recipients 348w

Supplementary Benefits (Conditions of Entitlement) Regulations 1981
Questions
Invalid care allowances 627-8w

Supplementary questions
Speaker's rulings & statements (08:02:88) 2, (10:02:88) 345

Surgery
Basingstoke & North Hampshire Health Authority 101-4w
Costs 182w
Expenditure 557w
Gynaecology 213-4w
Kidney patients 779w
NHS 400w
NHS & private practice 623w
North Wales 15
Per capita costs 626w
Scotland 656-7w

Surrey
Road traffic 357w

Swimming
Handicapped 126-7w
Health education 267w
Pupils 158-9w
Schools 159w
Training 20-1w

Swimming pools
Local education authorities 47w

Synthetic fibres
Imports 148-9w
Production 609-10w
Turkey 148-9w, 253w

Syrian Arab Republic
Torture 691w

Takeovers
British Bakeries 354
Britoil 34w

Talkabout service
Young people (09:02:88) 329-36

Tape recorders
Production 532w

Tax allowances
Agriculture 723w
Banks 338w
Enterprise zones 421w
Forestry 95w, 339w, 490-1
Health insurance 90w
Luncheon vouchers 90w
Manufacturing industries 723w
Pension funds 90w
Personal equity plans 87-9w
Share option scheme 89w
Shares 89w
Social security benefits 722w
Sports administration 423w
Tax rates & bands 93-5w
Town & country planning (15:02:88) 719-54
Tree planting 490-1
VAT 770w

Tax & price index 331w

Tax burden 342w
Income tax 247w, 333-4w
Low pay 418-9w

Tax collection offices
Durham 419w

Tax evasion 421w, 425w
Community charges register 975
National insurance contributions 353-4w
Northern Ireland 593-4w
Paramilitary forces 593-4w
PAYE 422w
Prosecutions 421w
Road tax 452-3w

Tax exemption certificates
Building industry 723w

Tax harmonisation
Car tax 343-4w
VAT 770w

Tax rates & bands
Income tax 90w, 417-8w, 423w, 496
Tax allowances 93-5w
Tax yields 494
Taxpayers 417-8w

Tax thresholds 497

Tax yields 333w, 343w, 423w
Capital gains tax 87w
Cider 490
Corporation tax 722w
Deeds of covenant 721w
Extortion 723-4w
Income tax 417w
Pensions 720-1w
Personal tax allowances 417w
Tax rates & bands 494

Taxation 495-6
Forestry 339w

Taxis 551-2w
Basildon 552w
Crimes of violence 619-20w, (15:02:88) 799-805
Homicide 767w
Mobility of disabled (15:02:88) 799-805

Taxpayers
Income tax 247w

Taylor, Mrs Ann
Questions
Brixton Prison, Prison staff 1140
Complaints against police, Ethnic monitoring 303w
Concessionary television licences, Pensioners 1142
Young people, Police custody 434-5w

Taylor, Mr Ian
Questions
Car ownership, Road traffic 357w

Taylor, Rt Hon John David
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 286
Questions
Bray District Council, Contracts 166w
Ministers' visits abroad, West Germany 164w
Parkhead Stadium, Public order policing 653w
Republic of Ireland, Royal Ulster Constabulary 391w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 394w

Taylor, Mr John M
Questions
Army, Intimidation 755w
Capital gains tax, Investment 87w
Church schools, Church of England 216w
Drugs, Expenditure 557w
Nature reserves 960
Public order offences 541w
Rate limitation 659w

Taylor, Mr Matthew
Questions
Electricity tariffs, Price increases 692
Homelessness, Households 661w
Nuclear power stations, Testing 392w
Pigs, Animal breeding 58-62w
Sub post offices 306w
Teachers, Pay 578w
United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority, Finance 513-6w

Taylor, Mr Teddy
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 757-8
European Council (15:02:88) 711
Questions
Agricultural subsidies, Expenditure 464-5w
Agriculture, EC budget 726-7w
Airbus Industrie, Subsidies 444w
Airbuses, Government assistance to industry 444w
Butter, Intervention stocks 689-90w
Cereals, Agricultural production 690w
Cereals, Production quotas 612w
Common agricultural policy 498-9
Common agricultural policy, EC budget 689w
Council house waiting lists 22-4w
Dock labour scheme 454-5w
Dock workers, Manpower 455w
European Council 688w
European Council, Butter 612w
European Council, Common agricultural policy 611w
European Council, EC budget 294w, 611-2w
European Council, Foreign relations 612w
Farmers, Manpower 464w
Food surpluses, Expenditure 587-8w, 612w
Food surpluses, Intervention stocks 689w
Generalised system of preferences, South Korea 715-6w
Housing associations, House purchase 668w
Invalid care allowances, Social security recipients 406w
Manufactured goods, Balance of trade 34w
Police custody, Prisoners on remand 703w
Prison overcrowding 438w
Prisoners on remand, Police custody 435w
Rates & rating, Farm buildings 462w
Set-aside schemes, Land use 586w
Southend Hospital, Radiotherapy 174-5w, 496-7w, 699w
Tax allowances, Agriculture 723w
Trade agreements, EC action 715w
VAT zero rated goods, European Court of Justice 332-3w

Taylor, Teddy 41w

Tayside
Caravans 539w
Crime 650w
Crime prevention 732w
Free school meals 65w
Procurators fiscal 321-2w
Regional aid 483-4w
Young offenders 479w

Tayside Health Board
Health service staff 370-1w

Teacher training
Northern Ireland 323w
Wales 224w

Teachers
Conditions of employment 53w
Curriculum 815
Degrees 371w
Educational standards 582-3w
Greater London 183
Health 310w
Industrial disputes 371w
Mathematics education 160w
Pay 578w
Retirement 310w
Scotland 481w
Special educational needs 818
Trade union membership 371w
Trade unions 578w, 581w

Tebbit, Rt Hon Norman
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 194-5, 221-30, 247-8, 251, 281
Questions
Air safety, Near misses 21-2

Technicians
AIDS 489w, 626-7w
Industrial health & safety 626-7w

Teesside
Dept of Trade & Industry 345-6

Teesside Development Corporation
Official engagements 518w

Teignmouth Quay Company Bill 1985/86
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

Telecommunications cables
Optical fibres 145w

Telecommunications industry
Competition 349-50
Europe 340
Exports 339
Retail trade 339

Telecommunications (Premium Services) (Regulation) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 670

Telephone calls 145w, 170

Telephone directories
Exports 339-40

Telephone exchanges
Deaf 214w, 781-2w

Telephone Talkabout (Abolition) Bill 1987/88
Debates etc.
2R order read (12:02:88) 670

Telephone tapping
Judicial review 303w

Telephones
Doctors 70-1w
Equipment 350
Pornography 350
Scotland 70-1w

Television
Broadcasting controls 703w
House of Commons broadcasting 183, (09:02:88) 192-286

Television advertising
Dept of Trade & Industry 256w

Television licences
Pensioners 303w, 707w
Students 38w

Television programmes
Army in Northern Ireland 712w
National security 144-5w, 728w
Nuclear power 346w

Telford
Urban development corporations 666w

Temporary accommodation
Homelessness 325-6w

Temporary immigrants
Immigration applications 137w

Temporary staff
Health service staff 109w

Ten minutes rule
Speaker's rulings & statements (19:02:88) 1259-60

Tenants' rights
Thamesmead Town 22w

Tenders
Local government services 672-3w
Privatisation 92w

Terrence Higgins Trust
"Sex" 608w, 620-1w

Terrorism
Building workers 593w
Extortion 519w, 594w
Northern Ireland (16:02:88) 925-49

Test tube babies
Hospitals 654w
Scotland 654w

Testing
Agricultural chemicals 237-8w
Bovine somatotropin 678w
Nuclear power stations 392w, 510w
Nuclear reactors 510-1w
Sellafield 7
Trawsfynydd power station 7-8, 416w, 510w

Textile industry 251w

Textiles 348-9
Imports 377-8w
West Bank 377-8w

Thames house Millbank
Ministry of Defence 446w

Thames Water Authority 659w

Thamesmead Town
Greenwich 21w
Housing benefits 110w
Property transfer 21w
Rent control 22w
Tenants' rights 22w

Thatcher, Rt Hon Margaret, Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury and Minister for the Civil Service
Debates etc.
European Council, Ministerial statements (15:02:88) 705-17
Ministerial statements, Civil service (18:02:88) 1149-56
Questions
Advisory Council on Science & Technology, Official engagements 519w
Barnsley, Official engagements 519w
British strategic nuclear force, Labour Party 1145-6
British strategic nuclear force, USSR 822
Butter, Intervention stocks 689-90w
Cereals, Agricultural production 690w
Cereals, Production quotas 612w
Church of England, Ethics 821
Common agricultural policy, EC budget 689w
Community charges register, Voting rights 823-4
Doctors, Pay 135w
Economic League, Employment schemes 415w
Economic League, Nationalised industries 415w
Education, Schools & parents 820-1
Education Reform Bill 1987/88 186
Ethics 185
European Commission, Official engagements 689w
European Council 688w
European Council, Butter 612w
European Council, Common agricultural policy 611w
European Council, EC budget 611-2w
European Council, Economic agreements 688-9w
European Council, Foreign relations 612w
European fighter aircraft, Official engagements 134w
Evidence, Criminal appeals 1144
Extortion, Terrorism 519w
Food surpluses, Expenditure 612w
Food surpluses, Intervention stocks 689w
Ford Motor Company, Industrial disputes 184
Forestry Commission, Ministerial duties 751-2w
House of Commons broadcasting, Television 183
Housing compensation 1146
Intelligence services 45w
Intelligence services, Australia 46w
Lychett Minster, Official engagements 134w
Manufacturing industries, Armed conflict 135w
Mental health services, NHS finance 822-3
Ministerial duties, Handicapped 45w
Ministers' correspondence, Disclosure of information 45w
Newbattle Abbey College, Finance 519w
NHS finance 45w, 183-4, 1145
Northern Ireland, Government departments 821
Nurses, Pay 1147-8
Nurses, Pay settlements 185-6
Official engagements 45w, 135w, 520w, 690w
Official engagements, Little Lowford 688w
Official engagements, RAF Lakenheath 688w
Official engagements, South Africa 46w
Official engagements, Trade unions 46w
Oldham Hospital, NHS finance 184-5
Pigmeat, Monetary compensatory amounts 820
Prime Minister's questions, NHS finance 182
Public corporations 415w
Public service pensions, Retail price index 688w
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 46w, 1146-7
School closures, Scotland 688w
Secretarial staff, Pay 134-5w
"Security & Counter Intelligence" 752w
Social security benefits, Retail price index 821-2, 1146
Stalker, John, Publishing 824
Teachers, Greater London 183
Teesside Development Corporation, Official engagements 518w
Transnuklear 519w
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 416w
Unemployment 1148
Vacant land, Official engagements 688w
VAT 821
Waldheim, Kurt, Nazi war crimes 519-20w, 750w
Waldheim, Kurt, Public records 750w
Waldheim, Kurt, United Nations 750-1w
Wales, Official engagements 134w
West Dorset Health Authority, NHS administration 1147
Western European Union 183
Wolston, Official engagements 518w

Thelwall viaduct 454w

Thomas, Dr Dafydd Elis
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 529, 572-6
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 223-4, 236, 243-4
Questions
Armed conflict, Nuclear power stations 604w
Coal mining, Government grants 344w
Customs & Excise, Hazardous wastes 95w
Debts, Developing countries 332w
Electricite de France, Profitability 513w
Electricity supply industry, Privatisation 507-8w
Electricity supply industry, Security 684-5w
European Year of the Environment, Environment protection 523-4w
Foreign policy, Disclosure of information 291w
Hinkley Point B, Public inquiries 345w
House of Commons questions, Costs 295w
Japan, Nuclear fuels 530w

Japan, Nuclear power 57w
Lowry, David, Nuclear power 392w
Magnox reactors, Italy 589w
Nature Conservancy Council, Official engagements 128w
Nuclear fuel reprocessing 589-90w
Nuclear fuel reprocessing, Okg Aktiebolag 589w
Nuclear fuels 515-6w
Nuclear power, Television programmes 346w
Nuclear power stations, Air accidents 590w
Nuclear power stations, Environment protection 344-5w
Nuclear power stations, Ministers' domestic visits 589w
Nuclear power stations, Opinion polls 345w
Nuclear safety, Magnox reactors 345-6w
Plutonium, Nuclear safeguards 530w
Radioactive wastes, EC action 753w
Regional aid, Wales 3
Television licences, Pensioners 303w
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 7
Turkey, Armoured fighting vehicles 236w
Universities Funding Council, Public appointments 217w
Welsh Arts Council, Official engagements 11

Thompson, Mr Donald, Parliamentary Secretary for Agriculture
Questions
Agricultural chemicals, Easington 328w
Agricultural chemicals, Testing 237-8w
Agricultural land, Cereals 465-6w
Agricultural research, Radioactivity 62w
Agriculture, Agricultural research 464w
Animal feed, Health warnings 675w
Battery hens, Animal welfare 726w
Birds, Poisons 61w
Bovine somatotropin 156-7w
Bovine somatotropin, EC countries 678w
Bovine somatotropin, Licensing 678w
Bovine somatotropin, Testing 678w
Butter, Retail prices 676-7w
Cereals, Co-responsibility levy 329w
Cereals, EC countries 677w
Cereals, Intervention Board 586-8w
Dairy farming, Animal husbandry 237w
Dairy farming, Food inspection 328w
Farm rents 677w
Farmers, Manpower 464w
Fish farming, Chemicals 464w
Food contamination, Emergency planning 157w
Food labelling, EC action 727w
Food prices, Milk 725w
Gastropods, Pest control 724-5w
Intervention stocks 674-5w
Milk, Canada 157w
Milk, Exports 675-6w
Milk, Imports 677-8w
Milk, Milk Marketing Board 676w
Milk, Production 61w, 726w
Organic farming, Agricultural production 329w
Pesticides, Safety standards 329-30w
Pigs, Animal breeding 58-62w
Radioactivity, Agricultural research 465w
Radioactivity, Land pollution 465w
Rain, Radiation hazards 238w
Sexual harassment, Ministry of Agriculture 61w
Sheep, Slaughterhouses 156w
Sheep premiums, Judgments 330w
Wheat, Common farm prices 679w
Wheat, Intervention prices 680w
Wheat, Prices 726w
Wool, Guaranteed prices 328w

Thompson, Mr Jack
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 151-3
Questions
British Coal Corporation, Official engagements 693
Electricity supply industry, France 62w
General Certificate of Secondary Education 575w

Thompson, Mr Patrick
Debates etc.
Rate Support Grant (England) Supplementary Reports (17:02:88) 1118-20
Questions
Hospital catering, Privatisation 173w
Inflation 331w
Minesweepers, Persian Gulf 758w
Telecommunications industry, Retail trade 339

Thorne, Mr Neil
Questions
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 41w

Thornton, Mr Malcolm
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 309

Thrombosis
International conferences 783-5w

Thurnham, Mr Peter
Questions
Curriculum, Examinations 572w
Deaf, Telephone exchanges 781-2w
Energy consumption, Industry 513-4w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171
Interest rates 331w
Planning permission 660w
Police & Criminal Evidence Act 1984, Crime prevention 1142
Privatisation 487-8
Redundant churches, Church Commissioners 14-5
Special educational needs, Local education authorities 602-3w
Town & country planning 962

Thurrock
Official engagements 294w

Tobacco duties
Budget 419-20w

Toddingtons 501-2

Toll bridges
Erskine bridge 320w

Torture
Syrian Arab Republic 691w

Tourism
Angus 476w

Tourist industry
Cheshire 229-30w

Tower Hamlets
Departmental correspondence 437w

Tower Hamlets Borough Council
Immigration 710w

Town & country planning 659w, 962-3
Planning authorities 660w
Tax allowances (15:02:88) 719-54

Town & Country Planning (Control of Advertisements) (Amendment No 2) Regulations 1987
Debates etc.
(16:02:88) 840

Townend, Mr John
Questions
Printing industry, Production 248w
Prison riots, Costs 1139-40
Productivity 495

Townsend Thoresen 42w

Tracey, Mr Richard
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 196, 216, 220, 266-7
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1014, 1024, 1034, 1045-6

Trade agreements
EC action 715w

Trade barriers
EC internal trade 256w, 259w

Trade competitiveness 342

Trade union membership
Teachers 371w

Trade unions (08:02:88) 39-139, 353-4, (10:02:88) 371-452
Disclosure of information 305w
Official engagements 46w, 294w
Teachers 578w, 581w

Trading funds
Property Services Agency 967

Traffic forecasting 741-2w

Traffic wardens
Greater London 542-3w

Training (10:02:88) 371-452
Family doctors 284-6w
Ministerial statements (16:02:88) 825-38
Palestine Liberation Organisation 437w
Reading Borough Council 315-6w
Swimming 20-1w

Training allowances (10:02:88) 371-452, (16:02:88) 825-38
Sheffield 533w

Training Commission (10:02:88) 371-452

"Training for Employment White Paper" (16:02:88) 825-38

Trains
Railway stations 453-4w

Transnuklear 519w

Transport
Inquiries 747w
South East region 747w

Transport of hazardous materials
Radioactive wastes 286-7w

Transport of radioactive materials 225-6w
Air safety 23
Nuclear weapons 136w
Plutonium 590w
Road accidents 241w

Travelling expenses
Council for Licensed Conveyancers 366w
Interviews 283w

Trawsfynydd power station
Testing 7-8, 416w, 510w

Treasure trove 302w

Treasury
Higher civil servants 91w
Sexual harassment 92w

Treaties
Nuclear weapons 383-4w

Tree conservation 673w

Tree planting
Tax allowances 490-1

Trent Regional Health Authority
Medical malpractice 276-8w

Trespass
Railway land 357w

Trident
Atomic Weapons Research Establishment 537w
Defence contracts 239w
Defence procurement 239w

Trident submarines
Sea transport 448w
Shipping accidents 447-8w, 539w

Trippier, Mr David, Under-Secretary of State for the Environment
Questions
Chelsea Football Club, Planning inquiries 298w
Derelict land grants, Public expenditure 671w
Environment protection, Opencast mining 661w
Government assistance, Liverpool 969
Industrial development, Birmingham 969
Inner city areas, "Faith in the City" 962
Leeds-Bradford Airport, Public inquiries 31-2w, 132w
Local government land, Property transfer 659w
London Docklands, Building industry 126w
London Docklands Development Corporation 968
London Docklands Development Corporation, Resignations 127-8w
Nottingham Development Enterprise 968-9
Planning permission, Chelsea Football Club 962-3
Rural areas, Development Commission 288w
Town & country planning 962-3
UK 2000, Public expenditure 669-70w
Urban development corporations 665w
Urban development corporations, Bristol 666w
Urban development corporations, Government grants 666w
Urban development corporations, Inner city areas 968
Urban development corporations, Leeds 666w
Urban development corporations, Manchester 666w
Urban planning, Planning permission 961-2
Urban programme 129-31w
Urban programme, Leeds 673w
Urban regeneration grants 521w, 719-20w
Woolwich Polytechnic, Building repairs 753w

Tritium
Chapelcross power station 240w

Trotter, Mr Neville
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 528, 532, 543-8

Tale, Terry 236w

Tuition fees
Part-time education 216w

Turkey
Armoured fighting vehicles 236w, 317w
Arms exports 317-8w
Synthetic fibres 148-9w, 253w

Turner, Mr Dennis
Debates etc.
Local Government Act 1985 (Police & Fire & Civil Defence Authorities) Precepts Limitation Order 1988 (08:02:88) 158
Questions
London Residuary Body, Offices 381w

Twinn, Dr Ian
Questions
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171w
Manufacturing industries 337w

Tyre tread depths 410w, 551w
EC action 410w, 749w
Safety standards 749w

UDM see Union of Democratic Mineworkers

UGC see University Grants Committee

UK 2000
Private investment 669-70w
Public expenditure 669-70w

UK contributions to EC budget 152w, 387-8w, 648w

UK repayments from EC budget 567w, 648w

UKAEA see United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority

UN see United Nations

UN disarmament
Nuclear test ban 235w

Unemployed
Handicapped 281-2w
Mental illness 231-2w

Unemployment 1148
Balance of trade 349
Barrow in Furness 473w
Blyth valley 472w
Budget 342w
Cheshire 230-2w
Derbyshire 229w
Dundee 65-6w, 75w
Economic growth 336w
Handicapped 281-2w
Houghton 475w
Lincoln 474w
Newport 9
Northwich 471-2w
Preston 474-5w
Pwllheli 10
Scotland 75w
Stafford 473-4w
Sudbury 549-50w
Wales 3-4
Wales Railway Centre 12
York 471-2w

Unemployment benefits
Occupational pensions 191w
Scotland 471w
Social security benefits disqualification 183-4w, 696w

UNESCO
Arts 697-8

Unification Church 138-9w
Charities 42w, 125-6w, 416w
Christianity 42w

Uniform business rate 664w
Association of British Chambers of Commerce 664-5w
Confederation of British Industry 664-5w
Rate increases 457-8w

Union of Democratic Mineworkers
Official engagements 344w

United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority 226w, 461-2w, 515-6w
Disclosure of information 240w
Finance 513-6w

United Nations 235w, 292w
Waldheim, Kurt 750-1w

Universities 580w, 810-1
Academic freedom 159-60w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88 49-50w
Research councils 581w
Scotland 576-8w
Student numbers 762-6w
Students 373-4w
Wales 580w

Universities Funding Council
Public appointments 217w
Scotland 579w

University College 537-8w

University College London Bill (HL) 1986/87
Debates etc.
3R* (08:02:88) 1
Royal assent (09:02:88) 169

University finance 431-2w, 582w, 810
Cash limits 767w
Extracurricular activities 372w
Scotland 576w, 809
Special educational needs 373w
University Grants Committee 311-2w

University Grants Committee 372-3w, 576w
University finance 311-2w

University of Wales 224w

Unpaid taxes 422w

Unparliamentary expressions
Speaker's rulings & statements (10:02:88) 402, (11:02:88) 499, (16:02:88) 835-6, 957-8, (17:02:88) 1102-3

Upminster 533-6w

Upper waiting hall
British Paediatric Association 264w

Urban areas
Shops 970

Urban development corporations 665w
Bristol 666w
Government grants 666w
Inner city areas 968
Leeds 666w
Manchester 666w
Telford 666w

Urban planning
Planning permission 961-2

Urban programme 129-31w
Bradford 673w
Leeds 673w

Urban regeneration grants 129-31w, 521w, 719-20w

Urgent case payments 696-7w

USA
Armed forces deployment 418w
Balance of trade 260w
Chemical weapons 448w
Defence 383-4w
Defence procurement 755w
Food & Agriculture Organisation 293w
Inter-American Development Bank 293w
Northern Ireland 426w
Politicians 85-6w
Prisoners 709-10w

USSR
British strategic nuclear force 822
Chernobilsky, Boris 149w
Foreign relations 424w

Vacancies
Derbyshire 229w
Dundee 540-2w
Northwich 313-4w

Vacant land
Official engagements 688w

Vaccination 623w
Wales 77-80w

Vale Royal
Empty housing 297w

Valleys initiative 6
Ogwr valley 10

VAT 821
Armed forces 770w
Confectionery 231w, 343w, 568w
Global Communication 770w
Harvest Chewy bars 343w
Newspaper press 496
Tax allowances 770w
Tax harmonisation 770w

VAT zero rated goods
European Court of Justice 332-3w
Hospital radio 342w

Vaz, Mr Keith
Debates etc.
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 851, 854, 857-9, 862, 879, 891, 903-8
Questions
Arts, Pensioners 467w
Arts Council grants, Ethnic minorities 769w
Banks, Developing countries 152w
Departmental correspondence, Tower Hamlets 437w
Education Reform Bill 1987/88, Leicestershire 573w
Genetics, Blood tests 362w
Home Office, Members 37-8w
Hospital beds, Leicestershire Health Authority 196-8w
Immigration, Members 1135-6
Immigration, Tower Hamlets Borough Council 710w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Administrative delays 136w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Civil service manpower 137w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Languages 543w
Immigration & Nationality Division, Overtime 543-4w
Leicester, Home Office 437w
Ministers' visits abroad, Costs 215w
Nurses, Leicestershire Health Authority 203w
Nurses, Pay 340w
Police stations 37-8w
Temporary immigrants, Immigration applications 137w

Vehicles
Lighting 410w

Vellmdre Hospital 518w

Veterinary drugs
Licensing 678-9w

Veterinary services
Scotland 221-2w

Video equipment
Production 531w, 610w

Viggers, Mr Peter, Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland
Questions
Bray District Council, Contracts 166w
Electricity supply industry, Credit agreements 750w
Electricity supply industry, Northern Ireland 592-3w, 750w
Employment discrimination, Appeals 440-2w
Employment discrimination, Northern Ireland 674w
Fair Employment Agency for Northern Ireland 594-6w
Fair Employment Commission, Northern Ireland 749w
Fisheries, Ardglass 749-50w
Handicapped, Northern Ireland 281-3w
Interviews, Northern Ireland 283w
Ministers' visits abroad, West Germany 164w
Rural areas, Northern Ireland 592w
Salmon, Fishery protection 325-6w

Village schools 819

Visas
Immigration applications 140w
Philippines 303-4w

Visual arts
Prisons 568w

Voluntary organisations
Ambulance services 413w
Film 500
Northern Ireland 590-1w
Retail price index 266w
Social security benefits 266w
Social services finance 180w

Voluntary redundancy
Nurses 480w

Voluntary unemployment 696w

Voting rights
Community charges register 823-4

Waddington, Rt Hon David, Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (17:02:88) 1073

Wages Inspectorate 470w
Northunnel 74w

Waiting lists
Ophthalmic services 463w

Wakefield District Council
Housing benefits 347w

Wakefield Health Authority
Hospital catering 180w

Wakeham, Rt Hon John, Lord President of the Council and Leader of the House of Commons
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1157-68
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 204-8
Questions
Access to Parliament 449-50w
Advertising, Expenditure 295w
Anglo-Irish Agreement 499-500
Business statements 503-18
Channel tunnel, Investment 502
Civil service, Inquiries 294w
Civil service, Prime Minister's Efficiency Unit 294-5w
Common agricultural policy 498-9
Death, Northern Ireland 500
European Council, EC budget 294w
Film, Voluntary organisations 500
House of Commons, Industrial health & safety 772w
House of Commons catering, Artificial sweeteners 727w
House of Commons catering, Non-alcoholic drinks 517w
House of Commons Library, Procurement 17
House of Commons Library, "Spycatcher" 17-8
House of Commons questions, Costs 295w
Intelligence services, National security 500
Leader of the Opposition, Pay 657-8w
Members' pensions, Employers' contributions 658w
Nurses 500-1
Official engagements 294w
Official engagements, Basingstoke 293w
Official engagements, East Stow 294w
Official engagements, Thurrock 294w
Official engagements, Trade unions 294w
Official Report 58w
Opposition parties, Public expenditure 657w
Palace of Westminster, Energy conservation 58w
Prime Minister's Efficiency Unit 295w
Private rented housing, Landlord & tenant 501-2
Privy Council, Periodicals 58w
Royal ordnance factories, Privatisation 498
Royal Ulster Constabulary, Inquiries 499, 502
St Mary's Hospital Manchester, Hospital closures 501
Sporting events, Hooliganism 501

Waldegrave, Mr William, Minister of State for the Environment (Housing & Planning)
Debates etc.
Council house sales, Lambeth (19:02:88) 1327-30
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1281, 1316-20
Questions
Asbestos, Housing estates 755w
Council house rents, Middlesbrough Borough Council 974
Council house rents, Oldham 974
Council house rents, Rent arrears 973
Council house sales, Discounts 462w
Council house sales, Right to buy 296w
Council housing 974-5
Council housing, Housing improvement 527w
Defective housing, House renovation grants 667w
Defective housing, Local government expenditure 667-8w
Exhaust emissions 381w
Furs, Farms 297w
Greenbelt, Departmental circulars 285w
Greenbelt, Eddisbury 672w
Greenbelt, Hertfordshire 21w
Homelessness, Mortgage defaulters 660-1w
Homelessness, Young people 658-9w
House renovation grants, Flats 673-4w
Housing 964
Housing action trusts, Departmental publications 670w
Housing associations 966
Housing associations, House purchase 668w, 672w
Housing Corporation, Cash limits 298-9w
Housing Corporation, Official engagements 966
Housing improvement, Estate Action 662w
Housing subsidies, Rent increases 527w
Housing tenure 963-4
Hypermarkets 970
Hypermarkets, Greenbelt 970
Hypermarkets, Planning inquiries 969-70
Land Registry Office 964
Local authorities 974
Middlesbrough Borough Council 974
Owner occupied housing, House purchase 963
Peak Park Joint Planning Board, Public appointments 662w
Planning appeals 455w, 662w
Planning appeals, Administrative delays 288w, 719w
Planning appeals, Planning authorities 660w
Planning appeals, Worthing Borough Council 19-20w
Planning permission 660w
Planning permission, Administrative delays 669w
Planning permission, Farm buildings 662w
Planning permission, Illuminated signs 21w
Planning permission, Property development 660w
Rent arrears 667w
Shared ownership schemes 973
Shared ownership schemes, Council housing 973
Shops, Urban areas 970
Structure plans, Berkshire 668w
Town & country planning 659w

Town & country planning, Planning authorities 660w
Westminster pier, Planning permission 670w

Walden, Mr George
Debates etc.
Inner London Education Authority (10:02:88) 467-9, 471, (17:02:88) 1067

Waldheim, Kurt
Nazi war crimes 519-20w, 750w
Public records 750w
United Nations 750-1w

Wales
Accident & emergency departments 123w
AIDS 79-80w
Arts 11
Board & lodging charges 113w
Bus services 77w
Bypasses 77w
Cervical cancer 12
Civil service dispersal 10-1
Coal mining 4
Common agricultural policy 16
Community charge 13
Community health services 518w
Congenital abnormalities 463w
Craft industries 11, 517w
Dentistry 464w
Economic situation 4-5
Education 745w
Employment 81w
Employment opportunities 597w
European Assembly constituencies 768w
European Regional Development Fund 75-6w
Family doctors 123w
Government assistance to industry 18-9
Health insurance 318-9w
Homelessness 120-4w
Hospital beds 18
Hospital catering 123-4w
Hospital waiting lists 15, 81w, 123-4w
Multiple occupation 8-9
NHS 18, 223-4w
NHS administration 11-2
NHS charges 745-6w
NHS finance 19-20
Obstetrics 79w
Official engagements 134w
Ophthalmic services 463w
Personal social services 223-4w
Pharmacies 598w
Pigmeat 463w
Private health services 318-9w
Private investment 3
Public appointments 597-600w
Public expenditure 319w
Regional aid 1-3, 6, 352, 686-7w
Regional development grants 75-6w, 363-4w
Regional selective assistance 76-7w, 517w
Relocation of employees 76-7w
Residential care 686w
Road works 119-20w
School meals 6-7
Screening 75w
Speech therapy 518w
Sports facilities 15-6
Structure plans 598w
Student numbers 766w
Teacher training 224w
Unemployment 3-4
Universities 580w
Vaccination 77-80w
Water (12:02:88) 677
Wind power 689

Wales Railway Centre
Unemployment 12

Walker, Mr Bill
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 525, 539, 576-80, 588, 591-2
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1289-90, 1305, 1308-10, 1314
Questions
Caravans, Parking offences 539w
Crime, Tayside 650w
Crime prevention, Tayside 732w
Dunkeld Cathedral, Bellringing 650w
EC grants & loans, Angus 476w
Employment opportunities, North Angus 728w
Housing construction, Angus 649w
Housing construction, Perth 649w
Metropolitan Police 1144
Multiple occupation, Fire escapes 321-2w
Procurators fiscal, Sexual offences 321-2w
Tayside Health Board, Health service staff 370-1w
Tourism, Angus 476w

Walker, Rt Hon Peter, Secretary of State for Wales
Questions
Abernant Colliery, Coal mine closures 9
British Coal Corporation, Official engagements 20
Civil service dispersal, Wales 10-1
Coal mine closures, South Wales 5-6
Coal mining, Wales 4
Common agricultural policy, Wales 16
Craft industries, Wales 11, 517w
Economic situation, Wales 4-5
Employment, Wales 81w
Employment opportunities, Wales 597w
European Regional Development Fund, Wales 76w
Manufacturing industries, Government assistance to industry 18-9
Margam mine 10
NHS finance, Wales 19-20
Pigmeat, Wales 463w
Private investment, Wales 3
Public appointments, Wales 597-600w
Public expenditure, Wales 319w
Regional aid, Wales 1-3, 686-7w
Regional development grants, Wales 75-6w, 363-4w
Regional selective assistance, Wales 76-7w, 517w
Severn bridge, Construction 10, 20
South Wales, Government assistance 5
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 7-8
Unemployment, Newport 9
Unemployment, Pwllheli 10
Unemployment, Wales 3-4
Valleys initiative 6
Valleys initiative, Ogwr valley 10
Wales Railway Centre 12
Wales Railway Centre, Unemployment 12
Welsh Grand Committee, Press conferences 746w
WINwest 363-4w

Wall, Mr Pat
Debates etc.
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 359
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 914-7
Standing Order No 20 applications (10:02:88) 366
Questions
Handicapped, Discrimination 188-9w
Skuse, Frank 701w

Wallace, Colin 41w, 83w
Information 41w

Wallace, Mr James
Debates etc.
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 217-22, 233
Questions
Balance of payments 335w
Exercise Teamwork 88, Amphibious vehicles 239w
Leader of the Opposition, Pay 657-8w
Opposition parties, Public expenditure 657w
Opposition Whips' Office, Civil service manpower 649w
Rate support grants, Scotland 731w
Regional aid, European Regional Development Fund 253w
Social Security Act 1986 179w
Trident, Defence contracts 239w
Trident, Defence procurement 239w

Waller, Mr Gary
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 297-9, 302
Questions
M62, Road construction 748w

Walley, Ms Joan
Debates etc.
Birmingham Children's Hospital (16:02:88) 839-40
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Standing Order No 20 applications (11:02:88) 519-20
Questions
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Heart diseases 497-8w, 700-1w
Dental charges, Dental health 181-2
Driving tests 411-2w
Electricity tariffs, Employment 470w
Electricity tariffs, Industry 507w
Food hygiene, Local authorities 622w
Water, Infant foods 571-2w
Water supply, Nitrates 127-8w

War crimes
Inquiries 304w

War Crimes Inquiry (08:02:88) 28-36, 304w

War Widows' Association of Great Britain 494-5w

War widows' pensions
Age allowances 494-5w

Ward, Mr John
Questions
Charities, Law reform 707-8w
Concessionary television licences, Pensioners 1142
Inflation 331w
M3-M27 link, Public inquiries 356w
Winchester bypass, Road accidents 356w

Wardell, Mr Gareth
Questions
AIDS, Contraceptives 557-8w
Caravan sites, Local authorities 458-60w
Community health services, Wales 518w
Hospital waiting lists, Cervical cancer 518w
Industrial health & safety 232w
Medical research, Analgesics 631-2w
Mental patients, Money 272w
Nature reserves, Land ownership & tenure 24-32w
Neonatal mortality, Intensive care 558w
Obstetrics, Wales 79w
Vaccination 623w
Vaccination, Wales 77-80w
Water supply industry, Sewers 459-61w

Wardle, Mr Charles
Debates etc.
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1274, 1294-7

Warning, Mr Robert N
Debates etc.
Passenger transport executives, Rate precepts (09:02:88) 318-20
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1237
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1195-6
Questions
Agency nurses, Merseyside 205w
Death, Elderly 697w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 180
Health service staff, Liverpool Health Authority 354-6w
Health services finance, EC countries 204-6w

National Health Service Royal Commission 214w
NHS finance 176w
Nurses, Mersey Regional Health Authority 204w
Radiotherapy 782-4w
Social security benefits, Retail price index 779-80w

Warren, Mr Kenneth
Questions
Air safety 23

Warships
Overseas aid 32w

Waste disposal
Channel tunnel 741w
Dawdon 133w
Dawdon Colliery 237w
Durham 585-6w
Hazardous wastes 297w
Litter 666w
West Midlands 297w
West Yorkshire 296w

Water
Infant foods 571-2w
Wales (12:02:88) 677

"Water & Sewerage Law Consultation Paper" 459-61w

Water authorities
External financing limits 752-3w
Official engagements 296w, 669w
Water pollution 669w

Water charges 128w
Water pollution 288w
Water supply 288w
Welsh Water Authority (12:02:88) 677

Water pollution
EC law 380-1w
Southern Water Authority 379-80w
Water authorities 669w
Water charges 288w
Yorkshire Water Authority 379-80w

Water safety
Schools 158w

Water supply
Bradford 127w
Edinburgh 540w
Lead 540w
Nitrates 127-8w
Stoke-on-Trent 127-8w
Water charges 288w

Water supply disconnections 288w

Water supply industry
Privatisation 461w
Sewers 459-61w

Watts, Mr John
Debates etc.
Training (16:02:88) 833
Questions
Confederation of British Industry, Official engagements 338w
Hospital patients, Per capita costs 487w

WDA see Welsh Development Agency

Welfare milk
Dundee 65w

Welfare of Battery Hens Regulations 1987
Questions
726w

Wells, Mr Bowen
Debates etc.
Business statements (18:02:88) 1160
Hong Kong (10:02:88) 363-4
Questions
Business statements 510
Economic situation, Shares 647w
Examinations, Age 817
Retail trade 442w

Welsh, Mr Andrew
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 66-7
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 387
Self-employed (15:02:88) 719, 737, 746-8
Questions
Air safety, Transport of radioactive materials 23
Economic League, Employment schemes 415w
Economic League, Nationalised industries 415w
Extracurricular activities, University finance 372w
Languages education, Scotland 367-8w, 477w
Legal aid, Scotland 477w
Medical students, Parental contributions 372w
Medical students, Student grants 372w
Regional development grants, Scotland 483w
Social security payments, Retail price index 494w
Student grants, Index linking 372w, 475-6w
University finance, Special educational needs 373w

Welsh Arts Council
Official engagements 11

Welsh Development Agency 363-4w, 686-7w

Welsh Grand Committee
Press conferences 746w

Welsh language
Prisoners 701w

Welsh Office 11

Welsh Water Authority
Water charges (12:02:88) 677

Wessex Regional Health Authority 109w

West Bank
Textiles 377-8w

West Berlin 538-9w

West Dorset Health Authority
NHS administration 1147

West Germany
European fighter aircraft 84w
Ministers' visits abroad 164w
Research finance 582w

West Glamorgan
Industrial accidents 74w

West Mercia Police
Manpower 709w

West Midlands
"DTI the Department for Enterprise White Paper" 253w
Hospitals 628-9
Waste disposal 297w

West Yorkshire
Police 1134
Rain 238w
Waste disposal 296w

West Yorkshire Passenger Transport Executive
Rate precepts (09:02:88) 287-307

Western Europe
Nuclear weapons deployment 538w

Western European Union 183
NATO 424w
Persian Gulf 423w

Westminster Children's Hospital
Burglary 781w

Westminster pier
Planning permission 670w

WEU see Western European Union

Wheat
Common farm prices 679-80w
Intervention prices 680w
Prices 726w

Wheelchairs
Handicapped 290w

Wheeler, Mr John
Debates etc.
Nazi war crimes (08:02:88) 30
Questions
Health services finance, Health insurance 263-4w
Metropolitan Police, Expenditure 547w
Prescriptions, Costs 622-3w

White fronted geese
Islay 72-3w

Whitlam, Gough 46w

Whitmore, Clive 384-6w

Whitney, Mr Ray
Questions
Health services finance, OECD countries 179

Whooping cough 77-80w, 623w

Widdecombe, Miss Ann
Questions
Abortion, Hospitals 191-2w
Tax & price index 331w

Wigley, Mr Dafydd
Debates etc.
European Council (15:02:88) 713
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1171
Questions
Atomic Weapons Research Establishment, Defence research 82-3w
Board & lodging charges, Social security recipients 113w
Cervical cancer, Wales 12
Defence research, Educational institutions 82w
Firearms 38w
Further education colleges 217w
Handicap benefits, Social security reform 171-2
Homelessness, Wales 120-4w
Innovation, Government assistance to industry 260w
Local authority powers, Handicapped 290w
NHS finance, Wales 19-20
Official engagements 135w, 520w, 690w
Prisoners, Welsh language 701w
Residential care, Local government staff 696w
Residential care, Scotland 729-30w
Residential care, Wales 6886w
Science & technology research, Loughborough University 32-3w
Science & technology research, York University 32w
Social security reform 180-1
Speech therapy, Wales 518w
Unemployment, Pwllheli 10
Water authorities, Official engagements 296w

Wildlife & Countryside Act 1981
Questions
379w

Williams, Rt Hon Alan
Questions
Congenital abnormalities, Heart diseases 463w
Dental charges, Wales 464w
Ophthalmic services, Waiting lists 463w
Public appointments, Wales 597-600w
Public expenditure, Wales 319w

Regional aid, Wales 3, 686-7w
Regional development grants, Wales 363w
Valleys initiative 6

Williams, Mr Alan W
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 565-8
Coal mine closures, Abernant Colliery (18:02:88) 1255-6
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 792-3
Questions
Fast reactors, Science & technology research 507w
Trawsfynydd power station, Testing 7

Wilshire, Mr David
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1242
Questions
Charities, Legislation 138-9w
Heathrow Airport, Air traffic 453w
Unification Church, Charities 42w, 125-6w, 416w
Unification Church, Christianity 42w

Wilson, Mr Brian
Debates etc.
Air force (11:02:88) 529, 557-60, 593-4
House of Commons broadcasting, Television (09:02:88) 259
Housing (Houses in Multiple Occupation) Bill, 2R order read (12:02:88) 675
Questions
Business statements 515-6
Channel ferries, Hazardous wastes 5w
Fish farming, Chemicals 464w
Hazardous wastes, Import licensing 24w
Hazardous wastes, Imports 24w
Health services finance, EC countries 174w
Herald of Free Enterprise, Freight transport 4-5w
Herald of Free Enterprise, Hazardous wastes 42w, 57w
HMS Resolution, Naval Emergency Monitoring Organisation 756w
HMS Resolution, Nuclear submarines 756w
HMS Resolution, Radiation hazards 756-7w
Naval bases, River Clyde 737w
Nuclear submarines, River Clyde 737w
Tax allowances, Forestry 339w

Winchester bypass
Road accidents 356w

Wind power
Government assistance 689
Liberal Party 689
Wales 689

"Windshielding on the Dartford Bridge" 616w

Winnick, Mr David
Debates etc.
Birmingham Children's Hospital (16:02:88) 840
Birmingham Children's Hospital, Standing Order No 20 applications (11:02:88) 521-2
Business statements (18:02:88) 1162
Employment Bill, Rep (08:02:88) 41, 89-91, 125-7, 132
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 375-7, 385
Immigration Bill, Rep & 3R (16:02:88) 869-70, 878-9, 884, 890
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1173-4, 1176, 1180, 1182
Questions
Business statements 513-4
Community charge 976
NHS 174

Winter Warmth Line
Advisory services 170

Winterton, Mrs Ann
Debates etc.
Common agricultural policy (15:02:88) 784-5

Winterton, Mr Nicholas
Debates etc.
Education Reform Bill, Allocation of time motion & Money res (17:02:88) 1099
Patent Office, Civil service dispersal (17:02:88) 1122-6, 1130
Questions
NHS 178
Paper industry, Patent Office 345
Patent Office 145-6w

WINvest 363-4w

Wise, Mrs Audrey
Debates etc.
Social Fund regulations (18:02:88) 1186, 1196-7
Questions
Miscarriages of justice, Court of appeal 705w

Wise, Claire (11:02:88) 519-20

Wolfson, Mr Mark
Debates etc.
Rural areas (19:02:88) 1282, 1284-8, 1315

Wolston
Official engagements 518w

Wolverhampton
City technology colleges 574w

Women
Abseiling 131w
Average earnings 716-8w
Cancer 773w
Cervical cancer 773w
Employment by sector 733w
Pensions 625-6w
Retirement age 625-6w

Women's employment 718w
Scotland 733w

Wood, Mr Timothy
Debates etc.
High technology, Science & technology research (19:02:88) 1321-2
Questions
Pay, Married men 332w

Wool
Guaranteed prices 328w

Woolwich Polytechnic
Building repairs 753w

Work permits
Law reform 712w

Wormwood Scrubs
Prison medical services 302w

Worth house
Inquiries 494w

Worthing Borough Council
Planning appeals 19-20w

Worthington, Mr Tony
Debates etc.
Employment Bill, Rep & 3R (10:02:88) 427-31, 436
Questions
Capital investment, Scotland 143-4w
Care proceedings, Scotland 143w
Child Care Law in Scotland Review Group 143w
Crime prevention 1143
Housing finance, Scotland 144w
Public expenditure 341w
Scottish Development Agency, Clydebank 480w

Wray, Mr Jimmy
Questions
Average earnings 716w
Average earnings, Manufacturing industries 232-4w
Average earnings, Women 716-8w
Cancer, Scotland 773w
Cervical cancer, Scotland 772-3w
Cervical cancer, Women 773w
Employment by sector, Scotland 733-4w
Food & Agriculture Organisation, USA 293w
General Certificate of Secondary Education, Examinations 163w
Manufacturing industries, Productivity 262-4w
Neonatal mortality, Scottish health boards 650-1w
Nicaragua, Overseas aid 428w
Women's employment 718w
Women's employment, Scotland 733w

Written questions
Knowles, Michael 767w
Speaker's rulings & statements (09:02:88) 188

Wylfa power station
Nuclear power stations 510w

Yeo, Mr Tim
Questions
AIDS Monitoring & Surveillance Committee 167w
Competition 254w
Empty housing, Duchy of Lancaster 33w
Inner London Education Authority 575w
Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1984 703w, 705w
Profitability 330w
Public Accounts Commission, Expenditure 44w

York
Regional aid 534w
Unemployment 471-2w

York City Council Bill (HL) 1985/86
Debates etc.
2R order read (11:02:88) 485, (18:02:88) 1131

York District Hospital
Costs 190w

York University
Science & technology research 32w

Yorkshire Regional Health Authority
Costs 190w

Yorkshire Water Authority
Water pollution 379-80w

Young, Sir George
Debates etc.
Rate Limitation (Prescribed Maximum) (Rates) Order 1988 (18:02:88) 1220-3

Young offenders
Prison population 71w
Tayside 479w

Young people
Alcoholic drinks 37w, 710-1w
Community charge rebates 622w
Further education 46w
Homelessness 658-9w
Police custody 434-5w
Social security benefits 189-90w
Social security recipients 115w
Talkabout service (09:02:88) 329-36

Younger, Rt Hon George, Secretary of State for Defence
Questions
D notices 384-6w

Youth custody
Alternatives to prison 709w

Youth employment
Cheshire 231w

Youth employment schemes
Northern Ireland 717-8w
Republic of Ireland 717-8w

Youth training scheme 317w
Armed forces 735w
Deaf 717w
Dept of Employment 470w
Dundee 478-9w
Scotland 479w